⁷Is there not a warfare to a mortal, upon earth? And, as the days of a hireling, are not his days? ²As, a bondman, panteth for the shadow, and as, a hireling, longeth for his wage, ³So, have I been made to inherit months of calamity, and, nights of weariness, have been appointed me. ⁴As soon as I lie down, I say, When shall I arise? yet he lengtheneth out the evening, and I am wearied with tossings until the breeze of twilight. ⁵My flesh is clothed with worms and a coating of dust, My skin, hath hardened, and then run afresh: ⁶My days, are swifter than a weaver's shuttle, and they are spent, without hope. ⁷Remember thou, that, a wind, is my life, not again shall mine eye see blessing: ⁸Nor shall see me—the eye that used to behold me, Thine eyes, are upon me, and I am not. ⁹A cloud faileth, and is gone, So, he that descendeth to hades, shall not come up: ¹⁰He shall not return again to his house, and his own place shall be acquainted with him no more. ¹¹I also, cannot restrain my mouth,—I must speak, in the anguish of my spirit, I must find utterance, in the bitterness of my soul. ¹²Am, I, a sea, or a sea-monster,—That thou shouldst set over me a watch? ¹³When I say, My bed shall comfort me, my couch shall help to carry my complaint, ¹⁴Then thou scarest me with dreams, and, by visions, dost thou terrify me: ¹⁵So that my soul chooseth strangling, Death, rather than these my bones! ¹⁶I am wasted away, Not, to times age-abiding, can I live, Let me alone, for, a breath, are my days. ¹⁷What is a mortal, that thou shouldst nurture him? Or that thou shouldst fix upon him thy mind? ¹⁸That thou shouldst inspect him morning by morning, moment by moment, shouldst test him? ¹⁹How long wilt thou not look away from me? Wilt thou not let me alone, till I can swallow my spittle? ²⁰I have sinned, What can I do for thee, thou watcher of men? Wherefore hast thou set me as thine object of attack, or have I become, unto thee, a burden? ²¹And why wilt thou not remove my transgression, and take away mine iniquity? For, now, in the dust, should I lie down, and thou shouldst seek me diligently, and I should not be.

⁸Then responded Bildad the Shuhite, and said:—²How long wilt thou speak these things? Or, as a mighty wind, shall be the sayings of thy mouth? ³Should, GOD, pervert justice? Or, the Almighty, pervert righteousness? ⁴Though, thy children, sinned against him, and he delivered them into the hand of their transgression, ⁵Yet, if, thou thyself, wilt diligently seek unto GOD,—and, unto the Almighty, wilt make supplication; ⁶If, pure and upright, thou thyself, art, surely, now, will he answer thy prayer, and will prosper thy righteous habitation: ⁷So shall thy beginning appear small,—when, thy latter end, he shall greatly increase! ⁸For inquire, I pray thee, of a former generation, and prepare thyself for the research of their fathers;—⁹For, of yesterday, are, we, and cannot know, for, a shadow, are our days upon earth: ¹⁰Shall, they, not teach thee—tell thee, and, out of their memory, bring forth words? ¹¹Can the paper-reed grow up, without a marsh? Or the rush grow up, without water? ¹²Though while still, in its freshness, it be not plucked off, yet, before any kind of grass, it doth wither: ¹³So, shall be the latter end of all who forget GOD, and, the hope of the impious, shall perish: ¹⁴Whose trust shall be contemptible,—and, a spider's web, his confidence: ¹⁵He leaneth upon his house, and it will not stand, he holdeth it fast, and it will not remain erect. ¹⁶Full of moisture he is, before the sun, and, over his garden, his shoot goeth forth: ¹⁷Over a heap, his roots are entwined, a place of stones, he descrieth; ¹⁸If one destroy him out of his place, then will it disown him saying—I have not seen thee. ¹⁹Lo! that, is the joy of his way,—and, out of the dust, shall others spring up. ²⁰Lo! GOD, will not reject a blameless man, neither will he grasp the hand of evil-doers: ²¹At length he shall fill with laughter thy mouth, and thy lips, with a shout of triumph: ²²They who hate thee, shall be clothed with shame, but, the tent of the lawless, shall not be!

⁹Then responded Job, and said—²Of a truth, I know that so it is, But how can a mortal be just with GOD? ³If he choose to contend with him, he cannot answer him, one of a thousand: ⁴Wise in heart, and alert in vigour,

What man hath hardened himself against him, and prospered! ⁵Who removeth mountains, unawares, Who overturneth them in his anger; ⁶Who shaketh the earth, out of its place, and, the pillars thereof, shudder; ⁷Who commandeth the sun, and it breaketh not forth, and, about the stars, he putteth a seal; ⁸Who spreadeth out fire heavens, by himself alone! and marcheth along, on the heights of the sea; ⁹Who made the Bear, the Giant and the Cluster, and the chambers of the south; ¹⁰Who doeth great things, past finding out, and marvels, beyond number. ¹¹Lo! he cometh upon me, yet can I not see him, Yea he passeth on, yet can I not discern him. ¹²Lo! he snatcheth away, who can bring it back? Who shall say unto him, What wouldst thou do? ¹³As for GOD, if he withdraw not his anger, under him, will have submitted themselves—the proud helpers. ¹⁴How much less that, I, should answer him, should choose my words with him? ¹⁵Whom, though I were righteous, yet would I not answer, to be absolved, I would make supplication. ¹⁶Though I had called, and he had answered me, I could not believe, that he would lend an ear to my voice. ¹⁷For, with a tempest, would he fall upon me, and would multiply my wounds without need; ¹⁸He would not suffer me to recover my breath, for he would surfeit me with bitter things. ¹⁹If it regardeth vigour, bold is he! If justice, who could summon him? ²⁰If I should justify myself, mine own mouth, would condemn me,—I blameless? then had it shewn me perverse. ²¹I blameless? I should not know my own soul, I should despise my own life! ²²One thing, there is, for which cause, I have said it, The blameless and the lawless, he bringeth to an end. ²³If, a scourge, slay suddenly, at the despair of innocent ones, he mocketh. ²⁴The earth, hath been given into the hand of a lawless one, The faces of her judges, he covereth, If not, then who is it? ²⁵My days, therefore, are swifter than a runner, They have fled, they have seen no good. ²⁶They have passed away with boats of paper-reed, like a vulture which rusheth upon food. ²⁷If I say, I will forget my complaint, I will lay aside my sad countenance, and brighten up, ²⁸I am afraid of all my pains, I know, that thou wilt not pronounce me innocent. ²⁹I, shall be held guilty,—Wherefore then, in vain, should I toil? ³⁰Though I bathe myself in snow water, and cleanse, in cleanness itself, my hands, ³¹Then, in a ditch, wouldst thou plunge me, and mine own clothes should abhor me: ³²For he is not a man like myself, whom I might answer, nor could we come together into judgment: ³³There is not, between us, a mediator, who might lay his hand upon us both. ³⁴Let him take from off me his rod, and, his terror, let it not startle me: ³⁵I could speak, and not be afraid of him, although, not so, am, I, in myself!

¹⁰My soul doth loathe my life,—I let loose my complaint, I speak, in the bitterness of my soul. ²I say unto GOD, Do not hold me guilty, Let me know, on what account thou contendest with me! ³Is it seemly in thee, that thou shouldst oppress? that thou shouldst despise the labour of thine own hand, when, upon the counsel of the lawless, thou hast shone? ⁴Eyes of flesh, hast thou? or, as a mortal seeth, seest thou? ⁵As the days of a mortal, are thy days? or, thy years, as the days of a man? ⁶That thou shouldst seek for mine iniquity, and, for my sin, shouldst make search: ⁷Though it is, within thine own knowledge, that I would not be lawless, and, none, out of thy hand, can deliver? ⁸Thine own hands, shaped me, and made me, all in unison round about, and yet thou hast confounded me. ⁹Remember, I pray thee, that, as clay, thou didst make me, and, unto dust, thou wilt cause me to return. ¹⁰Didst thou not, like milk, pour me forth? and, as cheese, curdle me? ¹¹With skin and flesh, clothe me? and, with bones and sinews, interweave me? ¹²Life and lovingkindness, thou didst bestow upon me,—and, thy watchful care, preserved my breath. ¹³Yet, these things, thou didst hide in thy heart, I know that, this, hath been with thee! ¹⁴If I have sinned, then couldst thou watch me, and, from mine iniquity, thou wouldst not acquit me: ¹⁵If I have been lawless, alas for me! Or, if I am righteous, I will not lift up my head, Surfeited with shame, look thou then on my humiliation. ¹⁶When it is lifted up, like a howling lion, thou dost hunt me, Then again thou dost shew thyself marvellous against me. ¹⁷Thou renewest thy witnesses before me, and dost increase thy vexation with me, Relays—yea an army, is with me. ¹⁸Wherefore then, from the womb, didst thou bring me forth? I might have breathed my last, and, no eye, have seen me. ¹⁹As though I had not been, should I have become,—from the womb to the grave, might I have been borne. ²⁰Are not my days, few?—then forbear, and set me aside, that I may brighten up for a little; ²¹Before I go, and not return, unto a land of darkness and death-shade: ²²A land of obscurity, like thick darkness, of death-shade and disorder, and which shineth like thick darkness.

11 Then responded Zophar the Naamathite, and said:—²Should, the multitude of words, not be answered? Or should, a man full of talk, be justified? ³Shall, thy pratings, cause men to hold their peace? When thou hast mocked, shall there be none to put thee to shame? ⁴Since thou hast said, Right is my doctrine, and pure am I in his eyes. ⁵But, in very deed, oh that GOD would speak, that he would open his lips with thee: ⁶That he would declare to thee the secrets of wisdom, for they are double to that which actually is,—Know then that GOD could bring into forgetfulness for thee, a portion of thine iniquity. ⁷The hidden depth of GOD canst thou discover? Or, unto the furthest limit of the Almighty, canst thou attain? ⁸The heights of the heavens, what canst thou do? Depths deeper than hades, what canst thou know? ⁹Longer than the earth, is the measure thereof, and broader than the sea. ¹⁰If he sweep on, or shut up, or call together, Who then shall hinder him? ¹¹For, he, knoweth men of falsity, and seeth iniquity, and him that doth not diligently consider. ¹²But, an empty person, will get sense, when, a wild ass's colt, is born a man! ¹³If, thou, hast prepared thy heart, and wilt spread forth, unto him, thy hands—¹⁴If, iniquity, be in thy hand, Put it far away, and let there not dwell in thy tents perversity, ¹⁵Surely, then, shalt thou lift up thy face free from blemish, and shalt be established, and not fear. ¹⁶For, now, shalt thou forget, sorrow, Like waters passed away, shalt thou remember it. ¹⁷Above high noon, shall rise life's continuance, Darkness, like a morning, shall appear, ¹⁸And thou shalt be confident, that there is hope, and, when thou hast searched, securely shalt thou lie down; ¹⁹And shalt rest, with none to put thee in terror,—and many shall entreat thy favour. ²⁰But, the eyes of the lawless, shall fail,—and, place of refuge, shall have vanished from them, and, their hope, be a breathing out of life.

12 Then responded Job, and said:—²Of a truth, ye, are the people, and, with you, wisdom, will die. ³I also, have a mind like you, I, fall not short, of you, But who hath not such things as these? ⁴A laughing-stock to one's neighbour, do I become, one who hath called upon GOD and he hath answered him! A laughing-stock—a righteous man without blame! ⁵For ruin, there is contempt, in the thought of the man at ease,—ready, for such as are of faltering foot! ⁶At peace are the tents that belong to the spoilers, and there is security to them who provoke GOD, To him who bringeth a god in his hand. ⁷But, in very deed, ask, I pray thee, the beasts, and they will teach thee, and the bird of the heavens, and it will tell thee; ⁸Or address the earth, and it will teach thee, and the fishes of the sea, will recount it to thee: ⁹Who knoweth not, among all these, that, the hand of Yahweh, hath done this? ¹⁰In whose hand is the soul of every living thing, and the spirit of all the flesh of men. ¹¹Doth not, the ear, try, words? even as, the palate, tasteth for itself, food? ¹²In the Ancient, is wisdom, and in Length of Days, understanding: ¹³With Him, are wisdom and strength, to Him, pertain counsel and understanding. ¹⁴Lo! He pulleth down, and it cannot be built, He closeth up over a man, and it cannot be opened: ¹⁵Lo! He holdeth back the waters, and they dry up, or sendeth them out, and they transform the earth: ¹⁶With Him, is strength and effective wisdom, to Him, belong he that erreth, and he that causeth to err. ¹⁷Who leadeth away counsellors as a spoil, and, judges, He befooleth: ¹⁸The fetters of kings, He looseth, or hath bound a slave's waistcloth about their loins: ¹⁹Who leadeth away priests as a spoil, and, men firmly seated, He overturneth: ²⁰Setting aside the speech of the trusty, and, the discernment of elders, He taketh away: ²¹Pouring contempt upon nobles, and, the girdle of the mighty, hath He loosed: ²²Laying open deep things, out of darkness, and bringing out to light, the death-shade: ²³Who giveth greatness to nations, or destroyeth them, Who spreadeth out nations, or leadeth them into exile: ²⁴Who taketh away the sense of the chiefs of the people of the earth, and hath caused them to wander in a pathless waste: ²⁵They grope about in the dark, having no light, and He hath made them to reel, like a drunken man.

13Lo! all this, hath mine own eye seen,—Mine ear hath heard and understood it: ²Just as ye know, I too, know, I, fall not short, of you. ³But indeed, I, unto the Almighty, would speak, and, to direct my argument unto GOD, would I be well pleased. ⁴For, in truth, ye, do besmear with falsehood, Worthless physicians, all of you! ⁵Oh that ye would, altogether held your peace, and it should serve you for wisdom! ⁶Hear, I pray you, the argument of my mouth, and, to the pleadings of my lips, give heed:— ⁷Is it, for God, ye would speak perversely? And, for him, would ye speak deceit: ⁸Even, for him, would ye be partial? Or, for GOD, would ye so plead? ⁹Would it be well, when he searched you out? Or, as one might jest with a mortal, would ye jest, with him? ¹⁰He will, severely rebuke, you, if ye are secretly partial. ¹¹Shall not, his majesty, overwhelm you? and, the dread of him, fall upon you? ¹²Are not your memorable sayings, proverbs of ashes? Breastworks of clay, your breastworks? ¹³Quietly let me alone, that, I, may speak out, then let come on me, what may. ¹⁴In any case, I will take up my flesh in my teeth, and, my life, will I put in my hand: ¹⁵Lo! he may slay me, yet, for him, will I wait,—Nevertheless, my ways—unto his face, will I show to be right: ¹⁶Even he, will be on my side—unto salvation, For, not before his face, shall any impious person come. ¹⁷Hear ye patiently my speech, and be my declaration in your ears. ¹⁸Lo! I pray you, I have set forth in order a plea, I know that, I, shall be found right. ¹⁹Who is it that shall contend with me? For, now, if I should hold my peace, why! I should breathe my last! ²⁰Only, two things, do thou not with me, then, from thy face, will I not hide me:— ²¹Thy hand—from off me, take thou far away, and, thy terror, let it not startle me! ²²Then call thou, and, I, will answer, Or I will speak, and reply thou unto me. ²³How many are mine iniquities and sins? My transgression and my sin, let me know! ²⁴Wherefore, thy face, shouldst thou hide? Or count me, as an enemy to thee? ²⁵A driven leaf, wilt thou cause to tremble? Or, dry stubble, wilt thou pursue? ²⁶For thou writest, against me, bitter things, and dost make me inherit the iniquities of my youth; ²⁷And thou dost put—in the stocks—my feet, and observest all my paths, Against the roots of my feet, thou dost cut out a bound; ²⁸And, a man himself, as a rotten thing, weareth out, as a garment which the moth hath eaten.

He fleeth also as a shadow, and continueth not. ³And yet upon such a one as this, hast thou opened thine eye? And, him, wouldst thou bring into judgment with thee? ⁴Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean? Not one! ⁵If determined am his days, the number of his months, is with thee, Fixed times for him, thou hast appointed and he cannot go beyond. ⁶Look sway from him, that he may rest, Till he shall pay off, as a hireling, his day. ⁷Though there is—for a tree—hope,—if it should be cut down, that, again, it will grow, and, the tender branch thereof, will not cease; ⁸If its root, should become old in the earth, and, in the dust, its stock should die: ⁹Through the scent of water, it may break forth, and produce branches like a sapling, ¹⁰Yet, man, dieth, and is prostrate, Yea the son of earth doth cease to breathe, and where is he? ¹¹Waters, have failed from, the sea, and, a river, may waste and dry up; ¹²So, a man, hath lain down, and shall not arise, until there are no heavens, they shall not awake, nor be roused up out of their sleep. ¹³Oh that, in hades, thou wouldst hide me! that thou wouldst keep me secret, until the turn of thine anger, that thou wouldst set for me a fixed time, and remember me: ¹⁴If a man die, can he live again? All the days of my warfare, would I wait, until my relief should come:— ¹⁵Thou shouldst call, and, I, would answer thee,—For the work of thine own hand, thou shouldst long. ¹⁶For, now, my steps, thou countest, Thou wilt not pass over my sin: ¹⁷Sealed up in a bag, is my transgression, and thou hast glued over mine iniquity. ¹⁸But, in very deed, a mountain falling, will lie prostrate, or, a rock moved out of its place: ¹⁹Stones, have been hollowed out by waters, the floods thereof wash away the dust of the earth, and, the hope of mortal man, thou hast destroyed: ²⁰Thou dost overpower him utterly, and he departeth, Disfiguring his face, so, hast thou sent him away. ²¹His sons, come to honour, and he knoweth it not, Or they are brought low, and he perceiveth it not of them. ²²But, his flesh, for himself, is in pain, and, his soul, for himself, doth mourn.

are the consolations of GOD? or a word spoken gently with thee? ¹²How doth thine own heart carry thee away, and how thine eyes do roll! ¹³For thy spirit, replieth against GOD, and thou bringest forth—out of thy mouth—words! ¹⁴What is a mortal, that he should be pure? or that righteous should be one born of a woman? ¹⁵Lo! in his holy ones, he putteth not confidence, and, the heavens, are not pure in his eyes: ¹⁶How much less when one is detested and corrupt, a man who drinketh in—like water—perversity. ¹⁷I will tell thee—hear me, Since this I have seen, I must needs declare it. ¹⁸Which, wise men, tell, and deny not that which is from their fathers. ¹⁹To them alone, was the earth given, and no alien passed through their midst: ²⁰All the days of the lawless man, he, doth writhe with pain, and, the number of years, is hidden from the tyrant; ²¹A noise of dreadful things, is in his ears, In prosperity, the destroyer cometh upon him; ²²He hath no confidence to come back out of darkness, he, being destined to the power oft the sword; ²³A wanderer, he, for bread, saying Where is it? He knoweth that, prepared by his own hand, is the day of darkness; ²⁴Distress and anguish shall startle him, It shall overpower him, like a king ready for the onset: ²⁵Because he had stretched out—against GOD—his hand, and, against the Almighty, had been wont to behave himself proudly; ²⁶He used to run against him with uplifted neck, with the stout bosses of his bucklers; ²⁷For he had covered his face with his fatness, and had gathered a superabundance on his loins; ²⁸And had inhabited demolished cities, houses, wherein men would not dwell, that were destined to become heaps. ²⁹He shall not be rich, nor shall his substance continue, neither shall their shadow stretch along on the earth; ³⁰He shall not depart out of darkness, his young branch, shall the flame dry up, and he shall depart, by the breath of his own mouth! ³¹Let no one trust in him that—by vanity—is deceived, for, vanity, shall be his recompense; ³²Before his day, shall it be accomplished, with, his palm-top, not covered with leaves; ³³He shall wrong—like a vine—his sour grapes, and shall cast off—as an olive-tree—his blossom. ³⁴For, the family of the impious, is unfruitful, and, a fire, hath devoured the tents of bribery; ³⁵Conceiving mischief, and bringing forth iniquity, yea, their inmost soul, prepareth deceit.

¹⁶Then responded Job, and said:—²I have heard many such things, Wearisome comforters, are ye all! ³Is there to be an end to windy words? Or what so strongly excite thee, that thou must respond? ⁴I also, like you, could speak,—If your soul were in the place of my soul, I could string together words against you, and could therewith shake over you my head. ⁵I could make you determined, by my mouth, and then my lip-solace should restrain you. ⁶Though I do speak, unassuaged is my stinging pain,—And, if I forbear, of what am I relieved? ⁷But, now, hath he wearied me, thou hast destroyed all my family; ⁸And, having captured me, it hath served, as a witness; and so my wasting away hath risen up against me, in my face, it answereth. ⁹His anger, hath torn and persecuted me, He hath gnashed upon me with his teeth, Mine adversary, hath sharpened his eyes for me. ¹⁰They have gaped upon me with their mouth, With reproach, have they smitten my cheek, Together, against me, have they closed their ranks. ¹¹GOD doth abandon me to him that is perverse, and, into the hands of the lawless, he throweth me headlong. ¹²At ease, was I when he shattered me, Yea he seized me by my neck, and dashed me in pieces, then set me up for himself as a mark: ¹³His archers came round against me, He clave asunder my reins, and spared not, He poured out, on the earth, my gall: ¹⁴He made a breach in me, breach upon breach, He ran upon me, like a mighty man. ¹⁵Sackcloth, sewed I on my skin, and rolled—in the dust—my horn: ¹⁶My face, is reddened from weeping, and, upon mine eyelashes, is the death-shade:—¹⁷Though no violence was in my hands, and, my prayer, was pure. ¹⁸O earth! do not cover my blood, and let there be no place for mine outcry. ¹⁹Even now, lo! in the heavens, is my witness, ²⁰And, he that voucheth for me is on high. My friends are, they who scorn me, Unto GOD, hath mine eye shed tears:—²¹That one might plead, for a man, with GOD,—Even a son of man, for his friend! ²²When, a few years, come, then, by a path by which I shall not return, shall I depart.

¹⁷My spirit, is broken, My days, are extinguished, Graves, are left me. ²Verily there are mockers, with me! And, on their insults, mine eye doth rest. ³Appoint it, I pray thee—be thou surety for me with thyself, Who is there that, on my side, can pledge himself? ⁴For, their heart, hast thou kept back from understanding, On this account, thou wilt not exalt them. ⁵He that, for a share, denounceth friends, even, the eyes of his children, shall be dim. ⁶But he hath set me, as the byword of peoples, And, one to be spit on in the face, do I become. ⁷Therefore hath mine eye become dim from vexation, and, my members, are like a shadow, all of them. ⁸Upright men shall be astounded over this, and, the innocent, against the impious, shall rouse themselves. ⁹That the righteous may hold on his way, and, the clean of hands, increase in strength. ¹⁰But indeed, as for them all, will ye bethink yourselves and enter into it, I pray you? Or shall I not find, among you, one who is wise? ¹¹My days, are past, my purposes, are broken off, the possessions of my heart! ¹²Night for day, they appoint, Light, is near, by reason of darkness! ¹³If I wait for hades as my house, in darkness, have spread out my couch; ¹⁴To corruption, have exclaimed, My father, thou! My mother! and My sister! to the worm. ¹⁵Where then would be my hope? And, as for my blessedness, who should see it! ¹⁶With me to hades, would they go down, If, wholly—into the dust, is the descent!

18Then responded Bildad the Shuhite, and said:—²How long will ye make a perversion of words? Ye should understand, and, afterwards, we could speak. ³Wherefore are we accounted like beasts? or appear stupid, in thine eyes? ⁴One tearing in pieces his own soul in his anger,—For thy sake, shall the earth be forsaken? or the rock be moved out of its place? ⁵Even the light of the lawless, shall go out,—Neither shall shine the flame of his fire; ⁶The light, hath darkened in his tent, Yea, his lamp above him, goeth out; ⁷The steppings of his strength are hemmed in, and his own counsel casteth him down; ⁸For he is thrust into a net by his own feet, and, upon a trap, he marcheth; ⁹There catcheth him—by the heel—a gin, there holdeth him fast—a noose: ¹⁰Concealed in the ground is a cord for him,—and a snare for him, on the path. ¹¹Round about, terrors have startled him, and have driven him to his feet. ¹²Let his strength be famished, and, calamity, be ready at his side; ¹³Let it devour the members of his body, Let the firstborn of death devour his members; ¹⁴Uprooted, out of his tent, be his confidence, and let it drive him down to the king of terrors; ¹⁵There shall dwell in his tent, what is naught-of-his, Let brimstone be strewed over his dwelling; ¹⁶Beneath, let his roots be dried up, and, above, be cut off his branch; ¹⁷His memorial, have perished out of the land, and let him have no name over the face of the open field; ¹⁸Let them thrust him out of light into darkness, Yea, out of the world, let them chase him; ¹⁹Let him have neither scion nor seed among his people, neither any survivor in his place of sojourn: ²⁰Over his day, have they been astounded who come behind, and, them who are in advance, a shudder hath seized. ²¹Surely, these, are the dwellings of him that is perverse, and, this, is the place of him that knoweth not GOD.

19Then responded Job, and said:—²How long will ye grieve my soul? or crush me with words? ³These ten times, have ye reviled me, Shameless ye wrong me. ⁴And even if indeed I have erred, with myself lodgeth mine error. ⁵If indeed, against me, ye must needs magnify yourselves, and plead, against me, my reproach. ⁶Know, then, that, God, hath overthrown me, and, within his net, enclosed me. ⁷Lo! I cry—out: Violence! but receive no answer, I cry aloud, but there is no vindication; ⁸My way, hath he walled up, that I cannot pass, and, upon my paths, hath he made darkness rest; ⁹My glory—from off me, hath he stripped, and hath removed the crown of my head; ¹⁰He hath ruined me on every side, and I am gone, and he hath taken away—like a tree—my hope; ¹¹Yea he hath kindled against me his anger, and accounted me towards him like unto his adversaries; ¹²Together, enter his troops and have cast up, against me, their mound, and have encamped all around my tent; ¹³My Brethren—from beside me, hath he moved far away, and, mine acquaintance, are wholly estranged from me; ¹⁴Failed me, have my near of kin, and, mine intimate acquaintances, have forgotten me; ¹⁵Ye guests of my house and my maidens, A stranger, have ye accounted me, An alien, have I become in their eyes; ¹⁶To mine own servant, I called, and he would not answer, With mine own mouth, I kept entreating him; ¹⁷My breath, is strange to my wife, and I am loathsome to the sons of my own mother; ¹⁸Even young children, despise me, I rise up, and they speak against me; ¹⁹All the men of mine intimate circle abhor me, and, these whom I loved, have turned against me; ²⁰Unto my skin and unto my flesh, have my bones cleaved, and I have escaped with the akin of my teeth. ²¹Pity me! pity me! ye, my friends, for, the hand of GOD, hath stricken me! ²²Wherefore should ye persecute me as GOD? and, with my flesh, should not he satisfied? ²³Oh, then, that my words, could be written, Oh that, in a record, they could be inscribed: ²⁴That, with a stylus of iron and with lead, for all time—in the rock, they could be graven! ²⁵But, I, know that, my redeemer, liveth, and, as the Last over my dust, will he arise; ²⁶And, though, after my skin is struck off, this followeth, yet, apart from my flesh, shall I see GOD: ²⁷Whom, I myself, shall see, on my side, and, mine own eyes, shall have looked upon, and not those of a stranger. Exhausted are my deepest desires in my bosom! ²⁸Surely ye should say—Why should we persecute him? seeing, the root of the matter, is found in me. ²⁹Be ye afraid—on your part—of the face of the sword, because, wrath, bringeth the punishments of the sword, to the end ye may know the Almighty.

20Then responded Zophar the Naamathite, and said:—²Not so, do my thoughts answer me, and to this end, is my haste within me: ³The correction meant to confound me, I must hear, but, the spirit—out of my understanding, will give me a reply. ⁴Knowest thou, this—from antiquity, from the placing of man upon earth:—⁵That, the joy-shout of the lawless, is short, and, the rejoicing of the impious, for a moment? ⁶Though his elevation mount up to the heavens, and, his head, to the clouds, doth reach, ⁷Like his own stubble, shall he utterly perish, They who had seen him, shall say, Where is he? ⁸Like a dream, shall he fly away, and they shall not find him, yea he shall be chased away, as a vision of the night. ⁹The eye that hath scanned him, shall not do it again, neither, any more, shall his place behold him: ¹⁰His children, shall seek the favour of the poor, and, his own hand, shall give back his wealth. ¹¹His bones, are full of youthful vigour, yet, with him—in the dust, shall it lie down. ¹²Though, a sweet taste in his mouth, be given by vice, though he hide it under his tongue; ¹³Though he spare it, and will not let it go, but retain it in the midst of his mouth, ¹⁴His food, in his stomach, is changed, the gall of adders, within him! ¹⁵Wealth, hath he swallowed, and hath vomited the same, Out of his belly, shall, GOD, drive it forth: ¹⁶The poison of adders, shall he suck, The tongue of the viper shall slay him; ¹⁷Let him not see in the channels the flowings of torrents of honey and milk. ¹⁸In vain, he toiled, he shall not swallow, like wealth to be restored, in which he cannot exult! ¹⁹For he hath oppressed—hath forsaken the poor, A house, hath he seized, which he cannot rebuild. ²⁰Surely he hath known no peace in his inmost mind,—With his dearest thing, shall he not get away: ²¹Nothing escaped his devouring greed,—For this cause, shall his prosperity not continue: ²²When his abundance is gone, he shall be in straits, All the power of distress, shall come upon him. ²³It shall be that, to fill his belly, he will thrust at him the glow of his anger, and rain it upon him for his punishment. ²⁴He shall flee from the armour of iron,—There shall pierce him, a bow of bronze! ²⁵He hath drawn it out, and it hath come forth out of his back,—yea the flashing arrow-head, out of his gall, There shall march on him—terrors: ²⁶Every misfortune, is laid up for his treasures,—There shall consume, a fire, not blown up,—it shall destroy what remaineth in his tent: ²⁷The heavens shall reveal his iniquity, and, the earth, be rising up against him: ²⁸The increase of his house shall vanish, melting away in the day of his anger. ²⁹This, is the portion of the lawless man, from God, and the inheritance decreed him from the Mighty One.

21 Then responded Job, and said:—²Hear ye patiently my words, and let this be your consolation: ³Suffer me, that, I, may speak, and, after I have spoken, thou canst mock! ⁴Did, I, unto man, make my complaint? Wherefore, then, should my spirit not be impatient? ⁵Turn round to me, and be astonished, and lay hand on mouth! ⁶When I call to mind, then am I dismayed, and there seizeth my flesh a shuddering:—⁷Wherefore do, lawless men, live, advance in years, even wax mighty in power? ⁸Their seed, is established in their sight, along with them, yea their offspring, before their eyes; ⁹Their houses, are at peace, without dread, neither is, the rod of GOD, upon them; ¹⁰His bull, covereth, and causeth not aversion, His cow safely calveth, and casteth not her young; ¹¹They send forth—like a flock—their young ones, and, their children, skip about for joy; ¹²They rejoice aloud as with timbrel and lyre, and make merry to the sound of the pipe; ¹³They complete, in prosperity, their days, and, in a moment to hades, they sink down. ¹⁴Yet they said unto GOD, Depart from us, and, In the knowledge of thy ways, find we no pleasure. ¹⁵What is the Almighty, that we should serve him? Or what shall we profit, that we should urge him? ¹⁶Lo! not in their own hand, is their welfare, The counsel of lawless men, is far from me! ¹⁷How oft, the lamp of the lawless, goeth out, and their calamity, cometh upon them, Sorrows, apportioneth he in his anger; ¹⁸They become as straw before the wind, and as chaff, which the storm stealeth away. ¹⁹Shall, GOD, reserve, for his children, his sorrow? Let him recompense him so that he may know it; ²⁰His own eyes, shall see his misfortune, and, the wrath of the Almighty, shall he drink. ²¹For what shall be his pleasure in his house after him, when, the number of his months, is cut in twain? ²²Is it, to GOD, one can teach knowledge, seeing that, he, shall judge, them who are on high? ²³This, man dieth, in the very perfection of his prosperity, wholly tranquil and secure; ²⁴His veins, are filled with nourishment, and, the marrow of his bones, is fresh; ²⁵Whereas, this other man, dieth, in bitterness of soul, and hath never tasted good fortune: ²⁶Together, in the dust, they lie down, and, the worm, spreadeth a covering over them. ²⁷Lo! I know your plans, and the devices, wherewith ye would do me violence! ²⁸For ye say, Where is the house of the noble-minded? And where the dwelling-tent of the lawless? ²⁹Have ye not asked the passers-by in the way? And, their signs, can ye not recognise? ³⁰That, to the day of calamity, is the wicked reserved, to the day of indignant visitation, are they led. ³¹Who can declare—to his face—his way? And, what, he, hath done, who shall recompense to him? ³²Yet, he, to the graves, is borne, and, over the tomb, one keepeth watch; ³³Pleasant to him are the mounds of the torrent-bed,—and, after him, doth every man march, as, before him, there were without number. ³⁴How then should ye comfort me with vanity, since, as for your replies, there lurketh, in them treachery?

22 Then responded Eliphaz the Temanite, and said:—²Unto GOD, can a man act as friend? Surely a discreet man befriendeth himself! ³Is it a pleasure to the Almighty, that thou shouldst be righteous? or any profit, that thou shouldst be blameless in thy ways? ⁴Is it, for thy reverence, that he will accuse thee? will enter with thee into judgment? ⁵Is not, thy wickedness, great? and, without end, are not thine iniquities? ⁶Surely then hast been wont to put thy brother in pledge, for nothing, and, the garments of the ill-clad, hast thou stripped off: ⁷No water—to the weary, hast thou given to drink, and, from the hungry, thou hast withheld bread: ⁸A man of might, to him, pertaineth the land, and, the favorite, dwelleth therein: ⁹Widows, thou hast sent away empty, and, the arms of the fatherless, thou dost crush. ¹⁰For this cause, round about thee, are snares, and a dread startleth thee suddenly; ¹¹Or darkness—thou canst not see, and, a flood of waters, covereth thee. ¹²Is not, GOD, in the height of the heavens? Behold, then, the head of the stars, that they are high. ¹³Wilt thou say then, What doth GOD know? Out through a thick cloud, can he judge? ¹⁴Dark clouds, are a veil to him, and he cannot see, or, the vault of the heavens, doth he walk? ¹⁵The path of the ancient time, wilt thou mark, which the men of iniquity trod? ¹⁶Who were snatched away before the time, and, a stream, washed away their foundation? ¹⁷Who had been saying unto GOD, Depart from us! and—What can the Almighty do for himself? ¹⁸Yet, he, had filled their houses with good! The counsel of the lawless, then, is far from me: ¹⁹The righteous shall see and rejoice, and, the innocent, shall laugh them to scorn: ²⁰If our assailants do not vanish, then, their abundance, a fire consumeth! ²¹Shew thyself to be one with him—I pray thee—and prosper, thereby, shall there come on thee blessing. ²²Accept, I beseech thee, from his mouth—instruction,—and lay up his sayings in thy heart. ²³If thou return unto the Almighty and submit thyself, if thou far remove perversity from thy tent, ²⁴Then lay up, in the dust, precious ore, and, among the stones of the torrent-beds, fine gold: ²⁵So shall, the Almighty, become, thy precious ores, yea glittering silver unto thee! ²⁶For, then, in the Almighty, shalt thou take exquisite delight, and shalt lift up—unto GOD—thy face; ²⁷Thou shalt make entreaty unto him, and he will hear thee, and, thy vows, shalt thou pay; ²⁸And thou shalt decree a purpose, and it shall be fulfilled unto thee, and, upon thy ways, shall have shone a light; ²⁹When men cast themselves down, then thou shalt say: Up! And, him that is of downcast eyes, shall he save; ³⁰He shall deliver the innocent, and thou shalt escape by the pureness of thy hands.

23Then responded Job, and said:— ²Even to-day, is my complaint rebellion? His hand, is heavier than my groaning. ³Oh that I knew where I might find him! I would come even unto his dwelling-place; ⁴I would set out, before him, a plea, and, my mouth, would I fill with arguments; ⁵I would note the words wherewith he would respond to me, and would mark what he would say to me. ⁶Would he, with fulness of might, contend with me? Nay, surely, he, would give heed to me! ⁷There an upright man, might reason with him, so should I deliver myself completely from my judge. ⁸Behold! eastward, I go, but he is not there, and, westward, but I perceive him not; ⁹On the north, where he worketh, but I get no vision, He hideth himself on the south that I cannot see him. ¹⁰But, he, knoweth the way that I choose, Having tried me, as gold, I shall come forth. ¹¹Of his steps, my foot taketh hold, His way, have I kept, and not swerved; ¹²The command of his lips, and would not go back, and, in my bosom, have I treasured the words of his lips. ¹³But, he, is one, and who can turn him? What his soul desired, he hath done. ¹⁴Surely he will accomplish what is decreed for me, and, many such things, hath he in store. ¹⁵For this cause, from his presence, am I driven in fear, I diligently consider and am kept back from him in dread: ¹⁶Yea, GOD, hath made timid my heart, and, the Almighty, hath put me in terror. ¹⁷Because I was not cut off before the darkness, nor, before my face, did the gloom form a shroud.

24Wherefore, since from the Almighty times are not hid, have, his knowing ones, no vision of his days? ²Boundaries, men move back, flocks, they seize and consume; ³The ass of the fatherless, they drive off, they take in pledge the ox of the widow; ⁴They turn aside the needy out of the way, at once, are the humbled of the land made to hide themselves. ⁵Lo! as wild asses in the wilderness, they go forth with their work, eager seekers for prey, the waste plain, yieldeth them food for their young; ⁶In the field—a man's fodder, they cut down, and, the vineyard of the lawless, they strip of its late berries; ⁷Ill-clad, they are left to lodge without clothing, and have no covering in the cold; ⁸With the sweeping rain of the mountains, are they wet, and, through having no shelter, they embrace a rock. ⁹Men tear, from the breast, the fatherless, and, over the poor, they take a pledge; ¹⁰Naked, they go about without clothing, and, famished, they carry the sheaves; ¹¹Between their walls, are they exposed to the sun, Wine-presses, they tread, and yet are thirsty; ¹²Out of the city—out of the houses, they make outcry. and, the soul of the wounded, calleth for help, and, GOD, doth not regard it as foolish. ¹³They, have become rebels against the light,—they are not acquainted with the ways thereof, neither abide they in the paths thereof. ¹⁴With the light, riseth the murderer, He slayeth the poor and needy, And, in the night, he cometh like a thief. ¹⁵And, the eye of the adulterer, watcheth for the evening twilight, saying, Not an eye will see me! A covering for the face, he putteth on; ¹⁶He breaketh, in the dark, into houses,—By day, they lock themselves in, They know not the light; ¹⁷For, in the case of all such, morning to them is the death-shade, For, to be recognised, is a death-shade terror. ¹⁸Swift is he on the face of the waters, Speedily vanished their share in the land, He turneth not to the way of the vineyards. ¹⁹Drought and heat, steal away snow water, Hades, them who have sinned. ²⁰Maternal love shall forget him, the worm shall find him sweet, No more shall he be remembered, but perversity shall be shivered like a tree. ²¹He oppresseth the barren who beareth not, and, to the widow, he doeth not good; ²²Yea he draggeth along the mighty by his strength, He riseth up, and none hath assurance of life; ²³It is given him to be secure, and confident, yet, his eyes, are upon their ways. ²⁴They are exalted a little, and are not, Yea having been laid low, like all men, are they gathered, Even as the top of an ear of corn, do they hang down. ²⁵But, if not, who then can convict me of falsehood? or make of no account my words?

25Then responded Bildad the Shuhite, and said:— ²Dominion and dread, are with him, who causeth prosperity among his lofty ones; ³Is there any number to his troops? And upon whom ariseth not his light? ⁴How then shall, a mortal, be just with GOD? Or how shall he be pure who is born of a woman? ⁵Look as far as the moon, and it is not clear, and, the stars, are not bright in his eyes! ⁶How much less a mortal who is a creeping thing? Or a son of the earth-born who is a worm?

26Then responded Job, and said:— ²How hast thou

given help to one of no-strength? given victory to an arm of no-power? ³How hast thou given counsel to one of no-wisdom? or, effective wisdom, abundantly made known? ⁴Whom hast thou taught speech? Whose inspiration hath come from thee? ⁵The shades, tremble, beneath the waters and their inhabitants; ⁶Naked is hades before him, and there is no covering to destruction; ⁷Who stretcheth out the north over emptiness, hangeth the earth upon nothingness; ⁸Who bindeth up the waters in his thick clouds, and the cloud is not rent beneath them; ⁹Who shutteth in the face of the throne, he spreadeth over it his cloud; ¹⁰A boundary, hath he encircled on the face of the waters, as far as where light ends in darkness; ¹¹The pillars of the heavens, are shaken, and are terrified at his rebuke: ¹²By his strength, hath he excited the sea, and, by his skill, hath he shattered the Crocodile: ¹³By his spirit, hath he arched the heavens, His hand hath pierced the fleeing serpent. ¹⁴Lo! these, are the fringes of his way, and what a whisper of a word hath been heard of him! But, the thunder of his might, who could understand?

27 And Job again took up his measure, and said:— ²As GOD liveth who hath taken away my right, even the Almighty, who hath embittered my soul; ³All the while my inspiration is in me, and the spirit of GOD is in my nostrils, ⁴Verily my lips shall not speak perversity, nor shall, my tongue, utter deceit. ⁵Far be it from me! that I should justify, you,—Even until I breathe my last, will I not let go mine integrity from me: ⁶On my righteousness, have I taken fast hold, and will not give it up, My heart shall not reproach any of my days. ⁷Let mine enemy be a veritably lawless one! And, he that lifteth himself up against me, one veritably perverse! ⁸For what shall be the hope of the impious, though he graspeth with greed, when GOD shall draw forth his soul? ⁹His outcry, will GOD hear, when there cometh upon him distress? ¹⁰Verily, in the Almighty, he will not find delight, nor call on GOD continually! ¹¹I would teach you, by the hand of GOD, That which is with the Almighty, will I not conceal. ¹²Lo! ye, have, all of you, seen, Wherefore, then, is it, that ye are utterly without purpose? ¹³This, is the portion of a lawless man with GOD, That, the heritage of tyrants—from the Almighty, he shall receive. ¹⁴If his children be multiplied, for them, there is the sword, and, his offspring, shall not be filled with bread; ¹⁵His survivors, by pestilence, shall come to the grave, and, his widows, shall not weep; ¹⁶Though he heap up silver like, dust, and, like a pile, he prepare clothing, ¹⁷He may prepare, but, the righteous, shall put on, and, the silver, shall the innocent apportion. ¹⁸He hath built, like a moth, his house,—like a hut, which a watcher hath made. ¹⁹The rich man, shall lie down, and not do it again, his eyes, hath he opened, and then is not. ²⁰There shall reach him—like waters—terrors, By night, a storm-wind hath stolen him away; ²¹An east wind shall lift him up, and he shall depart, and it shall sweep him away out of his place; ²²And He will cast upon him and not spare, Out of his hand, shall he, swiftly flee; ²³He shall clap over him his hands, and shall hiss him forth out of his place.

28 Though there is, for silver, a vein, and a place for the gold they refine; ²Iron, out of the ore, is taken, and, stone, poureth out copper; ³An end, hath one set to the darkness, and, into every extremity, is, he, making search, for the stone of darkness and death-shade; ⁴He hath sunken a shaft, away from the inhabitants; Places forsaken by the foot, they hang down, away from men, sway to and fro; ⁵As for the earth, out of it, cometh forth bread, and, under it, is upturned, as it were fire; ⁶The place of sapphires, are the stones thereof, and it hath, nuggets of gold:— ⁷A path, the vulture hath not discerned, nor hath the eye of the hawk scanned it; ⁸Ravenous beasts have not made a track thereof, neither hath the lion marched thereon: ⁹Upon the flint, hath he thrust forth his hand, He hath turned up mountains by the roots; ¹⁰Among the rocks, hath he cut open streams, and, every precious thing, hath his eye seen: ¹¹From trickling, he restraineth, rivers, and, some hidden thing, is he bringing out to light. ¹²Yet where can, Wisdom, be found? And where is the place of understanding? ¹³Mortal knoweth not the way thereof, neither can it be found in the land of the living; ¹⁴The resounding deep, hath said, It is not in me! And, the sea, hath said, It is not with me! ¹⁵Pure gold cannot be given in its stead, neither can silver be weighed as the value thereof; ¹⁶It cannot be put into the scales against the gold of Ophir, with costly onyx, or sapphire; ¹⁷Neither gold nor crystal can compare with it, nor can, the exchange thereof, be a vessel of pure gold, ¹⁸Coral or crystal, cannot be mentioned, Yea, a possession, is wisdom, above red coral; ¹⁹The topaz of Ethiopia cannot compare with it, Against purest gold, can it not be weighed. ²⁰Whence then cometh, wisdom? And where is the place of understanding? ²¹Seeing it hath been hid from the eyes of every living thing, and, from the bird of the heavens, hath it been concealed? ²²Destruction and death, have said, With our ears, have we heard the report thereof! ²³GOD, understandeth the way thereof, and, he, discerneth the place thereof; ²⁴For, he, unto the ends of the earth, directeth his look, under all the heavens, he seeth; ²⁵Making, for the wind, a weight, and, the waters, he proved by measure, ²⁶When he made, for the rain, a decree, and a way for the lightning of thunders, ²⁷Then, saw he it, and declared it, He settled it, yea also he searched it out; ²⁸And said to the son of earth, Lo! the reverence of the Lord, that, is wisdom, and, to avoid evil, is understanding.

29 And Job again took up his measure, and said, ²Oh that it were with me as in the months of old, as in the days, when, GOD, used to watch over me; ³When his lamp shone

over my head, by whose light, I could go through darkness; ⁴As I was, in the days of my prime, when, the intimacy of GOD, was over my tent; ⁵While yet the Almighty was with me, round about me, were my young men; ⁶When my steps were bathed in milk, and, the rock, poured out beside me, rivulets of oil: ⁷When I went out to the gate unto the city, in the open place, made ready my seat, ⁸Young men saw me, and hid themselves, and, the aged, arose—they stood; ⁹Rulers, restrained speech, and, a hand, laid they on their mouth; ¹⁰The voice of nobles, was hushed, and their tongue to their palate, did cleave; ¹¹When, the ear, heard, then it pronounced me happy, When, the eye, saw, then it bare me witness; ¹²Because I used to deliver the oppressed who was crying out for aid, the fatherless also, and him that had no helper; ¹³The blessing of him that was ready to perish, upon me was wont to descend, and, the heart of the widow, caused I to sing for joy; ¹⁴Righteousness, I put on, and it clothed me, Like a robe and turban, was my, justice; ¹⁵Eyes, became I to the, blind, and, feet to the lame, was, I! ¹⁶A father, was, I, to the needy, and, as for the cause which I knew not, I used to search it out; ¹⁷And I shivered the fangs of the perverse,—and, out of his teeth, I tare the prey. ¹⁸Then said I, Like a stem, shall I grow old, yea, as the sand, shall I multiply days: ¹⁹My root, is laid open to the waters, and, the dew, shall lodge for the night in my boughs; ²⁰Mine honour, shall be young again with me, and, my bow, in my hand, be renewed. ²¹To me, men hearkened, and waited, and kept silence for my counsel; ²²After I had spoken, they spake not again, and, upon them, used my speech to drop; ²³And they waited, as for rain, for me, and, their mouths, they opened wide for the spring-rain; ²⁴I laughed at them—they lost confidence, and, the light of my countenance, they suffered not to fail; ²⁵I chose out their way, and sat chief,—and abode, as king, in an army, as one who, to mourners, giveth comfort.

³⁰But, now, they who are of fewer days than I, have poured derision upon me; whose fathers I refused—to set with the dogs of my flock. ²Even the strength of their hands, wherefore was it mine? Upon them, vigour was lost; ³In want and hunger, they were lean,—who used to gnaw the dry ground, a dark night of desolation! ⁴Who used to pluck off the mallow by the bushes, with the root of the broom for their food; ⁵Out of the midst, were they driven, men shouted after them, as after a thief; ⁶In the fissures, of the ravines had they to dwell, in holes of dust and crags; ⁷Among the bushes, used they to shriek, Under the bramble, were they huddled together: ⁸Sons of the base, yea sons of the nameless, they were scourged out of the land. ⁹But, now, their song, have I become, Yea I serve them for a byword; ¹⁰They abhor me—have put themselves far from me, and, from my face, have not withheld—spittle! ¹¹Because, my girdle, he had loosened and had humbled me, therefore, the bridle—in my presence, cast they off;

³¹A covenant, I solemnised for mine eyes,—How then could I gaze upon a virgin? ²Or what would have been my portion of GOD from above? Or what inheritance of the Almighty from on high? ³Is there not calamity, for the perverse? and misfortune, for the workers of iniquity? ⁴Would, he, not see my ways? and of all my steps, take account? ⁵Verily I walked not in falsity, nor did my foot haste unto deceit:—⁶Let him weigh me in balances of righteousness,—and let GOD take note of mine integrity! ⁷If my goings have swerved from the way,—and, after mine eyes, hath gone my heart, and, to my hands, hath adhered any stain, ⁸Let me sow but, another, eat. And let, what I have springing up, be uprooted! ⁹If my heart hath been enticed unto a woman, or, by the door of my neighbour, I have lien in wait, ¹⁰Let my wife, grind to another, and, over her, let others bend! ¹¹Surely that had been a shameful thing! and that an iniquity for the judges! ¹²Surely, a fire, had that been, which, unto destruction, would have consumed, and, of all mine increase, had it torn up the root. ¹³If I refused the right of my servant, or my handmaid, when they contended with me, ¹⁴What then could I have done when GOD rose up? And, when he visited, what could I have answered him? ¹⁵Did not he who, in the womb, made me, make him? And is not he who formed us in the body one? ¹⁶If I withheld—from pleasure—the poor, or, the eyes of the widow, I dimmed; ¹⁷Or, used to eat my morsel alone, so that the fatherless did not eat thereof; ¹⁸Surely, from my youth, he grew up to me, as to a father, and, from my birth, I acted as guide to her: ¹⁹If I saw one perishing for lack of clothing, or that the needy had no covering; ²⁰If his loins did not bless me, or if, with the fleece of my lambs, he did not warm himself; ²¹If I shook—against the fatherless—my hand, when I saw, in the gate, his need of my help, ²²Let, my shoulder, from the shoulder-blade, fall, and, my arm, from the upper bone, be broken; ²³For, a dread unto me, was calamity from GOD, and, from his majesty, I could not escape. ²⁴If I made gold my stay, and, to precious metal, said, My confidence! ²⁵If I rejoiced because great was my substance, and, an abundance, my hand had discovered; ²⁶If I looked at the sun, when it flashed forth light, or at the moon, majestically marching along; ²⁷And befooled secretly was my heart, so that my hand kissed my mouth, ²⁸That too, had been a judicial iniquity, For I should have been false to GOD, above. ²⁹If rejoiced in the misfortune of him that hated me, or exulted when calamity found him;— ³⁰Neither did I suffer my palate to sin, by asking, with a curse, for his life: ³¹If the men of my household have not said, Oh for some of his flesh—we cannot get filled, ³²Outside, the sojourner lodged not for the night, My doors—to the wayfarer, I threw open. ³³If I covered, like Adam, my transgressions, by hiding in my bosom mine iniquity, ³⁴Then let me be made to tremble at a great throng, yea let, the contempt of families, terrify me, so that, keeping silence, I shall not go out of the door! ³⁵Oh that I had one to hear me, Lo! my crossmark, May, the Almighty, answer me! And would that, a book, mine opponent had written! ³⁶Oh! would I not, upon my shoulder, lift it, or bind it as a crown upon me; ³⁷The number of my footsteps, I would declare to him, Like a noble, would I draw near to him. ³⁸If, against me, my ground used to cry out, and, together, my ridges did weep; ³⁹If, the strength thereof, I used to eat, without payment, and, the soul of the holders thereof, I made groan; ⁴⁰Instead of wheat, let there come forth bramble, and, instead of barley, a bad-smelling weed! Ended are the words of Job.

32So these three men ceased to respond to Job, because, he, was righteous in their eyes. ²Then was kindled the anger of Elihu, son of Barachel the Buzite of the family of Ram,—against Job, was kindled his anger, because he justified his own soul rather than God; ³and, against his three friends, was kindled his anger,—because that they found not a response, and condemned God. ⁴But, Elihu, had waited for Job with words, because the others were older than he. ⁵Howbeit, when Elihu saw that there was no response in the mouth of the three men, then was kindled his anger. ⁶So then Elihu, son of Barachel, the Buzite, responded and said:—Young, am I, whereas, ye, are aged, For this cause, I faltered, and feared—to shew my knowledge unto you: ⁷I said, Days, should speak,—and, the multitude of years, should make known wisdom. ⁸Yet surely, there is a spirit in men, and, the inspiration of the Almighty, giveth them understanding; ⁹Great men, may not be wise, nor, elders, understand justice. ¹⁰Therefore, I said, Harken unto me, I will show my knowledge—even I. ¹¹Lo! I waited for your words, I kept giving ear for your reasons, until ye should search out what to say; ¹²Yea, unto you, gave I diligent heed,—But lo! there was, for Job, nothing to convince, nor could you of you answer his speeches. ¹³Lest ye should say, We have found out wisdom. GOD, must put him to flight, not man. ¹⁴Since he directed not to me discourse, therefore, with your speeches, will I not reply to him. ¹⁵They were dismayed, they responded no more, they suffered speech to forsake them; ¹⁶Though I waited, yet could they not speak, Surely they came to a stand, they responded no more. ¹⁷I will respond, even I—on my part, I will shew my knowledge, even I! ¹⁸For I am full of discourse, The spirit in my bosom, presseth me on. ¹⁹Lo! my bosom, is like wine not opened, Like new wine-skins, it will burst. ²⁰I will speak, that I may freely breathe, I will open my lips and respond. ²¹Let me be partial to no man, and, unto no son of earth, give flattering titles, ²²Surely I know not how to give flattering titles, How soon might my Maker take me away!

33But, in very deed, hear, I pray thee, Job, my discourse, and, to all my words, give thou ear. ²Lo! I pray thee, I have opened my mouth, My tongue, with my palate, hath spoken, ³Mine utterances come straight from mine own heart, and, what I know, my lips have truly spoken; ⁴The spirit of GOD, hath made me, and, the inspiration of the Almighty, giveth me life. ⁵If thou art able to answer me, Set in order before me—take thy stand! ⁶Lo! I am like thyself toward GOD, From clay, have I been nipped off, even I! ⁷Lo! my terror, will not startle thee, nor, my hand, upon thee, be heavy. ⁸But thou hast spoken in mine ears, and, the sound of words, I heard:— ⁹Pure am, I, without transgression,—Clean am, I, and have no iniquity; ¹⁰Lo! occasions of hostility, would he find against me, He counteth me an enemy to him; ¹¹He putteth—in the stocks—my feet, He watcheth all my paths. ¹²Lo! in this, thou hast not been right—let me answer thee, For, GOD, is greater than, man. ¹³Wherefore, against him, hast thou contended? For, with none of his reasons, will he respond. ¹⁴For, in one way, GOD may speak,—and, in a second way, one may not heed it:— ¹⁵In a dream, a vision of the night, when a deep sleep falleth upon men, in slumberings upon the bed, ¹⁶Then, uncovereth he the ear of men, and, on their correction, affixeth a seal; ¹⁷To turn a son of earth from his deed, while yet, pride, from man he concealeth: ¹⁸He keepeth back his said from the pit, and his life from passing away by a weapon. ¹⁹Or he is chastised with pain, upon his bed, and, the strife of his bones, is unceasing! ²⁰So that his life maketh loathsome his food, and his soul, dainty meat; ²¹His flesh wasteth away out of sight, and bared are the bones once unseen; ²²So doth his soul draw near to the pit, and his life to the inflictors of death: ²³If there hath been near him a messenger who could interpret—one of a thousand, to declare to the son of earth His uprightness, ²⁴Then hath he shewed him favour, and said, Set him free from going down to the pit, I have found a price of redemption! ²⁵His flesh hath been made fresher than a child's, he hath returned to the days of his youth; ²⁶He made supplication unto GOD, who hath accepted him, and he hath beheld his face with a shout of triumph, Thus hath he given back to man his righteousness. ²⁷He sang before men, and said, I sinned, and, uprightness, I perverted, yet he requited me not; ²⁸He hath ransomed my soul from passing away into the pit,—and, my life, in the light, shall have vision. ²⁹Lo! a these things, doth GOD work, two ways, three, with a man; ³⁰To bring back his soul from the pit, to enlighten with the light of the living. ³¹Mark well, O Job, and hearken to me, Be silent, and, I, will speak: ³²If there is anything to say, reply to me, Speak, for I desire to justify thee; ³³If not, do, thou, hearken unto me, Be silent, that I may teach thee wisdom.

34Furthermore Elihu responded, and said:— ²Hear, ye wise men, my words, and, ye who know, give ear unto me; ³For, the ear, trieth words, as, the palate, tasteth in eating. ⁴What is right, let us choose for ourselves, Let us know, among ourselves, what is good; ⁵For Job hath said—I am righteous, But, GOD, hath turned away my right; ⁶Concerning mine own right, shall I tell a falsehood? Incurable is my disease—not for any transgression. ⁷What man is like Job? He drinketh in scoffing like water; ⁸And is on the way to keep company, with the workers of iniquity, and to walk with lawless men. ⁹For he hath said, It profiteth not a man, when, his good pleasure, is with God. ¹⁰Wherefore, ye men of mind, hearken unto me,—Far be it, that, GOD, should be lawless, or, the Almighty, be perverse! ¹¹For, what any son of earth doeth, he repayeth him, and, according to every man's course, he causeth him to find. ¹²Nay, verily, GOD, will not condemn unjustly,—nor, the Almighty, pervert justice. ¹³Who set him in charge of the earth? Or who appointed him the whole world? ¹⁴If he should set against him his heart, His spirit and his inspiration, unto himself he should withdraw. ¹⁵All flesh together, would cease to breathe, and, the earth-born, unto dust, would return. ¹⁶If then thou hast understanding, hear this, Give thou ear to the teaching of my words:— ¹⁷Shall, the very hater of right, control? Or, the just—the mighty one, wilt thou condemn? ¹⁸Doth one say to a king, Abandoned one! Or, Lawless one! unto nobles? ¹⁹For he hath shewn no respect of persons unto princes, neither hath he recognised the rich rather than the poor? For, the work of his hands, are they all. ²⁰In a moment, they die, even in the middle of the night,—A people are convulsed when they pass away, A mighty one is removed, without hand; ²¹For, his eyes, are on the ways of a man, and, all his footsteps, he beholdeth,— ²²No darkness, and no death-shade, where the workers of iniquity may hide. ²³For, unto no man, doth he appoint a repetition,—in going unto GOD in judgment; ²⁴He shattereth mighty ones unsearchably, and setteth up others in their stead: ²⁵Therefore, he observeth their works,—and overturneth them in a night, and they are crushed; ²⁶In the place of lawless men, hath he chastised them, in presence of beholders. ²⁷Forasmuch, as they turned from following him, and, none of his ways, did they teach; ²⁸Causing to reach him the outcry of the poor, Yea, the outcry of the oppressed, he heareth. ²⁹When, he, giveth quiet, who then shall condemn? And, when he hideth his face, who then shall sing of him? whether unto a nation or unto mankind altogether, ³⁰That impious men may not reign, nor be ensnarers of the people. ³¹For, unto GOD, hath one ever said—I have borne punishment, I will not be perverse; ³²What I see not, do, thou, shew me, If, perverseness, I have wrought, I will do it no more? ³³According to thy mind, must he requite it, that thou hast refused? For, thou, must choose, and not, I, What then thou knowest, speak! ³⁴The men of mind, will say to me, yea any wise man hearkening unto me:— ³⁵Job, without knowledge, doth speak, and, his words, are not with discretion. ³⁶Would that Job might be tested to the uttermost, for replying with the men of iniquity: ³⁷For he addeth—unto his sin—rebellion, In our midst, he clappeth his hands, and multiplieth his sayings against GOD.

35Moreover Elihu, responded and said:— ²This, dost thou think to be right? Thou hast said—My righteousness is more than GOD'S. ³For thou dost say, How can one profit by thee? How can I benefit, more than by my sin? ⁴I, will answer thee plainly, and thy friends with thee. ⁵Look at the heavens and see,—and survey the skies—they are higher than thou. ⁶If thou sinnest, what canst thou work against him? Or, if thy transgressions be multiplied, what canst thou do unto him? ⁷If thou art righteous, what canst thou give unto him? Or what, at thy hand, can he accept? ⁸Unto a man like thyself, might thy lawlessness reach, and, unto a son of the earth-born, thy righteousness. ⁹By reason of the multitude of oppressions, men make outcry, They cry for help, by reason of the arm of the mighty; ¹⁰But none saith—Where is GOD my maker, Who giveth songs in the night; ¹¹Who teacheth us more than the beasts of the earth, and, beyond the bird of the heavens, giveth us wisdom? ¹²There, men make outcry, and he answereth not, because of the arrogance of evil-doers. ¹³Howbeit, vanity, will GOD not hear, Yea, the Almighty, will not regard it. ¹⁴How much less when thou sayest thou wilt not regard him! The cause, is before him, and thou must wait for him. ¹⁵But, now, because it is not so, thou sayest—His anger hath punished, and yet hath he not at all known of transgression; ¹⁶Thus, Job, vainly openeth his mouth, Without knowledge, he multiplieth words.

36 And Elihu added and said:—²Restrain thyself for me a little, and I will shew thee, that, yet—for GOD, there is justification, ³I will bring my knowledge from afar, and, to my Maker, will I attribute righteousness. ⁴For, of a truth—not false, are my words, One of competent knowledge, is with thee. ⁵Lo! GOD, is mighty, yet will he not despise, Mighty in vigour of mind; ⁶He will not keep alive one who is lawless, but, the right of oppressed ones, will he grant; ⁷He will not withdraw—from a righteous one—his eyes,—but, with kings on the throne, He hath seated men triumphantly, and they have been exalted. ⁸But, if, bound in fetters, they have been captured with cords of affliction, ⁹Then hath he declared to them their deed, and their transgressions—that they were wont to behave themselves proudly; ¹⁰Thus hath he uncovered their ear to a warning, and said—that they should turn from iniquity. ¹¹If they would hearken, and serve, they should complete their days, in prosperity, and their years, in pleasantness; ¹²But, if they would not hearken, by a weapon, should they pass away, and breathe their last, no one knowing. ¹³Yea, the impious in heart, should store up anger, They should not cry for help, when he bound them. ¹⁴Their soul should die in youth, and their life, among the unclean. ¹⁵He would deliver the humbled in his humiliation, and would uncover—in oppression—their ear. ¹⁶Yea he might even have allured thee—out of the mouth of straitness, into a wide space—no narrowness there,—and, the food set down on thy table, should have been full of fatness. ¹⁷But, with the plea of a lawless one, thou art full, Plea and sentence, will take fast hold. ¹⁸Because there is wrath, beware lest he take thee away with a stroke, Then let not, a great ransom, mislead thee. ¹⁹Will he value thy riches? Nay not precious ore, nor all the forces of strength. ²⁰Do not pant for the night, when peoples disappear from their place. ²¹Beware, do not turn unto iniquity, For, this, thou hast chosen rather than affliction. ²²Lo, GOD, exalteth himself by his strength, Who like him doth teach? ²³Who enjoined on him his way? and who ever said, Thou hast wrought perversity? ²⁴Remember, that thou extol his work, of which men have sung; ²⁵Every son of earth, hath viewed it, Mortal man, looketh at it from afar. ²⁶Lo, GOD, is greater than we can know, The number of his years, even past finding out! ²⁷For he draweth up drops of water, They trickle as rain through his mist; ²⁸With which the clouds flow down, They drop on man in abundance. ²⁹But surely none can understand the burstings of the cloud, the crashing of his pavilion! ³⁰Lo! he hath spread out over it, his lightning, The bed of the sea, hath he covered. ³¹For, by those things, he executeth judgment on peoples, He giveth food in abundance: ³²Upon both hands, he putteth a covering of lightning, and layeth command upon it against an assailant: ³³His rolling thunder telleth concerning him,—The cattle, even, concerning him that is coming up.

37 Yea, at this, my heart quaketh, and starteth up out of its place. ²Hear! oh hear! the raging of his voice, A growling sound also, out of his mouth, goeth forth; ³Under the whole heavens, he letteth it loose, His lightning also, unto the wings of the earth; ⁴After it, roareth a voice, He thundereth with his voice of majesty, Nor will he hold them back, when his voice is heard. ⁵GOD thundereth with his voice, wonderfully, Doing great things, which we cannot know; ⁶For, to the snow, he saith, Fall earthwards,—Also to the downpour of rain, yea the downpour of his mighty rains. ⁷On the hand of every man, he setteth a seal, that all men may take note of his doing. ⁸So then the wild-beast hath gone into covert, and, in its lairs, doth it remain. ⁹Out of a chamber cometh a storm-wind, and, out of the north, cold. ¹⁰By the breath of GOD, is given—frost, and, the breadth of waters, is congealed; ¹¹Also, with moisture, burdeneth he the thick cloud, He disperseth his lightning-cloud; ¹²Yea, the same, in circles, turneth itself to and fro, by his steering them to their work, whithersoever he commandeth them, over the face of the world, towards the earth. ¹³Whether, as a rod, or for his earth, or in lovingkindness, he causeth it to come. ¹⁴Give thou ear unto this, O Job, Stay, and consider well the wonders of GOD:—¹⁵Canst thou got to know of GOD'S giving charge over them, or of the causing of the lightning of his cloud to shine forth? ¹⁶Canst thou get to know concerning the poisonings of the thick cloud, the wonders of one who is perfect in knowledge? ¹⁷That thy garments should be hot when he quieteth the earth from the south? ¹⁸Didst thou spread out, with him, the skies, strong as a molten mirror? ¹⁹Let us know what we shall say to him, We cannot set in order, by reason of darkness. ²⁰Shall it be declared to him—that I would speak? Were any man to say aught, he might he destroyed? ²¹Yet, now, men see not the light, bright though it is in the skies, when, a wind, hath passed over, and cleansed them. ²²Out of the north, a golden light cometh, Upon GOD, is fearful splendour: ²³The Almighty, whom we have not fully found out, is great in vigour,—Neither, justice nor abounding righteousness, will he weaken. ²⁴Therefore, do men revere him, He will not regard any who are wise in heart.

38Then Yahweh responded to Job, out of a storm, and said:—²Who is it that darkeneth counsel, by words, without knowledge? ³Gird, I pray thee—like a strong man—thy loins, that I may ask thee, and inform thou me: ⁴Where wast thou, when I founded the earth? Tell, if thou knowest understanding! ⁵Who set the measurements thereof, if thou knowest? Or who stretched out over it a line? ⁶Whereon were the pedestals thereof sunk? Or who laid the corner stone thereof;—⁷When the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy? ⁸Or who shut in, with double doors, the sea, when, bursting out of the womb, it came forth; ⁹When I put a cloud as the garment thereof, and a thick cloud as the swaddling-band thereof; ¹⁰And brake off for it my boundary, and fixed a bar and double doors; ¹¹And said—Hitherto, shalt thou come, and no further,—and, here, shalt thou set a limit to the majesty of thy waves? ¹²Since thy days began hast thou commanded the morning? or caused the dawn to know its place; ¹³That it might lay hold of the wings of the earth, and the lawless be shaken out of it? ¹⁴It transformeth itself like the clay of a seal, so that things stand forth like one arrayed; ¹⁵That their light may be withdrawn from the lawless, and, the lofty arm, be shivered. ¹⁶Hast thou entered as far as the springs of the sea? Or, through the secret recesses of the resounding deep, hast thou wandered? ¹⁷Have the gates of death been disclosed to thee? And, the gates of the death-shade, couldst thou descry? ¹⁸Hast thou well considered, even the breadths of the earth? Tell—if thou knowest it all! ¹⁹Where then is the way, the light shall abide? And, the darkness, where then is its place? ²⁰That thou mayest conduct it unto the bound thereof, and that thou mayest perceive the paths to its house. ²¹Thou knowest, for, then, hadst thou been born! And, in number, thy days are many! ²²Hast thou entered into the treasures of the snow? And, the treasures of the hail, couldst thou see? ²³Which I have reserved for a time of distress, for the day of conflict and of war? ²⁴Where then is the way the lightning is parted? The east wind spreadeth itself abroad over the earth. ²⁵Who hath cloven—for the torrent—a channel? Or a way for the lightning of thunders; ²⁶To give rain over the no-man's land, the desert, where no son of earth is; ²⁷To satisfy the wild and the wilderness, to cause to spring forth the meadow of young grass? ²⁸Hath the rain a father? Or who hath begotten the drops of dew? ²⁹Out of whose womb, came forth the ice? And, the hoar-frost of the heavens, who hath given it birth? ³⁰Like a stone, are the waters congealed, and, the face of the roaring deep, becometh firm! ³¹Canst thou bind the fetters of the Pleiades? Or, the bands of Orion, canst thou unloose? ³²Canst thou bring forth the signs of the Zodiac each in its season? Or, the Bear and her Young, canst thou lead? ³³Knowest thou, the statutes of the heavens? Or didst thou appoint his dominion over the earth? ³⁴Canst thou lift up, to the thick cloud, thy voice, and the overflow of waters cover thee? ³⁵Canst thou send forth the lightnings, so that they go, and say to thee, Behold us? ³⁶Who hath put—into cloud-forms—wisdom? Or who hath given—to the meteor—understanding? ³⁷Who can count the thin clouds, in wisdom? And, the bottles of the heavens, who can empty out; ³⁸When the dust is cast into a clod, and the lumps are bound together? ³⁹Wilt thou hunt—for the Lioness—prey? Or, the craving of the Strong Lion, wilt thou satisfy; ⁴⁰When they settle down in dens, abide in covert, for lying in wait? ⁴¹Who prepareth for the Raven his nourishment,—when his young ones—unto GOD—cry out, when they wander for lack of food?

39Knowest thou the season when the Wild Goats of the crags beget? The bringing forth of the hinds, canst thou observe? ²Canst thou count the months they fulfil? Or knowest thou the time when they give birth? ³They kneel down, their young, they bring forth; their pains, they throw off; ⁴Their young become strong, they grow up in the open field, they go out, and return not unto them. ⁵Who hath sent forth the Wild Ass free? And, the bands of the swift-runner, who hath loosed? ⁶Whose house I have made the waste plain, and his dwellings, the land of salt: ⁷He laugheth at the throng of the city, The shoutings of the driver, he heareth not; ⁸He espieth the mountains, his pasture-ground, and, after every green thing, maketh search. ⁹Will the Wild-Ox be pleased to be thy servant? or lodge for the night by thy crib? ¹⁰Canst thou bind the wild-ox, so that—with the ridge—shall run his cord? Or will he harrow the furrows after thee? ¹¹Wilt thou trust in him, because of the greatness of his strength? Wilt thou leave unto him thy toil? ¹²Wilt thou put faith in him, that he will bring back thy seed? and that, corn for thy threshing-floor, he will gather? ¹³The wing of the Ostrich that waveth itself joyfully, Is it the pinion of lovingkindness or the plumage? ¹⁴For she leaveth—to the earth—her eggs, and, on the dust, she letteth them be warmed; ¹⁵And hath forgotten, that, a foot, may crush them,—or, the wild beast, tread on them! ¹⁶Dealing hardly with her young, as none-of hers, In vain, her labour, without dread. ¹⁷For GOD hath suffered her to forget wisdom, and given her no share in understanding. ¹⁸What time, on high, she vibrateth her wings, she laugheth at the horse and his rider. ¹⁹Couldst thou give—to the Horse—strength? Couldst thou clothe his neck with the quivering mane? ²⁰Couldst thou cause him to leap like a locust? The majesty of his snort, is a terror! ²¹He diggeth into the plain, and rejoiceth in vigour, he goeth forth to meet armour; ²²He laugheth at dread, and is not dismayed, neither turneth he back, from the face of the sword; ²³Against him, whiz the arrows of the quiver, the flashing head of spear and javelin; ²⁴With stamping and rage, he drinketh up the ground,—he will not stand still when the horn soundeth; ²⁵As oft as the horn soundeth, he saith, Aha! And, from afar, he scenteth the battle,—the thunder of commanders and the war-cry. ²⁶Is it, by thine understanding, that the Bird of Passage betaketh him to his pinions? spreadeth out his wings to the south? ²⁷Or, at thy bidding, that the Eagle mounteth, and that he setteth on high his nest? ²⁸The crag, he inhabiteth, and so lodgeth himself, on the tooth of the crag, and high fort; ²⁹From thence, he searcheth out food, far away, his eyes do pierce; ³⁰And, his young brood, suck up blood, and, where the slain are, there, is he.

40And Yahweh responded to Job, and said:— ²Shall a reprover contend, with the Almighty? He that disputeth with GOD, let him answer it! ³Then Job responded to Yahweh, and said:— ⁴Lo! I am of no account, what shall I reply to thee? My hand, have I laid on my mouth: ⁵Once, have I spoken, but I will not proceed, yea twice, but I will not add. ⁶So then Yahweh responded to Job, out of a storm, and said:— ⁷Gird, I pray thee—as a strong man—thy loins, I will ask thee, and inform thou me. ⁸Wilt thou even frustrate my justice? Wilt thou condemn me, that thou mayest appear right? ⁹But if, an arm like GOD, thou hast, and, with a voice like his, thou canst thunder, ¹⁰Deck thyself, I pray thee, with majesty and grandeur, Yea, with dignity and splendour, thou shalt clothe thyself; ¹¹Pour out thy transports of anger, and look on every one who is high, and lay him low; ¹²Look on every one who is high, and humble him, yea tread down the lawless, on the spot: ¹³Hide them in the dust all together, Their faces, bind thou in darkness; ¹⁴And, even I myself, will praise thee, in that thine own right hand can bring thee salvation. ¹⁵Behold, I pray thee, the Hippopotamus, which I made with thee, Grass—like the ox, he eateth; ¹⁶Behold, I pray thee, his strength in his loins, and his force, in the muscles of his belly; ¹⁷He bendeth down his tail like a cedar, the sinews of his thighs, are twisted together; ¹⁸His bones, are barrels of bronze, his frame, is like hammered bars of iron: ¹⁹He, is the beginning of the ways of GOD, Let his maker, present him his sword: ²⁰Surely the mountains bring, produce, to him, where, all the wild beasts of the field, do play; ²¹Under the lotus-trees, he lieth down, in a covert of reed and swamp; ²²The lotus-trees cover him with their shade, the willows of the torrent-bed compass him about; ²³Lo! the river becometh insolent—he is not alarmed! He is confident, though a Jordan burst forth to his mouth: ²⁴Before his eyes, shall he be caught? With a hook, can one pierce his nose?

41Canst thou draw out the Crocodile with a fish-hook? Or, with a cord, canst thou fasten down his tongue? ²Wilt thou put a rush-cord on his nose? or, with a thorn, wilt thou pierce his jaw? ³Will he multiply unto thee supplications, or will he speak unto thee softly? ⁴Will he solemnise a covenant with thee? Wilt thou take him for a life-long

servant? ⁵Wilt thou sport with him, as with a little bird? Or wilt thou bind him, for thy maidens? ⁶Shall the companions bargain over him? or will they part him among the traders? ⁷Wilt thou fill, with darts, his skin? or, with fish-spears, his head? ⁸Lay thou upon him thy hand, remember the battle—no more! ⁹Lo! any hope of him, hath been found deceptive, Even at the sight of him, shall not one be overwhelmed? ¹⁰None so bold, that he will rouse him! Who then is he that, before me, can stand? ¹¹Who hath forestalled me, that I may repay him? Under all the heavens, mine it is! ¹²I will not pass by in silence his parts, or the matter of strength, or the grace of his armour. ¹³Who hath removed his outer garment, through his double row of teeth, who would enter? ¹⁴The doors of his face, who hath opened? The circles of his teeth, are a terror! ¹⁵A pride, are his arched sides, closed up, with a firm seal; ¹⁶One to another, they join, and, air, cannot enter between them; ¹⁷Each to its fellow, they cleave, they grasp each other, and cannot be parted; ¹⁸His sneezings, flash forth light, and, his eyes, are like the eyelashes of the dawn; ¹⁹Out of his mouth, torches dart forth, sparks of fire, escape; ²⁰Out of his nostrils, proceedeth smoke, like a blown pot and rushes; ²¹His breath, setteth coals ablaze, and, a flame, out of his mouth, proceedeth; ²²In his neck, lodgeth strength, and, before him, danceth dismay; ²³The dewlaps of his flesh, cleave together, hardened upon him, they cannot be moved; ²⁴His heart, is hardened like a stone, yea hardened, like the nether millstone; ²⁵At his rising up, mighty men are afraid, by reason of terror, they are beside themselves: ²⁶As for him that assaileth him, the sword availeth not, spear, dart, or coat of mail: ²⁷He counteth iron as broken straw, and bronze as rotten wood: ²⁸The arrow, will not make him flee, Into chaff, are sling-stones changed by him: ²⁹As a straw, is a club accounted, and he laugheth at the whirl of the javelin; ³⁰His underparts, are points of potsherd, a pointed threshing roller spreadeth out upon the slime: ³¹He causeth to boil, as a cauldron, the raging deep, the sea, he maketh like a brewing vessel: ³²After him, he lighteth up a path, one might think the resounding deep to be hoary! ³³There is not—upon the dust—his like, that hath been made to be without fear; ³⁴Every thing lofty, he beholdeth, he, is king over all ravenous beasts.

42Then Job responded to Yahweh, and said:— ²I know that, all things, thou canst do, and that no purpose can be withheld from thee. ³Who is it that hideth counsel without knowledge? Therefore, have I declared, but not understood, things too wonderful for me, which I could not know. ⁴Hear thou, I pray thee, and, I, will speak, I will ask thee, and inform thou me. ⁵By the hearing of the ear, had I heard thee, but, now, mine own eye, hath seen thee. ⁶For this cause, I tremble and repent, on dust and ashes. ⁷And it came to pass, after Yahweh had spoken these words unto Job, that Yahweh, said unto Eliphaz the Temanite, Kindled is mine anger against thee and against thy two friends, for ye have not spoken concerning me the thing that is right, like my servant Job. ⁸Now, therefore, take unto you seven bullocks and seven rams, and go unto my servant Job, and ye shall offer up an ascending-sacrifice in your own behalf, and, Job my servant, shall pray over you,—for, him, will I accept, that I may not deal out to you disgrace, because ye have not spoken concerning me the thing that is right, like my servant Job. ⁹So Eliphaz the Temanite and Bildad the Shuhite and Zophar the Naamathite went, and did according to that which Yahweh had spoken unto them,—and Yahweh accepted Job. ¹⁰And, Yahweh himself, turned the captivity of Job, when he prayed in behalf of his friends,—and Yahweh increased all that Job had possessed, unto twice as much. ¹¹Then came unto him all his brethren and all his sisters, and all his former acquaintances, and they did eat bread with him in his house,—and shewed sympathy with him and comforted him, over all the calamity which Yahweh had brought upon him,—and they gave him, every one a weight of money, and every one, a ring of gold. ¹²And, Yahweh, blessed the latter end of Job, more than his beginning,—and so he came to have fourteen thousand sheep, and six thousand camels, and a thousand yoke of oxen, and a thousand she-asses. ¹³And he came to have seven sons, and three daughters; ¹⁴and he called the name of the first Jemima, and the name of the second Kezia,—and the name of the third, Keren-happuch. ¹⁵And there were found no women so fair as the daughters of Job, in all the land,—and their father gave them an inheritance, in the midst of their brethren. ¹⁶And Job lived, after this, a hundred and forty years,—and saw his sons and his sons' sons, four generations. ¹⁷So Job died, old and satisfied with days.

Psalms

1\ul1 BOOK THE FIRST\ul0 How happy the man, who hath not walked in the counsel of the lawless,—and, in the way of sinners, hath not stood, and, in the seat of scoffers, hath not sat; ²But, in the law of Yahweh, is his delight,—and, in his law, doth he talk with himself day and night. ³So doth he become like a tree planted by streams of waters,—that yieldeth, its fruit, in its season, whose leaf, also doth not wither, and, whatsoever he doeth, prospereth. ⁴Not so, the lawless,—but as chaff which is driven about by the wind: ⁵For this cause, shall the lawless not stand in the judgment,—nor sinners in the assembly of the righteous. ⁶For Yahweh doth acknowledge the way of the righteous; but, the way of the lawless, shall vanish.

2Wherefore have nations assembled in tumult? Or should, peoples, mutter an empty thing? ²The kings of earth take their station, and, grave men, have met by appointment together,—against Yahweh, and against his Anointed One saying : ³Let us break asunder their bonds,—and cast from us their cords! ⁴He that sitteth in the heavens, will laugh,—My Lord, will mock at them: ⁵Then, will he speak unto them in his anger, and, in his wrath, confound them: ⁶Yet, I, have installed my king,—on Zion my holy mountain. ⁷Let me tell of a decree,—Yahweh, hath said unto me, My son, thou art, I, to-day, have begotten thee: ⁸Ask of me, and let me give nations as thine inheritance, and, as thy possession, the ends of the earth: ⁹Thou shalt shepherd them with a sceptre of iron,—as a potter's vessel, shalt thou dash them in pieces. ¹⁰Now, therefore, ye kings, show your prudence, Be admonished, ye judges of earth: ¹¹Serve Yahweh with reverence, and exult with trembling: ¹²Kiss the son, lest he be angry, and ye perish by the way, for soon might be kindled his anger,—How happy are all who seek refuge in him!

3A Melody of David, when he fled from before Absolom his son. Yahweh! how have mine adversaries multiplied, Multitudes, are rising against me; ²Multitudes, are saying of my soul,—No salvation for him in God. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ³But, thou, Yahweh, art a shield about me, my glory, and the lifter up of my head. ⁴With my voice—unto Yahweh, do I cry, and he hath answered me out of his holy mountain. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁵I, laid me down and slept,—I awoke, Surely, Yahweh, sustaineth me! ⁶I will not be afraid of myriads of people, who, round about, have set themselves against me. ⁷Rise! Yahweh, Save me, my God. Surely thou hast smitten all my foes on the cheekbone, The teeth of the lawless, hast thou broken. ⁸To Yahweh, belongeth Salvation! Upon thy people, be thy blessing. \ul1 Selah.\ul0

4To the Chief Musician: with stringed instruments. A Melody of David. When I cry, answer me, O mine own righteous God, In a strait place, thou hast made room for me, Show me favour, and hear my prayer. ²Ye sons of the great! how long, turning my glory to contempt, will ye love emptiness, will ye seek falsehood? \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ³Know ye, then, that Yahweh hath set apart the man of lovingkindness for himself: Yahweh, will hear, when I cry to him. ⁴Be deeply moved, but do not sin,—Ponder in your own heart upon your bed, and be silent. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁵Sacrifice the sacrifices of righteousness; and put your trust in Yahweh. ⁶Multitudes, are saying, Who will show us prosperity? Lift thou upon us the light of thy countenance, O Yahweh. ⁷Thou hast put gladness in my heart,—beyond the season when, their corn and their new wine, have increased. ⁸In peace, will I lay me down and at once sleep; for, thou, Yahweh alone, wilt cause me, in security, to dwell.

5To the Chief Musician. For the Flutes. A Melody of David. To my words, give ear, O Yahweh, Understand thou my softly murmured prayer: ²Attend to the voice of my cry, my King and my God, for, unto thee, do I pray. ³O Yahweh! in the morning, shalt thou hear my voice, In the morning, will I set in order unto thee, and keep watch; ⁴For, not a GOD finding pleasure in lawlessness, art thou, and wrong can be no guest of thine: ⁵Boasters, shall not station themselves, before thine eyes,—Thou hatest all workers of iniquity: ⁶Thou wilt destroy them who speak falsehood,—The man of bloodshed and of deceit, Yahweh abhorreth. ⁷But, I, in the abounding of thy lovingkindness, will enter thy house, I will bow down towards thy holy temple, in reverence of thee: ⁸O Yahweh! lead me in thy righteousness, because of mine adversaries, Make even, before me, thy way: ⁹For in his mouth is nothing worthy of trust, Their inward purpose, is engulfing ruin,—An opened sepulchre, is their throat, With their tongue, speak they smooth things. ¹⁰Declare them guilty, O God, Let them fall by their own counsels,—Into the throng of their own transgressions, thrust them down, For they have rebelled against thee:— ¹¹That all may rejoice who seek refuge in thee, to times age-abiding, may shout in triumph, that thou wilt protect them, and they may leap for joy in thee who are lovers of thy Name. ¹²For, thou, wilt bless the righteous man, O Yahweh, As with an all-covering shield—with good pleasure, wilt thou encompass him.

⁶To the Chief Musician, with stringed Instruments upon the eighth. A Melody of David. O Yahweh! do not, in thine anger, correct me, nor, in thy wrath, chastise me. ²Show me favour, O Yahweh, for languishing am I: Heal me, O Yahweh,—for dismayed are my bones: ³Yea, my soul, is dismayed greatly, Thou, then, O Yahweh—how long? ⁴Return, O Yahweh, deliver my soul, Save me, for the sake of thy lovingkindness; ⁵For, in death, is no remembrance of thee,—In hades, who shall give thanks unto thee? ⁶I am weary with my sighing, I flood, through the whole night, my couch,—With my tears, I cause, my bed, to dissolve: ⁷My face, is all sunken with sorrow,—it hath aged, because of all mine adversaries. ⁸Depart from me, all ye workers of iniquity, for Yahweh hath heard the voice of my weeping: ⁹Yahweh, hath heard my supplication, Yahweh, will receive, my prayer. ¹⁰Let all my foes, turn pale and be greatly dismayed, Again let them turn pale in a moment.

⁷Ode of David: which he sang unto Yahweh, on account of the words of Cush the Benjamite. O Yahweh my God, in thee, have I sought refuge,—Save me from all my pursuers, and deliver me: ²Lest one tear, as a lion, my soul,—and there be no deliverer to rescue. ³O Yahweh my God, If I have done this, If there hath been perversity in my hands: ⁴If I have requited my friend with wrong,—or have oppressed mine adversary without need, ⁵Let an enemy pursue my soul, and overtake it, that he may tread down, to the earth, my life,—and, mine honour—in the dust, he may cause to dwell. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁶Rise! Yahweh! in thine anger, Lift thyself up, because of the haughty outbursts of mine adversaries, Stir up for me the justice thou hast commanded: ⁷When, the assembly of peoples, gather round thee, then, above it—on high, do thou return! ⁸Yahweh, will judge the peoples,—Do me justice, O Yahweh, according to my righteousness, and according to mine integrity upon me, ⁹Let the wrong of the lawless, I pray thee, come to an end, and establish thou him that is righteous,—for, a trier of hearts and reins, is God the righteous one. ¹⁰My shield, is held by God, who is ready to save the upright in heart: ¹¹A God to vindicate the righteous,—and yet a

Got to be indignant throughout every day. ¹²If he turn not, his sword, will he whet,—his bow, hath he bent, and made ready: ¹³But, for himself, hath he made ready the weapons so deadly, His arrows, he, so fiery, would make: ¹⁴Lo! he gendereth trouble, and conceiveth mischief, but giveth birth to a disappointment: ¹⁵A pit, he cut out, and digged it, and then fell into the ditch he had made: ¹⁶His mischief, turneth back, on his own head,—and, on his own crown, his violence, descendeth. ¹⁷I will praise Yahweh according to his righteousness,—and will praise in song the Name of Yahweh Most High.

⁸To the Chief Musician. On "the Gittith." A Melody of David. O Yahweh, our Lord! How majestic is thy Name, in all the earth, Who hast set thy splendour upon the heavens. ²Out of the mouth of children and sucklings, hast thou laid a foundation of strength,—because of thine adversaries, to make foe and avenger be still. ³When I view thy heavens, the work, of thy fingers, moon and stars, which thou hast established, ⁴What was weak man, that thou shouldst make mention of him? or the son of the earthborn, that thou shouldst set him in charge? ⁵That thou shouldst make him little less than messengers of God, with glory and honour, shouldst crown him? ⁶Shouldst give him dominion over the works of thy hands,—All things, shouldst have put under his feet: ⁷Sheep and oxen, all of them,—yea even the beasts of the field; ⁸The bird of the heavens, and the fishes of the sea,— the passer-by on the paths of the seas? ⁹O Yahweh, our Lord! How majestic is thy Name, in all the earth.

⁹To the Chief Musician. On "Muthlabben." A Melody of David. I will praise Yahweh with all my heart, I will recount all thy wonderful doings: ²I will rejoice and exult in thee, I will praise in song, thy Name, O most High. ³When mine enemies turned back, they stumbled and perished from before thee; ⁴For thou hast executed my right and my cause, Thou hast sat on the throne, judging righteously: ⁵Thou hast rebuked the nations, Thou hast destroyed the lawless one, Their name, hast thou wiped out, to times age-abiding and beyond. ⁶O enemy! complete are the desolations, evermore,—even cities, hast thou uprooted, The memory of, them, hath perished. ⁷But, Yahweh, unto times age-abiding, will sit, Ready for judgment, is his throne; ⁸And, he, will judge the world in righteousness, He will minister judgment to peoples, in uprightness. ⁹Thus be Yahweh a refuge for the crushed one, a refuge for times of destitution: ¹⁰Thus let them who know thy Name, put confidence in thee, that thou hast not forsaken the searchers for thee, O Yahweh. ¹¹Sing ye praise to Yahweh, who is seated in Zion, Tell among the peoples his doings. ¹²When he was making inquisition for blood, of them, had he remembrance, he forgot not the outcry of the oppressed. ¹³Show me favour, O Yahweh! Behold my humiliation due to them who hate me, Lift me on high out of the gates of death; ¹⁴That I may recount all thy praises, In the gates of the daughter of Zion, may exult in thy salvation. ¹⁵The nations, have sunk, in the pit they had made, In the net which they had hidden, is caught their own foot. ¹⁶To be known is Yahweh, by the sentence he hath executed, By the doing of his own hands, is he about to strike down the lawless one. \ul1 Refunding music. Selah.\ul0 ¹⁷The lawless, shall return, to hades, all nations forgetful of God. ¹⁸For, not always, shall the needy, be forgotten,—nor, the hope of the oppressed, perish for ever. ¹⁹Rise! Yahweh! let man not prevail, let the nations be judged before thee. ²⁰Appoint, O Yahweh, a terror for them,—Let the nations know that they are men. \ul1 Selah.\ul0

10Wherefore, O Yahweh, shouldst thou stand afar off? Wherefore hide thyself, in times of destitution? ²In the pride of the lawless one, he hotly pursueth the poor, let them be caught in the plots which they have devised! ³For the lawless one hath boasted over the longing of his soul, and, the robber, hath blasphemed Yahweh. ⁴The lawless one, in the loftiness of his countenance, will not enquire, God is not in any of his plots: ⁵His ways are firm at all times, On high, are thy righteous regulations, out of his sight, As for all his adversaries, he puffeth at them: ⁶He hath said in his heart, I shall not be shaken,—From generation to generation, shall I be in no misfortune. ⁷With cursing, his mouth is full, and with deceptions and oppression, Under his tongue, are trouble and mischief: ⁸He abideth in the lurking-place of villages, In the hiding-places, he murdereth the innocent,—His eyes, for the unfortunate, are on the watch: ⁹He lieth in wait in a hiding-place, like a lion in his covert, He lieth in wait to catch the humbled, He catcheth the humbled, by drawing him into his net: ¹⁰He croucheth, he lieth down, then falleth he with his strong claws upon the unfortunate. ¹¹He hath said in his heart, GOD hath forgotten,—He hath veiled his face, Oh he hath never seen! ¹²Arise! Yahweh! O GOD! raise thy hand,—Do not forget the patient! ¹³Wherefore hath the lawless one blasphemed God? He hath said in his heart, Thou wilt not require it! ¹⁴Thou hast seen! For, thou, mischief and misery, dost discern, to requite with thine own hand, Unto thee, doth, the unfortunate one, give himself up, To the fatherless, thou thyself, hast become a helper. ¹⁵Shatter thou the arm of the lawless one, And, as for the wrongful, wilt thou not enquire for his lawlessness—wilt thou not find it? ¹⁶Yahweh, is king, to times age-abiding and beyond, The nations have perished out of his land. ¹⁷The longing of the patient, thou hast heard, O Yahweh, Thou wilt establish their heart, Thou wilt make attentive thine ear: ¹⁸To vindicate the fatherless and the crushed, A man of the earth, shall, no further, cause terror!

11To the Chief Musician. David's. In Yahweh, have I sought refuge. How can ye say to my soul, Flee to a mountain like a little bird; ²For lo! the lawless, bend the bow They have fixed their arrow upon the string, To shoot in the darkness at the upright in heart: ³When the pillars are overthrown, What could, a righteous man, do? ⁴Yahweh, is in his holy temple As for Yahweh, in the heavens, is his throne, His eyes, behold—His eyelashes test the sons of men. ⁵Yahweh, putteth, the righteous, to the test,—But the lawless one and the lover of violence, his soul doth hate. ⁶He will rain upon the lawless live-coals, Fire and brimstone and a burning wind, are the portion of their cup. ⁷For righteous is Yahweh Righteousness, he loveth, the upright, shall behold his face.

14To the Chief Musician. David's. The impious hath said in his heart—There is no God! They have acted corruptly, they have done an abominable deed, there is none that doeth good. ²Yahweh, out of the heavens, looked down over the sons of men,—to see whether there was one that showed wisdom, enquiring after God:—³The whole, have turned aside, Together have they become tainted,—There is none that doeth good, not so much as, one! ⁴Are all the workers of iniquity, without knowledge? devouring my people as they devour food! Upon Yahweh, have they not called. ⁵There have they been in great dread, because, God, is in the circle of the righteous man. ⁶The purpose of the poor, ye would put to shame, because, Yahweh, is his refuge. ⁷Oh that, out of Zion, were granted the salvation of Israel! When Yahweh bringeth back the captives of his people, Jacob, shall exult, Israel, be glad.

15A Melody of David. O Yahweh! Who shall be a guest in thy tent? Who shall abide in thy holy mountain? ²He that walketh without blame, and doeth what is right, and speaketh truth with his heart; ³Hath not carried slander on his tongue, hath not done his friend a wrong, nor, a reproach, taken up against his neighbour; ⁴Despised in his sight, is the reprobate, but, them who revere Yahweh, he doth honour, he hath sworn to his neighbour, and will not change; ⁵His silver, hath he not put out on interest, nor, a bribe against the innocent, hath he taken. He that doeth these things, shall not be shaken unto times age-abiding.

16A Precious Psalm of David. Preserve me, O GOD, for I have sought refuge in thee. ²Thou hast said unto Yahweh, My Lord, art thou! My goodness, mounteth not unto thee. ³It belongeth unto the holy ones, whom, in his own land, Yahweh, ennobleth, In whom is all his delight ⁴They multiply their idols—another, have they purchased! I will not pour out their drink-offerings of blood, nor will I take up their names on my lips. ⁵Yahweh, is mine allotted portion and my cup, Thou, art maintaining my lot. ⁶The lines, have fallen unto me, in pleasant places, Verily an inheritance that delighteth me. ⁷I will bless Yahweh, who hath counselled me,—Surely, by night, shall mine impulses admonish me. ⁸I have set Yahweh before me continually, because he is on my right hand, I shall not be shaken! ⁹Therefore, hath my heart rejoiced, and mine honour exulted, Yea, my flesh, shall settle down securely; ¹⁰For thou wilt not abandon my soul to hades, neither wilt thou suffer thy man of lovingkindness, to see corruption: ¹¹Thou wilt cause me to know, the path of life,—Fulness of joys before thee, Pleasures at thy right hand evermore.

17A Prayer of David. Hear, O Yahweh, the right, Attend to my loud cry, Give ear unto my prayer, on lips that would not deceive: ²From before thee, let my sentence come forth, Thine eyes, behold with equity. ³Thou hast tested my heart, hast made inspection by night, hast refined me until thou couldst find nothing, Had I devised evil, my mouth should not have transgressed: ⁴As for the workings of men, By the word of thy lips, have, I, taken heed of the paths of the violent one. ⁵Thou hast held fast my goings on to thy ways, My footsteps have not been shaken: ⁶I, have called upon thee, for thou wilt answer me, O GOD,—Incline thine ear unto me, Hear thou my speech: ⁷Let thy lovingkindness be distinguished, thou Saviour of such as seek refuge from them who lift themselves up against thy right hand. ⁸Guard me, as the pupil of the eye,—Under the shadow of thy wings, wilt thou hide me: ⁹From the face of lawless ones who have treated me with violence, the foes of my soul, who come round against me: ¹⁰Their own fat heart, have they shut up,—With their mouth, have they spoken proudly. ¹¹As for our own goings, now, have they surrounded us,—Their eyes, they fix, bending to the earth: ¹²His likeness, is as a lion, that longeth to rend, and as a young lion, lurking in secret places. ¹³Rise, Yahweh! Confront his face, Bring him down, Deliver my soul from the lawless one who is thy sword: ¹⁴From men who are thy hand, O Yahweh, From the men of this age, whose portion, is among the living, and, with thy treasure, thou fillest their bosom,—They must be satisfied with sons, And must leave their abundance to their children:— ¹⁵I, in righteousness, shall behold thy face, Shall be satisfied when awakened by a vision of thee.

18To the chief Musician. Of the servant of Yahweh, of David,—who spake unto Yahweh the words of this song,—in the day when Yahweh had rescued him out of the hand of all his enemies, and out of the hand of Saul; and he said:— I will love thee, O Yahweh my strength! ²Yahweh, was my mountain crag and my stronghold, and my deliverer: My GOD, was my rock, I sought refuge in him, My shield, and my horn of salvation, my high tower. ³As one worthy to be praised, called I on Yahweh,—And, from my foes, was I saved. ⁴The meshes of death encompassed me, The torrents of perdition, made me afraid; ⁵The meshes of hades, had surrounded me, The snares of death, had confronted me, ⁶In my distress, called I on Yahweh, And, unto my God, made outcry for help, He heard, out of his temple, my voice, And my outcry for help came before him—entered into his ears! ⁷Then did the earth shake and quake, Even, the foundations of the mountains, were deeply moved, Yea they did shake, because he was angry. ⁸There went up smoke in his nostrils, and, a fire out of his mouth, devoured, Live coals, were kindled from it: ⁹Then he stretched out the heaven, and came down,—and, thick gloom, was under his feet; ¹⁰Then he rode on a cherub, and flew, and darted on the wings of the wind; ¹¹Made darkness his hiding-place, Round about him—his pavilion, Darkness of waters, clouds of vapours. ¹²Out of the brightness before him, his clouds rolled along, hail, and live coals of fire. ¹³Then did Yahweh thunder in the heavens, and the Highest uttered his voice,—hail, and live coals of fire. ¹⁴And he sent forth his arrows and scattered them, yea, lightnings, he shot out, and confused them. ¹⁵Then appeared the channels of waters, were uncovered the foundations of the world,—At thy rebuke O Yahweh, at the blast of the breath of thy nostrils. ¹⁶He sent from on high, he took me,—he drew me out of many waters. ¹⁷He rescued me from my foe, in his might, and from them who hated me, because they were too strong for me: ¹⁸They confronted me, in the day of my necessity, Then became Yahweh my stay: ¹⁹And brought me out, into a large place, he delivered me, because he delighted in me. ²⁰Yahweh rewarded me according to my righteousness, According to the cleanness of my hands, he repaid me; ²¹For I had kept the ways of Yahweh, and not broken away from my God; ²²For, all his regulations, were before me, and, his statutes, did I not put from me: ²³So became I blameless with him, and kept myself from mine iniquity. ²⁴Yahweh therefore repaid me according to my righteousness, according to the pureness of my hands, before his eyes. ²⁵With the loving, thou didst show thyself loving,—With the blameless man, thou didst show thyself blameless; ²⁶With the pure, thou didst show thyself pure, But, with the perverse, thou didst show thyself ready to contend. ²⁷For, as for thee, an oppressed people, thou didst save, but, looks that were lofty, layedst thou low; ²⁸For, thou, didst light up my lamp, Yahweh my God, enlightened my darkness; ²⁹For, by thee, I ran through a troop, and, by my God, I leapt over a wall. ³⁰As for GOD, blameless is his way, The speech of Yahweh hath been proved, A shield, he is to all who seek refuge in him. ³¹For who is a GOD, save Yahweh? And who is a Rock, save our God? ³²The GOD who girded me with strength, and set forth, as blameless, my way: ³³Planting my feet like hinds' feet, yea, on my high places, he caused me to stand: ³⁴Teaching my hands to war,—so that a bow of bronze was bent by mine arms. ³⁵Thus didst thou grant me, as a shield, thy salvation,—and, thy right hand, sustained me, and, thy condescension, made me great. ³⁶Thou didst widen my stepping-places under me, so that, mine ankles, faltered not. ³⁷I pursued my foes, and overtook them, and returned not, till they were consumed: ³⁸I crushed them, and they were unable to rise, They fell under my feet. ³⁹Thus didst thou gird me with strength, for the battle, Thou subduedst mine assailants under me. ⁴⁰As for my foes, thou didst give me their neck, and, as for them who hated me, I destroyed them. ⁴¹They cried out, but there was none to save, unto Yahweh, but he answered them not. ⁴²Then did I beat them in pieces, like dust on the face of the wind. Like the mire in the lanes, did I scatter them. ⁴³Thus didst thou rescue me from the contentions of a people,—didst appoint me to be the head of nations, A people I had not known, served me: ⁴⁴At the hearing of the ear, they submitted to me, the sons of the foreigner, came cringing unto me: ⁴⁵The sons of the foreigner, lost heart, and came quaking out of their fortresses. ⁴⁶Yahweh liveth and, blessed, be my Rock, yea, exalted, be the God of my salvation: ⁴⁷The GOD, who hath avenged me,—and subjugated peoples under me: ⁴⁸Who hath delivered me from my foes,—Yea, from mine assailants, hast thou set me on high, From the man of violence, hast thou rescued me. ⁴⁹For this cause, will I praise thee among the nations, O Yahweh, and, to thy Name, will I sweep the strings:— ⁵⁰Who hath made great the victories of his King,—and shown lovingkindness to his Anointed One, To David and to his Seed, Unto times age-abiding.

19To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David. The heavens, are telling the glory of GOD, And, the work of his hands, the expanse is declaring; ²Day, unto day, doth pour forth speech, and, night, unto night, doth breathe out knowledge. ³There is no speech, and there are no words,—Unheard is their voice! ⁴Yet through all the earth, hath gone forth their voice,—and, to the end of the world, their sayings,—For the sun, hath he set up a tent therein; ⁵And, he, is like a bridegroom coming out of his chamber, he rejoiceth as a hero to run a race: ⁶From one end of the heavens, is his going forth, and, his circuit, to the other end thereof—and, nothing, is hid from his glowing heat. ⁷The, law of Yahweh, is complete, Bringing back the soul, The, testimony of Yahweh, is confirmed, Making wise the simple; ⁸The precepts of Yahweh, are right, Rejoicing the heart, The, commandment of Yahweh, is pure, Enlightening the eyes; ⁹The, reverence of Yahweh, is clean, Enduring evermore,—The, decisions of Yahweh, are faithful, They are righteous, altogether: ¹⁰More desirable, than gold, yea than much fine gold, Sweeter, also than honey, or than droppings from the comb. ¹¹Even thine own servant, taketh warning by them, In the keeping of them, great is the reward. ¹²Mistakes, who perceiveth? From things that are hidden, acquit me: ¹³Even from the presumptuous, keep back thy servant, May they not have dominion over me, Then, shall I be blameless, and shall be acquitted from great transgression: ¹⁴The words of my mouth, and the soft utterance of my heart, shall come with acceptance, before thee, O Yahweh, my Rock and my Redeemer!

20To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David. Yahweh answer thee, in the day of distress, The Name of the God of Jacob give thee safety; ²Send thy help out of the sanctuary, and, out of Zion, sustain thee; ³Remember every present of thine, and, thine ascending-sacrifice, esteem. \u0151 Selah.\u0151 ⁴Give thee according to thy heart, and, all thy purposes, fulfil. ⁵We will shout aloud in thy salvation, and, in the Name of our God, shall we become great, Yahweh fulfil all thy petitions. ⁶Now, do I know that Yahweh, hath saved, his Anointed One,—He answereth him out of his holy heavens, by the mighty saving deeds of his own right hand. ⁷These, by chariots, and, those, by horses, but, we, by the Name of Yahweh our God, will prevail. ⁸They, have bowed down and fallen, but, we, have arisen, and stand upright. ⁹Yahweh, hath saved the king. Answer us, then, on the day when we call.

21To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David. O Yahweh, in thy strength, will the king rejoice, and, in thy salvation, how greatly will he exult! ²The longing of his heart, hast thou given him, and, the request of his lips, hast thou not withheld. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ³For thou wilt come to meet him, with the blessings of goodness, Thou wilt set on his head, a crown of pure gold. ⁴Life, he asked of thee, Thou hast given it him, length of days, to times age-abiding and beyond. ⁵Great is his glory, in thy salvation, Honour and majesty, wilt thou lay upon him; ⁶For thou wilt appoint him blessings evermore, wilt cheer him with joy by thy countenance; ⁷For, the king, is trusting in Yahweh, and, in the lovingkindness of the Highest, shall he not be shaken. ⁸Thy hand, will find out, all thy foes, Thine own right hand, will find out them who hate thee. ⁹Thou wilt make them like a furnace of fire, at the time of thy presence,—Yahweh, in his anger, will swallow them up, and there shall consume them a fire: ¹⁰Their fruit—out of the earth, wilt thou destroy, and their seed, from among the sons of men; ¹¹For they have held out, against thee, a wicked thing, They have devised a scheme they cannot accomplish. ¹²For thou wilt cause them to turn their back, Upon thy bow-strings, wilt thou make ready against their face. ¹³Be exalted, O Yahweh, in thy strength! With song and with string will we sound forth thy power.

22To the Chief Musician. On "the Hind of the Dawn." A Melody of David. My GOD, my GOD, why hast thou forsaken me? Far from saving me, The words of my loud lamentation? ²My God! I keep crying—By day, and thou dost not answer, and, By night, and there is no rest for me. ³But, thou, art holy, Who inhabitest the praises of Israel. ⁴In thee, trusted our fathers, They trusted, and thou didst deliver them; ⁵Unto thee, made they outcry, and escaped, In thee, they trusted, and had not turned pale. ⁶But, I, am a worm and no one, a reproach of men, and despised of a people; ⁷All that see me, laugh at me,—They open wide the mouth, They shake the head:—⁸He should trust in Yahweh—let him deliver him,—Let him rescue him, seeing he delighteth in him. ⁹For, thou, art he that severed me from the womb, he that caused me to trust, upon the breasts of my mother; ¹⁰Upon thee, was I cast from the time I was born, From the womb of my mother, my GOD, hast thou been. ¹¹Be not far from me, for, distress, is near, For there is none to help. ¹²Many bulls have surrounded me, Strong oxen of Bashan, have enclosed me; ¹³They have opened wide against me their mouth, A lion rending and roaring. ¹⁴Like water, am I poured out, and, put out of joint, are all my bones,—My heart, hath become, like wax, it is melted in the midst of my body; ¹⁵Dried as a potsherd, is my strength, And, my tongue, is made to cleave to my gums, And, in the dust of death, wilt thou lay me. ¹⁶For dogs have surrounded me,—An assembly of evil doers, have encircled me, They have pierced my hands and my feet, ¹⁷I may tell all my bones, They, look for—they behold me! ¹⁸They part my garments among them, and, for my vestment, they cast lots. ¹⁹But, thou, O Yahweh, be not far off, O my help! to aid me, make haste; ²⁰Rescue, from the sword, my life, from the power of the dog, my solitary self: ²¹Save me from the mouth of the lion,—Yea, from the horns of wild beasts, hast thou delivered me. ²²I will declare thy Name unto my brethren,—In the midst of the convocation, will I praise thee. ²³Ye that revere Yahweh, praise him, All ye the seed of Jacob, glorify him, And, stand in awe of him, all ye seed of Israel. ²⁴For he hath not despised nor abhorred the humbling of the patient one, neither hath he hid his face from him, but, when he cried for help unto him, he heard. ²⁵Of thee, is my praise in the great convocation, My vows, will I pay, before them who revere him. ²⁶The patient wronged-ones shall eat and be satisfied, They shall praise Yahweh, who are seekers of him, Let your heart live for aye. ²⁷All the ends of the earth, will remember and turn to Yahweh, Yea all the families of the nations, will bow themselves down before thee, ²⁸For, to Yahweh, belongeth the kingdom, And One to Rule over the nations. ²⁹All the great ones of the earth, shall eat and bow down, Before him shall kneel, all that go down to the dust, Even he who had not kept alive, his own soul! ³⁰My seed, shall serve him, It shall he recounted, of the Lord, to a generation that shall come: ³¹That his righteousness may be declared to a people to be born, That he wrought with effect!

23A Melody of David. Yahweh, is my shepherd—I shall not want: ²In pastures of tender grass, he maketh me lie down, Unto restful waters, he leadeth me; ³My life, he restoreth, He guideth me in right paths, for the sake of his Name. ⁴Yea, though I walk through a valley death-shadowed, I will fear no harm, for, thou, art with me, Thy rod and thy staff, they, comfort me. ⁵Thou spreadest before me a table, in face of mine adversaries, Thou hast anointed, with oil, my head, My cup, hath run over. ⁶Surely, goodness and lovingkindness, will pursue me, all the days of my life, and I shall dwell in the house of Yahweh, evermore.

24David's. A Melody. To Yahweh, belongeth, The earth and the fulness thereof, The world, and they who dwell therein; ²For, he, upon the seas, hath founded it, and upon the currents, doth make it firm. ³Who shall ascend the mountain of Yahweh? And who shall stand in his holy place? ⁴The clean of hands, and pure of heart,—who hath not uplifted, to falsehood, his soul, nor sworn deceitfully, ⁵Shall bear away a blessing from Yahweh, and righteousness, from his delivering God. ⁶This, is the generation of them who inquire of him, who seek thy face, O God of Jacob. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁷Lift up, O ye gates, your heads, and lift yourselves up, ye age-abiding doors, That the king of glory may come in. ⁸Who is the king of glory? Yahweh, strong and mighty, Yahweh, mighty in war. ⁹Lift up, O ye gates, your heads, yea lift them up, ye age-abiding doors, That the king of glory may come in. ¹⁰Who then is the king of glory? Yahweh of hosts, He, is the king of glory. \ul1 Selah.\ul0

25David's. An Alphabetical Psalm. Unto thee, O Yahweh, my soul, would I lift: ²O my God, in thee, have I put my trust, Let me not be put to shame, Let not my foe exult over me: ³Yea let, none who wait for thee, be put to shame, Let them be put to shame who act covertly without cause! ⁴Thy ways, O Yahweh, let me know, Thy paths, teach thou me: ⁵Guide me into thy truth and teach me, for, thou, art my delivering God, For thee, have I waited all the day: ⁶Remember thy compassions, O Yahweh, and thy lovingkindnesses, For, from age-past times, have they been. ⁷The sins of my youth, and my transgressions, do not thou call to mind,—According to thine own lovingkindness, remember thou me, for the sake of thine own goodness, O Yahweh. ⁸Good and upright, is Yahweh, For this cause, will he direct sinners into the way. ⁹May he guide patient wronged-ones to be righted, and teach such oppressed-ones his way. ¹⁰All the paths of Yahweh, are lovingkindness and faithfulness, to such as keep his covenant, and his testimonies. ¹¹For the sake of thy Name, O Yahweh, Therefore wilt thou pardon mine iniquity, for great it is. ¹²Who then is the man that revereth Yahweh? Let him direct him into the way he should choose. ¹³His soul, with prosperity, shall tarry, and, his seed, shall possess the land. ¹⁴Intimacy with Yahweh, have they who revere him, His covenant also, he letteth them know. ¹⁵Mine eyes, are continually unto Yahweh,—for, he, bringeth, out of the net, my feet. ¹⁶Turn thou unto me, and show me favour, for, alone and oppressed, I am. ¹⁷The distresses of my heart, hath he relieved,—and, out of my straits, brought me forth. ¹⁸Behold my humiliation and my pain, and take away all my sins. ¹⁹Behold my foes, for they abound,—and, with the hatred of violence, do they hate me. ²⁰Oh keep my soul, and rescue me, Let me not be put to shame, for I have sought refuge in thee. ²¹Let, blamelessness and uprightness, watch over me, because I have waited for thee. ²²Redeem Israel, O God,—out of all his distresses.

26David's. Do me justice, O Yahweh, For, I, in my blamelessness, have walked, and, in Yahweh, have I trusted, I will not waver. ²Try me, O Yahweh, and prove me, Test my reins and my heart:—³For, thy lovingkindness, hath been before mine eyes, and I have walked to and fro in thy faithfulness; ⁴I have not sat with men of deceit, nor, with dissemblers, would I enter; ⁵I have hated the convocation of evil-doers, and, with lawless men, would I not sit; ⁶I will bathe, in pureness, my hands,—so will I go in procession around thine altar, O Yahweh; ⁷To sound aloud a song, and to recount all thy wonderful doings. ⁸O Yahweh, I have loved the asylum of thy house, even the place of the habitation of thy glory! ⁹Do not remove, with sinners, my soul, nor, with men of bloodshed, my life; ¹⁰In whose hands is a plot, and, their right hand, is filled with a bribe. ¹¹But, I, in my blamelessness, will walk, Redeem me and show me favour. ¹²My foot standeth in a level place, In the convocations, will I bless Yahweh.

27David's. Yahweh, is my light and my salvation, Of whom shall I be afraid? Yahweh, is the refuge of my life, Of whom shall I be in dread? ²When there drew near against me evil-doers to devour my flesh, mine adversaries, and mine enemies—mine!—they, stumbled and fell! ³Though there pitch against me—a camp, my heart shall not fear,—Though there come up against me—a battle, still, am I confident. ⁴One thing, have I asked of Yahweh, That, will I seek to secure,—That I may dwell in the house of Yahweh, all the days of my life, To view the delightfulness of Yahweh, And to contemplate in his temple. ⁵For he will hide me in his pavilion, in the day of calamity,—He will conceal me, in the secrecy of his tent, Within a rock, will he set me on high. ⁶Now, therefore, shall my head be raised high above my foes round about me, and I will sacrifice in his tent the sacrifices of triumphant joy, I will sing and touch the strings, to Yahweh. ⁷Hear, O Yahweh, With my voice, do I cry, Oh then show me favour and answer me. ⁸To thee, said my heart— When thou saidst Seek ye my face—Thy face, O Yahweh, will I seek! ⁹Do not hide thy face from me, Do not repulse, in thine anger, thine own servant,—My help, thou hast been, Do not send me away nor forsake me, O my saving God! ¹⁰When, my own father and mother, had forsaken me, Then, Yahweh, took me up! ¹¹Point out to me, O Yahweh, thy way,—And guide me in a level path, because of mine adversaries. ¹²Do not give me up unto the desire of mine adversaries, for there have risen up against me witnesses that are false, and he that fanneth up violence. ¹³I believe that I shall see—The goodness of Yahweh in the land of the living, ¹⁴Wait thou for Yahweh,—Be strong, and let thy heart be bold, Wait, then, for Yahweh!

28David's. Unto thee, O Yahweh, do I cry, O my Rock! do not turn in silence from me,—lest, if thou turn from me in silence, I be like them who go down into the pit. ²Hear the voice of my supplication, when I cry to thee for help, when I lift up my hands toward thy holy shrine. ³Do not drag me away—with the lawless, or with the workers of iniquity,—who speak peaceably with their neighbours, but, wrong, is in their heart. ⁴Give them, according to their deed, and, according to the wrong of their practices,—According to the work of their own hands, give thou unto them, Bring back their own dealing to themselves. ⁵Because they heed not The Deeds of Yahweh, or the Work of his hands, he will pull them down, and not build them. ⁶Blessed be Yahweh, Because he hath heard the voice of my supplication. ⁷Yahweh, is my strength and my shield, In him, hath trusted my heart, and I have found help,—Therefore hath my heart danced for joy, and, with my song, do I praise him. ⁸Yahweh, is strength to his people,—And, the all-saving refuge of his Anointed One, is he! ⁹Oh save thy people, and bless thine inheritance, Tend them also, and carry them, Unto times age-abiding.

29A Melody of David. Give to Yahweh, ye sons of the mighty,—Give to Yahweh, both glory and strength: ²Give to Yahweh, the glory of his Name, Bow down to Yahweh, in the adornment of holiness. ³The voice of Yahweh, is upon the waters,—The GOD of glory, hath thundered, Yahweh, is upon mighty waters; ⁴The voice of Yahweh, is with power, The voice of Yahweh, is with majesty; ⁵The voice of Yahweh, is breaking cedars, Now hath Yahweh, broken down, the cedars of Lebanon! ⁶And hath made them leap like a calf, Lebanon and Sirion, like the bull-calf of wild-oxen; ⁷The voice of Yahweh, is cleaving out flames of fire; ⁸The voice of Yahweh, bringeth birth-pains upon the wilderness; Yahweh bringeth birth-pains upon the wilderness of Kadesh! ⁹The voice of Yahweh, causeth the gazelles to bring forth, and hath stript forests; and, in his own temple, every one there, is saying, Glory! ¹⁰Yahweh, at the Flood, was seated, And Yahweh hath taken his seat, as king, unto times age-abiding. ¹¹Yahweh, will give, strength to his people,—Yahweh, will bless his people with prosperity.

30A Melody. A Song for the Dedication of the House. David's. I will extol thee, O Yahweh, for thou hast drawn me up,—and not suffered my foes to rejoice over me. ²O Yahweh, my God, I cried for help unto thee, and thou hast healed me. ³O Yahweh! thou hast lifted, out of hades, my soul, Thou hast brought me back to life, from among those who were going down to the pit. ⁴Sweep the strings to Yahweh, ye his men of lovingkindness, and give ye praise at the mention of his holiness. ⁵For there is, a Moment, in his anger, a Life-time, in his good-pleasure, In the evening, cometh Weeping to lodge, But, by the morning, 'tis a Shout of Triumph! ⁶But, I, said, in my tranquility, I shall not be shaken to times age-abiding! ⁷O Yahweh, in thy good-pleasure, hadst thou caused my mountain to stand, strong,—Thou didst hide thy face—I was dismayed! ⁸Unto thee, O Yahweh, do I cry,—and, unto My Lord, do I make supplication: ⁹What profit in my blood? in my going down into the pit? Can dust praise thee? Can it declare thy faithfulness? ¹⁰Hear, O Yahweh, and show me favour, O Yahweh! become thou a helper unto me. ¹¹Thou hast turned my lamentation, into a dance for me,—Thou hast torn off my sackcloth, and girded me with gladness: ¹²To the end that mine honour should make melody unto thee, and not be silent. O Yahweh, my God! Unto times age-abiding, will I praise thee.

31To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David. In thee, O Yahweh, have I sought refuge, Let me not be ashamed to times age-abiding, In thy righteousness, deliver me: ²Incline unto me, thine ear, Speedily rescue me,—Become to me a Rock of refuge, a Place of security, For saving me. ³Because, my mountain crag and my stronghold, thou art, Therefore, for the sake of thine own Name, wilt thou lead me and guide me? ⁴Wilt thou bring me forth, out of the net which they have hidden for me? For, thou, art my refuge. ⁵Into thy hand, do I commit my spirit—Thou hast ransomed me, O Yahweh, GOD most faithful. ⁶I hate such as give heed to false vanities, I, then, in Yahweh, have set my hope. ⁷I will indeed exult and rejoice, in thy lovingkindness,—In that thou hast looked upon my humiliation, thou hast taken note that in distresses was my life; ⁸And hast not shut me up in the hand of the foe, Thou hast given standing, in a roomy place, unto my feet. ⁹Show me favour, O Yahweh, for in distress am I,—Wasted with vexation, is mine eye—my soul and my body; ¹⁰For, consumed with sorrow, is my life, and my years with sighing,—My strength hath staggered with my humiliation, and, my bones, are without marrow. ¹¹By reason of all mine adversaries, have I become a reproach. Even to my neighbours, altogether, and a dread to mine acquaintance,—They who have seen me abroad, have fled from me: ¹²I have been forgotten, like one dead—out of mind, I have been as a missing vessel. ¹³For I have heard the whispering of many—A terror round about! When they have sat in conclave together against me, to take away my life, have they intrigued. ¹⁴I, therefore, in thee, have put ray trust, O Yahweh, I have said, My God, thou art! ¹⁵In thy hand, are my times, Rescue me from the hand of my foes and from my pursuers! ¹⁶Cause thy face to shine upon thy servant, Save me in thy lovingkindness. ¹⁷O Yahweh! let me not be ashamed, For I have called upon thee, Let the lawless ha ashamed, go down in silence to hades! ¹⁸Let false lips be made dumb,—which are speaking—against a righteous one—arrogantly, with pride and contempt. ¹⁹How great is thy goodness, which thou hast hidden away for them who revere thee,—Thou hast wrought for them who seek refuge in thee, in sight of the sons of men. ²⁰Thou wilt conceal them, in the secrecy of thine own presence, from the conspiracies of men,—Thou wilt hide them in a pavilion, from the strife of tongues. ²¹Blessed be Yahweh, for he hath made wonderful his lovingkindness for me, in a fortified city. ²²But, I, had said in mine alarm, I am cut off from before thine eyes,—But, indeed, thou didst hear the voice of my supplication, when I cried for help unto thee. ²³Love Yahweh, all ye his men of lovingkindness,—Faithfulness, doth Yahweh observe, but repayeth abundantly him that worketh proudly. ²⁴Be strong, and let your heart be bold, all ye who are waiting for Yahweh.

32David's An Instructive Psalm. How happy is he whose transgression is forgiven! whose sin is pardoned! ²How happy the son of earth, to whom Yahweh will not reckon iniquity! and in whose spirit is no guile! ³When I kept silence, my bones became worn out, Through my groaning all the day; ⁴For, day and night, heavy upon me, was thy hand,—Changed was my life-sap into the drought of summer. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁵My sin, would I own unto thee, and, mine iniquity, not hide, I said, I will confess my transgressions unto Yahweh, And, thou, didst forgive the iniquity of my sin. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁶For this cause, will every man of lovingkindness pray unto thee, in time to obtain,—Surely, in the overflow of many waters, unto him, shall they not reach. ⁷Thou, art a hiding-place for me, From distress, wilt thou preserve me,—With shouts of deliverance, wilt thou compass me about. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁸I will make thee discreet, I will point out to thee the way which thou must go, I will fix upon thee mine eye. ⁹Do not ye become like a horse, like a mule, without discernment,—With the bit and bridle of his mouth, hast thou to restrain him,—He will not come near unto thee. ¹⁰Many pains, hath the lawless one,—But, he that trusteth in Yahweh, Lovingkindness, shall compass him about. ¹¹Rejoice in Yahweh and exult, O ye righteous, Yea, shout in triumph, all ye upright in heart!

33Shout for joy, ye righteous, in Yahweh, To the upright, seemly is praise. ²Give ye thanks unto Yahweh with the lyre, With a harp of ten strings, make ye music unto him. ³Sing unto him, a song that is new, With skill, sweep the strings, with loud noise. ⁴For right is the word of Yahweh, and, all his work, is in faithfulness: ⁵Who loveth righteousness and justice, With the lovingkindness of Yahweh, the earth is full. ⁶By the word of Yahweh, the heavens were made, and, by the spirit of his mouth, all their host: ⁷Who gathered as into a skin-bottle the waters of the sea, Delivering, into treasuries, the roaring deeps. ⁸Let all the earth, stand in awe of Yahweh, Of him, be in dread, all ye inhabitants of the world; ⁹For, he, spake, and it was, He, commanded, and it stood forth. ¹⁰Yahweh, hath frustrated the counsel of nations, hath brought to nothing the devices of peoples. ¹¹The counsel of Yahweh, to times age-abiding, shall stand, The devices of his heart, from generation to generation. ¹²How happy the nation whose God is, Yahweh, The people he hath chosen as his own inheritance! ¹³Out of the heavens, hath Yahweh looked, He hath seen all the sons of men: ¹⁴Out of his settled place of abode, hath he fixed his gaze on all the inhabitants of the earth: ¹⁵Who fashioneth their heart all together, Who understandeth all their doings. ¹⁶Not a king, can be saved by greatness of force, nor, hero, deliver himself by greatness of strength: ¹⁷A deception, is the horse, for victory, and, by his great strength, shall he not deliver. ¹⁸Lo! the eye of Yahweh, is toward them who revere him, unto such as are waiting for his lovingkindness: ¹⁹To rescue, from death, their soul, and to keep them alive in famine. ²⁰Our own soul, hath waited for Yahweh, Our help and our shield, is he! ²¹For, in him, shall our heart rejoice, For, in his holy Name, have we trusted. ²²Be thy lovingkindness, O Yahweh, upon us, According as we have waited for thee.

34David's. When he disguised his sanity before Abimelech,—who dismissed him, and he departed. An Alphabetical Psalm. Let me bless Yahweh at all times, Continually be his praise in my mouth. ²In Yahweh, boasteth my soul, The patient oppressed-ones shall hear and be glad. ³Ascribe ye greatness unto Yahweh with me, and let us exalt his Name together. ⁴I enquired of Yahweh, and he hath answered me, And, out of all my terrors, hath he rescued me. ⁵They looked unto him and were radiant, And, as for their faces, let them not be abashed. ⁶This, oppressed one cried, and, Yahweh, heard—and, out of all his distresses, saved him. ⁷The messenger of Yahweh encampeth around them who revere him, Thus hath he delivered them. ⁸Oh taste and see, that good is Yahweh,—How happy the man who seeketh refuge in him! ⁹Revere Yahweh, ye his holy ones, For there is no want to them who revere him. ¹⁰Young lions, have come short, and suffered hunger, but, they who seek Yahweh, shall not lack any good thing. ¹¹Come, ye children! hearken unto me, The reverence of Yahweh, will I teach you. ¹²Who is the man that desireth life, Loving days, that he may see good? ¹³Keep thy tongue from wickedness, And thy lips from speaking deceit: ¹⁴Depart from wickedness and do good, Aim at well-being, and pursue it. ¹⁵The eyes of Yahweh, are towards the righteous, And, his ears, towards their cry for help: ¹⁶the face of Yahweh, is against such as do wickedness, To cut off, from the earth, their memory. ¹⁷They made outcry, and Yahweh heard, And, out of all their straits, hath he rescued them. ¹⁸Near is Yahweh, to the broken in heart, And, the crushed in spirit, will he save. ¹⁹Many are the misfortunes of the righteous, But, out of them all, doth Yahweh rescue him. ²⁰Keeping all his bones, Not, one from among them, is broken. ²¹Misfortune shall be the death of the lawless one, And, the haters of the righteous man, shall be held guilty. ²²Yahweh ransometh the soul of his servants, And none shall be held guilty, who seek refuge in him.

35David's. Contend, O Yahweh, with them who contend with me, Make war upon them who make war upon me. ²Grasp buckler and shield, and arise in my help; ³Then draw the spear, and close up against my pursuers, Say to my soul, Thy salvation, I am! ⁴Let them be ashamed and confounded, who are seeking my life,—Let them turn back and be put to the blush, who are devising my hurt: ⁵Let them be as chaff before the wind, with, the messenger of Yahweh, pressing them on: ⁶Let their way become dark and slippery, with, the messenger of Yahweh, pursuing them. ⁷For, without cause, have they hid for me, in a ditch, their net,—Without cause, have they digged a pit for my life. ⁸There shall reach him a ruin he could not know,—Yea, his own net which he hath hidden, shall capture him, Into that ruin, shall he fall! ⁹But, my soul, shall exult in Yahweh,—shall be glad in his salvation. ¹⁰All my bones, shall say—O Yahweh, who is like unto thee? Rescuing the oppressed from one stronger than he, Yea the oppressed and the needy, from their spoiler. ¹¹There rise up witnesses helping forward violence and wrong, What I know not, they demand of me: ¹²They repay me evil for good, Bereaving my soul. ¹³But, as for me, when they were sick, my clothing was sackcloth, I humbled, with fasting, my soul, though, my prayer, unto mine own bosom, might return: ¹⁴Like as for a friend, like as for a brother of mine own, I walked to and fro, As though mourning for a mother, I gloomily bowed myself down. ¹⁵But, in mine overthrow, have they rejoiced, and gathered themselves together,—There gathered themselves together against me foolish men, and I knew it not, They have torn in pieces, and not been silent; ¹⁶Amidst profane praters of perversion, have they gnashed upon me with their teeth. ¹⁷My Lord! how long wilt thou look on? Bring back my soul out of their raging, from among lions, my solitary self. ¹⁸I will thank thee, in the midst of a great convocation,—In the midst of a mighty people, will I praise thee. ¹⁹Let not them who are falsely my foes rejoice over me, As for them who hate me without cause, let them not wink the eye! ²⁰For, no salvation, will they utter,—But, against the quiet of the land, deceitful things, do they devise; ²¹Yea they have opened wide against me their mouth, They have said, Aha! Aha! our own eye, hath seen! ²²Thou hast seen, O Yahweh, do not keep silence! O My Lord! be not far from me: ²³Bestir thyself and wake up, to my vindication, O my God and My Lord!—to my plea: ²⁴Vindicate me according to thy righteousness, O Yahweh, my God! And let them not rejoice over me: ²⁵Let them not say in their heart, Aha! to our mind! Let them not say, We have swallowed him up! ²⁶Let them turn pale, and then at once blush, who are rejoicing at my misfortune,—Let them be clothed with shame and confusion, who are magnifying themselves against me. ²⁷Let them shout in triumph and rejoice, who are desiring my justification; And let them say continually, Yahweh be magnified, Who hath taken pleasure in the prosperity of his servant. ²⁸Mine own tongue also, shall softly utter thy righteousness,—All the day long,—thy praise!

36To the Chief Musician. Of the Servant of Yahweh—of David. Declareth the transgression of the lawless one, within my heart, There is, no dread of God, before his eyes; ²For he flattereth himself too much in his own eyes, to find his iniquity—to hate it. ³The words of his mouth, are iniquity and deceit, he hath left off to show discretion by doing well: ⁴Iniquity, deviseth he upon his bed,—he taketh his stand in a way, not good, Wrong, doth he not abhor! ⁵O Yahweh! in the heavens, is thy lovingkindness, Thy faithfulness, as far as the fleecy clouds: ⁶Thy righteousness, is like mighty mountains, and, thy just decrees, are a great resounding deep,—Man and beast, thou savest, O Yahweh! ⁷How precious thy lovingkindness, O God,—Therefore, the sons of men, under the shadow of thy wings, seek refuge: ⁸They abundantly relish the fatness of thy house,—And out of the full stream of thine own pleasures, thou givest them to drink. ⁹For, with thee, is the fountain of life, In thy light, we see light. ¹⁰Prolong thy lovingkindness unto them who know thee,—and thy righteousness, to the upright in heart. ¹¹Let not the foot of pride reach me, nor, the hand of the lawless, scare me away. ¹²There did the workers of iniquity fall,—thrust down and not able to rise!

37David's. An Alphabetical Psalm. Burn not with vexation because of evil-doers, Be not envious of the workers of perversity; ²For, like grass, soon shall they wither, and, like green herbage, shall they fade. ³Trust in Yahweh, and do good, Dwell in the land, and feed on fidelity; ⁴Yea, rest thy delight on Yahweh, that he may give thee the requests of thy heart. ⁵Roll on Yahweh thy way, Trust also in him, and, he, will effectually work: ⁶So will he bring forth, as the light, thy righteousness, and thy vindication as the noonday. ⁷Be resigned to Yahweh, yea wait with longing for him; Burn not with vexation at him who prospereth in his way,—at the man who doeth wickedness. ⁸Cease from anger, and forsake wrath, Burn not with vexation—it would be only to do evil; ⁹For, evil doers, shall be cut off, but, as for them who wait for Yahweh, they, shall inherit the earth. ¹⁰Yet a little, therefore, and the lawless one shall not be, Yea thou shalt look about, over his place—and he shall have vanished! ¹¹But, the patient oppressed-ones, shall inherit the earth, and shall delight themselves over the abundance of prosperity. ¹²Plotting is the lawless one, against the just, and gnashing upon him with his teeth. ¹³My Lord, shall laugh at him, for he seeth, that his day, will come. ¹⁴A sword, have the lawless, drawn out, and have trodden their bow,—To bring down the oppressed and the needy, To slaughter the upright in life: ¹⁵Their sword, shall enter into their own heart, and, their bow, shall be broken. ¹⁶Better the little of the righteous man, than the abundance of the lawless who are mighty; ¹⁷For, the arms of the lawless, shall be broken, But Yahweh is upholding the righteous. ¹⁸Yahweh knoweth the days of the blameless, that, their inheritance, unto times age-abiding, shall continue. ¹⁹They shall not be ashamed in the time of calamity, and, in the days of famine, shall they be filled. ²⁰For, the lawless, shall perish, and, the foes of Yahweh, be like the glory of the meadows, They have vanished! In smoke, have they vanished! ²¹A lawless man borroweth, and will not repay, But, a righteous man, showeth favour and giveth; ²²For, such as are blessed of him, shall inherit the earth, But, the cursed of him, shall be cut off. ²³From Yahweh, are the steps of a man made firm, When, with his way, he is well pleased: ²⁴Though he fall, he shall not be hurled headlong, For, Yahweh, is holding his hand. ²⁵Young, have I been, moreover am old,—Yet have I not seen, A righteous man forsaken, Nor his seed begging bread: ²⁶All day long, is he showing favour and lending, his seed, therefore, shall have a blessing. ²⁷Turn from evil, and do good, and so settle down, unto times age-abiding. ²⁸For, Yahweh, loveth justice, and will not forsake his men of lovingkindness, Unto times age-abiding, have the perverse been destroyed,—and the seed of the lawless, been cut off. ²⁹The righteous, shall inherit the earth, that they may settle down, to futurity, thereupon. ³⁰The mouth of a righteous man, softly uttereth wisdom, and, his tongue, speaketh justice: ³¹The law of his God, is in his heart, his steps shall not swerve. ³²The lawless man, lieth in wait, for the just, and seeketh to put him to death: ³³Yahweh, will not leave him in his hand, nor condemn him, when he is judged. ³⁴Wait for Yahweh, and observe thou his path, that he may exalt thee, to inherit the earth, On the cutting off of the lawless, shalt thou look. ³⁵I have seen a lawless man, a tyrant, and spreading himself out, like a cedar in Lebanon; ³⁶Then I passed by, and lo! he had vanished! Yea I sought him, but he could not be found. ³⁷Mark the blameless man, and behold the upright, for there is a hereafter for the man of peace; ³⁸But, transgressors, are to be destroyed together, the hereafter of lawless men, is to be cut off. ³⁹But, the deliverance of the righteous, is from Yahweh, their refuge in a time of distress. ⁴⁰Thus hath Yahweh helped them, thus hath he delivered them,—He will deliver them from the lawless, and will save them, because they have sought refuge in him.

38A Melody of David. To bring to Remembrance. O Yahweh, do not, in thine anger, correct me, nor, in thy wrath, chastise me; ²For, thine arrows, have sunk down into me, and thy hand, presseth heavily upon me. ³There is no soundness in my flesh, By reason of thine indignation, There is no peace in my bones, By reason of my sin; ⁴For, mine iniquities, have passed over my head, Like a heavy burden, they are too heavy for me: ⁵My wounds are of bad odour—they have festered, by reason of my folly: ⁶I am bent, I am bowed down very low. All the day, have I gloomily walked; ⁷For, my loins, are filled with inflammation, and there is no soundness in my flesh: ⁸I am benumbed and crushed exceedingly,—I have cried aloud because of the groaning of my heart. ⁹O My Lord! before thee, is all my longing, and, my sighing, from thee, hath not been hid: ¹⁰My heart, fluttereth, my strength hath forsaken me, and, as for the light of mine eyes, even they, are not with me: ¹¹My lovers, and my friends, from before my stroke, stand aloof,—and, my near ones, far away, do stand: ¹²Yea they who are seeking my life, have laid snares, and they who are asking my harm, have threatened engulfing ruin, And, deceitful things—all day long, do they mutter. ¹³But, I, as one deaf, will not hear,—and as one dumb, who will not open his mouth: ¹⁴Thus have I become as a man who cannot hear, in whose mouth are no arguments: ¹⁵Because, for thee, O Yahweh, have I waited, Thou, wilt answer, O Adonay, my God! ¹⁶For I said, Lest they rejoice over me! When my feet were tottering, against me, have they magnified themselves: ¹⁷For, I, to halt, am ready, and, my pain, is before me continually; ¹⁸For, mine iniquity, will I declare, I shall be anxious because of my sin; ¹⁹And, my foes, are alive—have become strong,—and multiplied are they who hate me for false cause: ²⁰Even they who are repaying evil for good, accuse me because I pursue the good. ²¹Do not forsake me, O Yahweh, My God! be not far from me: ²²Make haste to help me, My Lord, my deliverance!

39To the Chief Musician. For Jeduthun. A Melody of David. I said, to myself, I will take heed to my ways, That I sin not with my tongue,—I will put on my mouth a muzzle, So long as the lawless is before me. ²I was dumb with silence, I held my peace, afar from happiness, But, my pain had been stirred: ³Hot was my heart within me, While I was musing, there was kindled a fire, I spake with my tongue! ⁴Let me know, O Yahweh, mine end, And the measure of my days—what it is, I would know how short-lived I am. ⁵Lo! as hand-breadths, hast thou granted my days, and my life-time, is as nothing before thee,—Surely, a mere breath, are all men, even such as stand firm. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁶Surely as a shadow, doth every man wander, Surely in vain, do they bustle about, he heapeth things up, and knoweth not who shall gather them in. ⁷Now, therefore, for what have I waited, O My Lord? My hope, is, in thee. ⁸From all my transgressions, rescue thou me,—The reproach of the base, oh do not make me! ⁹I am dumb, I cannot open my mouth, for, thou, hast done it. ¹⁰Remove from off me thy stroke, Because of the hostility of thy hand, am, I, consumed. ¹¹When, by rebukes for iniquity, thou hast corrected a man, Then hast thou consumed, as a moth, all that was delightful within him, Surely, a breath, are all men. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ¹²Hear my prayer, O Yahweh, And, unto my cry for help, give ear, At my tears, do not be silent,—For, a sojourner, am, I, with thee, A stranger, like all my fathers. ¹³Look away from me that I may brighten up, Ere yet I depart and am no more.

40To the Chief Musician. David's. A Melody. I waited patiently for Yahweh,—And he inclined, unto me, and heard my cry for help; ²So he brought me up, Out of the destroying pit, Out of the swampy mire,—And set, upon a cliff, my feet, Making firm my steps: ³Then put

he, into my mouth, a new song, Praise to our God,—Many shall see and revere, And shall trust in Yahweh. ⁴How happy the man, Who hath made Yahweh his confidence, who hath not turned unto the haughty, nor gone aside unto falsehood. ⁵Mighty things, hast thou done—Thou, Yahweh my God, Thy wonderful doings and thy purposes to-wards us, There is no setting them in order unto thee—I would tell, and would speak!—They are too great to rehearse. ⁶Sacrifice and meal-offering, thou didst not delight in, Ears, didst thou pierce for me,—Ascending-sacrifice and sin-bearer, thou didst not ask: ⁷Then, said I—Lo! I am come, In the written scroll, is it prescribed for me; ⁸To do thy good-pleasure, O my God, is my delight, And, thy law, is in the midst of mine inward parts: ⁹I have told the good-tidings of righteousness in a great convocation, Lo! my lips, do I not restrain, O Yahweh, thou, knowest: ¹⁰Thy righteousness, have I not hid in the midst of my heart, Thy faithfulness and thy salvation, have I spoken, I have not concealed thy lovingkindness and thy truthfulness from the great convocation. ¹¹Thou, O Yahweh, wilt not restrain thy compassions from me, Thy lovingkindness and thy truthfulness, shall continually watch over me. ¹²For there have closed in upon me, misfortunes beyond number, Mine iniquities have overtaken me, and I cannot see, They have become more than the hairs of my head, And, my courage, hath forsaken me! ¹³Be pleased, O Yahweh, to rescue me, O Yahweh! to help me, make haste! ¹⁴Let them turn pale and then at once blush, who are seeking my life to snatch it away,—Let them draw back, and be confounded, who are taking pleasure in my calamity; ¹⁵Let them be astonished on account of their own shame, who are saying of me, Aha! Aha! ¹⁶Let all them be glad and rejoice in thee, who are seekers of thee. Let them say continually—Yahweh be magnified! who are lovers of thy salvation. ¹⁷But, I, being oppressed and needy, May My Lord devise for me,—My help and my deliverer, thou art! O my God, do not tarry!

41To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David. How happy is he that is attentive to the poor, In the day of calamity, will Yahweh deliver him: ²Yahweh, will preserve him and keep him alive, And he shall be pronounced happy in the land, Do not then give him up at the desire of his enemies! ³Yahweh, will sustain him upon the bed of sickness, All his couch, hast thou transformed in his disease. ⁴I, said—O Yahweh, show me favour, heal thou my soul, for I have sinned against thee: ⁵Mine enemies, speak ill of me, When will he die, and his name perish? ⁶And, if he have come to see me, Falsehood, doth he speak, His own heart, gathereth iniquity to itself, he goeth forth, abroad he telleth it. ⁷Together—against me, do all who hate me whisper among themselves, Against me, devise they hurt for me. ⁸An infliction of the Abandoned One hath been fixed upon him, and, now that he hath lain down, he will not again rise. ⁹Even the man whom I used to salute, in whom I put confidence, who used to eat my bread,—hath magnified his heel against me! ¹⁰But, thou, O Yahweh, show me favour and raise me up, That I may repay them. ¹¹Hereby, do I know that thou delightest in me, In that mine enemy shall not raise a shout over me. ¹²But, as for me, In my blamelessness, hast thou held me fast, And hast caused me to stand before thee unto times age-abiding. ¹³Blessed be Yahweh, the God of Israel, From the age that is past, even unto the age yet to come: Amen and Amen!

42\ul1 BOOK THE SECOND\ul0 To the Chief Musician. An Instructive Psalm for the Sons of Korah. As, the hart, cometh panting up to the channels of water, So my soul, panteth for thee, O God. ²My soul thirsteth for God, for a GOD who liveth,—When shall I enter in, and see the face of God? ³My tears have been my food day and night, While it hath been said unto me all the day, Where is thy God? ⁴These things, I keep calling to mind, and pouring out, over me, my own soul, For I used to cross over with a crowd, Lead them in procession up to the house of God, With the voice of shouting and praise.—a throng keeping festival. ⁵Why shouldst thou be cast down, O my soul? And why shouldst thou moan over me? Wait thou for God, for yet shall I praise him, As the triumph of my presence. ⁶My God! over myself, my soul is cast down,—For this cause, will I remember thee from the land of Jordan, And the Hermons, from the hill Mizar. ⁷Roaring deep unto roaring deep, is calling, at the voice of thy cataracts, All thy breakers and thy rolling waves, over me, have passed. ⁸By day, will Yahweh command his lovingkindness, And, in the night, shall His song be with me, My prayer be to the GOD of my life. ⁹I will say unto GOD,—my rock, Wherefore hast thou forgotten me? Wherefore in gloom should I go, because of oppression by the enemy? ¹⁰With a crushing of my bones, have my adversaries reproached me,—While they keep saying unto me all the day, Where is thy God? ¹¹Why shouldst thou be sat down, O my soul? And why shouldst thou moan over me? Wait thou for God, for yet shall I praise him, As the triumph of my presence and my God.

43Vindicate me, O God, and plead my cause, Against a nation, without lovingkindness, From the man of deceit and perversity, wilt thou deliver me? ²For, thou, art my defending God—Wherefore hast thou rejected me? Wherefore in gloom should I wander, because of the oppression of an enemy? ³Send forth thy light and thy faithfulness, Let, them, lead me, Let them bring me into thy holy mountain, and into thy habitations: ⁴That I may go in unto the altar of God, Unto GOD, mine exultant joy,—That I may praise thee with the lyre, O God—mine own God! ⁵Why shouldst thou be cast down, O my soul? And why shouldst thou moan over me, Wait thou for God, for yet shall I praise him, As the triumph of my presence, and my God.

44To the Chief Musician. For the Sons of Korah. An Instructive Psalm. O God! with our own ears, have we heard, Our fathers, have recounted to us,—The work thou didst work, In their day, In the days of aforetime: ²Thou thyself, with thine own hand—Didst dispossess, nations, and didst plant them, Didst break peoples in pieces, and didst spread them out: ³For, not by their own sword, gat they possession of the land, Nor did, their own arm, win victory for them,—But thine own right hand, and thine own arm, and the light of thy face, Because thou hadst accepted them. ⁴Thou thyself, art my king, O God, Command thou the victories of Jacob. ⁵By thee, will we thrust at, our adversaries, In thy Name, will we tread down our assailants; ⁶For, not in my bow, will I trust, Nor shall, my sword, give me victory; ⁷For thou hast saved us from our adversaries, And, them who hated us, hast thou put to shame. ⁸In God, have we boasted all the day, And, thy Name—unto times age-abiding, will we praise. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁹But nay thou hast rejected, and confounded us, And wilt not go forth with our hosts; ¹⁰Thou sufferest us to turn back from the adversary, And, they who hate us, have plundered at will: ¹¹Thou dost give us up like sheep to be devoured, And, amongst the nations, hast thou scattered us. ¹²Thou dost sell thy people for, no-value, And hast not made increase by their price. ¹³Thou dost make us, A reproach to our neighbours, A mockery and a derision to them who are round about us: ¹⁴Thou dost make us, A by-word among the nations,—A shaking of the head among the peoples. ¹⁵All the day, is my confusion before me, And, the shame of my face, hath covered me: ¹⁶At the voice of him who reproacheth and revileth, At the face of the foe and avenger. ¹⁷All this, hath come upon us, Yet had we not forgotten thee, Neither had we dealt falsely with thy covenant; ¹⁸Our heart had not drawn back, Nor had our goings swerved from thy path; ¹⁹That thou shouldst have crushed us down in the place of wild dogs, And covered us over with a deadly shadow. ²⁰If we had forgotten the Name of our God, And had spread forth our hands unto the GOD of the foreigner, ²¹Would not, God, have searched into this, Seeing that, he, knoweth the secrets of the heart? ²²Surely, for thy sake, have we been slain all the day, We have been accounted as sheep for slaughter. ²³Awake thou! wherefore shouldst thou sleep, O Lord? Bestir thee! do not reject us altogether! ²⁴Wherefore shouldst thou hide, thy face? Shouldst forget our humiliation and our oppression? ²⁵For our soul, sinketh down to the dust, Our body, cleaveth to the earth. ²⁶Arise to our help, And ransom us, because of thine own lovingkindness.

45To the Chief Musician. On Shoshannim. For the Sons of Korah. A Psalm of Instruction. A Song of Love. Overflowed hath my heart, with an excellent theme, I will recite my poem concerning the king, Be, my tongue, like the pen of a scribe who is skilled. ²Most beautiful thou art, beyond the sons of men, Graciousness hath been poured forth by thy lips, For this cause, hath God blessed thee, to times age-abiding. ³Gird thy sword upon thy thigh, O mighty one, 'Tis thine honour and thy majesty; ⁴And, in thy majesty, be successful! ride forth! on behalf of faithfulness, and humility—righteousness, And let thine own right hand show thee wonderful things. ⁵Thine arrows, are sharp—Peoples, under thee, fall! In the heart of the foes of the king. ⁶Thy throne, O God, is to times age-abiding and beyond, A sceptre of equity, is the sceptre of thy kingdom. ⁷Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated lawlessness,—For this cause, hath God, thine own God, anointed thee, With the oil of gladness, beyond thy partners. ⁸Myrrh and aloes, cassias, all thy garments,—Out of the palaces of ivory, the tones of strings, have rejoiced thee. ⁹Daughters of kings, are among thine honourable women, Stationed is the bride at thy right hand, in gold of Ophir. ¹⁰Hearken, O daughter, and observe, Incline also thine ear, Forget, then, thine own people, And the house of thy father; ¹¹When the king shall desire thy beauty, Surely, he, is thy lord, then bow down to him. ¹²Also, the daughter of Tyre, cometh in with a present! Thy face, shall the rich of the people appease. ¹³All glorious—the daughter of a king sitteth within, Brocades, wrought with gold, are her clothing! ¹⁴In embroidered raiment, shall she be brought unto the king—The virgins that follow her, her companions, are to be conducted unto thee: ¹⁵They shall be brought, with rejoicings and exultation,—They shall enter into the palace of the king! ¹⁶Instead of thy fathers, be thy sons, Thou shalt make them rulers in all the earth. ¹⁷I will keep in remembrance thy Name, through each succeeding generation, For this cause, peoples, shall praise thee, to times age-abiding and beyond.

46To the Chief Musician. For the Sons of Korah, on Alamoth. A Song. God—for us, is a refuge and strength, A help in distresses, soon found. ²For this cause, will we not fear, Though the earth showeth change, Or the mountains slip into the heart of the seas: ³The waters thereof roar and foam, The mountains tremble with the swelling thereof \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁴A river! whose channels, shall gladden the city of God, The Most High, hath hallowed his habitation. ⁵God, is in the midst of her, she shall not be shaken, God will help her, by the turnings of the morning. ⁶Nations have roared, Kingdoms have tottered, He hath uttered his voice, Earth melteth. ⁷Yahweh of hosts, is with us, A high tower for us, is the God of Jacob. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁸Come! view the doings of Yahweh,—Who hath set desolations in the earth; ⁹Causing wars to cease unto the end of the earth,—The bow, he shivereth, And breaketh in pieces the spear, war-chariots, burneth he up with fire. ¹⁰Let be! and know that, I, am God, I will be exalted among the nations, I will be exalted in the earth.

¹¹Yahweh of hosts, is with us, A high tower for us, is the God of Jacob. \ul1 Selah.\ul0

47To the Chief Musician. For the Sons of Korah. A Melody. All ye peoples, clap your hands, Shout unto God, with the voice of triumph; ²For, Yahweh—as Most High, is to be revered, A great king, over all the earth, ³He will subjugate, Peoples under us, and, Tribes of men beneath our feet. ⁴He chooseth for us our inheritance, The excellence of Jacob, which he hath loved. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁵God hath ascended with a shout, Yahweh, with the sound of a horn. ⁶Sing praises unto God, sing praises, Sing praises to our King, sing praises; ⁷For God is king of all the earth, Sing praises with understanding. ⁸God, hath become king, over the nations, God, hath taken his seat upon his holy throne. ⁹The willing-hearted of the peoples, have gathered themselves together, The people of the God of Abraham; For, to God, belong the shields of the earth, Greatly is he exalted.

48A Melodious Song. For the Sons of Korah. Great is Yahweh, and worthy to be mightily praised, In the city of our God, His holy mountain. ²Beautiful in elevation, the joy of all the land, Is Mount Zion, in the recesses of the north,—The city of a great king. ³God, in her palaces, is to be known as a high tower. ⁴For lo! Kings—Met as appointed, Passed by together; ⁵They themselves, saw, So, were they amazed, Dismayed—they hurried way! ⁶Trembling, seized them, there, Pangs. like hers who is in travail. ⁷With an east wind, wilt thou shatter the ships of Tarshish. ⁸Just as we have heard, So, have we see, In the city of Yahweh of hosts, In the city of our God, God himself, will establish her, unto times age-abiding. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁹We have thought, O God, upon thy lovingkindness, In the midst of thy temple: ¹⁰According to thy Name, O God, So, be thy praise, unto the ends of the earth, With righteousness, is, thy right hand, filled. ¹¹Let Mount Zion rejoice, Let the daughters of Judah exult, Because of thy judgments. ¹²Go round Zion, and compass her about, Reckon up her towers; ¹³Apply your mind to her rampart, Pass between her palaces, That ye may recount them to an after generation; ¹⁴For, this God, is our God, to times age-abiding and beyond, He himself, will conduct us till death.

49To the Chief Musician. For the Sons of Korah. A Melody. Hear ye, this all ye peoples, Give ear, all ye inhabitants of this passing world; ²Both sons of the low, And sons of the high,—Together both rich and needy:—³My mouth, shall speak forth Wisdom, And the soft utterance of my heart be Understanding: ⁴I will bend, to a by-word, mine ear, I will open, on the lyre, mine enigma. ⁵Wherefore should I fear in the days of calamity, Though the iniquity of them who lie in wait for me should enclose me? ⁶As for them who are trusting in their wealth,—And, in the abundance of their riches, do boast themselves, ⁷A brother, can none of them, redeem, he cannot give unto God a ransom for himself: ⁸So costly, is the redemption of their soul, That it faileth unto times age-abiding; ⁹That he should, yet, live on, continually, Should not see corruption. ¹⁰For it is seen that, the wise, die, Together with the dullard, and the brutish, do they perish, And leave, to others, their wealth: ¹¹Their, inward thought, is that their houses are for times age-biding, Their habitations, for generation after generation,—They give their own names unto lands! ¹²But, a son of earth, though wealthy, cannot tarry, He hath made himself a by-word—Beasts, they resemble: ¹³This, their way, is a folly to them, And yet, their followers, with their mouth, approve. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ¹⁴Like sheep—into hades, are they driven, Death shall shepherd them,—And the upright shall have dominion over them in the morning, Even their form, is to decay, Hades, is all that remaineth of a habitation for him. ¹⁵But, God, will redeem my soul, out of the hand of hades, For he will take me. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ¹⁶Do not fear, When a man becometh rich, When the glory of his house increaseth; ¹⁷For, when he dieth, he shall take, nothing, his glory shall not descend after him; ¹⁸For, though, his own self—while he lived, he used to bless, And they will praise thee, when thou doest well to thyself, ¹⁹He shall enter as far as the circle of his fathers, Nevermore, shall they see the light. ²⁰A son of earth though wealthy, who discerneth not, Hath made himself a by-word, Beasts, they resemble.

50A Melody of Asaph. El, Elohim, Yahweh, hath spoken, and culled the earth, From the rising of the sun, unto the going in thereof: ²Out of Zion the perfection of beauty, God, hath shone forth. ³Let our God come, and let him not keep silence! A fire—before him, shall devour, And, around him, hath it become exceeding tempestuous: ⁴He calleth, Unto the heavens above, And unto the earth, That he may judge his people. ⁵Gather yourselves unto me—ye my men of lovingkindness, Who have solemnised my covenant over sacrifice. ⁶Now have the heavens declared his righteousness, Because, God, is, about to judge. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁷Hear, O my people, and I will speak, O Israel, and I will adjure thee, God, thine own God, I am:—⁸Not, for thy sacrifices, will I reprove thee, Nor for thine ascending-offerings, before me continually: ⁹I will not take out of thy house—a bullock, Nor out of thy folds—he-goats; ¹⁰For, mine, is every wild-beast of the forest, The cattle on the mountains, in their thousands; ¹¹I know every bird of the mountains, And, the moving things of the plain, are with me: ¹²If I were hungry, I would not tell thee, For, mine, is the world, and the fulness thereof. ¹³Will I eat the flesh of mighty oxen? Or, the blood of he-goats, will I drink? ¹⁴Sacrifice to God a thankoffering, And pay to the Most High thy vows; ¹⁵Call upon me, then, in the day of distress, I will deliver thee, that thou mayest glorify me. ¹⁶But, to the lawless one, God saith, What hast, thou, to do, to recount my statutes? Or that thou hast taken up my covenant upon thy mouth? ¹⁷Seeing that, thou, hast hated correction, And hast cast my words behind thee; ¹⁸If thou sawest a thief, then didst thou run with him,—And, with adulterers, hath been thy chosen life; ¹⁹Thy mouth, hast thou thrust into wickedness, And, thy tongue, kept weaving deceit; ²⁰Thou wouldst sit down—Against thine own brother, wouldst thou speak, Against thine own mother's son, wouldst thou expose a fault:— ²¹These things, hast thou done, and I have kept silence, Thou thoughtest that I should really be like thyself, I will convict thee, yea I will set thine offences in order before thine eyes. ²²Understand this, I pray you, ye forgetters of GOD, Lest I tear in pieces, and there be none to deliver:— ²³He that sacrificeth a thankoffering, will glorify me,—And will prepare a way by which I may show him the salvation of God.

51To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David. When Nathan the Prophet had come to him, after he had gone in unto Bath-sheba. Be favorable unto me, O God, according to thy lovingkindness, And, in the multitude of thy compassions, blot out my transgressions; ²Thoroughly wash me from mine iniquity, And, from my sin, make me pure; ³For, my transgressions, do, I, acknowledge, And, my sin, is before me continually: ⁴Against thee—against thee alone, have I sinned, And, wickedness—in thine eyes, have I done,—That thou mayest, Be justified when thou speakest,—Be clear when thou judgest. ⁵Lo! in iniquity, was I brought forth, And, in sin, did my mother conceive me. ⁶Lo! faithfulness, hast thou desired in the inward parts, Yea, in the hidden part, wilt thou cause me to know, wisdom. ⁷Wilt thou cleanse me from sin with hyssop, That I may be pure? Wilt thou wash me, That I may be whiter, than snow? ⁸Wilt thou cause me to hear joy and gladness? The bones thou hast crushed would exult. ⁹Hide thy face from my sins,—And, all mine iniquities, blot out; ¹⁰A pure heart, create for me, O God, And, a steadfast spirit, renew within me. ¹¹Do not cast me away from thy presence, And, thy Holy Spirit, do not take from me: ¹²Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation, And, with a willing spirit, wilt thou uphold me:— ¹³I would teach transgressors thy ways, And, sinners, unto thee, should return. ¹⁴Rescue me from shed-blood, O God, the God of my salvation, My tongue should shout thy righteousness; ¹⁵O My Lord! my lips, wilt thou open, And, my mouth, shall declare thy praise. ¹⁶For thou wilt not desire sacrifice—that I should give it, Ascending-offering, will not please: ¹⁷The sacrifices of God, are a spirit that is broken,—A heart—broken and crushed, O God, thou wilt not despise. ¹⁸Do good, in thy good-pleasure, unto Zion, Wilt thou build the walls of Jerusalem! ¹⁹Then, shalt thou desire the sacrifices of righteousness, Ascending-sacrifice and whole burnt-offering, Then, shall ascend upon thine altar, young bulls.

52To the Chief Musician. A Psalm of Instruction, of David. When Doeg the Edomite went, and told Saul; and said to him,—David, hath entered the house of Ahimelech. Why dost thou boast thyself of wickedness, O mighty man? The lovingkindness of GOD, lasteth all the day. ²Engulfing ruin, doth thy tongue devise, Like a whetted razor, working deceit; ³Thou lovest Evil more than good, Falsehood, more than speaking righteousness. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁴Thou lovest all devouring words, O deceitful tongue! ⁵GOD also, will break thee down utterly, He will snatch thee up and tear thee away tentless, And uproot thee, out of the land of the living. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁶The righteous shall both see and fear, And, over him, shall laugh: ⁷Lo! the man who made not God his refuge,—But trusted in the abundance of his riches, Emboldened himself in his wealth! ⁸But, I, am like a flourishing olive-tree, in the house of God, I have put confidence in the lovingkindness of God, for times age-abiding and beyond. ⁹I will praise thee to times age-abiding, Because thou didst effectually work,—And I will wait on thy Name, Because it is good, In the presence of thy men of lovingkindness.

53To the Chief Musician. On Mahalath. A Psalm of Instruction, of David. The impious hath said in his heart, There is no God! They have acted corruptly, They have wrought abominable perversity, There is none that doeth good:— ²God, out of the heavens, looked down upon the sons of men,—To see whether there was one that showed wisdom, Enquiring after God. ³They all, have turned back, together have they become tainted,—There is none that doeth good, Not so much as, one! ⁴Are the workers of iniquity, without knowledge? Devouring my people, as they devour food? Upon God, have they not called. ⁵There have they been in great dread where no dread was, Because, God, hath scattered the bones of thy besieger,—Thou hast put him to shame, Because, God, had, rejected, them. ⁶Oh that, out of Zion, were granted the salvations of Israel! When God bringeth back the captives of his people, Jacob, shall exult, Israel, shall be glad.

54To the Chief Musician: with Stringed Instruments. A Psalm of Instruction, of David. When the Ziphites came and said unto Saul, Is not, David, hiding himself, with us? O God! by thine own Name, save me, And, by thine own strength, wilt thou vindicate me? ²O God! Hear my prayer, Give ear to the sayings of my mouth; ³For, aliens, have risen up against me, And, men of violence, have sought my life, They have not set God before them. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁴Lo! God, is bringing me help, My Lord, is with the upholders of my life; ⁵Let him turn back the mischief upon mine adversaries, In thy faithfulness, destroy them! ⁶With a freewill-offering, will I sacrifice unto thee, I will praise thy Name, O Yahweh, for it is good; ⁷For, out of all distress, hath he rescued me,—And, upon my foes, hath, mine own eye, looked.

55To the Chief Musician: with stringed Instruments. A Psalm of Instruction, of David. Give ear, O God, to my prayer, And do not hide thyself from my supplication: ²Attend unto me, and answer me, I may ramble in my complaining, And be driven to and fro— ³Because of the noise of the enemy, By reason of the oppression of the lawless one, For they would let trouble drop upon me, And, in anger, would they entrap me. ⁴My heart, would writhe within me, And, the terrors of Death, have fallen upon me: ⁵Fear and trembling, would enter me, And there would have overwhelmed me—a horror! ⁶Then I said—Oh that there were given me a pinion, like a dove, I would fly away and be at rest: ⁷Lo! I would take a distant flight, I would tarry in the wilderness. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁸I would hasten mine escape, From rushing wind, from storm. ⁹Confuse, O My Lord, divide their speech, For I have seen violence and contention in the city; ¹⁰Day and night, they go round her, upon her walls, And, trouble and misery, are in her midst; ¹¹Engulfing ruin, is in her midst, And there depart not from her Broadway, oppression and deceit. ¹²For it is, not an enemy, that reproacheth me, Or I could bear it,—Not one that hath hated me, who, against me, hath magnified himself, Or I might hide myself from him; ¹³But it is, thou, a man esteemed as mine equal, mine associate, and mine acquaintance; ¹⁴So that together have we been wont to find sweetness in counsel, In the house of God, used we to walk in the throng. ¹⁵Desolations on them! Let them go down into hades alive, For, wicked doings, are at home within them. ¹⁶I, unto God, will cry,—And, Yahweh, will save me. ¹⁷At evening and morning and high noon, have I been wont to lament and complain, And he hath heard my voice! ¹⁸He hath completely redeemed my soul, out of the attack upon me, For, in multitudes, were they in conflict with me. ¹⁹GOD will hear, Yea He will humble them who aforetime sat enthroned. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 With whom are no changings, Neither have they revered God. ²⁰He hath thrust forth his hands, against them he was wont to salute, he hath violated his covenant; ²¹Smoother than curds, were the words of his mouth, But, war, was in his heart,—Softer his words than oil, Yet, they, were drawn swords! ²²Cast upon Yahweh thy lot, and, he, will sustain thee: He will not suffer, to times age-abiding, the righteous one to be shaken. ²³But, thou, O God, wilt bring them down to the pit of destruction, Men of bloodshed and deceit, shall not live out half their days; But, I, will trust in thee.

56To the Chief Musician. Upon "The Dove of God from the distant Sea." David's. A precious Psalm. When the Philistines seized him in Gath. Show me favour, O God, For weak man hath panted for me, All the day, a fighter oppresses me: ²Mine adversaries have panted all the day, For, many, are fighting with me, loftily. ³What day I am afraid, I, unto thee will direct my confidence. ⁴In God, I wilt praise his cause,—In God, have I trusted, I will not fear, What can flesh do unto me? ⁵All the day, they wrest, my words, Against me, all their devices are for mischief; ⁶They stir up strife—they lie hid, They, mark my steps,—Seeing they have waited for my life. ⁷Because of iniquity, recompense thou them,—In anger, bring thou down, the peoples, O God. ⁸My wandering, hast, thou, recorded,—Put thou my tears in thy bottle, Are they not in thy record? ⁹Then, shall my foes turn back, in the day I cry, This, I know, for God is mine! ¹⁰In God, will I praise with good cause: In Yahweh, will I praise with good cause; ¹¹In God, have I trusted, I will not fear, What can a son of earth do unto me! ¹²Upon me, O God, are thy vows, I will pay back praises unto thee. ¹³For thou hast rescued my soul from death, Wilt thou not rescue my feet from stumbling? That I may walk to and fro, before God, In the light of life.

57To the Chief Musician. "Do not destroy." A precious Psalm, of David. When he fled from the face of Saul into the Cave. Show me favour, O God, Show me favour, For, in thee, hath my soul sought refuge,—And, in the shadow of thy wings, will I seek refuge, Until the storm of ruin pass by. ²I will cry unto God Most High, Unto GOD, who accomplisheth on my behalf: ³He will send out of heaven, that he may save me, He who is panting for me, hath reproached. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 God will send out his lovingkindness and his faithfulness. ⁴My soul, is in the midst of lions, I lie down amidst flames, As for the sons of men, Their teeth, are spear and arrows, And, their tongue, is a sharp sword. ⁵Be exalted Above the Heavens, O God, Above all the earth, thy glory! ⁶A net, did they fix for my steps, My soul was bowed down,—They digged before me a pit, They fell into the midst thereof! \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁷Fixed is my heart, O God, Fixed is my heart, I will sing, and touch the strings. ⁸Awake, mine honour, Awake, harp and lyre, I will awaken the dawn; ⁹I will thank thee, among the peoples, O My Lord, I will praise thee in song, among the races of men. ¹⁰For, great, unto the heavens, is thy lovingkindness, And, unto the skies, thy faithfulness. ¹¹Be exalted Above the heavens, O God, Above all the earth, thy glory!

58To the Chief Musician. "Do not Destroy." A precious Psalm, of David. Are ye, indeed, silent when righteousness, ye should speak? When, with equity, ye should judge, O ye sons of men? ²Aye! ye all do work, perversity,—Throughout the land, your hands, weigh out, violence! ³Lawless men have been estranged from birth, They have gone astray from their nativity, speaking falsehood; ⁴Their poison, is like unto the poison of a serpent, Like the deaf adder, that stoppeth his ear; ⁵That will not hearken to the voice of whisperers, Though the wise one try to bind him with spells. ⁶O God! break away their teeth in their mouth, The biters of the young lions, knock thou out, O Yahweh! ⁷Let such men flow away like waters that disperse themselves: He prepareth his arrow, Like grass let them be cut down: ⁸Like a snail, which melteth away as it goeth, An untimely birth of a woman, which hath not seen the sun: ⁹Before your kettles can perceive the kindled bramble, Be he green or be he withered, he shall be swept away. ¹⁰The righteous man will rejoice when he hath seen an avenging, His feet, will he bathe in the blood of the lawless one:— ¹¹So that a son of earth may say—Surely there is fruit for the righteous man! Surely there are gods who judge in the earth!

59To the Chief Musician. "Do not Destroy." A precious Psalm of David. When Saul sent, and they watched the house, to kill him. Rescue me from my foes, O my God, From them who lift themselves up against me, wilt thou set me on high: ²Rescue me, from the workers of iniquity, And, from the men of bloodshed, save me. ³For lo! they have lain in wait for my life, Mighty ones stir up strife against me, Without transgression of mine, and without sin of mine, O Yahweh; ⁴For no iniquity, do they run that they may take their stand, Rouse thyself to meet me, and see. ⁵Thou, therefore, O Yahweh, God of hosts, God of Israel, Awake, to visit all the nations, Do not show favour to any iniquitous traitors. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁶They return at evening, They grow like a dog, And go round the city. ⁷Lo! they belch forth with their mouth, Swords, are in their lips, For say they, Who doth hear? ⁸Thou, therefore, O Yahweh, wilt laugh at them, Thou wilt mock at all nations. ⁹O my Strength, unto thee, will I make melody, For, God, is my high tower. ¹⁰My God of lovingkindness, will come to meet me, God, will let me look on mine adversaries. ¹¹Do not slay them, lest my people forget, Cause them to wander by thy strength, and prostrate them, Thou our shield, O Lord! ¹²The sin of their mouth, The word of their lips, Let them then be captured in their pride, Both for the oath and for the deception they record. ¹³Bring to a full end in wrath, Bring to a full end, that they be no more,—That men may know that, God, is ruling in Jacob, Unto the ends of the earth. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ¹⁴Yet them return, then, at evening, Let them growl like a dog, And go round the city. ¹⁵They, may prowl about for food,—And, if they are not satisfied, then let them whine! ¹⁶But, I, will sing thy power, And will shout aloud, in the morning, thy lovingkindness,—For thou has become a refuge for me, And a place to flee to in the day of my distress. ¹⁷O my Strength, unto thee, will I make melody, For, God, is my high tower, my God of lovingkindness.

60To the Chief Musician. Upon "The Lily of Testimony." A precious Psalm of David, to instruct. When he waged war with Aram-neharaim, and with Aram-zobah,—and then Joab returned and smote of Edom in the Valley of Salt, twelve thousand. O God, thou hast rejected us—hast scattered us, Thou hast been angry, Wilt thou restore us? ²Thou hast shaken the land—hast rent it, Heal thou the fractures thereof—for it hath tottered: ³Thou hast suffered thy people to see hardship, Thou hast let them drink the wine of confusion. ⁴Thou hadst given—to them that revere thee—a banner, to float aloft, Because of thy faithfulness. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁵That thy beloved ones may be delivered, Save thou with thine own right hand—and answer us. ⁶God, hath spoken in his holiness—I will exult! I will apportion Shechem, And, the Vale of Succoth, will I measure out; ⁷Mine, is Gilead—and mine, Manasseh, But, Ephraim, is the defence, of my head, Judah, is my commander's staff; ⁸Moab, is my wash-bowl, Upon Edom, will I throw my shoe, Over Philistia! raise shout of triumph. ⁹Who will conduct me to fortified city? Who will lead me as far as Edom! ¹⁰Is it not, thou, O God?—thou hast rejected us! And wilt thou not go forth, O God, with our hosts? ¹¹Grant us help out of distress, For, vain, is the deliverance of man: ¹²In God, we shall do valiantly, He himself, therefore, will tread down our adversaries.

61To the Chief Musician. Upon a Stringed Instrument. David's. Hear, O God, my loud cry, Attend unto my prayer: ²From the end of the earth, unto thee do I cry, When my heart fainteth away, Unto a rock that is higher than I, wilt thou lead me. ³For thou hast been, A Refuge to me, A Tower of Strength, from the face of the foe. ⁴I would be a guest in thy tent to the ages, I would seek refuge in the concealment of thy wings. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁵For, thou, O God, hast hearkened to my vows, Thou hast granted a possession, unto them who revere thy Name. ⁶Days—unto the days of the king, wilt thou add. His years, as of generation after generation: ⁷Let him retain his seat age-abidingly before God, Appoint that, lovingkindness and faithfulness, my watch over him! ⁸So, will I sing thy Name unto futurity, Paying my vows, day by day.

62To the Chief Musician. On Jeduthun—A Melody of David. Surely, towards God, silence becometh my soul, From him, is my salvation: ²Surely, he, is my rock and my salvation, My high tower—I shall not be greatly shaken! ³How long will ye shout at a man? Ye shall be crushed all of you,—Like a wall that bulgeth,—a fence pushed in! ⁴Surely, from his elevation, they have taken counsel to thrust him down, They accept falsehood,—With his mouth, they each of them bless, But, inwardly, they revile. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁵Surely, towards God, be thou silent, my soul, For, from him, is mine expectation: ⁶Surely, he, is my rock, and my salvation, My high tower—I shall not be shaken! ⁷Upon God, depend my salvation and mine honour, My rock of strength, my refuge, are in God. ⁸Trust ye in him all ye assembly of the people, Pour out, before him, your heart, God, is a refuge for us. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁹Surely, vanity, are men of low degree, Deception, men of high degree,—In the balances, they go up, They, are made of vanity, altogether. ¹⁰Do not trust in extortion, Nor, with robbery, become vain, As for wealth, when it beareth fruit, Do not set thereon your heart. ¹¹One thing, hath God spoken, Two things, there are which I have heard, That, power, belongeth unto God; ¹²And, thine, O My Lord, is lovingkindness,—For, thou, wilt pay back unto every man—according to his deed.

63A Melody of David. When he was in the Wilderness of Judah. O God, my GOD, thou art, Earnestly do I desire thee,—My soul thirsteth for thee, My flesh fainteth for thee, In a land—dry, and weary for want of water,— ²In like manner as, in the sanctuary, I have had vision of thee, To behold thy power and thy glory. ³Because better is thy lovingkindness than life, My lips, aloud shall praise thee! ⁴Thus, will I bless thee while I live, In thy Name, will I lift up mine outspread hands: ⁵As with fatness and richness, shall my soul be satisfied, And, with joyfully shouting lips, shall my mouth utter praise. ⁶Should I call thee to mind upon my conch, In the watches of the night, would I breathe soft speech of thee. ⁷For thou hast become a help unto me,—And, in the shadow of thy wings, will I shout for joy. ⁸My soul hath run clinging to thee, On me, hath thy right hand laid hold. ⁹When, they, to crush it, would seek my life, They shall go into the lower parts of the earth: ¹⁰Every one shall be given up into the power of the sword, The portion of jackals, shall they become. ¹¹But, the king, shall rejoice in God,—Every one shall glory who sweareth by him, For the mouth of them who speak falsehood, shall be stopped.

64To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David. Hear, O God, my voice when I complain, From dread peril by the foe, wilt thou guard my life. ²Wilt thou hide me, From the conclave of evil-doers, From the crowd of workers of iniquity. ³Who have sharpened, like a sword, their tongue, Have made ready their arrow—a bitter word; ⁴To shoot, in secret places, at the blameless one, Suddenly they shoot at him, and fear not. ⁵They strengthen for them a wicked word, They talk of hiding snares, They have said, Who can see them? ⁶They devise perverse things, They have completed the device well devised, Both the intent of each one, and the mind, are unsearchable. ⁷Once let God have shot at them an arrow, Suddenly have appeared their own wounds! ⁸When they were to have ruined another, their tongue smote themselves, All who observe them take flight. ⁹Therefore have all men feared,—And have told the doing of God, And, his work, have considered. ¹⁰The righteous man shall rejoice Yahweh, and seek refuge in him, Then shall glory—all who are upright in heart.

65To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David—a song. Thine, are silence and praise, O God, in Zion,—And, to thee, shall be paid the vow. ²Thou hearer of prayer! Unto thee, shall all flesh come. ³Iniquitous things, have been too strong for me, As for our transgressions, wilt, thou, by propitiation remove them. ⁴How happy the man thou shalt choose and bring near! He shall bide in thy courts,—We shall be satisfied with, The blessing of thy house, The holiness of thy temple. ⁵By things reverend in righteousness, wilt thou answer us, O God of our salvation, The confidence of all the ends of the earth, And of the sea far away; ⁶Who setteth fast the mountains by his strength, Being girded with might; ⁷Who stilleth, The noise of the seas, The noise of their rolling waves, and The tumult of races of men? ⁸Yea the dwellers in the uttermost parts have feared at thy tokens, The goings forth of morning and evening, thou causest to shout for joy. ⁹Thou hast visited the earth, and made it abound, Abundantly, dost thou enrich it—The channel of God, is full of waters, Thou preparest their corn, Yea, thus, dost thou prepare it: ¹⁰The ridges thereof, drenching, Settling the furrows thereof, With myriad drops, dost thou soften it, The sprouting thereof, doth thou bless. ¹¹Thou hast set a crown upon thy year of bounty, And, thy tracks, drop fatness; ¹²Fruitful are the pastures of the wilderness, And, with exultation, the hills do gird themselves. ¹³Clothed are the pastures with flocks, The valleys also, cover themselves with corn, They shout for joy, yea they sing.

66To the Chief Musician. A Melodious Song. Make a joyful noise unto God, all the earth; ²Praise ye in song the glory of his Name, Celebrate the glory of his praise: ³Say unto God—How fearful in thy doings, Through the abounding of thy power, shall thy foes come cringing unto thee; ⁴All the earth, shall bow themselves down to thee, And sing praises unto thee, Shall praise in song thy Name. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁵Come and see the doings of God,—Fearful in deed toward the sons of men: ⁶He turned the sea into dry land, Through the stream, crossed they over on foot, There did we rejoice in him: ⁷Who ruleth, in his might, unto times age abiding, His eyes, over the nations, keep watch, The rebellious, let them not exalt themselves. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁸Bless our God, O ye peoples, And cause to be heard, the sound of his praise;— ⁹Who hath set our soul among the living, And hath not suffered, our foot, to slip. ¹⁰For thou didst prove us, O God, Thou didst refine us, according to the refining of silver: ¹¹Thou didst bring us into the hunter's net, Thou didst lay a load upon our loins; ¹²Thou didst let men ride at our head; We went into fire and into water, But thou didst bring us forth into freedom. ¹³I will enter thy house with ascending-sacrifices, I will pay unto thee my vows, ¹⁴Which my lips uttered, And my mouth spake, in my distress. ¹⁵Ascending-sacrifices of fatlings, will I cause to ascend unto thee, With the perfume of rams, I will offer bulls, with he-goats. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ¹⁶Come! hearken—that I may recount, all ye reverers of God, What he hath done for my soul:— ¹⁷Unto him—with my mouth, did I cry, And high praise was under my tongue. ¹⁸If, iniquity, I had cared for in my heart, My Lord, had not heard me! ¹⁹But in truth, God hath heard, He hath attended to the voice of my prayer. ²⁰Blessed be God, Who hath not turned away my prayer, Nor his own lovingkindness from me.

67To the Chief Musician. With stringed Instruments. A Melody, a Song. God, be favorable to us and bless us, Cause his face to shine upon us. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ²That thy way may be known throughout the earth, Throughout all nations, thy saving help! ³Peoples will praise thee, O God, Peoples will, all of them, praise thee, ⁴Races of men, will be glad and shout for joy, Because thou wilt judge peoples with equity, And, races of men throughout the earth, thou wilt lead. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁵Peoples will praise thee, O God,—Peoples will, all of them, praise thee. ⁶Earth, will have given her increase, God, our own God, will bless us: ⁷God, will bless us, That all the ends of the earth, may revere him.

68To the Chief Musician. David's. A Melody, a Song. Let God arise, let his enemies be scattered, Yea let them that hate him flee before him: ²As smoke is driven about, Let them be driven about,—As wax is melted before a fire, Let the lawless perish before God. ³But let, the righteous, be glad, let them exult before God, Yea let them rejoice with gladness. ⁴Sing ye to God, Make music of his Name,—Lift up (a song), to him that rideth through the waste plains,—Since Yah is his name, exult ye before him. ⁵The father of the fatherless, And the advocate of widows, Is God, in his holy habitation. ⁶God, is he that causeth the solitary to dwell in a home, That bringeth out prisoners into prosperity, But, the rebellious, have made their habitation in a sunburnt land. ⁷O God! When thou camest forth before thy people, When thou didst stride through the wilderness, \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁸Earth, trembled, Yea, the heavens, dripped at the presence of God,—This Sinai—at the presence of God, the God of Israel. ⁹A bounteous rain, dost thou shed abroad, O God, upon thine inheritance, When exhausted, thou thyself, hast supported it: ¹⁰Thy living host, have remained therein, Thou dost provide, in thy bounty, for the humbled ones—O God! ¹¹Let, My Lord, but give the word, The herald bands, will be a mighty host: ¹²Kings of armies, they flee! they flee! And, she that stayeth at home, shall share the spoil. ¹³Though ye rest between the folds, The wings of the dove, shall be covered with silver, And, her pinions, with green-shimmering gold. ¹⁴When the Almighty scattereth kings therein, It will gleam like snow in the gloom: ¹⁵A mighty mountain, is the mountain of Bashan, A mountain of peaks, is the mountain of Bashan!— ¹⁶Wherefore start ye up, ye mountains, ye peaks? The mountain God hath coveted for his habitation, Surely, Yahweh will inhabit it ever! ¹⁷The chariots of God, are two myriads—thousands repeated, My Lord, is among them Sinai, is in the sanctuary! ¹⁸Thou hast ascended on high, Thou hast led in procession a body of captives, Thou hast received gifts consisting of men, Yea even the rebellious, That, Yah, Elohim, might settle down to rest. ¹⁹Blessed be My Lord! Day by day, he beareth our burden for us, GOD himself, is our salvation. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ²⁰The GOD we have, is a GOD of saving deeds, And, due to Yahweh, My Lord, are escapes from death. ²¹Yea, God himself, will smite through the head of his foes,—The hairy crown of him that is marching on in his guilty deeds. ²²Said My Lord, From Bashan, will I bring back,—I will bring back from the depths of the sea: ²³That thou mayest bathe thy foot in blood,—The tongue of thy dogs, from the foes, hath its portion. ²⁴They have seen thy progress O God, The progress of my GOD, my king into the sanctuary: ²⁵In front are the singers, Behind are the harpers, In the midst of damsels playing on timbrels: ²⁶In the congregations, bless ye God, My Lord, from among the called of Israel: ²⁷There, is Benjamin, the Diminutive—ruling them, The princes of Judah—their throng, The princes of Zebulun, The princes of Naphtali. ²⁸Thy God hath commanded thy strength,—The strength, O God, which thou hast wrought for us. ²⁹Because of thy temple above Jerusalem, Unto thee, shall kings bear along a gift— ³⁰Rebuke thou, The wild beast of the reeds, The herd of mighty oxen among the calves of the peoples—Each one bowing down with bars of silver,—Scatter thou the peoples, who in wars take delight. ³¹Ambassadors come out of Egypt, The Ethiopian, eagerly stretcheth out his hands, unto God. ³²Ye kingdoms of the earth, sing unto God, Praise in song Adonay. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ³³Unto him that rideth upon the most ancient heavens, Lo! he uttereth his voice, a voice of strength. ³⁴Ascribe ye strength unto God,—Over Israel, is his majesty, And his strength, in the skies. To be revered is God, for his sanctuary,— ³⁵As for the GOD of Israel, he, is giving strength and abundant might to the people. Blessed be God!

69To the Chief Musician. On "The Lilies." David's. Save me, O God, For waters have entered as far as the life; ²I have sunk in deep swamp, Where there is no place to stand, I have come into abysses of waters, Where a flood hath overflowed me; ³I am weary with mine outcry, Parched is my throat,—Mine eyes have become dim, through waiting for my God. ⁴More than the hairs of my head, Are they who hate me without cause,—Firmer than my bones, Are they who are my foes for false cause,—What

I had not plundered, then, had I to restore. ⁵O God, thou, hast known my folly, And, my wrong-doings, from thee, have not been hid. ⁶Let them not be ashamed, through me, Who have waited for thee, O My Lord, Yahweh of hosts,—Let them not be confounded, through me, Who are seeking thee, O God of Israel! ⁷Because, for thy sake, have I borne reproach, Confusion hath covered my face; ⁸One estranged, have I become, to my own brethren, Yea, an alien, to the sons of my own mother; ⁹Because, zeal for thy house, hath eaten me up, And, the reproaches of them who have reproached thee, have fallen upon me. ¹⁰When I have humbled my soul with fasting, Then hath it turned to my reproach; ¹¹When I have made my clothing of sackcloth, Then have I served them for a by-word; ¹²They who sit in the gate talk against me,—And against me are the songs of them who imbibe strong drink. ¹³But, as for me, my prayer shall be unto thee, O Yahweh, in a time of acceptance, O God, in the abounding of thy lovingkindness, answer me with thy saving faithfulness. ¹⁴Rescue me out of the mire, lest I sink, Let me be rescued, From my haters, and, From abysses of waters: ¹⁵Let not a flood of waters overflow me, And let not the depth swallow me up, Neither let the well close, over me, her mouth. ¹⁶Answer me, O Yahweh, for good is thy lovingkindness, According to the abounding of thy compassions, turn thou towards me: ¹⁷Then do not hide thy face from thy servant, Because I am in distress, haste thou—answer me! ¹⁸Oh draw near unto my soul—redeem it, Because of mine enemies, ransom me. ¹⁹Thou, knowest my reproach, and my shame, and my confusion, Before thee, are all mine adversaries. ²⁰Reproach hath broken my heart, and I am weak,—Though I waited for one to pity me, yet there was none, And for comforters, yet I found not any. ²¹But they put in my food—poison! And, for my thirst, they gave for my drink—vinegar! ²²Let their table, before them, become a snare, And unto their friends, a lure; ²³Let their eyes become too dim to see, And, their loins, continually cause thou to shake; ²⁴Pour out over them thine indignation, And let, the glow of thine anger, overtake them: ²⁵Let their encampment become desolate, In their tents, be there none to dwell: ²⁶For, whom, thou thyself, hadst smitten, they pursued, And, unto the pain of thy wounded ones, they must needs add. ²⁷Lay punishment on their iniquity, And let them not enter into thy righteousness; ²⁸Let them be blotted out of the book of life, And, with the righteous, let them not be enrolled. ²⁹I, then, am humbled and in pain, Thy salvation, O God, may it set me on high. ³⁰I will praise the Name of God with a song, And will magnify him with thanksgiving; ³¹So shall it be more pleasing to Yahweh than a bullock of the herd, Showing horn and divided hoof. ³²The humbled have seen—they rejoice! Ye seekers of God, let your heart, then, revive; ³³For, a Harkener to the needy, is Yahweh, And, his prisoners, hath he not despised. ³⁴Let the heavens and the earth, praise him, The seas, and everything that creepeth therein. ³⁵For, God, will save Zion, And build the cities of Judah, So shall men dwell there, and possess it: ³⁶Yea, the seed of his servants, shall inherit it, And, the lovers of his Name, shall settle down therein.

70To the Chief Musician. David's. To call to Remembrance. Be pleased O God, to rescue me, O Yahweh, to help me—make haste. ²Let them turn pale and then at once blush, Who are seeking my life,—Let them draw back, and be confounded, Who are taking pleasure in my misfortune; ³Let them turn back, on account of their own shame, Who are saying, Aha! Aha! ⁴Let all them be glad and rejoice in thee, Yea, let them, who are seekers of thee,—say continually, God be magnified! Who are lovers of thy salvation. ⁵But, I, being humbled and needy, O God, haste to me,—My help and my deliverer, art thou, O Yahweh do not tarry.

71In thee, O Yahweh, have I sought refuge, May I not be ashamed unto times age-abiding: ²In thy righteousness, wilt thou rescue me, and deliver me, Incline unto me thine ear, and save me: ³Be thou unto me, a Rock to dwell in, a Place of Security, To save me, For, my mountain crag and my stronghold, thou art. ⁴Oh my God, deliver me, From the hand of the lawless one, From the clutch of the perverse and ruthless one; ⁵For, thou, art my hope, My Lord, Yahweh, My confidence from my youthful days: ⁶Upon thee, have I stayed myself from birth, Thou art he that severed me, from the body of my mother, Of thee, shall be my praise—continually. ⁷A very wonder, have I been unto many, Seeing that, thou, hast been my strong refuge, ⁸My mouth shall be filled with, thy praise, All the day, with thy splendour. ⁹Do not cast me off in the time of old age, When my vigour faileth, do not forsake me; ¹⁰For mine enemies have spoken of me, And, they who watch for my life, have taken counsel together; ¹¹Saying, God, hath forsaken him, Pursue and take him, For there is none to rescue. ¹²O God, be not far from me, O my God, to help me, make haste! ¹³Let them be ashamed—be consumed, Who are assailing my life,—Let them be covered with reproach and confusion, Who are seeking my hurt. ¹⁴But, I, continually will hope, And will add to all thy praise; ¹⁵My month, shall relate thy righteousness, All the day, thy deliverance, For I know not the numbers. ¹⁶I will enter into the mighty doings of My Lord—Yahweh, I will make mention of thy righteousness—thine alone. ¹⁷O God, thou hast taught me from my youthful days, And, hitherto, have I been wont to tell of thy wonders; ¹⁸Even now, therefore, that I am old and grayheaded, O God, do not forsake me,—Until I tell of thine arm unto a new generation, Unto every one that is to come, thy might; ¹⁹And, as for thy righteousness, O God, up on high, Wherein thou hast wrought great things, O God! who is like unto thee? ²⁰Thou who hast let us see many distresses and misfortunes, Wilt gain bring us to life,

And, out of the resounding depths of the earth, wilt again raise us up; ²¹Thou wilt increase my greatness, And, on every side, wilt comfort me. ²²I also, will praise thee by the aid of a harp, Thy faithfulness, O my God,—I will make music unto thee with a lyre, Thou holy one of Israel; ²³My lips shall make a joyful noise, When I make music unto thee, And my soul which thou hast ransomed; ²⁴Even my tongue, all the day, shall softly utter thy righteousness, For they have turned pale—for they have blushed, Who were seeking my hurt.

72 Solomon's. O God! thy justice, give, unto the king, And thy righteousness, unto the son of a king; ²May he judge, Thy people with righteousness; And thine oppressed ones with justice; ³May the mountains bring peace to the people, And the hills be laden with righteousness; ⁴May he, Vindicate the oppressed of the people, Bring deliverance to the children of the needy, and, Crush the oppressor. ⁵Let men revere thee, With the sun, And in presence of the moon, Unto the remotest generation. ⁶Let him come down, Like rain on fields to be mown, Like myriad drops on land to be reaped. ⁷May righteousness, in his days, blossom forth, And abundance of peace, till there be no moon. ⁸So let him have dominion, From sea to sea, And from the River unto the ends of the earth; \fs15 ⁹Before him, let the men of the desert kneel, But, as for his foes, the dust, let them lick; ¹⁰The kings of Tarshish and of the Coastlands, A gift, let them render, The kings of Sheba and Seba, A present, let them bring; ¹¹Yea let all kings, bow down unto him, Let, all nations, serve him; ¹²Because he Rescueth, The needy from the rich, The oppressed, who hath no helper; ¹³He Pitieth the weak and the needy, And, the lives of the needy, he Saveth: ¹⁴From extortion, and, violence, he Redeemeth their life, And precious is their flood in his sight. ¹⁵Let him live, then! And be there given unto him of the gold of Sheba,—Let prayer also be offered for him continually, All the day, let him be blessed. ¹⁶May there be an abundance of corn in the earth, in the top of the mountains,—Let the fruit thereof, wave like Lebanon, And they of the city bloom like the fresh shoots of the earth. ¹⁷May his Name he age-abiding, In the presence of the sun, let his Name flourish,—And may all the families of the ground bless themselves in him, All nations, pronounce him happy! ¹⁸Blessed be Yahweh God, the God of Israel,—Who doeth wondrous things by himself alone; ¹⁹And blessed be his glorious Name, unto times ago-abiding,—And filled with his glory be all the earth, Amen and Amen! ²⁰Ended are the prayers of David, son of Jesse.

73 \ul1 BOOK THE THIRD\ul0 A Melody of Asaph. Nothing but good, is God, Unto Israel, Unto the pure in heart. ²But, as for me,—My feet had, almost stumbled, My steps had, well-nigh slipped; ³For I was envious of the

boasters, At the prosperity of the lawless, used I to look. ⁴For they have no pangs in their death, And vigorous is their body; ⁵Of the toil of weak mortals, have they none, Nor, with the sons of earth, are they hard smitten. ⁶For this cause, doth arrogance deck them as a neck-chain, And a garment of wrong is their attire; ⁷Their iniquity, hath proceeded from fatness, They have surpassed the imaginations of the heart; ⁸They mock, and wickedly command oppression, From on high, they command; ⁹They have set, in the heavens, their mouth, And, their tongue, marcheth through the earth. ¹⁰Therefore must his people return thither, And, the waters of abundance, are drained by them; ¹¹And they say—How doth GOD know? And is there knowledge in the Most High? ¹²Lo! these, are the lawless, Who are secure for an age, They have attained unto wealth. ¹³Altogether in vain, Have I cleansed my heart, And bathed in pureness, my hands; ¹⁴And yet been smitten all the day, And been rebuked morning by morning! ¹⁵If I had thought, I will relate it thus, Lo! the circle of thy sons, had I betrayed. ¹⁶When I reasoned, that I might understand this, A vexation, it was in mine eyes: ¹⁷Until I could enter the holy places of God,—Could give heed to their hereafter:—¹⁸Surely, in slippery places, dost thou set them,—Thou hast suffered them to fall into places of danger. ¹⁹How have they become desolate, as in a moment! They have ceased—come to an end, by reason of calamities. ²⁰As the dream of him that waketh, O my Lord! when rousing thyself up, their shadowy being, wilt thou despise. ²¹But my heart had grown embittered, And, in my reins, had I received wounds; ²²But, I, was brutish, and could not perceive, Like the beasts, had I become before thee. ²³Nevertheless, I, am continually before thee, Thou hast taken hold of my right hand; ²⁴By thy counsel, wilt thou guide me, And, afterwards, unto glory, wilt thou take me. ²⁵Whom have I in the heavens? And, compared with thee, there is nothing I desire on earth. ²⁶Failed have my flesh and my heart, The rock of my heart—and my portion, is God unto times age-abiding. ²⁷For lo! they who are far from thee, shall perish, Thou hast put an end to every one who wandered unchastely from thee. ²⁸But, as for me, the drawing near of God, is my blessedness,—I have made, of My Lord Yahweh, my refuge,—That I may recount all thy works.

74 An Instructive Psalm. Asaph's. Wherefore, O God, hast thou cast off utterly? Shall thine anger smoke against the flock of thine own pasturing? ²Remember thine own assembly thou didst acquire aforetime, Thou didst redeem the tribe of thine own inheritance, Mount Zion, wherein thou didst take up thy habitation. ³Lift up thy steps unto the places utterly unsafe, All the mischief!—the foe in the sanctuary! ⁴Thine adversaries have roared in the midst of thine appointed meeting, They have set their ensigns as tokens! ⁵One used to be known according as he carried up high—into the thicket of trees—the axes; ⁶But, now, the doors thereof all together, with axes and hammers, they batter down. ⁷They have cast, into the fire, thy sanctuary, To the ground, have they profaned the habitation of thy Name. ⁸They have said in their heart, Let us suppress them altogether, They have burned up all the meeting-places of GOD in the land. ⁹Our own signs, have we not seen,—There is no longer a prophet,—Neither is there with us, one who knoweth—How long! ¹⁰How long, O God, shall the adversary, reproach? Shall the enemy revile thy Name perpetually? ¹¹Wherefore shouldst thou withdraw thy hand—thy right hand? Bring it out of the midst of thy bosom! \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ¹²But, God, hath been my king from aforetime, Working Deliverances in the midst of the earth. ¹³Thou, didst cleave asunder, in thy might, the sea, Thou didst break in pieces the heads of the Crocodiles, till they floated on the waters; ¹⁴Thou, didst crush the heads of the Sea-Monster, Thou didst give him to be food, for the people of the deserts; ¹⁵Thou, didst cleave open fountain and torrent, Thou, didst dry up rivers of steady flow: ¹⁶Thine, is the day, Yea, thine, the night, Thou, didst establish moon and sun; ¹⁷Thou, didst set up all the bounds of the earth, As for summer and winter, thou, didst form them! ¹⁸Remember this, An enemy, hath reproached Yahweh, Yea, an impious people, have reviled thy Name. ¹⁹Do not deliver up, to a wild beast, the life of thy turtle-dove, The living host of thine oppressed ones, do not forget perpetually. ²⁰Have respect to thy covenant, For the dark places of the earth are full of the habitations of violence. ²¹May the crushed one not again be confounded, As for the oppressed and the needy, let them praise thy Name. ²²Arise! O God, plead thine own cause, Remember the reproach of thee, from the impious one, all the day: ²³Do not forget the voice of thine adversaries, The noise of thine assailants, ascending continually.

75To the Chief Musician. "Do not Destroy." A Melody of Asaph, a Song. We have given thanks unto thee, O God, we have given thanks, And, in calling upon thy Name, men have recounted thy wonders. ²Surely I will take a set time,—I, with equity, will judge: ³Earth was melting away with all its inhabitants, I, have fixed the pillars thereof. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁴I have said to the boasters, Do not boast, And to the lawless, Do not lift up a horn; ⁵Do not lift up on high your horn, Nor speak of the Rock, with arrogance; ⁶For neither from east nor west, Nor from the wilderness of thee mountains cometh exaltation; ⁷For, God himself, is about to judge, One, he will cast down, Another, he will lift up; ⁸For, a cup, is in the hand of Yahweh, Whose wine is foaming, It is full of spiced wine, Which he hath caused to flow from one to another,—Surely, the dregs thereof, they shall drain out—they shall drink, Even all the lawless ones of the earth. ⁹But, I, will exult unto times age-abiding, I will sing praises unto the God of Jacob; ¹⁰But, all the horns of the lawless, will I hew off,—Exalted shall be the horns of the Righteous One.

76To the Chief Musician. With Stringed Instruments. A Melody of Asaph, a Song. God is, known in Judah, In Israel, great is his Name; ²Now hath come into Salem, his pavilion, And his dwelling-place into Zion. ³There, hath he broken in pieces the arrows of the bow, shield and sword, and battle. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁴Enveloped in light, thou, art more majestic than the mountains of prey. ⁵The valiant of heart have become a spoil, They have slumbered their sleep, And none of the men of might have found their hands. ⁶At thy rebuke, O God of Jacob, Stunned are the horsemen. ⁷As for thee, to be feared thou art! Who then shall stand before thee, because of the power of thine anger? ⁸Out of the heavens, didst thou cause judgment to be heard, Earth, feared and was still: ⁹When God rose up to judgment, To save all the oppressed of the earth. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ¹⁰For the multitude of mankind shall give thanks unto thee, The remainder of the multitude, shall keep holy festival unto thee. ¹¹Vow and pay, unto Yahweh your God,—Let, all who are round about him, bear along a gift unto him who is to be revered. ¹²He cutteth off the spirit of nobles, he is of reverend majesty to the kings of the earth.

77To the Chief Musician. On "Jeduthun." Asaph's, a Melody. With my voice—unto God, will I make outcry, With my voice unto God, and he will give ear unto me; ²In the day of my distress—unto My Lord, will I seek, My hand, by night, hath been outstretched and never once became slack, My soul, hath refused to be consoled; ³I remember God and I murmur, I muse, and my spirit swooneth. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁴Thou hast held, watching, mine eyes, I was driven to and fro, and could not speak; ⁵I reasoned, Of the days of aforetime, Of the years of by-gone ages; ⁶I remember my song in the night,—With my own heart, I commune, And my spirit, maketh search:— ⁷For ages, will My Lord reject? And, not again, grant acceptance any more? ⁸Hath his lovingkindness, come to a perpetual end? Hath his word failed to generation after generation? ⁹Hath GOD, forgotten to show favour? Or hath he shut up, in anger, his compassions? \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ¹⁰Then said I—An affliction to me, it is, The changing of the right hand of the Most High. ¹¹I will remember the doings of Yah, Surely I will remember, out of aforetime, thy wonderful way; ¹²And will talk to myself of all thy work, And, of thy doings, will I muse:— ¹³O God, in the sanctuary, is thy way,—Who is a great GOD like Elohim? ¹⁴Thou, art GOD, doing wonderfully,—Thou hast made known, among the peoples, thy might; ¹⁵Thou didst redeem, with thine arm—Thy people, Thy sons of Jacob and Joseph. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ¹⁶The waters saw thee, O God, The waters saw thee, They were in birth-throes, Yea

the resounding deeps were stirred; ¹⁷The clouds, poured down waters, The skies uttered, a voice, Yea, thine arrows, flew hither and thither; ¹⁸The, voice of thy thunder, was in the whirlwind, Thy lightnings illumined the world, The earth, trembled and quaked; ¹⁹In the sea, was thy way, And, thy path, in the mighty waters, And, thy footprints, could not be known: ²⁰Thou didst lead, like a flock, thy people, By the hand of Moses and Aaron.

78An Instructive Psalm. Asaph's. Give ear, O my people, to mine instruction, Bend your ear to the sayings of my mouth; ²I will open, in a parable, my mouth, I will pour forth enigmas out of antiquity;— ³Which we have heard, and come to know, And, our fathers, have recounted to us; ⁴We will not withhold them from their children, To a later generation, recounting the praises of Yahweh, Even his might and his wonders which he wrought; ⁵When he set up a testimony in Jacob, And, a law, appointed in Israel,— Which he commanded our fathers, That they might make them known to their children; ⁶To the end, A later generation, might come to know, Children who should be born, Who should arise, and recount them to their children; ⁷That they might set, in Elohim, their confidence,— And not forget the doings of El, But, his commandments, might observe; ⁸And not become, like their fathers, a generation stubborn and rebellious,—A generation that fixed not their heart, Neither was their spirit, faithful with GOD. ⁹The sons of Ephraim—armed bowmen, Turned in the day of battle; ¹⁰They kept not the covenant of God, And, in his law, refused to walk; ¹¹And forgot His doings, And his wonders which he had showed them: ¹²In presence of their fathers, wrought he, wondrously,—In the land of Egypt—the field of Zoan: ¹³He clave the sea, and caused them to pass through, And reared up the waters like a mound; ¹⁴And led them, by a cloud, in the daytime, And all the night, by a light of fire; ¹⁵He used to cleave rocks in the desert, And let them drink as out of mighty deeps; ¹⁶And he brought forth streams out of the cliff, And caused waters to flow down, like rivers. ¹⁷But again, once more sinned they against him, Resisting the Most High in a land of drought: ¹⁸They put GOD to the proof in their heart, By asking food to their mind: ¹⁹Yea they spake against Elohim,—They said, Can GOD prepare a table in the desert? ²⁰Lo! he hath smitten a rock, And waters, have gushed out, Yea, torrents, have rushed along,—Food also, can he give? Or provide flesh for his people? ²¹Therefore, Yahweh hearkened, and became wroth,—And, a fire, was kindled against Jacob, Moreover also, anger, mounted against Israel; ²²Because, They believed not in God, Nor trusted in his salvation; ²³Though he had commanded the skies above, And, the doors of the heavens, had opened; ²⁴And had rained on them manna to eat, And, the corn of the heavens, had given to them: ²⁵The food of the mighty, each one did eat, Nourishment, sent he them to the full; ²⁶He let loose an east wind in the heavens, Then guided he, in his might, a south wind; ²⁷And rained upon them flesh as the dust, And, like the sand of the seas, birds of wing; ²⁸And let them fall in the midst of their camp,—Round about their habitations. ²⁹So they did eat and were abundantly filled, When, what they longed for, he had brought them:— ³⁰They had not turned away from what they had longed for, Yet was their food in their mouth, ³¹When, the anger of God, mounted against them, And he slew of their vigorous youths, And, the choice young men of Israel, caused he to bow down in death. ³²For all this, sinned they still, And believed not in his wonders; ³³So he ended, in a breath, their days, And their years, in a sudden terror! ³⁴If he slew of them, then they sought him, Yea they turned, and did earnestly seek GOD; ³⁵And remembered that, Elohim, was their rock, Yea, EL Most High, their Redeemer: ³⁶So they spake him fair with their mouth, And, with their tongue, did promise him falsely; ³⁷But, their heart, was not fixed with him, Nor were they trusty in his covenant: ³⁸Yet, he, full of compassion, would put a propitiatory-covering over iniquity, and not destroy,—Yea, many a time, turned he back his anger, And would not stir up all his wrath. ³⁹So then he remembered, That, Flesh, they were, A Wind departing, that returneth not. ⁴⁰How often they, Resisted him in the desert, Vexed him, in the waste: ⁴¹Yea they again put GOD to the test, And, to the Holy One of Israel, caused they sorrow: ⁴²They remembered not his hand—The day, When he ransomed them from the adversary; ⁴³When he set, in Egypt, his signs, And his wonders, in the plain of Zoan; ⁴⁴When he turned, into blood, their Nile-streams, And, their own rivers, could they not drink; ⁴⁵He sent among them, The gad-fly, and it devoured them, And the frog, and it despoiled them; ⁴⁶When he gave to the corn-locust their produce, And their toil, to the swarming locust; ⁴⁷He killed, with hail, their vine, And their sycamores, with frost: ⁴⁸When he gave up, to hail-storms, their beasts, And their cattle, to pestilent fevers; ⁴⁹He sent among them the heat of his anger, Wrath and indignation and distress,—A mission of messengers of misfortune: ⁵⁰He leveled a path for his anger, Withheld not, from death, their soul, But, their life—to the pestilence, he delivered: ⁵¹So he smote, Every first-born in Egypt, The beginning of their strength, in the tents of Ham; ⁵²And he set forth, like sheep, his people, And guided them, like a flock in the desert; ⁵³Yea he led them securely, and they dreaded not, And, their enemies, the sea did cover. ⁵⁴Then brought he them within his own holy bounds, The mountain-range, which his right hand made his own: ⁵⁵So he drave out, before them, whole nations, And allotted them, by line, an inheritance, And caused to dwell, in their own homes, the tribes of Israel. ⁵⁶But they tested and resisted God Most High, And, his testimonies, did not observe; ⁵⁷But drew back and dealt treacherously, like their fathers, They turned aside, like deceitful bowmen; ⁵⁸And provoked him to anger with their high places, And, with their images, used to move him to jealousy. ⁵⁹God heard and was wroth, And greatly abhorred Israel; ⁶⁰So he gave up the habitation of Shiloh, The tent he had set up among Men; ⁶¹Yea he gave up, into captivity, his strength, And his beauty into the hand of an adversary; ⁶²And delivered up, to the sword, his people, And, with his own inheritance, was he wroth; ⁶³His young men, were devoured by fire, And, his virgins, were not praised in song; ⁶⁴His priests, by the sword, did fall, And, his widows, were not able to bewail. ⁶⁵Then awoke, as one that had slept, Adonay, As a warrior exulting with wine! ⁶⁶So he smote his adversaries in the rear, Reproach age-abiding, laid he upon them. ⁶⁷Howbeit he rejected the tent of Joseph, And, the tribe of Ephraim, did not choose: ⁶⁸But made choice of the tribe of Judah, The mountain of Zion, which he loved; ⁶⁹And built, like the heights, his sanctuary, Like the earth, he founded it to times age-abiding. ⁷⁰And made choice of David his servant, And took him from among the folds of the sheep: ⁷¹From after the sucking ewes, he brought him in,—To be shepherd to Jacob his people, And to Israel, his inheritance. ⁷²So he did shepherd them, according to the singleness of his heart, And, with the discernment of his hands, used he to guide them.

79A Melody of Asaph. O God, nations, Have entered thine inheritance, Have profaned thy holy temple,—Have laid Jerusalem in heaps: ²They have given, The dead bodies of thy servants, As food for the birds of the heavens, The flesh of thy men of lovingkindness, Unto the wild beast of the earth: ³They have poured out their blood like water, Round about Jerusalem, With none to bury. ⁴We have become, A reproach to our neighbours,—A mockery and a derision, to them who are round about us. ⁵How long, O Yahweh, wilt thou be angry utterly? Shall thy jealousy, burn like fire? ⁶Pour out thy wrath, Upon the nations that have not known thee—and, Upon the kingdoms that, on thy Name, have not called. ⁷For he hath devoured Jacob,—And, his dwelling-place, have they laid waste. ⁸Do not remember against us former iniquities,—Haste thee, let thy compassions, come to meet us, For we have been brought very low! ⁹Help us, O God of our salvation, on account of the glory of thy Name,—Rescue us then, and put a propitiatory-covering over our sins, For the sake of thy Name. ¹⁰Wherefore should the nations say—Where is their God? Let him be known among the nations before our eyes! Yea! By the avenging of the blood of thy servants which hath been shed! ¹¹Let the groaning of the prisoner, come in before thee,—According to the greatness of thine arm, Set free them who are appointed to death. ¹²Return, therefore, unto our neighbours—Sevenfold, into their own bosom, The reproach wherewith they have reproached thee, O Adonay! ¹³So, we, thy people, and the sheep of thy pasture, will give thanks unto thee, to times age-abiding,—To generation after generation, will we re-

80To the Chief Musician. For "the Lilies of Testimony." Asaph's. A Melody. O Shepherd of Israel, give ear, Thou who leddest forth Joseph like a rock, Thou who art throned on the cherubim, appear! ²Before Ephraim and Benjamin and Manasseh, stir up thy strength, And come! to our salvation. ³O God, bring us back, And light up thy face, That we may be saved. ⁴O Yahweh, God of hosts! How long hast thou been wroth with the prayer of thy people? ⁵Thou hast fed them with the food of tears, And hast caused them to drink the water of weeping in threefold abundance. ⁶Thou dost make us an object of contention to our neighbours, And, our foes, find mockery for themselves. ⁷O God of hosts, bring us back, And light up thy face, That we may be saved. ⁸A vine out of Egypt, thou didst remove, Thou didst cast out nations, and plant it; ⁹Thou didst make a clear space before it, So it rooted well its roots, and filled up the land; ¹⁰Covered were the mountains with its shade, And, with its boughs, the mighty cedars. ¹¹It thrust forth its branches as far as the sea,—And, unto the River, its shoots. ¹²Wherefore hast thou broken down its fences, So that all who pass along the way, pluck its fruit? ¹³The boar out of the forest, browseth upon it, And, the wild beast of the field, pastureth thereon. ¹⁴O God of hosts, return, we pray thee,—Look down out of the heavens, and see, And inspect this vine: ¹⁵Yea the stock which thy right hand planted, Even upon the son thou didst secure for thyself. ¹⁶To be burned with fire, it is cut down,—At the rebuke of thy countenance, they will perish. ¹⁷Let thy hand be, Upon the Man of thy right hand, Upon the Son of Man thou didst secure for thyself; ¹⁸So will we not draw back from thee, Thou wilt bring us to life, And, on thy Name, will we call. ¹⁹O Yahweh, God of hosts! bring us back, Light up thy face, That we may be saved.

81To the Chief Musician. On "the Gittith." Asaph's. Shout ye for joy, unto God our strength, Sound the note of triumph, to the God of Jacob; ²Raise a melody, and strike the timbrel, The lyre so sweet, with the harp: ³Blow, at the new moon, the horn, At the full moon, for the day of our sacred festival: ⁴For, a statute to Israel, it is, A regulation, by the God of Jacob; ⁵A testimony in Joseph, he appointed it, When he went forth over the land of Egypt: A language I liked not, used I to hear; ⁶I took away, from the burden, his shoulder, his hands, from the clay, were set free. ⁷In distress, thou didst cry, and I delivered thee,—I answered thee, within a hiding-place of thunder, I proved thee by the waters of Meribah. \u01 Selah.\u00 ⁸Hear, O my people, and I will adjure thee, O Israel, if thou wilt hearken unto me! ⁹There shall not be, within thee, a foreign GOD,—Neither shalt thou bow down to a strange GOD: ¹⁰I, Yahweh, am thy God, Who brought thee up out of the land of Egypt,—Open wide thy mouth, that I may fill it. ¹¹But my people, hearkened not, unto my voice, Even, Israel, inclined not unto me. ¹²So then I let them go on in the stubbornness of their own heart, — They might walk in their own counsels! ¹³If, my people, were hearkening unto me, If, Israel, in my ways, would walk, ¹⁴Right soon, their foes, would I subdue, And, against their adversaries, would I turn my hand: ¹⁵The haters of Yahweh, should come cringing unto him, Then let their own good time be age-abiding! ¹⁶Then would he feed them from the marrow of the wheat, Yea, out of the rock—with honey, would I satisfy thee.

83A Song, a Melody of Asaph. O God, Do not keep quiet, Do not hold thy peace, Neither be thou still, O GOD! ²For lo! thine enemies, are tumultuous, And, they who hate thee, have lifted up the head; ³Against thy people, they craftily devise a secret plot, And conspire against thy treasured ones. ⁴They have said—Come, and let us wipe them out from being a nation, That the name of Israel may be remembered no more. ⁵For they have taken counsel with one heart, Against thee—a covenant, would they solemnize— ⁶The tents of Edom, and the Ishmaelites, of Moab and the Hagarenes; ⁷Gebal and Ammon, and Amalek, The Philistines, with the dwellers in Tyre; ⁸Even Assyria hath joined herself with them, They have become an arm to the sons of Lot. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁹Make them like Midian, like Sisera, like Jabin, by the torrent of Kishon; ¹⁰They perished at En-dor, They become manure for the soil! ¹¹Make them—their nobles—like Oreb and like Zeeb, And, like Zebah and like Zalmunna, all their princes: ¹²Who said—Let us take a possession for ourselves, The pastures of God! ¹³O my God, make them, As whirling dust, As chaff before a wind; ¹⁴As a fire burneth a forest,—And as a flame setteth mountains ablaze, ¹⁵So, wilt thou pursue them with thy tempest,—And, with thy storm-wind, wilt terrify them: ¹⁶Fill thou their faces with dishonour, That men may seek thy Name, O Yahweh; ¹⁷Let them turn pale, and be terrified to futurity, Yea let them blush, and perish: ¹⁸That men may know that, thou, Whose Name alone is Yahweh, Art Most High over all the earth.

84To the Chief Musician. On "the Gittith." For the Sons of Korah. A Melody. How lovely are thy habitations, O Yahweh of hosts! ²My soul, longeth—yea even languisheth—for the courts of Yahweh,—My heart and my flesh, shout aloud for a Living GOD. ³Even the sparrow, hath found a home, And, the swallow, a nest for herself, where she hath laid her young, Thine altars, O Yahweh of hosts, My king and my God! ⁴How happy are they who abide in thy house,—Still are they praising thee. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁵How happy the men whose strength is in thee, Festive processions are in their heart. ⁶Passing through the balsam-vale, A place of fountains, they make it, Yea, with blessings, is it covered by the early rain. ⁷They go from strength to strength, Each one appeareth before God in Zion. ⁸O Yahweh, God of hosts, hear thou my prayer,—Give hear, thou God of Jacob. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁹Our Shield, behold thou, O God, And look upon the face of thine Anointed One. ¹⁰For better is a day in thy courts, than a thousand, I choose rather to stand at the threshold in the house of my God, Than to dwell in the tents of lawlessness. ¹¹For, a sun and shield, is Yahweh God,—Grace and glory, will Yahweh give, He will not withhold what is good, from them who walk without blame. ¹²O Yahweh of hosts! How happy the man who trusteth in thee!

85To the Chief Musician. For the Sons of Korah. A Melody. Thou hast accepted, O Yahweh, thy land, Thou hast brought back the captives of Jacob; ²Thou hast taken away, the iniquity of thy people, Thou hast covered, all their sin. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ³Thou hast withdrawn all thine indignation, Thou hast ceased from the glow of thine anger. ⁴Restore us, O God of our salvation, And take away thy vexation towards us. ⁵To times age-abiding, wilt thou be angry with us? Wilt thou prolong thine anger, from generation to generation? ⁶Wilt not, thou thyself, again give us life, That, thy people, may rejoice in thee. ⁷Show us, O Yahweh, thy lovingkindness, And, thy salvation, wilt thou grant us. ⁸I will hear, what GOD—Yahweh—will speak,—For he will bespeak prosperity to his people, And to his men of lovingkindness, And to them who return with their heart unto him. ⁹Surely, near unto them who revere him, is his salvation, That the Glory, may settle down, in our land. ¹⁰Lovingkindness and faithfulness, have met together, Righteousness and prosperity, have kissed each other; ¹¹Faithfulness, out of the earth, doth spring forth, And, righteousness, out of the heavens, hath looked down. ¹²Yahweh himself too, will give us the blessing, And, our land, shall yield her increase. ¹³Righteousness, before him, shall march long,—That he may make, into a way, the steps of its feet.

servant, O thou my God, Thy servant who trusteth in thee; ³Show me favour, O My Lord, For, unto thee, do I cry, all the day; ⁴Rejoice the soul of thy servant, For, unto thee, O My Lord, my soul, do I lift. ⁵For, thou, O My Lord, art good and forgiving, And abundant in lovingkindness, to all who call upon thee. ⁶Give ear, O Yahweh, unto my prayer, And attend unto the voice of my supplications. ⁷In the day of my distress, will I call upon thee, For thou wilt answer me. ⁸There is none like unto thee, among the gods, O My Lord, And nothing like thy works. ⁹All nations whom thou hast made, Shall come in and bow down before thee, O My Lord, That they may glorify thy Name. ¹⁰For great thou art, and doest wondrous things, Thou, O God, of thyself alone. ¹¹Point out to me, O Yahweh, thy way, I will walk steadfastly in thy truth, My heart will rejoice to revere thy Name. ¹²I will give thee thanks, Adonay, my God, with all my heart, And will glorify thy Name unto times age-abiding. ¹³For, thy lovingkindness, is great towards me, And thou hast rescued my soul from Hades beneath. ¹⁴O God, the insolent, have arisen against me, And, the assembly of tyrants, have sought my life, And have not set thee before them. ¹⁵But, thou, O My Lord, art, A God of compassion and favour, Slow to anger, and abundant in lovingkindness a faithfulness. ¹⁶Turn thou unto me, and show me favour,—Give thy strength to thy servant, And save the son of thy handmaid. ¹⁷Perform with me a token for good,—That they who hate me may see and be ashamed, In that, thou, Yahweh, hast helped me and comforted me.

87For the Sons of Korah. A Melody, a Song. His foundation, is in the holy mountains: ²Yahweh loveth the gates of Zion, More than all the dwellings of Jacob. ³Glorious things, are to be spoken of thee, O city of God. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁴I will mention Rahab and Babylon, to them who know me—Lo! Philistia and Tyre with Ethiopia, This one was born there. ⁵But, of Zion, it shall be said—This man and that were born in her, And the Highest himself shall establish her. ⁶Yahweh, will record, when he enrolleth the peoples, This one was born there. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁷As well the singers as the flute-players are saying,—All my springs, are in thee!

88A Song, a Melody. For the Sons of Korah. To the Chief Musician. On "Mahalath." For alternate Song. An Instructive Psalm. By Heman the Ezrahite. O Yahweh, God of my salvation, By day, have I made outcry, In the night, also before thee. ²Let my prayer, come into thy presence, Bow down thine ear to my loud cry. ³For my soul, is sated with misfortunes, And, my life—unto Hades, hath drawn near; ⁴I am counted with them who descend into the pit, I have become as a man that is without help; ⁵Among the dead, is my couch,—Like the slain that lie in the grave, Where thou rememberest them no more, Yea, they, from thy hand, are cut off; ⁶Thou hast laid me, In the lowest pit, In dark places, In the deeps: ⁷Upon me, hath rested thine indignation, And, with all thy breakers, hast thou caused affliction. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁸Thou hast far removed mine acquaintances from me,—Thou hast made me an abomination unto them, Shut up, and I cannot go forth! ⁹Mine eye, hath dimmed through affliction; I have called upon thee, O Yahweh, all day long, I have spread out, unto thee, my hands. ¹⁰For the dead, wilt thou perform a wonder? Or shall, the shades, arising, give thee thanks? \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ¹¹Shall Thy lovingkindness be recounted in the grave? Thy faithfulness, in destruction? ¹²Shall any wonder of thine, be known in the dark? Or, thy righteousness, in the land of forgetfulness? ¹³But, I, unto thee, O Yahweh, have cried for help, And, in the morning, my prayer will confront thee! ¹⁴Wherefore, O Yahweh, shouldst thou reject my soul? shouldst thou hide thy face from me? ¹⁵Afflicted have I been, and dying, from youth, I have borne the terror of thee—I shall be distracted! ¹⁶Over me, have passed thy bursts of burning anger, The alarms of thee have put an end to me; ¹⁷They have surrounded me like waters, all the day, They have come circling against me together: ¹⁸Thou hast far removed from me, lover and friend, Mine acquaintances, are in darkness.

89An Instructive Psalm, by Ethan the Ezrahite. The lovingkindnesses of Yahweh, age-abidingly will I sing, To generation after generation, will I make known thy faithfulness with my mouth. ²For I said, To times age-abiding, shall lovingkindness be built up, As for the heavens, thou wilt establish thy faithfulness therein. ³I have solemnised a covenant, for my chosen one, I have sworn unto David my servant: ⁴Unto times age-abiding, will I establish thy seed, And will build up, unto generation after generation, thy throne. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁵So shall the heavens praise thy wondrousness, O Yahweh,—Yea, thy faithfulness, in the convocation of holy ones. ⁶For whom, in the skies, can one compare unto Yahweh? Or can one liken unto Yahweh, among the sons of the mighty? ⁷A GOD inspiring awe in the circle of the holy ones, exceedingly, And to be revered above all who are round about him. ⁸O Yahweh, God of hosts! Who, like thee, is mighty, O Yah! With thy faithfulness round about thee: ⁹Thou, rulest over the swelling of the sea, When the rolling waves thereof lift themselves, Thou, dost bid them be still: ¹⁰Thou, hast crushed—as one slain—Rahab, With thy strong arm, hast thou scattered thy foes. ¹¹Thine, are the heavens, Yea, thine, the earth, The world and the fulness thereof, Thou, didst found them; ¹²The north and the south, Thou, didst create them,—Tabor and Hermon, with thy Name, shall shout for joy: ¹³Thine is an arm with might, Strong is thy hand, High is thy right hand; ¹⁴Righteousness and justice, are the establishing of thy throne, Lovingkindness and faithfulness, go before thy face. ¹⁵How happy are the people who know the joyful sound! O Yahweh! in the light of thy countenance, shall they firmly march along; ¹⁶In thy Name, shall they exult all the day, And, in thy righteousness, shall they be exalted. ¹⁷For, the beauty of their strength, thou art, And, in thine acceptance, shall our horns be exalted. ¹⁸For, to Yahweh, belongeth our Shield, And, to the Holy One of Israel, belongeth our King. ¹⁹Then spakest thou in vision of thy men of lovingkindness, and saidst—I have laid help upon a mighty one, I have exalted one chosen from among the people; ²⁰I have found David my servant, With mine own holy oil, have I anointed him; ²¹With whom my hand shall be firm, Yea, mine arm, shall strengthen him; ²²No foe shall make exactions on him, Nor shall, a son of perversity, humiliate him; ²³And I will shatter, from before him, his adversaries, And, them who hate him, will I smite; ²⁴And, my faithfulness and my lovingkindness, shall be with him, And, in my Name, exalted shall be his horn; ²⁵And I will set, in the sea, his hand, And, in the rivers, his right hand; ²⁶He, shall cry out unto me, My Father, thou art, My GOD, and my Rock of Salvation! ²⁷Yea, I, will appoint him, firstborn, Most High to the kings of the earth! ²⁸Age-abidingly, will I keep for him my lovingkindness, And, my covenant, hath been made steadfast for him; ²⁹Therefore will I appoint, to futurity, his seed, And his throne as the days of the heavens. ³⁰If his sons forsake my law, And, in my regulations, do not walk; ³¹If, my statutes, they profane, And, my commandments, do not keep: ³²Then will I punish, with a rod, their transgression; And, with stripes, their iniquity: ³³But, my lovingkindness, will I not frustrate from them, Neither will I falsify my faithfulness; ³⁴I will not violate my covenant, And that which hath proceeded out of my lips, will I not alter: ³⁵One thing, have I sworn by my holiness, Verily, to David, will I not lie; ³⁶His seed, age-abidingly, shall remain, And, his throne, be like the sun before me; ³⁷Like the moon, shall it be established unto times age-abiding, And, a witness, in the skies, hath been made sure. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ³⁸Yet, thou thyself, hast cast off, and rejected, Thou hast been wroth with thine Anointed One! ³⁹Thou hast cast down the covenant of thy Servant, Thou hast profaned, to the earth, his crown; ⁴⁰Thou hast broken down all his defenses, Thou hast laid his fortresses in ruins; ⁴¹All the passers by the way, have plundered him, He hath become a reproach to his neighbours; ⁴²Thou hast raised the right hand of his adversaries, Thou hast gladdened all his enemies; ⁴³Yea thou hast turned the edge of his sword, Neither hast thou caused him to stand in the battle; ⁴⁴Thou hast brought to an end his splendour, And, his throne—to the ground, hast thou hurled; ⁴⁵Thou hast shortened the days of his youths,—Thou hast covered him with shame. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁴⁶How long, O Yahweh, Wilt thou hide thyself utterly? Shall thine indignation, burn like fire? ⁴⁷Remember how short-lived, I, am, Wherefore, in vain, hast thou created all the sons of Adam? ⁴⁸Who is the man that shall live, and not see death? That can deliver his soul from the hand of hades. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁴⁹Where are thy former lovingkindnesses, O My Lord? Thou didst swear unto David, in thy faithfulness! ⁵⁰Remember, O My Lord, the reproach of thy servants, I have carried in my bosom the insult of the peoples: ⁵¹In that thy foes have reproached, O Yahweh, In that they have reproached the footsteps of thine Anointed One! ⁵²Blessed be Yahweh to times age-abiding, Amen, and Amen!

90\ul1 BOOK THE FOURTH\ul0 A Prayer by Moses, the Man of God. Lord! a dwelling-place, hast, thou, become to us, From generation to generation: ²Before, the mountains, were born, Or thou hadst brought forth the earth and the world, Even, from age to age, thou, wast GOD. ³Thou causest man to return unto dust, And hast said—Return, ye sons of Adam! ⁴For, a thousand years, in thine eyes, are , As yesterday, in that it passed away, Or as a watch in the night. ⁵Thou hast snatched them away, A sleep, do they become, In the morning, they are like grass that shooteth up, ⁶In the morning, it sprouteth and shooteth up, By the evening, it is cut down and withered. ⁷For we are consumed in thine anger, And, in thy wrath, are we dismayed; ⁸Thou hast set, Our iniquities before thee, Our secret near the luminary of thy face. ⁹For, all our days, decline in thy wrath,—We end our years like a sigh. ¹⁰The days of our years, have, in them, three score years and ten, And, if, by reason of strength, they have fourscore years, Yet, their boast, is labour and sorrow, For it hath passed quickly, and we have flown away. ¹¹Who knoweth the strength of thine anger? Even, according to the fear of thee, is thy wrath! ¹²How to number our days, so grant us to know, That we may win us a heart that hath wisdom. ¹³Return, Yahweh, oh how long? And have compassion upon thy servants; ¹⁴Satisfy us, in the morning, with thy lovingkindness, That we may shout aloud and be glad, Throughout all our days. ¹⁵Make us glad, according to, The days thou hast humbled us, The years we have seen misfortune: ¹⁶Let thy work, appear unto thy servants, And, thy majesty, upon their children; ¹⁷And let the delightfulness of Adonay our God be upon us,—And, the work of our hands, establish thou upon us, Yea, the work of our hands, establish thou it.

91He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High, Under the shadow of the Almighty, will tarry, ²Saying of Yahweh—My refuge and my fortress, My God, in whom I will trust. ³For, he, will rescue thee, From the snare of the fowler, From the destructive pestilence. ⁴With his pinion, will he cover thee, And, under his wings, shalt thou seek refuge, A shield and buckler, is his faithfulness. ⁵Thou shalt not be afraid, Of the dread of the night, Of the arrow that flieth by day; ⁶Of the pestilence that, in darkness, doth walk, Of the plague that layeth waste at noonday.

⁷There shall fall, at thy side, a thousand, Yea, myriads, at thy right hand, Unto thee, shall it not come nigh; ⁸Save only, with thine own eyes, shalt thou discern, And, the recompense of the lawless, shalt thou see. ⁹Because, thou, hast made Yahweh, my refuge,—The Most High, thou last made thy dwelling-place, ¹⁰There shall not be sent unto thee misfortune, Nor shall, plague, come near into thy tent; ¹¹For, his messengers, will he charge concealing thee, To keep thee, in all thy ways; ¹²On hands, will they bear thee up, Lest thou strike, against a stone, thy foot; ¹³On the lion and adder, shalt thou tread, Shalt trample on young lion and crocodile. ¹⁴Because, on me, he hath set firm his love, Therefore will I deliver him, I will set him on high, Because he hath known my Name; ¹⁵He shall call me, and I will answer him, With him, will, I, be, in distress, I will rescue him, and will honour him; ¹⁶With length of days, will I satisfy him, And will show him my salvation.

93Yahweh, hath become king, With majesty, is he clothed, Clothed is Yahweh, With strength, hath he girded himself, Surely he hath fixed the world, It shall not be shaken. ²Established hath been thy throne from of old, From age-past times, thou art. ³The floods have lifted up, O Yahweh, The floods have lifted up—their voice, The floods have lifted up—their dashing waves. ⁴With the sounds of many waters, Majestic are the breakers of the sea, Majestic on high, is Yahweh. ⁵Thy testimonies, are strongly confirmed, To thy house, befitting is holiness, O Yahweh—to length

94O GOD of avenging—Yahweh, GOD of avenging, shine forth: ²Lift up thyself, O judge of the earth, Render a recompense unto the proud. ³How long shall the lawless, O Yahweh, How long shall the lawless exult? ⁴They pour forth words, they speak arrogantly, All the workers of iniquity, do boast: ⁵Thy people, O Yahweh, they will crush, And, thine inheritance, tread down; ⁶The widow and sojourner, they will slay, And, the fatherless, murder. ⁷Yet have they said—Yah, doth not see, The God of Jacob, doth not understand. ⁸Understand, ye brutish among the people, And, ye dullards, when will ye show discretion? ⁹He that planteth the ear, shall he not hear? Or, that fashioneth the eye, shall he not have power to see? ¹⁰He that correcteth nations, shall he not reprove? He that teacheth man knowledge! ¹¹Yahweh, knoweth the plans of men, That, they, are a breath! ¹²How happy the man whom thou correctest, O Yah! And whom, out of thy law, thou instructest! ¹³That thou mayest give him rest from the days of misfortune, Until there be digged—for the lawless one—a pit. ¹⁴For Yahweh, will not abandon, his people, And, his inheritance, will he not forsake; ¹⁵For, unto righteousness, shall the judicial sentence return, Then shall follow it—all the upright in heart. ¹⁶Who will rise up for me, against the evil-doers? Who will make a stand for me, against the workers of iniquity? ¹⁷If, Yahweh, had not been a help to me, Soon had sunk into silence—my soul! ¹⁸If I say, My foot, hath slipped, Thy lovingkindness, O Yahweh, supporteth me. ¹⁹In the multitude of my cares within me, Thy consolations, delight my soul. ²⁰Shall the throne that inflicteth ruin, have fellowship with thee, That frameth oppression, by statute? ²¹They make an attack on the life of the righteous one,—And, innocent blood, they condemn. ²²But, Yahweh, hath become for me a high tower, And my God, my rock of refuge. ²³Thus hath he brought back on them their iniquity, And, by their own wickedness, will he destroy them, Destroy them, will Yahweh our God.

95Come, let us make a joyful noise to Yahweh, Let us shout in triumph, to the rock of our salvation! ²O let us come before his face with thanksgiving, With the sounds of strings, let us shout aloud to him. ³For, a great GOD, is—Yahweh, And a great king, above all gods. ⁴In whose hand, are the hidden recesses of the earth, And, the peaks of the mountains, are his; ⁵Whose, is the sea, for, he, made it, And, the dry land, his hands, did form. ⁶Enter! let us bow down, and bend low, Let us kneel, before Yahweh our maker; ⁷For, he, is our God, And, we, are the people of his pasture, and the flock of his hand? To-day, if, to his voice, ye will hearken, ⁸Do not harden your heart as at Meribah, As on the day of Massah, in the desert; ⁹When your fathers, tested me, They proved me, yea they also saw what I could do. ¹⁰Forty years, loathed I that generation, So I said—A people going astray in heart, they are, Even they, have not known my ways! ¹¹And I swear in mine anger,—Verily they shall not enter into my rest.

96 Sing to Yahweh, a song that is new, Sing to Yahweh, all the earth; ²Sing to Yahweh, bless ye his Name,—Tell the tidings, from day to day, of his salvation: ³Recount, Among the nations, his glory, Among all the peoples, his wonders. ⁴For great is Yahweh, and worthy to be mightily praised, To be revered is he above all gods; ⁵For, all the gods of the peoples, are things of nought—But, Yahweh, made, the heavens. ⁶Praise and majesty, are before him, Strength and beauty, are in his sanctuary. ⁷Give to Yahweh, ye families of the peoples, Give to Yahweh, glory and strength; ⁸Give to Yahweh, the glory of his Name, Bring a present, and enter his courts; ⁹Bow down to Yahweh, in the adornment of holiness, Be in anguish at his presence, all the earth! ¹⁰Say among the nations, Yahweh, hath become King, Surely he hath fixed the world, it shall not be shaken, He will judge the peoples with equity. ¹¹Let the heavens rejoice, and the earth exult, Let the sea roar, and the fulness thereof; ¹²Let the field, leap for joy, and all that is therein, Then, shall all the trees of the forest, shout in triumph, ¹³Before Yahweh, for he is coming, For he is coming to judge the earth,—He will judge the world, in righteousness, And the peoples, in his faithfulness.

97 Yahweh, hath become king, Let the earth exult, Let the multitude of coastlands rejoice. ²Clouds and thick darkness, are round about him, Righteousness and justice, are the establishing of his throne. ³Fire, before him, proceedeth, That it may consume, round about, his adversaries. ⁴His lightnings, have illumined, the world, The earth, hath seen, and hath trembled; ⁵The mountains, like wax, have melted, At the presence of Yahweh, At the presence, of the Lord of all the earth. ⁶The heavens, have declared, his righteousness,—And all the peoples, have seen, his glory. ⁷Let all who serve an image, be ashamed, They who boast themselves in things of nought, Bow down unto him, all ye gods. ⁸Zion, hath heard and rejoiced, And the daughters of Judah, have exulted, Because of thy righteous decisions, O Yahweh: ⁹For, thou, Yahweh, art Most High over all the earth, Greatly hast thou exalted thyself above all gods. ¹⁰Ye lovers of Yahweh! be haters of wrong,—He preserveth the lives of his men of lovingkindness, From the hand of the lawless, will he rescue them. ¹¹Light, is sown for the righteous one, And, for the upright in heart, rejoicing: ¹²Rejoice, ye righteous, in Yahweh, And give ye thanks, at the mention of his holiness.

98 A Melody. Sing to Yahweh, a song that is new, For, wonderful things, hath he done, His own right hand and hi holy arm, have brought him salvation. ²Yahweh, hath made known, his salvation, Before the eyes of the nations, hath he revealed his righteousness; ³He hath remembered his lovingkindness and his faithfulness towards the house of Israel,—All the ends of the earth, have seen, the salvation of our God. ⁴Shout aloud to Yahweh, all the earth, Break forth and make a joyful noise and sweep the strings; ⁵Sweep the strings to Yahweh, With the lyre, With the lyre, and the voice of melody; ⁶With trumpets and the sound of a horn, Shout aloud, before the king—Yahweh. ⁷Let the sea, roar, and the fulness thereof, The world, and they who dwell therein; ⁸Let, the floods, clap their hands, Together, let, the mountains, make a joyful noise, ⁹Before Yahweh, for he is coming—to judge the earth,—He will judge the world, in righteousness, And the peoples, with equity.

99 Yahweh, hath become king, Let the peoples, tremble, He is enthroned on the cherubim, Let the earth, shake. ²Yahweh, in Zion, is great, And, high, is he over all the peoples. ³Let them thank his Name—great and reverend, Holy, is he! ⁴Yea, with the strength of a king—justice, he loveth,—Thou, hast established equity, Justice and righteousness in Jacob, thou, hast wrought. ⁵Exalt Yahweh our God, And bow down at his footstool, Holy, is he! ⁶Moses and Aaron, were among his priests, And, Samuel, was among them who were calling upon his Name, Who were calling upon Yahweh, and, he, used to answer them: ⁷In the pillar of cloud, used he to speak unto them, They kept his testimonies, and the statute he gave them. ⁸O Yahweh our God! thou, answeredst them,—A pardoning GOD, thou becamest to them, Yet one bringing vengeance on their deeds. ⁹Exalt Yahweh our God, And bow down towards his holy mountain, For, holy, is Yahweh our God.

100 A Melody for Thanksgiving. Make a joyful noise to Yahweh, all the earth: ²Serve Yahweh with rejoicing, Enter before him, with shouts of triumph. ³Know that, Yahweh, he, is God,—He, made us, and not, we ourselves, His people, and the flock of his pasture. ⁴Enter ye his gates, with thanksgiving, his courts, with praise, Give ye thanks to him, bless ye his Name; ⁵For good is Yahweh, Age-abiding is his lovingkindness, And, unto generation after generation, his faithfulness.

101 David's. A Melody. Of lovingkindness and of justice, will I sing! Unto thee, O Yahweh, will I touch the strings! ²I will behave myself wisely in a blameless way, When wilt thou come in unto me? I will walk to and fro in the blamelessness of my heart,—in the midst of my house: ³I will not set before mine eyes, a vile thing,—The doing of them who fall away, I hate, It shall not cleave unto me; ⁴A perverse heart, shall depart from me, A maker of mischief, will I not acknowledge; ⁵He that uttereth slander in secret against his friend, him, will I root out; One of lofty eyes, and of an ambitious heart, him shall I not be able to endure. ⁶Mine eyes, shall be upon the faithful of the land, That they may dwell with me,—he that walketh in a blameless way, he, shall attend me. ⁷There shall not dwell in the midst of my house, One who worketh deceit,—he that speaketh falsehoods, shall not be established before mine eyes; ⁸Morning by morning, will I uproot, All the lawless ones of the land, That I may cut off, out of the city of Yahweh—All the workers of iniquity.

102A Prayer for the Humbled One when he is about to faint, and, before Yahweh, poureth out his grief. O Yahweh, hear thou my prayer, and let, my cry for help, unto thee, enter in. ²Do not hide thy face from me, In the day when I am in distress,—Bend down unto me thine ear, In the day when I call, speedily answer me. ³For, consumed in the smoke, are my days, And, my bones, like a burning mass, are scorched through; ⁴Smitten like herbage, so is my heart dried up, For I have forgotten to eat my food. ⁵At the noise of my groaning, my bone, hath cleaved, to my flesh: ⁶I am like the pelican of the desert, I have become as an owl among ruins. ⁷I have watched and am become, Like a bird sitting alone upon a housetop. ⁸All the day, have mine enemies, reproached me, And, they who are mad against me, by me, have sworn. ⁹For, ashes—like bread, have I eaten, And, my drink—with my tears, have I mingled; ¹⁰Because of thine indignation and thy wrath, For thou hast lifted me up, and cast me down. ¹¹My days, are like a shadow extended, And, I, as green herbage, do wither. ¹²But, thou, O Yahweh, age-abidingly wilt remain, And the memorial of thee, to generation after generation. ¹³Thou, wilt arise, wilt have compassion upon Zion, Surely it is time to favour her, Surely the time appointed, hath come; ¹⁴Seeing that thy servants, take pleasure, in her stones, And, her dust, they favour: ¹⁵That the nations may revere thy Name, O Yahweh, And all the kings of the earth, thy glory. ¹⁶When Yahweh, hath built up, Zion, Hath appeared in his glory; ¹⁷Hath turned towards the prayer of the destitute, And not despised their prayer, ¹⁸This, shall be written, for a later generation, And, a people to be created, will give praise unto Yah:— ¹⁹That he looked down, out of his holy height, Yahweh, from the heavens unto the earth, directed his gaze;— ²⁰To hear the groaning of the prisoner, To set free, them who were appointed to death. ²¹To the end the Name of Yahweh, might be celebrated in Zion, And his praise in Jerusalem: ²²When the peoples, gather themselves together, And the kingdoms, to serve Yahweh. ²³He hath prostrated, in the way, my strength,—He hath shortened my days. ²⁴I said, O my GOD, do not remove me in the midst of my days, Throughout the generation of generations, are thy years; ²⁵Of old—the earth, thou didst found, And, the work of thy hands, are the heavens; ²⁶They, shall perish, But, thou, wilt abide; And, they all, like a garment, shall fall in pieces, As a vesture, wilt thou change them and they shall vanish; ²⁷But, thou, art, the same,—And, thy years, shall have no end: ²⁸The children of thy servants, shall continue,—And, their seed, before thee, be established.

103Bless, O my soul, Yahweh,—And all that is within me, his holy Name; ²Bless, O my soul, Yahweh, And forget not all his dealings:— ³Who forgiveth all thine iniquity, Who healeth all thy diseases; ⁴Who redeemeth, from destruction, thy life, Who crowneth thee, with lovingkindness and compassion: ⁵Who satisfieth, with good, thine age, Thy youth, reneweth itself like an eagle. ⁶Yahweh is one, who executeth righteousness, Yea vindication for all the oppressed. ⁷Who made known his ways unto Moses, unto the sons of Israel, his doings. ⁸Compassionate and gracious, is Yahweh,—Slow to anger and abundant in lovingkindness. ⁹Not perpetually, will he contend, Nor age-abidingly, retain anger; ¹⁰Not according to our sins, hath he dealt with us, Nor according to our iniquities, hath he treated us. ¹¹For, as the heavens are exalted over the earth, His lovingkindness hath prevailed over them who revere him; ¹²As far as East from West, Hath he put far from us, our transgressions; ¹³Like the compassion of a father for his children, Is, the compassion of Yahweh, for them who revere him; ¹⁴For, he, knoweth how we are formed, He is mindful that, dust, we are. ¹⁵As for man, like grass, are his days, Like the blossom of the field, so, doth he blossom; ¹⁶For, a wind, hath passed ever it, and it is gone, And its own place is acquainted with it no more. ¹⁷But, the lovingkindness of Yahweh, is from one age even to another, Upon them who revere him, And his righteousness, to children's children:— ¹⁸To such as keep his covenant, And remember his precepts, to do them. ¹⁹Yahweh, in the heavens, hath established his throne, And, his kingdom, over all, hath dominion. ²⁰Bless Yahweh, ye messengers of his,—Heroes of vigour, doing his word, To hearken again to the voice of his word; ²¹Bless Yahweh, all ye his hosts, Attendants of his, doing his pleasure; ²²Bless Yahweh, all ye his works, In all places of his dominion, Bless, O my soul, Yahweh.

104Bless, O my soul, Yahweh,—Yahweh, my God, thou art exceedingly great, With honour and majesty, hast thou clothed thyself, ²Putting on light, as a robe, Stretching out the heavens, as a curtain; ³Building, in the waters, his upper chambers,—Who maketh clouds his chariot, Who passeth along on the wings of the wind; ⁴Making His messengers, winds, His attendants, a flaming fire; ⁵He hath fixed the earth on its foundations, It is not to be shaken, to times age-abiding and beyond. ⁶With the resounding deep—as a garment, hast thou covered it, Above the mountains, stand the waters; ⁷At thy rebuke, they flee, At the voice of thy thunder, they hurry away; ⁸Mountains rise, Valleys sink, Unto the place which thou hast fixed for them; ⁹Bounds, hast thou set, which they are not to pass over, They are not to return to cover the earth. ¹⁰Who hast sent forth springs, through the torrent-beds, Between the mountains, they flow along; ¹¹They give drink, to every wild beast of the field, The wild asses do break their thirst. ¹²Over them, the bird of the heavens setteth down, From amidst the foliage, they utter a voice. ¹³Who watereth the mountains out of his upper chambers, Out of the fruit of thy works, thou satisfiest the earth. ¹⁴Who causeth the grass to shoot forth for the cattle, And the herb, for the service of man, That he may bring forth food out of the earth; ¹⁵And, wine, may rejoice the heart of man, Making radiant his well-nourished face,—And, food, may, the heart of man, sustain. ¹⁶Satisfied are, The trees of Yahweh, The cedars of Lebanon, which he hath planted; ¹⁷Where the birds build their nests, The stork, in the fir-trees, hath her house; ¹⁸The high mountains, are for the chamois, The crags, are a refuge for the conies. ¹⁹He hath made the moon for seasons, And, the sun, knoweth his place for entering in. ²⁰Thou causest darkness, and it becometh night, Therein, creepeth forth, Every wild beast of the forest; ²¹The young lions, roaring for prey, And seeking, from GOD, their food. ²²The sun ariseth, they withdraw themselves, And, in their lairs, lay them down. ²³Man goeth forth to his work, And to his labour, until evening. ²⁴How thy works abound, O Yahweh! All of them—in wisdom, hast thou made, The earth is full of thy possession:— ²⁵This sea here, is great and broad on both hands,—Wherein are creeping things, even without number, Living things, small with great; ²⁶There, ships, sail along, This sea-monster, thou hast formed to sport therein; ²⁷All of them, for thee, do wait, That thou mayest give them their food in its season; ²⁸Thou givest unto them, they gather, Thou openest thy hand, they are satisfied with good. ²⁹Thou hidest thy face, they are dismayed, Thou withdrawest their spirit, They cease to breathe, And, unto their own dust, do they return: ³⁰Thou sendest forth thy spirit, they are created, And thou renewest the face of the ground. ³¹Be thy glory, O Yahweh, to times age-abiding, Let Yahweh rejoice in his own works: ³²Who looketh at the earth, and it trembleth, He toucheth the mountains, and they smoke. ³³I will sing to Yahweh, as long as I live! Yea I will touch the strings to my God, while I continue; ³⁴Pleasing unto him, be my meditation, I, will rejoice in Yahweh. ³⁵Sinners shall be consumed out of the earth And, the lawless, no more, shall exist,—Bless, O my soul, Yahweh, Praise ye Yah!

105 Give ye thanks to Yahweh, Call upon his Name, Make known, among the peoples, his doings; ²Sing ye to him, Make ye music to him, Speak ye of all his wonders. ³Make your boast in his holy Name, Joyful be the heart of them who are seeking Yahweh. ⁴Search out Yahweh and his strength, Seek diligently his face at all times. ⁵Remember his wonders which he hath done, His portents, and the just decisions of his mouth. ⁶O ye Seed of Abraham—his servants, Sons of Jacob—his chosen ones: ⁷Yahweh himself, is our God, Through all the land, are his just decision. ⁸He hath remembered, unto times age-abiding, his covenant, The word he commanded, to a thousand generations; ⁹Which he solemnised with Abraham, and his oath, to Isaac; ¹⁰And confirmed it unto Jacob for a statute, To Israel, as a covenant age-abiding; ¹¹Saying, To thee, will I give the land of Canaan, As your inherited portion; ¹²While as yet they were men easily counted,—A very few, and sojourners therein; ¹³And they wandered from nation to nation, From a kingdom, to another people. ¹⁴He suffered no son of earth to oppress them, And reproveth—for their sakes— even kings! ¹⁵Ye may not touch mine Anointed ones, And, to my Prophets, may ye do no wrong. ¹⁶Then called he a famine over the and, All the staff of bread, he brake; ¹⁷He sent before them a man, For a slave, was he sold— even Joseph; ¹⁸They forced, into a fetter, his foot, Into the iron, entered his soul; ¹⁹Until the time when his word came to pass, Speech of Yahweh, proved him; ²⁰The king sent, and set him free, One having dominion over peoples, yet loosed he his bonds; ²¹He appointed him lord to his household, And one having dominion over all he possessed; ²²That he might bind his rulers as he pleased, And, his elders, he might embue with wisdom. ²³So Israel came into Egypt, And, Jacob, sojourned in the land of Ham; ²⁴And he made his people exceeding fruitful,—And caused them to become stronger than their adversaries. ²⁵He let them turn their heart—To hate his people, To deal treacherously with his servants; ²⁶He sent Moses his servant, Aaron, whom he had chosen. ²⁷He set among them his threatening signs, And his wonders, in the land of Ham; ²⁸He sent darkness, and made it dark, But they rebelled against his words; ²⁹He turned their waters into blood, And so caused their fish to die; ³⁰Their land swarmed with frogs, In the chambers of their kings! ³¹He spake, and there came in the gad-fly, Gnats, in all their bounds; ³²He made their showers—hail, A fire flaming throughout their land; ³³And he smote their vines, and their fig-trees, And brake in pieces the trees of their bounds; ³⁴He spake—then came the swarming locust,—The devouring locust, and that without number; ³⁵And devoured all the herbage in their land, And devoured the fruit of their ground. ³⁶Then smote he every firstborn in their land, The beginning of all their strength; ³⁷Thus brought he them forth, with silver and gold, Nor was there, throughout his tribes, one that faltered; ³⁸Egypt rejoiced when they went out, For the dread of them had fallen upon them. ³⁹He spread out a cloud as a covering, And fire, to give light by night, ⁴⁰They asked, and he brought in the quail,—And, with the bread of the heavens, he satisfied them; ⁴¹He opened the rock, and there gushed forth waters, They flowed along, through parched places, as a river; ⁴²For he remembered his holy word, With Abraham his servant. ⁴³Thus brought he forth his people with gladness,—With shouts of triumph, his chosen ones; ⁴⁴And gave them, the lands of the nations, And, of the toil of the peoples, took they possession: ⁴⁵In order that they might observe his statutes, And, over his laws, might keep watch, Praise ye Yah.

106 Praise ye Yah, Give ye thanks to Yahweh—For he is good, For age-abiding, is his lovingkindness. ²Who can relate the mighty deeds of Yahweh? can cause to be heard, all his praise? ³How happy! They who observe justice, He that executeth righteousness at all times. ⁴Remember me, O Yahweh, when thou acceptest thy people, Visit me, with thy salvation; ⁵That I may look upon the welfare of thy chosen ones, That I may rejoice in the joy of thy nation, That I may glory, with thine inheritance. ⁶We have sinned—with our fathers, We have acted perversely, we have committed lawlessness; ⁷Our fathers, in Egypt, understood not thy wonders, They remembered not the abounding of thy lovingkindnesses, but rebelled by the sea—at the Red Sea. ⁸Yet he saved them, for the sake of his Name, to make known his mighty power; ⁹So he rebuked the Red Sea, and it dried up, And he led them through deeps, as pasture-land; ¹⁰And saved them from the hand of one full of hatred, And redeemed them out of the hand of the foe; ¹¹So the waters covered their adversaries, Not one from among them, was left. ¹²They believed therefore in his words, They sang his praise. ¹³Soon forgot they his works,—They waited not for his counsel; ¹⁴But lusted a lust in the desert, and tested GOD in the waste. ¹⁵So he gave them their request, but sent leanness into their soul. ¹⁶And they became jealous of Moses in the camp,—of Aaron the holy one of Yahweh; ¹⁷The earth opened and engulfed Dathan, and covered up the assembly of Abiram; ¹⁸Then was kindled a fire in their assembly,—a flame, consumed the lawless ones. ¹⁹They made a calf in Horeb,—and bowed down to a molten image; ²⁰Thus changed they my glory, for the similitude of an ox that eateth grass. ²¹They forgot GOD their saviour, who had done great things in Egypt: ²²Wonders in the land of Ham, Terrible things by the Red Sea. ²³Then would he have bidden to destroy them,—had not Moses his chosen, stood in the breach before him, To turn back his wrath from destroying. ²⁴And they refused the delightful land, They believed not his word; ²⁵But murmured in their tents,—They hearkened note unto the voice of Yahweh. ²⁶So he lifted up his hand unto them, that he would let them fall in the desert; ²⁷And would disperse their seed among the nations, and would scatter them throughout the lands. ²⁸Yet they let themselves be bound to Baal-peor,—and did eat sacrifices to the dead: ²⁹So they provoked to anger by their doings, and a plague, made a breach among them. ³⁰Then stood up Phinehas, and interposed, and stayed was the plague: ³¹So it was counted unto him, for righteousness, To generation after generation, unto times age abiding. ³²And they provoked by the waters of Meribah,—And it fared ill with Moses, for their sakes; ³³For they embittered his spirit, and he spake rashly with his lips. ³⁴They destroyed not the peoples of which Yahweh had spoken to them; ³⁵But had fellowship with the nations, and learned their doings; ³⁶Yea they served their idols, and they became to them a snare: ³⁷Yea they sacrificed their sons and their daughters to mischievous demons; ³⁸And poured out innocent blood, the blood of their sons and their daughters, whom they sacrificed to the idols of Canaan, And the land was polluted with blood-shed; ³⁹And they became unclean by their works, and became unchaste in their doings. ⁴⁰Then was kindled the anger of Yahweh with his people, and he abhorred his own inheritance. ⁴¹So he delivered them up into the hand of the nations, And they who hated them, had dominion over them; ⁴²And their enemies oppressed them, And they were bowed down under their hand. ⁴³Many times, did he rescue them,—But, they, rebelled by their counsel, and sank low in their iniquity. ⁴⁴Then looked he on the distress which befell them,—when he heard their loud cry; ⁴⁵Then remembered he, for them, his covenant, and was moved to pity, according to the abounding of his lovingkindnesses; ⁴⁶And granted them compassion before all their captors. ⁴⁷Save us, O Yahweh our God, and gather us from among the nations, That we may give thanks unto thy holy Name, That we may triumph aloud in thy praise. ⁴⁸Blessed be Yahweh, God of Israel, from one age even unto another, And all the people, shall say, Amen! Praise ye Yah!

107 BOOK THE FIFTH O give thanks to Yahweh—For he is good, For, age-abiding, is his lovingkindness. ²Let the redeemed of Yahweh say, Whom he hath redeemed from the hand of the adversary; ³And, out of the lands, hath gathered them—From the east and from the west, From the north and from the south. ⁴They wandered about in the desert—in a waste, Way to a city to dwell in, found they none; ⁵Hungry—yea thirsty, their soul, within them, fainted: ⁶Then made they outcry to Yahweh, in their peril, Out of their distresses, he rescued them; ⁷And led them by a straight road, That they might journey to a city to dwell in. ⁸Let them give thanks to Yahweh for his lovingkindness, and for his wonderful dealings with the sons of men; ⁹For he hath satisfied the longing soul, and, the famished soul, hath he filled with good. ¹⁰The dwellers in darkness and death-shade, bound with oppression and iron; ¹¹Because they had rebelled against the sayings of GOD,—and, the counsel of the Most High, they had spurned; ¹²And he bowed down, with labour, their heart, They staggered, with no one to help, ¹³Then made they outcry to Yahweh in their peril, Out of their distresses, he saved them; ¹⁴He brought them forth out of darkness and death-shade, and, their fetters, he tare off. ¹⁵Let them give thanks to Yahweh for his lovingkindness, and for his wonderful dealings with the sons of men! ¹⁶For he brake in pieces the doors of bronze, And, the bars of iron, he hewed asunder. ¹⁷The perverse, by reason of their transgression, and on account of their iniquities, are afflicted; ¹⁸All manner of food, their soul abhorreth, and so they draw near unto the gates of death, ¹⁹Then make they outcry to Yahweh in their peril, and, out of their distresses, he saveth them. ²⁰He sendeth his word, and healeth them, and delivereth them from their graves. ²¹Let them give thanks to Yahweh for his lovingkindness, and for his wonderful dealings with the sons of men! ²²Yea let them sacrifice the sacrifices of thanksgiving, and recount his works with a shout. ²³Men who go down to the sea, in ships, doing business through mighty waters; ²⁴They, see the works of Yahweh, and his wonders in the deep; ²⁵And he speaketh, and there ariseth a tempestuous wind, which lifteth on high its rolling waves; ²⁶They mount the heavens, they descend the roaring deeps, their soul, by trouble, dissolveth; ²⁷They reel and stagger, like a drunken man, and, all their wisdom, is engulfed, ²⁸Then make they outcry to Yahweh in their peril, and, out of their distresses, he bringeth them forth, ²⁹He calmeth the storm to a whisper, and silent are their rolling waves: ³⁰Then are they glad, because they are hushed, And he guideth them unto their desired haven. ³¹Let them give thanks to Yahweh for his lovingkindness, and for his wonderful dealings with the sons of men! ³²Yea let them extol him in the convocation of the people, and, in the seated company of elders, let them praise him. ³³He turneth Rivers into a desert, and, Springs of Water, into thirsty ground, ³⁴A Land of Fruit, into a waste of salt, For the wickedness of them who dwell therein. ³⁵He turneth A Desert, into a pool of water, and, A Parched Land into springs of water; ³⁶And hath caused the famished to dwell there, And they have built them a city to dwell in; ³⁷And have sown fields, and planted vineyards, and made them fruits of increase: ³⁸Thus hath he blessed them, and they have multiplied greatly, And, their cattle, he maketh not few. ³⁹So have they become few and been brought low, By oppression, misfortune, and sorrow; ⁴⁰He poureth contempt upon nobles, and causeth them to wander in a pathless waste; ⁴¹But he hath set the needy on high from affliction, and made families, like a flock:— ⁴²The upright seeth and is glad, And, all perverseness, hath closed her mouth. ⁴³Who is wise? then let him observe these things! and diligently consider the lovingkindness of Yahweh.

108A Song, a Melody: David's. Fixed, is my heart, O God, I will sing and touch the strings, even mine honour. ²Awake, O harp and lyre, I will awaken the dawn! ³I will thank thee among the peoples, O Yahweh, and will sing praise unto thee, among the tribes of men. ⁴For, great, above the heavens, is thy lovingkindness, and, as far as the skies, thy faithfulness. ⁵Be thou exalted above the heavens,

O God, And, above all the earth, be thy glory. ⁶To the end thy beloved ones may be delivered, Oh save thou with thy right hand and answer me! ⁷God, hath spoken in his holiness, I will exult! I will apportion Shechem! And, the Vale of Succoth, will I measure out; ⁸Mine, is Gilead—mine, Manasseh, but, Ephraim, is the defence of my head, Judah, is my commander's staff; ⁹Moab, is my wash-bowl, Upon Edom, will I throw my shoe, Over Philistia, raise a shout of triumph. ¹⁰Who will conduct me to a fortified city? Who will lead me as far as Edom? ¹¹Hast not thou, O God, rejected us? and wilt not go forth, O God, with our hosts. ¹²Grant us help out of distress, for, vain, is the deliverance of man: ¹³In God, shall we do valiantly, He himself, therefore, shall tread down our adversaries.

109To the Chief Musician. David's. A Melody. O God of my praise, do not be silent; ²For, the mouth of the lawless one and the mouth of the deceiver, against me, are open, They have spoken to me with false tongue; ³And, with words of hatred, have they surrounded me, and have made war upon me without cause: ⁴For my love, they have been accusing me, while, I, was at prayer: ⁵Yea they have returned unto me—Evil for good; and, Hatred for my love. ⁶Set in charge over him, one who is lawless, and let, an accuser, stand at his right hand; ⁷When he is judged, let him go out condemned, and let, his own petition, become a sin; ⁸Let his days become few, his overseership, let another take; ⁹Let his children become fatherless, and his wife a widow; ¹⁰Let his children, wander about, and beg, Let them be driven out of heir ruins; ¹¹Let the creditor take aim at all that he hath, and let strangers prey on the fruit of his toil; ¹²Let him have no one to continue lovingkindness, and there be none to favour his fatherless children; ¹³Let his posterity be for cutting off, In another generation, let their name be wiped out; ¹⁴Remembered be the iniquity of his fathers against Yahweh, and, the sin of his mother, let it not be wiped out; ¹⁵Let them be before Yahweh continually, and let the memory of them, be cut off out of the earth. ¹⁶Because that he remembered not to show lovingkindness, but pursued the man that was oppressed and needy, that, the downhearted, he might slay. ¹⁷Because he loved cursing, May it have come upon him, Because he delighted not in blessing, May it have kept far from him; ¹⁸Because he clothed himself in cursing as his outer garment, therefore may it have entered like water into his inward part, and like oil into his bones; ¹⁹Be it his, as a garment he shall wrap round him, and for a girdle he shall, at all times, gird on: ²⁰This, be the reward of mine accusers, from Yahweh, even of them who are speaking wrongfully against my life. ²¹But, thou, Yahweh, Adonay, deal effectually with me, for the sake of thy Name, Since good is thy lovingkindness, O rescue me; ²²For, oppressed and needy, I am, and, my heart, is wounded within me. ²³As a shadow when it stretcheth out, I am gone, I am shaken off like the locust; ²⁴My knees, tremble from fasting, and, my flesh, faileth of fatness: ²⁵So, I, am become a reproach for them, They see me, they shake their head. ²⁶Help me! O Yahweh my God, Save me, according to thy lovingkindness: ²⁷That they may know that, Thine own hand, this is, Thou, Yahweh, hast done it. ²⁸They, may curse if, thou, wilt bless,—Mine assailants, shall be ashamed, but, thy servant, shall rejoice; ²⁹Mine accusers shall be clothed with confusion, and shall wrap about them, like a cloak, their own shame. ³⁰I will thank Yahweh loudly with my mouth, Yea, in the midst of multitudes, will I praise him; ³¹Because he standeth at the right hand of the needy, To save, from them who would pass sentence on his life.

110David's. A Melody. The declaration of Yahweh to my Lord—Sit thou at my right hand, Until I make thy foes thy footstool. ²Thy sceptre of strength, will Yahweh extend out of Zion, Tread thou down, in the midst of thy foes. ³Thy people, will freely offer themselves, in the day of thine army,—in the splendours of holiness, out of the womb of the dawn, To thee, shall spring forth the dew of thy youth. ⁴Yahweh, hath sworn—and will not repent, Thou, shalt be a priest unto times age-abiding, after the manner of Melchizedek. ⁵My Lord, on thy right hand,—hath shattered—in the day of his anger—kings; ⁶He will judge among the nations—full of dead bodies! He hath shattered the head over a land far extended: ⁷Of the torrent in the way, will he drink;—For this cause, will he lift up his head.

111Praise ye Yah! I will give thanks unto Yahweh, with a whole heart, in the circle of the upright and the assembly. ²Great are the works of Yahweh, sought out, by all who find pleasure therein. ³Honourable and majestic, is his doing, and, his righteousness, standeth for aye. ⁴A memorial, hath he made by his wonders, Gracious and compassionate, is Yahweh. ⁵Food, hath he given to them who revere him, He will remember, age-abidingly, his covenant. ⁶The might of his works, hath he declared to his people, that he may give them the inheritance of the nations. ⁷The works of his hands, are faithful and just, Firm are all his precepts; ⁸Upheld to futurity, to times age-abiding, done in faithfulness and equity. ⁹Ransom, hath he sent to his people, He hath commanded, to times age-abiding, his covenant, Holy and reverend, is his Name. ¹⁰The beginning of wisdom, is the reverence of Yahweh, Good discretion, have all that do them, His praise, endureth for aye.

112Praise ye Yah! How happy is the man who revereth Yahweh, In his commandments, delighteth he greatly; ²Mighty in the earth, shall be his seed, The generation of the upright, shall be blessed; ³Wealth and riches, shall be in his house, and, his righteousness, standeth for aye. ⁴Risen—in darkness, is light to the upright, The gracious and compassionate and righteous. ⁵Well for a man showing favour and lending! He shall sustain his affairs with justice. ⁶Surely, unto times age-abiding, shall he not be shaken, In remembrance, age-abiding, shall the righteous one remain; ⁷Of evil tidings, shall he not be afraid, Established is his heart, led to trust in Yahweh; ⁸Upheld is his heart, he shall not be afraid, until that he gazeth on his foes. ⁹He hath scattered abroad, he hath given to the needy, His righteousness, standeth for aye, His horn, shall be exalted in honour. ¹⁰The lawless one, shall see, and be indignant, his teeth, will he gnash and melt away, The craving of the lawless, shall vanish.

113Praise ye Yah! Praise, O ye servants of Yahweh, Praise the Name of Yahweh; ²Be the Name of Yahweh blessed, henceforth, even to times age-abiding. ³From the rising of the sun unto the going in thereof, Worthy to be praised, is the Name of Yahweh: ⁴High above all nations, is Yahweh, Above the heavens, his glory. ⁵Who is like Yahweh our God? that goeth on high to dwell, ⁶That cometh down low to look, through the heavens and through the earth; ⁷That raiseth, out of the dust, the poor, From the dunghill, uplifteth the needy; ⁸To give a seat with nobles, with the nobles of his people! ⁹Causing the barren woman to dwell in household, A mother of sons in her joy! Praise ye Yah.

weh, Their help and their shield, is he! ¹¹Ye that revere Yahweh! trust in Yahweh, Their help and their shield, is he! ¹²Yahweh, hath remembered us, he will bless—He will bless the house of Israel, He will bless the house of Aaron; ¹³He will bless them who revere Yahweh, the small with the great. ¹⁴Yahweh multiply you, You, and your children. ¹⁵Blessed are ye of Yahweh, who made the heavens and the earth: ¹⁶As for the heavens, the heavens, belong to Yahweh, but the earth, hath he given to the sons of men. ¹⁷The dead, cannot praise Yah, nor any that go down into silence; ¹⁸But, we, will bless Yah, from henceforth even unto times age-abiding. Praise ye Yah.

116I love Yahweh—because he heareth my voice, my supplications; ²Because he hath bowed down his ear unto me, therefore, throughout my days, will I call. ³The meshes of death encompassed me, and the distresses of hades, came upon me, Peril and sorrow, I found; ⁴But, on the Name of Yahweh, I called—I beseech thee, Yahweh, deliver my soul. ⁵Gracious is Yahweh and righteous, and, our God, is full of compassion. ⁶Yahweh, preserveth the simple, I was brought low, when, to me, he granted salvation. ⁷Return, O my soul, to thy rest, For, Yahweh, hath dealt bountifully with thee. ⁸For thou hast rescued my soul from death,—mine eyes from tears, my feet from stumbling. ⁹I will walk to and fro before Yahweh, in the lands of life. ¹⁰I believed that I should speak, I, was greatly depressed. ¹¹I, said in mine alarm, All men, are false! ¹²How shall I give back to Yahweh, All his benefits unto me? ¹³The cup of salvation, will I lift, and, on the Name of Yahweh, will I call: ¹⁴My vows—to Yahweh, will I pay, Might it be in presence of all his people! ¹⁵Costly in the eyes of Yahweh, is, death, for his men of lovingkindness. ¹⁶I beseech thee, O Yahweh—for, I, am thy servant,—I, am thy servant, the son of thy handmaid, Thou hast loosened my bonds. ¹⁷To thee, will I sacrifice a sacrifice of thanksgiving, and, on the Name of Yahweh, will I call: ¹⁸My vows—to Yahweh, will I pay, Might it be in the presence of all his people;— ¹⁹In the courts of the house of Yahweh, In the midst of thee, O Jerusalem. Praise ye Yah!

117Praise Yahweh, all ye nations, Laud him, all ye tribes of men; ²For his lovingkindness, hath prevailed over us, and, the faithfulness of Yahweh, is to times age-abiding. Praise ye Yah!

man, do unto me? ⁷Yahweh, is on my side, with them who help me, I, therefore shall gaze upon them who hate me. ⁸It is, better to seek refuge in Yahweh, than to put confidence in man: ⁹It is, better to seek refuge in Yahweh, than to put confidence in nobles. ¹⁰All nations, have compassed me about, In the Name of Yahweh, surely I will make them be circumcised; ¹¹They have compassed me about—yea compassed me about, In the Name of Yahweh, surely I will make them be circumcised; ¹²They have compassed me about like wax bees, they have blazed up like the fire of thorns, In the Name of Yahweh, surely I will make them be circumcised. ¹³Thou didst, thrust sore, at me that I might fall, But, Yahweh, hath helped me. ¹⁴My might and melody, is Yah, and he hath become mine by salvation. ¹⁵The voice of shouting and salvation, is in the tents of the righteous, The right hand of Yahweh, is doing valiantly: ¹⁶The right hand of Yahweh, is exalted, The right hand of Yahweh, is doing valiantly. ¹⁷I shall not die, but live, That I may recount the doings of Yah. ¹⁸Yah, chastened me sore, But, unto death, did not deliver me. ¹⁹Open to me the gates of righteousness, I will enter therein, I will give thanks unto Yah. ²⁰This, is the gate for Yahweh, Such as are righteous, shall enter therein. ²¹I will thank thee, because thou hast answered me, And hast become mine, by salvation. ²²A stone the builders refused, hath become the head of the corner: ²³From Yahweh, hath this come to pass, The same, is marvellous in our eyes. ²⁴This is the day, which Yahweh hath made, We will exult, and be glad therein. ²⁵Ah now, Yahweh, do save, we beseech thee, Ah now, Yahweh, do send success, we beseech thee! ²⁶Blessed be he that entereth, In the Name of Yahweh, we have blessed you, out of the house of Yahweh. ²⁷Yahweh is GOD, and hath shed on us light,—Bind ye the festal sacrifice with cords, Up to the horns of the altar. ²⁸My GOD, thou art, and I will thank thee,—My Elohim, I will exalt thee. ²⁹Give ye thanks to Yahweh—For he is good, For, age-abiding, is his lovingkindness.

119\ul1 ALEPH.\ul0 How happy the men of blameless life, who walk in the law of Yahweh. ²How happy they who observe his testimonies, with a whole heart, they seek him. ³Yea, they have not wrought perversity, In his ways, have they walked. ⁴Thou, hast commanded thy precepts, that they should be diligently kept. ⁵Oh would that my ways might be settled! that I might keep thy statutes. ⁶Then, shall I not be ashamed, when I have respect unto all thy commandments. ⁷I will thank thee with uprightness of heart, when I have learned thy righteous regulations. ⁸Thy statutes, will I keep, Do not thou forsake me utterly. ⁹\ul1 BETH.\ul0 Wherewithal can a young man keep pure his way? By taking heed, according to thy word. ¹⁰With all my heart, have I sought thee, Suffer me not to be led astray from thy commandments. ¹¹In my heart, have I treasured what thou hast said, to the end I may not sin against thee. ¹²Blessed art thou, O Yahweh—Teach me thy statutes. ¹³With my lips, have I recounted All the regulations of thy mouth. ¹⁴In the way of thy testimonies, have I rejoiced, Like as over all riches. ¹⁵In thy precepts, will I meditate, that I may discern thy paths. ¹⁶In thy statutes, will I find my dear delight, I will not forget thy word. ¹⁷\ul1 GIMEL.\ul0 Bestow thy bounties upon thy servant—let me live, That I may observe thy word. ¹⁸Unveil thou mine eyes, that I may discern Wondrous things out of thy law. ¹⁹A sojourner, am I, in the earth, Do not hide from me, thy commandments. ²⁰My soul is crushed with longing for thy just decisions at all times. ²¹Thou hast rebuked the proud as accursed, who stray from thy commandments. ²²Roll from off me, reproach and contempt, For, thy testimonies, have I observed. ²³Even rulers have taken their seat, against me, have talked, Thy servant, will still meditate in thy statutes. ²⁴Yea, thy testimonies, are my dear delight, My counselors. ²⁵\ul1 DALETH.\ul0 My soul, cleaveth to the dust, Give me life, according to thy word. ²⁶My ways, I recounted, and thou didst answer me, Teach me thy statutes. ²⁷The way of thy precepts, cause thou me to understand, and I will indeed meditate in thy wonders. ²⁸My soul weepeth itself away, for grief, Confirm thou me, according to thy word. ²⁹The way of falsehood, take thou from me, and, with thy law, O favour me. ³⁰The way of faithfulness, have I chosen, Thy regulations, have I deemed right. ³¹I have kept close to thy testimonies, O Yahweh! do not put me to shame. ³²The way of thy commandments, will I run, for thou wilt enlarge my heart. ³³\ul1 HE.\ul0 Point out to me, O Yahweh, the way of thy statutes, that I may observe it unto the end. ³⁴Give me understanding, that I may observe thy law, that I may keep it with a whole heart. ³⁵Guide me in the path of thy commandments, for, therein, do I find pleasure. ³⁶Incline my heart unto thy testimonies, and not unto unjust gain. ³⁷Turn away mine eyes, from beholding vanity, In thy way, give me life. ³⁸Establish, unto thy servant, thy word, which pertaineth to the reverence of thee. ³⁹Cause to pass away my reproach, that I have feared, for, thy regulations, are good. ⁴⁰Lo! I have longed for thy precepts, In thy righteousness, give me life. ⁴¹\ul1 WAW.\ul0 And let thy lovingkindness reach me, O Yahweh, thy salvation, according to thy word. ⁴²So shall I have something to answer him that reproacheth me, That I have trusted in thy word. ⁴³And do not snatch away from my mouth the word of truth in any wise, because, for thy regulation, have I waited. ⁴⁴That I may keep thy law continually, to times age-abiding and beyond. ⁴⁵That I may walk to and fro in a large place, because, thy precepts, have I sought. ⁴⁶That I may speak of thy testimonies before kings, and not be ashamed. ⁴⁷That I may find dear delight in thy commandments, which I have loved. ⁴⁸That I may lift up my hands unto thy commandments, which I have loved, and may meditate in thy statutes. ⁴⁹\ul1

well knowest. ⁴Surely there hath not been a word on my tongue, but behold! O Yahweh, thou hast observed it on every side. ⁵Behind and before, hast thou shut me in, and hast laid upon me thy hand:— ⁶Knowledge, too wonderful, for me! high, I cannot attain to it! ⁷Whither can I go from thy spirit? or whither, from thy face, can I flee? ⁸If I ascend the heavens, there, thou art! If I spread out hades as my couch, behold thee! ⁹If I mount the wings of the dawn, settle down in the region beyond the sea, ¹⁰Even there, thy hand shall lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me. ¹¹If I say, Surely, darkness, shall cover me! then, night, is light about me. ¹²Even darkness, will not conceal from thee,—but, night, like day, will shine, So is the darkness, as the light! ¹³For, thou, didst possess thyself of my reins, thou didst weave me together in the womb of my mother. ¹⁴I thank thee, in that fearfully was my being distinguished, Wonderful are thy works, and, mine own soul, is observing them intently! ¹⁵My substance was not hid from thee,—when I was made in secret, when I was skilfully figured in the lower parts of the earth. ¹⁶Mine unfinished substance, thine eyes beheld, and, in thy book, all the parts thereof were written,—the days they should be fashioned! while yet there was not one among them. ¹⁷To me, then, how precious have thy desires become, O GOD! How numerous, the heads of them! ¹⁸I would recount them! Beyond the sands, they multiply, I rouse myself—and am still with thee. ¹⁹Wilt thou not, O GOD, slay the lawless one? Therefore, ye men of bloodshed, depart from me! ²⁰For they speak of thee wickedly, Thy foes lift up their hand unto falsehood. ²¹Do I not hate, them who hate thee, O Yahweh? And loathe, them who rise up against thee? ²²With completeness of hatred, I hate them, As enemies, have they become to me. ²³Search me, O GOD, and observe my heart, Try me, and observe my cares; ²⁴And see if there be any idol-way in me, and lead me in a way age-abiding.

140To the Chief Musician. A Melody of David. Rescue me, O Yahweh, from the men of mischief, From the men of violence, wilt thou preserve me: ²Who have devised mischiefs in their heart, Every day, do they stir up wars: ³They have sharpened their tongue like a serpent,—The poison of the asp, is under their lips. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁴Keep me, O Yahweh, from the hands of the lawless one, From the man of violence, wilt thou preserve me,—who have devised, to thrust at my steps: ⁵The proud have hidden a snare for me, and, cords, have they spread as a net beside the track, Snares, have they set for me. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁶I have said unto Yahweh, My GOD, thou art! Give ear, O Yahweh, unto the voice of my supplications. ⁷O Yahweh, My Lord, my saving strength, thou hast screened my head in the day of battle. ⁸Do not grant, O Yahweh, the desires of the lawless one, his device, do not promote, They would exalt themselves. \ul1 Selah.\ul0 ⁹As for the head of them who surround me, Let the mischief of their lips cover them: ¹⁰May there be dropped on them live coals,—Into the fire, may they be let fall, into watery pits from which they shall not rise. ¹¹As for the slanderer, let him not be established in the earth,—As for the man of wrongful violence, let misfortune hunt him with thrust upon thrust. ¹²I know that Yahweh will execute, the right of the oppressed one, the vindication of the needy. ¹³Surely, the righteous, shall give thanks to thy Name, the upright shall dwell in thy presence.

141A Melody of David. O Yahweh, I have cried unto thee, Make thou haste to me, Give ear unto my voice, when I cry to thee. ²Let my prayer be set in order like incense before thee,—the lifting up of my hands, as the evening gift. ³Set thou, O Yahweh, a watch at my mouth, Keep thou guard over the door of my lips. ⁴Let not my heart incline to a matter of wrong, that I should busy myself with practices in lawlessness, with men working iniquity, and let me not eat of their dainties. ⁵Let a righteous man smite me—a lovingkindness, that he should correct me, an oil for the head which let not my head refuse! For, yet, even my prayer, shall be in their calamities. ⁶Their judges, have been hurled down by a crag, Now have men heard my sayings, for they have become sweet. ⁷As when one plougheth and furroweth the earth, Scattered about, are our bones at the mouth of hades! ⁸Surely, unto thee, O Yahweh, My Lord, are mine eyes, In thee, have I sought refuge, Do not pour out my life. ⁹Keep me out of the clutches of the trap they have set for me, and the snares of the workers of iniquity. ¹⁰They who are lawless, shall fall into the nooses thereof, while, I, at the same time, pass on.

142An Instructive Psalm of David. When he was in the Cave. A Prayer. With my voice—to Yahweh, make I outcry, With my voice—to Yahweh, make I supplication: ²I pour out before him my complaint, My distress—before him, I tell. ³When my spirit fainted concerning myself, then, thou, didst take note of my path,—In the course which I was about to take, they had hidden a snare for me. ⁴Look to the right hand and see, that there is none that, for me, hath regard,—Escape is lost to me, There is no one to care for my life. ⁵I have made outcry unto thee, O Yahweh,—I have said, Thou, art my refuge, my portion, in the land of the living. ⁶Attend thou unto my loud cry, for I am brought very low,—Rescue me from my pursuers, for they are stronger than I. ⁷O bring forth, out of prison, my soul, That I may give thanks unto thy Name,—About me, let the righteous gather round, for thou wilt deal bountifully with me.

me, in thy righteousness. ²Do not then enter into judgment with thy servant, for no one living, can appear just before thee. ³For an enemy hath pursued my soul, hath crushed, to the earth, my life, hath made me dwell in dark places, like the ancient dead. ⁴Therefore hath my spirit, fainted concerning myself, Within me, hath, my heart, been confounded. ⁵I have remembered the days of aforetime, I have talked with myself of every deed of thine, Of the work of thy hands, I would speak: ⁶I have spread out my hands unto thee, My soul, is as a thirsty land, for thee. ⁷*Selah.* ⁸Speedily answer me, O Yahweh, My spirit faileth,—Do not hide thy face from me, or I shall be made like unto them who go down into the pit. ⁹Let me hear, in the morning, thy lovingkindness, for, in thee, have, I trusted,—Let me know the way in which I should walk, for, unto thee, have I uplifted my soul. ¹⁰Rescue me from my foes, O Yahweh, Unto thee, have I come seeking refuge. ¹¹Teach me to do thy good pleasure, for, thou, art my God,—Thy spirit, is good, thou wilt set me down to rest in a level land. ¹²For the sake of thy Name, O Yahweh, wilt thou give unto me life, In thy righteousness, wilt thou bring forth, out of distress, my soul; ¹³And, in thy lovingkindness, wilt thou exterminate my foes,—and destroy all the adversaries of my soul, because, I, am thy servant.

144David's. Blessed be Yahweh, my Rock, who teacheth my hands to war, my fingers to fight: ²My lovingkindness and my stronghold, my high tower and my deliverer—mine! My buckler, and he in whom I have sought refuge,—He that subdueth my people under me. ³O Yahweh! what is the earthborn, And yet thou hast acknowledged him,—the son of a mortal, And yet thou hast taken account of him: ⁴The earthborn, resembleth, a vapour, his days, are like a passing shadow. ⁵O Yahweh! bow thy heavens and come down, Touch the mountains, that they smoke: ⁶Flash forth lightning, that thou mayest scatter them, Send out thine arrows, that thou mayest confound them: ⁷Put forth thy hands from on high:—Snatch me away and rescue me out of mighty waters, out of the hand of the sons of the alien, ⁸Whose mouth, hath spoken deceit, and, whose right hand, is a right hand of falsehood. ⁹O God! a new song, will I sing unto thee,—On a harp of ten strings, will I make music to thee: ¹⁰Who giveth victory unto kings—Who snatcheth away David his servant, from the calamitous sword. ¹¹Snatch me away and rescue me out of he hand of the sons of the alien,—whose mouth hath spoken deceit, and, whose right hand, is a right hand of falsehood:— ¹²That, our sons, may be like plants well grown while yet young,—Our daughters, like corner pillars,—carved, in the construction of a palace: ¹³Our garners, full, pouring out from one kind to another; Our flocks, multiplying by thousands—by myriads, in our open fields: ¹⁴Our oxen, well-laden; no breaking in and no departing,—and no loud lament in our places of concourse:— ¹⁵How happy the people that is in such a case! How happy the people that hath Yahweh for its God!

145A Psalm of Praise. David's. I will extol thee, my God, O King, and will bless thy Name, to times age-abiding and beyond: ²Every day, will I bless thee, and praise thy Name, to times age-abiding and beyond. ³Great is Yahweh—and worthy to be heartily praised, And, his greatness, is unsearchable. ⁴Generation unto generation, shall celebrate thy works, and, thy mighty deeds, shall they tell: ⁵The splendour of the glory of thy majesty, shall they speak, and, thy wonders, will I utter. ⁶And, the might of thy terrible acts, shall men speak, and, as for thy greatness, I will recount it. ⁷The memory of thy great goodness, shall men pour forth, and, thy righteousness, shall they shout aloud. ⁸Gracious and compassionate, is Yahweh,—slow to anger, and of great lovingkindness. ⁹Good is Yahweh to all, and, his tender compassions, are over all his works. ¹⁰All thy works, O Yahweh, will give thanks unto thee,—and, thy men of lovingkindness, will bless thee: ¹¹The glory of thy kingdom, will they tell,—and, thy power, will they speak. ¹²To make known to the sons of men, his mighty deeds, and the splendid glory of his kingdom. ¹³Thy kingdom, is a kingdom of all ages,—and, thy dominion, is over generation after generation. ¹⁴Yahweh is ready to uphold all who are falling, and to raise all who are laid prostrate. ¹⁵The eyes of all, for thee, do wait, and, thou, givest them their food in its season. ¹⁶Thou, openest thy hand, and fillest every living thing with gladness. ¹⁷Righteous is Yahweh in all his ways, and kind in all his works. ¹⁸Near is Yahweh to all who call upon him,—to all them who call upon him in faithfulness. ¹⁹The desire of them who revere him, will he fulfil, and, their cry, will he hear, and will save them. ²⁰Yahweh preserveth all who love him, but, all the lawless, will he destroy. ²¹The praise of Yahweh, my mouth shall speak, That all flesh may bless his holy Name, Unto times age-abiding and beyond.

146Praise ye Yah, Praise, O my soul, Yahweh. ²I will praise Yahweh while I live! I will make melody to my God while I continue! ³Do not ye trust in nobles, in a son of man who hath no deliverance: ⁴His spirit, goeth forth, he returneth to his ground, In that very day, his thoughts perish. ⁵How happy is he that hath the GOD of Jacob as his help, whose hope, is on Yahweh his God:— ⁶Who made The heavens and the earth, The sea and all that is therein, Who keepeth faithfulness to times age-abiding: ⁷Who executeth justice for the oppressed, who giveth food to the famishing, Yahweh, who liberateth prisoners; ⁸Yahweh, who opened the eyes of the blind, Yahweh, who raiseth the prostrate, Yahweh, who loveth the righteous; ⁹Yahweh, who preserveth sojourners, The fatherless and widows, he relieveth,—but, the way of the lawless, he overturneth. ¹⁰Yahweh, will reign, to times age-abiding, Thy God, O Zion, to generation after generation. Praise ye Yah!

147 Praise ye Yah, For it is good, to make melody to our GOD,—For it is delightful, seemly is praise! ²Yahweh, is building Jerusalem, The outcasts of Israel, will he gather together. ³He is healing the broken in heart,—and binding up their hurts. ⁴Counting the number of the stars, To all of them—names, he giveth. ⁵Great is our Lord, and of abounding strength, And, his knowledge, cannot be expressed. ⁶Yahweh, relieveth the humbled! casting the lawless down to the earth. ⁷Respond to Yahweh with thanksgiving, Make melody to our God with the lyre. ⁸Who covereth the heavens with clouds, preparing rain for the earth, who causeth the mountains to sprout grass: ⁹Giving, to the beast, its food, to the young ravens, when they cry. ¹⁰Not in the strength of the horse, doth he delight, Not in the legs of a man, hath he pleasure: ¹¹Yahweh, hath pleasure, in them who revere him, in them who wait for his lovingkindness. ¹²Laud thou, O Jerusalem, Yahweh, Praise thy God, O Zion: ¹³For he hath strengthened the bars of thy gates, He hath blessed thy children in thy midst: ¹⁴Who maketh thy boundaries to be peace, With the marrow of wheat, doth he satisfy thee: ¹⁵Who sendeth his utterance to the earth, How swiftly, runneth his word! ¹⁶Who giveth snow like wool, Hoar-frost—like ashes, he scattereth: ¹⁷Casting forth his ice like crumbs, Before his cold, who can stand? ¹⁸He sendeth forth his word and melteth them, He causeth his wind to blow, the waters, stream along: ¹⁹Declaring his word unto Jacob, His statutes and his regulations, unto Israel. ²⁰He hath not dealt so with any nation, and, his regulations, he maketh not known to them. Praise ye Yah!

148 Praise ye Yah, Praise Yahweh, out of the heavens, Praise him, in the heights; ²Praise him, all his messengers, Praise him, all his host; ³Praise him, sun and moon, Praise him, all ye stars of light; ⁴Praise him, O ye heavens of heavens, and ye waters that are above the heavens; ⁵Let them praise the Name of Yahweh, for, he, commanded, and they were created; ⁶So caused he them to stand perpetually—age-abidingly, A decree, hath he given, and it passeth not beyond. ⁷Praise Yahweh, out of the earth, sea monsters, and all resounding deeps; ⁸Fire and hail, snow and vapour, stormy wind, fulfilling his word; ⁹Ye mountains, and all hills, fruit trees, and all cedars; ¹⁰Thou wild-beast, and all ye cattle, crawling creature, and bird of wing; ¹¹Kings of earth, and all peoples, Rulers, and all judges of earth; ¹²Young men, yea even virgins, elders, and children. ¹³Let them praise the Name of Yahweh, for lofty is his Name alone, His splendour is over earth and heavens. ¹⁴Therefore hath he exalted a horn for his people, a praise for all his men of lovingkindness, for the sons of Israel—a people near him, Praise ye Yah!

149 Praise ye Yah, Sing to Yahweh a song that is new, his praise in the convocation of the men of lovingkindness. ²Let Israel rejoice in him that made him, Let the sons of Zion exult in their king; ³Let them praise his Name in the dance, with timbrel and lyre, Let them make music to him. ⁴For Yahweh is taking pleasure in his people, He will beautify humbled ones with victory. ⁵Let the men of lovingkindness exult as they glory, Let them shout aloud upon their beds: ⁶The high songs of GOD be in their throat, and a two-edged sword in their hand: ⁷To execute an avenging among the nations, rebukes among the peoples: ⁸To bind their kings with fetters, and their honoured ones with iron bands: ⁹To execute upon them the sentence written, An honour, shall it be to all his men of lovingkindness. Praise ye Yah!

150 Praise ye Yah, Praise ye GOD in his sanctuary, Praise him, in his strong expanse: ²Praise him, for his mighty deeds, Praise him, according to his exceeding greatness: ³Praise him, with the blast of a horn, Praise him, with the harp and lyre: ⁴Praise him, with timbrel and dance,—Praise him, with stringed instrument and flute, ⁵Praise him, with cymbals of clear tone,—Praise him, with cymbals of loud clang: ⁶Let, every breathing thing, praise Yah, Praise ye Yah!

Proverbs

¹The proverbs of Solomon, son of David, King of Israel: ²For the knowledge of wisdom and correction, for discerning the sayings of intelligence; ³For receiving the correction of prudence, righteousness and justice, and equity; ⁴For giving To the simple shrewdness, To the young man, knowledge and discretion. ⁵A wise man, will hear, and will increase learning, and a, discreet man, wise counsels, will acquire, ⁶By gaining discernment of proverb, and satire, the words of the wise, and their dark sayings. ⁷The reverence of Yahweh, is the beginning of knowledge, Wisdom and correction, the foolish have despised. ⁸Hear, my son, the correction of thy father, and do not reject the instruction of thy mother; ⁹For, a wreath of beauty, shall they be to thy head, and chains of ornament, to thy neck. ¹⁰My son, if sinners entice thee, do not consent. ¹¹If they say—Come with us,—Let us lie in wait for blood, Let us watch in secret for him who is needlessly innocent; ¹²Let us engulf them, like hades, alive, While in health, like them who are going down to the pit; ¹³All costly substance, shall we find, We shall fill our houses with spoil; ¹⁴Thy lot, shalt thou cast into our midst, One purse, shall there be, for us all. ¹⁵My son, do not walk in the way with them, Withhold thy foot from their path. ¹⁶For, their feet, to mischief, do run, and haste to the shedding of blood. ¹⁷Surely, in vain, is spread the net, in the sight of aught that hath wings! ¹⁸Yet, they, for their own blood, lie in wait, They watch in secret for their own life. ¹⁹Such are the ways of every one that graspeth with greed, The life of the owners thereof, it taketh away! ²⁰Wisdom, in the open place, soundeth forth, in the broadways, she raiseth her voice; ²¹At the head of bustling streets, she crieth aloud,—at the openings of the gates in the city—her sayings, she doth utter:— ²²How long, ye simple ones, will ye love simplicity? and, scoffers, in scoffing, delight them? and, dullards, hate knowledge? ²³Will ye turn, at my reproof? Lo! I will pour out to you my spirit, I will make known my words to you. ²⁴Because I called, and ye refused, I stretched out my hand, and no one regarded; ²⁵But ye dismissed all my counsel, and, to my rebuke, would not yield, ²⁶I also, at your calamity, will laugh, I will mock, when cometh your dread; ²⁷When cometh as a crashing your dread, and, your calamity, as a storm-wind, overtaketh, when there come upon you, distress and anguish. ²⁸Then, will they call me, but I will not answer, they will seek me diligently, but shall not find me. ²⁹Because they hated knowledge, and, the reverence of Yahweh, did not choose; ³⁰Consented not to my counsel, disdained all my rebuke, ³¹Therefore shall they eat of the fruit of their own way, and, with their own counsels, be filled. ³²For, the turning away of the simple, will slay them,—and, the carelessness of dullards, will destroy them. ³³Whereas, he that hearkeneth unto me, shall dwell safely, and be at rest, without dread of misfortune.

less, out of the earth, shall he cut off, and, traitors, shall they tear away therefrom.

3My son, mine instruction, do not thou forget, and, my commandment, let thy heart observe; 2For, length of days and years of life, and blessedness, shall they and to thee. 3Lovingkindness and faithfulness, let them not forsake thee,—bind them, upon thy neck, write them upon the tablet of thy heart: 4So find thou favour and good repute, in the eyes of God and man. 5Trust thou in Yahweh, with all thy heart, and, unto thine own understanding, do not lean: 6In all thy ways, acknowledge him, and, he, will make straight thy paths. 7Do not become wise in thine own eyes, revere Yahweh, and avoid evil: 8Healing, shall it be to thy body, and refreshing, to thy bones. 9Honour thou Yahweh, with thy substance, and with the firstfruit of all thine increase; 10So shall thy storehouses be filled with plenty, and, with new wine, shall thy vats overflow. 11The, chastening of Yahweh, my son, do not reject, nor loathe his rebuke; 12For, whom Yahweh loveth, he correcteth, he causeth pain to the son in whom he delighteth. 13How happy the man who hath found wisdom, and the man who draweth forth understanding, 14For better is her merchandise, than the merchandise of silver, yea, than gold, her increase; 15More precious, is she, than corals, yea, none of thy delightful things, doth equal her: 16Length of days, is in her right hand, in her left, are riches and honour; 17Her ways, are ways of pleasantness, and, all her paths, are peace; 18A tree of life, is she, to them who secure her,—and, they who hold her fast, are every one to be pronounced happy. 19Yahweh, in wisdom, founded the earth, establishing the heavens with understanding; 20By his knowledge, the resounding deeps were burst open, and, the skies, drop down dew. 21My son, let them not depart from thine eyes, guard thou counsel, and purpose: 22So shall they become life to thy soul, and an adorning to thy neck; 23Then, shalt thou walk securely in thy way, and, thy foot, shall not stumble; 24When thou sittest down, thou shalt have no dread, yea thou shalt lie down, and sweet shall be thy sleep. 25Be not thou afraid of sudden dread, nor of the desolation of the lawless, when it cometh. 26For, Yahweh, will be in all thy ways, and will keep thy foot from the snare. 27Withhold not good from them who ask it, when it is in power of thy hand to do it: 28Do not say to thy neighbour, Go and come again, and to-morrow I will give, when thou hast it by thee. 29Devise not against thy neighbour an injury, seeing that, he, dwelleth securely by thee. 30Contend not with a man without cause, if he hath dealt thee no wrong. 31Do not thou envy the man of violence, neither choose thou any of his ways; 32For, an abomination to Yahweh, is the tortuous man, but, with the upright, he is intimate. 33The curse of Yahweh, is in the house of the lawless one, but, the home of the righteous, he blesseth. 34Though at scoffers he scoffeth, yet,

4Hear, ye sons, the correction of a father, and attend, that ye may know understanding. 2For, good teaching, have I given you, mine instruction, do not ye forsake. 3For, a son, became I to my father, tender and most precious in the sight of my mother. 4So he taught me, and said to me—Let thy heart, lay hold of my words, Keep my commandments and live! 5Acquire wisdom, acquire understanding, Do not forget, neither decline thou from the sayings of my mouth. 6Do not forsake her, and she will guard thee,—love her and she will keep thee. 7The principal thing, is wisdom, acquire thou wisdom, With all thine acquisition, acquire thou understanding. 8Exalt her, and she will set thee on high, she will bring thee to honour, when thou dust embrace her: 9She will give for thy head, a wreath of beauty, A crown of adorning, will she bestow upon thee. 10Hear, my son, and receive my sayings, and they will multiply to thee the years of life. 11In the way of wisdom, have I taught thee, I have guided thee in tracks of uprightness. 12When thou walkest, thy step shall not be hemmed in, and, if thou runnest, thou shalt not stumble. 13Take fast hold of correction, let her not go,—keep her, for, she, is thy life. 14Upon the path of the lawless, do not thou enter, and do not advance in the way of the wicked: 15Avoid it, do not pass thereon—turn from it, and depart. 16For they sleep not, unless they can do mischief,—They rob themselves of their sleep, if they cannot cause someone to stumble, 17For they consume bread gotten by lawlessness, and, wine obtained by violence, they drink. 18But, the path of the righteous, is as the light of dawn,—going on and brightening, unto meridian day. 19The way of the lawless, is like darkness, they know not, at what they stumble. 20My son, to my words, attend, to my sayings, incline thou thine ear; 21Let them not depart from thine eyes, keep them in the midst of thy heart; 22For, life, they are, to them who find them,—and, to every part of one's flesh, they bring healing. 23Above all that must be guarded, keep thou thy heart, for, out of it, are the issues of life. 24Remove from thee, perverseness of mouth, and, craftiness of lips, put far from thee. 25Let, thine eyes, right onward, look,—and, thine eyelashes, point straight before thee. 26Make level the track of thy foot, that, all thy ways, may be directed aright: 27Decline not, to the right hand or to the left,—Turn away thy foot from wickedness.

5My son, to my wisdom, attend, and, to mine understanding, incline thou thine ear: 2That thou mayest preserve discretion,—and, as for knowledge, that thy lips may guard it. 3For, with sweet droppings, drip the lips of her that is a stranger, and, smoother than oil, is her mouth; 4But, the latter end of her, is bitter as wormwood, sharp, as a two-edged sword! ⁵Her feet, are going down to death,—on hades, will her steps take firm hold. ⁶Lest, the path of life, she should ponder, her tracks have wandered she knoweth not whither. ⁷Now, therefore, ye sons, hearken unto me, and do not turn away from the sayings of my mouth. ⁸Keep far from her thy way, and do not go near the opening of her house: ⁹Lest thou give, to other men, thy vigour, and thy years, to him that is cruel: ¹⁰Lest strange men, be well fed, by thy strength, and, thy toils, be in the house of the alien. ¹¹So shalt thou grieve in thy latter end, in the failing of thy flesh and of thy healthy condition; ¹²And thou shalt say—How I hated correction! and, reproof, my heart disdained; ¹³Neither hearkened I to the voice of my teachers, nor, to my instructors, inclined I mine ear: ¹⁴Soon was I in all evil, in the midst of convocation and assembly. ¹⁵Drink thou water out of thine own cistern, and flowing streams out of the midst of thine own well. ¹⁶Let not thy fountains, flow over, abroad, in the streets, dividings of waters: ¹⁷Let them be for thyself, alone, and not for strangers with thee. ¹⁸Let thy well-spring be blessed,—and get thy joy from the wife of thy youth:—¹⁹A loving hind! a graceful doe! let, her bosom, content thee at all times, and, in her love, mayst thou stray evermore. ²⁰Wherefore, then, shouldst thou stray, my son, with a strange woman? or embrace the bosom of a woman unknown? ²¹For, before the eyes of Yahweh, are the ways of a man,—and, all his tracks, doth he consider: ²²His own iniquities, shall entrap him with the lawless, and, by the cords of his own sin, shall he be seized. ²³He, shall die, for lack of discipline, and, by the abounding of his perversity, shall he be lost.

⁶My son, if thou have become surety for thy neighbour,—have struck for a stranger thy hands, ²Thou hast been snared by the sayings of thy mouth,—thou hast been caught by the sayings of thy mouth. ³Do this then, my son, and deliver thyself, When thou hast come into the hand of thy neighbour, Go, haste thee, and urge thy neighbour; ⁴Do not give sleep to thine eyes, or slumber to thine eyelashes; ⁵Deliver thyself, as a gazelle out of the hand, and as a bird, out of the hand of the fowler. ⁶Go to the ant, thou sluggard, observe her ways, and be wise; ⁷Which, having no harvest, scribe, or ruler, ⁸Prepareth, in the summer, her food, hath collected, in the harvest, her sustenance. ⁹How long, O sluggard, wilt thou lie? how long ere thou rise from thy sleep? ¹⁰A little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to rest:—¹¹So shall come in, as a highwayman, thy poverty, and, thy want, as one armed with a shield. ¹²An abandoned man, a man of iniquity, is he who—goeth on in perversity of mouth; ¹³Winketh with his eyes, speaketh with his foot, pointeth with his fingers; ¹⁴Hath perverse things in his heart, deviseth mischief on every occasion, strifes, he sendeth forth. ¹⁵For this cause, suddenly cometh his doom, in a moment, shall he be torn in pieces and there be no mending. ¹⁶These six things, doth Yahweh hate, yea, seven, are the abomination of his soul:—¹⁷Eyes that are lofty, a tongue that is false, and hands shedding innocent blood; ¹⁸A heart contriving iniquitous devices, feet hasting to run into mischief; ¹⁹One that uttereth lies—a false witness, and one sending forth strifes between brethren. ²⁰Observe thou, my son, the commandment of thy father, and do not decline from the instruction of thy mother: ²¹Bind them upon thy heart continually, fasten them upon thy neck; ²²When thou walkest abroad, it shall guide thee, when thou sleepest, it shall watch over thee, when thou wakest, it shall speak to thee: ²³For, a lamp, is the commandment, and, the instruction, a light, and, the way of life, are the reproofs of correction: ²⁴To keep thee from the wicked woman, from the flattery of the tongue of her that is a stranger. ²⁵Do not covet her beauty, in thy heart, neither let her take thee, by her eyelashes; ²⁶Because, for the sake of an impure woman, a man may be brought even to a cake of bread,—and, a man's wife, for a precious soul, may hunt! ²⁷Can a man snatch up fire in his bosom, and, his clothes, not be burned? ²⁸Or can a man walk upon hot coals, and, his feet, not be burned? ²⁹So, he that goeth in unto his neighbour's wife, no man shall be guiltless who toucheth her! ³⁰Men despise not a thief, when he stealeth, to satisfy his appetite, because he is famished; ³¹Yet, if found, he must pay back sevenfold, All the substance of his house, must he give: ³²He that committeth adultery with a woman, lacketh sense, A destroyer of his own life, is he that doeth it; ³³Smiting and shame, shall he find, and, his reproach, shall not be wiped out; ³⁴For, jealousy, is the rage of a man, nor will he spare, in the day of avenging; ³⁵He will not look, at any ransom, neither will he consent, though thou increase the bribe.

⁷My son, keep my sayings, and, my commandments, treasure by thee; ²Keep my commandments and live, and mine instruction, as the pupil of thine eye; ³Bind them upon thy fingers, write them, on the tablet of thy heart; ⁴Say unto wisdom, My sister, thou! and, an acquaintance, call thou, understanding: ⁵That thou mayest be kept, from the woman that is a stranger, from the female unknown, who, with her speeches, doth flatter. ⁶For, in the window of my house, through my lattice, I looked out; ⁷And saw among the simple ones, discerned among the youths, A young man lacking sense; ⁸Passing through the street, near her corner, and, on the way to her house, he sauntered along; ⁹In the twilight, in the evening of the day, in the midst of the night, and the gloom; ¹⁰And lo! a woman, came to meet him, attired as one unchaste, of a wily heart. ¹¹Boisterous, is she, and rebellious, In her house, abide not her feet; ¹²Now outside, now in the broadways, and, near every corner, she lieth in wait: ¹³So she caught him, and kissed him, and, embolding her face, she said to him: ¹⁴Peace-offerings, are by me, to-day, have I paid my vows;

¹⁵For this cause, came I forth to meet thee, to seek diligently thy face, and I have found thee: ¹⁶Coverlets, have I spread on my couch of pleasure, dark-hued stuffs, of the yarn of Egypt; ¹⁷I have sprinkled my bed, with myrrh, aloes, and cinnamon: ¹⁸Come! let us take our fill of endearments, until morning, let us delight ourselves with carresses; ¹⁹For the husband is not in his house, he hath gone on a journey afar; ²⁰A bag of silver, hath he taken in his hand, On the day of the full moon, will he enter his house. ²¹She turneth him aside, with her great persuasiveness,—with the flattery of her lips, she compelleth him: ²²Going after her instantly, as an ox, to the slaughter, he entereth, and, as in fetters, unto the correction of a fool. ²³Until an arrow cleaveth his liver, as a bird hasteth into a snare, and knoweth not, that, for his life, it is! ²⁴Now, therefore, ye sons, hearken unto me, and attend, to the sayings of my mouth; ²⁵Let not thy heart, turn aside to her ways, Do not go astray, in her paths. ²⁶For, many, wounded, hath she caused to fail,—yea strong men, slain wholly by her: ²⁷Ways to hades, are in her house, descending into the chambers of death.

8Doth not, wisdom, cry aloud? and, understanding, send forth her voice? ²At the top of the high places above the way, at the place where paths meet, she taketh her stand: ³Beside the gates, at the entrance of the city,—at the going in of the openings, she shouteth:— ⁴Unto you, O men, I call, and, my voice, is unto the sons of men; ⁵Understand, ye simple ones, shrewdness, and, ye dullards understand sense; ⁶Hear, for, princely things, will I speak, and the opening of my lips shall be of equity; ⁷For, faithfulness, shall my mouth softly utter, but, the abomination of my lips, shall be lawlessness; ⁸In righteousness, shall be all the sayings of my mouth, nothing therein, shall be crafty or perverse; ⁹All of them, shall be plain, to them who would understand, and just, to such as would gain knowledge. ¹⁰Receive my correction, and not silver, and knowledge, rather than choicest gold. ¹¹For better is wisdom, than ornaments of coral, and, no delightful things, can equal her. ¹²I, wisdom, inhabit shrewdness,—and, the knowledge of sagacious things, I gain. ¹³The reverence of Yahweh, is to hate wickedness: pride, arrogance, and the way of wickedness; And a mouth of perverse things, do I hate. ¹⁴Mine, are counsel, and effective working, I, am understanding, mine, is valour: ¹⁵By me, kings reign, and dignitaries decree righteousness; ¹⁶By me, rulers govern, and nobles—all the righteous judges: ¹⁷I love, them who love me, and, they who diligently seek me, find me: ¹⁸Riches and honour, are with me, lordly wealth, and righteousness; ¹⁹Better is my fruit, than gold—yea fine gold, and mine increase, than choice silver; ²⁰In the way of righteousness, I march along, in the middle of the paths of justice: ²¹That I may cause them who love me to inherit substance, and, their treasures, I may fill. ²²Yahweh, had constituted me the beginning of his way, before his works, at the commencement of that time; ²³At the outset of the ages, had I been established, in advance of the antiquities of the earth; ²⁴When there was no resounding deep, I had been brought forth, when there were no fountains, abounding with water; ²⁵Ere yet the mountains had been settled, before the hills, had I been brought forth; ²⁶Or ever he had made the land and the wastes, or the top of the dry parts of the world: ²⁷When he prepared the heavens, there, was I! When he decreed a vault upon the face of the resounding deep; ²⁸When he made firm the skies above, when the fountains of the resounding deep, waxed strong; ²⁹When he fixed for the sea its bound, that, the waters, should not go beyond his bidding, when he decreed the foundations of the earth:— ³⁰Then became I beside him, a firm and sure worker, then became I filled with delight, day by day, exulting before him on every occasion; ³¹Exulting in the fruitful land of his earth, Yea, my fulness of delight, was with the sons of men. ³²Now, therefore, ye sons, hearken to me, for how happy are they who, to my ways, pay regard! ³³Hear ye correction, and be wise, and do not neglect. ³⁴How happy the man that doth hearken to me,—keeping guard at my doors, day by day, watching at the posts of my gates; ³⁵For, he that findeth me, findeth life, and hath obtained favour from Yahweh; ³⁶But, he that misseth me, wrongeth his own soul, all who hate me, love death.

9Wisdom, hath builded her house, hath hewn out her seven pillars; ²hath slaughtered her beasts, hath mingled her wine, hath even set in order her table; ³hath sent forth her maidens, She crieth aloud, upon the tops of the heights of the city: ⁴Whoso is simple, let him turn in hither, as for him that lacketh sense, she saith to him— ⁵Come, feed on my food, and drink of the wine I have mingled; ⁶Forsake the simple ones, and live, and advance in the way of understanding. ⁷He that rebuketh a scoffer, getteth to himself contempt, and, he that reproveth a lawless man, getteth to himself his shame. ⁸Do not reprove a scoffer, lest he hate thee, Reprove a wise man, and he will love thee. ⁹Give to a wise man, and he will be wiser still, Inform a righteous man, and he will increase learning. ¹⁰The beginning of wisdom, is the reverence of Yahweh, and, the knowledge of the Holy, is understanding; ¹¹For, by me, shall be multiplied—thy days, and there be added to thee—the years of life. ¹²If thou art wise, thou art wise for thyself, but, if thou scoff, alone, shalt thou bear it. ¹³The woman Stupidity, is boisterous, so simple that she knoweth not what she would do; ¹⁴So she sitteth at the entrance of her house, upon a seat, in the heights of the city; ¹⁵To invite them who pass by the way, who are going straight on in their paths: ¹⁶Whoso is simple, let him turn aside hither, and, as for him that lacketh sense, she saith to him: ¹⁷Stolen waters, will be sweet,—and a secret meal, will be pleasant; ¹⁸But he knoweth not, that the shades are there;

10The Proverbs of Solomon: A wise son, maketh a glad father, but, a foolish son, is the grief of his mother. ²The treasures of lawlessness, do not profit, but, righteousness, delivereth from death. ³Yahweh, suffereth not to famish, the soul of the righteous, but, the desire of the lawless, he thrusteth away. ⁴He becometh poor, who dealeth with a slack hand, but, the hand of the diligent, maketh rich. ⁵He that gathereth in summer, is a prudent son, he that sleepeth long in harvest, is a son causing shame. ⁶Blessings, are for the head of the righteous man, but, the mouth of the lawless, covereth up wrong. ⁷The memory of the righteous, yieldeth blessing, but, the name of the lawless, dieth out. ⁸The wise in heart, will accept commandments, but, he that is foolish with his lips, shall be thrust away. ⁹He that walketh uprightly, may walk securely, but, he that maketh crooked his ways, shall be found out. ¹⁰He that winketh with the eye, causeth sorrow, and, he that is foolish with his lips, shall be thrust aside. ¹¹A well-spring of life, is the mouth of the righteous, but, the mouth of the lawless, covereth wrong. ¹²Hatred, stirreth up strifes, but, over all transgressions, love throweth a covering. ¹³In the lips of the intelligent, is found wisdom, but, a rod, is for the back of him that lacketh sense. ¹⁴Wise men, treasure up knowledge, but, the mouth of the foolish, is a terror near at hand. ¹⁵The substance of the rich, is his strong city, the terror of the poor, is their poverty. ¹⁶The labour of the righteous, leadeth to life, the increase of the lawless, to sin. ¹⁷On the way to life, is he that heedeth correction, but, he that hateth reproof, is going astray. ¹⁸He that concealeth hatred, hath false lips, and he that sendeth forth slander, the same, is a dullard. ¹⁹In the multitude of words, there wanteth not transgression, but, he that restraineth his lips, sheweth prudence. ²⁰Choice silver, is the tongue of the righteous, but, the sense of the lawless, is very small. ²¹The lips of the righteous, feed multitudes, but, the foolish, for lack of sense, shall die. ²²The blessing of Yahweh, itself maketh rich, and he addeth no grievance therewith. ²³It is, mere sport to a stupid man, to commit lewdness, but, wisdom, pertaineth to a man of understanding. ²⁴The dread of the lawless one, the same, shall overtake him, but, the desire of the righteous, shall he granted. ²⁵Like the passing away of a tempest, so the lawless one is not, but, the righteous, hath an age-abiding foundation. ²⁶As vinegar to the teeth, and as smoke to the eyes, so, is the sluggard, to them who send him. ²⁷The reverence of Yahweh, addeth days, but, the years of the lawless, shall be shortened. ²⁸The hope of the righteous, shall be gladness, but, the expectation of the lawless, shall vanish. ²⁹A refuge for the blameless, is the path of Yahweh, but, destruction, awaiteth the workers of iniquity. ³⁰The righteous, to times age-abiding, shall remain unshaken, but, the lawless, shall not inhabit the earth. ³¹The mouth of the righteous, beareth the fruit of wisdom, but, a perverse tongue, shall be cut off. ³²The lips of the righteous, know what is pleasing, but, the mouth of the lawless, speaketh perversities.

11A deceptive balance, is an abomination to Yahweh, but, a full weight, is his delight. ²When pride cometh, then cometh contempt, but, with the modest, is wisdom. ³The integrity of the upright, shall guide them, but, the crookedness of the treacherous, shall be their ruin. ⁴Wealth, shall not profit, in the day of wrath, but, righteousness, shall deliver from death. ⁵The righteousness of the blameless, shall smooth his way, but, by his own lawlessness, shall the lawless one, fall. ⁶The righteousness of the upright, shall deliver them, but, by their own craving, shall the treacherous be captured. ⁷When the lawless man dieth, his expectation, perisheth, and, the hope of strong men, hath vanished. ⁸The righteous man, out of distress, is delivered, then cometh a lawless man into his place. ⁹With the mouth, a profane man destroyeth his neighbour, but, through knowledge, shall righteous men be delivered. ¹⁰When it is, well with the righteous, the city, exulteth, When the lawless perish, there is a shout of triumph. ¹¹When the upright are blessed, exalted is the city, but, by the mouth of the lawless, it is overthrown. ¹²He that sheweth contempt for his neighbour, lacketh sense, but, a man of understanding, observeth silence. ¹³He that goeth about talebearing, revealeth a secret, but, he that is faithful in spirit, concealeth a matter. ¹⁴With no guidance, a people will fall, but, safety, lieth in the greatness of the counsellor. ¹⁵He that becometh surety for a stranger, goeth to utter ruin, but, he that hateth striking hands, is secure. ¹⁶A gracious wife, obtaineth honour, but, the diligent, shall obtain wealth. ¹⁷The man of lovingkindness, dealeth well with his own soul, but the cruel man, troubleth his own flesh. ¹⁸The lawless man, earneth the wages of falsehood, but, he that soweth righteousness, hath the reward of fidelity. ¹⁹A righteous son, turneth to life, but, he that pursueth wickedness, to his own death. ²⁰The abomination of Yahweh, are they of perverse heart, but, his delight, are the men of blameless life. ²¹Hand to hand, the wicked man shall not be held innocent, but, the seed of the righteous, hath been delivered. ²²As a ring of gold in the snout of a swine, is a woman of beauty who hath abandoned discretion. ²³The desire of the righteous, is only good, the expectation of the lawless, is wrath. ²⁴There is who scattereth, and increaseth yet more, and who withholdeth of what is due, only to come to want. ²⁵The liberal soul, shall he enriched, and, he that refresheth, shall himself also be refreshed. ²⁶He that keepeth back corn, the populace will curse him, but there is, a blessing, for the head of him that selleth. ²⁷He that diligently seeketh good, aimeth at favour, but, he that studieth mischief, it shall come on himself. ²⁸He that trusteth in his riches, the same, shall fall, but, like the leaf, shall the righteous break forth. ²⁹He that troubleth his own house, shall inherit the wind, but, a servant, shall the foolish be, to the wise in heart. ³⁰The fruit of the righteous, is a tree of life, and, he that rescueth souls, is wise. ³¹Lo! the righteous, in the earth shall be recompensed, how much more the lawless and the sinner.

¹²He that loveth correction, loveth knowledge, but, he that hateth reproof, is brutish. ²A good man, obtaineth favour from Yahweh, but, a man of wicked devices, will he condemn. ³A son of earth, shall not be established, by lawlessness, but, the root of the righteous, shall not be disturbed. ⁴A virtuous woman, is the crown of her husband, but, a veritable decay in his bones, is she that causeth shame. ⁵The plans of the righteous, are just, but, the counsels of the lawless, are deceitful. ⁶The words of the lawless, are—of lying in wait for blood, but, the mouth of the upright, shall deliver them. ⁷Overthrown are the lawless and they are not, but, the house of the righteous, shall stand. ⁸In proportion to his prudence, is a man, to be praised, but, the perverse in heart, shall be an object of contempt. ⁹Better slighted, and have a servant, than to honour oneself, and come short of bread. ¹⁰A righteous man, regardeth the desire of his beast, but, the compassions of the lawless, are cruel. ¹¹He that tilleth his land, shall be filled with food, but, he that runneth after worthless men, lacketh sense. ¹²A lawless man craveth the prey of the wicked, but, the root of the righteous, is enduring. ¹³By the transgression of the lips, is the wicked man, ensnared, but the righteous, cometh out of distress. ¹⁴Of the fruit of a man's mouth, shall he be satisfied with good, and, the dealing of the hands of a son of earth, shall be paid back to him. ¹⁵The way of the foolish, is right in his own eyes, but, he that hearkeneth to counsel, is wise. ¹⁶A foolish man, on the same day, letteth his vexation be known, but, he that concealeth an affront, is prudent. ¹⁷He that whispereth faithfulness, declareth righteousness, but, a false witness, is a fraud. ¹⁸There is who babbleth, as with thrusts of a sword, but, the tongue of the wise, hath healing. ¹⁹A lip that is faithful, shall be firm to futurity, but, only for a twinkling, is the tongue that is false. ²⁰Deceit, is in the heart of contrivers of mischief, but, to the counsellors of peace, shall be joy. ²¹Unseemly to the righteous, is any trouble, but, the lawless, are full of misfortune. ²²An abomination to Yahweh, are lips that are false, but, he that dealeth faithfully, is his delight. ²³A prudent man, concealeth knowledge, but, the heart of dullards, proclaimeth folly. ²⁴The hand of the diligent, shall hear rule, but, the indolent, shall come under tribute. ²⁵When anxiety is in the heart of a man, one may bow him down, but, a good word, maketh him glad. ²⁶The righteous man guideth his neighbour, but, the way of the lawless, leadeth them astray. ²⁷Indolence, roasteth not, his own game, but, the substance of a man, is precious, when he is diligent. ²⁸In the way of righteousness, is life, and, in the path thereof, immortality, ¹³A wise son, cometh of a father's correction, but, a scoffer, heareth not a rebuke. ²Of the fruit of his mouth, shall a man eat what is good, but, the soul of the treacherous, shall be sated with violence. ³He that watcheth his mouth, guardeth his soul, He that openeth wide his lips, it shall be his ruin. ⁴The sluggard, desireth, but his soul hath, nothing. But, the soul of the diligent, shall be enriched. ⁵A word of falsehood, the righteous man, hateth, but, the lawless, causeth shame and disgrace. ⁶Righteousness, guardeth the man of blameless way, but, lawlessness, overthroweth the sinner. ⁷There is who feigneth himself rich, yet hath nothing at all, who pleadeth poverty, yet hath great substance. ⁸The ransom of a man's life, is his wealth, but, the poor, heareth not rebuke. ⁹The light of the righteous, rejoiceth, but, the lamp of the lawless, goeth out. ¹⁰Only by pride, doth one cause contention, but, with the well-advised, is wisdom. ¹¹Wealth gotten by greed, diminisheth, but, he that gathereth by little, increaseth. ¹²Hope deferred, sickeneth the heart,—but, a tree of life, is desire fulfilled. ¹³He that despiseth a matter, shall get pledged thereto, but, he that revereth a commandment, the same shall be recompensed. ¹⁴the instruction of the wise, is a well-spring of life, by departing from the snares of death. ¹⁵Sound discretion, yieldeth favour, but, the way of the treacherous, is rugged. ¹⁶Every prudent man, maketh use of knowledge, but, a dullard, spreadeth folly. ¹⁷A lawless messenger, falleth into mischief, but, a faithful herald, bringeth healing. ¹⁸Poverty and contempt, are for him that neglecteth correction, but, he that regardeth reproof, shall be honoured. ¹⁹A desire fulfilled, is sweet to the soul, but it is, an abomination to the lawless, to depart from evil. ²⁰He that walketh with the wise, becometh wise, but, the friend of dullards, becometh foolish. ²¹Evil pursueth, sinners, but, unto the righteous, shall good be recompensed. ²²A good man, leaveth an inheritance to children's children, but, laid up for the righteous, is the wealth of the sinner. ²³Much food, is in the fallow ground of the poor, but there is that is swept away, for want of justice. ²⁴He that withholdeth his rod, hateth his son,—but, he that loveth him, carefully correcteth him. ²⁵The righteous, eateth to satisfy his appetite, but, the belly of the lawless, shall want.

deceive, but a false witness, uttereth deceitful things. ⁶A scoffer seeketh wisdom, and there is none, but, knowledge, to the discerning, is easy. ⁷Get thee from the presence of a man that is a dullard, when thou perceivest not the lips of knowledge. ⁸The wisdom of the prudent, is to understand his way, but, the folly of dullards, is a fraud. ⁹the foolish, scoff at guilt, but, between the upright, is good pleasure. ¹⁰The heart, knoweth its own bitterness, and, in its joy, no stranger shareth. ¹¹The house of the lawless, shall be destroyed, but, the tent of the upright, shall flourish. ¹²There is a way that enticeth a man, but, at the latter end thereof, are the ways of death! ¹³Even, in laughter, the heart may be in pain, and, the latter end of gladness, be grief. ¹⁴With his own ways, shall be filled the backslider in heart, and, from himself, shall a good man be satisfied. ¹⁵The simple, believeth every word, but, the prudent, looketh well to his going. ¹⁶A wise man, feareth, and avoideth evil, but, a dullard, is haughty and confident. ¹⁷The impatient, worketh folly, and, a man of wicked devices, is hated. ¹⁸The simple inherit folly, but, the shrewd, crowneth himself with knowledge. ¹⁹Abased are the wicked, before the good, and, the lawless, at the gates of the righteous. ²⁰Even by his neighbour, is poor man hated, but, the lovers of the rich man, are many. ²¹He that sheweth contempt for his neighbour, sinneth, but, he that sheweth favour to the afflicted, how happy is he! ²²Shall they not, become vagrants, who devise evil? but, lovingkindness and faithfulness, be to them who devise good. ²³By all labour, there will be abundance, but, the talk of the lips, tendeth only to want. ²⁴the crown of the wise, is their wealth, but, the folly of dullards, is, folly. ²⁵A deliverer of souls, is a faithful witness, but, he that uttereth falsehoods, is a fraud. ²⁶In the reverence of Yahweh, is strong security, and, his children, shall have a place of refuge. ²⁷The reverence of Yahweh, is a well-spring of life, that a man may avoid the snares of death. ²⁸In the multitude of a people, is the majesty of the king, but, in the ceasing of population, is the ruin of the prince. ²⁹One slow to anger, hath great understanding, but, the hasty in spirit, exalteth folly. ³⁰The life of the whole body, is a tranquil mind, but, a decay of the bones, is jealousy. ³¹The oppressor of the poor, hath reproached his Maker, but he that sheweth favour to the needy, is one who, holdeth Him in honour. ³²By his own wickedness, shall the lawless man, be thrust down, but the righteous, seeketh refuge in his integrity. ³³In the heart of the intelligent, reposeth wisdom, but, in the midst of dullards, it maketh itself known. ³⁴Righteousness, exalteth a nation, but, a reproach to any people, is sin. ³⁵The good-pleasure of a king, is due to a servant who is discreet, but, his indignation, shall be against him that bringeth shame.

³In every place, are the eyes of Yahweh, observing the evil and the good. ⁴Gentleness of the tongue, is a tree of life, but, crookedness therein, a grievous wound in the spirit. ⁵A foolish son, spurneth the correction of his father, but, he that heedeth a reproof, sheweth prudence. ⁶The household of the righteous man, is a great treasure, but, in the increase of the lawless, is disturbance. ⁷The lips of the wise, scatter abroad knowledge, but, the heart of dullards, is not right. ⁸The sacrifice of lawless men, is an abomination to Yahweh, but, the prayer of the upright, is his delight. ⁹An abomination to Yahweh, is the way of the lawless, but, the pursuer of righteousness, he loveth. ¹⁰There is, grievous correction, for him that forsaketh the right path, He that hateth rebuke, shall die. ¹¹Hades and destruction, are before Yahweh, how much more then, the hearts of the sons of men. ¹²A scoffer, loveth not, one who reproveth him, unto the wise, doth he not go. ¹³A joyful heart, maketh a pleasing countenance,—but, in sorrow of heart, is a stricken spirit. ¹⁴The heart of the intelligent, seeketh knowledge, but, the mouth of dullards, feedeth on folly. ¹⁵All the days of the afflicted, are sorrowful, but, a cheerful heart, is a continual banquet. ¹⁶Better is a little, with the reverence of Yahweh, than great treasure, and disquietude therewith. ¹⁷Better is an allowance of herbs, and love, there, than a fatted ox, and hatred therewith. ¹⁸A wrathful man, stirreth up strife, but, he that is slow to anger, calmeth contention. ¹⁹The way of the sluggard, is like a thorn hedge, but, the path of the upright, is a raised road. ²⁰A wise son, maketh a glad father,—but, a dullard, despiseth his own mother. ²¹Folly, is joy to him that lacketh sense,—but, a man of understanding, taketh a straight course. ²²Plans, are frustrated, for lack of consultation, but, by the multitude of counsellors, shall counsel, be established. ²³A man hath joy, in the answer of his own mouth, and, a word in its season,—how good! ²⁴The way of life, is upwards to the prudent, that he may depart from hades beneath. ²⁵The house of proud men, will Yahweh tear down, but he will maintain the boundary of the widow. ²⁶An abomination to Yahweh, are the plottings of the wicked, but, with the pure, are sayings of sweetness. ²⁷He, troubleth his own house, who graspeth with greed, but, he that hateth gifts, shall live. ²⁸The heart of the righteous, studieth to answer, but, the mouth of the lawless, belcheth out mischiefs. ²⁹Far off is Yahweh, from the lawless, but, the prayer of the righteous, will he hear. ³⁰The sparkling of bright eyes, rejoiceth the heart, Good news, giveth marrow to the bones. ³¹The ear that heareth the reproof which giveth life, in the midst of the wise, shall remain. ³²He that declineth correction, despiseth his own soul, but, he that heareth reproof, gaineth sense. ³³The reverence of Yahweh, is the correction of wisdom, and, before honour, is humility.

from Yahweh, cometh the answer of the tongue. ²All the ways of a man, may be pure in his own eyes, but, he that testeth spirits, is Yahweh. ³Roll, upon Yahweh, thy doings, that thy plans, may be established. ⁴Everything, hath Yahweh made for its own purpose, yea, even the lawless one, for the day of calamity. ⁵An abomination to Yahweh, is every one who is haughty in heart, hand to hand, he shall not be held innocent. ⁶By lovingkindness and fidelity, shall iniquity be covered, and, in the revering of Yahweh, is a turning away from wrong. ⁷When, acceptable to Yahweh, are the ways of a man, even his enemies, doth he cause to make peace with him. ⁸Better a little with righteousness, than large revenues, without justice. ⁹A man's heart, deviseth his way, but, Yahweh, directeth his steps. ¹⁰An oracle, is on the lips of a king, in giving sentence, his mouth must not be unfaithful. ¹¹The balance and scales of justice, belong to Yahweh, and, his handiwork, are all the weights of the bag. ¹²The abomination of kings, is to work lawlessness, for, by righteousness, is established a throne. ¹³The delight of kings, are lips of righteousness,—and, the words of uprightness, he loveth. ¹⁴The wrath of a king, meaneth messengers of death, but, a man who is wise, will appease it. ¹⁵In the light of a king's countenance, is life, and, his good-pleasure, is like the cloud of harvest-rain. ¹⁶To acquire wisdom, how much better than gold! and, to get hold of understanding, more choice than silver! ¹⁷The highway of the upright, is to avoid evil, He preserveth his soul, who guardeth his way. ¹⁸Before grievous injury, pride! and, before a fall, haughtiness of spirit! ¹⁹Better is lowliness of spirit, with the patient, than a portion of spoil, with the proud. ²⁰He that showeth discretion concerning a matter, shall find good, and, he that trusteth in Yahweh, how happy is he! ²¹The wise in heart, shall be called intelligent, and, sweetness of lips, increaseth persuasiveness. ²²A well-spring of life, is discretion to its owner, but, the correction of the foolish, is folly. ²³The heart of the wise, giveth discretion to his mouth, and, upon his lips, increaseth persuasiveness. ²⁴A comb of honey, are pleasant words, sweet to the taste and healing to the bone. ²⁵There is a way that enticeth a man, but, at the latter end thereof, are the ways of death. ²⁶The appetite of the toiler, hath toiled for him, for his mouth, hath urged him on. ²⁷An abandoned man, diggeth up mischief,—and, upon his lips, as it were a fire is scorching. ²⁸A perverse man, sendeth forth strife, and, a tattler, separateth intimate friends. ²⁹A ruthless man, enticeth his neighbour, and leadeth him in a way, not good. ³⁰Closing his eyes, to devise perverse things, biting his lips, he hath plotted mischief. ³¹A crown of adorning, is a hoary head, in the way of righteousness, it should be found. ³²Better he that is slow to anger, than a hero, and he that ruleth his spirit, than he that captureth a city. ³³Into the lap, is cast the lot, but, from Yahweh, is its every decision.

¹⁷Better a dry morsel, and peace therewith, than a house full of contentious sacrifices. ²A prudent servant, shall rule over a son who causeth shame, and, in the midst of brothers, shall he share the inheritance. ³Finishing-pot for silver, crucible for gold, but, he that trieth hearts, is Yahweh. ⁴Discord, giveth heed to the aggrieving lip,—Falsehood, giveth ear to the destroying tongue. ⁵He that mocketh the poor, hath reproached his Maker, He that maketh merry at distress, shall not be held innocent. ⁶The crown of old men, consists of children's children, and the adornment of children, is their fathers. ⁷Unseemly in an unworthy man, is the lip of excellence, much more, in one of noble mind, the lip of falsehood. ⁸A gift, in the eyes of its owner, is, a stone of beauty, whithersoever it turneth, it bringeth prosperity. ⁹He that hideth a transgression, seeketh love, but, he that repeateth a matter, separateth intimate friends. ¹⁰A reproof sinketh more deeply into an intelligent man than a hundred stripes, into a dullard! ¹¹Nothing less than rebellion, doth a wicked man seek, and, a relentless messenger, shall be sent out against him. ¹²Let a bereaved bear encounter man, rather than a dullard, with his folly! ¹³He that returneth evil for good, evil shall not depart from his house. ¹⁴A letting forth of water, is the beginning of strife, therefore, before it breaketh out, abandon, contention. ¹⁵He that justifieth the lawless, and he that condemneth the righteous, an abomination to Yahweh, are they, both. ¹⁶Wherefore is there a price in the hand of a dullard? that he who is without sense, may acquire wisdom. ¹⁷At all times, doth a friend love, and, a brother for distress, must be born. ¹⁸A man lacking sense, is one who striketh hands, giving security, before his neighbour. ¹⁹A lover of transgression, is one who loveth strife, he that heighteneth his door, seeketh grievous harm. ²⁰The crooked in heart, shall not find good, and, he that is perverse with his tongue, shall fall into wickedness. ²¹He that begetteth a dullard, it is to his own grief, neither can the father of the base, rejoice. ²²A joyful heart, worketh an excellent cure,—but, a stricken spirit, drieth up the bone. ²³A bribe out of his bosom, doth a lawless man take, to pervert the ways of justice. ²⁴Before the face of the discerning, is wisdom, but, the eyes of a dullard, are in the ends of the earth. ²⁵A vexation to his father, is the son that is a dullard, and a bitterness, to her that bare him. ²⁶Surely, to chastise the righteous, is not good, to smite the noble-minded for equity. ²⁷Sparing of his words, is one who valueth knowledge, and, of a thoughtful spirit, is a man of intelligence. ²⁸Even a fool, holding his peace, is accounted, wise,—He that closeth his lips, is thought to have understanding.

¹⁸A man seeketh, for satisfaction, going his own way, through all safe counsel, he breaketh. ²A dullard, delighteth not, in understanding, in nothing save the exposing of his own heart. ³When the lawless man cometh in,

then cometh also contempt, and, with shame, reproach. ⁴Deep waters, are the words of a man's mouth,—a bubbling brook, the well-spring of wisdom. ⁵To prefer a lawless man, is not good, thrusting away the righteous, in judgment. ⁶the lips of a dullard, enter into contention, and his mouth, for blows, crieth out. ⁷The mouth of a dullard, is his ruin, and, his lips, are a snare to his soul. ⁸the words of a tattler, are dainties, they, therefore go down into the chambers of the inner man. ⁹Surely he that is slothful in his work, brother, is he to a master at laying waste. ¹⁰A tower of strength, is the Name of Yahweh, therinto, runneth the righteous, and is safe. ¹¹The substance of a rich man, is his strong city, and like a high wall, in his imagination. ¹²Before grievous injury, a man's heart is haughty, and, before honour, is humility. ¹³He that answereth before he heareth, a folly, it is to him, and, a reproach. ¹⁴The spirit of a man, sustaineth his sickness, but, a dejected spirit, who can bear it? ¹⁵the heart of the intelligent, acquireth knowledge, yea, the ear of the wise, seeketh knowledge. ¹⁶The gift of a man, maketh room for him, and, before great men, setteth him down. ¹⁷Righteous is he that is first in his own cause, then cometh his neighbour, and thoroughly searcheth him. ¹⁸The lot causeth, contentions, to cease, and, the mighty, it parteth. ¹⁹A brother estranged, is worse than a strong city,—and, contentions, are as the bar of a citadel. ²⁰Of the fruit of a man's mouth, shall his inmost mind be satisfied, with the product of his lips, shall he be satisfied. ²¹Death and life, are in the power of the tongue, and, its friends, shall eat its fruits. ²²Who hath found a wife, hath found a blessing, and hath obtained favour from Yahweh. ²³Supplications, doth the poor man utter, but, the rich, answereth fiercely. ²⁴A man having many friends, shall come to ruin, but there is a loving one, who sticketh closer than a brother.

19 Better is a poor man, walking in his integrity, than one of perverse lips, and, he, a dullard. ²Surely, for the soul to be, without knowledge, is not good, and, he that hasteth with his feet, strayeth. ³The folly of a man, subverteth his way, and, against Yahweh, his heart is angry. ⁴Wealth, addeth many friends, but, the poor man, from his own friend, is parted. ⁵A false witness, shall not be held innocent, and, he that uttereth lies, shall not escape. ⁶Many, will entreat the favour of a noble, and, every one, is a friend to a man abounding in gifts. ⁷All the brethren of a poor man, hate him, how much more have, his friends, gone far from him, he may hunt up promises—there are none. ⁸He that acquireth sense, loveth his own soul, he that guardeth understanding, shall find blessing. ⁹A false witness, shall not be held innocent, and, he that uttereth lies, shall perish. ¹⁰Unseemly for dullard, is delicate living, how much more for, a servant, to bear rule over princes. ¹¹The discretion of a man, deferreth his anger, and, his adorning, is to pass over transgression. ¹²The growl as

of a young lion, is the rage of a king, but, like dew upon the grass, is his good pleasure. ¹³Engulfing ruin to his father, is a son that is a dullard,—and, a continuous dripping, are the contentions of a wife. ¹⁴House and substance, are an inheritance from one's fathers, but, from Yahweh, cometh a wife who is prudent. ¹⁵Sloth, falleth into a deep sleep, and, a soul that is indolent, shall famish. ¹⁶One who guardeth the commandment, guardeth his life, he that is reckless in his ways, shall die. ¹⁷A lender to Yahweh, is one who sheweth favour to the poor, and, his good deed, He will pay him back. ¹⁸Correct thy son, because there is hope, yet, not so as to slay him, let thy passion be excited. ¹⁹A man in a rage, taketh away the penalty,—nevertheless, if thou let him go free, the more stripes must thou add. ²⁰Hear counsel, receive correction, that thou mayest be wise in thine after-life. ²¹Many are the devices in a man's heart, but, the counsel of Yahweh, that, shall stand. ²²The charm of a man, is his lovingkindness,—and better a poor man, than one who deceiveth. ²³The reverence of Yahweh, leadeth to life, satisfied then, let a man remain—let him not be visited by calamity. ²⁴A sluggard burieth his hand in the dish, even unto his own mouth, will he not bring it back. ²⁵The scoffer, thou shalt smite, and, the simple, will beware, but correct a man of intelligence—he will understand teaching. ²⁶He that ruineth his father, and chaseth away his mother, is a son causing shame and reproach. ²⁷Cease, my son, to hear instruction that would cause thee to wander from the sayings of knowledge. ²⁸An abandoned witness, scorneth justice, and, the mouth of lawless men, swalloweth iniquity. ²⁹Prepared for scoffers, are punishments, and stripes, for the back of dullards.

20 Wine is, a scoffer, and strong drink, a brawler, every one therefore who erreth therein, is unwise. ²The growl as of a young lion, is the dread inspired by a king, he that provoketh him, endangereth his own life. ³Honour, hath the man who sitteth away from strife, but, any fool, may break through. ⁴By reason of the autumn, a sluggard will not plough, therefore shall he beg in harvest, and there be nothing. ⁵Deep water, is counsel in a man's heart, but, a man of understanding, will draw it out. ⁶A kind man one may call, a great man,—but, a faithful man, who can find? ⁷As for a righteous man, walking in his integrity, how happy are his children after him! ⁸A king sitting on the throne of judgment, scattereth, with his eyes, all wrong. ⁹Who can say, I have cleansed my heart, I am pure from my sin? ¹⁰Divers weights, and divers measures, an abomination to Yahweh, are they, both. ¹¹Even, by his doings, doth a youth make himself known, whether, pure and upright, be his work. ¹²The hearing ear, and the seeing eye, Yahweh hath made them, both. ¹³Do not love sleep, lest thou come to poverty, open thine eyes, be satisfied with bread. ¹⁴Bad! bad! saith the buyer, but, going his way, then, he boasteth. ¹⁵There are gold, and an abundance of corals, but, precious jewels, are the lips of knowledge. ¹⁶Take his garment who is pledge for a stranger,—then, for a woman unknown, accept him as surety. ¹⁷Sweet to a man, may be the bread of falsehood, but, afterward, shall his mouth be filled with gravel. ¹⁸Plans—by counsel, shalt thou establish, and, with concerted measures, make thou war. ¹⁹A revealer of secrets, is one who goeth about tale-bearing, therefore, with him who openeth his lips, shalt thou not have fellowship. ²⁰Whoso revileth his father or his mother, his lamp shall be put out in deep darkness. ²¹An inheritance hastily gotten at the beginning, the latter end thereof, shall not bring blessing. ²²Do not say, I will requite wrong! Wait thou for Yahweh that he may save thee. ²³An abomination to Yahweh, are divers weights, and, deceptive balances, are not good. ²⁴From Yahweh, are a man's steps, a son of earth, then—how can he discern his way? ²⁵It is a snare to a man, that he should rashly cry Holy! and, after making vows, to reflect! ²⁶A wise king, winnoweth out the lawless, when he hath turned over them the wheel. ²⁷The lamp of Yahweh, is the spirit of a son of earth, searching all the chambers of the inner man. ²⁸Lovingkindness and faithfulness, will guard a king,—therefore should he support, with lovingkindness, his throne. ²⁹The beauty of young men, is their strength, and, the ornament of old men, a hoary head. ³⁰Blows that out in, cleanse away wickedness, and, smittings, enter the chambers of the inner man.

21Like channels of water, is the heart of a king, in the hand of Yahweh,—whithersoever he will, he turneth it. ²Every way of a man, may be right in his own eyes, but, he that testeth hearts, is Yahweh. ³To do righteousness and justice, is more choice to Yahweh than sacrifice. ⁴Loftiness of eyes, and ambition of heart—the lamp of the lawless, are sin. ⁵The plans of the diligent, tend only to abundance, but, of every one that is urgent, only to want. ⁶The gaining of treasures with a tongue of falsehood, is a vapour driven away, they who seek them seek death, ⁷The violence of the lawless, shall drag them away,—because they have refused to do justice. ⁸Crooked is the way of a guilty man, but, as for the pure, straight is his dealing. ⁹Better to dwell on the corner of the roof, than a quarrelsome wife, and a house in common. ¹⁰The soul of the lawless man, craveth mischief, his own friend, findeth no favour in his eyes. ¹¹When the scoffer is punished, the simple, becometh wise, when the wise is instructed, he receiveth knowledge. ¹²The Righteous One observeth the house of the lawless,—He is ready to cast down lawless men into misfortune. ¹³He that shutteth his ear from the cry of the poor, even he, shall call, and not be answered. ¹⁴A gift in secret, quencheth anger, and, a present in the bosom, mighty wrath. ¹⁵It is a joy, to a righteous man, to do justice, but, dismay, to the workers of iniquity. ¹⁶The man who wandereth from the way of discretion, in the gathered host of the shades, shall settle down. ¹⁷A needy man, shall he be that loveth merriment, the lover of wine and oil, shall not become rich. ¹⁸A ransom for the righteous, is the lawless, and, instead of upright men, the traitor. ¹⁹Better to dwell in a desert land, than with a woman, quarrelsome and provoking. ²⁰Desirable treasure and oil, are in the home of the wise, but, a man who is a dullard, will destroy it. ²¹He that pursueth righteousness and lovingkindness, shall find life, righteousness and honour. ²²A city of heroes, doth a wise man scale, and bringeth down the strength of its confidence. ²³He that keepeth his mouth and his tongue, keepeth, out of distresses, his soul. ²⁴A haughty insolent one—Scoffer is his name, is he that acteth in a transport of pride. ²⁵The craving of the sluggard, killeth him, for his hands have refused to work. ²⁶All the day, he greatly craveth, whereas, the righteous, giveth, and doth not spare. ²⁷The sacrifice of the lawless, is an abomination, how much more, when, with wickedness, he bringeth it in! ²⁸A false witness, shall perish, but, the man who hearkeneth, with abiding effect, shall speak. ²⁹A lawless man emboldeneth his face, but, as for the upright, he, directeth his ways. ³⁰There is no wisdom, nor understanding, nor counsel, to confront Yahweh. ³¹The horse, is prepared for the day of battle, but, to Yahweh, pertaineth the victory.

22More choice, is a name, than great riches, beyond silver and gold, is pleasant grace. ²The rich and the poor, meet together, the maker of them all, is Yahweh. ³A prudent man, seeth calamity, and hideth himself, but, the simple, pass on, and suffer. ⁴The reward of humility, is the reverence of Yahweh, riches, and honour, and life. ⁵Thorns and snares, are in the way of the perverse,—he that guardeth his soul, shall be far from them. ⁶Train up a youth, in the direction of his duty, even when he becometh old, he will not depart from it. ⁷The rich, over the poor, beareth rule,—and, slave, is the borrower to the lender. ⁸He that soweth perversity, shall reap trouble, and, the rod of his wrath, shall be ready. ⁹A benevolent eye, the same, shall be blessed,—because he hath given of his bread to the poor. ¹⁰Drive away the scoffer, that strife may depart, and quarrel, and contempt may cease. ¹¹Yahweh loveth the pure in heart, gracious are his lips, his friend is the king! ¹²The eyes of Yahweh, watch over knowledge, therefore hath he overturned the words of the treacherous. ¹³Saith the sluggard, A lion outside! Amidst the broadways, shall I be slain. ¹⁴A deep chasm, is the mouth of strange women, he with whom Yahweh is indignant, falleth there. ¹⁵Foolishness, is bound up in the heart of a youth, the rod of correction, shall drive it far from him. ¹⁶He that oppresseth the poor, to make increase for himself, giving to the rich, shall surely come to want. ¹⁷Incline thine ear and hear the words of wise men, then, thy heart, wilt thou apply to my teaching; ¹⁸For sweet shall they be, when thou shalt keep them in thine inmost mind, they shall fit well together, upon thy lips. ¹⁹That in Yahweh may be thy trust, I have made them known to thee to-day, even to thee. ²⁰Have I not written for thee noble things, with counsels and knowledge: ²¹To cause thee to know the meaning of faithful sayings, that thou mayest give back faithful sayings to them who ask thee. ²²Do not rob the poor, because he is poor, neither crush thou the oppressed in the gate; ²³For, Yahweh, will plead their cause, and will despoil their despoilers of life. ²⁴Do not have friendship with one given to anger, and, with a wrathful man, shall thou not enter in: ²⁵Lest thou learn his ways, and take a snare to thy soul. ²⁶Be not of them who strike hands, of them who are sureties for debts: ²⁷If thou hast nothing to pay, why should one take away thy bed from under thee? ²⁸Do not move back the ancient boundary, which thy father's made. ²⁹Seest thou a man prompt in his business? before kings, shall he stand, he shall not stand before men who are obscure.

dom, and correction, and understanding. ²⁴Greatly shall exult, the father of a righteous man, and, he that begetteth a wise son, shall rejoice in him: ²⁵Rejoice shall thy father and thy mother, yea she, shall exult, who bare thee. ²⁶Oh give, my son, thy mind unto me, and let, thine eyes, observe, my ways; ²⁷For, a deep chasm, is the unchaste woman, and, a narrow pit, the female unknown; ²⁸Yea, she, as for prey, lieth in wait, and, the treacherous among mankind, she causeth to abound. ²⁹Who hath woe? Who hath outcry of pain? Who hath contentions? Who hath complaining? Who hath needless wounds? Who hath dullness of eyes? ³⁰They who tarry over wine, they who go in to search for mixed wine. ³¹Do not look on wine when it becometh red, when it giveth in the cup its sparkle, glideth down smoothly. ³²Its after effect, is that, like a serpent, it biteth, and, like a viper, it doth sting. ³³Thine eyes, will see strange women, and, thy heart, will speak perverse things: ³⁴So shalt thou become, as one lying down in the heart of the sea,—or as one lying down on the top of the mastgear: ³⁵They smote me—I felt no pain, They struck me down—I noticed it not,—When shall I wake up? I will go on, I will seek it, again!

24Be not thou envious of wicked men, neither crave to be with them; ²For, violence, their heart muttereth, and, mischief, their lips do speak. ³In wisdom, is a house builded, and, in understanding, is it established; ⁴And, in knowledge, chambers are filled, with all acquisitions, costly and fair. ⁵A wise man, is mighty, and, a man of knowledge, becometh alert in vigour. ⁶Surely, with concerted measures, shalt thou make for thyself war, and, success, lieth in the greatness of the counsellor. ⁷Unattainable to a foolish man, are the dictates of wisdom, in the gate, he openeth not his mouth. ⁸He that deviseth to do mischief, him, shall men call, a master of plots. ⁹The purpose of folly, is sin, and, an abomination to mankind, is a buffoon. ¹⁰Thou hast been slothful in the day of straitness, Strait, is thy strength. ¹¹Deliver thou such as are being led forth to death, and, them who are tottering to slaughter, oh that thou wouldst hold back! ¹²Though thou say, Lo! we knew not this, Shall not, he that proveth hearts, himself, discern? And, he that formeth thy soul, himself, know? and bring back to a son of earth according to his deed? ¹³My son, eat thou honey, because it is good,—and droppings from the comb because they are sweet to thy palate: ¹⁴Thus, take knowledge of wisdom, for thine own soul; If thou find it, then there is a future, and, thine expectation, shall not be cut off. ¹⁵Do not lie in wait, thou lawless man, against the home of the righteous,—neither destroy thou his place of rest; ¹⁶For, seven times, may the righteous fall and yet arise, but, lawless men, shall stumble into calamity. ¹⁷When thine enemy falleth, do not thou rejoice, and, when he stumbleth, let not thy heart exult: ¹⁸Lest Yahweh see it, and it be wicked in his eyes, and he turn away from him his anger. ¹⁹Burn not with vexation against evil doers, be not envious of lawless men; ²⁰For there shall be no future for the wicked, The lamp of the lawless, shall go out. ²¹Revere thou Yahweh, my son, and the king, and, with the fickle, have thou no fellowship; ²²For, suddenly, shall arise their calamity; and, the misfortune of their years, who knoweth? ²³These things also, concern he wise, To take note of faces in judgment, is not good. ²⁴He that saith to the lawless man, Righteous, thou art, peoples shall denounce him, populations shall curse him; ²⁵But, to reprovers, one should be pleasant, and, upon them, should come an excellent blessing: ²⁶Lips, should one kiss with one who answereth in right words. ²⁷Prepare, in the open, thy work, and make ready, in the field, for thyself, Afterwards, shalt thou build thy house. ²⁸Do not become a needless witness against thy neighbour, so mightest thou open too wide thy lips: ²⁹Do not say—According to what he hath done to me, so, will I do to him, I will repay every one according to his work. ³⁰By the field of the sluggard, I passed, and by the vineyard of a man lacking sense; ³¹And lo! there had come up all over it—thorns, there had covered the face thereof—thistles, and, the stone fence thereof, had been thrown down. ³²So I observed it, for myself, I applied my heart, I looked—I accepted correction: ³³A little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to rest: ³⁴So shall come in, as a highwayman, thy poverty, and, thy want, as one armed with a shield.

²⁵These also, are proverbs of Solomon,—which the men of Hezekiah king of Judah transcribed. ²The glory of God, is to conceal a thing, but, the glory of kings, is to search out a thing. ³The heavens for height, and the earth for depth, but, the heart of kings, cannot be searched. ⁴Remove the dross from the silver, and there cometh forth, to the refiner, a vessel: ⁵Remove a lawless man from before the king, that his throne, may be established in righteousness. ⁶Do not honour thyself before a king, nor, in the place of great men, do thou stand; ⁷For better it be said to thee, Come up hither,—than that thou be put lower down before a noble, whom thine own eyes, have beheld. ⁸Do not go forth to strive in haste,—lest thou know not what to do in the latter end thereof, when thy neighbour, hath put thee to shame. ⁹Thy contention, urge thou with thy neighbour, and, the secret of another, do not reveal: ¹⁰Lest he that heareth expose thee, and, the report concerning thee, turn not away. ¹¹Golden fruit in figured silver baskets, is a word spoken on fitting occasion. ¹²A ring of gold, and a vessel of precious metal, is a wise reprovcr, on a hearing ear. ¹³As the cold of snow in the day of harvest, is a faithful messenger to them who send him,—when, the life of his masters, he restoreth. ¹⁴Clouds and wind, when rain there is none, is the man who boasteth himself of a pretended gift. ¹⁵By long patience, is a judge persuaded, and, a soft tongue, breaketh the bone. ¹⁶Honey having found, eat to suffice thee, lest thou loathe it, and vomit it forth. ¹⁷Withhold thy foot from the house of thy neighbour,—lest he be weary of thee, and hate thee. ¹⁸A hammer and a sword, and a sharpened arrow, is a man becoming a false witness against his neighbour. ¹⁹A broken tooth and a faltering foot, is confidence in the treacherous, in the day of danger. ²⁰As splendour of dress on a cold day—vinegar upon nitre, so is a singer with songs, unto a sad heart. ²¹If he that hateth thee hunger, give him bread to eat, and, if he be thirsty, give him water to drink; ²²For, burning coals, shalt thou be heaping upon his head,—and, Yahweh, will repay thee. ²³A north wind, bringeth forth rain, and, a face stirred with indignation, a secretive tongue. ²⁴Better to dwell on the corner of the roof, than a quarrelsome wife, and a house in common. ²⁵As cold water to a thirsty soul, so is a good report from a far country. ²⁶A fountain fouled, a spring spoiled, is a righteous man tottering before one who is lawless. ²⁷To eat honey in abundance, is not good, nor is, searching out their own honour, an honourable thing. ²⁸A city broken down without a wall, is a man who hath no control over his own spirit.

²⁶As snow in summer, and as rain in harvest, so, unbecoming to a dullard is honour. ²As a sparrow in wandering, as a swallow in flying, so, a causeless curse, shall not alight. ³A whip for the horse, a bridle a for the ass, and a rod for the back of dullards. ⁴Do not answer a dullard, according to his folly, lest, even thou thyself, become like him; ⁵Answer a dullard according to his folly, lest he become wise in his own eyes. ⁶One who cutteth off feet, one who drinketh down wrong, is he who sendeth a message by the hand of a dullard. ⁷Useless are the legs of the lame, and a proverb, in the mouth of a dullard. ⁸Like tying a stone to a sling, so, is he that giveth honour, to a dullard. ⁹A brier cometh into the hand of a drunken-man, a proverb into the mouth of dullards. ¹⁰As an archer who woundeth every thing, so one who hireth a dullard, and a drunkard crossing the sea. ¹¹As, a dog, returneth onto his own vomit, a dullard, repeateth his folly. ¹²Thou hast seen a man wise in his own eye,—more hope of a dullard, than of him! ¹³Saith the sluggard, A roaring lion in the road! A tearing lion in the midst of the broadways. ¹⁴The door, turneth on its hinges, and, the sluggard, upon his bed. ¹⁵The sluggard burieth his hand in the dish, he is too lazy to bring it back to his mouth. ¹⁶Wiser is the sluggard in his own eyes, than, seven persons, who can answer with judgment. ¹⁷As he who layeth hold of the ears of a dog, is a passer-by, who giveth vent to his wrath over a quarrel, not his! ¹⁸As a madman throwing firebrands, arrows and death, ¹⁹So, is a man who deceiveth his neighbour, and saith, Was not, I, in sport? ²⁰Without wood a fire is quenched, and, where there is no tattler, strife is hushed. ²¹Black coal to burning blocks, and wood to fire, so is a contentious man, for kindling strife. ²²the words of a tattler, are dainties, they, therefore go down into the chambers of the inner man. ²³Dross silver overlaid upon earthenware, so are burning lips, with a mischievous heart: ²⁴With his lips, the hater dissembleth, but, within himself, he layeth up deceit: ²⁵Though he make gracious his voice, do not trust him, for, seven abominations, are in his heart: ²⁶Hatred may clothe itself with guile, his wickedness shall be disclosed in the convocation. ²⁷He that diggeth a pit, thereinto, shall fall, and, he that rolleth a stone, upon himself, shall it return. ²⁸A false tongue, hateth them who are crushed by it, and, a flattering mouth, worketh occasion of stumbling.

27Do not boast thyself of to-morrow, for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth. ²Let another praise thee, and not thine own mouth, a stranger, and not thine own lips. ³Heavy is a stone, and weighty is sand,—but, the vexation of a fool, is heavier than both. ⁴The cruelty of rage, and the overflow of anger! But who can stand before, jealousy? ⁵Better is a rebuke that is open, than love carefully concealed. ⁶Faithful are the wounds of a friend, but lavished are the kisses of an enemy. ⁷The surfeited soul, trampleth upon droppings from the comb, but, to the hungry soul, every bitter thing, is sweet. ⁸As a bird wandering from her nest, so, is a man wandering from his place. ⁹Oil and perfume, rejoice the heart, the sweetness of one's friend, more than fragrant wood. ¹⁰Thine own friend and thy father's friend, do not thou forsake; but, the house of thy brother, do not enter, in thy day of calamity, Better a neighbour near, than a brother far off. ¹¹Be wise, my son, and rejoice my heart, that I may answer him that reproacheth me in a matter. ¹²A prudent man, seeth calamity—he hideth himself, the simple, pass on—they suffer. ¹³Take a man's garment when he hath become pledge for stranger, then, for a female unknown, accept him as surety. ¹⁴He that blesseth his friend, with a loud voice, in the morning early, a reproach, shall it be reckoned to him. ¹⁵A continuous dripping on a day of downpour, and a contentious wife, are alike: ¹⁶He that hideth her, hideth the wind, and, perfume, his right hand may proclaim. ¹⁷Let, iron, by iron, become sharp, and let, a man, sharpen the face of his friend. ¹⁸He that guardeth the fig-tree, shall eat the fruit thereof, and, he that watcheth over his master, shall he honoured. ¹⁹As in water, face answereth to face, so, the heart of man to man. ²⁰Hades and destruction, are not satisfied, and, the eyes of a man, are not satisfied. ²¹Finishing pot for silver, and crucible for gold, and, a man, is to be tried by what he praiseth. ²²Though thou pound a fool in a mortar, amidst grain, with a pestle, his folly, will not depart from him. ²³Note well, the appearance of thy flock, apply thy mind to thy herds; ²⁴For, not age-abiding, are riches, nor is the diadem, from generation to generation:— ²⁵The grass, is taken away, and the young shoot, showeth itself, and the herbage of the mountains, is gathered; ²⁶There are, lambs, for thy clothing, and, for the price of thy field, there are he-goats; ²⁷With, enough goats-milk, for thy food—for the food of thy household, and, a maintenance, for thy maidens.

28The lawless, fleeth when no man pursueth, but, the righteous, like a lion, are confident. ²For the transgressions of a land, many are the rulers thereof, but, under an intelligent and discerning man, stability is prolonged. ³A poor man, who oppresseth the helpless, is like a rain beating down, leaving no food. ⁴They who forsake instruction, praise one who is lawless, while, they who keep instruction, are at strife with them. ⁵Wicked men, consider not justice, but, they who seek Yahweh, consider everything. ⁶Better a poor man walking in his integrity, than one who is crooked—turning two ways, though, he, be rich. ⁷He that keepeth instruction, is a son with discernment, but, a companion of squanderers, bringeth shame to his father. ⁸He that increaseth his substance by interest and profit, for one ready to favour the poor, doth gather it. ⁹He that turneth away his ear from hearing instruction, even his prayer, is an abomination. ¹⁰He that misguideth the upright into a hurtful way! into his own pit, he himself, shall fall, but, men of integrity, shall inherit good. ¹¹Wise in his own eyes, is the man that is rich, but, a poor man of discernment, searcheth him out. ¹²In the exulting of the righteous, there is great glorying, but, when the lawless arise, a man must be sought for. ¹³He that covereth his transgressions, shall not prosper, but, he that confesseth and forsaketh, shall find compassion. ¹⁴How happy the man who is ever circumspect, whereas, he that hardeneth his heart, shall fall into calamity. ¹⁵A growling lion, and a ranging bear, is a lawless ruler, over a poor people. ¹⁶A leader, may lack intelligence, yet abound in oppressions, The hater of greed, shall lengthen out days. ¹⁷A man oppressed with a person's blood, unto a pit, shall flee, let them not hold him back. ¹⁸He that walketh with integrity, shall be saved, but, he that is crooked, turning two ways, shall fall in one. ¹⁹He that tilleth his ground, shall have plenty of bread, but, he that pursueth empty-heads, shall have plenty of poverty. ²⁰A man of fidelity, aboundeth in blessings, but, one hasting to be rich, shall not be held innocent. ²¹To take note of faces in judgment, is not good, and, for a bit of bread, a man will transgress. ²²A man, hasting to be rich, hath an evil eye, and knoweth not when want may overtake him. ²³He that reproveth a man, shall, afterwards, find more, favour, than he that useth a flattering tongue. ²⁴He that robbeth his father or his mother, and saith, It is no transgression, companion, is he to one who wasteth. ²⁵The ambitious in soul, stirreth up strife, but, he that trusteth in Yahweh, shall be enriched. ²⁶He that trusteth his own heart, the same, is a dullard, but, he that walketh wisely, the same, shall be delivered. ²⁷One who giveth to the poor, shall have no want, but, he that hideth his eyes, shall receive many a curse. ²⁸When lawless men rise, a common man will hide himself, but, when they perish, righteous men multiply.

30The words of Agur, son of Jakeh, even the oracle,—The utterance of the man, for Ithiel, for Ithiel and Ucal. ²Surely, more brutish, am, I, than any man, nor doth, the understanding of a son of earth, pertain to me; ³Neither have I learned wisdom, nor, the knowledge of the Holy Ones, can I acquire. ⁴Who hath ascended the heavens and then descended? Who hath gathered the wind into his two hands? Who hath wrapped up the waters in a mantle? Who hath set up all the ends of the earth? What is his name and what the name of his son, when thou knowest? ⁵Every saying of God is refined, A shield, is, he, to them who seek refuge in him. ⁶Do not add unto his words, lest he convict thee, and thou be found false. ⁷Two things, have I asked of thee, withhold them not from me, ere yet I die: ⁸Vanity and falsehood, remove far from me, Neither poverty nor riches, give me, Feed me with the food appointed me: ⁹Lest I be full, and deny, and say—Who is Yahweh? or lest I be impoverished and steal, and do violence to the Name of my God. ¹⁰Do not slander a servant to his master, lest he revile thee, and thou be found guilty. ¹¹A generation! Its father, it revileth, and, its mother, it doth not bless. ¹²A generation! Pure in its own eyes, yet, from its filth, hath it not been bathed, ¹³A generation! How lofty are its eyes, and its eyelashes uplifted. ¹⁴A generation! Swords, are its teeth, and, knives, its incisors,—to devour the humbled out of the earth, and the needy, from among men. ¹⁵The vampire, hath two daughters, Give! Give! Three, there are will not be satisfied, four, have not said, Enough! ¹⁶Hades, and barrenness,—A land not satisfied with water, and fire, that saith not, Enough! ¹⁷The eye that mocketh a father, and despiseth to obey a mother, the ravens of the valley shall pick it out, and the young of the eagle shall eat it. ¹⁸Three, things there are, too difficult for me, yea, four, which I do not understand: ¹⁹The way of an eagle in the heavens, the way of a serpent on the rock,—the way of a ship in the heart of the sea, and the way of a man with a maid. ²⁰So, is the way of a woman committing adultery,—she eateth, and wipeth her mouth, and saith, I have done no iniquity! ²¹Under three things, a land is stirred, yea, under four, she cannot bear up: ²²Under a servant, when he reigneth, and a base man, when he is surfeited with food; ²³Under a hateful woman, when she is married, and a handmaid when she driveth out her mistress. ²⁴Four, things there are, the small of the earth,—yet, they, are wiser than the wise: ²⁵The ants, a people, not strong,—yet prepare they, in summer, their food; ²⁶The conies, a people of, no power, yet set they, among the crags, their house; ²⁷King, is there none, to, the locusts,—yet go forth in swarms, do they all; ²⁸The lizard, with hands, reneweth its hold,—yet, the same, is in the palaces of the king. ²⁹Three, things there are which step along well, ye, four, which excel in going: ³⁰The lion, hero among beasts, which turneth aside from the face of no one; ³¹The greyhound, or the he-goat,—and a king, having a band of soldiers with him. ³²If thou hast acted basely by lifting thyself up,—if thou hast plotted evil, put thy hand to thy mouth! ³³Surely, the pressing of milk, bringeth forth curd, and, the pressing of the nose, bringeth forth blood,

31The words of Lemuel the king,—the strain which was taught him by his mother:— ²What, my son? and what, the son of my womb? aye what, the son of my vows? ³Do not give, to women, thy strength, nor thy ways, to them who ruin kings. ⁴It is not for kings, O Lemuel, it is not for kings to drink wine, nor, for dignitaries, to desire strong drink, ⁵Lest he drink, and forget that which is decreed, and alter the plea of any who are sorely oppressed. ⁶Give strong drink, to him that is perishing, and wine, to such as are embittered in soul: ⁷Let him drink, and forget his poverty, and, his wearying toil, let him remember no more. ⁸Open thy mouth for the dumb, for the cause of all the children of the departed. ⁹Open thy mouth—judge righteously,—and administer justice for the poor and the needy. ¹⁰A virtuous woman, who can find? for, far beyond corals, is her worth. ¹¹The heart of her husband, trusteth her, and, gain, he shall not lack: ¹²She doeth him good and not evil, all the days of her life: ¹³She seeketh wool and flax, and worketh willingly with her hands: ¹⁴She is like the ships of the merchant, from afar, she bringeth in her food; ¹⁵And she riseth, while yet it is night, and giveth food to her household, and a task to her maidens: ¹⁶She considereth a field, and procureth it, Out of the fruit of her hands, she planteth a vineyard: ¹⁷She girdeth, with strength her loins, and putteth vigour into her arms: ¹⁸She tasteth, whether, good, be her merchandise, and her lamp, goeth not out by night: ¹⁹Her hands, she putteth forth to the distaff, and, her palms, lay hold of the spindle: ²⁰Her palm, she spreadeth out to the oppressed, and, her hands, she extendeth to the needy: ²¹She feareth not, for her household, because of the snow, for, all her household, are clothed with crimson: ²²Coverlets, she maketh for herself, Of white linen and of purple, is her clothing: ²³Known in the gates, is her husband, when he sitteth, with the elders of the land: ²⁴Fine linen wraps, she maketh and selleth, and, girdles, doth she deliver to the trader: ²⁵Strength and dignity, are her clothing, and she laugheth at the time to come: ²⁶Her mouth, she openeth with wisdom, and, the instruction of kindness, is on her tongue: ²⁷She looketh well to the goings of her household, and, the bread of idleness, will she not eat. ²⁸Her children rise up, and call her happy! her husband, and he praiseth her:— ²⁹Many daughters, have done virtuously, but, thou, excellest them all! ³⁰Deceitful is loveliness and vain is beauty, The woman that revereth Yahweh, she, shall be praised: ³¹Give her of the fruit of her own hands, and let her own works, praise her in the gates.

Ecclesiastes

¹The words of the Proclaimer, son of David, king in Jerusalem.
²Vanity of vanities! saith the Proclaimer, vanity of vanities! all, is vanity. ³What profit hath Man, in all his toil wherewith he toileth under the sun? ⁴Generation, goeth and, generation, cometh, but, the earth, unto times age-abiding, remaineth. ⁵And the sun, breaketh forth, and the sun, goeth in,—yea, unto his own place, he panteth, from whence he brake forth. ⁶Going unto the south, and circling unto the north,—circling, circling continually, is, the wind, and, over its own circuits, returneth the wind. ⁷All the streams, flow into the sea, yet, the sea, is not full,—unto the place whither the streams flow, thither, do they again flow. ⁸All words, are weak, unable is any man to tell,—not satisfied is the eye by seeing, nor filled is the ear with hearing. ⁹That which hath been, is the same that shall be, and, that which hath been done, is the same that shall be done,—and there is, nothing new, under the sun. ¹⁰Is there a thing, of which it can be said, See here, it is, new? Already, hath it been, for ages, it is something which was before us. ¹¹There is, no remembrance, of the thing before,—nor, even of the things after, which shall be, will there be any remembrance, with them who shall come after. ¹²I, the Proclaimer, was king over Israel, in Jerusalem. ¹³And I gave my heart to seek and to search out, wisely, concerning all things which are done under the heavens,—the same, is the vexatious employment God hath given to the sons of men, to work toilsomely therein, ¹⁴I saw all the works which were done under the sun,—and lo! all, was vanity, and a feeding on wind. ¹⁵That which is crooked, cannot be straight,—and, that which is wanting, cannot be reckoned. ¹⁶Spake, I, in my heart, saying, As for me, lo! I have become great, and have gathered wisdom, beyond any one who hath been before me over Jerusalem,—and, my heart, hath seen much wisdom and knowledge: ¹⁷yea I have given my heart, to know wisdom, and to know madness, and folly,—I know that, even this, is a feeding on wind. ¹⁸For, in much wisdom, is much vexation,—and, he that increaseth knowledge, increaseth pain.

²Said, I, in my heart, Come now! I will prove thee with gladness, and look thou on blessedness,—but lo! even that, was vanity. ²Of laughter, I said, Madness! and, of mirth, What can it do? ³I sought out with my heart, to cherish with wine, my flesh,—but, my heart, was to guide with wisdom, even in laying hold of folly, until I should see which was blessedness for the sons of men, as to that which they could do, under the heavens, during the number of the days of their life. ⁴I enlarged my works,—I built me houses, I planted me vineyards; ⁵I made me gardens, and parks,—I planted in them trees of every kind of fruit; ⁶I made me pools of water,—to irrigate therefrom the thick-set saplings growing up into trees: ⁷I acquired, men-servants and women-servants, and, the children of the household, were mine,—also possessions, herds and flocks in abundance, were mine, beyond all who had been before me in Jerusalem; ⁸I heaped me up, both silver and gold, and the peculiar treasure of kings, and provinces,—I provided me singing-men and singing-women, and the delights of the sons of men, a wife and wives. ⁹So I became great, and increased, more than any one who had been before me in Jerusalem,—moreover, my wisdom, remained with me; ¹⁰and, nothing that mine eyes asked, withheld I from them,—I did not keep back my heart from any gladness, for, my heart, obtained gladness out of all my toil, and so, this, was my portion, out of all my toil. ¹¹When, I, looked upon all my works, which my hands had made, and on my toil, whereon I had toilsomely wrought, then lo! all, was vanity, and feeding on wind, and there was no profit under the sun. ¹²Thus turned, I, to look at wisdom, and madness and folly,—for what can the man do more who cometh after the king? save that which, already, men have done. ¹³Then saw, I, that wisdom doth excel folly,—as far as light excelleth darkness. ¹⁴As for the wise man, his eyes, are in his head, whereas, the dullard, in darkness, doth walk,—but, I myself, knew that, one destiny, happeneth to them, all. ¹⁵Then said, I, in my heart, As it happeneth to the dullard, even to me, will it happen, but wherefore, then, became, I, wise to excess? Therefore spake I, in my heart, Even this, is vanity. ¹⁶For there is no remembrance of a wise man, more than of a dullard, unto times age-abiding,—seeing that, already, in the days to come, all hath been forgotten, how then cometh it that the wise man dieth equally with the dullard? ¹⁷Therefore I hated life, for, a vexation unto me, was the work which was done under the sun,—for, all, was vanity, and a feeding on wind. ¹⁸Therefore hated, I, all my toil, wherein I was toiling, under the sun,—in that I should leave it for the man who should come after me; ¹⁹and who could know whether a, wise man, he would be or a foolish, and yet he would lord it over all my toil, wherein I had toiled and wherein I had acted wisely, under the sun,—even this, was vanity. ²⁰Then resolved I, to give my heart over to despair,—concerning all the toil, wherein I had toiled, under the sun. ²¹For here is a man, whose toil hath been with wisdom and with knowledge and with skill,—yet, to a man who hath not toiled therein, shall he leave it as his portion, even this, was vanity and a great vexation. ²²For what hath the man for all his toil, and for the striving of his heart,—wherein, he himself, toiled under the sun? ²³For, all his days, are pains, and, vexatious, is his employment, even in the night, his heart lieth not down,—even this, was, vanity. ²⁴There was nothing more blessed for Man than that he should eat and drink, and see his desireth for blessedness in his toil,—even this, saw, I myself, that, from the hand of God, it was. ²⁵For who could eat and who could enjoy, so well as I? ²⁶For, to a man who is good before him, hath he given wisdom and knowledge and gladness,—whereas, to the sinner, he hath given employment, to gather and heap up, to give to one who is good before God, even this, was vanity, and a feeding on wind.

³For, every thing, there is a season,—and a time for every pursuit, under the heavens:—²A time to be born, and a time to die,—A time to plant, and a time to uproot what is planted; ³A time to kill, and a time to heal,—A time to break down, and a time to build up; ⁴A time to weep, and a time to laugh,—A time to wail, and a time to dance for joy; ⁵A time to cast away stones, and a time to heap up stones,—A time to embrace, and a time to be far from loving embrace; ⁶A time to seek, and a time to give up as lost,—A time to keep, and a time to cast away; ⁷A time to rend, and a time to sew,—A time to be silent, and a time to speak; ⁸A time to love and a time to hate,—A time of war, and a time of peace. ⁹What profit hath he that worketh, in that wherein, himself, hath toiled? ¹⁰I looked at the employment which God hath given to the sons of men, to work therein: ¹¹Everything, hath he made beautiful in its own time,—also, intelligence, hath he put in their heart, without which men could not find out the work which God hath wrought, from the beginning even unto the end. ¹²I know that there is no blessedness in them,—save to be glad, and to do well with one's life. ¹³Though indeed, that any man should eat and drink, and see blessedness, in all his toil, it is, the gift of God. ¹⁴I know, that, whatsoever God doeth, the same, shall be age-abiding, unto it, there is nothing to add, and, from it, there is nothing to take away,—and, God, hath done it, that men should stand in awe before him. ¹⁵That which was, already, had been, and, that which shall be, already, shall have been,—but, God, seeketh that which hath been chased away. ¹⁶Then, again, I saw under the sun, the place of justice, that there was lawlessness, and, the place of righteousness, that there was lawlessness. ¹⁷Said, I, in my heart, Both the righteous and the lawless, will God judge,—for there will be a time for every pursuit, and concerning every work—there. ¹⁸Said, I, in my heart, as concerning the sons of men, That God was minded to prove them,—and that they might see, that they were beasts, of themselves. ¹⁹For, as regardeth the destiny of the sons of men and the destiny of beasts, one fate, have they, as dieth the one, so, dieth the other, and, one spirit, have they all,—and, the pre-eminence of man over beast, is nothing, for, all, were vanity: ²⁰all, go unto one place,—all, came from the dust, and all, return to the dust. ²¹Who knoweth the spirit of the sons of men, whether it, ascendeth, above,—or the spirit of the beast, whether it, descendeth, below, to the earth? ²²So I saw, that there was nothing better than that a man should be glad in his works, for, that, is his portion,—for who can bring him in, to look upon that which shall be after him?

⁴Then again, I, considered all the oppressive deeds which were done under the sun,—and lo! the tears of the oppressed, and they have no comforter, and, on the side of their oppressing, is power, and they have no comforter. ²So, I, pronounced happy the dead, who were, already, dead,—more than the living, who were living, still; ³and, as better than both, him who had not yet come into being,—who had not seen the vexatious work, which was done under the sun. ⁴Then saw, I, all the toil and all the skill of the work, that, for this, a man was envied of his neighbour,—even this, was vanity, and a feeding on wind. ⁵The dullard, claspeth his hands, and consumeth his own flesh. ⁶Better a handful—with quietness,—than both hands, full—with toil, and feeding on wind. ⁷Then again, I, looked at a vain thing under the sun:—⁸Here is one, without a second, even son or brother, he hath none, yet is there no end to all his toil, even his eye, is not satisfied with riches,—neither saith he For whom, am I toiling, and letting my soul want good? Even this, was vanity, yea a vexatious employment, it was! ⁹Better are two, than one,—in that they have a good reward for their toil. ¹⁰For, if the one should fall, the other would raise up his companion,—but alas! for him who is alone when he falleth, with no second to raise him up! ¹¹Moreover, if two lie together, then have they warmth,—but how can, one, have warmth? ¹²And, though an enemy should prevail against one, two, might make a stand before him,—and, a threefold cord, cannot soon be broken. ¹³Better a boy poor and wise,—than a king, old and stupid, who knoweth not how to take warning any longer. ¹⁴For, out of prison, came he forth to reign, yea, even in his own kingdom, was he born poor. ¹⁵I saw all the living, who were going hither and thither under the sun,—that they were with the boy who was to be the second, who was to stand in the other's place:—¹⁶There was no end to all the people, to all before whom he came, yet, they who should come later, would not rejoice in him,—surely, even this, was vanity, and a feeding on wind.

⁵Keep thy foot, when thou goest unto the house of God, and be more ready to hear, than dullards to offer sacrifice,—for they make no acknowledgment of doing wrong. ²Be not rash with thy mouth, and, with thy heart, be not in haste to bring forth a word, before God,—for, God, is in the heavens, and, thou, upon the earth, for this cause, let thy words be few. ³For a dream cometh through the multitude of business,—and, the voice of a dullard, is with a multitude of words. ⁴When thou vowest a vow unto God, do not defer to pay it, for there is no pleasure in dullards,—what thou vowest, pay! ⁵Better that thou shouldest not vow,—than vow, and not pay. ⁶Do not let thy mouth cause thy flesh to sin,—neither say thou, before the messenger, that it was, a mistake,—wherefore should God be indignant at thy voice, and destroy the work of thy hands? ⁷For it was done amidst a multitude of dreams, and vanities, and many words,—but, towards God, be thou reverent. ⁸If, the oppression of the poor, and the wresting of justice and righteousness, thou see in the province, do not be astonished over the matter,—for, one high above the highest, is watching, yea, the Most High, is over them. ⁹And, the profit of the earth, is, for all,—a king, by the field, is served. ¹⁰He that loveth silver, shall not be satisfied with silver nor, he that loveth abundance, with revenue,—even this, was vanity. ¹¹When blessings are increased, increased are the eaters thereof,—what profit, then, to the owner of them saving the sight of his eyes? ¹²Sweet the sleep of the labourer, whether, little or much, he eat,—but, the surfeit of the rich man, will not suffer him to sleep. ¹³Here was an incurable evil, I had seen under the sun, riches kept by the owner thereof, to his hurt; ¹⁴and those riches perish, by being ill employed,—and though he begetteth a son, yet is there in his hand nothing at all. ¹⁵As he came from his mother's womb, naked, he again departeth, as he came,—and, nothing, can he take of his toil, which he can carry in his hand. ¹⁶Even this, moreover, is an incurable evil, altogether as he came, so, shall he depart,—what profit then shall he have who toileth for the wind? ¹⁷Even all his days, are spent in darkness and mourning,—and he is very morose, and is sad and angry. ¹⁸Lo! what, I myself, have seen—Better that it should be excellent to eat and to drink and to see blessedness, in all one's toil wherein one toileth under the sun, for the number of the days of his life, in that God hath given it him, for, that, is his portion: ¹⁹yet, as regardeth every man, to whom God hath given wealth and goods, and granted him power to eat thereof, and to take his portion, and to find gladness in his toil, this, is, the gift of God. ²⁰Though it be not much, let him remember the days of his life,—for,

God, beareth witness, by the gladness of his heart.

⁶Here was an evil, I had seen under the sun,—and it is, common, among men: ²A man to whom God giveth riches and gains and honour, so that nothing doth he lack for his soul—of all that he craveth, and yet God doth not give him power to eat thereof, but, a man unknown, eateth it,—this, was vanity, and, an incurable evil, it was. ³Though a man should beget a hundred children, and live, many years, so that many should be the days of his years but, his own soul, should not be satisfied with the good, and he should not even have, a burial, I said, Better than he, is an untimely birth! ⁴For, in vain, it came in, and, in darkness, it departeth,—and, with darkness, its name, is covered: ⁵even the sun, it never saw, nor aught did it know,—more quietness, hath this than the other. ⁶Even though one hath lived a thousand years twice told, yet, good, hath he not seen,—is it not, unto one place, that, all, are going? ⁷All the toil of man, is for his mouth,—though, even the desire, is not satisfied! ⁸For what profit hath the wise man, over the dullard? What can, the poor man, know—so as to walk before the living? ⁹Better what the eyes behold, than the wandering of desire,—even this, was vanity, and a feeding on wind. ¹⁰Whatsoever one may be, long ago, was he called by his name, and it is known that it is—Son of Earth,—he cannot, therefore, contend with one stronger than he. ¹¹Seeing there are things in abundance which make vanity abound, what profit hath man? ¹²For who knoweth what is good for a man throughout his life, for the number of the days of his life of vanity, seeing he will make them, like a shadow,—for who can tell a man, what shall be after him, under the sun?

⁷Better a name, than precious ointment,—and the day of death, than the day of one's birth. ²Better to go to the house of mourning, than to go to the house of banqueting, for, that, is the end of all men,—and, the living, should take it to his heart. ³Better is grief than laughter,—for, by the marring of the face, amended is the heart. ⁴The heart of the wise, is in the house of mourning, but, the heart of dullards, in the house of mirth. ⁵Better to hear the rebuke of the wise, than for any man to hear the song of dullards, ⁶For, as the crackling of thorns under a pot, so, is the laughter of the dullard,—even this, then, was vanity. ⁷For, oppression, maddeneth the wise,—and a bribe, destroyeth the understanding. ⁸Better the latter end of a thing, than the beginning thereof,—Better a patient spirit, than a haughty spirit. ⁹Do not be rash in thy spirit, to be indignant,—for, indignation, in the bosom of dullards, doth remain. ¹⁰Do not say, What hath happened, that, the former days, were better than these? for, not wisely, askest thou concerning this. ¹¹Good is wisdom, with an inheritance,—and a profit, to such as see the sun. ¹²For, a protection, is wisdom, and, a protection, is silver,—but, the advantage of knowledge, is, that, wisdom, giveth life to the possessors thereof. ¹³Consider the work of God,—for who can straighten what he hath bent? ¹⁴In the day of prosperity, be joyful, but, in the day of misfortune, consider,—Even the one equally with the other, hath God made, to the end man might find out—after him—nothing. ¹⁵Everything, had I seen, in my days of vanity,—Here was a righteous man, perishing in his righteousness, and there was a lawless man, continuing long in his wickedness. ¹⁶Do not become so very righteous, neither count thyself wise beyond measure,—wherefore shouldst thou destroy thyself? ¹⁷Do not be so very lawless, neither become thou foolish,—wherefore shouldst thou die, before thy time? ¹⁸It is well that thou shouldst lay fast hold of this, but, even from the other, do not withdraw thy hand,—for, he that revereth God, shall come forth out of them all. ¹⁹Wisdom, bringeth more strength to a wise man, than ten heroes, that are in the city. ²⁰For, as for men, there is none righteous in the earth, that doeth good, and sinneth not. ²¹Moreover, not to all the words which men speak, do thou apply thy heart,—lest thou hear thine own servant reviling thee! ²²For truly, many times, thy heart knoweth,—that, even thou thyself, hast reviled others. ²³All this, have I proved by wisdom,—I said, I will be wise, but, that, was far from me. ²⁴Far away, is that which hath been,—and deep, deep, who can find it out? ²⁵Resolved, I, in my heart, to know and search out, and to seek wisdom, and a conclusion,—and to know lawlessness to be stupidity, and folly to be madness. ²⁶I, could indeed find, to be, more bitter than death, the woman, whose heart is, snares and nets, and her hands, bonds,—whoso is pleasing before God, shall escape from her, but, he that sinneth, shall be captured by her. ²⁷See! this, have I found, saith the Proclaimer counting one by one, to find a conclusion; ²⁸what my soul still sought, yet I found not,—one man out of a thousand, have I found, but, a woman among all these, have I not found. ²⁹Only, see, this, have I found, That God made man upright, but, they, have sought out many devices.

for, when it shall be, who will tell him? ⁸No man, hath power over the spirit, to retain the spirit, and, none, hath power over the day of death, and there is no furlough in war,—neither shall lawlessness deliver them who are given thereto. ⁹All this, had I seen, and tried to apply my heart to every work which was done under the sun,—at such time as one man had power over another man, to his hurt. ¹⁰And, thereupon, I considered the lawless when buried, when they had entered, their graves, that, from the place of the Holy One, they used to go and boast in the city that they had so done,—even this, was vanity. ¹¹Because sentence against a wicked work is not executed speedily—on this account, the heart of the sons of men is fully set within them, to commit wickedness. ¹²Though a sinner be committing wickedness a hundred times, and continuing long in his own way, yet I surely know that it shall be well to them who revere God, who stand in awe before him; ¹³but, well, shall it not be to the lawless man, neither shall he lengthen out his days like a shadow,—because he standeth not in awe before God. ¹⁴Here was a vain thing which was done upon the earth—that there were righteous men unto whom it happened according to the work of the lawless, and there were lawless men, unto whom it happened according to the work of the righteous,—I said, that, even this, was vanity. ¹⁵Then extolled I, gladness, in that there was nothing better for a man, under the sun, than to eat and to drink, and to be glad,—since, that, should tarry with him in his toil, for the days of his life which God had given him under the sun. ¹⁶When I gave my heart, to know wisdom, and to consider the business that was done upon the earth, then surely, by day and by night, there was one who suffered not his eyes, to sleep. ¹⁷Then I considered all the work of God, that man could not find out the work that was done under the sun, inasmuch as man toileth in seeking and yet cannot find,—yea, even though the wise man should say he knoweth, yet can he not find it out.

⁹For, unto all this, I applied my heart, and, my heart, considered all this, that, the righteous and the wise and their servants, were in the hand of God,—neither love nor hatred, could any man know, every one, was before Him. ²Every one, was like every one else, one destiny, had the righteous and the lawless, the good and the pure and the impure, and he that sacrificed, and he that did not sacrifice,—as the good man, so, the sinner, he that took an oath, as he who, of an oath, stood in fear. ³This was a misfortune in all that was done under the sun, that, one destiny, had they all,—yea also, the heart of the sons of men, was full of wickedness, and, madness, was in their heart, while they lived, and, after that, they went unto the dead. ⁴For, whosoever was united to all the living, for him, there was hope,—inasmuch as, a living dog, fared better than a dead lion. ⁵For, the living, knew that they should die,—but, the dead, knew not, anything, neither had they

any longer a reward, because forgotten was their memory. ⁶Both their love and their hatred and their envy, already had perished,—and, portion, had they none any longer, unto times age-abiding, in aught that was done under the sun. ⁷Go thy way—eat, with gladness, thy food, and drink, with a happy heart, thy wine,—when already God is well pleased with thy works. ⁸Continually, let thy garments be white,—and, ointment upon thy head, let it not be lacking. ⁹Enjoy life, with thy wife whom thou lovest, all the days of thy life of vanity, which he hath given thee under the sun, all thy days of vanity,—for, that, is thy portion in life, and in thy toil wherewith, thou, art toiling under the sun. ¹⁰Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, with thy might, do,—for there is no work nor calculation nor knowledge nor wisdom, in hades, whither, thou, art going. ¹¹I again saw under the sun, that not, to the swift, was the race, nor, to the strong, the battle, nay! nor, to the wise, food, nor yet, to the intelligent, riches, nor, even to the well-informed, comeliness,—for, time and accident, happened to them all. ¹²For, indeed, man could not know his own time, like fishes which were caught in a cruel net, and like little birds which were caught in a trap,—like them, were ensnared the sons of men, by a time of misfortune, when it fell upon them suddenly. ¹³Even this, had I seen of wisdom, under the sun,—and, of great import, was the same unto me:— ¹⁴A little city, and men therein few,—and there came against it a great king, and surrounded it, and built against it large siege-works; ¹⁵but there was found therein, a man, poor but wise, and, he, delivered the city by his wisdom,—yet, no one, remembered that poor man. ¹⁶Then said, I, Better is wisdom than strength,—although, the wisdom of the poor man, be despised, and, his words, not heard. ¹⁷The words of the wise, in quietness, are heard,—beyond the outcry of one who ruleth over dullards. ¹⁸Better is wisdom, than weapons of war,—but, one sinner, may destroy much good.

blunt, be the iron, and, himself, hath not sharpened, the edge, then, much force, must he apply,—but, an advantage for giving success, is wisdom. ¹¹If a serpent will bite, unless he is charmed, then there is nothing better for him that owneth a tongue. ¹²The words of a wise man's mouth, are pleasant,—but, the lips of a dullard, will swallow him up: ¹³The beginning of the words of his mouth, is folly,—but, the latter end of his speech, is mischievous madness. ¹⁴Yet, a foolish man, multiplieth words,—though no man knoweth that which hath been, and, that which shall be after him, who can tell him? ¹⁵The toil of dullards, shall weary a man, that he knoweth not how to go into the city. ¹⁶Alas! for thee, O land, when thy king is a boy,—and, thy rulers, in the morning, do eat: ¹⁷How happy art thou, O land, when thy king is a son of nobles,—and, thy rulers, in season, do eat, for strength, and not for debauchery. ¹⁸By two lazy arms, the framework sinketh in,—and, by the hanging down of the hands, the house may leak. ¹⁹Merrily people make bread, and, wine, gladdeneth life,—but, money, answereth all things. ²⁰Even in thy thought, do not revile, the king, nor, within thy bed-chambers, revile thou the rich,—for, a bird of the heavens, might carry the voice, yea, an owner of wings, might tell the matter.

11Cast thy bread-corn, upon the face of the waters,—for, after many days, shalt thou find it: ²Give a portion to seven, yea even to eight,—for thou canst not know, what there shall be of misfortune, upon the earth. ³If the clouds be filled with a downpour, upon the earth, will they empty themselves, and, if a tree fall in the south or in the north, in the place where the tree falleth, there will it be found. ⁴He that observeth the wind, will not sow,—and, he that watcheth the clouds, will not reap. ⁵Just as thou knowest not what is the way of the spirit, when the body is in the womb of her that is with child, even, so, canst thou not know the work of God, who maketh all. ⁶In the morning, sow thy seed, and, until evening, do not withhold thy hand,—for thou knowest not—whether shall thrive, either this or that, or whether, both alike, shall be fruitful. ⁷Truly sweet is the light,—and, pleasant to the eyes, to see the sun: ⁸But, though, many years, a man live, through them all, let him rejoice; yet let him remember the days of darkness, for many they may be, all that cometh, may be vanity. ⁹Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth, and let thy heart gladden thee in the days of thine early manhood, and walk thou—in the ways of thine own heart, and in that which is seen by thine own eyes,—yet know, that, for all these things, will God bring thee into judgment. ¹⁰Therefore remove thou vexation from thy heart, and put away discomfort from thy flesh,—for, youth and dawn, are vanity!

arrive, in which thou shalt say—I have, in them, no pleasure; ²Or ever be darkened—the sun, and the light, and the moon, and the stars,—and the clouds return after a down-pour of rain; ³In the day when the keepers of the house shall tremble, and the men of might bow themselves,—and the grinders cease because they are few, and they who look through the windows are darkened; ⁴And the doors in the street be closed, when the sound of the mill become low,—and one rise at the chirp of a small bird, and low-voiced be all the daughters of song; ⁵Yea, at what is high, they be in fear, and there be, terrors, in the way, and the almond be rejected, and the grasshopper drag itself along, and desire perish,—for man is going to his age-abiding home, when the wailers shall go round in the streets; ⁶Or ever the silver cord be loosed, or the golden bowl be broken,—or the bucket by the fountain be shivered, or the wheel at the well be broken; ⁷And the dust return to the earth, as it was,—and, the spirit, return unto God, who gave it. ⁸Vanity of vanities, saith the Proclaimer, all, is vanity. ⁹Besides that, the Proclaimer being wise,—still further taught knowledge unto the people, and weighed and searched, arranged proverbs in abundance. ¹⁰The Proclaimer sought to find out words giving delight, and to note down rightly, the words of truth. ¹¹The words of the wise, are as goads, yea, as driven nails, their well-ordered sayings,—given from one shepherd. ¹²And besides, from them, my son, be admonished,—Of making many books, there is no end, and, much study, is a weariness of the flesh. ¹³The conclusion of the matter—the whole, let us hear,—Towards God, be reverent, and, his commandments, observe, for, this, concerneth all mankind. ¹⁴For, every work, will God bring into judgment, with every hidden thing,—whether good, or evil.

Song of Solomon

1 The Song of Songs, which pertaineth to Solomon. 2 SHE Let him kiss me with the kisses of his mouth! 3 THEY For better are thy caresses than wine: 4 Like the fragrance of thy precious oils, Oil poured out, is thy name, For this cause, virgins love thee. 5 SHE Draw me! 6 THEY After thee, will we run! 7 SHE The king, hath brought me, into his chambers. 8 THEY We will exult and rejoice in thee, we will mention thy caresses, beyond wine, Sincerely they love thee. 9 SHE Swarthy, I am but comely, ye daughters of Jerusalem. 10 THEY Like the tents of Kedar, like the curtains of Solomon. 11 SHE Do not look on me, because, I, am so swarthy, because the sun hath scorched me,—My mother's sons, were angry with me, they set me to keep the vineyards, Mine own vineyard, have I not kept. ... 12 Tell me, thou loved of my soul! Where wilt thou pasture thy flock? Where wilt thou let them recline at noon? For why should I be as one that wrappeth a veil about her, by the flocks of thy companions? 13 HE If thou know not of thyself, most beautiful among women! get thee forth in the footsteps of the flock, and pasture thy kids by the huts of the shepherds. ... 14 To a mare of mine, in the chariots of Pharaoh, have I likened thee, my fair one! 15 Comely are thy cheeks, with bead-rows, thy neck, with strings of gems. 16 THEY Rows of golden ornaments, will we make thee, with studs of silver. 17 SHE By the time the king is in his circle, my nard, will have given out its fragrance: 18 A bag of myrrh, is my beloved to me, between my breasts, shall it tarry the night! 19 A cluster of henna, is my beloved to me, in the vineyards of En-gedi. 20 HE Lo! thou art beautiful my fair one, lo! thou art beautiful, Thine eyes, are doves! 21 SHE Lo! thou art beautiful, my beloved, Yea delightful! 22 BOTH Yea! our couch, is covered with leaves: 23 The beams of our house, are cedars, Our fretted ceiling, is cypress-trees.

2 SHE I am The meadow-saffron of Sharon, The lily of the valleys. 3 HE As a lily among thorns, So, is my fair one, among the daughters! 4 SHE As an apple-tree among the trees of the forest, So, is my beloved, among the sons: In his shade, I greatly delighted and sat down, And, his fruit, was sweet to my taste. 5 He hath brought me into the house of wine, and, his banner over me, is love. 6 Sustain me with raisin-cakes, refresh me with apples,—for sick with love, I am. 7 His left hand under my head, then, his right hand, embraceth me! 8 HE I adjure you, ye daughters of Jerusalem, by the gazelles or by the hinds of the field,—That ye wake not, nor arouse, the dear love until she please! 9 * 10 SHE The voice of my beloved! Lo! here he cometh,—leaping over the mountains, skipping over the hills. 11 Resembleth, my beloved, a gazelle, or a young stag,—Lo! here he is, standing behind our wall, looking in at the windows, peeping in at the lattice. 12 Responded my beloved, and said to me,—Rise up! my fair—my beautiful—one, and come away, 13 For lo, the winter, is past,—the rain, is over, and gone; 14 The flowers, have appeared in the earth, the time of the spring-song, hath come,—and, the voice of the turtle, is heard in our land; 15 The fig-tree, hath spiced her green figs, and, the vines—all blossom, yield fragrance,—Rise up! my fair—my beautiful—one, and come away! 16 HE O my dove! In the retreats of the crag, in the hiding-place of the terrace, Let me see thy form, Let me hear thy voice,—For, thy voice, is sweet, and, thy form, comely. 17 BOTH Take ye for us, the foxes, the little foxes that are spoiling the vines,—and, our vines, are all blossom! 18 SHE My beloved, is, mine, and, I, am, his, he that pastureth among lilies! 19 Until the day, breathe, and the shadows, be lengthened, Again, liken thyself, my beloved, to a gazelle, or to a young stag, upon the cleft mountains. 20 ****

3 SHE Upon my couch, in the night-time, sought I the beloved of my soul,—I sought him, but found him not. 4 Come! I must arise, and go about in the city, In the paths and in the broadways, I must seek the beloved of my soul,—I sought him, but found him not. 5 The watchmen that go round in the city, found me, The beloved of my soul, have ye seen? 6 Scarcely had I passed from them, when I found the beloved of my soul,—I caught him, and would not let him go, until that I had brought him into the house of my mother, and into the chamber of her that conceived me. 7 HE I adjure you ye, daughters of Jerusalem, by the gazelles, or by the hinds of the field,—That ye wake not,

nor arouse, the dear love until she please. \ul1 *\ul0
 6\ul1 THEY\ul0 Who is this, coming up out of the wilderness, like pillars of smoke,—with perfume of myrrh, and frankincense, besides all the aromatic powder of the merchant? 7Lo! his couch, 'tis Solomon's own, Threescore heroes, around it,—of the heroes of Israel: 8All of them, grasping the sword, trained for war,—every man, with his sword upon his thigh, because of dread, in the night-time. 9A palanquin, King Solomon made himself, of the trees of Lebanon: 10The supports thereof, made he of silver, the couch thereof, of gold, the seat thereof, of purple,—the midst thereof, hath an inlay of love from the daughters of Jerusalem. 11Go forth and gaze, ye daughters of Zion, upon King Solomon,—wearing the crown, wherewith his mother, crowned him, in the day of his marriage, and in the day of his heart gladness.

4\ul1 HE\ul0 Lo! thou art beautiful, my fair one, Lo! thou art beautiful, Thine eyes, are doves, from behind thy veil,—Thy hair, is like a flock of goats, which are reclining on the sides of Mount Gilead: 2Thy teeth, are like a flock, evenly grown, which have come up from the washing-place,—whereof, all of them, are twin-bearers, and bereaved, is none among them: 3Like a cord of crimson, are thy lips, and, thy mouth, is lovely,—Like a slice of pomegranate, are thy temples, behind thy veil: 4Like the tower of David, is thy neck, built for war,—A thousand shields, hung thereon, all, equipment of heroes: 5Thy two breasts, are like two young roes, twins of a gazelle,—which pasture among lilies. 6Until the day, breathe, and the shadows, be lengthened, I will get me unto the mountain of myrrh, and unto the hill of frankincense. 7Thou art, all over, beautiful, my fair one, and, blemish, is there none in thee. 8With me, from Lebanon, O bride, with me, from Lebanon, shalt thou enter,—Thou shalt look round from the top of Amana, from the top of Senir, and Hermon, from the dens of lions, from the mountains of leopards. 9Thou hast encouraged me, my sister, bride,—thou hast encouraged me, with one glance of thine eyes, with one ornament of thy neck. 10How beautiful are thy caresses, my sister, bride,—how much more delightful thy caresses, than wine, and the fragrance of thine oils, than all spices: 11With sweetness, thy lips do drip, O bride,—Honey and milk, are under thy tongue, and, the fragrance of thy garments, is like the fragrance of Lebanon. 12A garden barred, is my sister, bride,—a spring barred, a fountain sealed: 13Thy buddings forth, are a paradise of pomegranates, with precious fruits,—henna bushes, with nard blossoms: 14Nard and saffron, sweet cane and cinnamon, with all woods of frankincense,—myrrh and aloes, with all the chiefs of spices: 15A garden fountain, a well of living waters,—and flowings from Lebanon. 16\ul1 SHE\ul0 Awake, O north wind, and come in, thou south, Fan my garden—its balsams, will flow out,—Let my beloved enter his garden, and eat his precious fruits.

5\ul1 HE\ul0 I have entered my garden, my sister, bride, I have plucked my myrrh, with my balsam, I have eaten the honey of my thicket, I have drunk my wine, with my milk:—Eat ye, O friends, Drink, yea drink abundantly, ye beloved! \ul1 *\ul0 2\ul1 SHE\ul0 I, was sleeping, but, my heart, was awake,—The voice of my beloved—knocking! Open to me, my sister, my fair one, my dove, my perfect one, for, my head, is filled with dew, my locks, with the moisture of the night. 3I have put off my tunic, oh how shall I put it on? I have bathed my feet, oh how shall I soil them? 4My beloved, thrust in his hand, at the window, and, my feelings, were deeply moved for him: 5I myself, arose, to open to my beloved,—and, my hands, dripped with myrrh, and, my fingers, with myrrh distilling, upon the handles of the bolt. 6I myself, opened to my beloved, but, my beloved, had turned away, had passed on,—My soul, had gone out when he spake, I sought him, but found him not, I called him, but he answered not. 7The watchmen who were going round in the city, found me, they smote me, wounded me,—The watchmen of the walls, took away my cloak from off me. 8I adjure you, ye daughters of Jerusalem,—If ye find my beloved, what will ye tell him? That, sick with love, I am. 9\ul1 DAUGHTERS OF JERUSALEM\ul0 What is thy beloved more than any other beloved, thou most beautiful among women? What is thy beloved more than any other beloved, that, thus, thou hast adjured us? 10\ul1 SHE\ul0 My beloved, is white and ruddy, conspicuous beyond ten thousand: 11His head, is pure gold,—his locks, are bushy, black as a raven; 12His eyes, like doves, by the channels of water,—bathing in milk, set as gems in a ring: 13His cheeks, like a raised bed of balsam, growing plants of perfume,—His lips, lilies, dripping with myrrh distilling: 14His hands, cylinders of gold, set with topaz,—His body, wrought work of ivory, covered with sapphires: 15His legs, pillars of white marble, founded on sockets of gold,—His form, like Lebanon, choice as cedars: 16His mouth, most sweet, yea, altogether, he is delightful,—This, is my beloved, yea, this, is my dear one, ye daughters of Jerusalem.

6\ul1 DAUGHTERS OF JERUSALEM\ul0 Whither hath thy beloved, gone, thou most beautiful among women? whither hath thy beloved turned him aside? That we may seek him with thee. 2\ul1 SHE\ul0 My beloved, is gone down to his garden, to the beds of balsam,—to pasture in the gardens, and to gather lilies, 3I, am, my beloved's, and, my beloved, is mine, he that pastureth among lilies. 4\ul1 HE\ul0 Beautiful, art thou, my fair one, as Tirzah, comely, as Jerusalem,—majestic as bannered hosts! 5Turn away thine eyes from me, for, they, have excited me,—Thy hair, is like a flock of goats, that are reclining on the sides of Mount Gilead: 6Thy teeth, are like a flock of sheep which have come up from the washing-place,—whereof, all of them, are twin-bearers, and bereaved, is there none among them: ⁷Like a slice of pomegranate, are thy temples, from behind thy veil: ⁸Threescore, are the queens, and, fourscore, are the concubines,—and, virgins, there are, without number. ⁹One alone, is my dove, my perfect one, one alone, was she to her mother, Pure, was she to her that bare her,—The daughters, have seen her, and pronounced her happy, Queens and concubines, and they have praised her. \ul1 *\ul0 ¹⁰\ul1 THEY\ul0 Who is this, that looketh forth like the dawn, beautiful as the moon, pure as the sun, majestic as bannered hosts? ¹¹\ul1 HE\ul0 To the garden of nuts, I went down, to look at the fresh shoots of the ravine,—to see whether: had burst forth the vine, had blossomed the pomegranate:—¹²I know not how it was, my soul, set for me the chariots of my willing people! ¹³\ul1 THEY\ul0 Return, return, O Shulamite, Return, return, that we may look on thee! \ul1 SHE\ul0 What would ye look on in the Shulamite? \ul1 THEY\ul0 As it were the dance of a double camp...

⁷How beautiful, are thy feet in sandals, O daughter of a noble,—The curvings of thy hips, are like ornaments wrought by the hands of a skilled workman: ²Thy navel, is a round bowl, may it not lack spiced wine! Thy body, a heap of wheat fenced about with lilies; ³Thy two breasts, are like two young roes, the twins of a gazelle: ⁴Thy neck, is like a tower of ivory,—Thine eyes, are pools in Heshbon, by the gate of Bath-rabbim, Thy nose, is like the tower of Lebanon, which looketh towards Damascus: ⁵Thy head upon thee, is like Carmel, And, the hair of thy head, is like purple,—The king, is held captive by the ringlets! ⁶\ul1 HE\ul0 How beautiful, and how delightful, O dear love, for delights: ⁷This thy stature, is like to a palm-tree, and, thy breasts, are like clusters: ⁸I said, I will ascend the palm-tree, I will lay hold of its fruit stalks—Oh then, let thy breasts, I pray thee, be like vine-clusters, And, the fragrance of thy nose, like apples; ⁹And, thy mouth, like good wine—\ul1 SHE\ul0 Flowing to my beloved smoothly, gliding over the lips of the sleeping. ¹⁰I, am my beloved's, and, unto me, is his longing. ¹¹Come, my beloved, Let us go forth into the country, Let us stay the night in the villages: ¹²Let us get up early to the vineyards, Let us see whether the vine, hath burst forth, the blossom, hath opened, the pomegranates, have bloomed,—There, will I give my carresses to thee. ¹³The love-apples, have given fragrance, and, at our openings, are all precious things, new and yet old,—O my beloved! I have treasured them up for thee.

⁸Oh that thou hadst been a very brother to me, who had sucked the breasts of my own mother,—Had I found thee without, I had kissed thee, Yea, folk would not have despised me! ²I would have guided thee—brought thee into the house of my mother, Thou wouldst have instructed me,—I would have let thee drink of spiced wine, of the pressed-out juice of my pomegranate. ³His left hand under my head, then, his right hand, embraceth me. ⁴I \ul1 HE\ul0 adjure you, O ye daughters of Jerusalem,—Why will ye wake, and why will ye arouse the dear love until she please! \ul1 *\ul0 ⁵\ul1 THEY\ul0 Who is this, coming up out of the wilderness, leaning upon her beloved? \ul1 HE\ul0 Under the apple-tree, I roused thee, where thy mother, was in pain with thee, where she was in pain who gave thee birth! ⁶\ul1 SHE\ul0 Set me as a seal, upon thy heart, as a seal upon thine arm, For, mighty as death, is love, Exacting as hades, is jealousy,—The flames thereof, are flames of fire, The flash of Yah! ⁷Many waters, cannot quench love, nor shall, floods, overwhelm it,—If a man would give all the substance of his house, for love, they would, utterly despise, him. \ul1 *\ul0 ⁸\ul1 THEY\ul0 A sister, have we, a little one, and, breasts, hath she none, What shall we do for our sister, in the day when she may be spoken for? ⁹If, a wall, she is, we will build upon it a battlement of silver,—but if, a door, she is, we will close it up with a plank of cedar. ¹⁰\ul1 SHE\ul0 I, was a wall, and, my breasts, like towers,—Then, became I, in his eyes, one who did indeed find good content. ¹¹A vineyard, had Solomon, as the owner of abundance, He put out the vineyard to keepers,—Every man, was to bring in, for the fruit thereof, a thousand silverlings: ¹²Mine own vineyard, is before me,—The thousand belong to thee, O Solomon, and two hundred to the keepers of the fruit thereof. ¹³\ul1 HE\ul0 O thou fair dweller in the gardens, the companions are giving heed to thy voice, Let me hear it. ¹⁴\ul1 SHE\ul0 Come quickly, my beloved, and resemble thou a gazelle, or a young stag, upon the mountains of balsam-trees.

Isaiah

¹The vision of Isaiah son of Amoz, which he saw, concerning Judah and Jerusalem,—in the days of Uzziah Jotham Ahaz Hezekiah—kings of Judah. ²Hear O heavens, And give ear, O earth, for Yahweh, hath spoken:—Sons, have I brought up, and advanced, And, they, have rebelled against me. ³An ox knoweth, his owner, And an ass his masters crib,—Israel, doth not know, My people doth not consider. ⁴Alas! a nation—committing sin, a people—burdened with iniquity, a seed—practising wickedness, sons acting corruptly. They have forsaken Yahweh despised the Holy One of Israel,—Are estranged and gone back. ⁵Why should ye be smitten any more? Ye would again turn aside! The whole head is sick, And the whole heart faint: ⁶From the sole of the foot even unto the head, there is in it no soundness, Bruise and stripe and newly-made wound,—They have not been pressed out, nor bound up, nor soothed with oil. ⁷Your country—is a desolation, Your cities—are consumed with fire,—Your soil—right before your eyes, foreigners are devouring it, And it is a desolation a very overthrow by foreigners; ⁸And left is the Daughter of Zion, Like a hut in a vineyard,—Like a lodge in a gourd-plot Like a city besieged. ⁹If, Yahweh of hosts, had not left us a very small remnant, Like Sodom, had we become, Gomorrah, had we resembled. ¹⁰Hear the word of Yahweh, ye rulers of Sodom,—Give ear to the instruction of our God, ye people of Gomorrah:— ¹¹Of what use to me, is your multitude of sacrifices: Saith Yahweh: I am sated with ascending-offerings of rams and the fat of fed beasts,—In the blood of bulls and young rams and he-goats, have I no pleasure. ¹²When ye enter to see my face, Who hath required this at your hand trampling my courts? ¹³Ye shall not again bring in an empty, present, Incense, an abomination, is that unto me! New moon, and sabbath calling an assembly—I cannot endure, iniquity and sacred festival! ¹⁴Your new moons and your appointed feasts, my soul, hateth,—They have become unto me a burden I am too weary to bear: ¹⁵Even when ye spread forth your open palms, I hide mine eyes from you; Yea, though ye multiply prayers, I am not hearkening,—Your hands, with deeds of blood, are filled. ¹⁶Wash you make you clean, Put away the wickedness of your doings from before mine eyes,—Cease to do evil. ¹⁷Learn to do well—Seek justice, Correct

the oppressor,—Vindicate the fatherless, Plead the cause of the widow, ¹⁸Come, I pray you, and let us settle the disputer Saith Yahweh,—Though your sins be found like scarlet, As snow, shall they be made white, Though they appear red like crimson, As wool, shall they become. ¹⁹If ye be willing—and hearken Of the good of the land, shall ye eat; ²⁰But, if ye refuse and rebel, With the sword, shall ye be devoured, For, the mouth of Yahweh, hath spoken it. ²¹How hath she become unchaste!—The city that was Faithful,—Full of justice, Righteousness lodged in her, But, now, murderers! ²²Thy silver, hath become dross,—Thy wine, weakened with water; ²³Thy rulers, are unruly, and companions of thieves, Every one of the people, loveth a bribe, and runneth after rewards,—The fatherless, they do not vindicate, And, the plea of the widow, reacheth them not. ²⁴Therefore, Declareth the Lord Yahweh of hosts, The Mighty One of Israel,—Alas! I must appease me on mine adversaries, I must avenge me on mine enemies ²⁵That I may turn my hand against thee, And smelt away, as with potash, thy dross, And remove all thine alloy; ²⁶That I may restore thy Judges as at the first, and thy Counsellors as at the beginning,—After that, shalt thou he called Righteous citadel, Trusty city,— ²⁷Zion, with justice shall be redeemed,—And her returning ones, with righteousness; ²⁸And the downfall of transgressors and sinners, shall be, together,—And, they who forsake Yahweh, shall be brought to an end; ²⁹For they shall turn pale on account of the oaks which ye desired,—And ye shall blush on account of the gardens which ye had chosen; ³⁰For ye shall be as an oak with its leaf faded, And as a garden that hath no, water; ³¹Then shall the strong one become tow, And his work a spark,—And they shall both blaze together And there be none to quench the fire.

²That which Isaiah, son of Amoz saw in vision,—concerning Judah and Jerusalem. ²But it shall come to pass, in the afterpart of the days, That the mountain of the house of Yahweh Shall be, set up, as the head of the mountains, And be exalted above the hills,—And all the nations, shall stream thereunto; ³And many peoples shall go and say—Come ye, and let us ascend Unto the mountain of Yahweh Unto the house of the God of Jacob, That he may teach us of his ways, And we may walk in his paths,—

For, out of Zion, shall go forth a law, And the word of Yahweh out of Jerusalem; ⁴And he will judge between the nations, And be umpire to many peoples,—And they will beat their swords into ploughshares and their spears into pruning-hooks, Nation—against nation, shall not lift up sword, Neither shall they learn any more to make war, ⁵O house of Jacob! come ye and let us walk in the light of Yahweh. ⁶Therefore hast thou abandoned thy people the house of Jacob, Because they have become full of the And use hidden arts like the Philistines,—And with the children of foreigners, strike hands;—⁷So that filled is their land with silver and gold, And there is no end to their treasures,—And filled is theft land with horses, And there is no end to their chariots; ⁸And filled is their land with idols,—To the work of their own hands, do they bow themselves down, To that which they made with their own fingers. ⁹So the mean man boweth down And the great man stoopeth low,—Therefore do not thou forgive them! ¹⁰Enter into the rock, Or hide thee in the dust,—Because of the terribleness of Yahweh, And for his majestic splendour. ¹¹The lofty looks of mean men, shall be humbled, And, the haughtiness of great men, shall be bowed down,—And Yahweh alone shall be exalted in that day. ¹²For, a day of Yahweh of hosts, shall be —Upon every one who is high and lofty,—And upon every one who is lifted up, And he shall be brought low; ¹³And upon all cedars of Lebanon, that are high and lifted up,—And upon all the oaks of Bashan; ¹⁴And upon all the lofty mountains,—And upon all the uplifted hills; ¹⁵And upon every high tower,—And upon every fortress wall; ¹⁶And upon all the ships of Tarshish,—And upon all desirable banners. ¹⁷And the haughtiness of mean men, shall be humbled,—And the loftiness of great men, shall be laid low,—And Yahweh alone shall be exalted in that day. ¹⁸And, the idols, shall wholly pass away; ¹⁹And they shall enter into the holes of the rocks, and into the caves of clay,—Because of the terribleness of Yahweh, And for his majestic splendour, When he ariseth to shake terribly the earth. ²⁰In that day shall the son of earth cast his idols of silver, and his idols of gold,—which had been made for him to worship, into the hole of the mice, and to the bats; ²¹That he may enter into the clefts of the rocks, and into the fissures of the crags,—Because of the terribleness of Yahweh, And for his majestic splendour, When he ariseth to shake terribly the earth. ²²Cease ye from the son of earth, In whose nostrils is but a breath,—For wherein to be reckoned upon, is he?

3For lo! the Lord, Yahweh of hosts, removing from Jerusalem and from Judah, The stay and staff,—The whole stay of bread, And the whole stay of water: ²Man of might and man of war,—Judge and prophet And diviner and elder; ³Captain of fifty, and favourite; And counsellor and skilled artificer, And master of magical formulas; ⁴And I will appoint boys to be their princes,—And, petulant children, shall rule over them, ⁵And the people will, tyrannise, Every man over his fellow-man, And every man over his friend,—And they will rage The boy against, the elder, And the despised, against, the honourable, ⁶When a man shall lay hold, on his brother of the house of his father, saying —Clothing, hast thou, Become thou our, ruler, This downfall, be under thy hand, ⁷He will swear, in that day, saying—I will take no control, When in mine own house, is neither food nor clothing,—Ye must not set me for a ruler of people! ⁸For stumbled bath Jerusalem, and, Judah, hath fallen,—Because, their tongue and their doings, are against Yahweh, Provoking his glorious presence, ⁹The show of their face, hath answered against them, And their sin—like Sodom, have they told, they have not concealed it. Alas for their souls! For they have requited to themselves, calamity. ¹⁰Say ye to the righteous It is well! For the fruit of their doings, shall they eat: ¹¹Alas! for the lawless, it is ill, For what his own hand hath matured, shall he done to him. ¹²My people! children, are their tyrants, And, women, rule over them,—My people! they who should lead thee forward, are causing thee to stray, Thy pathways, have they destroyed, ¹³Yahweh hath taken his station to plead,—And is standing to judge peoples: ¹⁴Yahweh, into judgment, will enter, With the elders of his people And their princes,—But ye, have consumed the vineyard, That which hath been robbed from the oppressed, is in your houses. ¹⁵What right have ye to crush my people, And the faces of the oppressed, to grind? Demandeth My Lord Yahweh of hosts—And Yahweh saith—¹⁶Because haughty are the daughters of Zion, And they walk with neck thrown back, and wanton eyes,—Tripping along as they go, And with their feet, making, a tinkling sound, ¹⁷Therefore will My Lord, smite with leprosy the crown of hair of the daughters of Zion,—And, as for Yahweh, their shame, will he lay bare! ¹⁸In that day, will My Lord remove the finery—of the anklets, and the little suns and the little moons; ¹⁹the pendants and the bracelets and the veils; ²⁰the chaplets and the armlets and the girdles, and the scent-cases, and the amulets; ²¹the rings and the nose-jewels; ²²the robes, and the over-tunics, and the cloaks and the purses; ²³and the mirrors and the linen wraps, and the tiaras and the cloaks. ²⁴And it shall come to pass—That instead of fragrance, a putrid odour, shall be, And instead of a girdle, an encircling rope, And instead of braided hair, baldness, And instead of a festal robe, a girding of sackcloth, Branding instead of beauty: ²⁵Thy males, by the sword shall fall,—And, thy mighty men, by the war; ²⁶And her gates shall mourn and lament,—And forsaken, on the ground, shah she sit.

4And seven women will take hold of one man in that day, saying, Our own bread, will we eat, And our own apparel, will we wear,—Only let us be called by thy name, to take away our reproach. ²In that day, Shall the Bud of Yahweh, become beautiful and glorious,—And the Fruit of the Land splendid and majestic, To the escaped of Israel. ³And it shall come to pass—He that is left in Zion! And he that remaineth in Jerusalem, Shall be called, holy,—Everyone written unto life in Jerusalem. ⁴When My Lord shall have bathed away the filth of the daughters of Zion, And the blood-guiltiness of Jerusalem, he shall wash away out of her midst,—By the spirit of judgment, and By the spirit of thorough cleansing, ⁵Then will Yahweh, create—Over all the home of Mount Zion and Over her assembly, A cloud by day and a smoke, And the shining of a fire-flame, by night,—For over all the glory, shall be a canopy; ⁶And a pavilion, shall there be For a shade by day, from the heat,—and For a refuge and for a shelter, from storm and from rain.

⁵Let me sing, I pray you, for a well-beloved of mine, The song of my beloved concerning his vineyard:—A vineyard, had my well-beloved on a very fruitful hill; ²And he thoroughly digged it, And gathered out the stones thereof, And planted it with a precious vine, And built a tower in the midst thereof, Moreover also a wine-press, hewed he therein,—Then waited he that it should bring forth grapes. And it brought forth wild grapes: ³Now, therefore, O inhabitant of Jerusalem, And men of Judah,—Judge, I pray you, betwixt me, and my vineyard:— ⁴What could have been done further to my vineyard, That I had not done in it? Why then—When I had waited that it should bring forth grapes, Brought it forth, wild grapes? ⁵Now, therefore, I pray you, let me tell, you, what I am about to do to my vineyard,—To take away the fence thereof And it shall be eaten up, To destroy the wall thereof And it shall be trodden down; ⁶And I will make it a waste;—It shall be neither pruned nor hoed, But there shall come up briars and thorns,—And upon the clouds, will I lay a charge, That they rain thereon no rain. ⁷Surely the vineyard of Yahweh of hosts, is the house of Israel, And, the men of Judah, are the plantation in which he dearly delighted,—And he waited, For equity but lo! murderous iniquity, For the rule of right but lo the cry of the wronged. ⁸Alas for them who join house to house, Field to field, bring they near,—Until there is no room, But ye are left to dwell alone in the midst of the land. ⁹In mine ears, said Yahweh of hosts,—Verily, houses in abundance, shall become, a desolation, Large and fair, without inhabitant; ¹⁰For, ten yokes of vineyard, shall yield one bath,—And the seed of a homer, shall yield an ephah, ¹¹Alas, for them who rise early in the morning that strong drink, they may pursue,—Who follow on in the evening cool until with wine, they are heated; ¹²And it cometh to pass—that lyre and harp, timbrel and flute and wine are in their banquets,—But, the doing of Yahweh, they do not discern, And the work of his hands, have they not seen. ¹³Therefore, are my people taken away captive before they know it,—And their honourable mean are famished with hunger, And, their multitude, do gape for thirst. ¹⁴Therefore, hath hades enlarged her desire, And opened her mouth to its widest,—And their glory, and their multitude and their pomp. and he that is uproarious shall descend thereinto. ¹⁵And the mean man hath been bowed down And the mighty man hath been humbled,—Yea the looks of the haughty shall be humbled. ¹⁶But Yahweh of hosts, hath been exalted, in justice,—And the GOD that is holy hath been hallowed in righteousness; ¹⁷Then shall the young rams feed where they please,—And, the wastes of the wealthy, shall strangers consume. ¹⁸Alas! for them Who draw on themselves punishment with cords of falsehood,—And as with waggon-bands, penalty: ¹⁹Who say—Let his work quicken—let it hasten, That we may see,—And let the purpose of Israel's Holy One, draw near and come. That we may know! ²⁰Alas! for them Who call evil good and good evil,—Who put darkness for light and light for darkness, Who put bitter for sweet and sweet for bitter. ²¹Alas for them Who are wise in their own eyes,—And in their own sight, are prudent. ²²Alas for them Who are heroes to drink wine,—And men of valour to mingle strong drink, ²³Who justify the lawless, for a bribe,—Whereas the righteousness of the righteous, they take from him. ²⁴Therefore, As a tongue of fire, eateth up straw, And a flame reduceth, dry grass, to powder, Their root, like rottenness, shall become, And their blossom, like dust shall ascend,—Because they refused the law of Yahweh of hosts, And the utterance of the Holy One of Israel, they despised. ²⁵For this cause, did the anger of Yahweh kindle upon his own people, And he stretched out his hand against them and smote them—So that the mountains, trembled, And, their dead bodies, served, for fuel in the midst of the streets. For all this, hath his anger, not turned back, But still, is his hand outstretched, ²⁶Therefore will he lift up an ensign to the nations afar off, And signal for him from the end of the earth,—And lo! with hot haste, will he come: ²⁷None shall be weary, and none shall stumble in his midst, He shall neither slumber nor sleep,—Nor shall be loosened, the girdle of his loins, Nor snapped, the thong of his sandals: ²⁸Whose arrows, are sharpened, and all his bows, bent,—The hoofs of his horses, like flint, are accounted, And, his wheels, are like a storm-wind: ²⁹A roar, hath he, like a lioness,—He will roar like wild lions—And will growl, and lay hold on prey, and carry into safety, and there be none to deliver. ³⁰Yea he will growl at him in that day, like the growling of the sea,—Though he look hard for the land, lo! the darkness of distress, Yea the light, hath grown dark in its clouds!

⁶In the year that King Uzziah died, I saw My Lord, sitting upon a throne high and lifted up, and, his skirts, did fill the temple, ²Seraphim, were standing above him; six wings severally, had each one,—With twain, he covered his face And with twain, he covered his feet And with twain, he did fly. ³And they continued crying out one to another, and said, Holy—holy—holy, is Yahweh of hosts,—the fulness of the whole earth, is his glory. ⁴And the foundations of the porch, were moved at the voice of him that cried,—and the house, was filled with smoke. ⁵Then said I—Woe to me!—for I am undone, Because a man of unclean lips, am, I, And in the midst of a people of unclean lips, do I dwell,—For the King. Yahweh of hosts, have mine eyes seen! ⁶Then flew unto me one of the seraphim, And in his hand, a live coal,—With tongs, had he taken it from off the altar. ⁷Then touched he my month, and said—Lo! this hath touched thy lips,—Thus shall be taken away, thine iniquity, And, thy sin, by propitiation be covered. ⁸Then heard I the voice of My Lord, saying, Whom shall I send? And who will go for us? And I said—Here am I—send me. ⁹Then said he—Go and say unto this people,—Hear on but do not discern, See on but do not perceive: ¹⁰Stupefy thou the heart of this people, And their ears, make thou heavy, And their eyes, overspread,—Lest they see with their eyes And with their ears, should hear, And their heart should discern and come back. And they be healed. ¹¹Then said I—How long, My Lord? And he said—Until the time that Cities be wasted through having no inhabitant And houses—through having no men, And, the ground, be laid waste unto desolation; ¹²And Yahweh have far removed men,—And great! be the abandonment in the midst of the land. ¹³Yet still shall there be in it a tenth, Though it again be consumed,—Like an oak and like a terebinth Which when felled, have a stock in them, A holy seed, shall be the stock thereof. Courage.

⁷And it came to pass in the days of Ahaz son of Jotham son of Uzziah king of Judah, that Rezin king of Syria, and Pekah son of Remaliah king of Israel, came up, to Jerusalem, to war against it, but could not prevail against it. ²And it was told the house of David, saying, Syria hath settled down upon Ephraim. Then shook his heart, and the heart of his people, as the trees of a forest shake before a wind. ³Then said Yahweh, unto Isaiah, Go forth, I pray thee, to meet Ahaz, thou, and Shear-jashub thy son,—unto the end of the channel of the upper pool, unto the highway of the fullers field; ⁴and say unto him—Take heed and keep thyself calm—do not fear, neither let thy heart be faint, because of these two fag-ends of smoking firebrands,—in spite of the glow of the anger of Rezin and Syria and the son of Remaliah. ⁵Because Syria, hath taken counsel against thee, for mischief,—with Ephraim and the son of Remaliah, saying, ⁶Let us go up against Judah, and besiege it, and break it open, for ourselves,—and set up a king in the midst thereof, even the son of Tabeal, ⁷Thus, saith My Lord, Yahweh,—It shall not stand Neither shall it come to pass! ⁸For, though the head of Syria is Damascus, And, the head of Damascus, is Rezin, Yet within three-score and five years more, shall Ephraim be broken that it shall not be a people; ⁹Even though the head of Ephraim is Samaria, And, the head of Samaria, is the son of Remaliah. If ye trust not, Surely, ye cannot be trusted! ¹⁰And again spake Yahweh unto Ahaz saying— ¹¹Ask thee a sign, of Yahweh thy God,—Go down deep for a request, Or ascend on high! ¹²But Ahaz said,—I will not ask Nor will I put Yahweh to the proof. ¹³Then said he—Hear, I pray you, O house of David! Is it, too little, for you to weary men, that ye must weary even my God? ¹⁴Wherefore let My Lord Himself give you a sign,—Lo! a Virgin, being with child and giving birth to a son, thou wilt call his name Immanuel. ¹⁵Curds and honey, shall he eat, by the time that he knoweth to refuse the bad and choose the good; ¹⁶for before the boy knoweth to refuse the bad and choose the good, forsaken shall be the land, at which, thou, art alarmed, of the presence of both her kings. ¹⁷Yahweh will bring upon thee and upon thy people, and upon the house of thy father, days which have not come, from the day when Ephraim departed from Judah,—even the king of Assyria. ¹⁸And it shall come to pass in that day that Yahweh will give a signal—To the fly that is in the uttermost part of the Nile-canals of Egypt, And to the bee that is in the land of Assyria. ¹⁹And they shall all of them come and settle down—In the desolate torrent-valleys, And in the rents of the crags,—And on all the thorn-bushes, And on all the pastures, ²⁰In that day, will My Lord shave, with hired razor, even with them of the lands over the River Euphrates, with the king of Assyria, the head and the hair of the feet,—yea, even the beard, will it sweep off. ²¹And it shall come to pass in that day, that a man shall keep alive a young cow and two sheep. ²²Yea it shall come to pass for the abundance of the yield of milk, that he shall eat curds,—for, curds and honey, shall every one eat that is left in the midst of the land. ²³And it shall come to pass in that day, that, every place wherein there used to be a thousand vines at a thousand pieces of silver,—yea, even for briars and thorns, shall it be. ²⁴With arrows and with a bow, shall one come in thither,—for briars and thorns, shall be all the land. ²⁵But all the hills which, with the hoe, can be weeded,—there shall not come thither, the fear of briars and thorns,—but it shall be for the sending forth of oxen, and for the tread of lesser cattle.

⁸And Yahweh said unto me: Take thee a large tablet,—and write thereon in plain characters, To Maher-shalal-hash-baz. \ul1 "Speed-spoil-hurry-prey".\ul0 ²That I may take in attestation, faithful witnesses,—even Uriah the priest, and Zechariah son of Jeberechiah. ³Then approached I unto the prophetess, and she conceived and bare a son,—and Yahweh said unto me, Call his name Maher-shalal-hash-baz. ⁴For before the boy shall have knowledge to cry, My father! and, My mother! the riches of Damascus and the spoil of Samaria shall be carried away before the king of Assyria. ⁵And again Yahweh spake unto me yet further saying: ⁶Because this people hath refused the waters of Shiloah which flow softly,—and are rejoicing with Rezin and the son of Remaliah, ⁷now therefore, lo! the Lord is about to bring up against them the waters, strong and many, of the River, even the king of Assyria and all his glory,—and he shall rise over all his channels, and flow over all his banks; ⁸and roll on throughout Judah—overflow and pass along, till unto the neck, he shall reach,—and it shall be, that, the stretching out of his wings, shall fill the breadth of thy land, O Immanuel! ⁹Rage, O ye peoples,—and be overthrown, And give ear, all ye distant parts of the earth,—Gird yourselves and be overthrown, Gird yourselves, and be overthrown: ¹⁰Determine a plan,—and it shall be frustrated,—Speak a word, and it shall not stand, For With-us-is-GOD! ¹¹For, thus, spake Yahweh unto me like a firm grasp of the hand,—when he admonished me, not to walk in the way of this people, saying: ¹²Ye shall not say—A confederacy! of everything of which this people may say. A confederacy! And their fear, shall ye not fear or regard as awful: ¹³Yahweh of hosts, him, shall ye hallow,—And let, him, be your fear, and let, him inspire you with awe; ¹⁴So shall he become a hallowed asylum,—But a stone to strike against, and a rock to stumble over unto both houses of Israel A trap and a snare to the dweller in Jerusalem; ¹⁵And many, shall stumble among them,—and fall and be torn, and snared, and captured. ¹⁶Bind thou up the testimony,—Seal the instruction amongst my disciples. ¹⁷I will therefore long for Yahweh, Who is hiding his face from the house of Jacob,—And will wait, for him. ¹⁸Lo! I and the children whom Yahweh hath given me, are for signs and for wonders in Israel,—from Yahweh of hosts, who is making his habitation in Mount Zion. ¹⁹But, when they say unto you—Seek ye unto the necromancers and unto the wizards, who chirp, and who mutter, Should not u people seek, unto its God? In behalf of the living, should it seek unto the dead? ²⁰To the law and to the testimony! If they speak not according to this word, It is , because they have no dawning day. ²¹Therefore shall they pass through it hard pressed and hungry,—And it shall be when they hunger, then will they rage and revile their king and their god and turn their faces upwards; ²²And unto the land, shall they look hard, And lo! distress and darkness, the gloom of anguish, driven away!

⁹For there is no gloom to her who had been in anguish, In the former time, he brought into dishonour The land of Zebulun and the land of Naphtali, In the latter time, hath he brought into honour The Lake-way over the Jordan, Galilee of the nations. ²the people who were walking in darkness, Have seen a great light,—The dwellers in a land death-shadowed, A light, hath shined upon them. ³Thou hast increased the exultation Thou hast made great the joy,—They joy before thee, according to the joy of harvest,

As men exult when they distribute spoil. ⁴For, the yoke of their burden, The cross-bar of their shoulder, The goad of their driver, Hast thou broken, as in the day of Midian. ⁵Surely, every boot of one tramping in tumult, and the war-cloak rolled in blood Then shall serve for burning, food for fire; ⁶For, A Child, hath been born to us, A Son, hath been given to us, And the dominion is upon his shoulder,—And his Name hath been called Wonderful Counsellor, Mighty GOD, Father of Futurity, Prince of Prosperity. ⁷Of the increase of dominion, and of prosperity, There shall be no end—Upon the throne of David and Upon his kingdom, By establishing it and By sustaining it, With justice and With righteousness,—From henceforth, Even unto times age-abiding: The jealousy of Yahweh of hosts, will perform this! ⁸A word, hath My Lord, sent unto Jacob,—And it shall alight on Israel; ⁹and the people shall all of them know it —Ephraim and the dweller in Samaria—Who in pride and insolence of heart, are saying: ¹⁰Bricks, have fallen down But with hewn stone, will we build,—Sycomores, have been felled, But with cedars, will we replace them. ¹¹Therefore will Yahweh strengthen the adversaries of Resin against him,—And his enemies will he arouse: ¹²Syrians before and Philistines behind, Thus have they devoured Israel with open mouth,—For all this, hath his anger, not turned back, But still, is his hand outstretched. ¹³Yet, the people, have not turned unto him that smote them,—And Yahweh of hosts, have they not sought. ¹⁴Therefore hath Yahweh cut off from Israel—Head and tail Palm-top and rush, In one day. ¹⁵The eider and favourite, he, is the head,—And the prophet teaching falsehood, he, is the tail; ¹⁶And they who should have led this people forward have been causing them to stray,—And, they who are led of them are destroyed, ¹⁷For this cause, over their choice young men, will My Lord not rejoice, And on their fatherless and their widows, will he not have compassion, For every one of them, is profane and an evildoer, And, every mouth is speaking baseness,—For all this, hath his anger, not turned back, But still, is his hand outstretched. ¹⁸For lawlessness, hath consumed like fire, Briars and thorns, doth it devour,—Yea it hath kindled upon the thickets of the forest, And they have rolled up as a column of smoke. ¹⁹Through the wrath of Yahweh of hosts, is the land consumed,—And the people have come to be, as fuel for fire, A man unto his own brother, sheweth not pity; ²⁰And he hath slain on the right, and yet is hungry, And hath eaten on the left, yet are they not satisfied,—Every one, the flesh of his own arm, will they eat: ²¹Manasseh—Ephraim, and Ephraim—Manasseh, They together—against Judah,—For all this, hath his anger not turned back, But still, is his hand outstretched.

²Turning aside from judgment, the poor, And robbing, of justice, the oppressed of my people,—So that, widows, become, their spoil, And of the fatherless, they make prey. ³What, then, will ye do for the day of visitation, And for the devastation, which from afar, shall come? Unto whom, will ye flee for help? And where will ye leave your gory? ⁴Without me, one hath bowed under a prisoner Yea under the slain, do they fall! For all this, hath his anger, not turned back, But still, is his hand outstretched. ⁵Alas! for Assyria, the rod of mine anger,—Yea, the very staff in their hand, is, my displeasure: ⁶Against an irreligious nation, will I send him, Yea against the people with whom I am wroth, will I command him,—To capture spoil And lay hold on prey, And cause them to be trodden down as the mire of the lanes. ⁷But as for him, not so, doth he deem, And in his heart, not so, doth he think,—For, to destroy, is in his heart, And to cut off nations, not a few; ⁸For he saith:—Are not, my generals, all alike, kings? ⁹Is not, Calno, like Carchemish? Is not, Hamath, like Arpad? Is not, Samaria, like Damascus? ¹⁰As my hand hath reached unto the kingdoms of idols,—whose images did excel them of Jerusalem and Samaria, ¹¹Shall I not as I have done to Samaria and her idols, so, do to Jerusalem and her images? ¹²Wherefore it shall come to pass—When My Lord shall finish his whole work upon Mount Zion and upon Jerusalem, I will bring punishment—Upon the fruit of the greatness of heart of the king of Assyria. And upon the vainglory of his uplifted eyes, ¹³For he hath said—By the strength of mine own hand, have I effectually wrought, And by my wisdom—for I have discernment,—That I might remove the bounds of peoples, Yea their treasures, have I plundered That I might lay prostrate as a mighty one the inhabitants; ¹⁴And my hand hath found as a nest the wealth of the peoples, And as the gathering of eggs that are forsaken, all the earth, have, I, gathered,—And there was none to flap a wing, or open a mouth or chirp. ¹⁵Shall the axe boast itself against him that heweth therewith? Or, the saw, magnify itself, against him that wieldeth it? As if a rod, could wield, them who lift it up! As if a staff, could raise, what is, not wood! ¹⁶Therefore, shall the Lord, Yahweh of hosts, Send, among his fat ones, leanness, And under his glory, shall he kindle a kindling, like the kindling of fire; ¹⁷So shall, the Light of Israel, become, a fire, And his Holy One, a flame, Which shall burn and consume his thorns and his briars, in one day; ¹⁸And the glory of his forest and of his garden land, both soul and body, shall it bring to an end,—And it shall be like the wasting away of a consumptive. ¹⁹And, the remnant of his forest-trees, few in number, shall become,—yea, a child, might describe them! ²⁰And it shall come to pass in that day, That the remnant of Israel. And the escaped of the house of Jacob Shall, no more again, lean upon him that smote them,—But shall lean upon Yahweh the Holy One of Israel, in truth. ²¹A remnant, shall return, The remnant of Jacob,—unto the mighty GOD; ²²For though thy people, O Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, A mere remnant, shall return of them,—A full end decreed, bringeth in, justice, like a flood; ²³For, a full end and that a decreed one, is My Lord Yahweh of hosts executing in the midst of all the earth. ²⁴Therefore, thus, saith My Lord, Yahweh of hosts, Do not fear O my people dwelling in Zion, because of Assyria,—When with his rod, he would smite thee, And when his staff, he would lift up against thee in the manner of Egypt; ²⁵For, yet a very little while, and displeasure shall end, Yea, mine anger, over their destruction. ²⁶And Yahweh of hosts, will brandish over him, a scourge—Like the smiting of Midian at the rock Oreb,—And his staff being over the sea, He will lift it up in the manner of Egypt; ²⁷And it shall come to pass, in that day, That his burden shall remove from off thy shoulder, And his yoke from off thy neck,—Yea, the yoke shall be broken because of fatness. ²⁸He hath come in unto Ayyath, Hath passed through Migron,—At Michmash, storeth his baggage: ²⁹They have passed over the pare, Geba is his halting-place,—Terror-stricken is Ramah, Gibeah of Saul, hath fled! ³⁰Make shrill thy voice, O daughter of Gallim! Harken, O Laishah, Answer, O Anathoth! ³¹Madmenah, hath fled,—The inhabitants of Gebim, have gone into safety: ³²While yet to-day, in Nob, he tarrieth, He brandisheth his hand toward The mount of the daughter of Zion, The hill of Jerusalem. ³³Behold! the Lord, Yahweh of hosts, is about to lop off a tree-crown, with a crash,—Then shall, they who are lifted on high, be hewn down, And, the lofty, be laid low; ³⁴Then will he fell the thickets of the forest with iron,—And, Lebanon by a majestic one shall fall.

11But there shall come forth a shoot from the stock of Jesse,—And, a sprout from his roots, shall bear fruit; And the spirit of Yahweh shall rest upon him,— ²The spirit of wisdom and understanding, The spirit of counsel and might, The spirit of knowledge and reverence of Yahweh; ³So will he find fragrance, in the reverence of Yahweh, And not, by the sight of his eyes, will he judge, Nor by the hearing of his ears, will he decide; ⁴But he will judge with righteousness! them who are poor, And decide with equity! for the oppressed of the land,—And he will smite the land With the sceptre of his mouth, And with the breath of his lips, will he slay the lawless one; ⁵And righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins,—And faithfulness the girdle of his reins; ⁶And the wolf shall dwell with the lamb, And, the leopard, with the kid, shall lie down,—And the calf and the young lion and the fatling—together, With, a little child, leading them; ⁷And the cow, with the bear shall find pasture, Together, shall their young ones, lie down,—And, the lion, like the ox, shall eat straw; ⁸And the sucking child shall caress over the hole of the asp, Yea over the vipers den, hath the weaned child stretched out his hand: ⁹They shall not hurt—nor destroy, in all my holy mountain,— For filled is the land with the knowledge of Yahweh, As the waters, to the sea, form a covering. ¹⁰And there shall come to be, in that day, A root of Jesse, which shall be standing as an ensign of peoples, Unto him, shall nations seek,— And, his resting-place, shall be, glorious. ¹¹And it shall come to pass in that day, That My Lord will again a second time set his hand, to possess himself of the remnant of his people,—who shall be left—from Assyria and from Egypt and from Pathros and from Ethiopia and from Elam and from Shinar and from Hamath and from the Coastlands of the sea; ¹²And he will lift up a standard to the nations, And will gather the outcasts of Israel,—And the dispersed of Judah, will he collect, From the four corners of the earth.

¹³And the envy of Ephraim shall be removed, And the vexatious doings of Judah, shall be cut off: Ephraim shall not envy Judah, and Judah, shall not vex Ephraim; ¹⁴But
 they shall fly on the wing of the Philistines in the west, Together, shall they make prey of the sons of the east,— On Edom and Moab, putting forth their hand, With the sons of Ammon hearkening unto them. ¹⁵And Yahweh, will devote to destruction, the gulf of the Egyptian sea,
 And will brandish his hand against the River, in the full force of his spirit,—And will smite it in the seven streams And cause a marching through in sandals, \fs15 ¹⁶So shall there be a highway for the remnant of his people who shall be left out of Assyria,—Like as it was to Israel, in the day that he came up out of the land of Egypt!

¹²Thou shalt say, therefore, in that day, I will praise thee, O Yahweh! Though thou hast been angry with me, Thine anger turneth back. And thou dost comfort me.
²Lo, GOD is my salvation! I will trust and not dread,—
 For, my might and melody, is Yah, Yahweh, And he hath become mine, by salvation. ³Therefore shall ye draw water, with rejoicing,—out of the fountains of salvation. ⁴And ye shall say in that day, Praise Yahweh. Gall upon his Name, Make known among the peoples, his doings,—Bring to remembrance that, exalted, is his Name! ⁵Praise in song Yahweh, For a splendid thing, hath he done,—Well known, is this in all the earth. ⁶Make shrill thy voice and sing out thou inhabitress of Zion,—That great in the midst of thee, is the Holy One of Israel.

¹³The oracle on Babylon,—of which Isaiah, son of Amoz had vision:— ²Upon a bare mountain, lift ye up a standard, Raise high the voice to them, Wave the hand, That they may enter the doors of nobles. ³I myself, have given charge to my hallowed ones,—Yea I have called My heroes in showing mine anger, My proudly exulting ones. The noise of a multitude in the mountains A resemblance of many people,— ⁴The noise of a tumult of kingdoms Nations gathered together, Yahweh of hosts, mustering a host for battle! ⁵They are coming in From a land far away.

From the utmost bound of the heavens,—Yahweh—with his weapons of indignation, To destroy the land. ⁶Howl ye! for at hand is the day of Yahweh,—As a veritable destruction from the Almighty, shall it come. ⁷For this cause—All hands, shall hang down,—and Every mortal heart, melt. ⁸And they shall be in distress—Writhings and pains, shall lay hold, As a woman in childbirth, shall they be in pangs,—Everyone, at his neighbour, shall look in amazement, Faces of flames, their faces! ⁹Lo! the day of Yahweh, coming in, Fierce and overflowing, and burning with anger,—To devote the earth to desolation, And her sinners, will he destroy out of it. ¹⁰For the stars of the heavens and their constellations, shall not flash forth their light,—Obscured shall be the sun in his going forth,
 And the moon, shall not shed her light. ¹¹And I will visit, upon the inhabited earth, calamity!, And upon the lawless, their punishment, And will quiet the arrogance of the proud, And the loftiness of tyrants, will I lay low. ¹²I will cause, a man, to be more precious than fine gold,—Even a son of earth than, the finest gold of Ophir. ¹³For this cause, the heavens, will I disturb, And, the earth, shall tremble out of her place,—In the wrath of Yahweh of hosts, And in the day of the glow of his anger. ¹⁴And it shall be—Like a gazelle that is chased, And like a sheep with none to lift it up,—Each, to his own people, will they turn, And, each, to his own land, will they flee: ¹⁵Every one found, shall be thrust through,—And, every one taken, shall fall by the sword; ¹⁶And, their infants, shall be dashed to the ground, before their eyes,—Plundered shall be, their houses, and their wives ravished. ¹⁷Behold me! stirring up against them the Medes,—Who of silver, shall take no account, And as for gold, they shall not delight in it; ¹⁸And, bows, shall dash the young to pieces,—And on the fruit of the womb, will they have no pity, Over children, will their eye throw no shield. ¹⁹Thus shall Babylon—The most lovely of kingdoms, The majestic beauty of the Chaldees—Become as in the divine overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah. ²⁰It shall not be dwelt in for ever, Neither shall it be inhabited from generation to generation,—Neither shall encamp
 there, an Arab, Nor, shepherds, fold their flocks there.
²¹Then shall lie down there, wild beasts, And filled shall be their houses with owls,—Then shall inhabit there, the ostrich, And shaggy creatures, shall dance there. ²²And jackals shall answer, in their citadels, And wild dogs, in their voluptuous palaces,—And near to come is her time,
 And, her days, shall not be delayed.

¹⁴For Yahweh will have compassion on Jacob, And will yet choose Israel, And will give them rest upon their own soil,—And the sojourner, shall join himself, unto them, And they shall attach themselves unto the house of Jacob; ²And peoples shall take them, and bring them into their own place, And the house of Israel shall possess themselves of them upon the soil of Yahweh for servants and for

handmaids,—Thus shall they be taking captive their captors, And shall tread down their oppressors. ³And it shall come to pass, in the day when Yahweh shall give thee rest from thy toil, and from thy disquiet,—and from the hard service which had been laid upon thee, ⁴that thou shalt take up this taunt over the king of Babylon, and shalt say:—How hath ceased the oppressor! Ceased the exactress! ⁵Broke hath Yahweh the staff of the lawless,—The sceptre of despots; ⁶Smiting peoples in passion With stroke unremitting,—Trampling, in anger, on nations, Persecution unhindered. ⁷Quiet, at rest, the whole earth,—Men have burst into shouting! ⁸Yea the pine-trees, make mirth at thee, Cedars of Lebanon, Since thou wast laid low, No feller hath come up against us! ⁹Hades beneath, is excited about thee To meet thine arrival,—Rousing up, for thee Shades, All the he-goats of earth! Maketh rise from their thrones, All the kings of the nations. ¹⁰All of them, answer, and say to thee,—Thou too, made strengthless, as we! Unto us, art thou like! ¹¹Brought down to Hades, thy pride. The hum of thy harps, Beneath thee, is spread out corruption, And, thy coverlet—worms! ¹²How hast thou fallen from heaven, O Shining One—Son of the Dawn! Hewn down to the earth, O crusher of nations! ¹³Yet, thou, didst say in thy heart—The heavens, will I ascend, Above the stars of GOD, will I lift up my throne,—That I may sit in the Mount of Assembly In the Recesses of the North: ¹⁴I will mount on the hills of the clouds, I will match the Most High! ¹⁵Howbeit, to Hades, shalt thou be brought down,—To the Recesses of the Pit! ¹⁶They who see thee, upon thee, will gaze, Upon thee, will thoughtfully muse,—Is this the man who startled the earth? Who terrified kingdoms? ¹⁷Who made the world like a desert And its cities, brake down? Its prisoners, he loosed not. Each one to his home. ¹⁸All the kings of the nations—they all, are lying in state Each one in his crypt; ¹⁹But, thou, art flung out from thy grave, Like a scion detested, Beshrouded with slain, the pierced of the sword, Like a carcase trod underfoot: ²⁰As for them who go down to the stones of the Pit, Thou shalt not be united with them in burial; For thy land, thou didst ruin Thy people, didst slay,—Unnamed to times ago-abiding, Be the seed of the wicked! ²¹Prepare—for his sons—shambles. For the iniquity of their fathers,—They shall not rise nor possess the earth, Nor fill the face of the world with cities. ²²I will rise. Then, against them, Declareth Yahweh of hosts,—And will cut off from Babylon Record and remnant And scion and seed, Declareth Yahweh. ²³And will make her a possession for the bittern, And marshes of water,—And will sweep it with the besom of destruction, Declareth Yahweh of hosts. ²⁴Yahweh of hosts, hath sworn, saying,—Surely as I intended, so, hath it come to pass, And as I purposed, the same, shall stand:—²⁵That I will break in pieces the Assyrian in my land, Yea upon my mountains, will I tread him underfoot,—So shall be removed from off them his yoke, And his burden, from off their shoulder shall be removed. ²⁶This, is the purpose that is purposed upon all the earth,—And, this, the hand outstretched over all the nations; ²⁷For, Yahweh of hosts, hath purposed,—And who shall frustrate? And, his, is the hand outstretched, And who shall turn it back? ²⁸In the year that King Ahaz died, came this oracle:—²⁹Do not rejoice, Philistia, any of thee, In that the rod of him that smote thee, is broken,—For, out of the root of the serpent, shall come forth, a viper, And his fruit be a fiery dragon that flieth. ³⁰Then shall feed the firstborn of the poor, And the needy, in confidence lie down,—And I will kill with famine thy root, And thy residue, shall be slain. ³¹How!—O gate, Make outcry—O city, Dispersed art thou Philistia, all of thee,—For out of the north, a smoke cometh in, With no straggler in his ranks. ³²What, then, shall one answer the messengers of a nation? That Yahweh, hath founded Zion, And in her, shall seek refuge the oppressed of his people.

15The oracle on Moab: Because, in a night, was laid waste Ar of Moab—destroyed! Because, in a night, was laid waste Kir of Moab—destroyed, ²He hath gone up to Bayith and Dibon, to the high places, to weep,—On Nebo and on Medeba, Moab is howling, On all their heads, a baldness, Every beard, clipped. ³In their streets, have they girded them with sackcloth,—On their housetops, and in their broadways, every one is howling—melting in tears; ⁴And Heshbon, hath made outcry, and Elealeh, Unto Jahaz, hath been heard their voice,—For this cause, do the armed men of Moab roar, Every man's soul, quivereth to him. ⁵Mine own heart, for Moab continueth to make outcry, Her fugitive, as far as Zoar, is like a heifer of three years; For the accent of Luhith, with weeping, they ascend, For by the way of Horonaim—an outcry of destruction, they excite; ⁶For, the waters of Nimrim, shall become desolation,—For grass, hath dried up, Herbage hath failed, Green thing, hath not sprung up! ⁷For this cause, the savings they had made and that which they had stored, Over the torrent-bed of the willows, shall they bear them. ⁸For the outcry hath gone round the boundary of Moab,—As far as Eglaim, the howling thereof, And to Beer-elim, the howling thereof. ⁹For the waters of Dimon, are full of blood, For I will lay upon Dimon new troubles,—To the escaped of Moab, the lions, Even to the survivors on the soil.

16Send ye the lamb due to the ruler of the land, From Sela towards the desert,—Unto the mount of the daughter of Zion; ²Yet shall it be that—Like wandering birds from a nest cast forth, Shall be the daughters of Moab, at the fords of Amen. ³Bring thou, in counsel, Execute thou judgment, Make as the night, thy shadow in the midst of high noon,—Hide thou the outcasts, The wanderer, do not thou reveal. ⁴Let mine own outcasts, sojourn with thee, O Moab, become thou a covert to them from the face of the spoiler,—For vanished is the oppressor, At an end is extortion, They who tread down have ceased out of the land. ⁵So shall be established, in lovingkindness, a throne, And one shall sit thereon, in truth, in the home of David,—Judging—and seeking justice and speeding righteousness. ⁶We have heard of the arrogance of Moab, Proud exceedingly! His haughtiness and his arrogance and his passion, Not true, are his boastings. ⁷Therefore shall, Moab, howl for, Moab, All that belong to her, shall wail,—For the ruins of Kir-hareseth, shall they moan out Utterly stricken! ⁸For, the fields of Heshbon are withered—The vine of Sibmah, the owners of nations, have broken off ruddy branches, Unto Jazer, had they reached, They had spread abroad to the desert,—Her boughs, had stretched forth, had gone over to the sea. ⁹For this cause, will I bewail, in the wailing of Jazer, The vine of Sibmah, I will drench thee with my tears, O Heshbon and Elealeh,—For, upon thy fruit-harvest, and upon thy grain-harvest, the battle-shout, hath fallen. ¹⁰Now shall be withdrawn rejoicing and exultation out of the garden-land, And, in the vineyards, shall be neither singing nor shouting,—Wine in the winepress, the treader, shall not tread, The vintage-shout, have I made to cease. ¹¹For this cause, mine inward parts—for Moab, like a lyre, shall make a plaintive sound,—Yea what is within me, for Kir-heres. ¹²And it shall be—When it is seen that Moab hath laboured in vain on the high place, He shall enter into his holy place to pray, and shall not prevail, ¹³This, is the word which Yahweh spake concerning Moab in, time past; ¹⁴But now, hath Yahweh spoken saying, In three years,—as the years of a hireling, shall the glory of Moab be diminished, with all the great multitude,—even a very small remnant, of no account.

17The oracle on Damascus,—Lo! Damascus, is to be removed from being a city, And shall become a heap of ruins: ²Forsaken, are the desolate cities,—For flocks, shall they serve, Which shall lie down and have none to make them afraid. ³Then shall the fortress cease from Ephraim, And the kingdom from Damascus and the remnant of Syria,—Like the glory of the sons of Israel, shall they be,—Declareth Yahweh of hosts. ⁴And it shall come to pass in that day, That the glory of Jacob, shall be diminished, And, the fatness of his flesh, shall be wasted; ⁵And it shall come to pass—That, as the harvestman gathereth standing corn, And with his arm—the ears, he reapeth, Yea it shall come to pass—That, so, shall he be who gleaneth ears, in the vale of Rephaim; ⁶Yet shall there be left therein, a glean- ing. As in the beating of an olive-tree,—Two-three berries in the head of the tree-top,—Four—five, among her fruitful boughs, Declareth Yahweh God of Israel. ⁷In that day, shall the son of earth look to him that made him,—And his eyes unto the Holy One of Israel, be turned; ⁸And he shall not look unto the altars the work of his own hands,—Nor to what his own fingers have made, shall his eye be turned, Whether Sacred Stems or Sun-pillars. ⁹In that day, shall his fortified cities become Like a neglected bough and a top- most branch, Which they neglected because of the sons of Israel,—So shall there be desolation. ¹⁰Because thou didst forget the God of thy salvation, And thy Rock of refuge, thou didst not remember, For this cause, shalt thou plant very pleasant plants, And, the slip of a stranger, shalt thou set: ¹¹In the day when thou plantest, fence thou in, And in the morning, cause thou, they slip, to blossom,—A harvest will have waved in the day of destiny, and mortal pain. ¹²Alas! the booming of many peoples, Like the booming of the seas, shall they boom,—And the rushing of nations! Like the rushing of mighty waters, shall they rush. ¹³Though nations like the rushing of many waters, shall rush, Yet shall one rebuke him, And he shall flee far away,—And be chased As the chaff of the mountains before a wind, And as whirling stubble before a storm! ¹⁴At eventide, lo! terror, Before morning, he is not! This, is the portion of them who plunder us, And the lot of them who make of us a prey.

18Ho! thou land of the buzzing of wings,—Which is beyond the rivers of Ethiopia: ²That sendeth by the sea, ambassadors Even in vessels of paper-reed, upon the face of the waters,—Go ye swift messengers Unto a nation drawn out and polished, Unto a people terrible from their beginning and onwards,—A nation most mighty and subduing, Whose land rivers have cut through. ³All ye inhabitants of the world And ye, that dwell in the earth,—When there is lifted up an ensign on the mountains, Ye shall look, And when there is blown a horn, Ye shall hearken. ⁴For, thus, said Yahweh unto me,—I must be quiet I must look on in my fixed place of abode,—Like a bright heat on the light, Like a cloud of dew in the heat of harvest. ⁵For before harvest, when the bud is perfect, And, the blossom, becometh a ripening grape, Then will one cut down the twigs with pruning-hooks, And the tendrils, will he remove and cast down: ⁶They shall be left together. To the ravenous birds, of the mountains, And to the beast of the earth,—Then shall the ravenous bird, summer upon them, And, every beast of the earth, upon them, shall winter. ⁷In that time, shall there be borne along. As a present unto Yahweh of hosts A people drawn out and polished, Even from a people terrible from their beginning and onwards,—nation most mighty and subduing Whose land rivers, have cut through, Unto the place of the Name of Yahweh of hosts. Mount Zion.

19The oracle on Egypt: Lo! Yahweh, riding upon a swift cloud, and he will enter Egypt, And the idols of Egypt shall shake at his presence, And, the heart of Egypt, shall melt within him; ²And I will stir up Egyptians against Egyptians, And they shall fight—Every one against his brother and Every one against his neighbour,—City against city, and Kingdom against kingdom. ³And the spirit of Egypt, shall vanish, within them, Yea the sagacity thereof, will I swallow up,—And they will seek Unto the idols and Unto them that mutter, and Unto them that have familiar spirits, and Unto the wizards; ⁴And I will deliver the Egyptians into the hand of a cruel lord,—And a fierce king shall rule over them, Declareth the Lord, Yahweh of hosts. ⁵And the waters shall be dried up from the great stream,—And the River, shall waste and be dry; ⁶And rivers, shall stink, The canals of Egypt be shallow and waste, Reed and rush, he withered; ⁷The meadows by the Nile, by the mouth of the Nile. And all that is sown in the Nile, Shall be dry, driven away, and not be! ⁸Then shall the fishers, lament, And all shall mourn who cast in the Nile a hook,—And they who spread nets on the face of the waters shall languish; ⁹Then shall turn pale The workers in combed flax,—and The weavers of white linen; ¹⁰Then shall her pillars be crushed,—All who make wages, be bowed down in soul. ¹¹Surely, foolish, are the princes of Zoan, the wisest counsellors of Pharaoh, in counsel are brutish,—How can ye say unto Pharaoh, Son of the wise, am I Son of the kings of olden time? ¹²Where then are thy wise men? Pray let them tell thee! And let them know what Yahweh of hosts hath purposed on Egypt! ¹³Doting are the princes of Zoan, Deceived are the princes of Noph: They who are the corner-stone of her tribes, have led Egypt astray. ¹⁴Yahweh, hath infused in her midst, a spirit of perverseness,—And they have led Egypt astray into all his own doings, As a drunken man staggereth into his own vomit; ¹⁵And Egypt shall have nothing which can be don Which head or tail palm-top or rush, can do! ¹⁶In that day, shall Egypt be like unto women,—And shall start and tremble because of the brandishing of the hand of Yahweh of hosts, which he is about to brandish over it. ¹⁷Then shall the soil of Judah become, to Egypt, a terror; Every one to whom it is mentioned, will tremble,—Because of the purpose of Yahweh of hosts, which he is purposing against it. ¹⁸In that day, shall there be five cities in the land of Egypt Speaking the language of Canaan, And swearing unto Yahweh of hosts,—The city of destruction, shall be the name of one! ¹⁹In that day, shall there be An altar unto Yahweh, in the midst of the land of Egypt,—And a pillar near the boundary thereof unto Yahweh; ²⁰And it shall become a sign and a witness unto Yahweh of hosts in the land of Egypt,—For they will make outcry unto Yahweh, because of oppressors, That he would send them a saviour—and a great one Then will he deliver them. ²¹Then will, Yahweh, make himself known, to the Egyptians, So shall the Egyptians know, Yahweh, in that day,—And they will offer a sacrifice and a present And will vow a vow unto Yahweh and will perform. ²²And Yahweh, will plague Egypt, plague and heal,—And they will turn unto Yahweh And he will be entreated of them and will heal them. ²³In that day, shall there be a highway, from Egypt to Assyria, And, the Assyrians, shall come into Egypt, And, the Egyptians, into Assyria; And, the Egyptians shall serve, with the Assyrians. ²⁴In that day, shall, Israel, be, a third, with Egypt and with Assyria,—A blessing in the midst of the earth: ²⁵Whom Yahweh of hosts bath blessed saying,—Blessed, be My people—the Egyptians, And the work of my hands—the Assyrians, And mine own inheritance—Israel.

20In the year that Tartan entered Ashdod, when Sargon king of Assyria, sent him,—and he fought against Ashdod and captured it,—²At that time, spake Yahweh, through Isaiah son of Amoz, saying, Go, and loose the sackcloth from off thy loins, And thy sandal, draw thou off from thy foot,—And he did so, walking disrobed and barefoot. ³Then said Yahweh,—As my servant Isaiah, hath walked, disrobed and barefoot three years as a sign and a wonder against Egypt and against Ethiopia, ⁴So, shall the king of Assyria lead away the captives of Egypt and the exiles of Ethiopia young and old disrobed and barefoot, with their persons behind Uncovered the shame of Egypt. ⁵Thus shall they be confounded and turn pale,—For Ethiopia, their expectation, and For Egypt their boast; ⁶And the inhabitant of this shore, shall exclaim, in that day, Lo! such, is our expectation, whereunto we fled for help, that we might be delivered from the presence of the king of Assyria! How then shall, we, escape?

21The oracle on the desert of the sea: As storm-winds in the South which with a rush from the desert, do come from a terrible land, ²So hath, a grievous vision, been told me:—the deceiver, is deceiving. And the spoiler, is spoiling, Go up, O Elam Besiege O Media, All the sighing she hath caused, have I made to cease. ³For this cause, are my loins filled with anguish, Pangs, have seized me, as the pangs of her that is giving birth,—I writhe so that I cannot hear, I tremble, so that I cannot see: ⁴My heart fluttereth, A horror, terrifieth me,—My twilight of pleasure, hath he turned for me into a time of trembling. ⁵Ye thought to prepare the table—spread the mat—eat—drink! ...Arise ye chieftains anoint the shield! ⁶For, thus, hath My Lord said unto me,—Go, set the watchman, What he seeth, let him tell! ⁷When he seeth A train of horsemen in double rank, A train of asses, A train of camels, Then shall he hearken attentively with diligent heed. ⁸Then cried he. A lion! On the watch, O My Lord, had I been standing continually, by day, And at my post, had I been stationed whole nights;—⁹When lo! here was a train of men coming. With horsemen in double rank,—And one began and said, Fallen! fallen! is Babylon, And all the images of her gods, are smashed to the ground! ¹⁰O thou My threshing! And the grain of my corn-floor! That which I have heard from Yahweh of hosts, the God of Israel, Have I declared, unto you. ¹¹The oracle on Dumah: Unto me, is one crying—out of Seir, Watchman! how far gone is the night? Watchman, how far gone is the night? ¹²Said the watchman, There cometh a morning. But also a night,—If ye will enquire, enquire, ye—Come, again! ¹³The oracle on Arabia,—Among the shrubs in Arabia, must ye lodge, Ye caravans of Dedanites. ¹⁴To meet the thirsty, bring ye water,—Ye dwellers in the land of Tema; With bread for him, get in advance of him that is in flight! ¹⁵For, before swords, have they fled: Before a sword that is drawn, Before a bow that is bent, And before the stress of war. ¹⁶For, thus, hath My Lord said unto me,—Within a year according to the yearn of a hireling, shall fall all the glory of Kedar; ¹⁷And, the remnant of the record of bowmen, The heroes of the sons of Kedar, shall become few; For Yahweh God of Israel, hath spoken.

here? And whom hast thou here? That thou hast hewn for thyself here a sepulchre,—As one hewing on high his sepulchre, Cutting out in the cliff a habitation for himself? ¹⁷Lo! Yahweh, is about to hurl thee, with a hurl, O mighty man,—And roll thee with a roll; ¹⁸He will, toss, thee, with a toss, like a ball, into a country wide on both hands,—There, shalt thou die, And there shall thy glorious chariots be the contempt of the house of thy lord. ¹⁹Thus will I thrust thee out from thine office,—And from thy station, shall one tear thee down. ²⁰And it shall come to pass in that day, That I will call for my servant, for Eliakim son of Hilkiah, ²¹And will clothe him with thy tunic And with thy girdle, will I gird him, And thine authority, will I deliver into his hand,—So shall he become a father To the inhabitant of Jerusalem and To the house of Judah. ²²And I will lay the key of the house of David upon his shoulder,—And he shall open and none shall shut, And shut and none shall open; ²³And I will fasten him as a peg in a sure place,—And he shall become a throne of glory, to the house of his father; ²⁴And they shall hang upon him all the weight of his fathers house—The offshoots and the side-twigs—All the small vessels, Both the cups and all the jugs ²⁵In that day,—Declareth Yahweh of hosts Shall the peg, give way, that was fastened in a sure place,—Yea it shall be cut off and fall And the burden that was upon it shall perish, For, Yahweh, hath spoken!

23The oracle on Tyre,—Howl! ye ships of Tarshish, For it is laid too waste to be a haven to enter, From the land of Cyprus, hath it been unveiled to them. ²Be dumb, ye inhabitants of the Coast,—Whom the merchants of Zidon, passing over the sea, once replenished; ³Yea on mighty waters, was the grain of Shihor, The harvest of the Nile, was her increase,—And so she became a mart of nations. ⁴Turn thou pale, O Zidon, For spoken hath the sea, the fortress of the sea saying,—I have neither been in pangs nor given birth I have neither brought up young men nor promoted virgins. ⁵Like the report of Egypt, They shall be in pangs at the like report of Tyre. ⁶Pass ye over to Tarshish,—Howl ye inhabitants of the Coast: ⁷Is this to you an exultation? Though from ancient day, is her antiquity, Yet shall her own feet carry her away, far off to dwell. ⁸Who hath purposed this, against Tyre, The bestower of crowns,—Whose merchants are princes, Her traders the honourable of the earth? ⁹Yahweh of hosts, hath purposed it,—To humble the pride of all beauty, To make of little esteem all the honourable of the earth. ¹⁰Pass through thy land as the Nile,—O daughter of Tarshish, there is no restraint any longer! ¹¹His hand, hath he stretched out over the sea, He hath shaken kingdoms,—Yahweh, hath given command against she Phoenician coast, To destroy her fortresses. ¹²Therefore hath he said,—No more, again, do thou exult, Thou violated virgin daughter of Zidon,—To Cyprus, arise and pass over, Even there, shall one find thee no rest. ¹³Lo! the land of the Chaldeans, This is the people that was not, Assyria, founded it for the inhabitants of the desert,—They set up its siege-towers, They demolished its palaces Made it a ruin! ¹⁴Howl, ye ships of Tarshish,—For laid waste is your fortress. ¹⁵So shall it be in that day, That Tyre shall be forgotten seventy years, According to the days of a certain king: At the end of seventy years, shall it befall Tyre according to the song of the harlot: ¹⁶Take thou a lyre, Go round the city, O harlot forgotten,—Sweetly touch the strings Lengthen out the song, That thou mayest be called to mind. ¹⁷So shall it be, at the end of seventy years, That Yahweh will visit Tyre, And she will return to her hire,—Yea she will play the harlot—with all the kingdoms of the earth, upon the face of the ground. ¹⁸But her merchandise and her hire, shall be hallowed unto Yahweh, It shall not be stored up, nor hoarded,—For, to them who dwell before Yahweh, shall her merchandise belong, That they may eat to satisfaction And have stately apparel.

24Lo! Yahweh emptying the earth and laying it waste,—And he will overturn the face thereof, And scatter them who dwell therein. ²And it shall be—As the people, so, the priest, As the servant, so his lord, As the maid, so, her mistress,—As the buyer, so, the seller, As the lender, so, the borrower, As the debtor, so! his creditor. ³Emptied—emptied—shall be the earth yea pillaged—pillaged,—For, Yahweh, hath spoken this word. ⁴Mourneth, fadeth, the earth Languisheth, fadeth, the world,—Languished have the lofty of the people of the earth. ⁵Yea the earth itself is profaned under them who dwell therein,—For they have Set aside laws, Gone beyond statute, Broken an age-abiding covenant. ⁶For this cause, a curse, hath devoured the earth, And punished are the dwellers therein,—For this cause, are burned the inhabitants of the earth, And the men left remaining—are few. ⁷Mourneth the new wine. Withereth the vine,—Sighing are all the merryhearted: ⁸Ceased hath the mirth of timbrels, Ended is the noise of the uproarious, Ceased hath the mirth of the lyre: ⁹With a song, they drink not wine,—Bitter is strong drink, to them who drink it: ¹⁰Broken down is the city of desolation,—Shut up every house that it cannot be entered. ¹¹There is an outcry concerning wine in the streets,—Darkened is all joy, Departed the gladness of the earth. ¹²There is left in the city, desolation,—And to ruins, have been broken the gate. ¹³When, thus, it shall be in the earth in the midst of the peoples, There shall be like the shaking of an olive-tree, like the going round to pick when closed is the harvest. ¹⁴They, shall lift up their voice—shall raise a tremulous note,—On account of the splendour of Yahweh, have they made a shrill cry, on the West; ¹⁵For this cause, In the Regions of Light, give ye glory to Yahweh,—In the Coastlands of the Sea, unto the Name of Yahweh. God of Israel, ¹⁶From the uttermost part of the earth, melodies, have we heard—

Beauty, to the righteous one! But I had said—Ruin to me! Ruin to me! Woe to me! Traitors, have betrayed, Yea traitorously, have traitors betrayed! ¹⁷Terror and pit and snare,—are upon thee, O inhabitant of the earth! ¹⁸So shall it be—He that fleeth from the sound of the terror! shall fall into the pit, And I he that getteth up out of the midst of the pit, shall be captured in the snare,—For, the windows on high, have opened, And shaken are the foundations of earth. ¹⁹The earth breaketh, breaketh,—The earth crasheth, crasheth, The earth tottereth, tottereth; ²⁰The earth staggereth—staggereth like a drunken man, And rocketh to and fro like a night-hut,—So shall be heavy upon her, her transgression, And she shall fall and not again rise. ²¹And it shall be in that day, That Yahweh will bring punishment Upon the host of the height in the height,—And upon the kings of the ground on the ground. ²²And they shall be swept together in a crowd, fettered for a pit, And shall be lowered into a dungeon,—And, after many days, shall they be punished. ²³Then shall blush the silvery moon, Then turn pale the glowing sun,—Because Yahweh of hosts hath become king In Mount Zion And in Jerusalem, And before his Elders in glory,

25O Yahweh! my God, thou art, I will exalt thee, I will praise thy Name, For thou hast done a wonderful thing,—Purposes of long ago Faithfulness in truth. ²For thou hast made, of a citadel, a mound, of a defenced city, a ruin,—palaces for foreigners to be no city, To times age-abiding, shall it not be built. ³For this cause! shall glorify thee—a strong people, the city of tyrannous nations shall revere thee; ⁴For thou didst become A refuge to the weak. A refuge to the needy, when distress was upon him,—A shelter from the storm. A shade from the heat, When the blast of tyrants was like a storm against a wall. ⁵As heat in a desert, the pomp of foreigners, wilt thou subdue,—Heat—with the shade of a cloud, The song of tyrants! become low. ⁶Then will Yahweh of hosts prepare for all the peoples in this mountain, A banquet of fat things, A banquet of old wines,—Of fat things full of marrow, Of old wines well refined; ⁷And he will swallow up in this mountain, The mask of the veil, the veil that is upon all the peoples,—And the web that is woven over all the nations. ⁸Having swallowed up death itself victoriously, My Lord, Yahweh, will wipe away, tears from off all faces,—And the reproach of his own people, will he remove from off all the earth, For, Yahweh, hath spoken. ⁹So shall it he said, in that day, Lo! our God, is this! We waited for him, that he might save us,—This, is Yahweh! We waited for him, Let us exult and rejoice in his salvation. ¹⁰For the hand of Yahweh will settle down in this mountain,—Then shall Moab be trodden down in its place, Like the treading down of a strawheap in the water of a dunghill; ¹¹Should he spread forth his hands in the midst thereof, As a swimmer spreadeth forth to swim, Then would be laid low his pride, together with the devices of his hands. ¹²Yea, the lofty stronghold of thy walls, Hath he brought down—Laid low—Levelled to the ground even unto the dust.

26In that day, shall be sung this song, in the land of Judah,—A strong city, have we! Salvation, will he set for walls and rampart, ²Open ye the gates,—That there may enter in—a righteous nation preserving fidelity. ³A purpose sustained, thou wilt guard, saying, Prosper! Prosper! Because in thee, hath he been led to trust. ⁴Trust ye in Yahweh, unto futurity,—For, in Yah, Yahweh, is a rock of ages. ⁵For he hath brought down the inhabitants of the height the city exalted,—He layeth it low, Layeth it low even to the ground, Levelleth it, even to the dust: ⁶The foot trampleth it,—The feet of the lowly, The steps of the weak, ⁷The path of a righteous man, is, even,—O Upright One! the track of a righteous man, thou makest level. ⁸Surely in the path of thy regulations, O Yahweh, we waited for thee,—Unto thy Name and unto thy Memorial, was there a longing of soul: ⁹With my soul, longed I for thee in the night, Yea with my spirit within me, I kept on searching for thee,—For, when thy regulations extend to the earth, The inhabitants of the world will have learned, righteousness. ¹⁰Let favour be shewed to the lawless, he hath not learned righteousness, In a land of honest dealings, he acteth perversely,—And seeth not the splendour of Yahweh. ¹¹O Yahweh though thy hand be lifted up,—yet do they not see, Would they might see—and turn pale at a peoples zeal,—Surely, the fire of thine enemies, must consume them! ¹²O Yahweh, thou wilt ensure prosperity for us,—hor even all our works, hast thou wrought for us, ¹³O Yahweh, our God! Lords other than thee, have owned us,—By thyself alone, will we call upon thy Name. ¹⁴The dead, come not to life again, The shades, do not arise,—Therefore, thou hast visited and destroyed them, And caused to perish every memorial of them. ¹⁵Thou hast increased the nation, O Yahweh, Thou hast increased the nation thou hast gotten thyself glory, Thou hast extended far, all the ends of the land. ¹⁶O Yahweh! in distress, they sought thee,—They poured out a whispered prayer, when thy chastening was upon them. ¹⁷Like as a woman with child—Draweth near to giving birth, Is in pain, Crieth out in her pangs So, were we before thee, O Yahweh;— ¹⁸We were with child—We were in pain, As it were we brought forth wind,—Salvation, we could not accomplish for the earth, Neither were horn the inhabitants of the world. ¹⁹Thy dead, shall come to life again, My dead body, they shall arise,—Awake and shout for joy, ye that dwell in the dust For, a dew of light, is thy dew, And, earth, to the shades shall give birth. ²⁰Come my people, enter into thy chambers, And shut thy doors behind thee,—Hide thee as it were a little moment Till the indignation pass over. ²¹For lo! Yahweh, is coming forth out of his place, To visit the iniquity of earths inhabitant upon him,—

Therefore shall the earth unveil her shed-blood, And throw a covering, no longer over her slain.

27In that day, will Yahweh With his sword—the hard and the great and the strong, Bring punishment Upon Leviathan, the fleeing serpent, And upon Leviathan, the crooked serpent,—And will slay the monster which is in the sea. ²In that day, A Wine-Vineyard! sing ye unto her: ³I—Yahweh, am Watching over her, Every moment, will I water her,—Lest anyone injure her, Night and day, will I watch over her. ⁴Fury, have I none,—Oh that there were delivered to me briars and thorns, in battle! I would march in among them I would set fire to them one and all. ⁵Else, let one lay hold of my protection, Let him make peace with me,—Peace, let him make with me. ⁶In coming times, shall Jacob strike root, Israel, shall blossom and bud,—Then shall they fill the face of the world with fruit. ⁷Was it, with the smiting of his smiter, that he smote him? Or as with the slaying of his slayer, was he slain? ⁸By driving her away—by dismissing her, wouldest thou contend with her? He removed her by his rough wind in, a day of east wind. ⁹Therefore hereby, shall a propitiatory—covering be put over the iniquity of Jacob, And all, this, is the fruit of taking away his sin,—When he maketh all the stones of an altar like chalk-stones that soon crumble, Sacred Stems and Sun Images, shall not arise. ¹⁰For the fortified city, is solitary, The dwelling forsaken and left as a wilderness,—There, shall the calf feed, And, there, lie down And shall consume the branches thereof: ¹¹When the cut-off boughs thereof are dry, they shall be broken to pieces, Women, coming, are kindling it! For it is not a people of understanding, For this cause, Will he that made him, not have compassion upon him, And, he that formed him, will shew him no favour. ¹²And it shall come to pass, in that day, That Yahweh will beat off his fruit from the stream of the River, unto the torrent-valley of Egypt,—And, ye, shall be picked up, one by one O sons of Israel. ¹³And it shall come to pass in that day, That there shall be a blowing with a great horn, Then shall come in Such as have wandered in the land of Assyria, And such as have been outcasts in the land of Egypt,—And they shall bow themselves down unto Yahweh In the holy mountain, In Jerusalem.

28Alas! for the proud crown of the drunkards of Ephraim, And for his fading wreath of majestic beauty,—Which is on the head of the fertile valley, of them who are overcome with wine. ²Lo! My Lord hath one who is, strong and bold, Like a storm of hail, a destroying tempest, Like a storm of mighty waters overflowing, Hath he thrust it down to the earth with force: ³With the feet shall be trodden down, the proud crown of the drunkards of Ephraim, ⁴So shall his fading wreath of majestic beauty, Which is on the head of the fertile valley, become—Like the first-ripe fig before fruit-harvest, Which when he that looketh upon it seeth while it is yet in his hand, he swalloweth it up. ⁵In that day, will Yahweh of hosts become A crown of beauty, and A diadem of majesty,—Unto the remnant of his people: ⁶Even a spirit of justice—to him that presideth over justice, And strength to them who would turn back the battle at the gate. ⁷But as for these, With wine, do they reel, and With strong drink, do they stagger,—Priest and prophet, reel with strong drink They are swallowed up through wine They stagger through strong drink, They reel in prophetic vision, They totter in pronouncing judgment. ⁸For, all tables, are full of filthy vomit,—There is no place! ⁹Whom, would he teach knowledge? And, whom, would he cause to understand the message? Them who are weaned from the milk? taken from the breasts? ¹⁰For it is—Precept upon precept, precept upon precept, Line upon line, line upon line,—A little here a little there. ¹¹For, with a jabbering lip, and with an alien tongue, must he speak unto this people! ¹²To whom he said—This, is the rest—give ye rest to the weary, and This, is the quietness,—But they were unwilling to hear. ¹³So the word of Yahweh must be to them—Precept upon precept, precept upon precept, Line upon line, line upon line, A little here, a little there,—That they may go and fall backward and be torn and snared and captured. ¹⁴Wherefore, hear ye the word of Yahweh, Ye men who scoff,—Ye rulers of this people that is in Jerusalem. ¹⁵Because ye have said—We have solemnised a covenant with death, And with hades, have we effected a vision,—The overflowing scourge when it sweepeth by, shall not reach unto us, For we have made lying our refuge. And in falsehood, have we hid ourselves, ¹⁶Therefore, Thus, saith My Lord, Yahweh, Behold me! founding in Zion a stone, A stone of testing, The costly corner of a well-laid foundation, he that trusteth, shall not make haste! ¹⁷But I will make—Justice the line, and Righteousness the plummet,—And the hail shall, sweep away, your refuge of lying, And your hiding-place, the waters shall overflow; ¹⁸So shall be wiped out your covenant with death, And your vision with hades, not stand,—When the overflowing scourge, sweepeth past, then shall ye be thereby beaten down: ¹⁹As often as it sweepeth past, it shall take you away, For morning by morning, shall it pass along. By day and by night,—And it shall be nothing less than a terror to make out the message; ²⁰For too short is the couch to stretch oneself out,—And, the coverlet, too narrow, when one draweth up his feet. ²¹For as in Mount Perazim, will Yahweh, arise, As in the vale of Gibeon, will he be stirred,—To do his work—foreign is his work, And to perform his task—strange is his task. ²²Now, therefore do not show yourselves scoffers, Lest your fetters, be bound fast,—For, of a full end, and that a decreed one, have I heard from My Lord, Yahweh of hosts upon all the land ²³Give ear, and hear ye my voice,—Hearken, and hear ye my speech:— ²⁴All day long, doth the plowman plow for sowing? Doth he continue laying open and harrowing his soil? ²⁵Doth he not when he hath levelled the face thereof, Cast abroad the fennel? And, the cummin, doth he not scatter? And plant wheat in rows, And barley in a lot, And spelt in the border thereof? ²⁶Yea One hath trained him to good judgment, His God, directeth him. ²⁷For not with a sledge, must, black coriander be threshed, Nor must, the wheel of a cart, on cummin, be turned, But with a staff, must fennel be eaten, And cummin with a rod: ²⁸Bread-corn, must be crushed,—Yet would he not be evermore, threshing, it, So he hasteneth over it the wheel of his cart, with his horsemen, He crusheth it not! ²⁹Even this, from Yahweh of hosts, cometh forth,—Who hath bestowed distinction upon counsel, And magnified sound wisdom.

29Alas for Ariel, Ariel, The city against which, David encamped,—Add ye a year to a year. Let the festivals, come round; ²Yet will I bring Ariel into straits,—And she shall become a bewailing and wailing, Yea she shall become to me a veritable Hearth of God. ³And I will encamp round about against thee,—And lay siege against thee with a fort, And raise against thee siege-works; ⁴And thou shalt be brought low—Out of the earth, shalt thou speak, And out of the dust, shalt thou lower thine utterance,—And as one that hath a familiar spirit, Out of the earth, shall come thy voice, And out of the dust, thy speech shall chirp; ⁵Then shall be as fine dust the multitude of thy foreigners,—And as chaff that passeth away, the multitude of tyrants; And it shall come to pass, in a twinkling, Suddenly, ⁶From Yahweh of hosts, shalt thou be visited, With thunder, and with earthquake and a great noise, hurricane and storm and flame of fire devouring; ⁷And it shall be like the dream of a night vision, With the multitude of all the nations who have been making war against Ariel,—Even with all who have been making war against her and her stronghold and who have been laying siege to her; ⁸Yea it shall be As when the hungry man dreameth and lo! he is eating, But he awaketh, and his soul, is empty, Or as when the thirsty man dreameth and lo! he is drinking, But he awaketh and lo! he is faint and his soul, is craving, So, shall it be with the multitude of all the nations, that have come forth to war against Mount Zion. ⁹Stand ye stock still and stare, Besmear your eyes and be blind,—They are drunken but not with wine, They reel, but not with strong drink; ¹⁰For Yahweh, hath poured out upon you, a spirit of deep sleep, Yea hath tightly shut your eyes—the prophets,—And, your heads—the seers, hath he covered, ¹¹And so all vision hath become unto you as the words of a writing that is sealed, Which is delivered unto one acquainted with writing, saying, Pray thee read this, And he saith, I cannot, for it is sealed; ¹²And then the writing is delivered to one unacquainted with writing, saying, Pray thee read this, And he saith I am not acquainted with writing. ¹³Wherefore My Lord hath said,—Because this people, hath drawn near with their mouth, And with their lips, have honoured me, But their heart, have they moved far from me, And so their reverence of me hath become A commandment of men in which they have been schooled, ¹⁴Therefore, behold me! again dealing wonderfully with this people, doing wonderfully a wonderful thing,—So shall perish, the wisdom of their wise men, And the intelligence of their intelligent men, shall vanish! ¹⁵Alas! for them who would fain have been too deep for Yahweh by giving secret counsel,—and therefore in the dark, have been their doings, and they have said Who can see us? and—Who can understand us? ¹⁶Your perverseness! As if like clay, the potter could he reckoned; For shall, the thing made say of him that made it, he made me not? Or hath the thing fashioned ever said of him that fashioned it, He hath no understanding. ¹⁷Is it not yet a very little while, And Lebanon shall be turned, into garden land,—And garden land, for a forest, be reckoned? ¹⁸Therefore, in that day, shall the deaf hear the words of a book,—And out of gloom and darkness, the eyes of the blind shall see; ¹⁹And again shall the humbled in Yahweh, have joy,—And the needy of mankind in the Holy One of Israel, exult; ²⁰For the tyrant, hath vanished, And the scoffer, is no more, Yea cut off are all who watch for iniquity:—²¹Who bring a man into condemnation with a rumour, And for him that decideth in the gate, lay a snare,—And have driven away, for a thing of nought, one who was righteous. ²²Therefore, Thus, saith Yahweh, concerning the house of Jacob, even he saith it who redeemed Abraham,—Not now, shall, Jacob turn pale, And, not now, shall their faces whiten; ²³For, when he seeth his children the work of my hands, in his midst, They will hallow my Name,—Yea they will hallow the Holy One of Jacob, And the God of Israel, will they regard with awe. ²⁴Then will they who erred in spirit comprehend, And the murmurers, accept instruction.

30Alas! for sons who are rebellious, Declareth Yahweh. Executing a purpose, but not from me, And pouring out a libation but not from my spirit,—That they may add sin to sin: ²Who are setting out to go down to Egypt, But at my mouth, have not asked,—Betaking them to the protection of Pharaoh And seeking refuge under the shadow of Egypt. ³Therefore shall the protection of Pharaoh become to you a shame, And, the refuge in the shadow of Egypt, an insult; ⁴For their princes have been, in Zoan,—And, their messengers unto Hanes, would draw near. ⁵Every one, hath felt ashamed of a people that could not serve them,—Neither with help, nor with service, But they are a shame, yea even a reproach. ⁶The Oracle on the Beasts of the South,—Through a land of distress and oppression—Lioness and lion coming therefrom, Viper and fiery flying serpent, They would carry, on the shoulders of young asses their wealth And on the humps of camels their treasures Unto a people that cannot serve them. ⁷But, the Egypt-

tians, with vanity and emptiness, would help,—Therefore have I proclaimed concerning this, Insolent, they sit still! ⁸Now, enter—Write it upon a tablet before them And upon a scroll, inscribe it,—That it may serve for a later day, For futurity, unto times age-abiding:—⁹That it is, a rebellious people, Sons apt at deceiving,—Sons unwilling to hear the law of Yahweh: ¹⁰Who have said to the seers, Ye must not see! To the prophets, Ye must not prophesy to us reproofs! Speak to us smooth things, Prophecy delusions: ¹¹Depart ye from the way, Turn aside from the path,—Desist from setting before us the Holy One of Israel. ¹²Therefore—Thus, saith the Holy One of Israel, Because ye have rejected this word,—And have trusted in oppression and perverseness, And have relied thereon, ¹³Therefore, shall this iniquity become to you As a breach ready to fall, A bulging in a high wall,—Whose breaking down cometh, suddenly in a twinkling. ¹⁴Yea he will break it—as the breaking of the pitcher of a potter, crushed, he will not spare; So that there shall not be found when it is smashed, A sherd wherewith to snatch fire from a hearth, Or to skim off water out of a cistern. ¹⁵For thus, said my Lord Yahweh, the Holy One of Israel—By returning and resting, shall ye be saved, In keeping quiet and trusting, shall be your strength,—Howbeit ye would not! ¹⁶But ye said,—Nay! but on horses, will we flee For this cause, shall ye indeed flee,—And on the swift, will we ride, For this cause, swift, shall be your pursuers: ¹⁷One thousand, before the war-cry of one—before the war-cry of five, shall ye flee,—Until ye have been left, As a pole on the top of a mountain, And as an ensign upon a hill. ¹⁸And, therefore, will Yahweh wait, That he may grant you favour, And, therefore, will he lift himself up, That he may show you compassion,—For A God of justice, is, Yahweh, How happy all they who are waiting for him ¹⁹For, a people, In Zion, shall dwell, In Jerusalem,—As for weeping, thou shalt not weep! As for favour, he will grant thee favour, at the sound of thine outcry,—As soon as he heareth, he hath answered thee! ²⁰Though My Lord, should give you bread in short measure and water in scant allowance Yet will thy Teacher not hide himself any more, But thine eyes shall ever be looking on thy Teacher. ²¹So shall, thine own ears, hear a word from behind thee saying,—This, is the way, walk ye therein, When ye would turn to the right hand Or when ye would turn to the left. ²²Then will ye defile—The overlaying of thy graven images of silver, And the coating of thy molten image, of gold,—Thou wilt cash them away, as a woman the token of her sickness, Begone! shalt thou say thereto, ²³Then will he give—Rain for thy seed—wherewith thou shalt sow thy ground and Bread as the increase of thy ground, which shall be fertile and fat,—Thy cattle, in that day, shall feed in broad pasture: ²⁴And the oxen and the young asses that till the ground, salted provender, shall eat, which hath been winnowed with shovel or fan. ²⁵Then shall there be, On every lofty mountain and On every lifted bill, Channels, Conduits of water,—In the great day of slaughter, When the towers fall. ²⁶Then shall the light of the moon, be as the light of the sun, And, the light of the sun, shall be sevenfold, as the light of seven days,—In the day—When Yahweh, bindeth up, the laceration of his people, and When the severe wound caused by smiting them, he healeth. ²⁷Lo! the Name of Yahweh, coming in from afar, His anger kindling, A heavy storm,—His lips, are full of indignation, And, his tongue, is like a fire that devoureth; ²⁸And, his breath like an overflowing torrent, even unto the neck, doth reach, To sift nations with a sieve of calamity,—A bridle leading to ruin, being upon the jaws of the peoples. ²⁹A song, shall ye have, As in the night of hallowing a festival,—And gladness of heart, As when one goeth with the flute to enter Into the mountain of Yahweh Unto the Rock of Israel. ³⁰Then will Yahweh cause to be heard—the resounding of his voice And the bringing down of his arm, shall be seen, In a rage of anger, And with the flame of a devouring fire,—A burst and a downpour, and a hailstone! ³¹For at the voice of Yahweh, shall Assyria be crushed,—With his rod, will he smite. ³²And it shall come to pass,—that, every stroke of the staff of doom which Yahweh shall lay upon him, shall be with timbrels and with lyres,—when, with battles of brandished weapons, he hath fought against them. ³³For there hath been set in order, beforehand a Topheth, Yea, the same, for the king, hath been prepared He hath made it deep—made it large,—The circumference thereof is for fire and wood in abundance, the breath of Yahweh, like a torrent of brimstone, is ready to kindle it.

31Alas! for them who are going down to Egypt for help, On horses, would rely,—And have trusted—In chariots—because they are many, and In horsemen, because they are very bold, But have not looked unto the Holy One of Israel, And onto Yahweh, have not sought. ²But, he also, is wise, and hath brought in calamity, And his own words, hath he not set aside,—Therefore will he rise up, Against the house of evil-doers, and Against the help of the workers of iniquity. ³Now, the Egyptians, are, men, and not, GOD, And their horses, flesh, and not, spirit; When, Yahweh, shall stretch out his hand, Then I he that is giving help, shall stumble And I he that is receiving help shall fall, And together, shall all of them vanish! ⁴For Thus, hath Yahweh said unto me—Like as a lion or a young lion growleth over his prey. Who—though there be called out against him a multitude of shepherds—Will not at their voice, be dismayed, Nor, at their noise, be daunted, So, will Yahweh of hosts come down, to make war over Mount Zion, and over the hill thereof. ⁵As little mother-birds hovering, so, will Yahweh of hosts throw a covering over Jerusalem,—Covering, so will he rescue, Passing over, so will he deliver! ⁶Return ye unto him against whom the sons of Israel have deeply revolted, ⁷For in that day, will every man reject his idols of silver, and his idols of gold,—Which your hands had made for you as a sin! ⁸Then shall the Assyrian fall, by the sword, not of a great man, And the sword, not of a mean man, shall devour him,—Howbeit he shall take his flight from the face of a sword, And his young men, shall come under tribute; ⁹And his own Cliff, through terror, shall he pass by, And his princes shall be dismayed at an ensign,—Declareth Yahweh. Who hath a flame in Zion, And hath a furnace in Jerusalem.

32Lo! in righteousness, shall reign a king, Yea even princes, with equity, shall bear rule. ²So shall each one become As a hiding-place from the wind And a covert from the storm,—As channels of water ill a dry place, As the shadow of a massive cliff in a weary land. ³And the eyes of them who are ready to see, shall not be closed,—And, the ears of them who are ready to hear, shall hear-ken; ⁴And the heart of the hurried, shall take note of knowledge, And the tongue of stammerers, shall make haste to speak plainly. ⁵A base man, shall no longer be called, noble,—Nor, knave, be named, liberal; ⁶For, a base man, with baseness, will speak, And, his heart, will practise iniquity,—Practising profanity, And speaking, against Yahweh that which misleadeth, Emptying the soul of the hungry, And the drink of the thirsty, he causeth to fail; ⁷Yea, a knave, his weapons are wicked,—He, base schemes, hath devised To ruin the oppressed with speeches of falsehood Even when the needy pleadeth, for justice. ⁸But, a noble man, noble things, hath devised,—And, he, upon noble things, will stand, ⁹Ye women in comfort! arise hear my voice, Ye daughters so confident give ear to my speech:— ¹⁰Some days beyond a year, ye shall be troubled ye confident ones,—For failed hath the vintage, No, gathering, cometh in. ¹¹Tremble, ye women in comfort, Be troubled ye daughters so confident,—Strip! and bare yourselves, and gird some-what on your loins: ¹²Upon your breasts, continue smiting: For desirable fields, For fruitful vine. ¹³Over the soil of my people, thorns and briars shall grow,—Yea over all houses of joy, thou city exultant! ¹⁴For the palace, is abandoned, the tumult of the city, hath ceased—Hill and watch-tower, serve as caves, unto times age-abiding, The joy of wild-asses, The pasture of flocks:— ¹⁵Until there be poured out upon us the spirit, from on high,—Then shall the wilderness become, garden-land, And the garden-land, for a forest, be reckoned; ¹⁶Then shall, justice inhabit, the wilderness, And righteousness, in the garden-land, shall abide; ¹⁷And the yield of righteousness, shall be, peace,—And the tillage of righteousness, quietness, and confidence! to times age-abiding; ¹⁸And my people shall dwell, In a borne of peace,—and In habitations of security, and In resting-places of comfort. ¹⁹But it shall hail during the felling of the forest, And in a sunken place, shall, the city, sink. ²⁰How happy are ye who sow beside all waters,—Who send forth the foot of the ox and the ass.

33Alas! thou plunderer when, thou, hadst not been plundered, And thou traitor when they had not betrayed thee: When thou hast ceased plundering, thou shalt be plundered, When thou hast left off betraying, they shall betray thee. ²O Yahweh! shew us favour,—For thee, have we waited,—Be thou their arm every morning, Yea our salvation in the time of distress. ³At the noise of a tumult, the peoples retreated,—When thou didst lift thyself up, nations were scattered. ⁴Then shall your spoil be gathered as the gathering of the caterpillar,—As the swift running of locusts, is he about to run upon them. ⁵Exalted is Yahweh, for he inhabiteth a height,—He hath filled Zion with justice and righteousness. ⁶So shall a wealth of deliverances, wisdom and knowledge, become the stability of thy times,—the reverence of Yahweh, the game is his treasure. ⁷Lo! their heroes, have cried out openly,—the messengers of peace, in bitterness, continue weeping they say: ⁸The highways are deserted, The passer-by on the path, hath ceased,—He hath broken covenant, He hath despised cities, He hath made no account of men. ⁹The land mourneth, languisheth, Lebanon, displayeth shame, is withered,—Sharon, hath become, as the waste plain, And Bashan and Carmel are shaking off their leaves. ¹⁰Now, will I arise, Saith Yahweh, Now, will I lift myself up, Now, will I be exalted! ¹¹Ye shall conceive chaff Ye shall bring forth stubble,—Your own breath, like fire, shall devour you. ¹²So shall peoples, become, as the burnings of lime,—As thorns lopped off, with fire, shall they be burned. ¹³Hear—ye that are far off. what I have done, And know—ye that are near my might: ¹⁴Terror-stricken in Zion,—are sinners, Shuddering hath seized the impious,—Who among us can sojourn with a fire that devoureth? Who among us can sojourn with burnings age-abiding? ¹⁵He that walketh righteously, And speaketh uprightly,—He that refuseth the gain of exactions That shaketh his hands free from holding a bribe, That stoppeth his ear from hearkening to deeds of blood, And shutteth his eyes from giving countenance to wrong, ¹⁶He, the heights, shall inhabit, A stronghold of crags, shall be his refuge,—His bread, hath been delivered, His waters, have been made sure, ¹⁷Of a king, in his beauty, shall thine eyes have vision: They shall see a land that stretcheth afar. ¹⁸Thy heart, may murmur in terror,—Where is the scribe? Where—the receiver? Where—he that maketh a list of the towers? ¹⁹The fierce people, shalt thou not see,—The people of too deep a lip to be understood, of too barbarous a tongue for thee to comprehend. ²⁰Look thou on Zion, the city of our appointed feast,—Thine own eyes, shall see Jerusalem—A home of comfort A tent which shall not be packed up—Whose pins shall not be pulled out, for ever, And none of, whose cords, shall be broken. ²¹But, there shall Yahweh be our majestic one, A places of rivers—streams broad on both hands, Wherein shall go no galley with oars, Neither shall majestic ship traverse it; ²²For, Yahweh is our judge, Yahweh, is our lawgiver,—Yahweh, is our king, He will save us! ²³Loosed are thy ropes,—They cannot strengthen the socket of their mast They have not unfurled a sail Now, can be apportioned spoil, in abundance, The lame, have captured prey! ²⁴Neither shall the inhabitant say. I am sick,—the people who dwell therein, have been forgiven iniquity.

34Come near ye nations to hear, And, ye races, attend,—Let the earth hear, and the fulness thereof, The world and all things produced therefrom: ²That Yahweh hath wrath against all the nations, and indignation against all their host,—He hath devoted them to destruction He hath delivered them to slaughter; ³And their slain shall be cast out, And their carcasses, the stench of them shall ascend,—And, the mountains, shall melt away with their blood. ⁴Then shall be dissolved all the host of the heavens, And the heavens shall roll up as a scroll,—Yea, all their host, shall fade—Like the fading and falling of a leaf from a vine, and Like what fadeth and falleth from a fig-tree. ⁵For my sword hath been sated in the heavens,—Lo! upon Edom, shall it descend, Even on the people whom I have devoted to justice. ⁶A sword, hath Yahweh—Glutted with blood Sated with fat,—With the blood of well-fed lambs and he-goats, With the fat of the kidneys of rams,—For, a sacrifice, hath Yahweh in Bozrah, Yea a great slaughter in the land of Edom; ⁷Then shall buffaloes come down with them, And bullocks with bulls,—So shall their land be soaked with blood, And, their dust, with fat, shall be enriched. ⁸For a day of avenging, hath Yahweh,—A year of requitals for the quarrel of Zion. ⁹Then shall the torrents thereof be turned into pitch, And the dust thereof, into brimstone,—So shall her land become burning pitch: ¹⁰Neither night nor day, shall it be quenched, To times age-abiding, shall ascend the smoke thereof,—From generation to generation, shall it be waste, Never, never, shall any pass through it: ¹¹That the vomiting pelican and the bittern may possess it: And the great owl and the raven, dwell therein; Then will he stretch out over it The line of desolation, and The plummet of emptiness. ¹²Her nobles (but none, are, there)! unto royalty, will call,—All, all her princes, shall become nought. ¹³Then shall come up, in her palaces thorns Nettles and thistles in her fortresses,—And she shall become A home for wild dogs, An enclosure for ostriches; ¹⁴Then shall criers meet with howlers, And, the shaggy creature, unto his fellow, shall call,—Only, there, shall, the night-spectre, Make her settlement, And find for herself a place of rest: ¹⁵There, shall, the arrow-snake, Make her nest and lay, And hatch and gather under her shadow,—Only, there, shall be gathered the falcons, every one with her mate. ¹⁶Seek ye out of the scroll of Yahweh, and read, Not, one from among them, is lacking, None, hath missed, her mate,—For, a mouth, hath, itself commanded, And, his spirit, hath itself gathered them: ¹⁷Yea he himself, hath cast for them a lot, And his own hand, hath given to them a portion by line,—Unto times age-abiding, shall they possess it, To generation after generation, shall they dwell therein.

35 Wilderness and parched land, shall be glad for them,—And the waste plain, shall exult, and blossom as the lily: ²It shall, blossom abundantly, and exult, Yea with exultation and shouts of triumph, The glory of Lebanon, hath been given to it, The splendour of Carmel, and Sharon,—They, shall see the glory of Yahweh, the splendour of our God. ³Strengthen ye the weak hands,—The trembling knees, make ye firm: ⁴Say to the hurried in heart, Be strong, Do not fear,—Lo! your God, with avenging, doth come, With the recompence of God, He, doth come to save you. ⁵Then, shall be opened the eyes of the blind,—And, the ears of the deaf, be unstopped: ⁶Then, shall leap as a hart the lame, Then shall shout the tongue of the dumb, For, there have broken forth—In the desert—waters, And streams, in the waste plain: ⁷Then shall the glowing sand, become a lake, And thirsty ground—springs of water,—In the home of the wild dog—its lair, Shall he an enclosure for cane and paper—reed. ⁸And there shall be there, a raised way—even a high road, And the Highroad of Holiness, shall it be called, There shall not pass over it one who is unclean; But He Himself, shall be one of them travelling the road, And the perverse, shall not stray thereinto. ⁹There shall be, there, no lion, Nor shall ravenous beast, go up thereon, It shall not be found, there,—Thus, shall travel the redeemed; ¹⁰And the ransomed of Yahweh! shall return, And shall enter Zion with shouting, With gladness age-abiding, upon their head, Joy and gladness shall overtake them, And sorrow and sighing, shall flee away.

36 Now it came to pass in the fourteenth year of King Hezekiah, that Sennacherib king of Assyria came up, against all the fortified cities of Judah and took them. ²Then did the king of Assyria send Rabshakeh from Lachish to Jerusalem unto King Hezekiah with a heavy force,—and he took his stand by the upper channel of the pool, in the highway of the fullers field. ³And there went out to him—Eliakim son of Hilkiah who was over the household,—and Shebna, the scribe, and Joah son of Asaph the recorder. ⁴And Rabshakeh said unto them, Pray you say unto Hezekiah, Thus, saith the great king, the king of Assyria, What is this trust, wherewith then dost thou trust? ⁵I have said sayest thou—they are only words of the lips—Counsel and might have I for the war,—Now, upon whom dost thou trust, that thou hast rebelled against me? ⁶Lo! thou dost trust on the support of this bruised cane, on Egypt, whereon if a man lean it will enter his hand and lay it open,—So, is Pharaoh king of Egypt to all who trust upon him. ⁷But, if thou shouldst say unto me, In Yahweh our God, do we trust, Then is that not he whose high places and whose altars, Hezekiah hath removed, and said unto Judah and unto Jerusalem, Before this altar, shall ye bow yourselves down? ⁸Now, therefore, pledge thyself I pray thee with my lord, the king of Assyria,—That I supply thee with two thousand horses, If thou on thy part be able to set riders upon them; ⁹How then wilt thou turn away the face of one pasha of the least of my lords servants? Or hast thou on thy part trusted upon Egypt, for chariots and for horsemen? ¹⁰But, now, is it, without Yahweh, that I have come up against this land to destroy it? Yahweh himself, said unto me, Go thou up against this land and destroy it! ¹¹Then said Eliakim, and Shebna, and Joah, unto Rabshakeh—Speak we pray thee unto thy servants in the Syrian language, for we, can, understand, it,—and do not speak unto us in the Jews language, in the ears of the people who are upon the wall. ¹²But Rabshakeh said—Is it unto thy lord and unto thee, that my lord hath sent me, to speak these things? Is it not concerning the men who are tarrying upon the wall, that they may eat and drink what cometh from them, with you? ¹³So then Rabshakeh took his stand, and cried out with a loud voice, in the Jews language, and said, Hear ye the words of the great king, the king of Assyria: ¹⁴Thus, saith the king, Let not Hezekiah deceive you,—for he shall not be able to deliver you. ¹⁵Neither let Hezekiah cause you to trust in Yahweh saying, Yahweh, will certainly deliver, us,—this city shall not be given over, into the hand of the king of Assyria. ¹⁶Do not hearken unto Hezekiah,—for, thus, saith the king of Assyria, Deal with me thankfully, and come out unto me, Then shall ye eat, Every one of his own vine and Every one of his own fig-tree, And drink every one the Waters of his own cistern: ¹⁷Until I come and take you, into A land like your own land,—A land of corn and new wine, A land of bread and vineyards:—¹⁸Lest Hezekiah, persuade you, saying, Yahweh will deliver us! Have the gods of the nations, delivered,—any one of them—his country, out of the hand of the king of Assyria? ¹⁹Where are the gods of Hamath and Arpad, Where are the gods of Sepharvaim? If indeed they had only delivered Samaria, out of my hand! ²⁰Who are they, among all the gods of these countries that have delivered their country out of my hand? That, Yahweh, should deliver, Jerusalem, out of my hand! ²¹But they held their peace, and answered him not a word,—for the command of the king, it was, saying,—Ye must not answer him. ²²Then came in—Eliakim son of Hilkiah who was over the household, and Shebna the scribe, and Joah son of Asaph, the recorder, unto Hezekiah, with rent clothes,—and they told him the words of Rabshakeh.

37 And it came to pass, when King Hezekiah heard it, that he rent his clothes,—and covered himself with sackcloth, and entered the house of Yahweh; ²and sent Eliakim who was over the household and Shebna the scribe and the elders of the priests, covered with sackcloth,—unto Isaiah the prophet, Son of Amoz; ³and they said unto him, Thus, saith Hezekiah, A day of distress and rebuke and reviling, is this day,—For children are come to the birth, and, strength, is there none to bring forth. ⁴It may be, that Yahweh thy God will hear the words of Rabshakeh whom the king of Assyria his lord, hath sent to reproach a Living God, and will rebuke the words which Yahweh thy God hath heard,—Wherefore lift thou up a prayer, for the remnant that remaineth. ⁵So the servants of King Hezekiah came unto Isaiah. ⁶And Isaiah said unto them, Thus, shall ye, surely say, unto your lord,—Thus, saith Yahweh—Be not thou afraid because of the words which thou hast heard, wherewith the servants of the king of Assyria have reviled, Me. ⁷Behold me! about to let go against him a blast of alarm, and when he heareth the report, then will lie return to his own country,—and I will cause him to fall by the sword in his own land. ⁸So Rabshakeh returned, and found the king of Assyria, warring against Libnah,—for he had heard, that he had broken up from Lachish. ⁹And he heard it reported concerning Tirhakah king of Ethiopia, saying, He hath come forth to fight with thee,—so when he heard it, he sent messengers unto Hezekiah, saying: ¹⁰Thus, shall ye surely speak unto Hezekiah king of Judah, saying, Let not thy God, in whom, thou, art trusting, beguile thee, saying,—Jerusalem, shall not be given over, into the hand of the king of Assyria. ¹¹Lo! thou, thyself, hast heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all the lands in devoting them to destruction,—and shalt, thou, be delivered? ¹²Did the gods of the nations, deliver them, whom my fathers destroyed,—Gozan, and Haran,—and Rezep, and the sons of Eden, who were in Telassar? ¹³Where are the king of Hamath, and the king of Arpad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim,—of Hena, and Ivah? ¹⁴And, when Hezekiah had received the letter at the hand of the messengers, and had read it, then went he up to the house of Yahweh, and Hezekiah spread it out, before Yahweh. ¹⁵And Hezekiah prayed unto Yahweh saying: ¹⁶O Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel—inhabiting the cherubim, Thou thyself, art GOD, even thou alone, for all the kingdoms of the earth: Thou, didst make the heavens and the earth. ¹⁷Bow down, O Yahweh, thine ear—and hear, Open, O Yahweh, thine eyes—and see,—Yea hear thou all the words of Sennacherib, ¹⁸who hath sent—to reproach a Living God. Of a truth, O Yahweh,—the kings of Assyria have devoted to destruction all the countries, and their land; ¹⁹and have put their gods in the fire,—for, no-gods, were they, but the work of the hands of men wood and stone and so they destroyed them. ²⁰Now, therefore, O Yahweh our God, save us, out of his hand,—That all the kingdoms of the earth, may know, That, thou, art Yahweh, thou alone. ²¹Then Isaiah son of Amoz sent unto Hezekiah saying,—Thus, saith Yahweh, God of Israel, In that thou hast prayed unto me concerning Sennacherib king of Assyria, ²²this, is the word which Yahweh hath spoken concerning him,—The virgin daughter of Zion, laugheth thee to scorn—mocketh thee, The daughter of Jerusalem after thee doth wag her head, ²³Whom, hast thou reproached and insulted? And, against whom, hast thou lifted high thy voice? Yea thou hast proudly raised thine eyes, against the Holy One of Israel. ²⁴Through thy servants, thou hast reproached My Lord and hast said,—With my multitude of chariots, have I ascended The height of the mountains The recesses of Lebanon, That I may cut down Its tallest cedars Its choicest firs, That I may enter Its highest summit, Its thick garden forest: ²⁵I, have digged, and drunk waters,—That I may dry up, with the soles of my feet, all the Nile-streams of Egypt. ²⁶Hast thou not heard—That, long ago, that, is what I appointed, And from days of old, devised? Now, have I brought it to pass, That thou mightest Serve to lay waste, in desolate ruins, fortified cities; ²⁷And their inhabitants, being powerless, were overthrown and put to shame—They became—Grass of the field and Young herbage, Grass on housetops, and Seed parched before it came up. ²⁸Howbeit, thine abode and thy coming out and thy going in, I know,—and thy raging against me. ²⁹Because, thy raging against me, and thy contempt, have come up into mine ears, Therefore will I put My ring in thy nose, and My bit in thy lips, And will turn thee back, by the way by which thou earnest. ³⁰And, this unto thee, is the sign, Eating this year, the growth of scattered seeds, And in the second year, that which shooteth up of itself,—Then in the third year, Sow ye—and reap, and Plant ye vineyards, and eat the fruit thereof. ³¹Then shall the escaped of the house of Judah that remain, again, Take root downward,—And bear fruit upward. ³²For, out of Jerusalem, shall come forth a remnant, And that which hath escaped, out of Mount Zion,—the jealousy of Yahweh of hosts, will perform, this. ³³Therefore, thus, saith Yahweh, concerning the king of Assyria, He shall not enter this city, Nor shoot there, an arrow,—Nor attack it with shield, Nor cast up against it a mound: ³⁴By the way that he Came in, By the Same, shall he return,—And into this city, shall he not enter, Declareth Yahweh. ³⁵Thus will I throw a covering over this city to save it,—For mine own sake, And for the sake of David my servant. ³⁶Then went forth the messenger of Yahweh, and smote—in the camp of the Assyrians—a hundred and eighty-five thousand,—and when men arose early in the morning, lo! they were all, dead bodies! ³⁷So Sennacherib the king of Assyria brake up, and went his way, and returned,—and remained in Nineveh. ³⁸And it came to pass, as he was bowing down in the house of Nisroch his god, that, Adrammelech and Sharezer his sons, smote him with the sword, howbeit, they, escaped into the land of Ararat,—and, Esarhaddon his son, reigned, in his stead.

38In those days, was Hezekiah sick, unto death,—and

Isaiah the prophet son of Amoz came in unto him, and said unto him—Thus, saith Yahweh, Set in order thy house, for, about to die thou art and shalt not recover. ²Then Hezekiah turned his face unto the wall,—and prayed unto Yahweh; ³and said,—I beseech thee, O Yahweh, remember, I pray thee, how I have walked before thee in faithfulness and with an undivided heart, and, that which is good in thine eyes, have I done. And Hezekiah wept aloud. ⁴Then came the word of Yahweh unto, Isaiah, saying: ⁵Go, and say unto Hezekiah—Thus, saith Yahweh, the God of David thy father: I have heard thy prayer, I have seen thy tears,—Behold me! about to add unto thy days, fifteen years; ⁶And out of the hand of the king of Assyria, will I deliver thee, and this city; And I will throw a covering over this city. ⁷And, this, to thee, shall be the sign from Yahweh,—that Yahweh will do this thing which he hath spoken:—⁸Behold me! causing the shadow on the steps, which hath come gone down on the steps of Ahaz with the sun, to return, backwards ten steps. So the sun returned ten steps, by the steps which it had come down. ⁹the writing of Hezekiah king of Judah, when he had been sick and then recovered from his sickness: ¹⁰I, said—In the noon-tide of my days, I must enter the gates of hades,—I am deprived of the residue of ray years! ¹¹I said—I shall not see Yah, Yah, in the land of the living, I shall discern the son of earth no longer, with the dwellers in the quiet land. ¹²My dwelling, hath been broken up. And is stripped from me, like a shepherds tent,—I have roiled up—as a weaver—my life From the loom, doth he cut me off, From day until night, I said —Thou wilt finish me. ¹³I cried out, until morning, like a lion, Thus, will he break all my bones! From day until night, Thou wilt finish me! ¹⁴As a twittering swallow, so, do I chatter, I coo as a dove,—Mine eyes languish through looking on high, O My Lord! distress is upon me—my Surety! ¹⁵What can I say? Since he hath promised for me, Himself, will perform. I will go softly, all my years. Because of the bitterness of my soul, ¹⁶O My Lord! on those things do men live,—And, altogether in them, is the life of my spirit, When thou hast strengthened me and made me live. ¹⁷Lo! for well-being, I had bitterness—bitterness,—But, thou, cleaving unto my soul, hast raised me from the pit of corruption, For thou hast cast, behind thy back all my sins. ¹⁸For, hades, cannot praise thee Nor, death, celebrate thee,—They who go down to the pit cannot wait for thy faithfulness. ¹⁹The living, the living, he, can praise thee, As I do this day,—A father, to his children, can make known thy faithfulness. ²⁰Yahweh, was willing to save me,—Therefore, on my stringed instruments, will we play—All the days of our life By the house of Yahweh. ²¹And Isaiah had said, Let them take a cake of figs, and let them press it over the boil, that he may recover. ²²And Hezekiah had said—What is the sign—that I shall go up unto the house of Yahweh?

39At that time, Merodach-baladan son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent letters and a present unto Hezekiah,—for he had heard that Hezekiah had been sick, and had recovered. ²And Hezekiah, rejoiced over them, and showed them his house of precious things—the silver and the gold and the spices and the precious ointment and all his armoury—and all that was found among his treasures,—there was nothing, which Hezekiah, did not show them—in his house or in all his dominion. ³Then came Isaiah the prophet, unto King Hezekiah,—and said unto him—What said these men? and whence came they unto thee? And Hezekiah said, From a land far away, came they unto me, from Babylon! ⁴And he said, What have they seen in thy house? Then said Hezekiah,—All that is in my house, have they seen, there is nothing which I shewed them not among my treasures. ⁵Then said Isaiah unto Hezekiah,—Hear thou the word of Yahweh of hosts: ⁶Lo! days are coming, when all that is in thy house, and that which thy fathers have treasured up until this day, shall be carried away unto Babylon,—nothing, shall be left, Saith Yahweh. ⁷And of thy sons who shall issue from thee whom thou shalt beget, shall they take away,—and they shall become eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon. ⁸And Hezekiah said unto Isaiah, Good is the word of Yahweh, which thou hast spoken. And he said, Surely, there shall be peace and stability in my days.

40Comfort ye—comfort ye my people,—Saith your God. ²Speak ye unto the heart of Jerusalem, And cry unto her,—That accomplished is her warfare, That accepted is her punishment,—That she hath received, at the hand of Yahweh, According to the full measure of all her sins. ³A voice of one crying!—In the desert, prepare ye the way of Yahweh,—Make smooth in the waste plain a highway for our God: ⁴Let, every valley, be exalted, And every mountain and hill, be made low,—And, the steep ground become, level, And, the chain of hills—a plain: ⁵Then shall be revealed the glory of Yahweh,—And all flesh shall see it together, For, the mouth of Yahweh, hath spoken! ⁶A voice saying Cry! And one said—What should I cry? All flesh, is grass, And, all the grace thereof, like the flower of the field: ⁷The grass hath withered The flower hath faded, Because, the breath of Yahweh, hath blown upon it! Surely the people is grass! ⁸The grass, hath withered, The flower, hath faded,—But the word of our God, shall stand unto times age-abiding! ⁹To a high mountain, get ye up, O herald—band of Zion, Lift high with strength your voice, O herald—band of Jerusalem,—Lift it high, do not fear, Say to the cities of Judah—Lo! your God! ¹⁰Lo! My Lord, Yahweh, as a mighty one, doth come, And, his own arm, is about to rule for him,—Lo! his reward, is with him, And, his recompense, before him; ¹¹Like a shepherd, his flock, will he tend, In his own arm, will he take up the lambs, And in his own bosom, will he carry them,—Them which are with young, will he lead to a place of rest. ¹²Who hath measured, with the hollow of his hand, the waters. Or the heavens with a span, hath meted out, Or hath comprehended, in a measure, the dust of the earth, Or weighed, in scales, the mountains, Or the hills, in a balance? ¹³Who hath proved the spirit of Yahweh? Or being his counsellor hath been giving him knowledge? ¹⁴With whom hath he taken counsel—And he hath given him intelligence, And instructed him in the path of justice,—And taught him knowledge, And in the way of intelligence, hath been giving him understanding? ¹⁵Lo! nations, Are us a drop on a bucket, And as fine dust on a balance, are accounted,—Lo! islands, like an atom, can he hoist; ¹⁶And, Lebanon, is not sufficient to burn,—Nor, the beasts thereof sufficient for an ascending-sacrifice! ¹⁷All nations, are as nothing before him,—A thing of nought or a waste, are they accounted unto him? ¹⁸Unto whom then can ye liken GOD? Or, what likeness, can ye compare unto him? ¹⁹The image, hath been cast by an artificer, And a goldsmith, with gold, overlayeth it,—And, chains of silver, he worketh. ²⁰The needy offerer, of a tree that will not rot, maketh choice,—A skilled artificer, seeketh he out for himself to construct an image that shall not totter, ²¹Have ye never taken note? Have ye never heard? Hath it not from the beginning, been told you? Have ye not been led to discern, from the foundations of the earth? ²²It is he who sitteth upon the circle of the earth, While the inhabitants thereof are, as grasshoppers,—Who stretcheth forth, as a curtain, the heavens, And spreadeth them out as a tent to dwell in; ²³Who delivereth dignitaries to nothingness,—Judges of earth, like a desolation, hath he made: ²⁴Scarcely have they been planted, Scarcely have they been sown, Scarcely hath their stock, begun to take root in the earth, When he hath just blown upon them and they have withered, And, a whirlwind, as though they haft been chaff, carrieth them away. ²⁵Unto whom then, can ye liken me, or can I be equal? Saith the Holy One. ²⁶Lift on high your eyes—and see who hath created these, That bringeth forth, by number, their host,—To all of them by name, doth call, Because of the abundance of vigour and alertness of strength, not one, is missing! ²⁷Wherefore, shouldest thou say, O Jacob, or speak, O Israel,—Hidden is my path from Yahweh, And from my God, my vindication, will pass? ²⁸Hast thou not known, Hast thou not heard, That The God of age-past time—Yahweh The Creator of the ends of the earth Fainteth not neither groweth weary—There is no searching of his understanding: ²⁹Giving to him that fainteth, strength, And to him that hath no vigour, he causeth, power to abound? ³⁰Youths both faint and grow weary, And, young warriors—they fall, they fall; ³¹But, they who wait for Yahweh, shall renew their strength, They shall mount on strong pinion like eagles,—They shall run and not grew weary, They shall walk and not faint.

41Be silent and hearken unto me, O ye Coastlands, lands, And let the Races of Men renew their strength,—Let them approach, then, let them speak, Together, for controversy, let us draw near:—²Who roused up one from the East, In righteousness, called him to his feet,—Set before him nations And over kings, caused him to rule, His sword, made them like dust, His bow like driven chaff: ³He pursued them passed along safely,—Upon the path of his own feet, entered he not? ⁴Who hath wrought and performed, Calling the generations, in advance? I, Yahweh, who am First, And with them who are last, I, am the Same! ⁵Coastlands have seen, so they fear, The ends of the earth, are in dread,—They have drawn near, and have come: ⁶Every man, to his neighbour, giveth help,—And to his brother, saith Take courage! ⁷So, the carver, hath encouraged, the goldsmith, he that maketh smooth with the hammer, him that smiteth the anvil,—Saying of the welding, It is, good, Then hath he fastened it with nails—it must not totter! ⁸But, thou, Israel, my Servant, Jacob whom I have chosen,—The seed of Abraham my loving one; ⁹Thou whom I have taken hold of from the ends of the earth, And from the extremities thereof, have called thee,—And said to thee, My Servant, thou! I have chosen thee and not cast thee off, ¹⁰Do not fear, for with thee, I am! Look not around, for, I, am thy God,—I have emboldened thee, Yea I have helped thee, Yea I have upheld thee with my righteous right-hand. ¹¹Lo! they shall turn pale and be ashamed—All they who have been incensed against thee,—They shall become as nothing and perish—The men who have been thine accusers: ¹²Thou shalt seek them, but shalt not find them—The men who have contended with thee, They shall become as nothing, and as a thing of nought—The men who have warred against thee; ¹³For I, Yahweh thy God am firmly grasping thy right-hand,—Who am saying unto thee Do not fear! I, have become thy helper! ¹⁴Do not fear, Thou worm Jacob, Ye men of Israel,—I, have become thy helper, Declareth Yahweh, And thy redeemer The Holy One of Israel. ¹⁵Lo! I have made of thee a new pointed threshing sledge, owning teeth,—Thou shalt thresh mountains and crush them, And, hills—like chaff, shalt thou make: ¹⁶Thou shalt fan them and, a wind, shall carry them away, And, a whirlwind, scatter, them,—But, thou, shalt exult in Yahweh, And, in the Holy One of Israel, shalt thou boast thyself. ¹⁷As for the oppressed and the needy. Seeking water when there is none, Their tongue with thirst being parched I—Yahweh, will answer them, The God of Israel, I will not forsake them: ¹⁸I will open, On bare hills rivers, and In the midst of plains, fountains,—I will make The desert, a lake of water, and Parched land, springs of water; ¹⁹I will set in the desert! Cedar, acacia, and myrtle, and oil-tree,—I will place, in the waste plain, Cypress, holm-oak, and sherbin-cedar, together ²⁰That men may see and observe and consider and understand at once, That, the hand of Yahweh, hath done this, That the Holy One of Israel hath created it. ²¹Bring near your contention, Saith Yahweh,—Advance your defences, Saith the King of Jacob: ²²Let them advance them, and tell us, What shall happen,—Things known in advance—what they were, tell ye, That we may lay them to our heart and mark the after-story of them, Or, things yet to come, let us hear: ²³Tell ye the events which shall be here-after, That we may perceive that gods, ye are,—Surely ye must do something—good or bad, That we may be amazed and behold it, at once. ²⁴Lo! ye, are, of nought, And your work is a puff of breath,—An abomination, he that chooseth you! ²⁵I have roused up one from the North, and he hath come, From the rising of the sun, calleth he on my Name,—And he hath come, on deputies, as though they were mortar, And as a potter treadeth clay. ²⁶Who hath told in advance, that we might know, And beforetime, that we might say Right! Nay, there is none who can tell. Nay, there is none who can let us hear, Nay, there is none who can understand what ye utter. ²⁷He who is First, can say, To Zion, Lo! there they are! And to Jerusalem, A herald of good-tidings, do I give. ²⁸So I look, And there is not, a Man! Even among these And there is none to advise,—That, when I ask them, can answer a word. ²⁹Lo! as to all of them, Vanity—nothingness, are their works, Wind and emptiness, their molten images!

42Lo! my Servant, I will uphold him, My chosen, well-pleased is my soul,—I have put my spirit upon him, Justice—to the nations, will he bring forth: ²He will not cry out nor will he speak loud,—Nor cause to be heard, in the street, his voice: ³Cane that is crushed, will he not break, And wick that is fading, will he not quench,—Faithfully, will he bring forth justice: ⁴He will not fade, nor will he be crushed, Until he establish, in the earth, justice, And for his instruction, Coastlands, wait. ⁵Thus, saith GOD himself—Yahweh,—Creator of the heavens that stretched them forth, Out-spreader of earth, and the products thereof,—Giver of breath to the people thereon, And of spirit to them who walk therein, ⁶I—Yahweh, have called thee in righteousness, And will firmly grasp thy hand,—And will keep thee And give thee—As the covenant of a people, As the light of nations: ⁷To open eyes that are blind,—To bring forth Out of the dungeon the captive Out of the prison, the dwellers in darkness. ⁸I, am Yahweh, that, is my Name, And, my glory, to another, will I not give, Nor my praise to images. ⁹Things told in advance, lo! they have come to pass,—And new things, am I telling, Ere yet they spring forth, I let, you, hear them. ¹⁰Sing to Yahweh, a song that is new, His praise, from the end of the earth,—Ye that go down to the sea, and the fulness thereof, The Coastlands and ye who dwell therein. ¹¹Let the wilderness shout, and the cities thereof, The villages wherein dwelleth Kedar,—Let the inhabitants of the crag, raise shouts of triumph, From the top of the mountains, let them cry aloud: ¹²Let them render unto Yahweh, glory,—And, his praise, in the Coastlands let them tell. ¹³Yahweh, as a hero, goeth forth, As a man of war, he stirreth up jealousy,—He giveth a cry, yea he raiseth a war-cry, Over his foes, he showeth his strength. ¹⁴I have held my peace from age-past times, I kept still, I restrained myself,—As a travailing woman, I pant, I breathe hard and gasp, all at once! ¹⁵I will lay waste mountains, and hills, And all their vegetation, will I wither,—And I will make rivers to be shores, And lakes, will I dry up: ¹⁶Thus will I lead the blind, by a way they know not, In paths they know not, will I guide them,—I will make the place that was dark before them to be, light. And crooked ways, to be, straight, These things, have I done unto them, And have not forsaken them. ¹⁷They have drawn back They turn very pale Who have been trusting in a graven image,—Who have been saying to a molten image, Ye, are our gods! ¹⁸Ye deaf hear! And ye blind look around that ye may see, Who is blind if not my Servant? Or deaf, like, my messenger whom I send? ¹⁹Who is, blind, like an intimate friend? Or blind like the Servant of Yahweh? ²⁰Seeing many things, yet thou heedest not, Opening the ears yet he heareth not, ²¹Yahweh, is well-pleased for his own righteousness sake, He magnifieth instruction and maketh it majestic. ²²But, that, is a people preyed upon and plundered, Snared in holes. Jail of them, And, in houses of restraint, concealed,—They have become a prey, and there is none to deliver,—A booty, and there is none to say—Restore! ²³Who among you, will give ear to this,—Let him hearken and hear, for an aftertime? ²⁴Who gave, as a booty, Jacob. And, Israel, to them who were ready to take prey? Was it not Yahweh I? He against whom we have sinned, And they were not willing, in his ways, to walk, Neither hearkened they to his instruction? ²⁵So he hath poured out, upon him, the glow of his anger, and the strength of battle; And it hath set him aflame round about, yet he knoweth it not, And it hath kindled upon him yet he layeth it not to heart.

Bring in My sons from far, and My daughters from the end of the earth; ⁷Every one who is called by my Name, Whom for mine own glory, I have created—formed—yea, made! ⁸Bring forth A blind people that have, eyes, and A deaf, that have, ears. ⁹All the nations, are gathered together Yea there is an assembling of peoples, Who among them, can tell this, And things in advance, can let us hear? Let them set forth their witnesses that they may get their right, Or let them hear, and say Truth! ¹⁰Ye, are my witnesses Declareth Yahweh, And my Servant, whom I have chosen,—That ye may take note—and believe me, And perceive that, I, am He, Before me, was not formed a GOD, Nor after me, shall one come into being: ¹¹I—I, am Yahweh,—And there is none besides me ready to save: ¹²I, have told—and will save, and make known, That there is among you no strange one; And, ye, are my witnesses, Declareth Yahweh That, I, am GOD. ¹³Even from To-day, I, am He, And none, out of my hand, can deliver,—I work and who reverseth? ¹⁴Thus saith Yahweh, Your Redeemer, The Holy One of Israel,—For your sakes, have I sent into Babylon, And will bring down as fugitives, all of them,—Even the Chaldeans, in the ships which cause them loud outcry. ¹⁵I—Yahweh, am Your Holy One,—The Creator of Israel, Your King. ¹⁶Thus, saith Yahweh,—Who setteth in the sea, a way,—And in the mighty waters, a path; ¹⁷Who bringeth forth Chariot and horse, Force and strength, Together, shall they be down They shall not arise, They are extinguished Like a wick, are they quenched! ¹⁸Do not keep in mind former things,—And things of old, do not consider: ¹⁹Behold me! doing a new thing, Now, shall it spring forth, Will ye not take note thereof? Surely I will set In the desert, a way, In a desolate land, rivers: ²⁰The wild beast of the field shall honour me, Jackals, and ostriches, Because I have given—In the desert, waters, Rivers in, desolate land, To give drink unto my people, my chosen: ²¹A people which I have fashioned for myself, My praise, shall they record. ²²Yet not upon me, hast thou called, O Jacob,—For thou hast been wearied of me O Israel: ²³Thou hast not brought in to me small cattle as thine ascending-offerings, Nor, with thy sacrifices, hast thou honoured me,—I have not oppressed thee with meal-offerings, Nor have I wearied thee with frankincense; ²⁴Thou hast not bought for me with silver, fragrant calamus, Nor with the fat of thy sacrifices, hast thou sated me,—Thou hast done nothing but oppress me with thy sins, Thou hast wearied me with thine iniquities. ²⁵I—I, am he that is ready, To wipe out thy transgressions for mine own sake,—And, thy sins, not remember. ²⁶Put me in mind, Let us enter into judgment at once,—Recount, thou, that thou mayest be justified: ²⁷Thy chief father, hath sinned, And thine interpreters, have transgressed against me; ²⁸So then I must needs profane the rulers of the holy place,—And deliver Jacob to be devoted to destruction, and Israel, unto reviling!

⁴⁴Now, then—hear, O Jacob, my Servant,—and Israel whom I have chosen: ²Thus, saith Yahweh—Who made thee and formed thee from birth, Who helpeth thee: Do not fear O my Servant Jacob, and Jeshurun whom I have chosen; ³For I will pour, Water upon the thirsty soil, and Floods upon the dry ground,—I will pour My spirit upon thy seed, and My blessing upon thine offspring; ⁴So will they spring up among the grass, As willows by the water-courses: ⁵This one, will say Yahweh's, am I, and That one, will call himself by the name of Jacob, and Yonder one will write on his hand—Yahweh's, And after the name of Israel, will one entitle himself. ⁶Thus saith Yahweh—King of Israel, Even his Redeemer, Yahweh of hosts,—I, am, First, and, I, Last, And besides me, there is no God. ⁷Who then, like me, can call, and declare it, and order it, for me, Seeing that I appointed an age-abiding people,—Or things yet to be, and that shall come to pass, Let them declare on their part. ⁸Do not ye dread, nor yet be alarmed, Have I not from olden time, told thee and declared? So that, ye, are my witnesses,—Whether there is a GOD besides me? Or is no Rock—I knew of none! ⁹The fashioners of an image—all of them, are emptiness, And, the things they delight in, cannot profit,—And, their, witnesses, they, neither see nor know, That they may be ashamed. ¹⁰Who hath fashioned a GOD, Or an image, hath molten? It cannot profit! ¹¹Lo! all his partners, turn pale, Even, the artificers themselves, are of the sons of earth,—Let them gather themselves together—all of them. Let them take their stand, Let them dread, and turn pale, together! ¹²As for the smith, with his cutting-tool,—When he hath wrought in the live coals, And, with hammers, hath fashioned it,—And hath wrought it with his strong arm, Anon he is hungry, and hath no strength, He hath drunk no water and so hath become faint! ¹³As for the carpenter,—He hath stretched out a line hath drawn it with a pencil, Hath made it with carving tools, With compasses, hath rounded it,—And so hath made it after the figure of a great man, After the beauty of a son of earth, that it may remain in a house! ¹⁴When one was cutting him down cedars, Then took he a holm-tree and an oak, And secured them for himself, among the trees of the forest,—He planted a fir-tree and the pouring rain made it grow; ¹⁵So it serveth for a man to burn, And he hath taken of the branches and warmed himself, Also he kindleth a fire, and baketh bread,—Also he maketh a GOD, and hath bowed himself down, Hath made of it a carved image, and adored it: ¹⁶The half thereof, hath he burned in the fire, Over half thereof, he eateth flesh, He roasteth roast, that he may be satisfied,—Also he warmeth himself, and saith, Aha, I am warm, I have seen a blaze; ¹⁷And the residue thereof, Into a GOD, he maketh, Into his carved image,—Adoreth it, and boweth down and prayeth unto it, And saith Deliver me, for, my GOD, thou art! ¹⁸They have not taken note, neither can they perceive,—He hath besmeared—

past seeing—their eyes, Past understanding, their hearts;
¹⁹And no one reflecteth—There is neither knowledge nor discernment—to say, Half thereof, have I burned up in the fire Moreover also I have baked, on the coals thereof, breed, I roasted flesh, and have been eating,—And of the remainder thereof, an abomination, shall I make? And, to a log of wood, shall I pay adoration? ²⁰He is feeding on ashes, A deluded heart, hath turned him aside,—And he cannot deliver his own soul nor say, Is there not a falsehood in my right hand? ²¹Remember these things, O Jacob, And, Israel,—for, my Servant, thou art,—I have fashioned thee, a Servant of mine, thou art. ²²O Israel, thou shalt not be forgotten of me, I have wiped out, As with a thick cloud, thy transgressions, And as with a broad cloud, thy sins,—Return unto me, for I have redeemed thee. ²³Shout in triumph ye heavens for Yahweh, hath effectually wrought. Shout, O ye underparts of the earth, Ring out, Ye mountains, into cries of triumph, Thou forest, and every tree therein,—For, Yahweh, hath redeemed, Jacob, And in Israel, will he get himself glory. ²⁴Thus, saith Yahweh Who hath redeemed thee, Who hath fashioned thee from birth,—I—Yahweh, am the maker of all things, Stretching out the heavens, alone, Spreading forth the earth, of myself; ²⁵Frustrating the signs of praters, And, diviners, he confoundeth,—Turning wise men backwards, And their knowledge, he maketh folly; ²⁶Establishing the word of his Servant, And the counsel of his Messengers, he maketh good,—Who saith of Jerusalem—She shall be inhabited! And of the cities of Judah—They shall be built! And the ruins thereof, will I set up! ²⁷Who saith to the deep—Be dry and Thy rivers, will I drain! ²⁸Who saith of Cyrus—My Shepherd! and All my pleasure, shall he make good Even saying of Jerusalem—She shall be built! And of the temple—Be her foundation laid!

45Thus, saith Yahweh, to his Anointed, to Cyrus—Whose right hand I have firmly grasped To subdue before him, nations, And the loins of kings, will I ungird,—To open, before him, the two-leaved doors, And, the gates, shall not be shut: ²I, before thee, will go, And the hills, will I level—The doors of bronze, will I break in pieces, e And the bars of iron, will I cut asunder; ³Then will I give thee The treasures of darkness, Even the hoards of hidden places,—That thou mayest get to know That I—Yahweh, who am calling thee by thy name, am the God of Israel. ⁴For the sake of my servant Jacob, Even Israel my chosen Therefore have I called unto thee by thy name, I give thee a title though thou hast not known me,— ⁵I, am Yahweh, and there is none else, Besides me, there is no God,—I gird thee, though thou hast not known me: ⁶That men may get to know. From the rising of the sun And from the west. That there is none besides me,—I, am Yahweh, and there is none else: ⁷Forming light and creating darkness, Making prosperity, and creating misfortune,—I—Yahweh, who doeth all these. ⁸Let the drops fall ye heavens, from above, Yea, let, the skies, pour down righteousness,—Let the earth open and let them bear as their fruit—deliverance And let, justice, spring forth therewith, I—Yahweh, have created it. ⁹Alas for him who contendeth with his Fashioner,—A potsherd, should contend with the potsherds of the ground! Shall it be said by the clay, unto him that is fashioning it, What wouldst thou make? Or, thy work say, of thee, He hath no hands? ¹⁰Alas, for one who saith to a father, What begetteth thou? Or to a woman What dost thou bring forth? ¹¹Thus, saith, Yahweh, The Holy One of Israel And his Fashioner, As to things to come, they have asked me, Concerning my sons and concerning the work of my hands, they would command me! ¹²I, made the earth, And man upon it, I created,—I—mine own hands, stretched out the heavens, And all their host, I commanded: ¹³I, have roused him up in righteousness, And all his roads, will I level,—He, shall build my city, And my captives, shall he let go, Not for price, nor for bribe, Saith Yahweh of hosts. ¹⁴Thus, saith Yahweh—The produce of Egypt and the gain of Ethiopia, and the Sabeans, men of great stature, Unto thee, shall come over, And thine, shall they become, After thee, shall they journey, In chains, shall they come over,—And unto thee, shall they bow down Unto thee, shall they pray saying,—Surely, in thee, is a GOD And there is none else—no, God! ¹⁵Surely, thou, art a GOD utterly hiding thyself,—O God of Israel, able to save! ¹⁶They have turned pale and even been put to shame, all of them,—Together have they gone into disgrace, have the makers of images: ¹⁷Israel, hath been delivered by Yahweh, with an age-abiding deliverance,—Ye shall neither turn pale nor he put to shame, unto the ages of futurity,. ¹⁸For, Thus, saith Yahweh, Who created the heavens God himself! Who fashioned the earth—And made it Himself, established it, ...Not a waste, created he it To be dwelt in, he fashioned it, ...I, am Yahweh, and there is none else: ¹⁹Not in secret, have I spoken In a place of the earth that is dark,—I have not said unto the seed of Jacob, In a waste, seek ye me,—I, am Yahweh, Speaking the thing that is right, Declaring the things that are just. ²⁰Assemble yourselves and come Draw near together, ye escaped of the nations,—They know not Who carry the wood of their carved image, And pray unto a GOD who cannot save. ²¹Tell ye—and bring near, Yea let them take counsel, together,—Who let this be known aforetime. In time past, declared it? Was it not, I—Yahweh? And there is none else that is God besides me, A GOD, righteous and ready to save, There is none, besides me! ²²Turn unto me—and be ye saved, all ye ends of the earth,—For, I, am GOD, and there is none else. ²³By myself, have I sworn, Gone forth out of my mouth, is righteousness as a decree And shall not turn back,—That, unto myself, Shall bow every knee, Shall swear every tongue: ²⁴Only in Yahweh—for me, Hath one said, Is there righteousness and strength, Unto him, shall come and turn pale—All who have been incensed against him: ²⁵In Yahweh, shall be justified and shall boast themselves—All the seed of Israel.

46Bel, hath crouched, Nebo, is cowering, Their images, are delivered up to beast and to cattle,—The things ye carried about, are become a load, A burden, to the weary! ²They have cowered they have crouched at once, And they cannot rescue the burden,—But their own soul, into captivity, hath departed. ³Hearken unto me O house of Jacob, Even all the remnant of the house of Israel,—Who have been borne from birth, Who have been carried from nativity: ⁴Even unto old age, I, am, the same, And unto grey hairs, I, will bear the burden,—I have made and, I, will carry, Yea, I, will bear the burden and will deliver, ⁵To whom can ye liken me or make me equal? Or compare me, and we be like? ⁶They who pour gold out of a purse, And who weigh silver in a balance,—Who hire a goldsmith that he may make it into a GOD, They adore, yea they bow down; ⁷They carry him about on the shoulder They bear the burden of him—and set him in his place that he may stand,—Out of his place, will he not move,—Though one even make outcry unto him, he will not answer, Out of ones trouble, he will not save him. ⁸Remember ye this and shew yourselves men,—Bring it back, ye transgressors, to your minds; ⁹Remember ye the things named in advance from age-past times,—For, I, am, The Mighty One, and there is none else, The Adorable and there is none like me! ¹⁰Declaring from the beginning, the latter end, And from olden time, that which had never been done,—Saying My purpose shall stand, and All my pleasure, will I perform; ¹¹Calling, From the East, a Bird of Prey, From a far country, the Man I intended,—Yea I have spoken I will also bring it to pass, I have planned, I will also do it. ¹²Hearken unto me, Ye valiant of heart,—Who are far away from righteousness: ¹³I have brought near my righteousness. It shall not be far away, And my deliverance, shall not linger,—But I will give In Zion, deliverance, To Israel, my glory.

47Down—and sit in the dust, O virgin Daughter of Babylon, Sit on the ground—throneless, Daughter of the Chaldeans; For thou shalt no more be called Tender and Dainty. ²Take millstones, and grind meal,—Put back thy veil—tuck up thy train Bare the leg, wade through streams: ³Bared shall be thy shame, Yea seen thy reproach,—An avenging, will I take, And will accept no son of earth. ⁴Our Redeemer, Yahweh of hosts, is his name! The Holy One of Israel. ⁵Sit silent, and get into darkness, Daughter of the Chaldeans! For thou shalt no more be called Mistress of Kingdoms. ⁶I had been provoked with my people, Had profaned mine inheritance, And given them into thy hand, ...Thou shewedst them no compassion, Upon the elder, madest thou very heavy thy yoke. ⁷And thou saidst, Unto times age-abiding, shall I be Mistress,—Insomuch that thou laidst not these things to thy heart, Didst not keep in mind the issue thereof, ⁸Now, therefore hear this, Thou Lady of pleasure Who dwelleth securely, Who saith in her heart,—I, am , and there is no one besides, I shall not sit a widow, Nor know loss of children. ⁹Yet shall there come to thee—both these, in a moment, in one day, Loss of children and widowhood,—To their full, have they come on thee, Spite of the mass of thine incantations, Spite of the great throng of thy spells. ¹⁰And so thou didst trust in thy wickedness, Thou saidst, no one, seeth me, Thy wisdom and knowledge, the same, seduced thee,—Therefore saidst thou in thy heart, I am , and there is no one besides. ¹¹Therefore shall come on thee—Mischief, Thou shalt not know how to charm it away Yea there shall fall on thee, Ruin, Thou shalt not be able to appease it,—And there shall come on thee suddenly. Desolation. Thou shalt not know. ¹²Take thy stand, I pray thee, With thy spells. And with the throng of thine incantations wherein thou hast wearied thyself from thy youth,—Peradventure thou mayest be able to profit Peradventure thou mayest strike me with terror. ¹³Thou hast worn thyself out with the mass of thy consultations,—Let them take their stand I pray thee that they may save thee—The dividers of the heavens—The gazers at the stars, They who make known by new moons, Somewhat of the things which shall come upon thee. ¹⁴Lo! they have become as straw—a fire, hath burned them up, They shall not deliver their own soul from the grasp of the flame,—There is, no live coal to warm them, nor blaze to sit before. ¹⁵Such, have they become to thee, with whom thou hast wearied thyself,—Thy merchants—from thy youth, will every man stagger straight onwards—There is none to save thee.

48Hear ye this—O house of Jacob, Ye who call yourselves by the name of Israel, Yea from the waters of Judah, came they forth,—Who swear by the name of Yahweh, And, by the God of Israel, call to remembrance—Not in truth, nor in righteousness; ²For of the holy city, do they call themselves, And on the God of Israel, do they stay themselves,—Yahweh of hosts, is his name. ³Things in advance, of old, I declared, Yea out of mine own mouth, came they forth, that I might let them be known,—Suddenly, I wrought and they came to pass. ⁴Because I knew that—Obstinate, thou wast,—And, a sinew of iron, was thy neck, And thy brow, brazen, ⁵therefore told I thee—in time past, Ere yet it came, I let thee hear,—Lest thou shouldest say Mine idol wrought them, Yea, my carved image and my molten image, commanded them! ⁶Thou hast heard—see it whole, And will, ye, not tell? I have let thee hear new things—from the present time, Even secrets which ye knew not. ⁷Now, are they created, and not in time past, And, before to-day, thou hadst not heard of them,—Lest thou shouldest say, Lo! I knew them! ⁸Nay! thou hadst not heard, Nay! thou hadst not known, Nay! in time past, thine ear, was not opened,—For I knew that thou, wouldst be treacherous, Yea a transgressor from birth, hast thou been called. ⁹For the sake of mine own Name, will I defer mine anger, And for my praise, will I restrain myself towards thee,—So as not to cut thee off. ¹⁰Lo! I have refined thee, but not as silver,—I have tested thee, in a smelting-pot of affliction. ¹¹For mine own sake—for mine own sake, will I effectually work For how should it be profaned? And, my glory—to another, will I not give. ¹²Hearken unto me O Jacob, And Israel, my called one,—I, am, the Same I, the first, yea, I, the last: ¹³Surely, mine own hand, founded the earth, And, my right hand, stretched out the heavens,—While I was calling unto them, they stood forth, at once ¹⁴Assemble yourselves—all of you and hear, Who among them, hath told these things? he whom Yahweh loveth, will execute—His pleasure, on Babylon, And his stroke on the Chaldeans. ¹⁵I—I, have spoken, Yea I have called him,—I have brought him in, and he shall make prosperous his way. ¹⁶Draw ye near unto me—hear ye this, Not in advance in secret, have I spoken, From the very time it cometh into being, there, am I,—And, now, My Lord Yahweh hath sent me and his spirit. ¹⁷Thus saith Yahweh—Thy Redeemer, The Holy One of Israel,—I—Yahweh, am thy God, Teaching thee to profit, Guiding thee in the way thou shouldest go. ¹⁸Oh! that thou hadst hearkened to my commandments,—Then had been, like a river, thy prosperity, And, thy righteousness, like the waves of the sea: ¹⁹Then had been, like the sand, thy seed, And, the offspring of thy body, like the grains thereof,—Neither cut off nor destroyed had been his name from before me. ²⁰Come ye forth out of Babylon, Flee from among the Chaldeans, With triumphant voice, tell ye—let this be heard, Let it go forth as far as the end of the earth,—Say ye—Yahweh hath redeemed his servant Jacob! ²¹And they thirsted not, when, through dry places, he led them, Waters out of the rock, caused hero flow out to them,—Yea be cleft a rock and, there gushed out waters: ²²No well-being, saith Yahweh to the lawless,

49Hearken, ye Coastlands, unto me, And give ear ye peoples afar off,—Yahweh, called me, from my birth, From my nativity, made he mention of my name; ²And he made my mouth, like a sharp sword, In the shadow of his hand, he concealed me,—And made of me a polished arrow, In his quiver, he hid me; ³And said to me My Servant, thou art,—Israel, in whom I will get myself glory. ⁴But I, said, To no purpose, have I toiled, For waste and mist—my vigour, have I spent,—Surely, my vindication, is, with, Yahweh, And, my recompence, with my God. ⁵Now, therefore, said Yahweh—Fashioning me from birth To be Servant to him, To restore Jacob unto him, And that, Israel, unto him, might be gathered And I be honourable in the eyes of Yahweh, And, my God, be proved to have been my strength, ⁶Yea he said—It is too small a thing, for being my Servant, That thou shouldest raise up the tribes of Jacob, And the preserved of Israel, shouldest restore,—So I will give thee to become a light of nations, That, my salvation, may reach as far as the end of the earth. ⁷Thus, saith Yahweh—the Redeemer of Israel, his Holy One To him that is despised of the soul, To the abhorred of the nation To the servant of rulers, Kings, shall see and arise, Princes, lo! they have bowed themselves down,—Because of Yahweh, who is faithful, The Holy One of Israel, lo! he hath chosen thee. ⁸Thus, saith Yahweh—In a time of acceptance, have I answered thee, In a day of salvation, have I helped thee,—That I may preserve thee And give thee as the covenant of a people, To establish the land, To bring into possession the desolate heritages; ⁹Saying To them who are hound Go forth, To them who are in darkness, Shew yourselves,—By the roads, shall they graze, And on all bare places, shall be their pasture: ¹⁰They shall neither hunger, nor thirst, Nor shall smite them the glowing sand, or the glaring sun,—For, he that hath compassion upon them, will lead them, And unto springs of water, will he conduct them. ¹¹Then will I make of all my mountains, a road, And my highways, shall be upraised. ¹²Lo! these, from afar, shall come in,—And lo! these, from the North and from the West, And these, from the land of Sinim. ¹³Shout in triumph—O heavens! And exult—O earth! And break forth, ye mountains, into shouts of triumph,—For Yahweh hath comforted his people, And on his humbled ones, taketh he compassion. ¹⁴But Zion had said. Yahweh hath forsaken me,—Even, My Lord, hath forgotten me! ¹⁵Can, a woman, forget, her sucking child, Past taking compassion on the son of her womb? Even these, may forget, Yet will, I, not forget, thee: ¹⁶Lo! on the palms of my hands, have portrayed thee,—Thy walls are before me continually. ¹⁷In haste are thy sons,—They who have been tearing thee down and laying thee waste, out of thee, let them go forth! ¹⁸Lift up, round about, thine eyes and see, All those, have gathered themselves together—have come to thee! As I live, Declareth Yahweh,—Surely all those as an ornament, shalt thou put on, And bind them about thee for a girdle as a bride. ¹⁹Surely, as for thy wastes, and thy desolations, and thy land of ruins, Surely, now, shalt thou be too strait for thine inhabitants, And, far off, shall be they who have been swallowing thee up. ²⁰The children of whom thou wast bereaved shall yet say in thine ears,—Too strait for me, is the place Make room for me that I may settle down. ²¹Then shalt thou say in thy heart,—Who hath borne me, these, Seeing, I, have been bereaved and unfruitful, a captive and banished, These, therefore, who hath brought them up? Lo! I, was left, alone, These, where were they. ²²Thus, saith My Lord, Yahweh—Lo! I will lift up, unto nations my hand, Yea unto peoples, will I raise high my banner,—And they shall bring in thy sons in their bosom, And, thy daughters, on the shoulder shall be borne; ²³And, kings, shall be, thy foster-fathers. And their queens, thy nursing mothers, With face to the ground, shall they bow down to thee, The dust of thy feet, shall they lick,—So shalt thou know that, I, am Yahweh, In that, they shall not be put to shame, Who were waiting for me. ²⁴Shall prey, be taken from a mighty one? Or the captive of one in the right, be delivered? ²⁵Surely, thus, saith Yahweh—Even the captive of the mighty one, shall be taken away, And the prey of the tyrant, be delivered; And thine opposers, I, will oppose, And thy children, I, will save; ²⁶Then will I feed thy tormentors with their own flesh, And as with new wine—with their own blood, shall they be drunk,—So shall all flesh, know, that, I—Yahweh, am thy Saviour, And, thy Redeemer, is the Mighty One of Jacob.

50Thus, saith Yahweh—Where then is the set, oil of your mothers divorce, whom I have put away? Or, which of my creditors, is it to whom I have sold you? Lo! for your iniquities, have ye been sold, And for your transgressions, hath your mother been put away. ²Wherefore, When I came in, was there no one? When I called, was there none to answer? Is mine own hand, really shortened, that it cannot redeem? Or is there not, in me, strength to deliver? Lo! by my rebuke, I dry up the sea I make rivers a desert, Their fish Stinketh, for want of water, Yea dieth, for thirst: ³I clothe the heavens with gloom, And, of sackcloth, make I their covering. ⁴My Lord Yahweh, hath given unto me the tongue of the instructed, That I should know how to succour the fainting, with discourse,—He kept wakening—morning by morning. He kept wakening mine ear, to hear—ken as do the instructed; ⁵My Lord, Yahweh, opened mine ear, And, I, was not rebellious,—Away, turned I not: ⁶My back, gave I to smiters, and My cheeks, to them who pulled out the beard,—My face, hid I not from insult and spitting. ⁷Because, My Lord, Yahweh, would help me, Therefore was I not deterred by insult,—Therefore did I set my face like flint, And I knew that I should not be put to shame. ⁸At hand, is one who can justify me. Who will contend with me? let, us stand forth together,—Who can accuse me? let him draw near to me! ⁹Lo! My Lord, Yahweh, will help me, Who is he that shall prove me lawless? Lo! they all, as a garment, shall fall to pieces, the moth shall consume them. ¹⁰Who among you, revereth Yahweh, Harkening unto the voice of his Servant,—That hath walked in dark places And hath had no gleam of light? Let him trust in the name of Yahweh, And lean upon his God. ¹¹Lo! all ye that kindle a fire, That gird yourselves with fiery darts,—Walk ye in the blaze of your own fire. And in the fiery darts ye have kindled, At my hand, hath this befallen you, In sorrow, shall ye lie down.

51Hearken unto me, Ye that pursue righteousness, Ye that seek Yahweh,—Look well unto the rock whence ye were hewn, And unto the quarry whence ye were digged: ²Look well unto Abraham your father, And unto Sarah who gave you birth,—For he was, alone, when called I him, And, I blessed him that I might make him, many. ³For Yahweh hath comforted Zion, He hath comforted all her waste places, And hath made her wilderness like Eden, And her waste plain like the garden of Yahweh,—Joy and gladness, shall be found in her, Thanksgiving, and the voice of melody. ⁴Attend unto me, O my people, And, O, my nation unto me give ear,—For, instruction, from me, shall go forth, And, my justice—for a light of peoples, will I establish: ⁵At hand is my righteousness. Gone forth hath my salvation, And, mine own arms, unto the peoples, shall give justice,—Upon me, Coastlands, shall wait, And for mine arm, shall they hope. ⁶Lift up—to the heavens—your eyes, And look around to the earth beneath Though, the heavens, like smoke, should have vanished And, the earth, like a garment, should fall to pieces, And, her inhabitants, in like manner, should die, Yet, my salvation, unto times age-abiding, shall continue, And, my righteousness, shall not be broken down. ⁷Hearken unto me ye who discern righteousness, The people in whose heart is my law,—Do not fear the reproach of frail men, Nor at their revilings, be dismayed; ⁸For like a garment, shall they be eaten of the moth, And like wool, shall they be eaten of the larva; But, my righteousness, unto times age-abiding shall continue, And, my salvation, unto the remotest generation. ⁹Awake, awake put on strength, O arm of Yahweh, Awake, As in days of old, The generations of bygone ages: Art not thou that which—Hewed down Rahab, Piercing the Crocodile? ¹⁰Art not thou that which dried up—The Sea, The waters of the mighty Deep,—That which made of the abysses of the sea a road for the passing over of the redeemed? ¹¹Therefore, the ransomed of Yahweh, shall again come unto Zion, with shouts of triumph, With gladness age-abiding on their head,—Joy, and gladness, shall overtake them. Sorrow and sighing have fled away. ¹²I—I, am he that comforteth you,—Who art, thou, that thou hast feared Frail man that dieth, and A son of the earth-born, who, as grass, shall be delivered up? ¹³That thou hast forgotten Yahweh thy maker, Who stretched out the heavens And founded the earth? That thou hast dreaded continually, all the day, by reason of the fury of the oppressor, in that he was ready to destroy? Where then is the fury of the oppressor? ¹⁴The captive hath hastened to be loosed,—That he might not die in the pit. Neither should, his bread, be cut off. ¹⁵But, I—Yahweh, am thy God, Who threw into commotion the sea And the waves thereof roared,—Yahweh of hosts, is his name. ¹⁶Therefore have I put my words in thy mouth, And with the shadow of my hand, have I covered thee,—To plant the heavens, and To lay the foundations of the earth, and To say unto Zion My people, thou art! ¹⁷Rouse thee—rouse, thee stand up, O Jerusalem, Who hast drunk, at the hand of Yahweh, his cup of indignation: The goblet-cup of confusion, hast thou drunk—hast thou drained. ¹⁸There is none to guide her, Among all the sons she hath borne,—There is none to grasp her hand, Among all the sons she hath brought up. ¹⁹Twain, are the things befalling thee, Who will lament for thee? Wasting and destruction and famine and sword By whom shall I comfort thee? ²⁰Thy sons, have fainted, They lie at the head of all the streets like a gazelle in a net,—Who, indeed, are full of The indignation of Yahweh The rebuke of thy God. ²¹Therefore, hear, I pray thee, this, thou humbled one,—And drunken but not with wine:—²²Thus, saith Thy Lord, Yahweh, Even thy God who pleadeth the cause of his people:—Lo! I have taken, out of thy hand, the cup of confusion,—As for the goblet-cup of mine indignation, Thou shalt not again drink it, any more; ²³But I will put it into the hand of thy tormentors, Who said to thy soul, Bow down thus we may pass over,—And so thou didst place as the ground, thy back, Yea as the street to such as were passing along.

52Awake, awake, Put on thy strength, O Zion,—Fur on thy beautiful garments, O Jerusalem—thou holy city, For there shah not again come into thee any more the uncircumcised and unclean. ²Shake thyself from the dust arise—sit down O Jerusalem,—Loose thyself from the bonds of thy neck, O captive! daughter of Zion! ³For, thus, saith Yahweh, For nought, ye sold yourselves,—And not with silver, shall ye be redeemed, ⁴For, thus, saith My Lord, Yahweh, To Egypt, went down my people at first to sojourn there,—But, Assyria, without cause, hath oppressed him. ⁵Now, therefore, what do I here? Demandeth Yahweh. That my people have been taken away for nought? They who rule them, do howl, Declareth Yahweh, And, continually—all the day, is my Name brought into contempt. ⁶Therefore, shall my people acknowledge my Name: Therefore, in that day, shall they acknowledge that, I, am the same, even I who am speaking,—Here, I am, ⁷How beautiful, upon the mountains are the feet—Of him That bringeth good tidings, That publisheth peace, That bringeth good tidings of blessing, That publisheth salvation,—That saith unto Zion, Thy God, hath become king. ⁸The voice of thy watchmen! They have uplifted a voice Together, do they renew the shout of triumph,—For eye to eye, shall they see, When Yahweh returneth to Zion. ⁹Break forth, shout in triumph together, ye waste places of Jerusalem,—For Yahweh Hath comforted his people, Hath redeemed Jerusalem: ¹⁰Yahweh hath bared his holy arm, in the eyes of all the nations, So shall all the ends of the earth see the salvation of our God. ¹¹Away! away! come, forth from thence!—Nought unclean, may ye touch,—Come forth out of her midst, Purify yourselves, ye who are to carry the vessels of Yahweh; ¹²For, not in haste, shall ye come forth, Nor, by flight, shall ye journey,—For, your van-guard, is Yahweh, And, your rear-guard, the God of Israel. ¹³Lo! my Servant, prospereth,—He riseth, and is lifted up, and becometh very high: ¹⁴The more that Many, were amazed at thee, So marred, beyond any man's, was his appearance,—And his form, beyond the sons of men, ¹⁵The more doth he startle Many nations, Before him, have kings closed their mouth,—For, that which had not been related to them, have they seen, And that which they had not heard, have they diligently considered.

53Who believed what we have heard? And, the arm of Yahweh, to whom was it revealed? ²When he came up as a sapling before him. And as a root-sprout out of dry ground, He had neither beauty nor majesty,—When we beheld him, there was nothing to behold, that we should desire him; ³Despised was he, and forsaken of men, Man of pains and familiar with sickness,—Yea, like one from whom the face is hidden, Despised, and we esteemed him not. ⁴Yet surely, our sicknesses, he, carried, And, as for our pains, he bare the burden of them,—But, we, accounted him stricken. Smitten of God and humbled, ⁵Yet, he, was pierced for transgressions that were ours, was crushed for iniquities that were ours,—the chastisement for our well-being, was upon him, And by his stripes, there is healing for us. ⁶We all, like sheep, had gone astray, Every man—to his way, had we burned,—And Yahweh! caused to light upon him The guilt of, us all! ⁷Hard pressed—yet, he, humbled himself Nor opened his mouth—As, a lamb, to the slaughter, is led, And, as a sheep, before her shearers, is dumb—Nor opened his mouth. ⁸By constraint and by sentence, was he taken away, And of his age, who considered That he was cut off out of the land of the living, For my peoples transgression, did the stroke fall on him? ⁹And, appointed with lawless men, was his grave, And with the wicked, his tomb,—Though no violence, had he done, Nor was guile in his mouth. ¹⁰Yet, Yahweh, purposed to bruise him, He laid on him sickness:—If his soul become an offering for guilt, He shall see a seed, He shall prolong his days,—And the purpose of Yahweh, in his hand, shall prosper: ¹¹Of the travail of his soul, shall he see He shall be satisfied with his knowledge, A setting right when set right himself, shall my Servant win for the Many, Since of their iniquities, he, taketh the burden. ¹²Therefore, will I give him a portion in the great, And the strong, shall he apportion as spoil, Because he poured out, to death his own soul, And with transgressors, let himself be numbered,—Yea, he, the sin of Many, bare, And for transgressors, interposeth.

forth do not spare,—Lengthen thy cords, And thy tent-pins, make thou fast; ³For, on the right hand and on the left, shalt thou break forth,—And thy seed, shall of the nations, take possession, And forsaken cities, shall they cause to be inhabited. ⁴Do not fear for thou shalt not turn pale, Neither feel disgraced for thou shalt not be put to the blush,—For, the shame of thy youth, shalt thou forget, And the reproach of thy widowhood, shalt thou remember no more; ⁵For, thy husband, is, thy Maker, Yahweh of hosts, is his Name,—And, thy redeemer, the Holy One of Israel, The God of all the earth, shall he be called. ⁶For, like a wife forsaken and grieved in spirit, hath Yahweh caned thee,—Even the wife of youthful days, in that thou wast rejected saith thy God. ⁷For a small moment, I forsook thee,—But, with abounding compassions, do I embrace thee: ⁸In an overflow of vexation, I hid my face for a moment, from thee, But, with lovingkindness age-abiding, have I had compassion on thee,—saith thy Redeemer Yahweh. ⁹For, the waters of Noah, is this unto me,—As to which I swear that the waters of Noah should not again pass over the earth, So have I sworn Not to be vexed with thee Nor to rebuke thee. ¹⁰For, the mountains, may move away, And the hills, may be shaken,—But, my lovingkindness, from thee, shall not move away, And, my covenant of peace, shall not be shaken, saith he who hath compassion upon thee—Yahweh. ¹¹O thou humbled one storm-tossed, un comforted,—Lo! I, am about to set in antimony, thy stones, And will found thee in sapphires; ¹²And make rubies, thy battlements, And thy gates, sparkling stones,—¹³And, all thy boundaries, stones of delight; And, all thy children, shall be the instructed of Yahweh,—And, great, shall be the prosperity of thy children. ¹⁴In righteousness, shalt thou be established,—Be thou far from oppression—But indeed thou shalt not fear, And from crushing calamity—But indeed it shall not come nigh unto thee. ¹⁵Lo! they would, quarrel, with thee—not at all from me,—Whoso hath quarrelled with thee, over thee, shall fall. ¹⁶Lo! I, have created the smith, who bloweth up a fire of coals, And who bringeth forth an instrument for his work,—And, I, have created the waster to destroy: ¹⁷No instrument formed against thee, shall prosper, And every tongue that riseth against thee in judgment, shalt thou prove to be lawless,—This is the inheritance of the servants of Yahweh. And, their righteousness, is from me, Declareth Yahweh.

55Ho! every one that thirsteth! Come ye to the waters, Yea he that hath no money,—Come ye—buy corn, and eat, Yea come—buy corn without money, And without price, wine and milk, ²Wherefore should ye spend, Money, for that which is not bread? Or your labour, for that which, satisfieth not? Keep on hearkening unto me, And, so eat that which is good, And let your soul take exquisite delight in fatness: ³Incline your ear, and come unto me, Hearken,

That your soul, may live,—That I may solemnise for you a covenant age-abiding, The Lovingkindness to David, well-assured. ⁴Lo! As a witness to the peoples, have I given him,—As a leader and commander to the peoples: ⁵Lo! A nation thou shalt not know, shalt thou call, And, a nation which hath not known thee, unto thee, shall run,—For the sake of Yahweh thy God, And for the Holy One of Israel, because he hath adorned thee. ⁶Seek Yahweh while he may be found,—Call ye upon him while he is near: ⁷Let the lawless forsake his way, And the man of iniquity, his thoughts,—And let him return unto Yahweh That he may have compassion upon him, And unto our God, For he will abundantly pardon. ⁸For, my thoughts, are not, your thoughts, Nor, your ways, my ways,—Declareth Yahweh. ⁹For, higher, are the heavens than the earth,—So, higher, are My ways than your ways, and My thoughts than your thoughts. ¹⁰For, as the rain and the snow descend from the heavens. And thither, do not return, Except they have watered the earth. And caused it to bring forth and bud,—And given seed to the sower, and bread to the eater, ¹¹So, shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth, It shall not return unto me void,—But shall accomplish that which I please, And shall prosper in that whereunto I have sent it. ¹²For with gladness shall ye come forth, And in peace, shall ye be led,—the mountains and the hills shall break out, before you, into shouts of triumph, And all the wild trees shall clap their hands: ¹³Instead of the thorn-bush, shall come up the fir-tree, And instead of the nettle, shall come up the myrtle-tree,—So shall it become unto Yahweh, a Name, A Sign age-abiding, which shall not be cut off.

56Thus, saith Yahweh, Observe ye justice, And execute righteousness,—For near, is My salvation, to come in, and My righteousness to be revealed. ²How happy the frail man, who doeth this! Yea the son of the earth-born who firmly graspeth it! Keeping the sabbath lest he profane it, and Keeping his own hand from doing any wrong. ³And let not the son of the foreigner, who hath joined himself unto Yahweh, speak, saying, Yahweh, will separate, me from his people, Neither let the eunuch, say, Lo! I, am a tree dried up! ⁴For thus, saith Yahweh—Of the eunuchs, Who shall keep my sabbaths, And choose what I delight in,—And lay firm hold on my covenant, ⁵That I will give unto them—In my house, And within my walls, A sign and a name, better than sons and daughters,—A name age-abiding, will I give him, which shall not be cut off. ⁶And, as for the sons of the foreigner—Who have joined themselves unto Yahweh To wait upon him, and To love the name of Yahweh, To become his for servants,—Every one who keepeth the sabbath, lest he profane it. And who, layeth firm hold on my covenant, ⁷Surely I will bring them into my holy mountain And make them joyful in my house of prayer, Their ascending-offerings and their sacrifices, being accepted upon mine altar,—For, my house, a house of prayer, shall be called, for all the peoples! ⁸Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, Who is gathering the outcasts of Israel:—Yet others, will I gather unto him Besides his own gathered ones. ⁹All ye beasts of the field! come ye to devour, All ye beasts in the forest. ¹⁰His watchmen, are blind None of them, know, All of them, are dumb dogs, they cannot bark,—Dreaming, sleeping, loving to slumber. ¹¹And, the dogs, are greedy they know not to be satisfied. Yea, they, are shepherds who know not to discern,—All of them unto their own way, have turned, Every man to his unjust gain, on every hand: ¹²Come ye! I will fetch wine Let us fill ourselves with strong drink,—And like this day, shall, tomorrow be—Great beyond measure!

57The righteous one, hath perished, And not a man, hath taken it to heart—Yea the men of lovingkindness, have been withdrawn No one considering, That from the presence of calamity, hath the righteous been withdrawn. ²He entereth into peace, Let them rest upon their couches,—Each one who went on a straight path. ³But, ye, ...draw near hither, Ye sons of divination,—Ye seed of an adulterer when your mother committed unchastity! ⁴Against whom would ye disport yourselves? Against whom would ye widen the mouth and lengthen the tongue,—Are not, ye, Children of transgression, A Seed of falsehood. ⁵Who inflame yourselves With the terebinths, Under every green tree—Slaying the children, In the torrent-valleys, Under the clefts of the crags: ⁶Among the smooth stones of the torrent—valley, is thy portion. They, they, are thy lot; Even to them, hast thou Poured out a drink-offering. Caused to ascend a gift. Over these things, can I cease to grieve? ⁷On a mountain high and uplifted, hast thou set thy couch,—Even thither, hast thou gone up, to offer sacrifice; ⁸And behind the door arid the post, hast thou set thy symbol, For, with another than me, hast thou uncovered thyself and gone up—Hast widened thy couch, And hast solemnised for thyself a covenant from them, Thou hast loved their couch a sign, hast thou seen; ⁹And hast gone to the king with oil, And hast multiplied thy perfumes,—And hast sent thy messengers afar, And...lowered thyself as far as hades! ¹⁰With the length of thy journey, thou wast wearied, Thou didst not say, Hopeless! The reviving of thy power, thou didst find, For this cause, hast thou not become sick. ¹¹Whom then hadst thou been anxious about and feared that thou shouldst speak falsely, When me, thou rememberedst not, caredst not for me? Did not, I, keep silence even from age-past times, Although me, thou wouldst not fear? ¹²I, will expose thy righteousness,—And thy works—but they will not profit thee! ¹³When thou makest outcry, let thy gathered throngs deliver thee! But all of them, shall A wind, catch up—A breath, take away! Whereas he that seeketh refuge in me, Shall inherit the land, And possess my holy mountain. ¹⁴And

one said—Cast ye up—cast ye up, prepare ye a way,—Lift the stumbling-block out of the way of my people. ¹⁵For, thus, saith he that is high and lifted up—Inhabiting futurity, And, holy, is his name: A high and holy place, will I inhabit, Also with the crushed and lowly in spirit, To revive the spirit of the lowly, and To revive the heart of them who are crushed;— ¹⁶For not age-abidingly, will I contend, Nor perpetually, will I be wroth,—For, spirit, before me, would faint, Even the breathing souls, which, I, had made. ¹⁷Because of his iniquitous gain, was I wroth—and smote him Hiding myself that I might be wroth,—But he went on turning aside in the way of his own heart. ¹⁸His ways, have I beheld, That I might heal him,—And guide him, And restore consolations to him and to his mourners: ¹⁹Creating the fruit of the lips—Prosperity! Prosperity! For him that is far off and for him that is near saith Yahweh, So should I heal him. ²⁰But, the lawless, are like the sea when tossed,—For, rest, it cannot! But its waters toss out mire and dirt. ²¹No well-being, saith my God, to the lawless!

58Cry aloud, do not spare, Like a horn, lift high thy voice,—And declare To my people, heir transgression, and To the house of Jacob their sins. ²Yet, me—day by day, do they seek, And in the knowledge of my ways, they delight,—Like a nation that had done righteousness, And the justice of their God, had not forsaken They ask of me the just regulations, In approaching God, they delight. ³Wherefore have we Fasted and thou hast not seen? Humbled our soul, and thou wouldst take no note? Lo! in the day of your fast, ye take pleasure, But all your toilers, ye drive on! ⁴Lo! for strife and contention, ye fast, And to smite with the fist of lawlessness,—Ye shall not fast as to-day, To cause to be heard on high your voice! ⁵Like this, shall the fast be that I choose, A day for the son of earth to humble his soul? Is it to bow down as a rush his head, And sackcloth and ashes, to spread out? Is it, this, thou wilt call a fast, Or a day of acceptance with Yahweh? ⁶Is not, this, the fast that I must ever choose—To unbind the tight cords of lawlessness, To unloose the bands of the yoke,—and To let the crushed go free, and That every yoke, ye tear off? ⁷Is it not to break unto the hungry, thy bread, And the thrust-out oppressed, that thou bring into a home,—When thou seest one naked, that thou cover him, And from thine own flesh, shalt not hide thyself? ⁸Then, shall break forth, as the dawn, thy light, And thy new flesh shall speedily grow,—Then shall go before thee, thy righteousness, the glory of Yahweh shall bring up thy rear: ⁹Then, shalt thou Call, and Yahweh, will answer, Cry out, and he will say, Behold me! If thou remove, out of thy midst the yoke, The pointing of the finger, and The speaking of iniquity; ¹⁰And shalt let thine own soul a go out to the hungry, And the soul of the oppressed, thou shalt satisfy, Then shall break forth in darkness thy light, And thy thick darkness, become as the splendour of noon; ¹¹Then will Yahweh guide thee continually, And will satisfy, even in scorched regions thine own soul, Yea Shy very bones, will he invigorate,—So shall thou become like a garden well—watered, And like a spring of water whose waters do not deceive; ¹²And they who come of thee shall build the wastes of age-past times, And as for the foundations of generation after generation, thou shalt rear them up,—So shalt thou be called—A Repairer of broken walls, A Restorer of paths leading home. ¹³If thou turn back. From the sabbath Shy foot, From doing thine own pleasure on my holy day,—And shall call—The sabbath, An exquisite delight, The holy day of Yahweh, A day to be honoured, And so shall honour it rather—Than do thine own ways, Than take thine own pleasure or Than speak thine own word, ¹⁴Then, shall then rest thine own exquisite delight upon Yahweh, ...And I will cause thee to ride over the high places of the land,—And will feed thee with the inheritance of Jacob Shy father, For the mouth of Yahweh, hath spoken.

59Lo! the hand of Yahweh is not too short to say,—Neither is his ear too heavy to hear. ²But, your iniquities, have become separators betwixt you and your God, And your sins, have caused a biding of face from you that he should-not hear. ³For, your hands, are defiled with blood, And, your fingers, with iniquity,—Your lips, have spoken falsehood, and Your tongue, muttereth, perversity. ⁴None, sueth in righteousness, and None, pleadeth in faithfulness,—Men are trusting in confusion, And speaking vanity, Conceiving wickedness And bringing forth iniquity: ⁵Vipers eggs, do they hatch, Spiders threads, do they weave,—he that eateth of their eggs, dieth, And, that which is crushed, bringeth forth an adder; ⁶Their thread, shall not become a garment, Neither shall they cover themselves with their fabrics,—Their fabrics, are fabrics of iniquity, Yea the product of violence is in their hands; ⁷Their feet, to mischief, do run, And they speed to shed innocent blood,—Their devices, are devices of iniquity, Wasting and destruction, are in their high roads; ⁸the way of well-being, have they not known, And there is no justice in their tracks,—Their paths, have they made crooked for themselves, None who treadeth therein knoweth well—being. ⁹For this cause, hath justice removed far from us, And righteousness overtaketh us not,—We wait for light, But lo! darkness, For brightness, In thick darkness, we walk: ¹⁰We grope, as blind men for a wall, Yea, as men without eyes, do we grope,—We have stumbled at broad noon as though it were twilight, In desolate places like the dead! ¹¹We growl like bears all of us, And, like doves, do we, mournfully coo,—We wait For justice, and there is none, For salvation it is far from us! ¹²For our transgressions have multiplied before thee, And flour sins have witnessed against us,—For, our transgressions, are with us, And as for our iniquities, we acknowledge them: ¹³Transgressing, and denying Yahweh, And turning away from following our God,—Speaking oppression and revolt, Conceiving, and muttering from the heart, words of falsehood. ¹⁴So then there hath been a driving back of justice, And righteousness, afar off, standeth,—For truth, hath stumbled in the broad-way, And, right, cannot enter; ¹⁵And the truth hath been found missing, And he that hath turned away from wrong is liable to be despoiled, And when, Yahweh, looked, Then was it grievous in his eyes that there was no justice: ¹⁶When he saw that there was no mighty man, Then was he astonished that there was none to interpose,—So his own arm brought him salvation, And his own righteousness, the same, upheld him; ¹⁷And he put on Righteousness as a coat of mail, And a helmet of victory upon his head,—And he put on the garments of avenging, for clothing, And wrapped about him as a cloak—jealousy, ¹⁸According to their deeds, accordingly, will he repay, Indignation to his adversaries, Recompense to his enemies,—To the Coastlands—recompense, will he repay: ¹⁹That they may revere—From the West the name of Yahweh, And from the Rising of the Sun his glory, For he will come in like a rushing stream, the breath of Yahweh, driving it on; ²⁰So shall come in for Zion, a Redeemer, Even for such as are turning from transgression in Jacob,—Declareth Yahweh. ²¹And as for me, this, shall be my covenant with them, Saith Yahweh: My spirit that is upon thee, And my words which I have put in thy mouth,—Shall not he taken out of thy mouth—Nor out of the mouth of thy seed. Nor out of the mouth of thy seeds seed, Saith Yahweh, From henceforth even unto times age-abiding.

60Arise—shine, For thy light, hath come,—And, the glory of Yahweh, on thee, hath beamed; ²For lo! darkness, covereth the earth, And, deep gloom the peoples,—But, on thee, beameth Yahweh, And, his glory, on thee is seen. ³So shall nations come to thy light, And kings to the brightness of thy dawning. ⁴Lift up—round about—thine eyes and see, They all, have gathered themselves together—have come to thee,—Thy sons, from afar shall come, And thy daughters, on the side, shall he carried. ⁵Then, shalt thou see and be radiant, And thy heart, shall throb and be enlarged,—For there shall be turned upon thee the fulness of the sea, The riches of the nations, shall come unto thee; ⁶The multitude of camels, shall cover thee The young camels of Midian and Ephah, All they of Sheba, shall come,—Gold and frankincense, shall they bring, And, the praises of Yahweh, shall they joyfully tell: ⁷All the flocks of Kedar, shall be gathered unto thee, The rams of Nebaioth, shall wait upon thee,—They shall come up, with acceptance, on mine altar, And my beautiful house, will I adorn. ⁸Who are these that, As a cloud, do fly? and, As doves to their cotes? ⁹Surely for me, shall, Coastlands, wait, And the ships of Tarshish first, To bring in thy sons, from far, Their silver and their gold with them,—Unto the name of Yahweh, thy God, And unto the Holy One of Israel Because he hath adorned thee. ¹⁰So shall the sons of the foreigner, build thy walls, And their kings, shall wait upon thee,—For in my vexation, I smote thee, But in my favour, have I had compassion upon thee. ¹¹So shall thy gates be open—continually, Neither day nor night, shall they be shut,—That they may bring unto thee the riches of the nations, And their kings, be led. ¹²For, the nation and the kingdom that will not serve thee, shall perish,—Yea the nations, shall be utterly wasted. ¹³The glory of Lebanon, unto thee, shall come, The fir-tree the holm-oak, and the sherbin-cedar, together, To adorn the place of my sanctuary, And the place of my feet, will I make glorious. ¹⁴Then shall come unto thee bending low, The sons of them who had humbled thee, Then shall bow down, unto the soles of thy feet, All they who had despised thee; And they shall call thee—The city of Yahweh, The Zion of the Holy One of Israel. ¹⁵Instead of thy being forsaken and hated so that none used to pass through thee, I will make of thee—An excellency age-abiding, The joy of generation after generation. ¹⁶And thou shalt derive sweet nourishment from the nations, Yea on the bounty of kings, shalt thou be sustained,—So shalt thou know—That, I, Yahweh, am thy Saviour, and That, thy Redeemer, is the Mighty One of Jacob. ¹⁷Instead of bronze, I will bring in, gold, and Instead of iron, I will bring in silver, and Instead of wood, bronze, and Instead of stones, iron,—And I will appoint the oversight of thee to Prosperity, And the setting of thy tasks to Righteousness. ¹⁸Violence, shall no more be heard, in thy land, Wasting nor destruction within thy boundaries,—But thou shalt call Thy walls, Victory, and Thy gates, Praise. ¹⁹Thou shalt no more have the sun, for light by day, neither for brightness, shall the moon, give light unto thee,—But Yahweh shall become thine age-abiding light, And thy God thine adorning: ²⁰No more shall go in, thy sun, Nor thy moon, withdraw itself,—For, Yahweh, will become to thee an age-abiding light, So shall be ended the days of thy mourning. ²¹And, thy people, shall all of them, be righteous, To times age-abiding, shall they possess, the land,—The sprout of mine own planting, The work of mine own hands,—That I may get myself glory. ²²The little one, shall become a thousand, and the small one, a mighty nation: I—Yahweh, in its own season, will hasten it.

61 The spirit of My Lord Yahweh, is upon me,—Because Yahweh Hath anointed me to tell good tidings to the oppressed, lath sent me to bind up the broken-hearted, To proclaim To captives, liberty, To them who are bound, the opening of the prison; ²To proclaim—The year of acceptance of Yahweh, and The day of avenging of our God: To comfort all who are mourning; ³To appoint unto the mourners of Zion—To give unto them A chaplet instead of ashes, The oil of joy instead of mourning, The mantle of praise instead of the spirit of dejection,—So shall they be called The oaks of righteousness, The plantation of Yahweh: That he may get himself glory ⁴Then shall they build the wastes of a bygone age, The desolations of former times, shall they raise up,—And they shall build anew—The cities laid waste, The desolations of generation after generation. ⁵Then shall strangers stay and feed your flocks,—And, the sons of the foreigner, shall be your plowmen and your vinedressers. ⁶But, ye, the priests of Yahweh, shall be called, The attendants of our God, shall ye be named,—The riches of the nations, shall ye eat, And in their glory, shall ye boast yourselves. ⁷Instead of your shame,—double! and Instead of disgrace, they shall shout in triumph over their portion,—Therefore in their own land, shall they possess double, Joy age-abiding, shall be theirs. ⁸For, I, Yahweh, am a lover of justice, Hating plunder, for an ascending-sacrifice, Therefore will I give their reward with faithfulness, And an age-abiding covenant, will I solemnise for them. ⁹Then shall be known among the nations, their seed, And, their offspring, in the midst of the peoples,—A who see them, shall acknowledge them, That, they, are the seed that Yahweh hath blessed. ¹⁰I will, greatly rejoice, in Yahweh, My soul shall exult in my God, For he hath clothed me with the garments of salvation, With a robe of righteousness, hath he enwrapt me,—As a bridegroom, adorneth himself with, a chaplet, And as a bride, bedecketh herself with, her jewels. ¹¹For as the earth, bringeth forth her bud, And as, a garden, causeth her seeds, to shoot forth, So, My Lord, Yahweh, will cause to shoot forth Righteousness and praise before all the nations.

62 For Zion's sake, will I not hold my peace, And for Jerusalem's sake, will I not rest,—Until her righteousness, go forth as brightness, And her salvation, as a torch that is lighted. ²So shall nations see thy righteousness, And all kings, thy glory; And thou shalt be called by a new name, which, the mouth of Yahweh, will name. ³Then shalt thou become—A crown of adorning, in the hand of Yahweh, and A royal diadem in the hand of thy God. ⁴Thou shalt be termed no longer—Forsaken Nor shall thy land be termed any longer A desolation, But, thou, shalt be called Hephzibah, And, thy land, Beulah,—For Yahweh hath found delight in thee, And thy land, shall be married. \fs15 \fs15 ⁵For a young man marrieth, a virgin, Thy sons marry thee! And the bridegroom rejoiceth over the bride—Thy God, rejoiceth over thee. ⁶Upon thy walls O Jerusalem, have I appointed watchmen, All the day and all the night through, let them not hold their peace,—O ye that put Yahweh in mind, Do not take rest to yourselves, ⁷Neither give rest, unto him, Until he establish and until he set forth Jerusalem as a praise in the earth! ⁸Sworn hath Yahweh—By his own right hand, and By his own strong arm,—Surely I will give thy corn no more, as food to thine enemies, Nor shall the sons of the foreigner drink thy new wine, for which thou hast toiled; ⁹But they who have garnered it, shall eat it, and praise Yahweh,—And they who have gathered in its clusters, shall drink it in my holy courts. ¹⁰Pass ye through pass ye through the gates, Prepare ye the way of the people,—Cast ye up, cast ye up the highway, Clear it of stones, Lift ye high a standard unto the peoples. ¹¹Lo! Yahweh, hath sent a message unto the end of the earth: Say ye to the daughter of Zion, Lo! thy Salvation, is coming,—Lo! his reward, is with him, And, his recompense, before him: ¹²So shall men call them—The holy people The redeemed of Yahweh,—And, thou, shalt be called—Sought out, A city not forsaken, 63Who is this coming in from Edom With bright-red garments, from Bozrah? This made splendid in his raiment, Marching on in the greatness of his strength? I, speaking in righteousness, Mighty to save. ²Wherefore is there red, on thy raiment,—And thy garments as of one treading in a wine-trough? ³A winepress, have I trodden, alone, And of the peoples, there was no man with me. So I trod them down in mine anger, And trampled upon them, in mine indignation,—And their life-blood besprinkled my garments, And all mine apparel, I defiled; ⁴For, a day of avenging, was in my heart, And the year of my redeemed, had come. ⁵Therefore looked I around, and there was none to help,—And I was astonished that there was none to uphold,—So, mine own arm brought me salvation, And mine indignation, the same upheld me; ⁶Then trod I down peoples in mine anger, And make them drunk with mine indignation, And brought down to the earth their life-blood. ⁷The lovingkindness of Yahweh, will I recall the praises of Yahweh, According to all that Yahweh hath bestowed upon us,—Even the abundance of goodness to the house of Israel, Which he bestowed upon them—According to his compassions and According to the abundance of his lovingkindness. ⁸Therefore he said—Surely my people, they are, Sons, they will not act falsely! So he became their saviour. ⁹In all their affliction, he, was afflicted And the messenger of his presence saved them, In his love and in his pity, he, redeemed them,—And then lifted them up and carried them all the days of the age-past time. ¹⁰But, they, rebelled, and grieved his Holy Spirit,—And so he turned against them as an enemy, he himself, fought against them. ¹¹Then were recalled the days of the age-past time Moses—his people:—Where is he that led them up out of the sea with the shepherds of his flock? Where is he that put within him his Holy Spirit? ¹²That caused to go at the right hand of Moses his own majestic arm,—Cleaving the waters from before them, To make himself an age-abiding name: ¹³Causing them to go through the roaring deeps,—Like a horse through the wilderness, That they should not stumble? ¹⁴As a beast, into the valley, goeth down, The Spirit of Yahweh, causeth him to rest, So, didst thou lead thy people, To make thyself a majestic name! ¹⁵Look thou down, out of the heavens and see, Out of the high abode of thy holiness and of thy majesty,—Where are thy jealousy, and thy mighty deeds? The resounding of thy yearning affection, and thy compassions towards me, are they restrained? ¹⁶For, thou, art our father, Though, Abraham, knew us not, And Israel could not acknowledge us,—Thou, O Yahweh, art our father, Our Redeemer from the Age-past time, is thy name. ¹⁷Wherefore shouldst thou suffer us to wander O Yahweh, from thy ways? Wherefore shouldst thou let us harden our heart past revering thee? Return thou for the sake of Thy servants, The tribes thou thyself hast inherited. ¹⁸For a short time only, did thy holy people hold possession,—Our adversaries, trod down thy sanctuary! ¹⁹We have become like those Over whom from age-past times, thou hast not ruled, Who have never been called by thy name!

64Would that thou hadst rent the heavens, hadst come down, ²At thy presence, had mountains, quaked: As fire kindleth brushwood, As fire causeth, water, to boil, So if thou wouldst make known thy Name to thine adversaries, At thy presence, nations, would tremble. ³When thou didst fearful things we could not expect, Thou earnest down at thy presence, mountains, quaked. ⁴Although from age-past times It was never heard, It was not perceived by the ear,—Neither did, the eye, ever see—That, a god besides thee, could work for the man who waited for him, ⁵Yet didst thou meet Him who was rejoicing and working righteousness, Even them who in thy ways, remembered thee,—Lo! thou, hast been vexed, And truly we had sinned, Among them, was the prospect of an age to come, That we might be saved. ⁶But we have become as one unclean all of us, And, as a garment polluted, were all our righteous doings,—And so we faded like a leaf all of us, And, our iniquity, as a wind, carried us away; ⁷And there was none To call upon thy Name, To rouse himself to lay firm hold on thee,—For thou hadst hidden thy face from us, And hadst made us despond, by means of our iniquity. ⁸But, now, O Yahweh, our father, thou art,—We are the clay, and, thou, art our potter, Yea the work of thy hand, are we all: ⁹Do not be indignant, O Yahweh so very greatly, Neither perpetually, do thou recall iniquity,—Lo! look around, we pray thee...thy people, are, we all. ¹⁰Thy holy cities, have become a wilderness,—Zion, a wilderness, hath become, Jerusalem, a desolation! ¹¹Our holy and our beautiful house Where our fathers praised thee, Hath become a conflagration,—And, all our delightful places, are in ruins! ¹²In view of these things, wilt thou restrain thyself. O Yahweh? Wilt thou hold thy peace and humble us so very greatly?

asked, I have suffered myself to be found by them who had not sought me,—I have said, Here I am! Here I am! Unto a nation that had not been called by my name, ²I have spread out my hands all the day, Unto a rebellious people,—Who walk In the way that is not good, After their own devices. ³The people who are provoking me to anger to my face continually,—Sacrificing in gardens, and Burning incense upon bricks; ⁴Who tarry among groves, And in the secret places, do lodge, Who eat the flesh of swine, And the broth of refuse things is in their vessels,— ⁵Who say—Draw near by thyself, Do not approach with me, For I am holier than thou! These, are A smoke in my nostrils, A fire, burning all the day. ⁶Lo! it is written before me,—I will not keep silence, But I have recompensed, and will recompense into their bosom: ⁷Your own iniquities, And the, iniquities of your fathers together, Saith Yahweh, Who have burned incense upon the mountains, And upon the hills, have reproached me,—Therefore will I measure their former work into their bosom. ⁸Thus, saith Yahweh—As, new wine, is found, in the cluster, And one saith, Do not destroy it, for a blessing is in it, So, will I do for the sake of ray servants, That I may not destroy the whole nation; ⁹Therefore will I bring forth Out of Jacob, a seed, and Out of Judah, an inheritor of my mountains, That my chosen ones may inherit it, And, my servants, dwell there; ¹⁰Then shall, Sharon, become, a fold for flocks, And the vale of Achor for the lying down of herds,—For my people who have sought me. ¹¹But, ye are they—Who forsake Yahweh Who forget my holy mountain—Who prepare, for Fortune, a table and Who fill for Destiny, mixed wine; ¹²Therefore will I destine you to the sword, And, ye all, to the slaughter, shall bow down. Because I called and ye answered not, I spake, and ye hearkened not,—But did that which was wicked in mine eyes, And o that wherein I delighted not, ye made choice, ¹³Therefore, Thus, saith My Lord, Yahweh,—Lo! my servants, shall eat but, ye, shall be famished, Lo! my servants, shall drink but, ye shall be thirsty,—Lo! my servants, shall rejoice but ye, shall turn pale; ¹⁴Lo! my servants, shall shout in triumph for mirth of heart But, ye, shall make outcry, for pain of heart, And for a breaking of spirit, shall ye howl. ¹⁵So shall ye leave your name for an oath, to my chosen ones,—So then My Lord Yahweh, will slay thee,—And his servants, will he, call by another name: ¹⁶So that he who blesseth himself in the earth, Will bless himself in the God of faithfulness, And he who sweareth in the earth Will swear by the God of faithfulness—Because the former troubles have been forgotten, and Because they are hid from mine eyes. ¹⁷For, behold me! Creating new heavens, and a new earth,—And the former shall not be mentioned, neither shall they come up on the heart, ¹⁸But joy ye and exult, perpetually, in what I am about to create,—For, behold me! Creating Jerusalem an exultation and Her People a joy; ¹⁹Therefore will I Exult in Jerusalem, and Joy in my People,—And there shall be heard in her, no more The sound of weeping, or the sound of a cry: ²⁰There shall be thenceforward, no more, A suckling of a few days, or an elder Who filleth not up his days,—But, a youth a hundred years old, may die, Yea a sinner a hundred years old, shall he accursed, ²¹Then shall they build houses and dwell in them,—And plant vineyards and eat the fruit of them; ²²They shall not build, and another, dwell, They shall not plant, and, another, eat,—For as the days of a tree, shall be the days of ray people, And, the work of their own hands, shall my chosen ones, use to the full: ²³They shall not labour in vain, Nor have children for terror,—For the seed of the blessed ones of Yahweh, shall they be, And their offspring, with them. ²⁴And it shall come to pass—That before they call, I, will answer, And while yet they are speaking, I, will hear. ²⁵The wolf and the lamb, shall feed, in unity, And, the lion, as an ox, shall eat straw; But as for the serpent, dust, shall be his food: They shall not harm—Nor shall they destroy, In all my holy mountain, saith Yahweh.

66Thus, saith Yahweh, The, heavens, are my throne, and The earth, is my footstool: Where then is the house which ye can build me? Or where is my place of rest? ²For, all these things, hath mine own hand made, And all these things came into being,—Declareth Yahweh. But for this one, will I look around, For him who is humbled and smitten in spirit, And so careth anxiously for my word. ³He that slaughtereth an ox, is as one who smiteth a man, He that sacrificeth a lamb, is as one who beheadeth a dog, he that causeth a meal-offering to ascend, offereth it with the blood of swine, He that maketh a memorial of frankincense, is as one who blesseth iniquity: They indeed, have chosen their own ways, And in their own abominations, their soul hath found delight; ⁴I, also, will choose the things that vex them. And the things they dread, will I bring upon them, Because—I called and there was none to answer, I spake, and they hearkened not,—But did that which was wicked in mine eyes, And of that wherein I delighted not, made choice. ⁵Hear the word of Yahweh, ye who care anxiously for his word: Said your brethren Who hated you. Who thrust you out for my Names sake, Yahweh be glorified! Therefore shall he appear to your rejoicing, But, they, shall turn pale. ⁶The sound of a tumult—out of the city, A sound, out of the temple,—The sound of Yahweh rendering recompense to his foes. ⁷Before she travaileth, she hath brought forth,—Before her pains come to her, she hath given birth to a man-child! ⁸Who hath heard the like of this? Who hath seen the like of these things? Can a land, be made to bring forth in one day? Or a nation, be born, at one time? As soon as she travaileth, Zion hath also given birth to her children. ⁹Could, I, bring to the birth and not cause to bring forth? saith Yahweh. Or, I, be causing to bring forth and then prevent? Saith thy God. ¹⁰Rejoice ye with Jerusalem, and exult over her All ye who love her,—Joy with her right joyfully, All ye who used to mourn over her: ¹¹That ye may draw to satisfaction out of the fountain a of her consolations,—That ye may drain out and get exquisite delight from the abundance of her glory. ¹²For, thus, saith Yahweh,—Behold me! extending unto her like a river, prosperity, And as a torrent o'erflowing, the glory of the nations. That ye may draw it forth—Upon the side, shall ye be carried, and Upon the knees, shall ye be caressed: ¹³As one whom, his mother, consoleth, So, will, I, console you, And in Jerusalem, shall ye be consoled. ¹⁴As soon as ye have seen it, your heart, shall be joyful, And your bones, like green herbage, shall thrive,—So shall be known The hand of Yahweh with his servants, But indignation with his foes! ¹⁵For lo! Yahweh, with fire, doth come, And like a storm-wind, are his chariots,—To render with fury, his anger, And his rebuke with flames of fire. ¹⁶For, by fire, will Yahweh enter into judgment, And by his sword, with all flesh,—And many shall be the slain of Yahweh. ¹⁷They who hallow themselves and purify themselves for the gardens, Behind a certain thing in the midst, Who eat the flesh of swine and the abomination, and the mouse, Together, shall be cut off—Declareth Yahweh. ¹⁸Because, I, ...for their works and their devices, doth it come! ...Am about to gather together all nations and tongues,—So shall they come and see my glory. ¹⁹Then will I set among them, a sign, And will send, of them such as have escaped unto the nations—Tarshish Pul and Lud that draw the bow, Tubal and Javan,—The Coastlands that are afar off, Who have not heard my fame Nor seen my glory, And they shall tell my glory throughout the nations. ²⁰Then shall they bring in all your brethren out of all the nations, As a present unto Yahweh, Upon horses and in chariots and in palanquins and on mules and on dromedaries Unto my holy mountain—Jerusalem, saith Yahweh,—Just as the sons of Israel, bring in their present in a pure vessel, into the house, of Yahweh. ²¹And of them also, will I take for priests—for Levites, saith Yahweh, ²²For, as the new heavens and the new earth, which I am about to make, are to remain before me, Declareth Yahweh, So, shall remain your seed and your name. ²³And it shall come to pass, that From one new moon to another, and From one sabbath to another, Shall all flesh, come in, to bow down before me, Saith Yahweh. ²⁴Then shall they go forth and look upon the dead bodies of the men who had been trespassing against me—For, their worm, shall not die, And, their fire, shall not be quenched; So shall they become an abhorrence to all flesh.

Jeremiah

¹The words of Jeremiah son of Hilkiah,—of the priests who were in Anathoth, in the land of Benjamin: ²unto whom came the word of Yahweh, in the days of Josiah son of Amen king of Judah,—in the thirteenth year of his reign; ³it came also in the days of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah, unto the end of the eleventh year of Zedekiah son of Josiah king of Judah,—as far as the carrying away of Jerusalem captive, in the fifth month. ⁴So then, the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying: ⁵Before I formed thee at thy birth, I took knowledge of thee, And before thy nativity, I hallowed thee,—A prophet to the nations, I appointed thee. ⁶Then said I—Ah! My Lord Yahweh! Lo! I know not how to speak,—For a child, am I! ⁷Then said Yahweh unto me, Do not say, A child, am I,—For against whomsoever I send thee, shalt thou go, And whatsoever I command thee, shalt thou speak: ⁸Be not afraid of their faces, For with thee, am I, to deliver thee Declareth Yahweh. ⁹Then Yahweh put forth his hand, and touched my mouth,—and Yahweh said unto me, Lo! I have put my words in thy mouth. ¹⁰See! I have set thee in charge this day, over the nations and over the kingdoms, To uproot and to break down, and to destroy and to tear in pieces,—To build and to plant. ¹¹Moreover the Word of Yahweh came unto me saying, What canst thou see Jeremiah? And I said, A twig of an almond-tree, can I see. ¹²Then said Yahweh unto me—Thou hast rightly seen,—for keeping watch, am I over my word to perform it. ¹³And the word of Yahweh came unto me a second time saying, What canst thou see? And I said, A boiling caldron, Can I see, with, the front thereof lion the North. ¹⁴Then said Yahweh unto me,—Out of the North, shall break forth calamity, against all the inhabitants of the land. ¹⁵For behold me! calling for all the families of the kingdoms of the North, Declareth Yahweh,—and they shall come, and set every one his throne at the opening of the gates of Jerusalem and against all her walls round about, and against all the cities of Judah! ¹⁶Then will I pronounce my judgments against them, concerning all their wickedness,—in that they have forsaken me and have burned incense unto other gods, and have bowed down to the works of their own hands, ¹⁷Thou, therefore, shalt gird thy loins, and arise, and speak unto them, all that, I, command thee,—be not dismayed because of them, lest I dismay thee before their face. ¹⁸I, therefore—lo! I have set thee to-day as a fortified city, and as a pillar of iron and as walls of bronze, over all the land,—against the kings of Judah, against her princes, against her priests and against the people of the land. ¹⁹And they will fight against thee but shall not prevail against thee,—for with thee, am I, Declareth Yahweh, to deliver thee.

¹³For two wicked things, have my people committed,—Me, have they forsaken a fountain of living water, To hew out for themselves cisterns broken cisterns, that cannot hold water. ¹⁴Was Israel a servant? Born in the house, was he? Wherefore hath he become a prey? ¹⁵Against him, have been roaring wild lions, They have uttered their voice,—and have made his land a desolation, His cities, have been burned, so as to have no inhabitant. ¹⁶Even the sons of Noph and Tahpanhes have been crushing the crown of the head. ¹⁷Is not this what thou wast certain to do for thyself,—in that thou didst forsake Yahweh thy God, when he was leading thee by the way? ¹⁸Now, therefore what hast thou to do with the way to Egypt, to drink the waters of Shihor? Or what hast thou to do with the way to Assyria, to drink the waters of the River? \fs15 ¹⁹Let thy wickedness correct thee And thine apostasies, rebuke thee, Know therefore and see That it is a wicked thing and a bitter, that thou shouldest have forsaken Yahweh thy God, And that the dread of me should not have pertained to thee, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh of hosts. ²⁰For, in age-past time, I brake thy yoke, I tare off thy fetters, And thou saidst, I will not transgress,—Nevertheless, on every high hill, and under every green tree, wast thou lying down as an unchaste woman. ²¹Yet, I, planted thee a precious vine, a wholly true seed,—How then didst thou change thyself towards me, into the degenerate plantings of the alien vine? ²²For though thou wash thee with nitre, And take thee much soap, Yet is thine iniquity inscribed before me Declareth My Lord Yahweh. ²³How canst thou say, I have not defiled myself, After the Baalim, have I not gone? See thy way, in the valley, Own what thou hast done,—A nimble young she-camel, crossing her own ways; ²⁴A wild ass, taught of the desert, In the desire of her soul, she snuffeth the wind, In her occasion, who can turn her back? None who seek her, will weary themselves, In her month, they shall find her! ²⁵Withhold thy foot from being unshod, And thy throat from thirst! But thou saidst Hopeless! No! for I love foreigners and after them, will I go. ²⁶As the shame of a thief when he is found, So, hath been put to shame, the house of Israel,—They, their kings their princes, and their priests and their prophets: ²⁷Saying, to a tree, My father, art thou! And to a stone, Thou, didst give us birth, For they have turned unto me the back and not the face,—But in the time of their calamity, they will say, Arise, and save us! ²⁸Where then are thy gods which thou hast made for thyself? Let them arise, if they can save thee in the time of thy calamity,—For according to the number of thy cities, have become thy gods O Judah. ²⁹Wherefore, should ye plead against me, All of you, have transgressed against me Declareth Yahweh. ³⁰In vain, have I smitten your children, Correction, have they not accepted,—Your sword hath devoured your prophets, as a lion that destroyeth. ³¹O generation see, ye, the word of Yahweh, A desert, became I unto Israel? Or a land of thick darkness?

Wherefore, have my people said, We have roved about, We will not come in any more unto thee? ³²Can, a virgin, forget, her ornaments,—A bride, her girdle? Yet, my people, have forgotten me, days without number. ³³How thou dost make winsome thy way, to seek love! Therefore, even unto wicked women, hast thou taught thy ways. ³⁴Even in thy skirts, is there found, The blood of the lives of the helpless innocents,—Not in the act of breaking in, didst thou find them, yet the blood is on all these. ³⁵Although thou saidst, Because I am innocent, surely hath his anger turned back from me,—Behold me! entering into judgment with thee, because thou sayest, I have not sinned! ³⁶How vigorously, thou goest about changing thy way! Even of Egypt, shalt thou be ashamed, just as thou wast ashamed of Assyria: ³⁷Even from this one, shalt thou go forth, with thy hands upon thy head,—For Yahweh hath rejected those in whom thou confidest, and thou shalt not prosper with them.

3He hath said, If a man send away his wife, and she go from him and become another man's, will he return unto her, again? would not that land be, utterly defiled? And, thou, hast been unchaste with many neighbours, and yet thinkest to return unto me! Declareth Yahweh. ²Lift up thine eyes unto the bare heights and see—where thou hast not been unchastely embraced! beside the ways, hast thou sat to them, like the Arabian in the desert,—and hast defiled the land with thine unchastities, and with thy wickedness. ³Therefore have been withholden the showers, And, the latter rain, hath not come,—Yet the forehead of an unchaste woman, hast thou, Thou hast refused to be ashamed. ⁴Hast thou not from this time, cried unto me, My father! the friend of my youth, art, thou? ⁵Will he maintain his anger to times age-abiding? Will he keep it perpetually? Lo! thou hast spoken thus but hast done wicked things and had thy way! ⁶And Yahweh said unto me, in the days of Josiah the king, Hast thou seen what apostate Israel, did? She used to go upon every high mountain and beneath every green tree, and commit unchastity there. ⁷And I said, after she had been doing all these things, Unto me, shall thou return? and she returned not,—and her treacherous sister Judah saw it! ⁸Though she saw that for all this, apostate Israel having committed adultery, I had sent her away, and had given a scroll of divorcement unto her, yet her treacherous sister Judah feared not, but, she also, went and committed unchastity. ⁹Yea though it had come to pass that through the levity of her unchastity, she had defiled the land,—and committed adultery with Stone and with Tree, ¹⁰yet, in spite of all this, her treacherous sister Judah returned not unto me, with all her heart,—but, falsely, Declareth Yahweh. ¹¹Then said Yahweh unto me,—Apostate Israel, hath justified herself,—more than treacherous Judah. ¹²Go, and proclaim these words, towards the North and say—Return! thou apostate—Israel, Urgeth Yahweh,

I will not lower my face against you,—for full of lovingkindness, I am, Declareth Yahweh, I will not maintain mine anger unto times age-abiding. ¹³Only, acknowledge thine iniquity, that against Yahweh thy God, hast thou transgressed and hast gone hither and thither unto foreigners under every green tree, and unto my voice, ye have not hearkened Declareth Yahweh. ¹⁴Return, ye apostate sons, Urgeth Yahweh, for, I, am become your husband,—therefore will I take you one of a city, and two of a family, and will bring you to Zion; ¹⁵and will give you shepherds according to mine own heart,—who will feed you with knowledge and discretion. ¹⁶And it shall come to pass when ye shall be multiplied and become fruitful in the land, in those days, Declareth Yahweh, They shall say no more, The ark of the covenant of Yahweh, Neither shall it come up on the heart, Neither shall they remember it, Neither shall they miss it, Neither shall it be made any more. ¹⁷At that time, shall they call Jerusalem, The throne of Yahweh, and there shall be gathered unto her all the nations—to the Name of Yahweh, to Jerusalem; and they shall walk no more after the stubbornness of their own wicked heart. ¹⁸In those days, shall the house of Judah go unto the house of Israel,—that they may enter together out of the land of the North, upon the land which I gave as an inheritance unto your fathers. ¹⁹Though, I myself, had said,—How can I put thee among the sons, And give thee a land to be coveted, An inheritance of beauty, of the hosts of nations? Yet I said, My father, shalt thou call me, And away from me, shalt thou not turn. ²⁰But indeed as a wife goeth treacherously from her husband, so, have ye acted treacherously with me, O house of Israel, Declareth Yahweh. ²¹A voice on the bare heights, is heard, The weeping of the supplications of the sons of Israel,—Because they have perverted their way, Have forgotten Yahweh their God. ²²Return ye apostate sons, I will heal your apostasies! Behold us! we have come unto thee, For thou, art Yahweh our God. ²³Surely, to falsehood, pertain the hills The noisy throng on the mountains,—Surely, in Yahweh our God, is the salvation of Israel! ²⁴But, the Shameful thing, hath devoured the labour of our fathers from our youth: Their flocks, and their herds, their sons and their daughters. ²⁵We must lie down in our shame And our reproach, be our covering, For, against Yahweh our God, have we sinned, We and our fathers, from our youth even until this day,—Neither have we hearkened unto the voice of Yahweh our God.

⁴If thou wilt return, O Israel, Declareth Yahweh, Unto me, mayst thou return,—And if thou wilt remove thine abominations from before me, Then shalt thou not become a wanderer. ²If thou wilt swear, By the life of Yahweh! in faithfulness in justice and in righteousness, Then shall the nations bless themselves in him, And, in him, shall they glory. ³For thus saith Yahweh Unto the men of Judah and unto Jerusalem, Till ye the untilled ground,—And do not sow among thorns. ⁴Circumcise yourselves unto Yahweh So shall ye remove the impurity of your heart, ye men of Judah and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem,—Lest mine indignation, go forth as fire, and burn and there be none to quench it, Because of the wickedness of your doings. ⁵Declare ye in Judah And in Jerusalem, let it be heard, And say, Blow ye a horn in the land,—Cry, with frill voice And say, Gather yourselves together, And let us enter the defenced cities. ⁶Lift up an ensign—Zionward, Bring into safety, do not tarry,—For, calamity, am, I, bringing in from the North, Even, a great destruction: ⁷There hath come up a lion out of his thicket, Yea, a destroyer of nations—hath set forward, hath come forth out of his place,—To make thy land a desolation, Thy cities, shall fall in ruins, so as to have no inhabitant. ⁸On this account, gird you with sackcloth, lament and howl,—Because the glow of the anger of Yahweh hath not turned from us. ⁹And it shall come to pass, in that day, Declareth Yahweh, That the courage of the king shall fail, And the courage of the princes,—And the priests shall be astonished, And, the prophets, shall be amazed. ¹⁰Then said I,—Ah! My Lord Yahweh! Surely, thou hast suffered this people and Jerusalem to be beguiled, saying, Peace, shall ye have,—whereas the sword shall reach unto the soul. ¹¹At that time, shall it be said of this people and of Jerusalem,—The sharp wind of the bare heights in the desert, cometh towards the daughter of my people,—not to winnow nor to cleanse. ¹²A wind too strong for these, cometh in for me. Now, will, I also, pronounce sentences upon them: ¹³Lo! like clouds, shall he come up, Even as a storm-wind, his chariots, Swifter than eagles, his horses,—Woe to us for we are laid waste! ¹⁴Wash from wickedness thy heart, O Jerusalem, That thou mayest be saved,—How long, shall lodge within thee thy wicked devices? ¹⁵For a voice, declareth from Dan,—And publisheth trouble from the hill country of Ephraim. ¹⁶Put ye in mind the nations Lo! publish ye against Jerusalem, Blockaders! are coming in from a land afar off,—And have uttered against the cities of Judah their voice: ¹⁷As the keepers of a field, have they come against her round about,—For against me, hath she rebelled, Declareth Yahweh. ¹⁸Thine own way And thine own doings, Have done these things unto thee,—This thy wickedness, Surely it is bitter, Surely it hath reached unto thy heart. ¹⁹My bowels! My bowels! I am pained in the walls of my heart My heart beateth aloud to me I cannot be still! For the sound of a horn, hast thou heard O my soul, The loud shout of war! ²⁰Breach upon breach, they cry, For ruined, is all the land,—Suddenly, are ruined my tents, In a moment, my curtains! ²¹How long shall I keep on seeing a standard,—continue to hear the sound of a horn? ²²Surely, perverse, is my people Me, have they not known, Foolish sons, they are, Yea without understanding, they are: Wise, they are to commit wickedness, But how to do well, they know not! ²³I beheld, The earth; and lo! it was waste and wild,—The heavens also and their light was not:

²⁴I beheld, The mountains, and lo! they were trembling,—
 And all the hills, had been violently moved: ²⁵I beheld,
 And lo! there was no human being,—Yea, all the birds of the heavens! had fled: ²⁶I beheld, And lo! the garden-land, was a desert,—And, all its cities, had been broken down, Because of Yahweh, Because of the glow of his anger!
²⁷For, thus, saith Yahweh, A desolation, shall all the land become—Nevertheless a full end, will I not make. ²⁸For this cause, shall the land mourn, and the heavens above be overcast: Because I have spoken have purposed, and have not repented nor will I turn back therefrom. ²⁹At the noise of horseman and archer, The whole city is in flight, They have entered dark thickets, Yea unto the crags, have they gone up,—Every city, is forsaken, There remaineth not in them a man! ³⁰And when, thou, art laid waste, what wilt thou do? Though thou clothe thyself with crimson Though thou deck thyself with ornaments of gold Though thou enlarge with antimony thine eyes, In vain, shalt thou make thyself fair,—Paramours have rejected thee, Thy life, will they seek! ³¹For a voice as of a woman in pangs, have I heard Anguish as of her that is bearing her firstborn. The voice of the daughter of Zion! She gaspeth for breath, She spreadeth forth her palms,—Surely woe to me! For my soul fainteth before murderers.

5Run ye to and fro through the streets of Jerusalem,
 And see I pray you and know and seek out in the broad places thereof, Whether ye can find, a man, Whether there is one Doing justice Demanding fidelity,—That I may pardon her. ²Even though they say By the life of Yahweh, Yet in fact falsely, do they swear. ³O Yahweh! thine own eyes, are they not directed to fidelity? Thou hast smitten them
 Yet have they not grieved, Thou hast consumed them—
 They have refused to receive correction,—They have made their faces bolder than a cliff, They have refused to return. ⁴And, I, said,—Only, poor people, are they,—They act foolishly, For they know not the way of Yahweh, the justice of their God! ⁵I will betake me unto the great men, and will speak, with them! For, they, know the way of Yahweh, the justice of their God! Yea but, they, with one accord have broken the yoke, torn off the bands. ⁶For this cause, hath the lion out of the forest smitten them, The wolf of the waste plains, preyeth upon them, The leopard, is keeping watch over their cities, Every one that goeth out from thence, is torn in pieces,—For they have multiplied their transgressions, Numerous are their apostasies.
⁷How, for this, can I pardon thee? Thine own sons, have forsaken me, And have sworn by No-gods,—When I had fed them to the full, Then committed they adultery, And the house of the unchaste woman, they used to throng: ⁸Lusty, well-fed horses, had they become, Every man unto his neighbours wife, would neigh! ⁹For these things, shall I not punish? Demandeth Yahweh: Yea on a nation such as this, must not my soul avenge herself? ¹⁰Scale ye her walls and destroy, But a full end, do not make,—Remove her tendrils, For not to Yahweh, do, they, belong! ¹¹For very treacherously, have the house of Israel and the house of Judah dealt with me, Declareth Yahweh. ¹²They have acted deceptively against Yahweh, And have said, Not He!

 Neither shall there come upon us, calamity, Nor sword nor famine, shall we see; ¹³But the prophets, shall prove to be wind, And there is no one speaking in them,—Thus, shall it be done to themselves! ¹⁴Therefore, Thus, saith Yahweh, God of hosts, Because ye have spoken this word,—Behold me! making my words in thy mouth to be fire, And, this people,—wood, So shall it devour them. ¹⁵Behold me!
 bringing upon you a nation from afar, O house of Israel, Declareth Yahweh,—A nation invincible, it is, A nation from age-past times, hath it been, A nation whose tongue thou shalt not know, Neither shalt thou understand what it speaketh: ¹⁶Its quiver, is like an open sepulchre,—They all, are heroes: ¹⁷Then shall it eat thy harvest and thy bread which thy sons and thy daughters should eat,—It shall eat thy flock and thy herd, It shall eat thy vine and thy fig-tree,—It shall destroy thy defenced cities wherein thou, art trusting, with the sword. ¹⁸Yet, even in those days, Declareth Yahweh, Will I not make of you, a full end. ¹⁹And it shall come to pass, when ye shall say, For what cause hath Yahweh our God done to us all these things? Then shalt thou say unto them,—As ye forsook me, and served the gods of the foreigner in your own land, So, shall ye serve aliens in a land not your own. ²⁰Tell ye this, throughout the house of Jacob,—And let it be heard throughout Judah saying: ²¹Hear this, I pray you ye people—foolish and without heart,—Eyes, have they, and see not, Ears, have they, and hear not! ²²Even for me, will ye have no reverence? Enquireth Yahweh, And because of me, will ye not be pained? In that though I placed the sand as a bound to the sea, A decree age-abiding, and it should not pass beyond it,—When they would toss themselves Then should they not prevail, When the waves thereof would roar Then should they not pass beyond it, ²³Yet, this people hath an obstinate and rebellious heart,—They have turned aside, and gone their way; ²⁴Neither have they said in their heart,—Let us we pray you, revere Yahweh our God, Who giveth rain, even the early and the latter, in its season,—The appointed weeks of harvest, he reserveth for us. ²⁵Your iniquities, have thrust away these things, Yea, your sins, have withholden that which is good from you. ²⁶For there have been found among my people lawless men,—One lieth in wait, as with the stooping of fowlers, They have set a trap, they capture men: ²⁷As, a cage, is full of birds, So, are, their houses, full of unrighteous gain,—For this cause, have they become great and waxen rich: ²⁸They have waxed fat, they shine Yea they have overpassed the records of wickedness. The right, have they not determined, the right of the fatherless

that they might prosper,—Yea justice to the helpless, have they not decreed. ²⁹Upon these things, shall I not bring punishment? Demandeth Yahweh. Or, on a nation such as this, shall not my soul avenge herself? ³⁰An astounding and horrible thing, hath been brought to pass in the land: ³¹The prophets, have prophesied, falsely, And the priests tread down by their means, And, my people, love it, so,—What then can ye do as to her latter end?

6Take your goods into safety, ye sons of Benjamin out of the midst of Jerusalem, And in Tekoa, blow ye a horn, And on Beth-haccherem, raise a fire-signal,—For calamity, hath looked out from the North, Even a great destruction. ²To a comely and delicate woman, have I likened the daughter of Zion: ³Against her, shall come shepherds with their flocks; They have pitched against her their tents, round about, They tend their flocks every one near at hand. ⁴Hallow ye against her a war, Arise! and let us go up in broad noon. Woe to us, for the day, hath turned, for the shadows of evening, stretch along. ⁵Arise! and let us go up in the night, And let us destroy her palaces. ⁶For, Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, Cut ye down timber, And cast up, against Jerusalem a mound,—That, is the city to be punished! There is, nothing, but oppression in her midst; ⁷Like the casting forth by a wall of its waters, So, hath she cast forth her wickedness,—Violence and destruction, are heard in her, Before my face, continually, are suffering and smiting. ⁸Receive thou correction O Jerusalem, Lest my soul be torn from thee,—Lest I make thee A desolation, A land not habitable. ⁹Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, They shall thoroughly glean as a vine the remnant of Israel—Turn back thy hand, as a grape gatherer over the tendrils. ¹⁰Unto whom, can I speak—and bear witness, that they may hear? Lo! uncircumcised, is their ear, that they cannot attend,—Lo! the word of Yahweh, hath become to them a reproach, they take no delight therein. ¹¹So then with the indignation of Yahweh, am I full I am too weary to hold it in, am constrained to pour it out, upon the boy in the street, and upon the circle of young men, together,—For, even husband with wife, will be captured, The eider with him who is full of days; ¹²And their houses shall be turned over to others, Fields and wives together,—For I will stretch out my hand against the inhabitants of the land, Declareth Yahweh. ¹³For, from the least of them, even unto the greatest of them, Every one, graspeth with greed,—And from the prophet even unto the priest, Every one, dealeth, falsely; ¹⁴And so they have healed the grievous wound of my people, slightly, Saying, Peace, peace, when there was no peace, ¹⁵Were they led to turn pale because an abominable thing, they had done! Nay! they did not, at all turn pale, Nay! they did not so much as know how, to exhibit shame, Therefore, shall they fall among them who are falling, In the time when I punish them, shall they be overthrown, Saith Yahweh. ¹⁶Thus saith Yahweh—Stand ye at the ways—and see, And ask for the paths of age-past times, Where is the good way? And walk therein, And ye shall find rest to your souls. But they said, We will not walk therein! ¹⁷Therefore will I raise up over you, watchmen, Give ye heed to the sound of a horn,—But they said, We will not give heed! ¹⁸Therefore, hear O ye nations,—And take knowledge O assembly, Of that which befalleth them: ¹⁹Hear thou—O earth, Lo! I, am bringing in Calamity against this people the fruit of their own devices,—For unto my words, have they not given heed, And as for my law, they have rejected it. ²⁰What then is it to me that—Frankincense from Shebah come in, or Sweet cane from a land afar off? Your own ascending-offerings, are not acceptable, Nor are, your sacrifices, pleasing to me. ²¹Wherefore, Thus, saith Yahweh, Behold me! laying before this people, stumblingblocks,—And fathers and sons together, shall stumble against them, The neighbour and his friend, shall perish. ²²Thus, saith Yahweh, Lo! a people coming in from the land of the North,—Yea a great nation, shall be stirred up out of the remote parts of the earth: ²³Bow and javelin, shall they grasp, Cruel, is he! So they will not have compassion, Their voice, like the sea, will roar, And on horses, will they ride,—Arrayed each one, like a man for battle, Against thee, O daughter of Zion! ²⁴We have heard the report thereof, Relaxed are our hands,—Anguish, hath taken hold on us, Pangs, as on her that is giving birth. ²⁵Do not go out into the field, And in the road, do not walk,—Because a sword, hath the foe,—Terror round about! ²⁶O daughter of my people Gird thee with sackcloth and roll thyself in ashes,—The mourning for an only son, make thou for thyself, Most bitter lamentation! For suddenly, shall the destroyer come upon us. ²⁷An assayer, have I set thee amongst my people, of gold-ore,—That thou mayest note and try their way: ²⁸They all, are rebels of rebels, Slander-walkers They are bronze and iron! As for them all, corrupters, they are! ²⁹Scorched are the bellows, By fire, is lead wont to be, consumed,—In vain, hath he gone on refining, For the wicked, have not been drawn out: ³⁰Rejected silver, are they called, For, Yahweh, hath rejected them.

7The word that came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh saying:—²Stand thou in the gate of the house of Yahweh, and thou shalt proclaim there this word,—and shalt say—Hear ye the word of Yahweh all Judah ye who are entering in at these gates, to bow down unto Yahweh: ³Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts God of Israel, Amend your ways, and your doings,—That I may cause you to dwell in this place. ⁴Do not, on your part trust in false words, saying,—The temple of Yahweh The temple of Yahweh, The temple of Yahweh they are! ⁵But, if ye shall thoroughly amend, your ways, and your doings,—Shall thoroughly execute justice between a man and his neighbour; ⁶The sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow, shall not oppress, And innocent blood, shall not shed in this place,—And after other gods, shall not walk to your own hurt, ⁷Then will I cause you to dwell In this place, In the land which I gave to your fathers,—From one age even unto another, ⁸Lo! ye, on your part, are trusting in false words,—To no profit! ⁹Are ye to steal, commit murder and commit adultery, and swear falsely, and burn incense unto Baal,—and walk after other gods whom ye have not known; ¹⁰And will ye then come in and stand before me in this house whereon my Name hath been called, and say,—We have set ourselves free,—for the purpose of committing all these abominations? ¹¹A den of robbers, hath this house on which my Name hath been called become in your own eyes? I, also,—lo! I have seen it Declareth Yahweh. ¹²For go I pray you, unto my place which was in Shiloh, Where I made my Name to dwell, at first,—And see what I did to it, because of the wickedness of my people Israel! ¹³Now, therefore—Because ye have done all these deeds Declareth Yahweh,—And though I spake unto you betimes speaking, Yet ye hearkened not, And though I cried unto you Yet ye answered not, ¹⁴Therefore will I do to the house Whereon my Name hath been called Wherein, ye, are trusting, Even to the place which I gave to you and to your fathers,—Just as I did unto Shiloh; ¹⁵And will cast you out from before me,—Just as I have cast out All your brethren, All the seed of Ephraim. ¹⁶Thou, therefore—Do not pray for this people Neither lift up for them cry or prayer Neither intercede with me,—For I am not going to heat thee. ¹⁷Dost thou not see what, they, are doing In the cities of Judah,—and In the streets of Jerusalem? ¹⁸The children, gather wood, and The fathers, kindle the fire, and The women, knead dough,—To make sacrificial cakes to the queen of the heavens, And to pour out drink-offerings to other gods, Provoking me to anger! ¹⁹Is it me, they are provoking? Enquireth Yahweh,—Is it not themselves,—unto the shame of their own faces? ²⁰Wherefore, Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh—Lo! mine anger and mine indignation, are about to be poured out upon this place, On man and on beast, and On the tree of the field and On the fruit of the ground,—And it shall burn and shall not be quenched. ²¹Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts God of Israel,—Your ascending-offerings, add ye unto your peace-offerings and eat ye flesh. ²²For I bade not your fathers Neither commanded I them, In the day I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt,—Concerning the matter of ascending-offering and peace-offering; ²³But, this thing, I commanded them—saying, Harken ye unto my voice, So will I become unto you—a God, And, ye, shall become unto me—a people,—Ye shall therefore walk in all the way that I may command you, To the end it may be well with you; ²⁴Yet they hearkened not Neither inclined their ear, But walked, In the counsels—In the stubbornness of their own wicked heart; And went backward, and not forward. ²⁵Ever since the day that your fathers came forth out of the land of Egypt, until this day, Have

I sent unto you all my servants the prophets, Daily, betimes, sending them; ²⁶Yet they hearkened not unto me, Neither inclined their ear,—But stiffened their neck, They did more wickedly than their fathers. ²⁷Therefore shalt thou speak unto them all these words, Though they do not hearken unto thee,—And thou shalt cry aloud unto them Though they do not answer thee;—²⁸But thou shalt say unto them,—This, is the nation that hearkened not unto the voice of Yahweh its God, Neither accepted they correction,—Perished is fidelity, And is cut off out of their mouth. ²⁹Cut thou off thy crown of hair O Jerusalem, and cast it away, And lift thou up on the bare heights, a dirge,—For Yahweh hath rejected and cast out the generation with which he was wroth. ³⁰For the sons of Judah, have done, that which was wicked in mine eyes, Declareth Yahweh,—They have set their abominations in the house whereon my Name hath been called to defile it; ³¹And they have built the high places of Topheth, which is in the valley of the son of Hinnom, To burn up their sons and their daughters in the fire,—Which I commanded not, Neither came it up on my heart, ³²Therefore, lo! days are coming, Declareth Yahweh, When it shall not be called any more—The Topheth, nor The valley of Ben-hinnom, but The valley of Slaughter,—And they shall bury in Topheth, for want of place; ³³And the dead bodies of this people shall become food, For the bird of the heavens, and For the beast of the earth,—And there shall be none to drive them away. ³⁴So will I cause to cease, From the cities of Judah, and, From the streets of Jerusalem, The voice of joy, and the voice of gladness, The voice of the bridegroom, and The voice of the bride,—For, a desolation, shall the land become.

⁸At that time, Declareth Yahweh, Shall they bring forth, The bones of the kings of Judah, and The bones of his princes, and The bones of the priests, and The bones of the prophets, and The bones of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, Out of their graves, ²And shall spread them out—To the sun, and To the moon, and To all the host of the heavens, Whom they have loved, And whom they have served, And after whom they have walked, And whom they have sought, And to whom they have bowed themselves down,—They shall not be gathered, Neither shall they be buried, As heaps of dung on the face of the ground, shall they be. ³Then shall, death, be chosen rather than life, by all the remnant of them that remain, of this wicked family,—in all the places, whither I have driven them, Declareth Yahweh of hosts. ⁴Therefore shalt thou say unto them—Thus, saith Yahweh, Will men fall and not arise? Will one turn away, and not come back? ⁵Wherefore hath this people of Jerusalem apostatized with an enduring apostacy,—Taken fast hold of deceit, Refused to come back? ⁶I hearkened and heard—Not aright, did they speak,—Not a man, repented him of his wickedness, saying, What have I done!

They have every one, turned to their course again, Like a horse sweeping on through the battle. ⁷Even the stork in the heavens knoweth her appointed times, And the turtle and the swallow and the crane, observe the season for coming; But my people know not the just sentence of Yahweh. ⁸How can ye say, Wise, are, we, And the law of Yahweh, is with us? But indeed lo! falsely, hath dealt the false pen of the scribes! ⁹Ashamed are the wise, dismayed and captured! Lo! the word of Yahweh, have they rejected, And, what wisdom, have, they? ¹⁰Therefore, will I give—Their wives to others, Their fields to such as shall take possession of them, For from the least, even unto the greatest, Every one, is, wholly given to extortion: From the prophet even unto the priest, Every one, dealeth, falsely. ¹¹And so they have healed the grievous wound of the daughter of my people, slightly,—Saying, Peace! peace! when there was no peace! ¹²Were they led to turn pale because an abominable thing, they had done? Nay! they did not, at all turn pale Nay! they did not so much as know how to exhibit shame! Therefore, shall they fall among them who are falling, In the time when they are punished, shall they be overthrown, Saith Yahweh: ¹³I will, surely remove, them, declareth Yahweh: There shall be no grapes on the vine Nor figs on the fig-tree, Even the leaf, hath faded, Though I have given them these things, they shall pass away from them. ¹⁴Why are, well sitting still? Gather yourselves together and let us enter the defenced cities And let us be silent there,—For, Yahweh our God, hath put us to silence And made us drink poisoned water, Because we have sinned against Yahweh. ¹⁵A waiting For prosperity, but no welfare,—For a time of healing, but lo! terror. ¹⁶From Dan, was heard the snorting of his horses At the sound of the neighing of his chargers, the whole land trembled,—Yea they came in and did sit up The land and the fulness thereof, The city, and them who were dwelling therein. ¹⁷For behold me! sending among you serpents—vipers which there is no charming,—And they shall fatally bite you declareth Yahweh. ¹⁸When I would have cheered myself against sorrow, Against me, mine own heart sickened:— ¹⁹Lo! the voice of the cry for help of the daughter of my people from a land far away, Is, Yahweh, not in Zion? Is, her King, not within her? Why, have they provoked me with their carved images, with their foreign vanities? ²⁰The harvest is passed, The fruit-gathering, is ended; And we are not saved! ²¹For the grievous injury of the daughter of my people, I am grievously injured,—I am enshrouded in gloom, Horror, hath seized me:— ²²Balsam, is there none, in Gilead? Is there no physician, there? Why hath not appeared the healing of the daughter of my people?

⁹Oh that my head were waters, And mine eyes a fountain of tears,—That I might weep day and night, For the slain of the daughter of my people! ²⁰Oh that I had in the wilderness, a wayfarers lodge, That I might leave my people, and go from them,—For they all, are Adulterers, An assemblage of traitors; ³Who have prepared e their tongue as their bow of falsehood, And, not by faithfulness, have they become mighty in the land,—For from wickedness unto wickedness, have they gone forth, But me, have they not known, Declareth Yahweh. ⁴Every one, of his neighbour, beware ye, And in no brother, may ye trust,—For, every brother, supplanteth! And every neighbour, as a tale-bearer, goeth about; ⁵Yea, every one, of his neighbour, maketh a dupe, And, truth, they do not speak,—They have taught their tongue to speak falsehood, In acting perversely, they have wearied themselves. ⁶Thy dwelling, is in the midst of deceit,—Through deceit, have they rejected the knowledge of, me, Declareth Yahweh. ⁷Therefore, thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, Behold me! melting them, so will I try them,—For how else should I do because of the wickedness of the daughter of my people? ⁸A pointed arrow, is their tongue Deceit, hath it spoken,—With his mouth peace unto his neighbour, doth one speak, But within himself, he layeth his ambush. ⁹For these things, shall I not bring punishment on them? Demandeth Yahweh,—On a nation such as this, must not my soul avenge herself! ¹⁰Over the mountains, will I take up a weeping and wailing, And over the oases of the desert, a dirge, For they have been burned, so that no man passeth through, Neither have men heard the lowing of cattle,—Both the bird of the heavens and the beast have fled, have gone their way: ¹¹Thus will I give up Jerusalem To heaps, A habitation for jackals,—And the cities of Judah, will I give up to desolation, without inhabitant. ¹²Who, is the man that is wise That he may discern this? And, unto whom, hath the mouth of Yahweh spoken, That he may declare it? For what cause Hath the land perished, Hath it been burned as a wilderness that no man passeth through? ¹³Then said Yahweh,—Because they have forsaken my law, which I set before them,—And have not hearkened to my voice neither walked therein; ¹⁴But have gone their way, After the stubbornness of their own heart,—And after the Baals which their fathers taught them, ¹⁵Therefore, Thus saith Yahweh of hosts, The God of Israel, Behold me! Feeding them, even this people, with wormwood,—And I will cause them to drink, poisoned water; ¹⁶And will scatter them among the nations, which neither they nor their fathers, have known,—And will send after them the sword, until I have consumed them. ¹⁷Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, Consider ye diligently and call for the wailing women that they may come,—And unto the wise women, send ye, that they may come; ¹⁸Yea let them make haste, and lift up over us a wailing,—That our eyes, may run down, with tears, And, our eyelashes, stream down with water;— ¹⁹Yea, a voice of wailing, hath been heard out of Zion How are we ruined! We have turned very pale For we have left the land, For they have cast down our habitations. ²⁰For hear

O ye women the word of Yahweh, And let your ear take in the word of his mouth,—And teach your daughters a wail, Yea leach woman—her neighbour, a dirge:—²¹That death Hath come up through our windows, Hath entered our palaces,—Cutting off The boy from the street, The young men from the broadways. ²²Speak thou, Thus, declareth Yahweh, So shall fall the dead bodies of men, Like dung heaps on the face of the field,—And like swaths after the harvestman, With none to gather. ²³Thus, saith Yahweh Let not, the wise man, glory in his wisdom, Neither let, the mighty man, glory, in his might,—Let not, the rich man, glory in his riches; ²⁴But, in this, let the glorying one glory—In having intelligence and in knowing me, That, I, am Yahweh, Executing lovingkindness, justice, and righteousness in the earth,—That in these things, I delight Declareth Yahweh. ²⁵Lo! days are coming, Declareth Yahweh,—When I will bring punishment upon every one circumcised, With him that is uncircumcised: ²⁶Upon Egypt and upon Judah, And upon Edom, and upon the sons of Ammon, And upon Moab, And upon all the clipped beards, The dwellers in the desert,—For, all the nations, are uncircumcised, And, all the house of Israel, are uncircumcised in heart.

10Hear ye the word which Yahweh hath spoken unto you, O house of Israel:—²Thus, saith Yahweh—Unto the way of the nations, become not ye accustomed, Nor at the signs of the heavens, be ye dismayed,—Because the nations are dismayed at them. ³For as for the prescribed customs of the peoples, vanity, they are,—For a tree out of the forest, one cutteth down, Work for the hands of a skilled workman with the axe: ⁴With silver and with gold, he decketh it,—With nails and with hammers, they fasten them, that it may not totter. ⁵Mere palm-trunks turned, they are and cannot speak, They must needs be, carried, for they cannot take a step, Be not afraid of them, for they cannot do harm, And even to do good, is not in their power. ⁶None, there is, like unto thee, O Yahweh,—Great, art, thou, And, great, is thy Name, for might. ⁷Who would not revere thee, O King of nations? For, thee, doth it beseem; Forasmuch as among all the wise men of the nations And throughout all their royal estate, None, there is like unto thee. ⁸But at once, do they become brutish and stupid,—An example of utmost vanity, is, a tree! ⁹Silver spread into plates, from Tarshish is brought, And gold, from Uphaz, Work for the craftsman and for the hands of the smith,—Blue and purple, is their clothing, Work for the skilled, are they all. ¹⁰But, Yahweh, is God in truth, He, is a God that, liveth, And a King of times age-abiding,—At his anger, quaketh the earth, And nations cannot endure his wrath. ¹¹Thus, shall ye say unto them, The gods that made not the heavens, And the earth, Shall perish out of the earth, And from under these heavens! ¹²He that made the earth by his power, That established the world by his wisdom,—

And by his understanding stretched out the heavens, ¹³At the voice that he uttered, there was a tumult of waters in the heavens, And he caused vapours to ascend from the ends of the earth,—The lightnings for rain, he made, And brought forth wind out of his treasuries. ¹⁴Every son of earth hath become too brutish to discern, Every goldsmith, hath been put to shame by a graven image,—For a falsehood, is his molten image, Seeing there is no breath in them. ¹⁵Vanity, they are, the handiwork of mockeries,—In the time of their visitation, shall they perish. ¹⁶Not like these, is the portion of Jacob, For the fashioner of all things, is, he, And, Israel, is his inherited sceptre,—Yahweh of hosts, is his name. ¹⁷Fold up, from the ground thy travelling carpet,—O inhabitress of the fortress; ¹⁸For, thus, saith Yahweh, Behold me! slinging out the inhabitants of the land at this throw,—And I will distress them that they may discover it. ¹⁹Woe to me! for my grievous injury, Severe, is my wound,—But, I, said, Verily, this, is an affliction and I must bear it: ²⁰My tent, is laid waste, And all my tent-cords, are broken,—My children, are gone forth from me and they, are not. There is none, To stretch out any more my tent, Or to set up my curtains. ²¹For the shepherds, have become brutish, And Yahweh, have they not sought,—For this cause, have they not prospered, And, all their flock, is scattered. ²²The noise of a rumour! lo it hath come! Even a great commotion out of the land of the North,—To make the cities of Judah, A desolation, A den of jackals. ²³I know O Yahweh, That not to a son of earth, pertaineth his own path,—Not, to the man who walketh, also to direct his own steps. ²⁴Chastise me, O Yahweh But yet in measure,—Not in thine anger, lest thou make me few. ²⁵Pour out thy wrath—Upon the nations that know thee not, and Upon the families that, upon thy Name, have not called,—For they have devoured Jacob Yea they have devoured him and consumed him, And, his habitation, have they made desolate.

11The word that came unto Jeremiah from Yahweh saying: ²Hear ye the words of this covenant,—and speak ye unto the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, ³and say thou unto them, Thus, saith Yahweh God of Israel,—Accursed, is the man who will not hear the words of this covenant; ⁴which I commanded your fathers—in the day when I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt out of the smelting-pot of iron—saying, Hearken unto my voice and do them, According to all that I may command you,—So shall ye become my people, And, I, will become, your God: ⁵That the oath may be established which I sware to your fathers, To give them a land flowing with milk and honey, as at this day. Then answered I and said, Amen, O Yahweh! ⁶And Yahweh said unto me,—Proclaim thou all, these words, throughout the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem saying,—Hear ye the words of this covenant, and do them, ⁷For I, solemnly took your fathers to witness, in the day that I brought them up out of the land of Egypt—even until this day, betimes, taking them to witness saying,—Hearken ye unto my voice. ⁸Howbeit they hearkened not neither inclined their ear, but walked severally in the stubbornness of their wicked heart,—so then I brought upon them all the words of this covenant which I commanded them to do, but they did them not. ⁹Yahweh therefore said unto me,—There is found a conspiracy, among the men of Judah, and among the inhabitants of Jerusalem: ¹⁰They have turned back unto the iniquities of their first fathers who refused to hear my words, yea, they themselves, have walked after other gods to serve them,—the house of Israel and the house of Judah have broken my covenant which I solemnised with their fathers. ¹¹Therefore, Thus, saith Yahweh, Behold me! bringing upon them calamity, which they shall not be able to escape,—and though they make outcry unto me, yet will I not hearken unto them. ¹²Then shall the cities of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, go and make outcry unto the gods to whom they have been burning incense,—but they will not at all, save, them in the time of their calamity; ¹³for according to the number of thy cities, have become thy gods O Judah,—and according to the number of the streets of Jerusalem, have ye set up album to the Shameful thing, altars for burning incense to Baal. ¹⁴Thou, therefore do not pray for this people, Neither lift thou up for them cry or prayer,—For I am not going to hear in the time that they cry unto me concerning their calamity. ¹⁵Why hath the beloved in mine own house, done an abomination? Shall, vows and holy flesh, take away from thee thy wickednesses, or shalt thou by these, escape? ¹⁶A green olive-tree, fair with goodly fruit, did Yahweh call thy name,—with the noise of a great tumult, hath he kindled fire upon it, and the branches thereof shall be broken. ¹⁷But, Yahweh of hosts, who planted thee hath pronounced against thee calamity,—on account of the wickedness of the house of Israel and of the house of Judah which they have wrought for themselves, provoking me to anger by burning incense to Baal. ¹⁸Now when Yahweh, let me know and I did know, then, didst thou shew me their doings. ¹⁹But, I, was as a gentle lamb that is to be led to the slaughter,—and I knew not that against me, they had devised devices saying — Let us destroy the tree with its fruit Yea let us cut him off out of the land of the living, And, his name, shall be remembered no more! ²⁰But, O Yahweh of hosts Who judgest righteously, Who triest affections and intellect,—Let me see thine avenging upon them, For unto thee, have revealed my cause. ²¹Therefore, Thus, saith Yahweh Concerning the men of Anathoth, who are seeking thy life, saying,—Thou shalt not prophesy in the name of Yahweh, So shalt thou not die by our hand: ²²Therefore, Thus saith Yahweh of hosts,—Behold me! bringing punishment upon them, The young men, shall die by the sword, Their sons and their daughters, shall die by famine; ²³And remnant, shall they have none,—For I will bring calamity against the men of Anathoth, in the year of their visitation.

12Righteous, art thou O Yahweh, when I present my pleading unto thee,—Yet, concerning the things that are right, let me speak with thee,—Wherefore hath, the way of the lawless, prospered? Wherefore have all, utter traitors, been at ease? ²Thou didst plant them, yea they took root, They have gone on yea they have borne fruit,—Near, art thou, in their mouth, But far off from their affections, ³But thou O Yahweh, knowest me, Wilt thou observe me and try my heart towards thee? Drag them away, as sheep for slaughter, And hallow them for the day when they are to be slain. ⁴How long, shall the land mourn, And, the herbage of the whole field, wither? For the wickedness of them that dwell therein, beast and bird, have perished, For say they, He will not see our latter end! ⁵If, with the footmen, thou hast run and they have wearied thee, How then wilt thou hotly contend with horses? Though in a safe land thou art confident, Yet how wilt thou deal with the proud banks of the Jordan? ⁶For even thy brethren and the house of thy father, Even they! have betrayed thee, Even they, have cried after thee with full voice,—Do not trust in them, though they speak unto thee fair words. ⁷I have forsaken mine own house, I have given up mine inheritance,—I have delivered the dearly beloved of my soul into the hand of her enemies: ⁸Mine inheritance, hath become to me as a lion in a jungle,—She hath given forth against me her voice, For this cause, have I hated her. ⁹Is it, a variegated bird of prey, that mine inheritance is to me? The birds of prey, are round about against her! Go ye, assemble all the beasts of the field bring them to devour. ¹⁰Many shepherds, have laid waste my vineyard, They have trampled down my portion,—They have turned my coveted portion into a desert of desolation: ¹¹It hath been made a desolation, It hath mourned unto me as desolate,—All the land hath become a desolation, For, no man, layeth it to heart. ¹²On all the bare heights in the wilderness, have come despoilers, For the sword of Yahweh hath devoured from one end of the land unto the other,—There is peace for no flesh! ¹³They sowed, wheat, but thorns, have they reaped, They have put themselves to pain they shall not be profited,—Yea turn ye pale at your produce, Because if the glow of the anger of Yahweh. ¹⁴Thus, saith Yahweh, Concerning all my wicked neighbours, who have been touching the inheritance which I gave as an inheritance unto my people Israel,—Behold me! uprooting them from off their own soil, Whereas the house of Judah, will I uproot out of their midst. ¹⁵And it shall come to pass after I bare uprooted them, I will again have compassion upon them,—and will bring them back—Every man—to his own inheritance and Every man—to his own land. ¹⁶And it shall come to pass—If they will, diligently learn, the ways of my people—To swear by my Name saying, By the life of Yahweh, As they taught my people to swear by Baal, Then shall they be built in the midst of my people. ¹⁷But if they will not hearken, Then will I Uproot that nation, Uproot, that I may destroy,—Declareth Yahweh.

13Thus, said Yahweh unto me,—Go and buy for thyself a linen girdle, and put upon thy loins,—but in water, shalt thou not place it. ²So I bought a girdle according to the word of Yahweh,—and put upon my loins. ³Then came the word of Yahweh unto me second time saying: ⁴Take the girdle which thou hast bought which is upon thy loins,—and arise go to the Euphrates, and hide it there in a hole of the cliff. ⁵So I went, and hid it, by the Euphrates, as Yahweh had commanded me. ⁶And it came to pass, at the end of many days,—that Yahweh said unto me,—Arise go to the Euphrates, and take from thence the girdle, which I commanded thee to hide there. ⁷So I went to the Euphrates, and digged, and took the girdle out of the place where I had hidden it,—and lo! the girdle was spoiled, it was good for nothing, s ⁸Then came the word of Yahweh unto me saying: ⁹Thus, saith Yahweh,—After this manner, will I spoil the pride of Judah and the great pride of Jerusalem. ¹⁰This wicked people who are refusing to hear my words, who are walking in the stubbornness of their heart, and have gone after other gods, to serve them and to bow down to them, yea let them be like this girdle, which is good for nothing. ¹¹For as a girdle cleaveth unto the loins of a man, so caused I to cleave unto me—the whole house of Israel and the whole house of Judah Declareth Yahweh, to become mine—For a people, and For a name, and For a praise and For an adorning,—but they hearkened not. ¹²Therefore shalt thou say unto them this word—Thus, saith Yahweh God of Israel, Every jar, is to be filled with wine; and they will say unto thee, Do we not, know well, that every jar, is to be filled with wine? ¹³Then shalt thou say unto them—Thus, saith Yahweh—Behold me! filling all the inhabitants of this land Even the kings that are sitting for David upon his throne and the priests and the prophets, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem—with drunkenness; ¹⁴and I will dash them every man against his brother even the fathers and the sons together, Declareth Yahweh,—I will not pity, Neither will I snare Neither will I have compassion that I should not destroy them. ¹⁵Hear ye and give ear, be not haughty,—For Yahweh, hath spoken. ¹⁶Give ye to Yahweh your God—glory, Before he cause darkness, and Before your feet stumble upon the twilight mountains; Lest, when ye wait for light, He turn it into the shadow of death, And change it for thick darkness. ¹⁷But if ye will not hear it, In secret places, shall my soul weep Because of the pride, And mine eye, shall flow over, and run down with tears, Because captive hath been taken the flock of Yahweh. ¹⁸Say thou to the king and to the queen-mother, Abase yourselves—Sit down,—For descended have your Head-tires, your Crown of adornment. ¹⁹The cities of the South, are shut And there is none to open,—Judah hath been carried away captive, She hath altogether been carried away captive in full number. ²⁰Lift up your eyes and see Them who are coming in from the North,—Where is The flock that was given thee, Thy beautiful flock? ²¹What wilt thou say when he shall bring punishment upon thee, Since, thou thyself, hast accustomed them to be over thee as friends in chief? Shall not, pangs, seize thee, as of a woman in childbirth? ²²But if thou say in thy heart, Wherefore have these things befallen me? For the greatness of thine iniquity have Thy skirts been turned aside Thy heels suffered violence! ²³Can the Ethiopian change, his skin, Or the leopard his spots? Even, ye, may be able to do right, Who are accustomed to do wrong. ²⁴Therefore have I scattered them, As broken straw passing away, by the wind of the desert. ²⁵This is thy lot Thy measured portion from me, Declareth Yahweh; For that thou didst forget me, And confide in falsehood: ²⁶Therefore, even I myself, have drawn away thy skirts, over thy face, And thy shame hath been seen, ²⁷Thine adulteries and thy neighings, thine unchaste wickedness, Upon the hills in the field, I have seen thine abominations! Woe to thee, O Jerusalem, Wilt thou not become pure? After how long yet?

14So much of the word of Yahweh as came unto Jeremiah, concerning the matter of the drought:— ²Judah mourneth, And the gates thereof, pine They lie in gloom on the ground,—And the outcry Jerusalem, hath ascended; ³And, their nobles have sent their menials to the waters,—They have been to the pits, They have found no water They have returned, their vessels empty, They are pale and ashamed and have covered their heads. ⁴Because the ground, is cracked, For there hath been no rain in the land, The plowmen are pale They have covered their heads. ⁵For, even the hind of the field hath calved and forsaken, Because there is no young herbage; ⁶Yea, wild asses stand still on the bare heights, They pant for air like jackals,—Dimmed are their eyes Because there is no grass. ⁷Though, our iniquities, have testified against us, O Yahweh, effectually work thou for the sake of thy Name,—For our apostasies have abounded Against thee, have we sinned. ⁸Thou Hope of Israel, His Saviour in the time of distress,—Wherefore shouldst thou be as a sojourner in the land? Or as a wayfarer, who hath turned aside to lodge for the night? ⁹Wherefore, shouldst thou be as a man astounded, As a mighty man who cannot save? Yet, thou, art in our midst—O Yahweh And, thy Name, on us, hath been called Do not abandon us! ¹⁰Thus, saith Yahweh To this people In this way, have they loved to wander, Their feet, have they not restrained,—Yahweh, therefore hath not accepted them, Now, will he call to mind their iniquity,—That he may punish their sins. ¹¹And Yahweh said unto me,—

Do not pray for this people for blessing; ¹²Though they fast, I am not going to hearken unto their loud cry, and Though they offer ascending-sacrifice and meal-offering, I am not going to accept them,—For with sword and with famine and with pestilence, am, I, about to consume them. ¹³Then said I, Ah, My Lord Yahweh! Lo! the prophets, are saying to them—Ye shall not see the sword And famine, shall ye not have,—For prosperity in truth, will I give you, in this place. ¹⁴So then Yahweh said unto me, Falsehood, are the prophets prophesying in my name, I have not sent them Neither have I commanded them, Neither have I spoken unto them,—A vision of falsehood, and A divination of worthlessness and A fraud of their own hearts, They, are prophesying unto you. ¹⁵Therefore, Thus, saith Yahweh concerning the prophets who are prophesying in my Name though, I, sent them not, and yet, they have beer, saying, Neither sword nor famine, shall there be in this land,—By sword or by famine, shall these prophets be consumed; ¹⁶And the people to whom they have been prophesying shall be getting cast out into the streets of Jerusalem because of the famine and the sword, and of there being none to give burial unto them, them, their wives, nor their sons nor their daughters,—So will I pour out upon them their own wickedness. ¹⁷Therefore shalt thou say unto them this word, Let mine eyes, run down with tears night and day, And let them not rest,—For with a grievous injury, hath been injured the virgin the daughter of my people, With a wound, severe indeed! ¹⁸If I have gone out into the field, Then lo! the slain of the sword! And if have entered the city, Then lo! the diseases of famine! For, both prophet and priest, have trafficked against the land unnoticed. ¹⁹Hast thou, utterly rejected, Judah? Zion itself, hath thy soul loathed? Why, hast thou smitten us so that there is for us no healing? A waiting For prosperity, but no welfare, and For a time of healing, but lo! terror! ²⁰We acknowledge O Yahweh Our own lawlessness The iniquity of our fathers,—For we have sinned against thee. ²¹Do not despise—for the sake of thy Name, Do not treat with contempt—the throne of thy glory,—Remember!—do not break thy covenant with us. ²²Are there, among the vanities of the nations senders of rain? Or can, the heavens themselves, give myriad drops? Art not, thou, he, O Yahweh our God? Therefore will we wait for thee, For, thou, hast made all these.

¹⁵Then said Yahweh unto me, Though Moses and Samuel should stand before me, My soul could not be toward this people,—Send them away from before me And let them go forth. ²And it shall come to pass when they say unto thee Whither shall we go? Then shalt, thou say unto them, Thus saith Yahweh—Such as are for death, to death, and Such as are for the sword, to the sword, and Such as are for famine, to the famine, and Such as are for captivity, to captivity. ³And I will set in charge over them—four species Declareth Yahweh, The sword to slay, and The dogs to trail along,—and The bird of the heavens and The beast of the earth to devour and to destroy. ⁴And I will make them a terror, to all the kingdoms of the earth,—On account of Manasseh son of Hezekiah king of Judah, For what he did in Jerusalem. ⁵For who shall have pity upon thee O Jerusalem? And who shall lament for thee? And who shall turn aside, to ask for thy welfare? ⁶Thou, hast abandoned, me, Declareth Yahweh, Backward, thou wilt go, Therefore have I stretched forth my hand against thee and laid thee waste,—I am weary of having compassion. ⁷Therefore have I winnowed them with a winnowing shovel in the gates of the land,—I have bereaved—I have destroyed my people, From their own ways, have they not returned. ⁸Their widows have become multiplied to me, beyond the sand of the seas, I have brought against them—upon the mother of young men—the spoiler in the broad noon,—I have let fall upon her suddenly, excitement and terrors. ⁹Languisheth! she who had given birth to seven, She hath breathed out her life Her sun hath gone in, while yet it was day, She hath turned pale and hath turned red,—And the remnant of them, to the sword, will I deliver before their enemies, Declareth Yahweh. ¹⁰Woe to me! my mother, That thou didst bear me, A man of litigation and a man of contention to all the land,—I have not lent on interest Nor have they lent on interest to me, Every one, hath treated me with contempt. ¹¹Said Yahweh,—Verily, I will loose thee, for good! Verily, I will intercede for thee In the time of calamity, and In the time of distress with the enemy! ¹²Shall iron crush the iron from the North and the bronze? ¹³Thy substance and thy treasures—for a prey, will I give, without price,—Even for all thy sins and in all thy bounds: ¹⁴Therefore will I make thee pass, with thine enemies into a land thou knowest not,—For, a fire, hath been kindled in mine anger Upon you, shall it burn. ¹⁵Thou knowest—O Yahweh Remember me and visit me and avenge me upon my persecutors, Do not of thy longsuffering, take me away,—Know—I have borne for thy sake, reproach. ¹⁶Thy words, were found, and I did eat them, Then became thy words unto me the joy and gladness of my heart,—For thy Name hath been called upon me, O Yahweh God of hosts! ¹⁷I sat not in the circle of mockers, Nor became I uproarious,—Because of thy hand, by myself did I sit, For with indignation, hadst thou filled me. ¹⁸Wherefore hath my pain become perpetual? And my wound, incurable? Refuseth to be healed? Wilt thou, indeed be, to me As a brook that disappointeth, Waters that cannot be trusted? ¹⁹Wherefore Thus, saith Yahweh—If thou wouldst return, I will cause thee to return Before me, shalt thou stand, Yea if thou wilt bring out the precious from among the vile, As mine own mouth shalt thou be,—Let them return unto thee, But thou, shalt not return unto them; ²⁰So will I make thee to this people a wall of bronze, fortified, When they fight against thee, they shall not prevail against thee,—For with thee, am, I, to save thee and to deliver thee, Declareth Yahweh; ²¹Thus will I deliver thee out of the hand of the wicked,—And redeem thee out of the grasp of the tyrants.

16And the word of Yahweh came unto me saying: ²Thou shalt not take to thee a wife,—Neither shalt thou have sons or daughters, in this place. ³For, Thus, saith Yahweh, Concerning the sons and concerning the daughters that are being horn in this place,—and concerning their mothers who do bear them, and concerning their fathers who do beget them, in this land, ⁴Of deaths from diseases, shall they die, They shall not be lamented, Neither shall they be buried, As heaps of dung on the face of the ground, shall riley serve,—Yea by sword and by famine, shall they be consumed, And, their dead bodies shall become, food—To the bird of the heavens, and To the beast of the earth. ⁵For, Thus, saith Yahweh—Do not thou enter into the house of crying, Neither do thou go to lament, nor do thou bemoan for them,—For I have withdrawn my blessing from this people, Declareth Yahweh, Both lovingkindness and compassion. ⁶So shall great and small die in this land, They shall not be buried,—Neither shall men lament for them Nor cut themselves, Nor make themselves bald for them; ⁷Neither shall they break bread to them in mourning To console one over his dead,—Nor cause them to drink the cup of consolation, Over ones father Or over ones mother; ⁸And the house of banqueting, shall thou not enter To sit with them, To eat and to drink. ⁹For, Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, Behold me! causing to cease out of this place, Before your eyes, And in your days, The voice of joy, and the voice of gladness, The voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, ¹⁰And it shall be when thou shalt declare to this people, all these words,—and they shall say unto thee—For what reason, hath Yahweh pronounced against us all this great calamity? Or what is our iniquity, or what our sin, which we have sinned against Yahweh our God? ¹¹Then shalt thou say unto them,—For that your fathers forsook, me, Declareth Yahweh, And walked after other gods, and served them, and bowed down to them,—Whereas me, they forsook And my law, kept they not; ¹²And, ye, have done more wickedly than your fathers,—for look at you! walking every man after the stubbornness of his wicked heart, so as not to hearken unto me, ¹³Therefore will I hurl you forth, from off this land, unto a land which ye have not known, ye, nor your fathers,—and ye can serve there other gods day and night, in that I will grant you no favour. ¹⁴Therefore lo! days are coming, Declareth Yahweh, When it shall be said no more By the life of Yahweh, who brought up the sons of Israel out of the land of Egypt; but— ¹⁵By the life of Yahweh, who hath brought up the sons of Israel out of the land of the North, and out of all the lands whither he had driven them,—So will I bring them back upon their own soil, which I gave to their fathers. ¹⁶Behold me! sending for many fishers Declareth Yahweh, And they shall catch them,—and thereafter will I send for many hunters, and they shall hunt them from off every mountain and from off every hill, and out of the clefts of the crags. ¹⁷For mine own eyes are upon all their ways, they have not been hid from my face—neither hath their iniquity been concealed from being straight before mine eyes. ¹⁸Thus will I recompense, first, twofold, their iniquity and their sin, because of their profaning my land,—with the carcase of their disgusting and detestable things, have they filled mine inheritance. ¹⁹O Yahweh, my strength, and my refuge, and my place to fly to, in the day of distress,—Unto thee, shall nations come in, out of the ends of the earth, that they may say—Surely! Falsehood, did our fathers inherit, Vanity, among whom is none that can profit: ²⁰Shall a son of earth, make for himself gods, Seeing that, they, are no-gods? ²¹Therefore behold me! causing them to know, by this stroke, I will cause them to know my hand and my might,—That they may know that my name, is Yahweh!

17The sin of Judah, is written With a stylus of iron, With the point of a diamond: It is engraved Upon the tablet of their heart, And upon the horns of your altars; ²So long as their sons remember their altars, and their Sacred Stems, By the green tree,—Upon the high hills, ³O my mountain in the field Thy substance all thy treasures, for a prey, will I give: Thy high places for sin, within all thy bounds. ⁴So shalt thou even of thyself, suffer to rest the inheritance which I gave thee, Seeing that I will cause thee to serve thine enemies, in the land which thou knowest not; For, a fire, have ye kindled in mine anger, Unto times age-abiding, shall it burn. ⁵Thus, saith Yahweh Accursed is the man—Who trusteth in a son of earth, And hath made flesh his arm,—And whose heart from Yahweh, turneth aside: ⁶Therefore shall he become as a shrub in the waste plain, Neither shall he perceive when good cometh, But shall inhabit Parched places in a wilderness, A land of salt that cannot he dwelt in. ⁷Blessed is the man Who trusteth in Yahweh, To whom Yahweh is his ground of confidence; ⁸For he shall become like a tree planted by waters, And, by a stream, shall he send out his roots, Neither shall he perceive when heat cometh, But, his leaf shall continue green: Even in a year of dearth, shall he not be anxious, Neither shall he cease from hearing fruit. ⁹Deceitful is the heart above all things And, dangerously wayward,—Who can know it? ¹⁰I—Yahweh, Searching the heart, Testing the affections; And giving to every man According to his way, According to the fruit of his doings. ¹¹As a partridge gathereth eggs she did not lay, So is he that maketh riches but not with justice,—In the midst of his days, shall he leave them, And in his latter end, prove to have been base. ¹²A throne of glory, exalted from the beginning, hath been the place of our sanctuary. ¹³Thou hope of Israel Yahweh,

All who forsake thee, shall turn pale,—Yea, all who depart from me, in the ground, shall be written, For they have forsaken a fountain of living water, even Yahweh. ¹⁴Heal thou me O Yahweh, that I may be healed, Save me that I may be saved,—For, my praise, thou art! ¹⁵Lo! they, are saying unto me,—Where is the word of Yahweh? Pray thee let it come to pass! ¹⁶But as for me, I have neither forced myself away from tending the flock after thee, Nor yet for the woeful day, have I longed—thou, knowest,—That which came out of my lips, before thy face, was uttered. ¹⁷Do not thou become to me a terror,—My refuge, art thou, in the day of calamity. ¹⁸Let my persecutors, turn pale, hut let not me, turn pale, Let, them, be terrified, but let not, me, be terrified,—Bring thou upon them a day of calamity, And with a double fracture, destroy them. ¹⁹Thus, said Yahweh unto me—Go and stand in the gate of the sons of the people, through which the kings of Judah enter in, and through which they come out,—also in all the gates of Jerusalem. ²⁰Then shalt thou say unto them—Hear ye the word of Yahweh Ye kings of Judah and all Judah, And all ye inhabitants of Jerusalem,—who enter in through these gates: ²¹Thus, saith Yahweh, lake heed unto your souls,—And do not bear any burden on the sabbath day, Nor bring it in through the gates of Jerusalem,—²²Neither shall ye take forth any burden out of your houses on the sabbath day, Nor any manner of work, shall ye do,—But ye shall hallow the sabbath day, As I commanded your fathers. ²³Howbeit they hearkened not, neither inclined their ear,—but stiffened their neck, that they might not hearken, neither receive correction. ²⁴And it shall come to pass,—If ye will, indeed hearken, unto me Declareth Yahweh, To bring in no burden through the gates of this city, on the sabbath day,—But to hallow the sabbath day, by not doing thereon any manner of work, ²⁵Then shall enter in through the gates of this city, Kings and princes Sitting on the throne of David, Riding in chariots and on horses They, and their princes, The men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, And this city shall remain unto times age-abiding. ²⁶And they shall come in—Out of the cities of Judah and Out of the places round about Jerusalem, and Out of the land of Benjamin, and Out of the lowlands, and out of the hill country, and Out of the South, Bringing in ascending-offering, and peace-offering, and meal-offering, and frankincense,—Even they wire bring in a thank-offering into the house of Yahweh, ²⁷But, if ye will not hearken unto me—To hallow the sabbath day, And to bear no burden and bring in through the gates of Jerusalem, on the sabbath day, Then will I kindle a fire within her gates, And it shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem, And shall not be quenched.

¹⁸The word that came unto Jeremiah from Yahweh, saying: ²Arise and go down to the house of the potter,—and, there, will I cause thee to hear my words. ³So I went down, to the house of the potter,—and there he was! making a piece of work on the wheels, ⁴Then was marred, the vessel that he was making, while yet it was clay in the hand of the potter,—so he turned and made of it another vessel, as seemed right in the eyes of the potter to make it. ⁵Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying: ⁶Like this potter, can I not deal with you O house of Israel? Demandeth Yahweh: Lo! as clay in the hand of the potter, So, are, ye, in my hand O house of Israel. ⁷The moment I speak, concerning a nation or concerning a kingdom,—to pull up and to break down, and to destroy; ⁸and that nation return from its wickedness against whom I have spoken, then will I repent concerning the calamity which I had devised to bring upon it. ⁹And, the moment I speak, concerning a nation or concerning a kingdom,—to build and to plant; ¹⁰and it commit wickedness in mine eyes, in not hearkening unto my voice, then will I repent concerning the good wherewith I had said I would do it good. ¹¹Now, therefore, I pray thee, speak unto the men of Judah and concerning the inhabitants of Jerusalem saying, Thus, saith Yahweh,—Lo! I am fashioning against you calamity, and devising against you, a device,—Return I pray you every man from his wicked way, And amend your ways and your doings. ¹²And, since they will say, Hopeless! For after our own devices, will we walk, And, very one, the stubbornness of his own wicked heart, will we do! ¹³Therefore, Thus saith Yahweh, Ask I pray you among the nations,—Who hath heard such things as these? A very horrible thing, hath, the virgin, Israel done! ¹⁴Shall the snow of Lebanon, fall from the rock of the field? Or shall waters from afar, deep, overflowing, be dried up? ¹⁵Yet my people have forgotten me, Unto vanity, have they been burning incense; And it hath caused them to stumble In their ways The roads of age-past times, To walk in by-paths—A way not cast up. ¹⁶To make their land a desolation The hissings of age-abiding times,—Every one that passeth by her, shall be astonished and wag his head. ¹⁷Like an east wind, will I scatter them before the enemy,—The back and not the face, will I let them see in the day of their distress. ¹⁸Then said they,—Come ye and let us devise against Jeremiah devices, For the law shall not perish from the priest, Nor, counsel, from the wise, Nor, the word from the prophet: Come and let as smite him with the tongue, And let us not give ear to any of his words! ¹⁹Give thou ear O Yahweh unto me,—And hearken unto the voice of mine accusers. ²⁰Shall, evil, be recompensed for good? For they have digged a pit for my life,—Remember how I stood before thee To speak in their behalf what was good! To turn back thine indignation from them. ²¹Therefore, give thou up their sons to the famine And deliver them into the hands of the sword, And let their, wives, become, childless and widows, And let, their men, be slain by death, Their young men be smitten by the sword in battle. ²²Let there be heard a cry out of their houses, When thou shalt bring in upon them

a troop, suddenly,—Because they digged a pit to capture me, And snares, did they hide for my feet. ²³But, thou, O Yahweh, knowest all their counsels against me to pat me to death, Put thou no propitiatory-covering over their iniquity, And their sin from before thee, do not thou blot out,—But let them be overthrown before thee, In the time of thine anger, deal thou effectively with them.

¹⁹Thus said Yahweh, Go and buy a potters earthen bottle,—and take of the elders of the people, and of the elders of the priests; ²Then shalt thou go forth into the valley of Ben-hinnom, which is at the opening of the gate of potsherds; and proclaim there the words which I shall speak unto thee; ³and shalt say,—Hear ye the word of Yahweh, O kings of Judah And inhabitants of Jerusalem,—Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts—God of Israel Behold me! bringing in calamity upon this place, which shall cause the ears of every one that heareth it, to tingle: ⁴Because they have forsaken me, And have treated this as a foreign place, And have burned incense therein to other gods, which neither they, nor their fathers nor the kings of Judah, have known; And have filled this place with the blood of innocents; ⁵And have built the high places of Baal for burning up their sons in the fire as ascending-sacrifices to Baal,—Which I commanded not, Nor spake, Neither came it up on my heart, ⁶Therefore, lo! days coming, Declareth Yahweh, When this place shall be called no longer The Topheth, or The Valley of Ben-hinnom,—but—The Valley of Slaughter; ⁷And I will pour out the counsel of Judah and Jerusalem in this place, And I will cause them to fall by the sword, before their enemies, and by the hand of them who seek their life,—⁸And I will give their dead bodies for food, to the bird of the heavens and to the beast of the earth; And I will make this city a desolation and a hissing,—every one that passeth by it, shall be astonished and hiss over all her wounds; ⁹And I will suffer them to eat the flesh of their sons, and the flesh of their daughters, yea every one—the flesh of his friend, will they eat,—in the siege and in the straitness, wherewith, their enemies, and they who seek their lives, will straiten them. ¹⁰Then shalt thou break the bottle, before the eyes of the men who are walking with thee; ¹¹and shalt say unto them—Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts—Thus and thus, will I break this people, and this city, As one breaketh the vessel of a potter, which cannot be made whole any more,—And in Topheth, shall they bury, for want of place to bury. ¹²Thus, will I do to this place Declareth Yahweh, And to the inhabitants thereof,—Even making this city like Topheth: ¹³Yea, the houses of Jerusalem and the houses of the kings of Judah, shall like the place of Topheth, be places defiled,—even all the houses upon whose roofs they burned incense to all the host of the heavens, and poured out drink-offerings to other gods. ¹⁴Then entered Jeremiah out of Topheth, whither Yahweh had sent him to prophesy,—and stood in the court of the house of Yahweh, and said unto all the people: ¹⁵Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, Behold me! brining in against this city, and upon all the cities thereof, The whole calamity which I have pronounced against her,—Because they stiffened their neck, that they might not hear my words.

²⁰And when Pashhur son of Immer, the priest, who also was deputy-overseer in the house of Yahweh, heard that Jeremiah had prophesied these things, ²then Pashhur smote Jeremiah the prophet,—and put him in the stocks that were in the upper gate of Benjamin, which was in the house of Yahweh. ³And it came to pass on the morrow, when Pashhur brought forth Jeremiah out of the stocks,—that Jeremiah said unto him—Not Pashhur, hath Yahweh called thy name, But Magor-missaviv. \fs15 ⁴For, Thus, saith Yahweh—Behold me! making thee a terror to thyself and to all who love thee, and they shall fall by the sword of their enemies, thine own eyes also, beholding, And all Judah, will I deliver into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he will carry them captive to Babylon and smite them with the sword. \fs15 ⁵And I will deliver up—All the wealth of this city, and All her labour, and All her precious things,—And all the treasures of the kings of Judah, will I deliver up into the hands of their enemies, and they will make of them a prey, and take them, and carry them into Babylon. ⁶And, thou, Pashhur and all who are dwelling in thy house, shall go into captivity,—Yea into Babylon, shalt thou enter And there, shalt thou die And there, shalt thou be buried Thou and all who love thee, to whom thou hast prophesied falsely. ⁷Thou didst persuade me, O Yahweh and I was persuaded, Thou didst lay firm hold on me and didst prevail,—I am become a mockery, all the day, Every one, is laughing at me. ⁸For, as often as I speak, I make outcry, Violence and wasting, I proclaim,—Yea the word of Yahweh hath become to me a reproach and derision lull the day ⁹Therefore I say—I will not mention him Neither will I speak any more in his name, But then it becometh in my heart as a fire that burneth, Shut up in my bones,—And I am weary of restraint and cannot refrain. ¹⁰Because I have heard the whispering of many—"A terror round about!" Tell ye say they, that we may tell of him, All the men I am wont to salute do watch for my halting,—Peradventure he will be persuaded, and we shall prevail over him, and take our vengeance upon him. ¹¹But, Yahweh, is with me, as a mighty one striking terror, For this cause, shall my persecutors stumble and not prevail,—They have turned very pale, For they have not prospered, Confusion age-abiding, it shall not be forgotten! ¹²But O Yahweh of hosts—Testing the righteous Beholding the affections and the heart,—Let me see thine avenging upon them, For unto thee, have I laid bare my cause. ¹³Sing ye to Yahweh! Praise ye Yahweh! For he hath delivered the soul of the needy, out of the hand of evildoers. ¹⁴Accursed, be the day on which I was born,—The day when my mother bare me, let it not be blessed! ¹⁵Accursed, be the man who carried tidings to my father saying, There is born to thee a man-child! ¹⁶Making him very glad: Yea let that man be—as the cities which Yahweh overthrew and repented not,—And let him hear An outcry in the morning, and A war-shout at broad noon! ¹⁷Because I was not slain from the womb,—Nor did my mother become my grave, Nor was her womb great for ever! ¹⁸Wherefore was it—That from the womb, I came forth, to see labour and pain; and That in shame should my days be consumed!

21The word which came unto Jeremiah from Yahweh,—when King Zedekiah sent unto him Pashhur, son of Malchiah, and Zephaniah, son of Maaseiah, the priest, saying: ²Enquire for us I pray thee of Yahweh, in that Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, maketh war against us,—Peradventure Yahweh will deal with us according to all his wonders, as that he go up from us. ³Then said Jeremiah unto them,—Thus, shall ye say unto Zedekiah: ⁴Thus, saith Yahweh, God of Israel—Behold me! turning back the weapons of war that are in your hand, wherewith, ye, are fighting the king of Babylon and the Chaldeans, who are besieging you outside the wall,—and I will gather them into the midst of this city. ⁵And I myself, will fight against you, with a hand outstretched, and with an arm of strength,—and with anger and with wrath and with great indignation; ⁶and I will smite the inhabitants of this city, both man and beast,—of a great pestilence, shall they die. ⁷And after that, Declareth Yahweh—Will I deliver Zedekiah king of Judah and his servants, and the people—even such as are left in this city from the pestilence from the sword and from the famine,—into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, even into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them who are seeking their life,—and he will smite them with the edge of the sword, he will not have pity on them nor will he spare nor will he have compassion. ⁸And unto this people, shalt thou say, Thus, saith Yahweh,—Behold me! setting before you the way, of life, and the way of death: ⁹He that remaineth in this city, shall die—by the sword or by the famine or by the pestilence,—Whereas, he that goeth forth and falleth unto the Chaldeans, who are besieging you,—then shall he live, and, his life, shall become to him, a spoil; ¹⁰For I have set my face against this city, for calamity and not for blessing, Declareth Yahweh,—Into the hand of the king of Babylon, shall it be given up, and he will burn it with fire. ¹¹Now, as to the house of the king of Judah,—hear ye the word of Yahweh:— ¹²O house of David! Thus, saith Yahweh, Administer justice betimes, And deliver the robbed out of the hand of the oppressor,—Lest mine indignation come forth like fire And burn and there be none to quench it, Because of the wickedness of your doings: ¹³Behold me!

against thee, O thou dweller in the vale on the level rock, Declareth Yahweh,—Ye who are saying, Who shall come down upon us? Who shall enter our habitations? ¹⁴Yet will I bring punishment upon you according to the fruit of your doings, Declareth Yahweh,—and will kindle a fire in her forest, and it shall devour all things round about her.

22Thus, said Yahweh, Go thou down to the house of king of Judah, and speak thou there this word, ²and say—Hear thou the word of Yahweh O king of Judah who sitteth upon the throne of David,—thou, and thy servants and thy people who enter in at these gates, ³Thus, saith Yahweh,—Execute ye justice, and righteousness, And deliver the robbed out of the hand of the oppressor,—But the sojourner the fatherless, and the widow, do not oppress neither commit violence, And the blood of the innocent, do not ye shed, in this place. ⁴For if ye, indeed do, this thing, then shall there enter into the gates of this house—kings, sitting for David upon his throne riding in chariots and on horses, he and his servants, and his people. ⁵But if ye will not hear these words, By myself have I sworn Declareth Yahweh—That, a ruin, shall this house become. ⁶For Thus, saith Yahweh Concerning the house of the king of Judah,—Though thou wast Gilead, to me, The summit of Lebanon, Yet surely I will make thee, A wilderness, Cities, not habitable; ⁷And I will hallow against thee Destroyers Every man with his weapons,—And they shall cut down of the choicest of thy cedars, and cast upon the fire. ⁸Then shall many nations pass by this city,—and shall say, every man to his neighbour, For what cause, hath Yahweh done thus, unto this great city? ⁹And they shall say, Because they forsook the covenant of Yahweh, their God,—And bowed down to other gods And served them. ¹⁰Do not ye lament for him that is dead Neither bemoan ye, him, But weep ye—weep on—for him that is going away, For he shall not return any more Nor see the land of his birth. ¹¹For Thus, saith Yahweh—Touching Shallum, son of Josiah king of Judah, That reigneth instead of Josiah his father, Who hath gone forth out of this place, He shall not return thither any more; ¹²For in the place whither they have taken him captive, There, shall he die,—And this land, shall he see no more. ¹³Alas! for him who buildeth his house without righteousness, And his roof-chambers without justice,—Of his neighbour, taketh service for nought, And recompense for his work, giveth him not. ¹⁴Who saith—I will build me a roomy house, with spacious roof-chambers,—So he cutteth him open its windows, And it is covered in with cedar, And he painteth it with vermilion. ¹⁵Shalt thou reign, because, thou, art eager to excel in cedar? Thy father, did lie not eat and drink, and do justice and righteousness, And, then, it was well with him? ¹⁶Did he not plead the cause of the oppressed and the needy, And, then, it was well? Was not, that, to know, me? Demandeth Yahweh. ¹⁷Verily thou hast neither eyes nor heart, save for thy plundering and for thy shedding of innocent blood, and for oppression and for crushing to do them! ¹⁸Therefore—Thus, saith Yahweh, Touching Jehoiakim son of Josiah King of Judah, They shall not cry in lament for him Alas my brother! or Alas sister! They shall not cry in lament for him Alas lord! or Alas! his renown! ¹⁹With the burial of an ass, shall he be buried, Dragged along and cast forth, beyond the gates of Jerusalem. ²⁰Ascend the Lebanon and make outcry, And in Bashan, put forth thy voice,—And make outcry from Abarim, For all thy lovers are torn in pieces. ²¹I spake unto thee, in thy carelessness,—Thou saidst I will not hearken! This hath been thy way from thy youth, That thou hast not hearkened to my voice. ²²All thy shepherds, the wind shall feed, And, thy lovers into captivity, shall depart,—Surely, then shalt thou turn pale and be confounded, by reason of all thy wickedness. ²³O inhabitress of Lebanon that makest thy nest in the cedars,—How hast thou bemoaned thyself Now that pangs have overtaken thee, Anguish, as of her that giveth birth. ²⁴As I live, Declareth Yahweh,—Even though Coniah son of Jehoiakim king of Judah were the signet-ring upon my right hand, yet, from thence, would I pull thee off; ²⁵and I would give thee into the hand of them who seek thy life and into the hand of them from the face of whom, thou dost shrink in fear,—even into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon and into the hand of the Chaldeans; ²⁶and I will hurl thee out and thy mother who bare thee, upon another land where ye were not born,—and, there, shall ye die. ²⁷But unto the land whither they shall be lifting up their souls to return, thither, shall they not return. ²⁸An earthen vessel to be despised thrown about, is this man Coniah? Or an instrument, in which is no pleasure? Wherefore are they to be cast out, he and his seed, and to be thrown forth upon a land which they have not known? ²⁹O land, land, land! Hear thou the word of Yahweh! ³⁰Thus, saith Yahweh,—Register ye this man, childless, A man who shall not prosper in his days,—For there shall prosper of his seed No man sitting upon the throne of David, Or ruling any more over Judah.

23 Alas for the shepherds who are destroying and scattering the sheep of my pasture Declareth Yahweh. ²Therefore, Thus, saith Yahweh God of Israel, Concerning the shepherds who are tending my people,—Ye have scattered my flock and have driven them away, and Nave not visited them,—Behold me! visiting upon you the wickedness of your doings Declareth Yahweh. ³myself, therefore will gather the remnant of my flock, out of all the lands whither I have driven them,—And will bring them back unto their own fold, And they shall be fruitful and multiply; ⁴And I will raise up over them shepherds who will tend them,—So shall they not be afraid any more, nor be dismayed nor be missing, Declareth Yahweh. ⁵Lo! days are coming, Declareth Yahweh, when I will raise up to David A righteous Bud, And he shall reign as king, and prosper, And shall execute justice and righteousness in the land. ⁶In his days, Shall Judah be saved, And Israeli abide securely,—And, this, is his name whereby he shall be called Yahweh, our Righteousness. ⁷Therefore, lo! days are coming, Declareth Yahweh, When it shall not be said any more As Yahweh liveth, who brought up the sons of Israel out of the land of Egypt; ⁸but—As Yahweh liveth who hath brought up and who hath brought in the seed of the house of Israel out of the land of the North, and out of all the lands whither I have driven them,—And they shall remain upon their own soil. ⁹As for the prophets,—Broken is my heart within me Trembled have all my bones, I have become as a drunken man, And as a strong man whom wine hath overcome,—Because of Yahweh, And because of his holy words. ¹⁰For with adulterers, is the land filled, Yea because of cursing, cloth the land mourn, Dried up are the oases of the desert,—And, their oppression hath become wicked, And, their might is not right. ¹¹For both prophet and priest, are profane,—Even in my house, have I found their wickedness, Declareth Yahweh. ¹²Therefore, shall their way become to them like slippery places in darkness, They shall be driven on and shall fall therein,—For I will bring in upon them calamity—The year of their visitation, Declareth Yahweh. ¹³Even among the prophets of Samaria, had I seen a foolish thing,—They prophesied by Baal, And led astray my people Israel. ¹⁴But among the prophets of Jerusalem, have I seen a horrible thing,—Committing adultery, And walking in falsehood, And so strengthening the hands of doers of wickedness, not to return any man from his wickedness: They have all of them become to me as Sodom, And her inhabitants as Gomorrah. ¹⁵Therefore, Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts Concerning the prophets,—Behold me! Feeding them with wormwood, And I will cause them to drink poisoned water,—For from the prophets of Jerusalem, hath there gone forth profanity unto all the land. ¹⁶Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts,—Do not hearken unto the words of the prophets who are prophesying unto you, They are filling you, with vain hopes,—The vision of their own hearts, do they speak, Not from the mouth of Yahweh! ¹⁷They keep on saying to them who despise me, Yahweh, hath spoken, saying, Prosperity, shall ye have! And to every one who is going on in the stubbornness of his own heart, have they said, There shall come on you, no calamity ¹⁸For who hath stood in the council of Yahweh, that he should see and hear his word? Who hath given ear to his word and heard it? ¹⁹Lo! the tempest of Yahweh! Indignation, hath come forth, Even a tempest whirling along: On the head of the lawless, shall it hurl itself down. ²⁰The anger of Yahweh, wilt not return, Until he hath executed nor Until he hath established The purposes of his heart,—In the afterpart of the days, shall ye understand it perfectly. ²¹I sent not the prophets yet they, ran, I spake not unto them yet, they, prophesied. ²²But

if they had stood in my council, Then might they have announced my words unto my people, And have turned them from their wicked way and from the wickedness of their doings. ²³Am I, a God at hand, Demandeth Yahweh, And not a God afar off? ²⁴Can any hide himself in secret places that I, shall not see him? Demandeth Yahweh,—The heavens and the earth, do I not fill? Demandeth Yahweh. ²⁵I have heard what the prophets have said, who prophesy in my name falsely, saying,—I have dreamed! I have dreamed! ²⁶How long shall it be in the heart of the prophets, To be prophets of falsehood,—And prophets of the deceit of their own heart? ²⁷Who lay a plot to cause my people to forget my name by their dreams which they relate every man to his neighbour,—Just as their fathers forgat, my name, for Baal. ²⁸The prophet with whom is a dream, Let him relate it as a dream, And he with whom is my word, Let him speak my word as truth,—What is the chaff to the wheat? Demandeth Yahweh: ²⁹Is not my word, like this, Like fire? Demandeth Yahweh,—And like a hammer, that breaketh in pieces a cliff? ³⁰Therefore! behold me! against the prophets, Declareth Yahweh,—who steal my words, every man from his neighbour: ³¹Behold me! against the prophets, Declareth Yahweh, who presume with their tongue and declare He declareth: ³²Behold me! against such as prophesy the dreams of falsehood, Declareth Yahweh, who have related them and led astray my people, with their falsehoods and with their recklessness,—whereas, I, had not sent them nor commanded them, so that they could be of no, profit, to this people, Declareth Yahweh. ³³But when this people or a prophet or a priest shall ask thee saying What is the oracle of Yahweh? Then shalt thou say unto them Ye, yourselves, are the oracle, Therefore will I reject you Declareth Yahweh; ³⁴But the prophet, or the priest or the people who shall say—the oracle of Yahweh, I will bring punishment upon that man and upon his house. ³⁵Thus, shall ye say—every man mite his neighbour and every man unto his brother,—What hath Yahweh, answered? or, What hath Yahweh, spoken? ³⁶but the oracle of Yahweh, shall ye not mention, any more,—for, every man's oracle, shall be his own word, because ye have perverted the words of a Living God, Yahweh of hosts our God. ³⁷Thus, shall thou say unto the prophet,—What hath Yahweh, answered thee? or What hath Yahweh, spoken? ³⁸But, since ye keep on saying, The Oracle of Yahweh, therefore, Thus saith Yahweh, Because ye have said this word, The oracle of Yahweh, whereas I had sent unto you saying, Ye shall not say, The oracle of Yahweh ³⁹therefore, behold me! I will lift you up,—and carry you away, and the city which I gave to you and to your fathers from before my face; ⁴⁰and will give unto you reproach age-abiding,—and disgrace age-abiding, which shall not be forgotten.

24Yahweh shewed me, and lo! two baskets of figs, which had been set before the temple of Yahweh,—after that Neb-

uchadrezzar king of Babylon had carried away captive, Jeconiah son of Jehoiakim king of Judah and the princes of Judah and the carpenters and the smiths out of Jerusalem, and had brought them into Babylon:— ²the one basket, was of very good figs, like the first-ripe figs; and, the other basket, was of very bad figs, which could not be eaten for badness. ³Then said Yahweh unto me,—What canst thou see, Jeremiah? And I said, Figs: the good figs, very good; and the bad, very bad, which cannot be eaten, for badness. ⁴Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying: ⁵Thus, saith Yahweh God of Israel, Like these good figs, so, will I regard them of Judah who are carried into captivity, whom I have sent out of this place into the land of the Chaldeans, for good. ⁶Therefore will I set mine eye upon them for good, and will bring them hack upon this land,—and will build them up, and not pull them down, and will plant them and not root them up; ⁷and will give them a heart to know, me, that, I, am Yahweh, So shall they become my people, And, I, will become their God; for they will return unto me with all their heart. ⁸And like the bad figs, which cannot be eaten for badness, Surely thus, saith Yahweh—so, will I deliver up Zedekiah king of Judah, and his princes and the remnant of Jerusalem that remain in this land, and them who are dwelling in the land of Egypt; ⁹yea I will deliver them up, as a terror of calamity, to all the kingdoms of the earth,—as a reproach and as a byword, as a mockery and as a contempt, in every place whither I will drive them; ¹⁰and I will send among them, sword famine and pestilence,—until they are consumed from off the soil which I gave to them and to their fathers.

25The word which came upon Jeremiah concerning all the people of Judah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah king of Judah,—the same, was the first year of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon; ²which word Jeremiah the prophet spake concerning all the people of Judah, and against all the inhabitants of Jerusalem saying:— ³From the thirteenth year of Josiah son of Amen king of Judah even until this day, the which is the twenty-third year, hath the word of Yahweh come unto me; and I have spoken unto you, betimes, speaking, yet have ye not hearkened. ⁴And Yahweh sent unto you all, his servants the prophets, lifetimes sending, though ye hearkened not, neither inclined ye your ear to hear: ⁵saying,—Return I pray you every one from his wicked way and from the wickedness of your doings, So shall ye remain on the soil which Yahweh hath given to you and to your fathers,—even from age to age; ⁶But do not go away after other gods to serve them and to bow down to them,—So shall ye not provoke me to anger with the work of your hands, and I will not bring calamity upon you; ⁷Howbeit ye hearkened not unto me, Declareth Yahweh,—that ye might provoke me to anger with the work of your hands unto your own hurt. ⁸Therefore, Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts,—Because ye have not heard my words, ⁹Behold me! sending and fetching all the families of the North, Declareth Yahweh and Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon my servant, And I will bring them in against this land and against its inhabitants, and against all these nations, round about,—And I will devote them to destruction, and make them an astonishment and a hissing, and age-abiding desolations. ¹⁰And I will banish from among them—The voice of joy, and the voice of gladness, The voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride,—The sound of the millstones, and the light of the lamp: ¹¹So shall all this land become a desolation, an astonishment, And these nations shall serve the king of Babylon, seventy years. ¹²And it shall come to pass—When the seventy years are fulfilled, I will visit upon the king of Babylon and upon that nation, Declareth Yahweh their iniquity, and upon the land of the Chaldeans,—and I will turn it into age-abiding desolations. ¹³So will I bring upon that land, All my words which I have spoken against it,—Even all that is written in this book, which Jeremiah hath prophesied against all the nations. ¹⁴For many nations and great kings have used, even them, as slaves, So will I recompense to them—According to their deed and According to the work of their own hands. ¹⁵For, thus, said Yahweh, God of Israel unto me, Take this cup of indignation wine out of my hand,—and cause all the nations unto whom I am sending thee, to drink it: ¹⁶Yea they shall drink and reel to and fro and act as madmen, because of the sword which I am sending between them. ¹⁷So I took the cup out of the hand of Yahweh,—and caused all the nations unto whom Yahweh had sent me to drink: ¹⁸to wit said he —Jerusalem, and the cities of Judah, and her kings her princes,—making them a desolation, an astonishment, a hissing, and a contempt, as at this day; ¹⁹Pharaoh king of Egypt and his servants and his princes, and all his people; ²⁰And all the Bedawin, and all the kings of the land of Uz,—and all the kings of the land of the Philistines, even Ashkelon, and Gaza, and Ekron, and the remnant of Ashdod; ²¹Edom and Moab, and the sons of Ammon; ²²And all the kings of Tyre, and all the kings of Zidon,—and the kings of the Coastland, that is beyond the sea; ²³Dedan, and Tema, and Buz, and all the clipt-beards; ²⁴And all the kings of Arabia, and all the kings of the Bedawin, who dwell in the desert; ²⁵And all the kings of Zimri, and all the kings of Elam, and all the kings of the Medes; ²⁶And all the kings of the North, the near and the far every man with his brother, and all the kingdoms of the earth which are on the face of the ground; And the king of Sheshach, shall drink, after them. ²⁷Therefore shalt thou say unto them—Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts God of Israel,—Drink ye and be drunken, and vomit, and fall and rise not,—because of the sword which I am sending between you. ²⁸And it shall be when they shall refuse to take the cup at thy hand to drink, then shalt thou say unto them—Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, Ye shall certainly drink; ²⁹For lo! with the city on which my Name hath been called, am I making a beginning of sending calamity, And shall, ye, be held, guiltless? Ye shall not be held guiltless: For a sword, am I proclaiming against all the inhabitants of the earth, Declareth Yahweh of hosts. ³⁰Thou, therefore, shalt prophesy against them all these words,—and shalt say unto them—Yahweh, from on high, will roar Yea from his holy habitation, will utter his voice, He will, roar mightily over his home, With a shout as of them who tread the winepress, will he answer unto all the inhabitants of the earth. ³¹There hath come in a tumult as far as the end of the earth, For a controversy, hath Yahweh with the nations, Himself, hath entered into judgment with all flesh,—As for the lawless, he hath delivered them to the sword Declareth Yahweh. ³²Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, Lo calamity! going forth from nation to nation,—And a great tempest, shall bestirred up, out of the remote parts of the earth. ³³Then shall the slain of Yahweh in that day, be from one end of the earth, even unto the other end of the earth,—They shall not be lamented, nor gathered together nor buried, As dung, on the face of the ground, shall they serve. ³⁴Howl ye shepherds and make outcry, And roll in the dust ye illustrious of the flock, Because your days for being slaughtered, are fulfilled,—Therefore will I break you in pieces, and ye shall fall like a precious vessel! ³⁵Then shall place of refuge vanish from the shepherds, And escape from the illustrious of the flock. ³⁶The voice of the outcry of the shepherds! Yea the howling of the illustrious of the flock!—Because Yahweh is laying waste the grounds where they fed. ³⁷Then shall be silenced the prosperous pastures,—Because of the fierceness of the anger of Yahweh. ³⁸He hath left as a lion his covert, For their land hath become a horror, Because of the fierceness of oppression and Because of the fierceness of his anger.

26In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim son of Josiah king of Judah, came this word from Yahweh saying: ²Thus, saith Yahweh,—Stand thou in the court of the house of Yahweh, and speak unto all the cities of Judah who are entering in to yaw down in the house of Yahweh, all the words which I have commanded thee to speak unto them,—do not thou keep back a word: ³Peradventure they will hear, and return every man from his wicked way,—and I shall repent as to the calamity which I am devising to execute upon them because of the wickedness of their doings: ⁴Therefore shalt thou say unto them Thus, saith Yahweh,—If ye will not hearken unto me, To walk in my law which I have set before you; ⁵To hearken unto the words of my servants the prophets, whom I am sending unto you, even, betimes, sending, though ye have not hearkened, ⁶Then I will make this house like Shiloh,—And, this city, will I make a contempt to all the nations of the earth. ⁷So the priests and the prophets, and all the people, heard Jeremiah speaking these words in the house of Yahweh.

⁸And it came to pass when Jeremiah had made an end of speaking all that Yahweh had commanded him to speak unto all the people, that the priests and the prophets, and all the people laid hold of him, saying—Thou shalt, surely die! ⁹Why hast thou prophesied in the name of Yahweh, saying, Like Shiloh, shall this house become, And this city, shall be desolate, without inhabitant? And all the people, were gathered together unto Jeremiah in the house of Yahweh, ¹⁰When the princes of Judah heard these things, then came they up out of the house of the king, unto the house of Yahweh,—and took their seats in the opening of the new gate of Yahweh. ¹¹Then spake the priests and the prophets unto the princes, and unto all the people, saying,—Worthy of death, is this man, because he hath prophesied against this city, as ye have heard with your own ears, Then spake Jeremiah, unto all the princes and unto all the people, saying,—¹²Yahweh, sent me to prophesy against this house and against this city, all the words that ye have heard. ¹³Now, therefore amend your ways, and your doings, and hearken unto the voice of Yahweh your God,—that Yahweh may repent him, as to the calamity which he hath spoken concerning you. ¹⁴But, I, behold me in your hand,—do with me as may be good and right in your eyes; ¹⁵Only, ye must, know, that If, ye, do put me, to death, verily innocent blood, are ye laying upon yourselves, and against this city, and against her inhabitants,—for of a truth, did Yahweh send me unto you, to speak in your ears lull these words. ¹⁶Then said the princes, and all the people, unto the priests and unto the prophets,—There is nothing in this man worthy of death, for in the name of Yahweh our God, hath he spoken unto us. ¹⁷Then rose up men from among the elders of the land, and spake unto all the convocation of the people saying: ¹⁸Micah the Morashtite, was prophesying, in the days of Hezekiah king of Judah,—and he spake unto all the people of Judah, saying, thus, saith Yahweh of hosts—Zion, as a field, shall be plowed, And, Jerusalem, into heaps of ruins, shall be turned, And, the mountain of the house, be like mounds in a jungle, ¹⁹Did Hezekiah king of Judah and all Judah put, him to death? Did he not revere Yahweh, and appease the face of Yahweh? And did not Yahweh repent him, as to the calamity which he had spoken against them? We, therefore are doing a great wickedness against our own lives! ²⁰There was however, a man, prophesying in the name of Yahweh, Urijah, son of Shemaiah, of Keriath-jearim,—who prophesied against this city, and against this land, according to all the words of Jeremiah. ²¹And when King Jehoiakim, and all his mighty men, and all the princes, heard his words, then the king sought to put him to death,—but Urijah heard, and feared and fled and entered Egypt. ²²Then did King Jehoiakim send men to Egypt,—even Elnathan son of Achbor, and certain men with him, into Egypt ²³and they brought forth Urijah out of Egypt, and took him in unto King Jehoiakim, who smote him with the sword,—and cast out his dead body among the graves of the sons of the people. ²⁴Howbeit the hand of Ahikam son of Shaphan, turned out to be with Jeremiah,—so as not to give him up into the hand of the people, to put him to death.

to the end I may drive you out and you be destroyed, you and the prophets who are prophesying unto you. ¹⁶Also unto the priests, and unto all this people, spake I, saying, Thus! saith Yahweh, Do not hearken unto the words of your prophets, who are prophesying unto you saying, Lo! the vessels of the house of Yahweh, are to be brought back out of Babylon now, quickly; for falsehood, are they prophesying unto you. ¹⁷Do not hearken unto them, serve the king of Babylon land live! wherefore, should this city become a desolation? ¹⁸But, if prophets, they are, and if the word of Yahweh is with them, let them intercede, I pray you, with Yahweh of hosts, that the vessels which are left remaining in the house of Yahweh and the house of the king of Judah and in Jerusalem, come not into Babylon. ¹⁹For Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts—Concerning the pillars, and concerning the sea, and concerning the stands,—and concerning the residue of the vessels that remain in this city ²⁰which Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon took not when he carried away captive Jeconiah son of Jehoiakim king of Judah from Jerusalem to Babylon,—with all the nobles of Judah and Jerusalem, ²¹Yea—Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts God of Israel Concerning the vessels that are left in thee house of Yahweh and the house of the king of Judah, and Jerusalem, ²²Into Babylon, shall they be taken And there, shall they remain, Until the day that I visit them, Declareth Yahweh, When I will bring them up, and restore them unto this place.

28And it came to pass in that year, in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the fourth year in the fifth month, that Hananiah son of Azzur the prophet who was of Gibeon, spake unto me, in the house of Yahweh, before the eyes of the priests and all the people, saying: ²Thus speaketh Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel saying,—I have broken the yoke of the king of Babylon: ³within the space of two years, I am bringing back into this place, all the vessels of the house of Yahweh,—which Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, hath taken away from this place, and carried into Babylon. ⁴Jeconiah also, son of Jehoiakim king of Judah with all the captives of Judah who have entered Babylon, am I bringing back into this place Declareth Yahweh,—for I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon. ⁵Then said Jeremiah the prophet, unto Hananiah the prophet, in the presence of the priests and in the presence of all the people, who were standing in the house of Yahweh, ⁶then said Jeremiah the prophet,—Amen! So, may Yahweh do! Yahweh establish thy words which thou hast prophesied by bringing back the vessels of the house of Yahweh and all them of the captivity, from Babylon unto this place. ⁷Nevertheless hear thou I pray thee, this word, which I am speaking in thine ears,—and in the ears of all the people: ⁸The prophets who were before me and before thee, from age-past times when they prophesied against many lands and concerning great kingdoms, of war and of calamity and of pestilence, ⁹the prophet who prophesied of peace when the word of the prophet was fulfilled, then was known the prophet, whom Yahweh had sent in truth. ¹⁰Then Hananiah the prophet took the yoke from off the neck of Jeremiah the prophet,—and brake it. ¹¹And Hananiah spake before the eyes of all the people saying, Thus, saith Yahweh,—In like manner, will I break the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, within the space of two years, from off the neck of all the nations, And Jeremiah the prophet went his way. ¹²Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jeremiah after that Hananiah the prophet had broken the yoke from off the neck of Jeremiah the prophet, saying: ¹³Go and speak unto Hananiah saying—Thus, saith Yahweh, Yokes of wood, thou hast broken,—But thou shalt make, in their stead yokes of iron! ¹⁴For, Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts God of Israel,—A yoke of iron, have I put upon the neck of all these nations to serve Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, and they shall serve him, Moreover also the wild beast of the field, have I given to him. ¹⁵Then said Jeremiah the prophet unto Hananiah the prophet,—Hear I pray thee, Hananiah: Yahweh hath not sent thee, Thou, therefore hast caused this people to trust in falsehood! ¹⁶Therefore, Thus, saith Yahweh, Behold me! driving thee away from off the face of the ground,—This year, art thou to die, Because revolt, hast thou spoken against Yahweh. ¹⁷So Hananiah the prophet died the same year, in the seventh month.

29Now these, are the, words of the letter which Jeremiah the prophet sent from Jerusalem,—unto the residue of the elders of the captivity, and unto the priests and unto the prophets and unto all the people, whom Nebuchadnezzar had carried away captive from Jerusalem to Babylon; ²after that Jeconiah the king and the queen-mother and the eunuchs the princes of Judah and Jerusalem and the craftsmen and the smiths, had gone forth from Jerusalem;—³by the hand of Elasah son of Shaphan and Gemariah son of Hilkiah, whom Zedekiah king of Judah sent unto Babylon to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon, saying:—⁴Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, Unto all the captivity whom I have suffered to be carried away captive from Jerusalem to Babylon: ⁵Build ye houses and dwell in them,—And plant ye gardens and eat the fruit thereof; ⁶Take ye wives and beget sons and daughters, And take wives, for your sons, and, your daughters, give ye to husbands, That they may bear sons and daughters,—And so become ye many there and do not become few; ⁷And seek the welfare of the city whither I have caused you to be carried away captives, and pray for her unto Yahweh,—For in her welfare, shall ye have welfare. ⁸For Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts God of Israel, Let not your prophets that are in your midst nor your diviners beguile you,—Neither hearken ye unto your dreams which ye are dreaming; ⁹For falsely, are they prophesying unto you in my name,—I have not sent them, Declareth Yahweh. ¹⁰For, thus, saith Yahweh,—That as soon as there are fulfilled to Babylon seventy years, I will visit you,—and establish for you my good word, by causing you to return unto this place. ¹¹For, I, know the plans which I am planning for you Declareth Yahweh,—Plans of welfare and not of calamity, To give you a future and a hope. ¹²So shall ye call upon me,—And go and pray unto me,—And I will hearken unto you; ¹³So shall ye seek me and find, For ye will enquire after me with all your heart; ¹⁴And I will be found of you, Declareth Yahweh, And will turn back your captivity, And will gather you out of all the nations and out of all the places whither I have driven you, Declareth Yahweh, And will bring you back into the place whence I had caused you to be carried away captive: ¹⁵Because ye have said,—Yahweh hath raised us up prophets in Babylon. ¹⁶For, thus, saith Yahweh Against the king who is sitting on the throne of David, and Against all the people who are remaining in this city,—your brethren who have not gone forth with you into captivity: ¹⁷Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, Behold me! sending upon them sword famine, and pestilence,—So will I make them like the horrid figs, that cannot be eaten for badness; ¹⁸Therefore will I pursue them with sword with famine and with pestilence,—And will make them a terror to all the kingdoms of the earth A curse and an astonishment and a hissing and a reproach, among all the nations whither I have driven them: ¹⁹Because they hearkened not unto my words Declareth Yahweh,—which I sent unto them by my servants the prophets, betimes, sending them yet hearkened they not Declareth Yahweh. ²⁰Ye, therefore, hear ye the word of Yahweh, all ye of the captivity, whom I have sent from Jerusalem to Babylon: ²¹Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel Concerning Ahab son of Kolaiah, and concerning Zedekiah son of Maaseiah, who are prophesying to you in my name, a falsehood, Behold me! delivering them into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and he will smite them before your eyes: ²²So shall there be taken up—from them—a curse, by all of the captivity of Judah who are in Babylon saying,—Yahweh make thee like Zedekiah and like Ahab, Whom the king of Babylon roasted in the fire! ²³Because they have committed villainess in Israel And have committed adultery with the wives of their neighbours, And have spoken as a word in my name a falsehood, which I commanded them not,—And, I, am one who knoweth—and a witness Declareth Yahweh. ²⁴Also unto Shemaiah the Nehelamite, shalt thou speak, saying: ²⁵Thus, speaketh Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, saying,—Because, thou, hast sent in, thine own name, letters, unto all the people who are in Jerusalem, and unto Zephaniah son, of Maaseiah the priest, and unto all the priests saying: ²⁶Yahweh, hath made thee priest instead of Jehoiada the priest, that ye should be deputies in the house of Yahweh, to any man who is raving and prophesying, so shalt thou put him into the stocks and into the pillory:

²⁷Now, therefore, why, hast thou not rebuked Jeremiah of Anathoth, who is prophesying unto you? ²⁸For, on this account, hath he sent unto us in Babylon, saying,—’Tis, long! Build ye houses and dwell in them, And plant gardens and eat the fruit thereof. ²⁹And Zephaniah the priest hath read this letter in the ears of Jeremiah the prophet, ³⁰Therefore hath the word of Yahweh come unto Jeremiah, saying: ³¹Send thou unto all them of the captivity, saying, Thus, saith Yahweh, Concerning Shemaiah the Nehelamite,—Because Shemaiah, hath prophesied to you, when, I, had not sent him, And hath caused you to trust in falsehood, ³²Therefore Thus, saith Yahweh,—Behold me! bringing punishment upon Shemaiah the Nehelamite, and upon his seed, he shall have no man to dwell in the midst of rids people, Nor shall he see the good that I am about to do for my people, Declareth Yahweh; Because revolt, hath he spoken against Yahweh.

30The word which came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, saying:—²Thus, speaketh Yahweh, God of Israel, saying,—Write thee all the words which I have spoken unto thee in a scroll; ³For lo! days are coming, Declareth Yahweh, when I will turn the captivity of my people Israel and Judah, Saith Yahweh,—and will bring them back into the land which I gave to their fathers that they might possess it. ⁴Now, these, are the words which Yahweh hath spoken against Israel and against Judah: ⁵Yea, thus, saith Yahweh, A voice of trembling, have we heard, Dread and not welfare! ⁶Ask, I pray you, and see, whether a male travaileth with child! Why have I seen Every man with his hands upon his loins like a woman in travail, and Every face turned into ghastliness? ⁷Alas! for, great, is that day, so that none is like it,—Yea, a time of anguish it is for Jacob, But out of it, shall he be saved. ⁸And it shall come to pass in that day, Declareth Yahweh of hosts, That I will break his yoke from off thy neck, And thy bonds, will I tear off,—And foreigners shall use him as a slave no more; ⁹But they shall serve Yahweh their God,—and David their king, whom I will raise up unto them. ¹⁰Thou therefore do not fear O my Servant Jacob Urgeth Yahweh, Neither be thou dismayed, O Israel, For behold me! saving thee from afar And thy seed out of the land of their captivity,—Then shall Jacob return, and rest and be quiet, And there shall be none to make him afraid; ¹¹For with thee, am, I, Declareth Yahweh To save thee,—Though I make an end of all the nations whither I have scattered thee, Yet will I not of thee, make an end, But will chastise thee in measure, not holding thee, guiltless! ¹²For Thus, saith Yahweh—incurable is thine injury,—Grievous is thy wound: ¹³There is none to plead thy cause for binding thee up,—Healing bandages, hast thou none: ¹⁴All thy lovers, have forgotten thee, Thyself, do they not seek,—For With the wounding of an enemy, have I wounded thee With the correction of one who is cruel, Because of the abounding of thine iniquity, Because numerous have been thy sins. ¹⁵Why shouldst thou make outcry over thine injury, Incurable is tiny pain? Because of the abounding of thine iniquity, Because numerous have been thy sins Have I done these things unto thee. ¹⁶Therefore, all who devour thee, shall be devoured, And, all thine adversaries—all of them, into captivity, shall depart,—So shall they who plundered thee, be plundered, And all who preyed upon thee, will I deliver up as a prey. ¹⁷For I will put a bandage upon thee, And from thy wounds, will I heal thee Declareth Yahweh,—Because An outcast, they called thee, ‘Tis, Zion! who hath none to ask for her welfare, ¹⁸Thus, saith Yahweh—Behold me! bringing back the captivity of the tents of Jacob, And on his habitations, will I have compassion,—So shall the city be built, upon her own mound, And the citadel, upon its own site, shall remain: ¹⁹So shall there proceed from them thanksgiving, and The sound of them who make merry,—And I will multiply them, and they shall not become few, And will make them honourable, and they shall not be despised: ²⁰And, his sons, shall come to be as aforetime, And, his assembly, before me, shall continue,—And I will bring punishment on all his oppressors; ²¹And, his illustrious one, shall spring, from himself, And his ruler, from his own midst, shall proceed, And I will bring him near and he shall approach unto me,—For who is there that hath pledged his own heart to approach unto me? Demandeth Yahweh: ²²So shall ye become my people; And, I, will become your God. ²³Lo! the tempest of Yahweh! Indignation, hath come forth, A tempest rolling itself upward,—Upon the head of the lawless ones, shall it hurl itself down! ²⁴The fierceness of the anger of Yahweh will not turn hack, Until he hath executed nor Until he hath established The purposes of his heart,—In the afterpart of the days, shall ye understand it.

31At that time, Declareth Yahweh, I will become a God, to all the families of Israel; And, they, shall become my people. ²Thus, saith Yahweh,—There hath found favour in the desert people escaped from the sword,—I must go to cause him, even Israel, to rest. ³From afar, Yahweh hath appeared unto me, Yea with an age-abiding love, have I loved thee, For this cause, have I prolonged to thee lovingkindness. ⁴Again, will I build thee and thou shalt be built, thou virgin, Israel,—Again, shalt thou deck thyself with thy timbrels, And go forth in the dance of them that make merry: ⁵Again, shalt thou plant vineyards in the mountains of Samaria, The planters have planted, and have laid open the vineyards, ⁶For it is a day the watchmen have proclaimed throughout the hill country of Ephraim,—Arise ye and let us go up to Zion, unto Yahweh our God. ⁷For, thus, saith Yahweh—Shout ye for Jacob with gladness, Make shrill thy voice, as the head of the nations,—Publish ye praise ye and say, Save thou O Yahweh thy people, the remnant of Israel. ⁸Behold me bringing them in out of the land of the North, And I will gather them out of the remote parts of the earth, Among them, the blind and the lame The woman with child and she that giveth birth, together,—A great convocation, shall return hither: ⁹With weeping, shall they come in, And with supplications, will I lead them, I will bring them unto rivers of waters By a smooth way, wherein they shall not stumble,—For I have become, to Israel, a father, And as for Ephraim, my firstborn, is he! ¹⁰Hear ye the word of Yahweh, O ye nations, And declare ye in the Coastlands, afar off,—And say—He that scattereth Israel, will gather him, And watch over him as a shepherd his flock; ¹¹For Yahweh hath ransomed Jacob,—And redeemed him from the hand of one stronger than he. ¹²Then shall they come in and shall shout in triumph on the height of Zion, And shall stream unto the goodness of Yahweh To the wheat, and to the new wine, and to the oil, and to the young of the flocks and of the herds,—So shall their soul become like a garden well watered, And they shall not again languish any more. ¹³Then shall the virgin rejoice, in the dance, And young men and elders rejoice together, And I will turn their mourning into gladness and will comfort them, And will make them rejoice from their sorrow; ¹⁴Then will I satiate the soul of the priests with fatness, And my people with my goodness, shall be satisfied, Declareth Yahweh. ¹⁵Thus, saith Yahweh—A voice, in Ramah, is heard, Wailing, bitter weeping, Rachel weeping for her children,—She refuseth to be comforted for her children, For they are not! ¹⁶Thus, saith Yahweh—Restrain thy voice from weeping, And thine eyes from tears,—For there is a reward for thy labour, Declareth Yahweh, So they shall return from the land of the enemy: ¹⁷Yea there is hope for thy future Declareth Yahweh,—And thy sons shall return to their own boundary. ¹⁸I have, heard, Ephraim bemoaning himself, Thou hast chastised me and I have been chastised, Like a bullock, not broken in, Suffer me to return that I may return, For thou, art Yahweh my God. ¹⁹Surely after my return, I was filled with regret, And after I came to know myself, I smote upon the thigh,—I turned pale and was even confounded For I had borne the reproach of my youthful days. ²⁰Was Ephraim, a very precious son to me? Was he a most delightful child? For as often as I have spoken against him, I have, remembered, him again! For this cause, have my affections been deeply moved for him, I must have, compassion, upon him, Declareth Yahweh. ²¹Erect thee waymarks Set thee up finger-posts, Apply thy heart to The highway—The road by which thou didst depart,—Return O virgin of Israel, Return unto these thy cities. ²²How long wilt thou turn hither and thither, O apostate daughter? For Yahweh hath created a new thing in the earth, A female defendeth, a strong man! ²³Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, Again, shall they say this word, in the land of Judah and in the cities thereof, when I cause their captivity to return, Yahweh, bless thee,

Thou home of righteousness! Thou mountain of holiness! ²⁴Then shall there dwell throughout Judah itself and all the cities thereof, together,—Husbandmen, who shall move about with a flock; ²⁵For I have satiated the weary soul,—And every languishing soul, have I filled. ²⁶Upon this, I awoke and considered,—And, my sleep, had been sweet to me! ²⁷Lo! days are coming, Declareth Yahweh—That I will sow, The house of Israel, and The house of Judah, With the seed of men, and With the seed of beasts; ²⁸And it shall come to pass, that—Just as I watched over them, to root up and to break down and to tear out and to destroy, and to break in pieces, So, will I watch over them, to build and to plant, Declareth Yahweh. ²⁹In those days, shall they say no more, Fathers, did eat sour grapes,—And, children's teeth, are blunted! ³⁰But, every one, for his own iniquity, shall die,—Any human being who eateth the sour grapes, his own teeth, shall be blunted. ³¹Lo! days are coming, Declareth Yahweh,—When I will solemnize—With the house of Israel and With the house of Judah, A new covenant: ³²Not like the covenant which I solemnised with their fathers, In the day when I grasped their hand, to bring them forth out of the land of Egypt,—In that, they, brake my covenant Though, I, had become a husband unto them, Declareth Yahweh. ³³For, this, is the covenant which I will solemnize with the house of Israel after those days Declareth Yahweh, I will put my law within them, Yea, on their heart, will I write it,—So will I become their God, And they shall become my people. ³⁴Then shall they no longer teach Every man his neighbour, and Every man his brother, saying, Know ye Yahweh,—For, they all, shall know me, From the least of them Even unto the greatest of them, Declareth Yahweh, For I will forgive their iniquity, And their sin, will I remember, no more. ³⁵Thus, saith Yahweh—Who hath given the sun for a light by day, The ordinances of the moon and the stars for a light by night,—Who excited the sea, and the waves thereof roared Yahweh of hosts, is his name:— ³⁶If these ordinances depart from before me, Declareth Yahweh,—the seed of Israel also, may cease from being a nation before me, all the days, ³⁷Thus, saith Yahweh—If the heavens above can be measured, Or the foundations of the earth beneath, be searched out I also, may reject all the seed of Israel for all that they have done, Declareth Yahweh. ³⁸Lo days, are coming, Declareth Yahweh, That the city shall be built for Yahweh, From the tower of Hananeel, As far as the gate of the corner; ³⁹Then shall go forth again the measuring-line straight forward, Over the hill Gareb, And it shall go round to Goah; ⁴⁰And, all the vale of the dead bodies, and of the ashes, and all the fields as far as the Kidron torrent-bed, as far as the horse-gate corner on the east, Shall be holy unto Yahweh,—It shall not be rooted up, nor thrown down, any more, unto times age-abiding.

32The word which came unto Jeremiah from Yahweh,

in the tenth year of Zedekiah king of Judah,—the same, was the eighteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar; ²and, then, the forces of the king of Babylon were besieging Jerusalem,—and, Jeremiah the prophet, had been shut up in the guard-court, which was in the house of the king of Judah; ³whom Zedekiah king of Judah, had shut up, saying,—Why art thou prophesying, saying,—Thus, saith Yahweh, Behold me! giving up this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall capture it; ⁴and, Zedekiah king of Judah! shall not be delivered out of the hand of the Chaldeans,—for he shall be wholly given up, into the hand of the king of Babylon, and shall speak—the mouth of the one to the mouth of the other, and the eyes of the one into the eyes of the other, shall look; ⁵and into Babylon, shall he lead Zedekiah and, there, shall he remain, until I visit him, Declareth Yahweh,—though ye fight with the Chaldeans, ye shall not prosper? ⁶And Jeremiah said,—The word of Yahweh came unto me saying: ⁷Lo! Hanameel son of Shallum thine uncle, hath come unto thee saying,—Buy thee my field that is in Anathoth, for, thine, is the right of redemption to buy it. ⁸So Hanameel son of mine uncle, came unto me, according to the word of Yahweh into the guard-court, and said unto me, Buy, I pray thee my field that is in Anathoth which is in the land of Benjamin, for, thine, is the right of inheritance, and, thine, the redemption,—buy it for thyself. So I knew, that the word of Yahweh, it was. ⁹And I bought the field from Hanameel son of mine uncle that was in Anathoth,—and weighed him the silver, seventeen shekels, was the silver; ¹⁰and I wrote in the scroll and sealed it, and took in attestation witnesses,—and weighed the silver in the balances. ¹¹Then took I the scroll of purchase, both that which was sealed—the title and the conditions—and that which was open; ¹²and gave the scroll of purchase unto Baruch son of Neriah son of Mahseiah, in the sight of Hanameel mine uncle 's son , and in the sight of the witnesses who subscribed the scroll of purchase,—in the sight of all the Jews who were sitting in the guard-court. ¹³Then charged I Baruch in their sight saying: ¹⁴Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, Take thou these scrolls, this scroll of purchase even that which is sealed, and this scroll that is open, and put them in an earthen vessel,—that they may remain many days, ¹⁵For Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel: Again, shall houses and fields and vineyards, be bought, in this land. ¹⁶Then prayed I unto Yahweh,—after I had delivered the scroll of purchase unto Baruch son of Neriah, saying:— ¹⁷Alas! My Lord, Yahweh! Lo! thou thyself, didst make the heavens, and the earth, by thy great might, and by thine outstretched arm,—There is nothing, too wonderful for thee: ¹⁸Executing lovingkindness unto thousands, But recompensing the iniquity of fathers, into the bosom of their children, after them, Thou GOD, the great the mighty, Yahweh of hosts, is his name: ¹⁹Great in counsel, and mighty in deed,—Whose eyes are open on all the ways of the sons of men, to give unto every one, According to his ways, and According to the fruit of his doings: ²⁰Who didst set signs and wonders, in the land of Egypt, unto this day, and in Israel and among mankind,—And didst make for thyself a name as at this day; ²¹And didst bring forth thy people Israel out of the land of, Egypt, With signs and with wonders, and With a strong hand, and With an outstretched arm, and With great terror; ²²And didst give unto them this land, which thou hadst sworn to their fathers to give unto them,—a land flowing with milk and honey; ²³And they came in and took possession of it But hearkened not unto thy voice Nor in thy law, did they walk, Nought of what thou hadst commanded them to do, did they do,—And so thou hast caused to befall them all this calamity. ²⁴Lo! the earthworks! they have entered the city, to capture it, And the city, hath been given into the hand of the Chaldeans, who are fighting against it, because of the sword and the famine and the pestilence,—And so what thou didst speak, hath come to pass, And there thou art looking on! ²⁵Yet, thou thyself, saidst unto me, O My Lord, Yahweh, Buy thee the field for silver And take in attestation, witnesses,—Whereas, the city, hath been given into the hand of the Chaldeans! ²⁶Then came the word of Yahweh, unto Jeremiah, saying:—²⁷Lo! I, am Yahweh, God of all flesh,—For me, is any thing too wonderful? ²⁸Therefore, Thus, saith Yahweh,—Behold me! giving this city into the hand of the Chaldeans, and into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and he shall capture it; ²⁹And the Chaldeans, who are fighting against this city, Shall enter, and Shall set this city on fire, and Shall consume it,—With the houses on whose roofs they burned incense to Baal and poured out drink-offerings to other gods, that they might provoke me to anger; For the sons of Israel and the sons of Judah have been nothing but doers of wickedness in my sight from the days of their youth,—³⁰For the sons of Israel have been doing nothing but provoke me to anger by the workmanship of their hands, Declareth Yahweh; ³¹For According to mine anger, and According to mine indignation, hath been to me this city, from the day when they built it even unto this day,—that I should pull it down from before my face: ³²because of all the wickedness of the sons of Israel and the sons of Judah, which they have done to provoke me to anger, they, their kings their princes, their priests, and their prophets, and the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem: ³³Thus have they turned unto me the back, and not the face,—Though I instructed them, betimes, instructing them, Yet have they not been hearkening, to receive correction; ³⁴But have set their abominations in the house on which my name hath been called, to defile it; ³⁵And have built the high places of Baal, which are in the valley of Ben-hinnom, To cause their sons and their daughters to pass through unto Molech, Which I commanded them not Neither came it up on my heart, That they should do this horrible thing,—Causing, Judah, to sin! ³⁶Now therefore, because of this,—Thus, saith Yahweh, God of Israel,—Concerning this city, whereof ye are saying, It hath been delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon, by sword, and by famine and by pestilence: ³⁷Behold me! gathering them out of all the lands whither I have driven them—In mine anger and In mine indignation and In great vexation,—And I will cause them to return into this place, And will make them dwell, securely; ³⁸And they shall become my people,—And, I, will become their God; ³⁹And I will give them one heart, and one way, That they may revere me, all the days,—For the good of them and of their children after them; ⁴⁰And I will solemnise to them an age-abiding covenant, That I will not turn away from following them, to do them good,—But the reverence of myself, will I put in their heart, so that they shall not turn away from me. ⁴¹And I will rejoice over them, to do them good,—And will plant them in this land in truth, with all my heart and with all my soul. ⁴²For, Thus, saith Yahweh, Like as I have brought upon this people all this great calamity, Soil am I bringing upon them all the good that I am speaking concerning them. ⁴³Therefore shall fields be bought in this land,—whereof ye are saying, It is, a desolation, Without man or beast, It hath been given into the hand of the Chaldeans: ⁴⁴Fields—for silver, shall men buy, And write in scrolls And seal them, And take in attestation, witnesses, In the land of Benjamin, and In the places round about Jerusalem, and In the cities of Judah, and In the cities of the hill country, and In the cities of the lowland and In the cities of the South,—For I will cause them of their captivity to return Declareth Yahweh.

33And the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah, the second time, when he was yet imprisoned in the guard-court, saying: ²Thus, saith Yahweh, who doeth it,—Yahweh, who fashioneth it to establish it, Yahweh, is his name: ³Call unto me that I may answer thee,—and tell thee things great and inaccessible, which thou hast not known. ⁴For, Thus, saith Yahweh God of Israel, Concerning the houses of this city, and concerning the houses of the kings of Judah,—which are thrown down against the earthworks and against the sword: ⁵In entering to fight with the Chaldeans, it is to fill them with the dead bodies of men, whom I have smitten in mine anger and in mine indignation,—and because of whom I have hidden my face from this city,—by reason of all their wickedness. ⁶Behold me! laying upon her a bandage of healing, so will I heal them,—And will reveal to them abundance of prosperity and truth; ⁷And I will bring back Them of the captivity of Judah, and Them of the captivity of Israel,—And I will build them, as at the first; ⁸And I will purify them, from all their iniquity wherewith they have sinned against me,—And I will grant pardon for all their iniquities Wherewith they have sinned against me, and Wherewith they have transgressed against me; ⁹So shall she become to me—A name of joy, A praise and An adorning, To all the nations of the earth,—Who will hear all the good which I am doing them, And will dread and be deeply moved over all the good and over all the prosperity which I am causing her. ¹⁰Thus, saith Yahweh—Again, shall be heard in this place, as to which ye are saying, Deserted, it is without man or beast, In the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem, Which are desolate without man or inhabitant or beast ¹¹The voice of joy, and the voice of gladness The voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, The voice of them who are saying, Praise ye Yahweh of hosts, For good is Yahweh For age-abiding is his lovingkindness, The voice of them who are bringing a thank-offering into the house of Yahweh,—For I will bring back the captives of the land, as at the first, Saith Yahweh. ¹²Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, Again, shall there be in this place—Which is deserted without man or even beast—And all the cities thereof,—The home of shepherds, causing flocks to lie down. ¹³In the cities of the hill country, In the cities of the lowland, and In the cities of the South, and In the land of Benjamin, and In the places round about Jerusalem, and In the cities of Judah, Again shall the flock pass over the hands of the numberer, Saith Yahweh. ¹⁴Lo! days are coming, Declareth Yahweh,—when I will establish my good word, which I have spoken—As to the house of Israel And concerning the house of Judah: ¹⁵In those days and at that time, will I cause to bud unto David A Bud of righteousness,—And he shall execute justice and righteousness in the land: ¹⁶In those days, Judah shall be Saved, and I Jerusalem abide, securely,—And, this, is that which shall be proclaimed to her—Yahweh, our righteousness! ¹⁷For, Thus, saith Yahweh,—There shall not be wanting to David—A man to sit upon the throne of the house of Israel; ¹⁸Nor to the priests the Levites, shall there be wanting—A man, before me, To offer an ascending-sacrifice, or To make a perfume with a gift, or To offer a peace-offering, all the days! ¹⁹And the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah saying: ²⁰Thus, saith Yahweh, If ye can break, My covenant of the day, and My covenant of the night, That there be not day and night in their season, ²¹My covenant also, may be broken With David my servant, that he shall not have a son, to reign upon his throne,—And with the Levites the priests, mine attendants: ²²As, the host of the heavens, cannot be recorded, Nor the sand of the sea, be measured, So, will I multiply, The seed of David my servant, And the Levites who attend upon me. ²³And the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah, saying: ²⁴Hast thou not observed what, this people, have spoken saying, The two families which Yahweh did choose, he hath even east them off? And so, my people, they despise, as though they could not again become a nation in their sight! ²⁵Thus, saith Yahweh, If my covenant of day and night, the ordinances of the heavens and the earth, I did not appoint, ²⁶The seed of Jacob also and of David my servant, might I east off so as not to take of his seed as rulers unto the seed of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob,—For I will bring back them of their captivity, and will have compassion upon them.

34The word which came unto Jeremiah from Yahweh,—when Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon and all his force and all the kingdoms of the earth the dominion of his hand, and all the peoples were fighting against Jerusalem and against all her cities, saying: ²Thus, saith Yahweh God of Israel, Go and speak unto Zedekiah king of Judah,—and say unto him—Thus, saith Yahweh, Behold me! giving this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he will burn it with fire; ³And, thou, shalt not escape out of his hand, For thou shalt be, taken, And into his hand, shalt thou be delivered,—And, thine own eyes, into the eyes of the king of Babylon, shall look, And his mouth, with thy mouth, shall speak And Babylon, shalt thou enter. ⁴Nevertheless, hear the word of Yahweh, O Zedekiah, king of Judah,—Thus, saith Yahweh Concerning thee, Thou shalt not die, by the sword; ⁵In peace, shalt thou die, And with the burnings made for thy fathers the former kings who were before thee, so, shall they make a burning unto thee, And, with an, Alas lord! shall they lament thee,—Because of the word, I, have spoken, Declareth Yahweh. ⁶Then spake Jeremiah the prophet, unto Zedekiah king of Judah all these words in Jerusalem; ⁷when, the force of the king of Babylon, was fighting against Jerusalem, and against all the cities of Judah that were left,—against Lachish and against Azekah, for they, remained among the cities of Judah as fortified cities. ⁸The word which came unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh,—after that King Zedekiah had solemnised a covenant with all the people who were in Jerusalem, proclaiming unto them liberty: ⁹that every man should let his servant and every man his handmaid, being a Hebrew or a Hebrewess, go free,—so that no man should use them as slaves, to wit a Jew his brother; ¹⁰so then they hearkened—even all the princes and all the people who had entered into the covenant that every man should let his servant and every man his handmaid, go free, so as not to use them as slaves, any longer,—yea they hearkened, and let them go, ¹¹howbeit they turned after that, and brought back the servants and the handmaids whom they had let go, free, and brought them into subjection as servants and as handmaids, ¹²So then the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah from Yahweh, saying: ¹³Thus, saith Yahweh God of Israel,—I myself, solemnised a covenant with your fathers, in the day when I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of slaves saying: ¹⁴At the end of seven years, shall ye let go every man his brother, being a Hebrew, who shall sell himself unto thee and serve thee, six years, then shalt thou let him go, free, from thee, Howbeit your fathers hearkened not unto me neither inclined their ear. ¹⁵And, though, ye, just now turned and did that which was right in mine eyes, by proclaiming liberty, every man to his neighbour,—and solemnised a covenant before me, in the house on which my Name hath been called, ¹⁶yet have ye turned and profaned my Name, and brought back, every man his servant and every man his hand-maid, whom ye had let go, free, at their own desire,—and have brought them into subjection, to become your servants and handmaids. ¹⁷Therefore—Thus, saith Yahweh, Ye, have not hearkened unto me, in proclaiming liberty, every man to his brother and every man to his neighbour: Behold me! proclaiming, to you, a liberty: Declareth Yahweh unto the sword, unto the pestilence, and unto the famine, so will I make you a terror to all the kingdoms of the earth; ¹⁸and will give the men who are transgressing my covenant, in that they have not confirmed the words of the covenant, which they solemnised, before me, when they cut the calf, in twain, and passed between the parts thereof; ¹⁹even the princes of Judah, and the princes of Jerusalem, the eunuchs and the priests, and all the people of the land,—who passed between the parts of the calf, ²⁰yea I will give them into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them who are seeking their life,—and their dead bodies shall become food for the birds of the heavens, and for the beasts of the earth. ²¹Zedekiah king of Judah also with his princes, will I give into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them who are seeking their life,—even into the hand of the force of the king of Babylon, who are going up from you. ²²Behold me! giving command, Declareth Yahweh, and I will bring them back unto this city, and they will fight against it and capture it, and consume it with fire,—and, the cities of Judah, will I make too desolate to have an inhabitant.

35The word which came unto Jeremiah from Yahweh,—in the days of Jehoiakim son of Josiah king of Judah saying: ²Go unto the house of the Rechabites, and speak with them, and bring them into the house of Yahweh, into one of the chambers,—and give them, wine, to drink. ³So I took Jaazaniah, son of Jeremiah son of Habazziniah, and his brethren, and all his sons,—and all the house of the Rechabites; ⁴and brought them into the house of Yahweh, into the chamber of the sons of Hanan son of Igdaliah, a man of God,—which was beside the chamber of the princes, which was above the chamber of Maaseiah son of Shallum keeper of the porch; ⁵and I set before the sons of the house of the Rechabites bowls full of wine, and cups,—and said unto them Drink ye wine. ⁶Then said they,—We will not drink wine,—for Jonadab son of Rechab, our father, laid command upon us, saying, Ye shall not drink wine, ye, nor your sons, unto times age-abiding; ⁷nor house, shall ye build nor, seed, shall ye sow, nor vineyard, shall ye plant, neither shall ye have them,—but in tents, shall ye dwell, all your days, that ye may live many days on the face of the soil where ye are sojourning. ⁸So we have hearkened

unto the voice of Jonadab, son of Rechab, our father, in all that he commanded us,—not to drink wine all our days, we, our wives, our sons nor our daughters; ⁹and not to bud houses for us to dwell in,—and so, vineyard or field or seed, have we none; ¹⁰but we have dwelt in tents,—and have hearkened and done, according to all that Jonadab our father commanded us. ¹¹And so it came to pass when Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon came up into the land, that we said,—Let us even enter, Jerusalem, because of the force of the Chaldeans and because of the force of the Syrians: So have we dwelt in Jerusalem. ¹²Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jeremiah, saying: ¹³Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, Go and say to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem,—Will ye not receive correction by hearkening unto my words? Demandeth Yahweh: ¹⁴Confirmed are the words of Jonadab son of Rechab—which he commanded his sons that they should not drink, wine, and they have not drunk until this day, for they have hearkened unto the command of their father, But, I, have spoken unto you, betimes, speaking, and ye have not hearkened, unto me. ¹⁵And I sent unto you all my servants the prophets, betimes, sending, saying, Return I pray you—every man from his wicked way, And amend your doings, And do not go after other gods to serve them, So shall ye remain on the soil which I gave to you, and to your fathers,—but ye have not inclined your ear, nor hearkened, unto me. ¹⁶Because the sons of Jonadab son of Rechab have, confirmed, the commandment of their father which he commanded them,—whereas, this people, have not hearkened unto me, ¹⁷Therefore, Thus, saith Yahweh, God of hosts, God of Israel, Behold me! bringing in against Judah and against all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, all the calamity, which I have spoken concerning them,—Because I spake unto them and they did not hearken, And I called to them and they did not answer. ¹⁸But to the house of the Rechabites, said Jeremiah: Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, Because ye have hearkened unto the commandment of Jonadab your father, and have kept all his commandments, and done according to all that he commanded you ¹⁹Therefore, Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,—Jonadab son of Rechab shall not want one to stand before me, all the days!

36And it came to pass, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah, that this word came unto Jeremiah from Yahweh, saying: ²Take thee a scroll, and write therein all the words which I have spoken unto thee concerning Israel and concerning Judah and concerning all the nations,—from the day I began to speak unto thee from the days of Josiah, even until this day: ³Peradventure, the house of Judah will hearken unto all the calamity, which I am devising to execute against them,—to the end they may return every man from his wicked way, whereupon I will forgive their iniquity, and their sin. ⁴So Jeremiah called Baruch, son of Neriah,—and Baruch wrote, from the mouth of Jeremiah, all the words of Yahweh which he had spoken unto him upon a scroll. ⁵Then did Jeremiah command Baruch, saying,—I, am hindered, I cannot enter the house of Yahweh; ⁶Thou, therefore shalt enter and read in the roll which thou hast written from my mouth the words of Yahweh in the ears of the people in the house of Yahweh on the day of a fast,—moreover also, in the ears of all Judah who are coming in out of their cities, shalt thou read them: ⁷Peradventure, their supplication, will fall prostrate, before Yahweh, and they return every man from his wicked way,—For, great, are the anger and the indignation which Yahweh hath spoken against this people. ⁸So then Baruch son of Neriah did according to all which Jeremiah the prophet commanded him, reading in the book the words of Yahweh in the house of Yahweh. ⁹And it came to pass in the fifth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah king of Judah in the ninth month, that all the people of Jerusalem, and all the people who were coming in out of the cities of Judah into Jerusalem, had proclaimed a fast before Yahweh; ¹⁰Baruch, therefore, read in the book the words of Jeremiah, in the house of Yahweh,—in the chamber of Gemariah son of Shaphan—the scribe, in the upper court, at the opening of the new gate of the house of Yahweh, in the ears of all the people. ¹¹When Micaiah, son of Gemariah son of Shaphan, heard all the words of Yahweh out of the book, ¹²then went he down unto the house of the king up to the chamber of the scribe, and lo! there, all the princes sitting,—Elishama the scribe, and Delaiah son of Shemaiah, and Elnathan son of Achbor, and Gemariah son of Shaphan and Zedekiah son of Hananiah, and all the princes, ¹³So Micaiah told them all the words which he heard,—when Baruch read in the book in the ears of the people. ¹⁴All the princes, therefore sent unto Baruch, Jehudi, son of Nethaniah son of Shelemiah son of Cushi saying, The roll wherein thou didst read in the ears of the people, take it in thy hand, and come, So Baruch son of Neriah took the roll in his hand, and came in unto them. ¹⁵Then said they unto him, Sit down we pray thee and read it in our ears, So Baruch read it in their ears. ¹⁶And it came to pass when they heard all the words, that they turned with fear one to another,—and said unto Baruch, We must, surely tell, the king, all these words! ¹⁷Then unto Baruch, put they questions saying,—Tell us, we pray thee, How, didst thou write all these words at his mouth? ¹⁸So Baruch said unto them, With his own mouth, used he to proclaim unto me all these words,—and I kept on writing in the book, with ink. ¹⁹Then said the princes unto Baruch, Go hide thee, thou and Jeremiah, and let no man, know where ye, are! ²⁰Then went they in unto the king, into the court, but the roll, had they put in charge, in the chamber of Elishama the scribe,—so they declared in the ears of the king all the words. ²¹The king, therefore sent, Jehudi, to fetch the roll, and he fetched it out of the chamber of Elishama the scribe,—and Jehudi read it in the ears of the king, and in the ears of all the princes who were standing near the king. ²²Now, the king, was sitting in the winter house in the ninth month,—with the fire-stove before him burning. ²³So then it came to pass when Jehudi had read three or four columns that he cut it up into fragments with a scribes knife, and cast them into the fire that was in the stove,—until, all the roll, was consumed on the fire that was on the stove. ²⁴Yet were they not in dread, neither rent they their garments,—the king, nor any of his servants that were hearing all these words. ²⁵Nevertheless Elnathan and Delaiah and Gemariah, interceded with the king, not to burn the roll,—but he hearkened not unto them. ²⁶Then did the king command Jerahmeel son of the king, and Seraiah son of Azriel, and Shelemiah son of Abdeel, to fetch Baruch the scribe, and Jeremiah the prophet,—but Yahweh had hid them. ²⁷Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jeremiah, after the king had burned the roll, and the words which Baruch had written from the mouth of Jeremiah saying: ²⁸Again take thee another roll, and write thereon, all the former words which were on the first roll, which Jehoiakim king of Judah hath burned. ²⁹But unto Jehoiakim king of Judah, shalt thou say, Thus, saith Yahweh,—Thou, hast burned this roll saying, Why hast thou written thereon—saying, The king of Babylon shall, certainly, come and lay waste this land, and cause to cease therefrom man and beast? ³⁰Therefore, Thus, saith Yahweh, Concerning Jehoiakim king of Judah,—He shall have none to sit upon the throne of David,—And, his dead body, shall be cast out—to the heat by day, and to the frost by night; ³¹And I will visit upon him and upon his seed and upon his servants the punishment of their iniquity,—and will bring upon them and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem and against, the men of Judah, all the calamity, which I have spoken against them but they have not hearkened. ³²So, Jeremiah, took another roll and gave it unto Baruch son of Neriah the scribe, who wrote thereon, from the mouth of Jeremiah all the words of the book, which Jehoiakim king of Judah had burned, in the fire,—and further were added thereunto many words like unto them

37 And Zedekiah son of Josiah reigned as king, instead of Coniah son of Jehoiakim, whom Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, made king, in the land of Judah. ²But neither he, nor his servants, nor the people of the land had hearkened unto the words of Yahweh, which he had spoken through Jeremiah the prophet. ³And King Zedekiah sent Jehucal son of Shelemiah, and Zephaniah son of Maaseiah the priest unto Jeremiah the prophet saying,—Pray thou I beseech thee in our behalf, unto Yahweh, our God. ⁴Now, Jeremiah, was coming in and going out in the midst of the people, for they had not put him into prison. ⁵And the force of Pharaoh had come forth out of Egypt,—and, when the Chaldeans who were besieging Jerusalem heard the tidings of them, they went up from Jerusalem. ⁶Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jeremiah the prophet, saying: ⁷Thus, saith Yahweh, God of Israel, Thus, shall ye say unto the king of Judah, who sent you unto me to enquire of me,—Lo! the force of Pharaoh which is coming out to you to help is about to return to its own land to Egypt; ⁸Then will the Chaldeans come back, and fight against this city,—and capture it and burn it with fire. ⁹Thus, saith Yahweh,—Let not your own souls, deceive you saying, The Chaldeans will, surely depart, from us! For they will not depart; ¹⁰For though ye had smitten all the force of the Chaldeans who are fighting with you and there had remained of them only desperately wounded men, yet, every man in his tent, should have arisen and burnt this city with fire. ¹¹Now it came to pass, when the army of the Chaldeans, had gone up from Jerusalem,—because of the force of Pharaoh, ¹²then went forth Jeremiah out of Jerusalem to go into the land of Benjamin,—to receive a portion from thence in the midst of the people. ¹³And so it came to pass he being in the gate of Benjamin and there being there a ward-master whose name was Irijah son of Shelemiah son of Hananiah, that he seized Jeremiah the prophet, saying, Unto the Chaldeans, art thou falling away! ¹⁴Then said Jeremiah, False! I am not falling away unto the Chaldeans! Howbeit he hearkened not unto him,—so Irijah seized Jeremiah, and brought him in unto the princes. ¹⁵Then were the princes wroth against Jeremiah, and smote him,—and put him in prison, in the house of Jonathan the scribe, for that, had they made the prison. ¹⁶When Jeremiah had entered into the dungeon-house and into the cells, and Jeremiah, had remained there many days, ¹⁷then sent King Zedekiah—and fetched him, and the king asked him, in his own house secretly, and said,—Is there a word from Yahweh? And Jeremiah said,—There is, for (said he), Into the hand of the king of Babylon, shalt thou be delivered! ¹⁸And Jeremiah said unto King Zedekiah,—What sin have I committed against thee, or against thy servants or against this people, that ye have delivered me up into prison? ¹⁹Where, then are your prophets, who prophesied unto you saying,—The king of Babylon shall not come, against you nor against this land? ²⁰Now therefore, hear I beseech thee, O my lord the king,—Let my, supplication, I pray thee, fall prostrate before thee, and do not cause me to return unto the house of Jonathan the scribe, lest I die there! ²¹Then King Zedekiah gave command and they committed Jeremiah into the guard-court, and said that there should be given him a cake of bread daily, out of the bakers street, until all the bread out of the city should be spent, So Jeremiah remained in the guard-court.

38And, when Shephatiah son of Mattan and Gedaliah son of Pashhur and Jucal son of Shelemiah, and Pashhur son of Malchiah, heard the words which Jeremiah was speaking unto all the people saying: ²Thus saith Yahweh, He that remaineth in this city shall die, by sword by famine, or by pestilence,—whereas, he that goeth forth unto the Chaldeans, shall live, so shall he have his life for a spoil, and shall live. ³Thus, saith Yahweh,—This city shall surely be given, into the hand of the force of the king of Babylon, and he shall capture it. ⁴Then said the princes unto the king,—Let this man we pray thee, be put to death, for in this way, is he weakening the hands of the men of war who are left in this, city, and the hands of all the people, by speaking unto them such words as these; for, this man, is not seeking prosperity for this people but misfortune. ⁵Then said King Zedekiah,—Lo! he is in your hand; for the king is not one who is able to do anything against you. ⁶Then took they Jeremiah and cast him into the dungeon of Malchiah son of the king, which was in the guard-court, and they let Jeremiah down with ropes,—now, in the dungeon, was no water only mire, so Jeremiah sank in the mire. ⁷When Ebed-melech the Ethiopian one of the eunuchs, he being in the house of the king, heard that they had delivered Jeremiah into the dungeon,—the king being seated in the gate of Benjamin, ⁸then went forth Ebed-melech out of the house of the king, and spake unto the king, saying: ⁹My lord, O King! wickedly, have these men done all that they have done to Jeremiah the prophet, whom indeed they have cast into the dungeon,—since he would have died where he was because of the famine, for there is no bread any longer, in the city. ¹⁰Then the king commanded Ebed-melech the Ethiopian saying,—Take with thee from hence thirty men, and lift Jeremiah the prophet out of the dungeon before he die. ¹¹So Ebed-melech took the men with him, and went into the house of the king under the treasury, and took thence pieces of cast-off clothes, and old rags,—and let them down unto Jeremiah in the dungeon with the ropes. ¹²Then said Ebed-melech the Ethiopian unto Jeremiah,—Put, I pray thee the pieces of cast-off clothes and the old rags under thine arm-joints, under the ropes, And Jeremiah did so, ¹³Then drew they Jeremiah with the ropes, and lifted him up out of the dungeon,—and Jeremiah remained in the guard-court. ¹⁴Then King Zedekiah sent and fetched Jeremiah the prophet unto him, in the third entrance, which is in the house of Yahweh,—and the king said unto Jeremiah—I am going to ask thee a thing, do not hide anything from me. ¹⁵Then said Jeremiah unto Zedekiah, When I tell thee, wilt thou not, surely put me to death? And when I counsel thee, thou wilt not hearken unto me. ¹⁶So King Zedekiah aware unto Jeremiah secretly saying,—By the life of Yahweh who made for us, this soul, I will in no wise put thee to death, Neither will I deliver thee into the hand of these men who are seeking thy life. ¹⁷Then said Jeremiah unto Zedekiah—Thus, saith Yahweh God of hosts, God of Israel—If thou wilt, indeed go forth, unto the princes of the king of Babylon, then shall thine own soul live, and, this city, shall not be burned with fire,—but thou shalt live, thou and thy house. ¹⁸But, if thou wilt not go forth unto the princes of the king of Babylon, then shall this city be delivered into the hand of the Chaldeans, and they shall burn it with fire, and, thou, shalt not escape out of their hand. ¹⁹Then said King Zedekiah unto Jeremiah: I am afraid of the Jews who have fallen away unto the Chaldeans, lest they deliver me, into their hand, and they maltreat me. ²⁰But Jeremiah said, They shall not deliver!—Hearken I pray thee unto the voice of Yahweh in what I am speaking unto thee, that it may be well with thee and thy soul live. ²¹But if thou art refusing to go forth, this, is the thing which Yahweh hath shewed me:— ²²behold, then, all the women that are left in the house of the king of Judah, brought forth unto the princes of the king of Babylon,—and, these very women, saying, The men thou wast wont to salute, have goaded thee on and prevailed upon thee,—Thy foot having sunk in the mire, they have turned away back. ²³Yea thou shalt behold all thy wives and thy children brought forth unto the Chaldeans, and thou, shalt not escape out of their hand,—but by the hand of the king of Babylon, shalt thou be taken, and, this city, shall be burned with fire. ²⁴Then said Zedekiah unto Jeremiah—Do not let, any man, know of these words, and thou shalt not die. ²⁵But, when the princes hear that I have spoken with thee and they come in unto thee and say unto thee—Do tell us we pray thee what thou didst speak unto the king, do not hide it from us so will we not put thee to death,—and what spake the king unto, thee? ²⁶Then shalt thou say unto them,—I was causing my supplication to fall prostrate before the king,—that he would not cause me to return to the house of Jonathan, to die there. ²⁷Then came in all the princes unto Jeremiah and asked him, and he told them according to all these words which the king, had commanded,—so they turned in silence from him, for the matter, had not been reported. ²⁸So Jeremiah remained in the guard-court, until the day when Jerusalem, was captured; thus it fell out when Jerusalem, was captured.

39In the ninth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the tenth month, came Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon and all his force against Jerusalem, and they besieged it. ²In the eleventh year of Zedekiah, in the fourth month on the ninth of the month, was the city broken into. ³Then came in all the princes of the king of Babylon, and sat in the middle gate,—Nergal-sharezer, Samgar-nebo, Sarsechim, chief eunuch Nergal-sharezer, chief soothsayer, and all the residue of the princes of the king of Babylon. ⁴And it came to pass as soon as Zedekiah king of Judah and all the men of war saw them, that they fled, and went forth by night out of the city, by way of the king's garden, through the gate between the two walls,—and he went forth by way of the waste plain. ⁵But the force of the Chaldeans pursued them, and overtook Zedekiah in the waste plains of Jericho, and when they had taken him, they brought him up unto Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, to Riblah, in the land of Hamath,—and pronounced upon him sentences of judgment. ⁶And the king of Babylon slew the sons of Zedekiah, in Riblah before his eyes,—and all the nobles of Judah, did the king of Babylon slay; ⁷and the eyes of Zedekiah, did he put out, and bound him with fetters of bronze to bring him into Babylon. ⁸And the house of the king, and the houses of the people, did the Chaldeans burn with fire, and the walls of Jerusalem, brake they down; ⁹and the remnant of the people who were left in the city, and the disheartened who fell away unto him, and the remnant of the people who were left, did Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners, take captive to Babylon. ¹⁰But of the poor people, who had, nothing, did Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners, leave remaining in the land of Judah, and gave them vineyards and ploughed fields on the same day. ¹¹Then Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon gave command, concerning Jeremiah,—through Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners saying: ¹²Take him and, thine eyes, set thou upon him, and do not unto him any harmful thing,—but just as he shall speak unto thee, so, shalt thou do with him. ¹³So Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners, sent, also Nebushazban, chief of the eunuchs, and Nergal-sharezer chief of the magi, and all the chiefs of the king of Babylon; ¹⁴yea they sent and fetched Jeremiah out of the guard-court, and delivered him unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan, to bring him forth into a home, so he dwelt in the midst of the people. ¹⁵Now unto Jeremiah, had come the word of Yahweh, while he was yet shut up in the guard-court, saying: ¹⁶Go and speak to Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, saying,—Thus saith Yahweh of hosts God of Israel, Behold me! bringing about my words against this city, for, calamity—and not for blessing,—and they shall come to pass before thee, in that day. ¹⁷But I will deliver thee in that day, Declareth Yahweh,—and thou shalt not be given up into the hand of the men from the face of whom, thou, mightest shrink with fear. ¹⁸For I wilt, surely, deliver, thee, and by the sword, shalt thou not fall,—but thou shalt have thine own life as a spoil, Because thou hast trusted in me, Declareth Yahweh.

40The thing that happened unto Jeremiah, from Yahweh, after Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners had let him go from Ramah,—when he had taken him, he having been bound in fetters in the midst of all the captive-host of Jerusalem, and Judah, who were being carried away captive to Babylon. ²So then the, chief of the royal executioners took Jeremiah,—and said unto him, Yahweh thy God had threatened this calamity against this place; ³and so Yahweh hath brought it about and done it just as he threatened,—for ye have sinned against Yahweh, and have not hearkened unto his voice, and so this thing hath befallen you. ⁴Now, therefore, lo! I have loosed thee today, from the fetters which were upon thy hand: If it be good in thine eyes to come with me into Babylon, come, and I will set mine eyes upon thee, but if evil in thine eyes to come with me into Babylon, forbear,—see! all the land, is before thee, whither it may be good and right in thine eyes to go, thither, go! ⁵And ere yet he could make reply—Go thou back then unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan, whom the king of Babylon hath set in charge over the cities of Judah, and dwell thou with him in the midst of the people, or whithersoever it may be right in thine eyes to go, go! So the chief of the royal executioners gave him an allowance and a present and let him go. ⁶Then came Jeremiah unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam to Mizpah, and dwelt with him in the midst of the people who were left in the land. ⁷Now, when all the captains of the forces which were in the field—they and their men, heard that the king of Babylon had set Gedaliah son of Ahikam in charge over the land,—and that he had committed to him men and women and children, and the poor of the land of those who had not been carried away captive to Babylon, ⁸then came they in unto Gedaliah in Mizpah,—both Ishmael son of Nethaniah and Johanan and Jonathan sons of Kareah, and Seraiah son of Tanhumeth and the sons of Ephai the Netophathite and Jezaniah son of the Maachathite, they and their men. ⁹Then Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan swats unto them, and to their men saying, Do not be afraid of serving the Chaldeans,—dwell in the land and serve the king of Babylon that it may be well with you. ¹⁰But as for me, behold me! remaining in Mizpah, to stand before the Chaldeans who may come unto us, Ye, however, gather ye wine and summer fruits and oil, and put them in your vessels, and dwell in your reties which ye have seized. ¹¹Likewise also, all the Jews, who were in Moab and among the sons of Ammon and in Edom and who were in any of the lands, when they heard that the king of Babylon had granted a remnant to Judah, and that he had set in charge over them Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan, ¹²yea, then returned all the Jews out of all the places whither they had been driven, and came into the land of Judah unto Gedaliah, in Mizpah,—and gathered wine and summer fruits in great abundance. ¹³But, Johanan son of Kareah, and all the princes of the forces which were in the field, came unto Gedaliah in Mizpah, ¹⁴and said unto him—Dost thou at all know, that, Baalis, king of the sons of Ammon, hath sent Ishmael son of Nethaniah, to smite thee to death? But Gedaliah son of Ahikam, believed them not. ¹⁵Then, Johanan son of Kareah, spake unto Gedaliah secretly, in Mizpah, saying,—Let me go I pray thee, and smite Ishmael son of Nethaniah, and not, a man, shall know it,—wherefore should he smite thee to death, and all Judah who have gathered themselves unto thee, be dispersed, and the remnant of Judah perish?

41And it came to pass in the seventh month, that Ishmael son of Nethaniah son of Elishama of the seed royal and chiefs of the king, and ten men with him, came in, unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam, at Mizpah,—and they did there eat bread together in Mizpah. ²Then arose Ishmael son of Nethaniah—and the ten men who were with him and they smote Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan—with the sword and slew him whom the king of Babylon had set in charge, over the land. ³And Ishmael smote, all the Jews who were with him even with Gedaliah in Mizpah, and the Chaldeans who were found there the men of war. ⁴And it came to pass, on the second day, after he had slain Gedaliah, not, a man, knowing it, ⁵that men came in from Shechem, from Shiloh, and from Samaria,—eighty men, with beards shaven and clothes rent who also had cut themselves, with a meal-offering and frankincense in their hand, to bring them into the house of Yahweh. ⁶Then went forth Ishmael son of Nethaniah to meet them out of Mizpah, weeping all along as he went,—and it came to pass when he fell in with them, that he said unto them, Come ye in unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam. ⁷And so it was when they had come into the midst of the city, that Ishmael son of Nethaniah slew them and east them into the midst of a pit, he and the men who were with him. ⁸But, ten men, were found among them, who said unto Ishmael—Do not put us to death, for we have secret treasures in the field, wheat and barley and oil and honey, So he forbore and put them not to death in the midst of their brethren. ⁹Now the pit whereinto Ishmael cast all the dead bodies of the men whom he had smitten, was a large pit which King Asa had made for fear of Baasha king of Israel,—the same, did Ishmael son of Nethaniah fill with the slain, ¹⁰Then did Ishmael take captive all the remnant of the people that was in Mizpah,—the daughters of the king, and all the people that were left remaining in Mizpah, whom Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners had committed unto Gedaliah son of Ahikam,—yea Ishmael son of Nethaniah took them captive, and departed to pass over unto the sons of Ammon. ¹¹But when Johanan son of Kareah and all the captains of the forces who were with him heard of all the wickedness which Ishmael son of Nethaniah had done, ¹²then took they all the men, and went their way to fight with Ishmael son of Nethaniah,—and found him near the many waters which were in Gibeon. ¹³And it came to pass, when all the people who were with Ishmael saw Johanan son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces who were with him, then were they glad. ¹⁴So all the people whom Ishmael had carried away captive out of Mizpah, compassed about, and returned and went their way unto Johanan son of Kareah. ¹⁵But, Ishmael son of Nethaniah, escaped with eight men, from the face of Johanan,—and departed unto the sons of Ammon. ¹⁶Then did Johanan son of Kareah and all the captains of the forces who were with him take all the remnant of the people whom he had recovered from Ishmael son of Nethaniah out of Mizpah, after he had smitten Gedaliah son of Ahikam,—mighty men, men of war, and women and children and eunuchs, whom he had recovered out of Gibeon; ¹⁷and they departed, and dwelt in the khan of Chimham, which is near Bethlehem,—that they might go to enter Egypt; ¹⁸because of the Chaldeans, for they were afraid of them,—because Ishmael son of Nethaniah had smitten Gedaliah son of Ahikam, whom the king of Babylon had set in charge over the land.

42Then drew near all the captains of the forces, and Johanan son of Kareah and Jezaniah son of Hoshaiah,—and all the people from the least even unto the greatest; ²and said unto Jeremiah the prophet—Let our supplication we beseech thee fall prostrate before thee, and pray thou in our behalf unto Yahweh thy God, in behalf of all this remnant,—for we are left a few out of many, just as thine own eyes do behold us: ³that Yahweh thy God may tell us the way wherein we should walk,—and the thing that we should do. ⁴And Jeremiah the prophet, said unto them, I have heard; behold me! praying unto Yahweh your God according to your words,—and it shall come to pass that the whole thing that Yahweh shall answer you, I will tell you, I will keep back from you, nothing. ⁵They, therefore said unto Jeremiah, Yahweh be against us, as a witness true and faithful,—if according to all the word which Yahweh thy God shall send thee unto us, so we do not perform: ⁶whether for good or for ill, unto the voice of Yahweh our God for which we are sending thee unto him, will we hearken,—to the end it may be well with us, because we will hearken unto the voice of Yahweh our God. ⁷And it came to pass at the end of ten days, that the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah. ⁸Then called he for Johanan son of Kareah, and for all the princes of the forces who were with him—and for all the people from the least even unto the greatest; ⁹and said unto them, Thus, saith Yahweh, God of Israel—unto whom ye sent me, to cause your supplication to fall prostrate before him:—¹⁰If ye will indeed abide, in this land, then will I build you up, and not pull you down, and plant you and not uproot you,—for I have compassion as touching the calamity which I have caused you. ¹¹Do not fear the face of the king of Babylon, of whose face ye are afraid,—do not fear him, Urgeth Yahweh, for with you, am I, to save you, and to deliver you out of his hand: ¹²that I may grant you compassions and he may have compassion upon you,—and suffer you to return unto your own soil. ¹³But, since ye are saying,—We will not dwell in this land,—nor hearken unto the voice of Yahweh your God: ¹⁴saying,—No! for, into the land of Egypt, will we go, where we shall not see war, nor the sound of a horn, shall we hear,—nor for bread, shall we be famished,—there, then will we dwell ¹⁵Now, therefore, for this cause, hear ye the word of Yahweh, O remnant of Judah,—Thus! saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,—If, ye do indeed set your faces to enter Egypt and do enter to sojourn there, ¹⁶then shall it come to pass that the sword which ye are fearing shall, there, overtake you, in the land of Egypt,—and the famine which ye are dreading, shall, there, lay fast hold of you, in Egypt, and, there, shall ye die. ¹⁷So shall it be with all the men who have set their faces to enter Egypt to sojourn there, they shall die by sword, by famine or by pestilence,—and they shall have neither survival nor escape, from the face of the calamity which I am about to bring in upon them. ¹⁸For—Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel,—Just as mine anger and mine indignation have been poured out upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so shall mine indignation be poured out upon you when ye enter into Egypt,—thus shall ye become a curse, and an astonishment and a contempt and a reproach, and ye shall no more see this place. ¹⁹Yahweh hath spoken concerning you, O ye remnant of Judah, Do not enter into Egypt: Know certainly, that I have taken you to witness to-day. ²⁰For ye have deceived yourselves at the cost of your lives, for, ye yourselves, sent me unto Yahweh your God, saying,—Pray thou in our behalf, unto Yahweh our God,—and according to all that Yahweh our God shall say, so, tell us and we will do it. ²¹Therefore have I told you to-day,—and yet ye have not hearkened unto the voice of Yahweh your God, even in any thing for which he hath sent me unto you. ²²Now, therefore, know ye certainly, that by sword, by famine, or by pestilence, shall ye die,—in the place whither ye have desired to go, to sojourn.

43And it came to pass, when Jeremiah had made an end of speaking unto all the people all the words of Yahweh their God, with which Yahweh their God had sent him unto them,—even all these words, ²then spake Azariah son of Hoshaiah, and Johanan son of Kareah, and all the proud men,—saying unto Jeremiah—Falsely, art thou speaking, Yahweh our God hath not sent thee to say, Ye shall not enter Egypt to sojourn there; ³but Baruch son of Neriah, is goading thee on against us,—that he may deliver us into the hand of the Chaldeans, to put us to death, or take us away captive to Babylon. ⁴So Johanan son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces and all the people, hearkened not, unto the voice of Yahweh,—by remaining in the land of Judah; ⁵but Johanan son of Kareah and all the captains of the forces took all the remnant of Judah, who had returned, out of all the nations whither they had been driven to sojourn in the land of Judah: ⁶both the men and the women and the children, and the daughters of the king, and every soul that Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners had left, with Gedaliah son of Ahikam son of Shaphan,—and Jeremiah the prophet, and Baruch son of Neriah; ⁷and entered the land of Egypt, for they hearkened not unto the voice of Yahweh,—yea entered as far as Tahpanhes. ⁸Then came the word of Yahweh unto Jeremiah, in Tahpanhes, saying: ⁹Take in thy hand great stones and hide them in the mortar that is in the brickyard which is at the entrance of the house of Pharaoh in Tahpanhes,—before the eyes of the men of Judah. ¹⁰Then shalt thou say unto them—Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel—Behold me! sending and fetching Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, my servant, and I will set his throne over these stones which I have hid,—and he shall spread his canopy over them. ¹¹And when he entereth, then will he smite the land of Egypt and deliver Him who is for death to death and Him who is for captivity to captivity, and Him who is for the sword to the sword. ¹²So will I kindle a fire in the houses of the gods of Egypt, and he shall burn them and carry them away Captive,—and shall wrap the land of Egypt about him, just as a shepherd, wrappeth about, him his garment, and shall go forth from thence in peace; ¹³And he shall break in pieces the pillars of Beth-shemesh, which is in the land of Egypt,—And the houses of the gods of Egypt, shall he burn with fire.

44The word which came to Jeremiah, against all the Jews who were dwelling in the land of Egypt,—who were dwelling in Migdol and in Tahpanhes, and in Noph, and in the land of Pathros saying: ²Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, Ye yourselves, saw all the calamity which I brought in upon Jerusalem, and upon all the cities of Judah,—and there they are, a desolation this day, and there is not in them an inhabitant: ³because of their wickedness which they committed, provoking me to anger, by going to burn incense, to serve other gods, whom they had not known, they, ye nor your fathers; ⁴yet I sent unto you all my servants the prophets, betimes sending them, saying, Do not, I pray you, commit this abominable thing, which I hate! ⁵but they hearkened not neither inclined their ear, by turning from their wickedness,—so as not to burn incense to other gods. ⁶Therefore were mine indignation and mine anger poured out, and a fire was kindled in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem,—and they became waste and desolate, as at this day. ⁷Now, therefore, Thus, saith Yahweh God of hosts God of Israel—Wherefore, are ye committing a great wickedness against your own lives, that ye should cut off from you man and woman child and suckling, out of the midst of Judah,—so that there should not be left you a remnant: ⁸in that ye provoke me to anger by the works of your own hands, burning incense to other gods, in the land of Egypt, which ye have been entering to sojourn,—that ye should cut them off from you, and that ye should become a contempt and a reproach among all the nations of the earth? ⁹Have ye forgotten the wicked ways of your fathers and the wicked ways of the kings of Judah, and the wicked ways of his wives, and your own

wicked ways, and the wicked ways of your own wives,—which they committed in the land of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem? ¹⁰They have not been crushed, unto this day; neither have they been afraid, neither have they walked in my law, and in my statutes, which I set before you and before your fathers, ¹¹Therefore, Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts God of Israel, Behold me! setting my face against you for calamity,—even to cut off all Judah; ¹²and I will take the remnant of Judah who did set their faces to enter the land of Egypt to sojourn there, and they shall all be consumed, in the land of Egypt, shall they fall by the sword, by famine, shall they be consumed, from the least even unto the greatest, by sword and by famine, shall they die,—so shall they become a curse, and an astonishment, and a contempt and a reproach; ¹³and I will bring punishment upon them who are dwelling in the land of Egypt, just as I brought punishment upon Jerusalem,—by sword, by famine and by pestilence; ¹⁴and there shall be neither escape nor survival, unto the remnant of Judah who have been entering, to sojourn there into the land of Egypt,—that they should return to the land of Judah even when they are lifting up their soul to return to dwell there, for none shall return, saving fugitives. ¹⁵Then all the men who knew that their wives were burning incense to other gods, and all the women standing by, a great convocation,—with all the people who were dwelling in the land of Egypt in Pathros, made answer unto Jeremiah, saying: ¹⁶As touching the word which thou hast spoken unto us, in the name of Yahweh we are not going to hearken unto thee; ¹⁷but, we will certainly do, the whole thing that hath gone forth out of our own mouth, by burning incense to the queen of the heavens, and pouring out to her drink-offerings, just as we and our fathers, and our kings and our princes, did, in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem, then were we filled with bread and became prosperous, and calamity, saw we none; ¹⁸whereas, from the very time we ceased burning incense to the queen of the heavens and pouring out to her drink-offerings, we have lacked everything,—and by sword and by famine, have we been consumed. ¹⁹And, though we are burning incense to the queen of the heavens and pouring out to her drink-offerings, is it, without our men that we have made to her sacrificial cakes as images of her and poured out to her, drink-offerings? ²⁰Then spake Jeremiah unto all the people,—against the men and against the women, and against all the people who had been making any answer unto him, saying: ²¹Was it not, the very incense which ye burned in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, ye and your fathers your kings and your princes and the people of the land, was it not those very things, that Yahweh did remember, and that came up on his heart; ²²so that Yahweh could no longer forbear because of the wickedness of your doings, because of the abominations which ye committed,—and your land became a desolation, and an astonishment, and a contempt without inhabitant—as at this day? ²³Because that ye burned incense, and that ye sinned against Yahweh and hearkened not unto the voice of Yahweh, and, in his law and in his statutes and in his testimonies, did not walk, for this cause, did this calamity befall you—as at this day. ²⁴And Jeremiah said unto all the people, and unto all the women,—Hear ye the word of Yahweh, all Judah, who are in the land of Egypt,—²⁵Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, saying, Ye and your wives, have both spoken with your mouth and with your hands, have ye fulfilled saying, We will, certainly perform, our vows which we have vowed, to burn incense to the queen of the heavens, and to pour out to her drink-offerings: the women will certainly confirm, your vows, and, certainly perform, your vows. ²⁶Therefore, hear ye the word of Yahweh, all Judah, who are dwelling in the land of Egypt,—Behold me! I have sworn by my great Name, Saith Yahweh, That my Name shall no more be invoked by the mouth of any man of Judah saying—By the life of My Lord, Yahweh in all the land of Egypt. ²⁷Behold me! watching over them for calamity, and not for blessing,—so shall all the men of Judah who are in the land of Egypt, be consumed, by sword and by famine until there be an end of them. ²⁸Yet, the fugitives of the sword, shall certainly return out of the land of Egypt into the land of Judah men easily counted,—that all the remnant of Judah who are entering Egypt to sojourn there, may know, whose word, shall stand, mine or theirs! ²⁹And, this, to you, shall be the sign, Declareth Yahweh, that I am about to bring punishment upon you in this place,—that ye may know that my words shall, certainly stand against you, for calamity: ³⁰Thus, saith Yahweh, Behold me! delivering up Pharaoh-hophra king of Egypt into the hand of his enemies, yea into the hand of them who are seeking his life,—just as I delivered Zedekiah king of Judah into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon his enemy, and one seeking his life.

45 The word which Jeremiah the prophet spake, unto Baruch son of Neriah,—when he had written these words upon a book, from the mouth of Jeremiah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah saying—²Thus, saith Yahweh, God of Israel, Unto thee, O Baruch,—³Thou didst say, Surely woe to me! For Yahweh hath added sorrow unto my pain,—I am weary with my moaning, And rest, have I not found! ⁴Thus, shalt thou say unto him Thus, saith Yahweh,—Lo! what I had built, I am pulling down, And what I had planted, I am rooting up,—And that is, all the land: ⁵Wouldst, thou, then seek to secure for thyself great things? Do not seek! For behold me! bringing in calamity upon all flesh, Declareth Yahweh, Nevertheless I will give thee thine own life as a spoil, in all places whithersoever thou goest.

46 So much of the word of Yahweh as came unto Jeremiah

the prophet concerning the nations. ²Of Egypt, Concerning the force of Pharaoh-necho, king of Egypt, which was by the river Euphrates, in Carchemish,—which Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, smote, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim son of Josiah, king of Judah:—³Prepare ye buckler and shield, And draw near to battle: ⁴Harness the horses, and mount, ye horsemen, Stand forth in helmets,—Polish the lances, put on the coats of mail. ⁵Why have I seen it? They, panic-struck, are drawing back, Yea, their heroes, are crushed, Yea they have, fled, and not turned,—Terror round about! Declareth Yahweh. ⁶Let not the swift, flee, Nor let the hero, escape,—Northward, beside the river Euphrates, have they stumbled, and fallen. ⁷Who is it that is like the Nile when it riseth, Like rivers when his waters are tossed? ⁸Egypt was like the Nile when it riseth, And like rivers, when the waters are tossed: So he said—I will rise, I will cover the earth, I will destroy the city, and the dwellers therein. ⁹Mount the horses, And drive the chariots madly on, So let the heroes, go forth,—Ethiopians and Libyans that grasp the buckler, And Lydians that grasp—that tread—the bow, But, that day, belongeth to My Lord Yahweh of hosts—¹⁰A day of avenging, to avenge him of his adversaries, When the sword shall devour and be filled, and be sated with their blood,—For, a sacrifice, hath My Lord, Yahweh of hosts, In the land of the North Towards the river Euphrates. ¹¹Go up to Gilead and fetch balsam, O virgin daughter of Egypt! In vain, hast thou multiplied remedies, Healing, there is none for thee. ¹²The nations have heard of thy disgrace, And, thine outcry, hath filled the earth,—For hero against hero, have they stumbled, Together, have fallen, the twain! ¹³The word which Yahweh spake unto Jeremiah the prophet,—as to the coming of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon to smite the land of Egypt:—¹⁴Tell ye it in Egypt, And let it be heard in Migdol, Yea let it be heard in Noph, and in Tahpanhes,—Say ye—Stand thou forth, and prepare thyself, For a sword hath devoured round about thee. ¹⁵Wherefore have thy valiant ones been laid prostrate? He hath made no stand, because, Yahweh, hath driven him back: ¹⁶Hath made many a one to be stumbling, Yea fallen is every one against his neighbour, So they have said—Arise and let us return to our own people, And unto the land of our birth, From the face of the sword of the oppressor. ¹⁷Proclaim ye a name,—Pharaoh, king of Egypt—a Sound! He hath overstepped the time appointed! ¹⁸As I live, saith the King, Yahweh of hosts, is his name: Though Like Tabor among mountains, Like Carmel, Into the sea shall he go! ¹⁹Baggage for captivity, prepare thee, O inhabitress, daughter of Egypt; For, Noph, shall become a desolation, And be burned without inhabitant. ²⁰A calf of great beauty, is Egypt: The gad-fly, out of the North, cometh—cometh. ²¹Even her hirelings in her midst are like fatted calves, For, even they, have turned—have fled at once! have made no stand! For, their day of doom, hath come upon them, The time of their visitation. ²²Her noise, like a serpent, departeth,—For, with a force, they advance, And with axes, have they come against her, like them who fell trees: ²³They have cut down her forest Declareth Yahweh, Surely he cannot be searched out,—For they have outnumbered locusts, and cannot be counted. ²⁴Put to shame is the daughter of Egypt,—She hath been delivered into the hand of the people of the North. ²⁵Saith Yahweh of host God of Israel,—Behold me! bringing punishment—against Amon of No, and upon Pharaoh and upon Egypt, and upon her gods and upon her kings,—Even upon Pharaoh, and upon all that trust in him; ²⁶And I will deliver them—Into the hand of them who are seeking their life, Even into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon And into the hand of his servants,—And after that, shall it be inhabited as in the days of old Declareth Yahweh. ²⁷Thou, therefore, do not fear, O my Servant Jacob Nor be dismayed O Israel, For behold me! Saving thee from afar, And thy seed from the land of their captivity,—So shall Jacob return and be quiet and shall rest, With none to occasion alarm. ²⁸Thou, do not fear, O my Servant Jacob, Urgeth Yahweh, For, with thee, am I: Though I make an end of all the nations whither I have driven thee, Yet of thee, will I not make an end, But will correct thee in measure, And not hold thee, guiltless, 47 So much of the word of Yahweh as came unto Jeremiah the prophet, Against the Philistines,—before Pharaoh smote Gaza: ²Thus, saith Yahweh—Lo! waters rising from the North And they shall become a torrent overflowing, Which shall overflow The land and the fulness thereof, The city, and the dwellers therein,—Then shall men make outcry, And all the inhabitants of the land, howl. ³Because of the sound of the tramping of the hoofs of his chargers, Because of the rushing of his chariots, the rumbling of his wheels Fathers shall not turn, to children, Because of the unnerving of their hands; ⁴On account of the day that cometh to lay waste all the Philistines, To cut off from Tyre and Zidon every escaped one that could have helped,—For Yahweh is laying waste the Philistines, The remnant of the Coastland of Caphtor. ⁵Baldness hath come, upon Gaza, Silenced is Ashkelon the remnant of their vale,—How long, wilt thou cut thyself? ⁶Ah! thou sword of Yahweh, How long, wilt thou not be quiet? Withdraw into thy scabbard, Rest thyself and be still. ⁷How, can it be quiet, when, Yahweh, hath given it a charge,—against Ashkelon and against the shore of the sea? There, hath he appointed it!

48 Of Moab,—Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts God of Israel,—Alas for Nebo, for it is laid waste, put to shame—captured, is Kiriathaim, put to shame is Misgab, and dismayed. ²No more, is the praise of Moab, In Heshbon, have they devised against her, calamity, Come, and let us cut her off from being a nation,—Even thou, Madmen also, shalt be silenced,

After thee, shall march the sword. ³A voice of outcry, from Horonaim,—Wasting and great destruction! ⁴Moab is broken: Her little ones, have caused to be heard an outcry. ⁵For the ascent of Luhith, with weeping, one ascendeth—with weeping,—For in the descent of Horonaim, the distress of the outcry of destruction, have they heard: ⁶Flee deliver your own lives,—Then shall the women be as a shrub in the desert. ⁷For seeing thou hast trusted in thy works and in thy treasures, Thou too, shalt be captured,—Then shall Chemosh go forth into captivity, His priests and his princes together. ⁸And the spoiler shall enter into every city, And not, a city, shall escape, Then shall perish the vale Then be destroyed the table-land,—As Yahweh hath said. ⁹Give wing to Moab, For she must, fly away; And her cities To desolation, shall be turned, With no inhabitant therein. ¹⁰Accursed be he that doeth the business of Yahweh carelessly; And, accursed be he that withholdeth his sword, from blood! ¹¹Moab, hath been at ease from his youth, And settled is he upon his lees, And hath not been poured out from vessel to vessel, Nor into captivity, hath gone,—For this cause, hath his flavour stood still within him, And his scent is unchanged. ¹²Therefore, lo! days are coming, Declareth Yahweh, When I will send to him tilters and they shall tilt him,—And his vessels, shall they empty, And their jars, shall they dash in pieces. ¹³Then shall Moab, be ashamed, of, Chemosh,—Just as, the sons of Israel, were ashamed of Bethel their confidence. ¹⁴How can ye say, Heroes, are we? and Men of might for the war? ¹⁵Spoiled is Moab And her cities, hath he ascended, And the choice of his young men, have gone down to the slaughter,—Declareth The King, Yahweh of hosts, is his Name. ¹⁶Near is the doom of Moab, to come,—And, his calamity, hasteth greatly. ¹⁷Lament ye for him—All that are round about him, and All that know his name,—Say, How is broken—The staff of strength! The rod of beauty! ¹⁸Come down from glory, and sit in thirst, O inhabitress daughter of Dibon; For the spoiler of Moab, hath come up against thee, He hath laid in ruins thy strongholds. ¹⁹Near the way, take thy stand and keep outlook, O inhabitress of Aroer: Ask—him that fleeth, and Her that hath escaped, Say, What hath happened? ²⁰Confounded is Moab! For it is broken down! Howl and make outcry,—Tell ye in Arnon, That Moab is spoiled; ²¹And, judgment, hath come Upon the country of the table-land,—Upon Holon, and Upon Jazer and Upon Mephaath; ²²and Upon Dibon, and Upon Nebo, and Upon Beth-diblathaim; ²³and Upon Kiriathaim, and Upon Beth-gamul, and Upon Beth-meon; ²⁴and Upon Kerioth, and Upon Bozrah,—Yea, upon all the cities of the land of Moab, far and near. ²⁵Cut off is the horn of Moab, Yea, his arm, is broken,—Declareth Yahweh. ²⁶Make ye him drunken, Because against Yahweh, hath he magnified himself; So shall, Moab, stagger, into his own vomit, And shall become a derision, even he! ²⁷And was it not, a derision, that Israel became to thee? And was it not among thieves, he was found? For, as often as thou didst speak of him, thou didst wag the head! ²⁸Leave ye the cities and dwell in the cliff, Ye inhabitants of Moab; And become ye as a dove, that maketh her nest in the further-side of the fissure mouth. ²⁹We have heard the arrogance of Moab—proud exceedingly: His loftiness and his arrogance and his majesty, and his elevation of heart! ³⁰I know—Declareth Yahweh His passion—that 'tis Unjust! His boastings, that Untrue have they made them! ³¹For this cause over Moab, will I howl, And for all Moab, will I make outcry,—For the men of Kir-heres, must one moan! ³²Beyond the weeping of Jazer, will I weep for thee O vine of Sibmah, Thy tendrils, have gone over the sea, Unto the sea of Jazer, have they reached, Upon thy summer fruits And upon thy vintage, the spoiler, hath fallen. ³³So shall be withdrawn gladness and exultation—From the fruitful field and From the land of Moab,—And wine from the vats, have I caused to fail, They shall not tread with shouting, The shouting shall be no shouting! ³⁴From the outcry of Heshbon, Even unto Elealeh Even unto Jahaz, have they given forth their voice, From Zoar even unto Horonaim, the third Eglath,—For, even the waters of Nimrim, to utter desolation, have been turned: ³⁵Then will I cause to cease, from Moab, Declareth Yahweh,—him that offereth at a high-place, and him that burneth incense to his gods. ³⁶For this cause, my heart, for Moab, like flutes, shall make plaintive sounds, Yea my heart for the men of Kir-heres! like flutes, shall make plaintive sounds, Because, the abundance he hath gotten is lost! ³⁷For, every head, is baldness, And every beard, clipped: Upon all hands, are gashes, And upon the loins, sackcloth ³⁸Upon all the housetops of Moab And in her broadways, it is all lamentation,—For I have broken Moab—Like a vessel wherein is no pleasure Declareth Yahweh. ³⁹How it is broken down! They have howled, How hath Moab turned the back, for shame,—So shall Moab become a derision and a terror to all round about him. ⁴⁰For, thus, saith Yahweh, Lo! as an eagle, shall one dart along,—And shall spread out his wings towards Moab. ⁴¹Captured is Kerioth, And the fortresses, are seized,—Then shall the heart of the heroes of Moab become in that day, As the heart of a woman in her pains. ⁴²Then shall, Moab, be destroyed from being a people,—Because against Yahweh, hath he magnified himself. ⁴³Terror and pit and snare are upon thee O inhabitant of Moab Declareth Yahweh: ⁴⁴He that fleeth from the face of the terror, Shall fall into the pit, And, he that getteth up out of the pit, Shall be captured by the snare,—For I will bring against her—against Moab, The year of their visitation, Declareth Yahweh. ⁴⁵In the shadow of Heshbon, stand strengthless, the fugitives,—For, a fire, hath gone forth out of Heshbon And shall flame out of the midst of Sihon, And shall devour the beard of Moab, And the crown of the head of the proudly tumultuous. ⁴⁶Woe to thee Moab! Lost are the people of Chemosh,—For thy sons have been taken, into captivity, And thy daughters into captivity. ⁴⁷Yet will I bring back the captivity of Moab, In the afterpart of the days, Declareth Yahweh, Thus far, is the sentence of Moab.

49Of the sons of Ammon—Thus saith Yahweh: Hath Israel no, sons? Hath he no, heir? Why hath, Malkam, taken possession of Gad, Or have, his people, in the cities thereof, made their dwelling? ²Therefore, lo! days are coming, Declareth Yahweh When I will cause to be heard against Rabbah of the sons of Ammon, an alarm of war, So shall she become a mound of desolation, And, her villages, with fire, shall blaze,—Then shall Israel, inherit them who inherited him, Saith Yahweh. ³Howl, O Heshbon, for Ai is spoiled Make outcry, ye daughters of Rabbah, Gird you with sackcloth, Lament ye and run to and fro among the fences,—For, Malkam, into captivity, shall go, His priests and his princes, together. ⁴Why shouldst thou glory in the vales, The flowing of thy vale O apostate daughter? She who is trusting in her treasures, saying, Who shall invade, me? ⁵Behold me! bringing upon thee, terror Declareth My Lord, Yahweh of hosts, From all who are round about thee,—And ye shall be driven out every man before it, And there shall be none to bring home the wanderer; ⁶But afterwards, will I bring back the captivity of the sons of Ammon, Declareth Yahweh. ⁷Of Edom—Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, Is there no longer wisdom in Teman? Hath counsel perished from the discerning? Is their wisdom corrupt? ⁸Flee ye turn go down deep to dwell, O inhabitant of Dedan,—For the doom of Esau, have I brought in upon him The time of his visitation. ⁹If, grape-gatherers, came to thee, Would they not leave, gleanings? If, thieves in the night, Would they not have taken away what sufficed them? ¹⁰But, I, have stripped Esau bare, I have uncovered his secret places, And to conceal himself, shall he not be able! Spoiled, are his seed, and his brethren, and his neighbours, and he is not. ¹¹Leave thy fatherless children I, will preserve them alive,—And thy widows, In me, let them trust. ¹²For, thus saith Yahweh—Lo! they who had not been adjudged to drink the cup, shall surely drink, And art thou, the one to go unpunished? Thou shalt not go unpunished, but shalt surely drink. ¹³or by myself, have I sworn, Declareth Yahweh, That, Bozrah shall become, an astonishment: a reproach and a desolation, and a contempt,—And all her cities shall become age-abiding desolations. ¹⁴A report, have I heard from Yahweh, Yea, an envoy, throughout the nations, hath been sent,—Gather yourselves together and come against her, And arise to the battle. ¹⁵For lo! Small, have I made thee among the nations,—Despised among men! ¹⁶Thy monstrous thing, hath deceived thee, The insolence of thy heart, O thou that inhabitest the hidden recesses of the cliff, That boldest fast the height of the hill,—Though thou set high as an eagle, thy nest, From thence, will I bring thee down, Declareth Yahweh; ¹⁷So shall, Edom, become an astonishment,—Every one passing by her, will be astonished and hiss, over all her plagues: ¹⁸Like the overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah and her neighbours, Saith Yahweh,—There shall not dwell there—a man, Nor sojourn therein—any son of the earth-born. ¹⁹Lo! like a lion, will he come up from the majesty of the Jordan, unto the pasture perennial, But I will wink—I will make him run away therefrom, Who then shall be the Chosen One whom over it, I may set in charge? For who shall be like unto, me? And who shall appoint me, a time? And who is the Shepherd that shall stand before, me? ²⁰Wherefore, hear ye The counsel of Yahweh which he hath counseled against Edom, And his devices which he hath devised against the inhabitants of Teman,—Surely the little ones of the flock shall drag them away, Surely he will cause their fold to be astounded over them. ²¹At the noise of their fail, hath trembled the earth, At the outcry, in the Red Sea, was heard its noise. ²²Lo! as an eagle, he shall mount and dart, and spread his wings over Bozrah,—So shall the heart of the heroes of Edom, in that day, become as the heart of a woman in her pain. ²³Of Damascus. Turned pale have Hamath and Arpad, For, a calamitous report, have they heard—they tremble,—In the sea, is anxiety, it cannot, rest. ²⁴Enfeebled is Damascus She hath turned to flee But terror, hath seized her,—Anguish and pangs, have seized her as a woman in childbirth. ²⁵Alas! is she not forsaken—The city so praised! The citadel I rejoiced in! ²⁶Therefore shall her young men fail in her broadways,—And, all her men of war, shall be silent in that day, Declareth Yahweh of hosts; ²⁷Then will I kindle a fire in the walls of Damascus,—And it shall devour the palaces of Ben-hadad. ²⁸Of Kedar. And of the kingdoms of Hazor Which Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon smote—Thus, saith Yahweh,—Arise ye go up against Kedar, So shall they spoil the sons of the East: ²⁹Their tents and their flocks, shall they take, And their curtains and all their baggage and their camels, shall they carry off for themselves,—And shall cry out unto them, Terror round about! ³⁰Flee remove far away, go deep to dwell, Ye inhabitants of Hazor, Urgeth Yahweh; For Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon—hath counseled against you, a counsel, And devised against you a device. ³¹Arise ye, go up against a nation at ease—dwelling securely, Commandeth Yahweh,—Having neither doors nor bars, Alone, do they dwell: ³²So shall their camels, become, a prey, And the throng of their cattle, a spoil, Then will I scatter them to every wind even the clipt-beards,—And from all sides of him, will I bring in their doom Declareth Yahweh. ³³So shall Hazor become A habitation of jackals An astonishment unto times age-abiding: There shall not dwell there—a man, Nor sojourn therein—a son of the earth-born. ³⁴So much of the word of Yahweh as came unto Jeremiah the prophet, Against Elam,—in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah saying:— ³⁵Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, Behold me! breaking the bow of Elam,—The beginning of their might; ³⁶Then will I bring in against Elam four winds from the four quarters of the heavens, And will scatter them to all these winds,—And there shall be no nation whither the outcasts of Elam, shall not come; ³⁷And I will cause Elam to be dismayed Before their enemies Even before them who are seeking their life, So will I bring upon them calamity, Even the glow of mine anger Declareth Yahweh,—And will send after them the sword, until I have made an end of them; ³⁸And I will set my throne in Elam,—And will destroy, from thence king and princes, Declareth Yahweh; ³⁹But it shall come to pass In the afterpart of the days, That I will bring back the captivity of Elam, Declareth Yahweh.

50 The word which Yahweh spake Against Babylon Against the land of the Chaldeans, through Jeremiah the prophet: ²Tell ye among the nations And let it be heard And lift ye up a standard, Let it be heard do not conceal: Say ye—Captured is Babylon, Confounded is Bel, Broken in pieces is Merodach, Confounded are her images, Broken down her manufactured gods; ³For there hath come up against her—a nation out of the North The same, shall make her land an astonishment, And there shall be none to dwell therein,—Both man and beast, have removed—have gone. ⁴In those days, and at that time, Declareth Yahweh, Shall the sons of Israel come in, They and the sons of Judah together: Weeping as they travel, so shall they journey on, And Yahweh their God, shall they seek; ⁵To Zion, shall they ask the way, Hitherward, their faces, Come and let us join ourselves unto Yahweh, In a covenant age-abiding, which shall not be forgotten. ⁶Wandering sheep, have my people, been, Their own shepherds led them astray, On the mountains, they seduced them, From mountain to hill, have they gone, They have forgotten their couching-place. ⁷All who found them, devoured them, And, their adversaries, said—We shall not be, guilty,—Because they have sinned, Against, Yahweh the pasturage of righteousness, Yea the hope of their fathers—Yahweh. ⁸Remove ye out of the midst of Babylon, And out of the land of the Chaldeans, come ye forth,—And become ye like he-goats before the flock; ⁹For lo! I am rousing and bringing up against Babylon a gathered host of great nations, out of the land of the North, And they shall array themselves against her, From thence, shall she be captured,—His arrows, are as of a hero making childless, None shall return empty. ¹⁰So shall the Chaldeans become a spoil,—All her spoilers, shall be satisfied, Declareth Yahweh; ¹¹Because they used to be glad Because they used to be uproarious When plundering mine inheritance,—Because they used to caper about as a heifer at grass, And bellow like bulls. ¹²Your mother, hath turned very pale, She that bare you, hath turned red,—Lo! the last of nations, is—A desert, A parched land, and A waste plain, ¹³Because of the vexation of Yahweh, she shall not be inhabited, But Shall become a complete desolation,—Every one passing by Babylon, shall be astonished and hiss, over all her plagues. ¹⁴Set yourselves in array against Babylon round about All ye who tread the bow, Shoot at her, do not spare so much as an arrow,—For against Yahweh, hath she sinned. ¹⁵Raise a shout against her round about She hath stretched forth her hand, Fallen are her buttresses, Torn down are her walls,—Because, the avenging of Yahweh it is, Take ye vengeance upon her, As she hath done, do ye, unto her. ¹⁶Cut ye off the sower from Babylon, And him that graspeth the sickle in the time of harvest, From the face of the sword of the oppressor, Each, to his own people will they turn, and Each, to his own land will they flee. ¹⁷A sheep all alone, is Israel Lions, have driven him away,—At the first, the king of Assyria devoured him, And here, at the last, I Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon hath broken his bones! ¹⁸Therefore, Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, Behold me! bringing punishment against the king of Babylon, and against his land,—Just as I brought punishment against the king of Assyria. ¹⁹So will I bring back Israel unto his own pasture, And he shall feed upon Carmel and Bashan; And in the hill country of Ephraim and Gilead, shall, his soul, he satisfied. ²⁰In those days and in that time, Declareth Yahweh, The iniquity of Israel, shall be sought, and there shall be none, And the sins of Judah, and they shall not be found; For I will grant pardon to them whom I suffer to remain. ²¹Against the land of Merathaim, go thou up against her, And against the inhabitants of Pekod,—Lay waste and devote to destruction after them Declareth Yahweh, And do according to all which I have commanded thee. ²²The sound of battle is in the earth,—And a great destruction. ²³How s cut and broken the hammer of all the earth! How hath Babylon become an astonishment among the nations! ²⁴I laid a snare for thee yea and thou wast captured O Babylon, when, thou wast not aware,—Thou wast found out yea and taken, For with Yahweh, hadst thou contended. ²⁵Yahweh opened his armoury, and brought out his weapons of indignation,—For, a work, it is pertaining to My Lord, Yahweh of hosts, in the land of the Chaldeans, ²⁶Come ye against her from farthest parts, Throw open her granaries, Cast her up as heaps, and devote her to destruction,—Do not let her have a remnant. ²⁷Cut up all her bullocks, Let them go down to the slaughter,—Alas for them! For their day, hath come, Their time for punishment. ²⁸The voice Of them who are in flight and Of such as are escaping, out of the land of Babylon,—To tell in Zion The avenging of Yahweh our God, The avenging of his temple. ²⁹Publish against Babylon ye chiefs of all who tread the bow—Encamp against her round about Let there be none to escape, Recompense to her according to her work, According to all which she did, do ye to her,—For Against Yahweh, hath she acted presumptuously, Against the Holy One of Israel. ³⁰Therefore, shall her young men fall in her broadways,—And, all her men of war, be silenced in that day, Declareth Yahweh. ³¹Behold me! against thee most insolent one, Declareth My Lord Yahweh of hosts; For thy day, hath come, Thy time for punishment; ³²So shall the most insolent one stumble and fall, And he shall have none to lift him up,—And I will kindle a fire in his cities which shall devour all who are round about him. ³³Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts—Oppressed were the sons of Israel and the sons of Judah, together,—And, all who took them captive, Held them fast Refused to let them go:—³⁴Their Redeemer, can hold fast, Yahweh of hosts, is his name, He will, thoroughly plead, their plea,—That he may quiet the earth, And disquiet the inhabitants of Babylon. ³⁵A sword, is over the Chaldeans, Declareth Yahweh,—And against the inhabitants of Babylon, And against her princes, And against her wise men: ³⁶A sword, is against the praters, And they shall be shewn to be foolish, A sword, is against her heroes And they shall be dismayed: ³⁷A sword, is against his hopes and against his chariots and, against all the rabble that are in her midst And they shall become women,—A sword, is against her treasures And they shall be made a prey: ³⁸A drought, is against her waters, And they shall be dried up,—For a land of images, it is, And with their shocking things, they act as men who are mad: ³⁹Therefore shall the criers dwell with, the howlers, Yea ostriches, shall dwell therein,—So shall it be dwelt in no more for ever, Neither shall it be inhabited unto generation after generation. ⁴⁰Like the divine overthrow of Sodom and Gomorrah and her neighbours, Declareth Yahweh,—There shall not dwell there—a man, Nor sojourn therein—a son of the earth-born. ⁴¹Lo! a people coming in from the North,—Yea, a great nation and many kings, shall be round up out of the remote parts of the earth: ⁴²Bow and javelin, shall they grasp, Cruel, are they and will not have compassion, Their voice, like the sea, will roar, And, on horses, will they ride,—Set in array, as one man for battle, Against thee, O daughter of Babylon! ⁴³The king of Babylon hath beard the report of them, And unnerved are his hands,—Anguish, hath seized him, Writhing pain, as a woman in child-birth. ⁴⁴Lo! as a lion, shall he come up from the majesty of the Jordan, Unto the pasture perennial, But I will wink—I will make them run away therefrom, Who then shall be the Chosen One whom against it, I may set in charge? For who shall be like unto, me? And who shall appoint me, a time? And who is the Shepherd that shall stand before me? ⁴⁵Therefore hear ye, The counsel of Yahweh, which he hath counselled against Babylon, And his devices which he hath devised against the land a of the Chaldeans,—Surely the little ones of the flock, shall drag them away, Surely he will cause the pasture to be astounded over them. ⁴⁶At the noise of the taking of Babylon, the earth trembled,—And, the outcry, among the nations, was heard.

51 Thus, saith Yahweh—Behold me! stirring up against Babylon, And against the inhabitants of the centre of them who rise up against me,—A wind that destroyeth; 2 And I will send to Babylon winnowers, And they shall winnow her, And shall empty her land,—For they are against her round about in the day of calamity. 3 Let not the archer tread his bow, Nor lift himself up in his coat of mail,—And do not spare her young men, Devote to destruction all her host. 4 So shall they fall wounded in the land of Chaldea,—Yea thrust through, in her streets, 5 For Israel and Judah have not been widowed a Of their God, Of Yahweh of hosts,—But, their land, hath been filled with punishment for guilt from the Holy One of Israel 6 Flee out of the midst of Babylon And deliver ye every man his own life, Be not cut off in her punishment,—For it is Yahweh's, time of avenging, A recompense, is be repaying unto her. 7 A cup of gold, was Babylon in the hand of Yahweh, Making drunk all the earth,—Of her wine, have the nations drunk, For this cause have the nations been acting as men who are mad. 8 Suddenly, hath Babylon fallen and been broken,—Howl ye over her Fetch balsam for her pain, Peradventure she shall be healed! 9 We would have healed Babylon, but she is not healed, Leave her and let us go every one to his own land,—For her judgment, reacheth unto the heavens, And mounteth as far as the skies. 10 Yahweh hath brought forth our righteousnesses,—Come and let us relate in Zion the work of Yahweh our God. 11 Polish the arrows, Lay hold of the shields,—Yahweh hath roused the spirit of the kings of the Medes, For against Babylon, his purpose is, to destroy her,—For it is, The avenging of Yahweh, The avenging of his temple. 12 Against the walls of Babylon, Lift ye up a standard, Strengthen ye the watch, Station the watchmen, Make ready the ambuscades,—For Yahweh hath both planned and also performed that which he had spoken against the inhabitants of Babylon. 13 O thou who dwellest upon many waters, Who aboundest in treasures,—Come hath thine end! The measure of thine unrighteous gain! 14 Yahweh of hosts hath sworn, by his own soul: Surely I have filled thee with men as with locusts, And they have answered against thee with a shout. 15 He that Made the earth in his might, Established the world in his wisdom,—And in his understanding, stretched out the heavens 16 By the voice that he uttered, there was a tumult of waters in the heavens, And he caused vapours to ascend from the end of the earth,—Lightnings for the rain, made he, And brought forth wind out of his treasures. 17 Every son of earth had become too brutish to know,—Every goldsmith, hath been put to shame, by a graven image,—For a falsehood, is his molten image Seeing there is no breath in them: 18 Vanity, they are, A handiwork of mockeries,—In the time of their visitation, shall they perish. 19 Not like these, is the portion of Jacob, For the fashioner of all things, is he! And the portion of his inheritance,—Yahweh of hosts, is his name. 20 A war-club, art thou for me, Weapons of war; Therefore will I Beat down with thee—nations, and Destroy with thee—kingdoms; 21 and Beat down with thee—the horse and his rider,—and Beat down with thee—the chariot and its rider; 22 and Beat down with thee—man and woman, and Beat down with thee—elder and youth, and Beat down with thee—young man and virgin; 23 and Beat down with thee—the shepherd and his flock, and Beat down with thee—the plowman and his yoke;—and Beat down with thee—governors and deputies: 24 So will I recompense to Babylon, And to all the inhabitants of Chaldea, All their wickedness which they have committed against Zion before your eyes,—Declareth Yahweh. 25 Behold me! against thee, O destroying mountain Declareth Yahweh, That destroyest all the earth,—Therefore will I stretch out my hand over thee, And roll thee down from the crags, And make of thee a burning mountain: 26 So shall they not fetch from thee A stone for a corner nor A stone for a foundation,—For desolations age-abiding, shalt thou become Declareth Yahweh. 27 Set ye up an ensign in the earth Blow ye a horn among the nations Hallow against her—nations, Summon against her the kingdoms of Ararat Minni, and Ashkenaz,—Set in charge against her a marshal, Bring up cavalry like hairy locusts: 28 Hallow against her—nations, With the kings of Media, With her governors and all her deputies,—And with all the land of his dominion: 29 Then did the land tremble and was in pain,—For the plans of Yahweh, had been established against Babylon, To make the land of Babylon an astonishment, without inhabitant. 30 The heroes of Babylon have ceased to fight They have remained in the strongholds, Parched is their might, They have become women,—They have set fire to her habitations, Broken are her bars! 31 Runner to meet runner, shall they run, And teller to meet teller,—To tell the king of Babylon, That captured is his city at the end! 32 and The fords, have been seized, and The reeds, have they burned with fire; and The men of war, are dismayed! 33 For, thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, The daughter of Babylon, is like a threshing, floor at the time of treading her: Yet a little, and the time of harvest shall overtake her. 34 Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon—Hath devoured me Hath vexed me, Hath set me down as an empty vessel, He hath swallowed me like a sea-monster, He hath filled his belly with my dainties,—He hath driven me away! 35 The violence done to me and to my flesh, be upon Babylon! Shall the inhabitress of Zion say,—Yea, my blood, be upon the inhabitant of Chaldea! Shall Jerusalem say. 36 Therefore, Thus, sith Yahweh, Behold me! pleading thy cause, So then I will execute the avenging of thee; And will dry up her sea, And make dry her spring: 37 Thus shall Babylon become—Heaps A habitation of jackals An astonishment, and A hissing, Without inhabitant. 38 Together, like wild lions, shall they roar,—They have growled like lions' whelps. 39 When they are heated, I will spread their banquets, And let them drink that they may become uproarious, So shall they sleep an age-abiding sleep and not wake,—Declareth Yahweh. ⁴⁰I will bring them down As fat lambs to slaughter,—As rams with he-goats. ⁴¹How hath Sheshach, been captured! How hath the praise of all the earth linen seized! How hath Babylon become an astonishment among the nations! ⁴²The sea, hath gone up over Babylon,—With the multitude of its rolling waves, is she covered. ⁴³Her cities have become, an astonishment, A land parched up, and a waste plain,—A land wherein shall no man dwell, Nor pass through them a son of the earth-born! ⁴⁴So will I bring punishment upon Bel in Babylon, And will bring forth what he hath swallowed out of his mouth, And the nations shall stream unto him no more,—Even the wall of Babylon hath fallen! ⁴⁵Come ye forth out of her midst O my people, And deliver ye every man his own life,—Because of the glow of the anger of Yahweh. ⁴⁶And let not your heart be timid, nor be ye afraid, Because of the report that is reported in the earth When there shall come in one year, the report And after that in another year, the report, With violence in the earth, and ruler upon ruler. ⁴⁷Therefore, lo! days coming when I will bring punishment upon the images of Babylon, And all her land, shall turn pale,—Yea, all her wounded, shall fall in her midst. ⁴⁸Then shall shout over Babylon—heavens and earth and all who are therein,—For out of the North, shall come to her the spoilers Declareth Yahweh. ⁴⁹Not only hath Babylon, caused the fall of the slain of Israel,—By Babylon, also have fallen the slain of all the earth. ⁵⁰Ye that have escaped the sword, depart do not stand still,—Remember, from afar Yahweh, Let, Jerusalem, come up on your heart:—⁵¹We have turned pale for we have heard a reproach, Confusion, hath covered our faces,—For aliens have entered upon the hallowed places of the house of Yahweh! ⁵²Therefore, lo! days are coming, Declareth Yahweh, When I will bring punishment upon her images; And throughout all her land, stroll the pierced one groan. ⁵³Though Babylon should mount the heavens, And though she should fortify her strong high-place, From me, should come spoilers unto her Declareth Yahweh. ⁵⁴A voice of outcry from Babylon! And a great crash from the land of the Chaldeans! ⁵⁵For, Yahweh, is spoiling Babylon, And will destroy out of her the loud voice,—Though their waves have roared like many waters, Been uttered the loud boast of their voice. ⁵⁶For there hath come upon her—upon Babylon—a spoiler, And captured are their heroes And broken are their bows,—For, a GOD of recompenses, is Yahweh, He will surely repay. ⁵⁷Then will I make drunk—Her princes and her wise men, Her governors, and her deputies and her heroes, And they shall sleep an age-abiding sleep, and not wake,—Declareth the King, Yahweh of hosts, is his name. ⁵⁸Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts—The broad walls of Babylon, shall be laid utterly bare, And, her lofty gates, with fire, shall be burned,—And peoples shall labour for emptiness, And populations, for the fire, shall weary themselves. ⁵⁹The word which Jeremiah the prophet commanded Seraiah son of Neriah son of Mahseiah, when he went with Zedekiah king of Judah into Babylon, in the fourth year of his reign,—now Seraiah, was travelling-marshal. ⁶⁰So Jeremiah wrote all the calamity which was to come unto Babylon in one scroll; even all these words which have been written against Babylon. ⁶¹Then said Jeremiah unto Seraiah,—When thou comest into Babylon, then shalt thou look out and read all these words; ⁶²and thou shalt say—O Yahweh! thou, thyself, hast spoken against this place to cut it off, That there be in it no inhabitant Neither man nor beast,—But desolations age-abiding, shall it become! ⁶³And it shall be when thou hast made an end of reading this scroll, that thou shalt bind thereunto a stone, and cast it in the midst of the Euphrates, ⁶⁴Then shalt thou say,—In like manner, shall Babylon sink and not rise Because of the calamity which I am about to bring thereupon: So shall they perish. Thus far, are, the words of Jeremiah.

52Twenty-one years old, was Zedekiah when he began to reign, and eleven years, reigned he, in Jerusalem,—and, his mother's name, was Hamutal, daughter of Jeremiah of Libnah. ²And he did that which was wicked in the eyes of Yahweh,—according to all that Jehoiakim had done. ³For it was, because the anger of Yahweh, had come against Jerusalem and Judah until he had cast them out from his presence, that Zedekiah rebelled against the king of Babylon. ⁴And it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, on the tenth of the month, that Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon came, he and all his force, against Jerusalem, and encamped against it,—and he built against it a siege-wall round about. ⁵And the city came into the siege,—until the eleventh year of King Zedekiah. ⁶In the fourth month on the ninth of the month, when the famine had become severe in the city,—and there had come to be no bread for the people of the land, ⁷then was the city broken up, and all the men of war, beginning to flee went forth out of the city by night, by way of the gate between the two walls which was by the garden of the king the Chaldeans being near the city round about,—and they went the way towards the Waste Plain. ⁸And the force of the Chaldeans pursued the king, and overtook Zedekiah, in the Waste Plains of Jericho,—and, all his force, was scattered from him. ⁹So they seized the king, and brought him up, unto the king of Babylon at Riblah, in the land of Hamath,—and he pronounced upon him sentences of judgment. ¹⁰And the king of Babylon slew the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes,—moreover also all the princes of Judah, slew he in Riblah; ¹¹and the eyes of Zedekiah, put he out,—and bound him with fetters of bronze and the king of Babylon took him to Babylon, and put him in prison—until the day of his death. ¹²And in the fifth month on the tenth of the month, the same, was the nineteenth year of King Nebuchadrezzar, king of Babylon, came Nebuzaradan, chief of the royal executioners,—who stood before the king of Babylon into, Jerusalem; ¹³and he burned the house of Yahweh and the house of the king,—yea all the houses of Jerusalem even every great man's house, burned he with fire; ¹⁴and all the walls of Jerusalem round about, did all the force of the Chaldeans who were with the chief of the royal executioners, break down. ¹⁵And seine of the poor of the people and the residue of the people who were left in the city, and the disheartened who had fallen away unto the king of Babylon and the residue of the multitude, did Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners carry away captive. ¹⁶But, others of the poor of the land, did Nebuzaradan chief of the royal executioners leave, for vinedressers and for husbandmen. ¹⁷And the pillars of bronze that pertained to the house of Yahweh and the stands and the sea of bronze which was in the house of Yahweh, did the Chaldeans, break in pieces,—and they carried away all the bronze of them to Babylon; ¹⁸and the caldrons and the shovels and the snuffers and the dashing bowls, and the spoons even all the utensils of bronze wherewith ministration used to be made did they take away; ¹⁹and the basins and the censers and the dashing bowls and the caldrons and the lamps and the spoons and the cups, which were of gold in gold, and which were of silver in silver, did the chief of the royal executioners, take away. ²⁰As for the two pillars the one sea, and the twelve oxen of bronze which were under the stands which King Solomon had made for the house of Yahweh, without weight was the bronze of all these things. ²¹Now as for the pillars, eighteen cubits, was the height of each pillar, and, a line of twelve cubits, compassed it about,—and the thickness thereof was four fingers breadth—hollow; ²²and there was, a capital, upon it, of bronze, and the height of each capital, was five cubits, with lattice-work and pomegranates upon the capital round about—the whole was of bronze,—and like these, were the second pillar and the pomegranates. ²³And the pomegranates were ninety-six on a side,—all the pomegranates were a hundred upon the lattice-work round about. ²⁴And the chief of the royal executioners, took away, Seraiah the first priest, and Zephaniah, the second priest,—and the three keepers of the entrance-hall; ²⁵and out of the city, took he one eunuch who was in charge over the men of war and seven men of them who used to watch the face of the king, who were found in the city, and the scribe of the prince of the host, who used to muster the people of the land,—and sixty men of the people of the land, who were found in the midst of the city. ²⁶And when Nebuzaradan chief the royal executioners, had taken them, and brought them unto the king of Babylon at Riblah, ²⁷then did the king of Babylon smite them and put them to death at Riblah in the land of Hamath,—thus carried he Judah captive away from off their own soil. ²⁸This, is the people, whom Nebuchadrezzar carried away captive,—In the seventh year—of them of Judah, three thousand and twenty-three; ²⁹In the eighteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar—out of Jerusalem, eight hundred and thirty-two souls; ³⁰In the three-and-twentieth year of Nebuchadrezzar, Nebuzaradan, chief of the royal executioners took away captive, of them of Judah, seven hundred and forty-five souls: All, the souls, were four thousand and six hundred. ³¹And it came to pass, in the thirty-seventh year of the captivity of Jehoiachin king of Judah, in the twelfth month, on the twenty-fifth of the month, that Evil-merodach king of Babylon, in the year he began to reign, lifted up, the head of Jehoiachin king of Judah, and brought him forth out of prison; ³²and spake with him comfortable words,—and set his throne above the throne of the kings who were with him in Babylon; ³³so he changed his prison garments,—and used to eat bread before his face continually, all the days of his life. ³⁴And his allowance, was a continual allowance given him from the king of Babylon the portion of the day upon its own day, until the day of his death,—all the days of his life.

Lamentations

1How is seated alone, the city that abounded with people, hath become as a widow,—She who abounded among the nations was a princess among provinces, hath come under tribute. ²She, weepeth sore, in the night, and, her tear, is on her cheek, She hath none to comfort her, of all her lovers,—All her friends, have betrayed her, have become her foes. ³Carried away captive is Judah—because of oppression, and because of great servitude, She, hath remained among the nations, hath found no place of rest,—All her pursuers, have overtaken her, between straits. ⁴The ways to Zion, are mourning, because none come to her appointed feasts, All her gates, are desolate, her priests, are sighing,—her virgins, are grieved, and, she, it is bitter for her. ⁵Her adversaries have become chief, her foes, are at ease, for, Yahweh, hath grieved her, because of the multitude of her transgressions,—Her children, have gone into captivity, before the adversary. ⁶Thus hath gone forth from the daughter of Zion, all that adorned her,—Her princes have become like harts that have found no pasture, and have gone strengthless before the pursuer. ⁷Jerusalem hath remembered in the days of her humiliation and her fleeings—all her precious things, which have existed from the days of old,—Now that her people have been falling into the hand of the adversary, with none to help her, the adversaries have seen her, have mocked over her sabbath-keepings. ⁸Jerusalem, hath grievously sinned, For this cause, unto exile, hath she been delivered,—All who used to honour her, have despised her, for they have descried her unseemliness, yea, she herself, hath sighed, and turned back. ⁹Her impurity, is in her skirts, She hath not remembered her hereafter, Therefore hath she come down wonderfully, none to comfort her,—Behold, O Yahweh, my humiliation, that the foe, hath made himself great. ¹⁰His hand, hath the adversary spread out, over all her precious things,—for she saw that, the nations, entered her sanctuary, as to whom thou didst command they should not enter—in the convocation—unto thee! ¹¹All her people, are sighing, seeking bread, They have given their precious things for food, to bring back life,—Behold, O Yahweh, and discern, that I have become worthless. ¹²Is it nothing to you, all ye that pass by? Look around and see, whether there is pain like my pain, which is severely dealt out to me,—in that Yahweh, hath caused grief, in the day of the glow of his anger? ¹³From on high, sent he fire, among my bones, and laid them prostrate,—He spread out a net for my feet, he made me turn back, he made me desolate, all the day, faint. ¹⁴The yoke of my transgressions, hath been bound, by his hand—They have intertwined themselves, have come up on my neck, it hath paralysed my strength,—My Lord, hath delivered me, into the hands of those against whom I cannot rise up. ¹⁵My Lord, hath flouted at all my magnates, in my midst, He hath called against me a host, to crush my young men,—A winepress, hath My Lord trodden, to the virgin, the daughter of Judah. ¹⁶For these things, am, I, weeping, Mine eye, mine eye, is running down with waters, for, far from me, is any who could comfort, could bring back my life,—My sons are amazed, for strong is the foe. ¹⁷Zion, hath spread forth, her hands, there is none to comfort her, Yahweh, hath given command, respecting Jacob, unto them who surround him—his adversaries,—Jerusalem, hath become as a removed woman, in their midst. ¹⁸Righteous is Yahweh, for, against his bidding, had I rebelled,—Hear, I pray you, all ye peoples, and see my pain, My virgins and my young men, have gone into exile. ¹⁹I called to my lovers, they, deceived me, My priests and mine elders, in the city, have breathed their last,—for they sought them food, that they might bring back their life. ²⁰See, O Yahweh, that I am in distress, Mine inward parts, are in ferment, My heart is turned within me, for I have obstinately rebelled,—Without, bereaveth the sword, Within, is like death, ²¹They have heard—that, sighing am, I, and am saying —There is none to comfort me, All my foes,—having heard of my calamity—have rejoiced, because, thou, hast done it,—thou hast brought in the day thou didst proclaim, So let them become like me. ²²Let all their wickedness, come in, before thee, and deal thou severely with them, according as thou hast dealt severely with me, for all my transgressions; for many are my sighs, and, my heart, is sick.

2How could My Lord, in his anger, enshroud in gloom, the daughter of Zion? have cast from the heavens to the earth, the beauty of Israel? and not have remembered his footstool, in the day of his anger? ²My Lord hath swallowed up—without pity—all the pastures of Jacob, hath laid waste—in his indignation—the strongholds of the daughter of Judah, hath brought them down to the ground,—hath profaned the kingdom, and the princes thereof. ³He hath broken off—in the glow of his anger—the whole horn of Israel, hath turned back his right hand, from the face of the foe,—and hath kindled against Jacob, a very fire of flame, devouring round about. ⁴He hath trodden his bow like a foe, his right hand erect as an adversary, and hath slain all them who delighted the eye,—In the home of the daughter of Zion, hath he poured out, as fire, his indignation. ⁵My Lord hath become like a foe, hath swallowed up Israel, hath swallowed up all her castles, ruined his strongholds,—and hath caused to abound, in the daughter of Judah, lamentation and mourning. ⁶Thus hath he destroyed, like a garden, his pavilion, hath laid waste his place of assembly,—Yahweh, hath caused to be forgotten, in Zion, the appointed assembly and the sabbath, and hath spurned, in the indignation of his anger, the king and the priest. ⁷My Lord hath rejected his altar, hath abhorred his sanctuary, hath delivered, into the hand of the foe, the walls of her castles,—A voice, have they uttered in the house of Yahweh, as on the day of an appointed assembly. ⁸Yahweh hath devised to lay in ruins, the wall of the daughter of Zion, he hath stretched out a line, he hath not turned back his hand from swallowing up,—Thus hath he caused to mourn—rampart and wall, together, have they languished! ⁹Her gates, have sunk in the earth, He hath destroyed and broken in pieces, her bars,—Her king and her princes, are among the nations, There is no instruction, Even her prophets, have found no vision, from Yahweh. ¹⁰Seated on the ground, in silence, are the elders of the daughter of Zion, They have lifted up dust on their head, have girded themselves with sackcloth,—Bowed down to the ground is the head, of the virgins of Jerusalem. ¹¹Blinded with tears are mine eyes, In ferment is my body, Poured out to the earth is my grief, for the sore hurt of the daughter of my people,—when child and suckling are swooning, in the broadways of the city. ¹²To their mothers, they keep saying, Where are corn and wine? Swooning off, like one thrust through, in the broadways of the city, pouring out their life into the bosom of their mothers. ¹³How shall I solemnly admonish thee? What shall I liken to thee, thou daughter of Jerusalem? What shall I compare with thee, that I may comfort thee, thou virgin, daughter of Zion? for, great as the sea, is thy grievous injury, Who can heal thee? ¹⁴Thy prophets, have had visions for thee, false and foolish, and have not unveiled thine iniquity, to turn back thy captivity,—Yea they have had visions for thee, oracles of falsehood, and enticements! ¹⁵All passing by, have clapped, over thee, their hands, have hissed and wagged their head over the daughter of Jerusalem,—saying, Is, this, the city, of which men used to say—The perfection of beauty! A joy to the whole earth! ¹⁶All thy foes, have opened wide, over thee their mouth, They have hissed, and gnashed their teeth, They have said—We have swallowed her up! Surely, this, is the day for which we have waited, We have found! We have seen! ¹⁷Yahweh hath done what he thought, hath carried out his word, wherewith he gave charge in the days of old, hath thrown down, and not spared,—Thus hath he let the enemy rejoice over thee, hath raised high the horn of thine adversaries. ¹⁸Their heart, hath made outcry, unto My Lord,—O wall of the daughter of Zion—Let tears run down as a torrent day and night, Do not give thyself relief, Let not the weeping of thine eye cease! ¹⁹Arise, cry out in the night, At the beginning of the watches, pour out, like waters, thy heart, right before the face of My Lord,—Lift up, above thee, the palms of thy hands, for the life of thy children, who are swooning for hunger, at the top of all the streets! ²⁰See, O Yahweh, and do consider, to whom thou hast acted thus severely,—Will women, devour, their own fruit—the children they have dandled? Shall priest and prophet, be slain in the sanctuary of My Lord? ²¹Youth and elder, have lain down on the ground in the streets, My virgins and my young men, have fallen by the sword,—Thou hast slain, in the day of thine anger, Thou hast slaughtered, hast not spared! ²²Wilt thou proclaim, like the day of an appointed meeting—My terrors round about? when there was not—in the day of the anger of Yahweh—fugitive or survivor,—Those whom I dandled and reared, my foe hath destroyed.

3I, am the man, that hath seen affliction, by the rod of his indignation; ²Me, hath he driven out and brought into darkness, and not light; ³Surely, against me, doth he again and again, turn his hand all the day. ⁴He hath worn out my flesh and my skin, hath broken my bones; ⁵He hath built up against me, and carried round me, fortifications and a trench; ⁶In dark places, hath he made me sit, like the dead of age-past times. ⁷He hath walled up around me, that I cannot get out, hath weighted my fetter; ⁸Yea, when I make outcry and implore, he hath shut out my prayer; ⁹He hath walled in my ways with hewn stone, my paths, hath he caused to wind back. ¹⁰A bear lying in wait, he is to me, a lion, in secret places; ¹¹My ways, hath he turned aside, and hath torn me in pieces, hath made me desolate; ¹²He hath trodden his bow, and set me up, as a mark for the arrow. ¹³He hath caused to enter my reins, the sons of his quiver; ¹⁴I have become a derision to all my people, their song all the day; ¹⁵He hath sated me with bitter things, hath drenched me with wormwood. ¹⁶And he hath crushed, with gravel-stones, my teeth, hath made me cower in ashes; ¹⁷And thou hast thrust away from welfare, my soul, I have forgotten prosperity; ¹⁸And I said, Vanished is mine endurance, even mine expectation, from Yahweh. ¹⁹Remember my humiliation and my fleeings, the wormwood and poison; ²⁰Thou wilt, indeed remember, that,

bowed down concerning myself, is my soul; ²¹This, will I bring back to my heart, therefore, will I hope. ²²The lovingkindnesses of Yahweh, verily they are not exhausted, Verily! not at an end, are his compassions: ²³New things for the mornings! Abundant is thy faithfulness: ²⁴My portion, is Yahweh, saith my soul, For this cause, will I wait for him. ²⁵Good is Yahweh, to them who wait for him, to the soul that will seek him; ²⁶Good it is—both to wait and to be silent, for the deliverance of Yahweh; ²⁷Good it is for a man, that he should bear the yoke in his youth. ²⁸Let him sit alone, and keep silence, because he took it upon himself: ²⁹Let him put, in the dust, his mouth, peradventure, there is hope! ³⁰Let him give, to him that smiteth him, his cheek, let him be sated with reproach. ³¹Surely My Lord, will not cast off, unto times age-abiding; ³²Surely, though he cause grief, yet will he have compassion, according to the multitude of his lovingkindnesses; ³³Surely he hath not afflicted from his heart, nor caused sorrow to the sons of men. ³⁴To crush, under his feet, any of the prisoners of the earth; ³⁵To turn aside the right of a man, before the face of the Most High; ³⁶To oppress a son of earth in his cause, My Lord, hath made no provision. ³⁷Who was it that spake, and it was done, when, My Lord, had not commanded? ³⁸Out of the mouth of the Most High, Proceed there not misfortunes and blessing? ³⁹Why should a living son of earth complain, Let a man complain because of his sins? ⁴⁰Let us search out our ways, and examine them well, and let us return unto Yahweh; ⁴¹Let us lift up our heart, to the opened palms, to the Mighty One in the heavens; ⁴²We, have trespassed and rebelled, Thou, hast not pardoned. ⁴³Thou hast covered thyself with anger, and pursued us, hast slain—hast not spared; ⁴⁴Thou hast screened thyself with the clouds, that prayer, should not pass through; ⁴⁵Offscouring and refuse, dost thou make us, in the midst of the peoples. ⁴⁶With their mouth, opened wide over us, stand all our foes. ⁴⁷Terror and a pit, have befallen us, tumult and grievous injury; ⁴⁸With streams of water, mine eye runneth down, over the grievous injury of the daughter of my people. ⁴⁹Mine eye, poureth itself out and ceaseth not, without relief; ⁵⁰Until Yahweh out of the heavens shall look forth, and see, ⁵¹Mine eye dealeth severely with my soul, because of all the daughters of my city. ⁵²They, have laid snares, for me as a bird, who are mine enemies without cause: ⁵³They have cut off, in the dungeon, my life, and have cast a stone upon me; ⁵⁴Waters, flowed over, my head, I said, I am cut off! ⁵⁵I have called upon thy Name, O Yahweh, out of the dungeon below; ⁵⁶My voice, thou hast heard,—do not close thine ear to my respite, to mine outcry; ⁵⁷Thou drewest near, in the day I kept calling on thee, thou saidst, Do not fear! ⁵⁸Thou hast pleaded, O My Lord, the pleas of my soul, hast redeemed my life; ⁵⁹Thou hast beheld, O Yahweh, my failure to get justice, Pronounce thou my sentence; ⁶⁰Thou hast seen all their vindictiveness, all their plots against me. ⁶¹Thou hast heard their reproach, O Yahweh, all their plots against me; ⁶²The lips of mine assailants, and their mutterings, are against me, all the day; ⁶³On their downsitting and their uprising, do thou look, I, am their song. ⁶⁴Thou wilt render to them a recompense, O Yahweh, according to the work of their hands; ⁶⁵Thou wilt suffer them a veiling of heart, thy curse to them; ⁶⁶Thou wilt pursue in anger, and wilt destroy them, from under the heavens of Yahweh.

⁴How is dimmed the gold! changed the most fine gold! Poured out are the stones of the sanctuary, at the top of all the streets. ²The precious sons of Zion, they who were weighed against pure gold, How are they accounted as earthen pitchers, the work of the hands of the potter! ³Even wild dogs, draw out the breast, give suck to their whelps—The daughter of my people, hath become cruel, like the ostriches in the desert. ⁴The tongue of the suckling, cleaveth to the roof of his mouth for thirst,—Young children, have asked bread, there was none, to break, it to them. ⁵They who used to eat delicacies, are deserted in the streets,—They who used to be carried on crimson, have embraced heaps of refuse. ⁶And the punishment of the daughter of my people hath grown greater than the punishment of Sodom,—which was overthrown as in a moment, when no hands had been laid violently upon her. ⁷Purer were her Nazirites than snow, whiter were they than milk,—more ruddy, in body, than coral, A sapphire, was their beauty of form. ⁸Darker than a coal, is their visage, They are not known in the streets—Their skin shrivelth on their bones, is withered, become like a stick. ⁹Better are the slain of the sword, than the slain of the famine,—for, these, pine away, stricken through, wanting the produce of the field. ¹⁰The hands of compassionate women, have cooked their own children,—they have served as nourishment to them, in the grievous injury of the daughter of my people. ¹¹Yahweh hath completed his indignation, hath poured out the glow of his anger; and hath kindled a fire in Zion, which hath devoured her foundations. ¹²Neither the kings of the earth, nor any of the inhabitants of the world, believed, that an adversary or an enemy, should enter, the gates of Jerusalem! ¹³It is for the sins of her prophets, the iniquities of her priests,—who have been pouring out, in her midst, the blood of the righteous! ¹⁴They have wandered—blind—in the streets, have defiled themselves with blood; so that men may not touch their garments. ¹⁵Turn aside! Unclean! have they cried to them, Turn aside! Turn aside! Do not touch! because they have fled, yea, wandered, Men said among the nations, They will not again tarry; ¹⁶The face of Yahweh, hath scattered them, He will look them out no more: The persons of the priests, they have not respected, To the elders, have they shown no favour. ¹⁷Silly shall our eyes fail, for our help that is vain: In our watchtower, have we watched—for a nation that will not save. ¹⁸They have laid snares for our steps, that we cannot walk in our own broadways: Drawn near hath our end, Fulfilled are our days, yea arrived hath our end. ¹⁹Swifter are our pursuers, than the eagles of the heavens,—Over the mountains, have they come hotly after us, In the wilderness, have they lain in wait for us. ²⁰The fragrance of our nostrils, The Anointed of Yahweh, hath been captured in their pits,—of whom we had said—In his shade, shall we live among the nations. ²¹Rejoice and be glad, O daughter of Edom, thou inhabitress in the and of Uz,—Even unto thee, shall the cup pass along, thou shalt be drunken, and expose thy shame. ²²Completed is thy punishment, O daughter of Zion, He will no more carry thee away captive—He hath punished thine iniquity, O daughter of Edom, he hath stripped the veil from off thy sins.

⁵Remember, O Yahweh, what hath befallen us, Look around, and see our reproach: ²Our inheritance, turned over to foreigners, our houses, to aliens. ³Orphans, have we become, and fatherless, our mothers, are widows indeed. ⁴Our water—for silver, have we drunk, our wood—for a price, cometh in. ⁵Upon our necks, are our pursuers, We labour, and there is allowed us no rest. ⁶To Egypt, have we stretched out our hand, to Assyria, to be satisfied with bread. ⁷Our fathers, sinned, and are not, and, we, their iniquities, have borne. ⁸Slaves, have ruled over us, There is none to set free from their hand. ⁹At the risk of our life, do we bring in our bread, because of the sword of the desert. ¹⁰Our skin, as with a furnace, is scorched, because of the hot winds of famine. ¹¹Women—in Zion, were ravished, virgins, in the cities of Judah! ¹²Princes, by their hand, have been hanged, The faces of elders, not honoured. ¹³Young men, a millstone, have lifted, and, youths, under wood, have staggered. ¹⁴Elders, from the gates, have ceased. Young men, from their music. ¹⁵Ceased hath the joy of our hearts, Changed to mourning, our dance. ¹⁶Fallen is the crown of our head. Surely woe to us, for we have sinned. ¹⁷For this cause, faint is our heart, For these things, dimmed are our eyes: ¹⁸Because of Mount Zion, which is desolate, jackals, have gone prowling therein. ¹⁹Thou, O Yahweh, unto times age-abiding, dost remain, Thy throne, from generation to generation: ²⁰Wherefore shouldst thou perpetually forget us? forsake us, to length of days? ²¹Bring us back, O Yahweh, unto thyself, and we will come back! Renew our days, as of old; ²²For though thou hast not, utterly rejected, us, thou art wroth with us—exceedingly!

Ezekiel

¹And it came to pass in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month on the fifth day of the month I being in the midst of them of the captivity, by the river Chebar, that the heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God. ²On the fifth of the month, that was the fifth year of the captivity of King Jehoiachin, ³in very deed came the word of Yahweh unto Ezekiel son of Buzi the priest in the land of the Chaldeans by the river Chebar,—yea the hand of Yahweh I came on him there I—⁴So then I beheld and lo! a tempestuous wind coming out of the North, a great cloud and a fire catching hold of itself, and it had a brightness round about,—⁵and out of the midst thereof, as burnished copper to look upon out of the midst of the fire; and out of the midst thereof, a likeness of four living ones, and this was their appearance, the likeness of a man, had they; ⁶and four faces each, and four wings each, had they; ⁷and their feet were straight feet,—and the sole of their feet was like the sole of the foot of a calf, but sparkling, as shining bronze to look upon; ⁸and the hands of a man! were under their wings, on their four sides,—and their faces and their wings belonged to the four of them: ⁹joined to each other, were their wings,—they turned not when they went, each one straight before him, did they go; ¹⁰and the likeness of their faces was the face of a man, with the face of a lion to the right of the four of them, and the face of an ox on the left, of the four of them,—the face of an eagle, also had they four; ¹¹and their wings were spread above,—two of each joined one another, and two covered their bodies; ¹²and each one straight before him, did they go,—whithersoever the spirit was minded to go, they went, they turned not when they went. ¹³As for the likeness of the living ones, their appearance was like live coals of fire burning up like the appearance of torches, the same went to and fro between the living ones,—and the fire had brightness and out of the fire, went forth a lightning. ¹⁴And the living ones ran and returned,—like the appearance of a flash of lightning. ¹⁵And I looked at the living ones,—and lo! one wheel upon the earth beside the living ones for each of his four faces, ¹⁶The appearance of the wheels and of their structure was like a Tarshish-stone to look upon, and they four had one likeness,—and their appearance and their structure were just as would be a wheel in the midst of a wheel.

¹⁷Upon their four sides, when they went, so did they go,—they turned not when they went. ¹⁸As for their rings, they were so high that they were terrible, —and their rings full of eyes round about, had they four. ¹⁹And when the living ones went, the wheels went beside them,—and when the living ones were lifted up from the earth, the wheels were lifted up: ²⁰whithersoever the spirit was minded to go, they went—thither was the spirit minded to go,—and the wheels would be lifted up along with them, for the spirit of the living one was in the wheels: ²¹when they went, these went, and when they stood, there stood,—and when they were lifted up from off the earth, the wheels were lifted up along with them, for the spirit of the living one was in the wheels. ²²And there was a likeness over the heads of the living one—an expanse, like terrible crystal to look upon, —stretched forth over their heads above. ²³And under the expanse, their wings were straight, one towards another,—each one had two covering on this side, and each one had two covering on that side, their bodies. ²⁴And I heard the sound of their wings, as the sound of many waters, as the sound of the Almighty, when they went, the sound of a storm as the sound of a host,—when they stood, they let down their wings, ²⁵And there was a voice above the expanse that was over their head,—when they stood, they let down their wings. ²⁶And above the expanse that was over their heads, as the appearance of a sapphire stone, was the likeness of a throne,—and upon the likeness of a throne, was a likeness as the appearance of a man upon it above. ²⁷And I saw as burnished copper to look upon, as the appearance of fire within it round about, from the appearance of his loins and upwards and from the appearance of his loins and downward, saw I as the appearance of fire, and he had brightness round about: ²⁸as the appearance of the bow which is in a cloud on a day of rain, so was the appearance of the brightness round about, that was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of Yahweh, and when I saw, I fell upon my face, and heard a voice of one speaking.

²And he said unto me,—Son of man, Stand upon thy feet, that I may, speak with thee. ²Then the Spirit entered into me as soon as he spoke unto me, and it caused me to stand upon my feet,—and I heard one speaking unto me. ³And he said unto me— Son of man I am sending thee unto the sons of Israel, unto rebellious nations, which have rebelled against me,—they, and their fathers have transgressed against me, until this very day; ⁴and it is unto such sons—of shameless face, and emboldened heart, that I am sending thee,—therefore shalt thou say unto them, Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh. ⁵And they! whether they will hear or whether they will forbear, for a perverse house, they are, shall then know that la prophet hath been in their midst. ⁶But thou son of man Be not afraid of them Nor of their words, be afraid Though thorns and thistles are about thee, And amongst prickly plants, thou dost dwell, Of their words, be not afraid nor At their faces, be thou dismayed, For a perverse house, they are! ⁷Thou shalt therefore speak my words unto them, whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear For perverse, they are! ⁸Thou, therefore son of man, hear what I am speaking unto thee., become not perverse like the perverse house,—open thy mouth, and eat that which I am giving unto thee. ⁹So I looked, and lo! a hand put forth unto me,—and lo! therein a scroll; ¹⁰and he spread it out before me, and, it was written on the front and the back,—and there were written thereon, lamentation and sighing, and wailing.

³Then said he unto me, Son of man What thou findest, eat,—eat this roll, and go speak unto the house of Israel. ²So I opened my mouth,—and he caused me to eat this roll. ³Then said he unto me Son of man. Thy belly, cause thou to eat and thy bowels, fl thou with this roll which I am giving unto thee. So I did eat, and it became in my mouth, as honey for sweetness. ⁴Then said he unto me,— Son of man Go get thee unto the house of Israel, and thou shalt speak with my words, unto them. ⁵For not unto a people deep of lip and heavy of tongue, art thou sent — but unto the house of Israel: ⁶liner unto many peoples deep of lip and heavy of tongue, whose words thou couldst not understand,—surely if unto them I had sent thee, they would have hearkened unto thee. ⁷But the house of Israel will not be willing to hearken unto thee, for they are not willing to hearken unto me,—for all the house of Israel are bold of forehead and hard of heart. ⁸Lo! I have made thy face bold like as their faces, and thy forehead bold like as their forehead. ⁹As an adamant harder than flint, have I made thy forehead,—thou shalt not fear them neither shalt thou be dismayed at their faces, For a perverse house, they are! ¹⁰Then said he unto me,— Son of man. All my words which I shall speak unto thee, receive thou into thy heart and in thine ears, hear thou: ¹¹then go get thee unto them of the captivity, unto the cons of thy people, and thou shalt speak unto them and say unto them, Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, whether they will hear or whether they will forbear. ¹²Then the Spirit lifted me up, and I heard behind me the sound of a great rushing,— Blessed be the glory of Yahweh. From his place! ¹³Yea the sound of the wings of the living ones, gently touching each other, and the sound of the wheels, along with them, even the sound of a great rushing. ¹⁴So the Spirit lifted me up, and took me away,—and I went bitterly, in the rage of my spirit, but the hand of Yahweh upon me was strong. ¹⁵Thus came I unto them of the captivity, at Tel-abib. who were dwelling towards he river Chebar and I dwelt where They were dwelling; yea I dwelt there seven days, stunned in their midst, ¹⁶And it came to pass at the end of seven days, that the word of Yahweh came unto me saying ¹⁷Son of man, A watchman, have I appointed thee to the house of Israel,—and thou shalt hear, at my mouth a message, and shalt warn them from me. ¹⁸When I say to the lawless man— Thou shalt surely die, and thou hast not given him warning, neither hast spoken to warn the lawless man from his lawless way, to save him- self alive the same lawless man in his iniquity shall die, but his blood, tat thy hand will I require. ¹⁹Whereas when thou hast warned a lawless man, and he hath not turned from his lawlessness and from his lawless way he in his iniquity shall die, but Thou hast delivered thine own soul. ²⁰And when a righteous man hath turned from his righteousness, and committed perversity, and I have suffered a stumbling- block to be laid before him he shall die, —though thou hast not warned him, in his sin I shall he die, neither shall be remembered his righteous deeds which he hath done, but his blood, at thy hand will I require; ²¹whereas when Thou hast warned a righteous man. That a righteous man must not sin and he hath not sinned, he shall surely live in that he took warning, and thou hast delivered thine own soul. ²²Then came upon me there the hand of Yahweh,—and he said unto me, Arise go forth into the valley, and there, will I speak with thee. ²³So I arose and went forth into the valley, and lo! there the glory of Yahweh, standing, like the glory which I saw by the river Chebar,—and I fell upon my face. ²⁴Then the Spirit entered into me, and caused me to stand upon my feet,—and he spake with me and said unto me, Go in shut thyself up, in the midst of thine own house, ²⁵And thou—O son of man, lo! they have put upon thee bands, and they will bind thee therewith,—so that thou go not forth in their midst; ²⁶thy tongue also, will I cause to cleave unto the roof of thy mouth, so shalt thou be dumb and not be to them a reprover,— For a perverse house, they are! ²⁷But when I speak with thee, I will open thy mouth, and thou shalt say unto them. Thus saith My Lord Yahweh,—He that is minded to hear, let him hear, And he that is minded to forbear, let him forbear! For a perverse house, they are!

⁴Thou therefore O son of man Take thee a tablet, and lay it before thee,—and pourtray thereon a city, even Jerusalem. ²Then shalt thou lay siege against it And bud up against it a siege-wall And cast up against it, a mound,— And set against it camps, And place against it battering-rams, round about. ³Thou, therefore take time a pan of iron, and set it for a wall of iron, between thee and the city,—then shalt thou direct thy face against it and it shall come into siege and thou shalt lay siege to it, a sign, shall it be to the house of Israel. ⁴Thou, therefore lie thou on thy left side, and lay the iniquity of the house of Israel upon it,— during the number of the days which thou shalt lie thereon, shalt thou bear their punishment. ⁵I therefore have appointed thee the years of their punishment, by the number of days a hundred and ninety days,—so shalt thou bear the iniquity of the house of Israel. ⁶And when thou hast ended these, then shalt thou lie, on thy right side. a second time, and shalt bear the iniquity of the house of Judah,— forty days, one day for each year, have I appointed thee. ⁷Thus then unto the siege of Jerusalem, shalt thou direct thy face, with thine arm made bare,—so shalt thou prophesy against it. ⁸And lo! I have laid upon thee-bands,—and thou shalt not turn thee from thy one side to thine other, until thou have ended the days of thy siege. ⁹Thou, therefore, take thee wheat and barley and peas and lentils and millet and spelt, and put them in one vessel, and make them ready for thee as bread,—during the number of days which thou art lying on thy side. a hundred and ninety days, shalt thou eat it; ¹⁰and thy food which thou shalt eat shall be by weight twenty shekels a day,— from time to time, shalt thou eat it; ¹¹and water by measure, shalt thou drink the sixth part of a hin,—from time to time shalt thou drink; ¹²and as a barley cake, shalt thou eat it,— and the same with dung proceeding from man, shalt thou bake, before their eyes. ¹³Then said Yahweh, In like manner, shall the sons of Israel eat their bread defiled,—among the nations whither I will drive them. ¹⁴Then said, I, Ah! My Lord. Yahweh, lo! my person, hath not been defiled: neither of what hath died of itself nor of what hath been torn in pieces: have I eaten, from my youthful days even unto now, neither hath come into my mouth the flesh of a foul thing. ¹⁵So then he said unto me, See I have granted thee cows dung for mans dung,—and thou shalt prepare thy bread thereupon. ¹⁶And he said unto me, Son of man Behold me! breaking the staff of bread in Jerusalem, So shall they eat bread by weight and with anxious care, And water by measure, and in astonishment, shall they drink: ¹⁷that they may lack bread and water and be astonished one with another, and pine away in their punishment.

⁵Thou therefore son of man Take thee a sharp cutting instrument, a barbers razor, shalt thou take thee, and shalt cause it to pass upon thy head and upon thy chin,—and shalt take the balances for weighing, and shalt divide the hair. ²A third part in the fire, shalt thou burn in the midst of the city, when the days of the siege are fulfilled,— and thou shalt take a third part, thou shalt smite it with the cutting instrument round about it, and a third part, shalt thou scatter to the wind, and sword, will I, make bare after then; ³and thou shalt take from thence, a few in number,—and shalt bind them in thy skirts; ⁴and of them, again take, and cast them into the midst of the fire, and burn them in the fire,—therefrom, shall go forth a fire unto all the house of Israel. ⁵Thus, saith My Lord, Yahweh, This, is Jerusalem, In the midst of the nations, I placed her,— and of the countries round about her; ⁶But she hath changed my regulations rote lawlessness, more than the nations, And my statutes more than the countries which are round bout her, For my regulations, have they rejected, And in my statutes, have they not walked. Therefore, ⁷Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh. Because ye have become more rebellious than the nations who are round about you, In My statutes, have not walked. And my regulations, have not done, And according to the regulations of the nations which are round about you, have not done: ⁸Therefore, Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh, Lo! I am against thee, even I, Therefore will I, execute in thy midst, judgments, in the eyes of the nations; ⁹Yea I will execute upon thee that which I have not executed, And like unto which I will not execute again,— Because of all thine abominations. ¹⁰Therefore, fathers will eat sons in thy midst, And sons will eat fathers,— And I will execute upon thee judgments, And will scatter the whole remnant of thee, to every wind. ¹¹Therefore as live, Declareth My Lord Yahweh,— Surely because my sanctuary, thou hast defiled, with all thy detestable things, and with all thine abominations Even I also, will cut off, and mine eye I shall not spare, Yea even I will not pity. ¹²The third part of thee by pestilence, shall die, and by famine, be consumed in thy midst And the third part by the sword, shall fall round about thee,— And the third part to every wind, will I scatter, and a sword, will I make bare after them. ¹³So shall mine anger have an end, And I will cause mine indignation to find rest I upon a them, and will console myself,— And they shall know that, I, Yahweh, have spoken in my jealousy, when mine indignation hath come to an end, upon them. ¹⁴And I will deliver thee up to desolation and reproach, among the nations that are round about thee,—in the eyes of every passer-by. ¹⁵So shall it become a reproach and an insult warning and an astonishment, tob the nations that are round about thee,—in that I have executed upon thee judgments in anger and in indignation and in rebukes of indignation, I, Yahweh have spoken: ¹⁶In that I have sent the malignant arrows of famine among them which were for destruction, which I will send to destroy you,—and famine, will I increase upon you, and will break for you the staff of bread. ¹⁷So will I send upon you famine and mischievous beast and they shall bereave thee,—and pestilence and blood, shall pass through thee,—and a sword, will I bring in upon thee, Yahweh have spoken.

⁶Then came the word of Yahweh. unto me saying, ²Son of man, Set thy face against the mountains of Israel,— and

prophecy unto them; ³and say, Ye mountains of Israel, hear ye the word of My Lord Yahweh,— Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh- To the mountains and to the hills to the hollows and to the valleys,— Behold me! I, am bringing upon you a sword, And I will destroy your high places; ⁴And your altars shall be laid waste, And your sun-pillars shall be broken in pieces,— And I will cause your slain to fall before your manufactured gods; ⁵And I will lay the carcasses of the sons of Israel before their manufactured gods,— And will scatter your bones round about your altars. ⁶In all your dwelling-places, the cities shall be laid waste, and the high places, shall be made desolate, To the end your altar may be laid waste and become desolate. And your manufactured gods be broken in pieces and cease, And your sun-pillars be cut down, And your handiworks be abolished. ⁷And the slain shall fall in your midst, So shall ye nod that I a Yahweh. ⁸Yet will I leave a remnant: In that ye shall have such as are escaped of the sword throughout the nations, when ye are scattered throughout the lands. ⁹Then shall they who have escaped of you remember me, among the nations whither they have been carried captive, In that I have broken their adulterous heart, which hath turned aside from me, And their eyes which have adulterously gone after their manufactured gods, So shall they become loathsome in their own sight, for the wicked things which they have done in all their abominations. ¹⁰Then shall they know that, I, Yahweh,—not in vain, had threatened to bring upon them this calamity. ¹¹Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, Smite with thy hand, and stamp with thy foot and say, Alas! regarding all the wicked abominations of the house of Israel,—in that by sword, by famine, and by pestilence, shall they fall: ¹²He that is far off by pestilence, shall die and He that is near by the sword, shall fall, and He that is left and is besieged by the famine, shall die; Thus will I make an end of mine indignation against them. ¹³So shall ye know that I, am Yahweh, In that their slain are in the midst of their manufactured gods, on every side of their altars,— Upon every high hill In all the tops of the mountains and Under every green tree and Under every tangled oak, The place where they offered a satisfying odour to all their manufactured gods. ¹⁴Thus will I stretch out my hand upon them, and make the land a greater waste and devastation than the desert toward Diblah throughout all their dwelling-places,— And they shall know that, I, am Yahweh.

⁷And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying: ²Thou therefore O son of man. Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, To the so of Israel, there is an end,— The end hath come upon the four skirts of the land. ³Now is the end upon thee, Therefore will I send mine anger against thee, And judge these according to thy ways,— And lay upon thee all thine abominations; ⁴And mine eye shall not shield thee. Neither will I pity,— For thy ways—upon thee, will I lay.

And thine abominations in thy midst, shall be found, So shall ye know that, I, am Yahweh. ⁵Thus saith My Lord Yahweh: A calamity, a sole calamity, lo! it hath come. ⁶An end hath come, Come hath the end It hath roused itself up against thee,— Lo! it hath come. ⁷The circle hath come round unto thee. O inhabitant of the land,— The time hath come L The day of consternation hath drawn near. And not the joyful shout of the mountain. ⁸Now shortly, will I pour out mine indignation upon thee, And will bring to an end mine anger against thee, And will judge thee according to thy ways,— And will lay upon thee all thine abominations. ⁹And mine eye shall not shield thee Neither will I have pity,— According to thy ways, tunic thee will I render, And thine abominations, in thy midst shall be found, So shall ye know that I, Yahweh am smiting. ¹⁰Lo! the day, Lo! it hath come, The circle hath gone forth, The sceptre I hath blossomed Insolence hath sprouted: ¹¹Violence hath risen up as a sceptre of lawlessness,—There are none of them And none of their multitude And none of their thrones And no lamentation over them. ¹²The time hath come. The day hath arrived, The buyer, let him not rejoice, and The seller, let him not mourn,— For indignation, is against all her multitude. ¹³For the seller, unto that which is to be sold, shall not return, though yet among the living, were their life, for the vision is against all her multitude. He shall not return, And line man by his punishment, shall strengthen his life. ¹⁴They have blown the trumpet, even to make All ready, Yet is there none going to the battle; For mine indignation is against all her multitude. ¹⁵The sword without, and Pestilence and famine within,— He that is in the field by the sword, shall die, and He that is in the city famine or pestilence shall devour him; ¹⁶While they who escape of them shall escape and become on the mountains as the doves of the valleys, all of them cooing,—each one in his punishment. ¹⁷All hands shall be unnerved; and All knees shall be weak as water, ¹⁸Therefore shall they gird themselves with sackcloth, And shuddering shall cover them,— And in all faces, shall be paleness, And in all their heads, baldness. ¹⁹Their silver into the streets, shall they cast and Their gold for throwing away, shall serve, Their silver and their gold shall not be able to deliver them in the day of the wrath of Yahweh, Their craving, shall they not satisfy, and Their belly, shall they not fill, For a stumbling-block, hath their iniquity become. ²⁰While the beauty of his own ornament he had in majesty placed, Then the images, of their abominations. Their detestable things, Made they therein,— For this cause have I delivered it up to them for removal; ²¹Yea I will deliver it Into the hand of foreigners for a prey, And to the lawless ones of the earth for a spoil, And they will profane it; ²²And I will turn away my face from them, And they will profane my cherished place,— Yea there will enter it violent men Who will profane it. — ²³Prepare thou a chain, For the land is full of the crime of bloodshed, And the city is full of violence. ²⁴So then I will bring in the wicked ones of the nations, And they shall take possession of their houses, —And I will cause to cease the pomp of the strong ones, And their holy places shall be profaned. ²⁵Destruction, hath entered,- And they shall seek welfare and there be none. ²⁶Disaster upon disaster, shall come, And report after report shall arise, Therefore shall they seek a vision from prophet, And law shall perish from priest. And counsel from elders. ²⁷the king, shall mourn and the chief shall clothe himself with astonishment, and the hands of the people of the land shall be wrung in anguish,— After their own way, will I deal with them and :With their own sentences, will I sentence them, And they shall know that all Yahweh.

⁸And it came to pass, in the sixth year in the sixth month, on the fifth of the month, I being seated in my house, and the elders of Judah being seated before me, then fell upon me there the hand of My Lord Yahweh. ²So I looked, and lo! a likeness as the appearance of a man, from the appearance of his loins and downward fire, and from his loins and upwards as an appearance of shining, as the look of amber, ³Then put he forth the similitude of a hand, and took me by the forelock of my head,—and the Spirit lifted me up between the earth and the heavens and brought me to Jerusalem in the visions of God into the opening of the inner gate that looketh toward the north, where was the seat of the Statue of Jealousy. that provoketh to jealousy; ⁴and lo! there, the glory of the God of Israel, like the appearance which I had seen in the valley. ⁵Then said he unto me, Son of man Lift up. I pray thee thine eyes, the way toward the north. So I lifted up mine eyes the way toward the north, and lo! on the north by the gate of the altar, this Statue of Jealousy, in the entrance. ⁶Then said he unto me, Son of man Canst thou see what they are doing,—the great abominations which the house of Israel are committing here, that I should go far-away from my sanctuary? Howbeit yet again, shalt thou see great abominations. ⁷So he brought me into the opening of the court,—and I looked, and lo! a single hole in the wall. ⁸Then said he unto m Son of man Break I pray thee through the wall. So I broke through the wall, and lo! a single opening. ⁹Then said he unto me,— Go in, and see the wicked abominations. which they are committing here. ¹⁰So I went in. and looked, and lo! every similitude of creeping thing, and detestable beast, and all the manufactured gods of the house of Israel,- pourtrayed upon the wall round about on every side; ¹¹and seventy men of the elders of the house of Israel with Jaazaniah son of Shaphan, who stood in their midst were standing before them, even every man with his censer in his hand,—and the fragrance of the cloud of incense ascending. ¹²Then said he unto me, Hast thou seen Son of man what the elders of the house of Israel, are doing in the dark, every man in his image-chambers? for they are saying— Yahweh doth not see us! Yahweh hath forsaken the land! ¹³Then said he unto me,— Yet again, shalt thou see great abominations, which they are committing. ¹⁴So he brought me into the opening of the gate of the house of Yahweh, which was toward the north,—and Lo! there, women sitting, weeping for Tammuz. ¹⁵Then said he unto me Hast thou seen O son of man? Yet again, shalt thou see greater abominations than these. ¹⁶So he brought me into the inner court of the house of Yahweh, and lo! at the opening of the temple of Yahweh, between the porch and the altar, about twenty-five men,—their backs towards the temple of Yahweh and their faces eastward, and they were bowing down eastward unto the Sun. ¹⁷Then said he unto me Hast thou seen O son of man? Is it too small a thing for the house of Judah, to be committing the abominations which they have committed here,—that they have fled the land with violence and have again provoked me to anger and there they are! putting the branch to my nose. ¹⁸Therefore even I, will act with indignation, Mine eye shall not shield. Neither will I pity,— Though they have cried in mine ears with a loud voice, yet will I not hear them.

is exceeding, great, and the land is filled with shed blood, and the city is full of over-reaching,—for they have said. Yahweh hath forsaken the land,— and Yahweh doth not see. ¹⁰Therefore as for even me, Mine eye shall not shield. Neither will I pity,— Their way upon their own head, have I rendered. ¹¹And lo! the man clothed in linen, having the ink-holder by his side, bringing back word saying,— I have done according to all which thou didst command me.

¹⁰Then looked I. and lo! in the expanses which was over the head of the cherubim as a sapphire stone, as the appearance of the likeness of a throne, appeared over them. ²Then said he unto the man clothed in linen—then said he Go in between the whirling wheels, even under the cherub, and fl both thy hands with live coals of fire from between the cherubim, and throw over the city. So he went in before mine eyes. ³Now the cherubim were standing on the right side of the house when the man went in,—and, the, cloud filled the inner court, ⁴Then arose the glory of Yahweh from off the cherub, unto the threshold of the house,—and the house was fled with the cloud, and the, court, was fled with the brightness of the glory of Yahweh. ⁵And the sound of the wings of the cherubim was heard, as far as the outer court,—like the voice of the Almighty GOD when he speaketh, ⁶So then it came to pass— when he commanded the man clothed with linen, saying, Take fire from between the whirling wheels, from between the cherubim, then went he in and stood beside the wheel. ⁷And the cherub put forth his hand from between the cherubim unto the fire that was between the cherubim, and took up thereof and gave into the hands of him who was clothed with linen,—who took it and went forth, ⁸Now the cherubim appeared to have. the likeness of the hand of a man, under their wings. ⁹Then looked I. and lo! four wheels by the cherubim—one wheel by one cherub, and another wheel by another cherub,—and the appearance of the wheels was to look upon like a Tarshish stone; ¹⁰and as for their appearance, one likeness had they our,—as might be a wheel in the midst of a wheel. ¹¹When they went, upon their four sides, they went, they turned not when they went, for to the place whithersoever the heads turned, after it, they went, they turned not when they went. ¹²And all their flesh, and their back, and their hands and their wings, and the wheels were full of eyes round about, even their wheels which they four had ¹³To the wheels—to them, was made the cry— O whirling wheel! in mine ears. ¹⁴And four faces had each one,—the first face, was the face of a cherub, and, the second face, was the face of a man and the third was the face of a lion. and the fourth, was the face of an eagle. ¹⁵Then arose the cherubim,—the same, was the living one, which I had seen by the river Chebar. ¹⁶When the cherubim went, then went the wheels beside them,— and when the cherubim lifted up their wings, to arise from off the earth, the wheels themselves turned not from beside them; ¹⁷when they stood, these stood, and when they arose, these arose with them,—for the spirit of the living ones was in them. ¹⁸And when the glory of Yahweh went forth from off the threshold of the house,—and stood over the cherubim, ¹⁹then the cherubim uplifted their wings and arose from the earth before mine eyes as they went forth, the wheels also in unison with them,—and it stood at the opening of the gate of the house of Yahweh that was toward the east, with the glory of the God of Israel over them, above. ²⁰The same, was the living one which I saw under the God of Israel by the river Chebar,— then knew I that cherubim, they were. ²¹Four faces severally, had each one, and four wings, had each one,—and the likeness of the hands of a man, was under their wings. ²²And as for the likeness of their faces, They were the faces which I saw by the river Chebar, their appearances and themselves— every one straight before him, did they go.

¹¹And the Spirit lifted me up, and brought me into the east gate of the house of Yahweh which looketh eastward, and lo! in the opening of the gate, twenty-five men,—and I saw in their midst Jaazaniah son of Azzur and Pelatiah son of Benaiah princes of the people. ²Then said he unto me, Son of man, These, are the men who are devising iniquity, and who are counselling wicked counsel in this city; ³who are saying, Not near! let us build houses,— It, is the caldron, and, we, are the flesh! ⁴Therefore, prophesy against them, —prophesy. Son of man. ⁵Then fell upon me the Spirit of Yahweh, and he said unto me Say—Thus, saith Yahweh, Thus have ye said O house of Israel, Yea the things that come up on your spirit, know every one. ⁶Ye have multiplied your slain in this city,— And have fled her streets with slain. ⁷Therefore Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh, Your Main. whom ye have laid in her midst, They are the flesh, and She is the caldron,—when ye are taken out of her midst. ⁸A sword, have ye feared,— And a sword, will I bring in upon you, Declareth My Lord Yahweh. ⁹So will I take you forth out of her midst, and will deliver you into the hand of foreigners, —and will execute upon you judgments. ¹⁰By the sword, shah ye fall, Upon the boundary of Israel, will I judge you, —So shall, ye know that a Yahweh. ¹¹This city shall not serve you for a caldron, Neither shall, ye, serve in the midst thereof for flesh,— Near the boundary of Israel, will I judge you, ¹²So hat ye now that I am Yahweh, In whose statutes, ye have not walked And whose appointments, ye have not executed,— But according to the appointments of the nations that are round about you, have ye done. ¹³And it came to pass as I prophesied, that Pelatiah son of Benaiah died,—so then I fell down upon my face and made outcry with a loud voice and said— Alas! My Lord Yahweh! A full end, art thou making of the remnant of Israel? ¹⁴Then came the word of Yahweh unto me saying: ¹⁵Son of man Thine own brethren, thine own brethren the men of thy kindred, even

all the house of Israel all of it are they to whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said, Get you far away from Yahweh, To us, it is that the land, hath been given, for a possession! ¹⁶Therefore, say, Thus saith My Lord. Yahweh, Although I have removed them far away among the nations, And although I have dispersed them throughout the lands Yet have I become to them a sanctuary for a little while, in the lands which they have entered ¹⁷Therefore say, Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, Therefore will I assemble you from among the peoples, And gather you out of the lands wherein ye have been dispersed,— And will give you the soil of Israel. ¹⁸So shall they come in thither,— and take away all her detestable things, and all her abominations, out of her; ¹⁹And I will give them another heart, And a new spirit, will I put within you,—And will take away the heart of stone out of their e flesh, and give them a heart of flesh: ²⁰To the end that in my statutes, they may walk, And mine appointments, they may keep, and do them,— So shall they become my people, And I will become their God. ²¹But as for them who having a heart for their detestable things and for their abominations after their own heart, do walk, Their way upon their own heads, will I render, Declareth My Lord Yahweh. ²²Then did the cherubim lift up their wings, the wheels also going in unison with them,— the glory of the God of Israel, being over them above. ²³Thus went up the glory of Yahweh, out from the midst of the city,—and stood on the mountain, which is on the east of the city. ²⁴And, the spirit lifted me up, and brought me to Chaldea unto them of the captivity, in the vision by the Spirit of God,—thus went up from me, the vision which I had seen. ²⁵So I spake unto them of the captivity,—all the words of Yahweh which he had shewed me.

12Then came the word of Yahweh unto me saying: ²Son of man. In the midst of a perverse house, dost thou dwell,— Who have eyes to see—and have not seen. Ears have they to hear—and have no heard, For a perverse house, they are. ³Thou, therefore Son of man, Prepare thee baggage for exe, and exe thyself, by day, before their eyes,—so shalt thou exe thyself out of thy place unto another place before their eyes, peradventure they will consider— though a perverse house, they are. ⁴Therefore shalt thou take forth thy baggage as baggage for exe, by day before their eyes,—and thou thyself, shalt go forth in the evening, before their eyes, like them who go forth to exe. ⁵Before their eyes, break thou forth by thyself through the wall,—and carry forth through it. ⁶Before their eyes, Upon the shoulder, shalt thou lift it. In thick darkness, take it forth, Thy face, shalt thou cover so that thou see not the land; For a sign, have I appointed thee to the house of Israel. ⁷And I did so, just as I was commanded, My baggage, took I forth as baggage for exe by day, and in the evening, I brake forth by myself through the wall, by force: in the twilight, I took it forth—on to my shoulder, I lifted it, before their eyes. ⁸Then came the word of Yahweh unto me in the morning, saying: ⁹Son of man, Have not the house of Israel the perverse house, said unto thee,— What art thou doing? ¹⁰Say unto them, Thus, saith My Lord, Yahweh,— For the Bearer, is this burden, in Jerusalem, and for all the house of Israel such as are in their midst. ¹¹Say, I, am your sign: As I have done, so. shall it be done to them, Into exile—into captivity, shall they go. ¹²Yea, the Bearer, who is in their midst, Upon his shoulder, shall lift it. In thick darkness, shall he go forth, Through the wall, shall they break to hear forth through it,— His face, shall he cover, to the end that his own eye may not see the land. ¹³Then will I spread my net ever him, and he shall be taken in my snare; And I will take him to Babylon. in the land of the Chaldeans, The which, indeed, he shall not see. And yet there, shall he die! ¹⁴And all who are round about him to help him. and all his tops, will scatter to every wind,—and a sword, will I make bare after them. ¹⁵So shall they know that, I, am Yahweh By my dispersing them among the nations, And scattering them throughout the lands. ¹⁶Yet will I leave remaining of them, men easy counted, from the sword from a the famine and from the pestilence,— that they may recount all their abominations among the nations whither they have come, So shall they know that, I, am Yahweh. ¹⁷Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying: ¹⁸Son of man, Thy bread, with trembling, shalt thou eat, —And thy water, in agitation and in fear, shalt thou drink. ¹⁹Then shalt thou say unto the people of the land Thus saith the Lord Yahweh concerning the inhabitants of Jerusalem, upon the so of Israel, Their bread, with anxious care, shall they eat, And their water in astonishment, shall they drink,— That there land may be deserted of her fulness because of the violence of all them who dwell therein: ²⁰Yea the cities that are inhabited I shall be laid waste, And the land, shall become m astonish- men,— So shall ye know that, I am Yahweh. ²¹And the word of Yahweh came unto me saying: ²²Son of man What is this proverb ye have, concerning the so of Israel, saying,— The days, are prolonged, Therefore shall every vision come to nought? ²³Therefore say unto them, Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, I will cause this proverb to cease, And they shall use it as a proverb no more in Israel,— But speak unto them, The days late drawn near, And the substance of every vision. ²⁴For there shall no more be— Any vision of falsehood Or divination of deceit, In the midst of the house of Israel. ²⁵For, I, Yahweh will speak whatsoever word I please to speak, And it shall be done, It shall not be delayed any more,— For in your own days, O perverse house, will I speak a word and perform it, Declareth My Lord. Yahweh. ²⁶And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying: ²⁷Son of man. Lo! the house of Israel are saying, the vision which he seeth is for many days, Yea for times far away, hath he prophesied. ²⁸Therefore say unto them.

Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, None of my words shall be delayed any more,— Whatsoever word I speak, then shall it be performed, Declareth My Lord Yahweh.

13And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying: ²Son of man. prophesy against the prophets of Israel, who are prophesying,—and say unto them who prophesy out of their own heart, Hear ye the word of Yahweh, ³Thus, saith My Lord, Yahweh, Alas for the base prophets,—who follow their own spirit and have seen, nothing. ⁴As jackals, among ruins, thy prophets O Israel have been. ⁵Ye have not gone up into the breaches, Nor but a wall about the house of Israel,— to stand in the battle in the day of Yahweh. ⁶They have had Visions of falsehood, and Divinations of lies, Who say. Declareth Yahweh, when, Yahweh, hath not sent them,— Yet have they waited for fulfilling of the word. ⁷Is it not a Vision of falsehood, ye have seen, and a Divination of lies, ye have spoken, Since ye are saying. Declareth Yahweh! when I have not spoken ⁸Therefore Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, Because ye have spoken falsehood, And have had visions of lies, Therefore behold me! against you, Declareth My Lord Yahweh. ⁹So then my hand shall be against the prophets who have Visions of falsehood and who divine Divinations of lies— In the council of my people, shall they not be found. And in the register of the house of Israel, shall they not be written, And Upon the so of Israel, shall they not enter,— So shall ye know that, I, am The Lord Yahweh, ¹⁰Because, yea, even because, they have led astray my people saying. Prosperity! when there was no prosperity,—and one man, was building a partition wall, when there they were! eating it with whitewash ¹¹Say thou unto them who are coating with whitewash It shall fall,— There hath come an Overflowing rain And I will make ha-stones fall, And a tempestuous wind shall break it down. ¹²Lo! when the wall hath fallen, shall it not be said unto you, Where is the coating, wherewith ye coated it? ¹³Therefore Thus saith my Lord, Yahweh, So will I break down with a tempestuous wind. in mine indignation,— And an overflowing rain in mine anger, shall there be, With hailstones in wrath to make an end; ¹⁴And I will pull down the wall which ye have coated with whitewash And will bring it unto the ground So shall be discovered its foundation, Yea it shall fall And ye shall come to an end in the midst thereof, So shall ye know that am Yahweh. ¹⁵Thus will I bring to an end mine indignation against the wall, and against them who were coating it with whitewash, And will say to you No more is the wall, And no more are they who were coating it: ¹⁶to wit the prophets of Israel who are prophesying unto Jerusalem, and are seeing, on her behalf, visions of prosperity,— when there is no prosperity, Declareth My Lord Yahweh. ¹⁷And thou, Son of man Set thy face against the daughters of thy people, Those who are prophesying out of their own heart,— And prophesy thou against them; ¹⁸and say, Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh, Alas! for the women Who sew oracle, cases on all elbows And prepare wraps upon the head of every stature to hunt souls,— the souls ye hunt, are those of my people, Whereas your own souls; ye keep alive. ¹⁹Thus have ye profaned me unto my people for handfuls of barley and for pieces of bread, Putting to death the souls that should not die, and Keeping alive the souls that should not live,— By your lying to my people I who hearken to lies ²⁰Therefore, Thus saith my Lord Yahweh, Behold me! against your oracle-cases where. with ye are hunting the souls to make them fly, And I will tear them off your arms, And let go the souls of them whose souls ye are hunting as birds; ²¹And will tear off your wraps, And deliver my people out of your hand, And they shall be no longer in your hand to be hunted;— So shall ye know that, I, am Yahweh. ²²Because of the paining of the heart the righteous man with falsehood, whom, I, have not pained,— And strengthening the hands of the lawless man, that he should not turn from his wicked way. by letting him live ²³Therefore—of falsehood;— shall ye have no vision, And a divination;— shall ye not divine any more,— So will I deliver my people out of your hand, And ye shall know that, I, am Yahweh.

14Then came there unto me men, of the elders of Israel,— and sat before me— ²And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying: ³Son of man These men have brought up their manufactured gods upon their hear, And their stumbling-block of iniquity, have they set straight before their face,— Shall I be at all enquired of by them? ⁴Therefore speak unto them and say unto them, Thus, saith My Lord, Yahweh, Any man whatsoever of the house of Israel Who shall bring up his manufactured gods upon his heart, And set his stumbling, block of iniquity, straight before his face, And then some in unto the prophet. Yahweh, have myself answered him thereby. By the multitude of his manufactured gods: ⁵To the end the house of Israel may be taken by their own hearts,—in that they have estranged themselves from me, through their manufactured gods—all of them! ⁶Therefore say thou unto the house of Israel Thus saith My Lord. Yahweh, Turn ye—and make good your return—from your manufactured gods; And from all your abominations;— make good the turning away of your faces. ⁷For what man soever of the house of Israel Or of the sojourners who sojourn in Israel, Who shall estrange himself from following me And who shall bring up his manufactured gods, on his heart, And whose stumbling-block of iniquity, he shall set straight before his face, And then come in unto the prophet, to enquire by him of me. Yahweh will myself answer him on my own account; ⁸And will set my face against that man And will make of him a sign and a proverb, And will cut him off out of the midst of my people: So shall ye know that, I, am Yahweh. ⁹Yea the prophet himself when he suffereth himself to be deceived, and speaketh a word, Yahweh have suffered that prophet to be deceived, Then will I stretch forth my hand against him, and destroy him out of the midst of my people. Israel: ¹⁰So shall they bear their punishment, As the punishment of him that enquireth, So shall the punishment of the prophet be: ¹¹That the house of Israel may no more go astray from following me, And no more defile themselves by any of their transgressions,— But may become my people, and I, may become their God, Declareth My Lord Yahweh. ¹²And the word of Yahweh came unto me saying: ¹³Son of man, When a land, shall sin against me by committing treachery, and I shall stretch out my hand against it, And break for it the staff of bread, And send thereon famine, And cut off therefrom man and beast, ¹⁴Then should these three men be in the midst thereof, Noah, Daniel, and Job, they by their righteousness should deliver their own lives— Declareth My Lord, Yahweh. ¹⁵If a mischievous wild beast, I suffer to pass through the land, and that beast bereave it, so that it become too desolate for any man to pass through, by reason of the wild beast, ¹⁶Were these three men in the midst thereof, As I live, Declareth My Lord Yahweh, Surely neither sons nor daughters, should they deliver, They alone should be delivered, But the land, should become a desolation. ¹⁷Or, a sword, I should bring upon that land, and should say. O sword! thou shalt go through the land, and so I should cut off therefrom, man and beast, ¹⁸Were these three men in the midst thereof, As I live! Saith My Lord Yahweh, They should deliver neither sons nor daughters,— For they alone, should be delivered. ¹⁹Or pestilence, I, should send into that land,—and should pour out mine indignation thereon in blood, to cut off therefrom man and beast ²⁰Were Noah, Daniel and Job in the midst thereof, As I live, Declareth My Lord Yahweh, Surely neither son nor daughter, should they deliver, They, by their righteousness should deliver only their own lives. ²¹For thus, saith My Lord Yahweh, How much less should they avail when my four calamitous judgments, sword and famine and mischievous wild beast and pestilence I have sent against Jerusalem,—to cut off therefrom man and beast? ²²Yet lo! there hath been left therein remnant of fugitives to be brought forth —sons and daughters—There they are! coming forth unto you, And so ye shall see their way, and their doings, and be consoled over the calamity which I have brought in upon Jerusalem even all that I have brought in upon her. ²³Yea they shall console you, when ye see their way and their doings,— So shall ye know that not without cause, have I done, anything that I have done with her, Declareth My Lord Yahweh.

15And the word of Yahweh came unto me saying: ²Son of man, What can the vine-tree be more than any other tree,—any branch which hath been found among the trees of the forest? ³Shall there be taken from it wood, to be made into any work? Or will men take therefrom a peg, to hang thereon any vessel? ⁴Lo! into the fire, it is given up for fuel,— The two ends thereof, doth the fire devour, And the middle thereof is charred, Is it fit for any work? ⁵Lo! when it was yet whole, it could not be made into any work,— how much less when !the fire hath devoured it. and it is charred, can it still be made into any work? ⁶Therefore Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, As a vine-tree among the trees of the forest, which I have given up to the fire for fuel, so have I given up the inhabitants of Jerusalem. ⁷Therefore will I set my face against them, Out of one fire, have they come forth But another fire, shall devour them,— So shall ye know that, I, am Yahweh, by my setting my face against them; ⁸I will therefore give up the land as a desolation, —because they have committed treachery, Declareth My Lord., Yahweh.

16And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying: ²Son of man Let Jerusalem know her abominations, ³Therefore shalt thou say— Thus saith My Lord. Yahweh To Jerusalem, Thine origin and thy birth, were of the land of the Calamity,— Thy father was the Amorite. And mother a Hittite, ⁴And as for thy birth in the day thou wast born, Thy navel-cord was not cut, And in water, wast thou not bathed to cleanse thee,— And as for being salted, a thou was not salted, And as for being bandaged, thou wast not bandaged. ⁵No eye threw a shield over thee. by doing for thee one of these things, taking pity on thee,— But thou wast cast out, on the face of the field Because thy person was abhorred, in the day thou wast born. ⁶And I passed by thee, and looked upon thee, thrusting about thee in thy blood, And said to thee— Despite thy blood, ye! Yea I said to thee— Despite thy blood, live! ⁷Into myriads—like the bud of the field, made I thee, And thou didst increase and become well grown, and didst attain to most excellent adornments,— Thy breasts were well-formed And thy hair was grown, But thou thyself wast utterly naked. ⁸And I passed by thee and looked upon thee and lo! thy time was the time for endearments, So I spread my skirt over thee, and covered thy shame, And took an oath to thee And entered into covenant with thee. Declareth My Lord. Yahweh. And thou didst become mine. ⁹And I bathed thee in water, and rinsed thy blood from off thee, And anointed thee with oil; ¹⁰And clothed thee with an embroidered dress, And sandalled thee in red leather, And wrapped thee about with fine linen, And put over thee a mantle of silk. ¹¹Then decked I thee with ornaments, And put bracelets upon thy hands, And a neckchain upon thy throat; ¹²And put a nose-jewel upon thy nose, And earrings in thine ears, And a crown of adorning, upon thy head. ¹³Thus wast thou adorned with gold and silver, And thy raiment was of fine linen and silk and embroidered work, Fine flour and honey and oil, didst thou eat,— And so thou becamest exceedingly beautiful, And didst attain unto royalty. ¹⁴Then went forth thy fame among the nations. for thy beauty,- Foe perfect, it was—in my splendour which I had put upon thee, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh. ¹⁵Then didst thou trust in thy beauty, And become unchaste, because of thy fame,- And didst pour out thine unchastity upon every passer-by, his it was! ¹⁶Yea thou didst take of thy raiment and madest thee high places of hangings, And didst commit unchastity thereon,- Which ought not to have befallen And not to have come to pass. ¹⁷But thou didst take thine adorning jewels Of my gold and of my silver which I had given thee, And didst make thee images of the male,—c And didst act unchastely with them; ¹⁸And thou didst take thine embroidered raiment, and cover them,- And mine and mine incense, didst thou set before them; ¹⁹And my food which I had given thee, Fine flour and ell and honey wherewith I fed thee, And didst set it before them for a satisfying odour Yea so it was,— Saith My Lord Yahweh. ²⁰And thou didst take thy sons and thy daughters, Whom thou hadst borne unto me, And didst sacrifice them unto them to be devoured,- Is this of thine unchastity. a light thing? ²¹Yea thou didst slay my children,— And didst deliver them up. that they should be caused to pass through the fire unto them. ²²And in all thine abominations, and thine unchaste ways, thou rememberedst not the days of thy youth, How thou wast utterly naked. When thou wast thrusting about thee in thy blood! ²³And it came to pass after all thy wickedness, Woe! Woe! to thee, Exclaimeth My Lord Yahweh; ²⁴That thou didst build thee a brothel,— and didst make thee a height in every Broadway: ²⁵At the head of every road, didst thou bud thy height, And bring thy beauty into disgust, And open thy feet to every passer-by, So didst thou make thine unchaste ways to abound. ²⁶Then didst thou extend thine unchaste acts unto the sons of Egypt—thy neighbour great of flesh,- And caused thine unchaste ways to abound provoking me to anger. ²⁷Lo! therefore, I have stretched out my hand against thee, And diminished thine allotted portion,— And have delivered thee up unto the desire of them who hate thee The daughters of the Philistines, who are ashamed of thy lewd way. ²⁸Thou didst also extend thine unchastity unto the sons of Assyria, because thou wast insatiable. Yet though thou didst behave unchastely with them, yet even so couldst thou not be satisfied, ²⁹Thou didst therefore cause thine unchaste ways to abound unto the land of Canaan as towards Chaldea. Yet even herewith, wast thou not satisfied. ³⁰How weak was thy heart! Exclaimeth My Lord Yahweh,— That thou couldst have done all these things, The doing of a lewd woman without shame: ³¹That thou couldst have but thy brothel at the head of every road, And thy height, couldst have made in every Broadway,- Yet becamest not as harlot to lay claim to a harlots hire. ³²A wife who committeth adultery, instead of her husband accepteth strangers. ³³To all harlots, they give a present, But thou, didst give thy presents to all thy lovers, And didst bribe them to come in unto thee from every side in thine unchastity! ³⁴And so there came about in thee, the reverse of women, in thine unchastity, In that they did not follow thee for purposes of lewdness,— And in that thou gavest a present when no present was given to thee So didst thou become the reverse. ³⁵Therefore O harlot, hear thou the word of Yahweh; ³⁶Thus saith My Lord Yahweh,— Because thy money was poured curl, and thy shame I was uncovered I, in thine unchastity, unto thy lovers,—and unto all thine abominable manufactured gods, even as the blood of thy children, whom thou didst deliver up unto them, ³⁷Therefore behold me! gathering together all thy lovers unto whom thou didst make thyself pleasant, Even all whom thou lovedst, With all whom thou hatedst,— Yea I will gather them together unto thee from every side And will uncover thy shame unto them, And they shall see all thy shame. ³⁸So will I judge thee. with the judgments meted out to adulteresses and shedders of blood,- And will repay thee with the blood of indignation and jealousy; ³⁹And will deliver thee into their hand. And they shall pull down thy brothel And break in pieces thy heights, And strip thee of thy raiment, And take away thine adorning jewels,- And leave thee utterly naked. ⁴⁰Then will they bring up against thee a gathered host, And they will stone thee with stones,- And cut thee to pieces with their swords; ⁴¹And burn up thy houses with fire, And execute upon thee judgments before the eyes of many women,—So will I cause thee to cease from acting unchastely, Moreover also a present, shalt thou not give any more. ⁴²So will I let mine indignation find rest in thee, And my jealousy shall depart from thee,—And I will be quiet, and not be provoked any more. ⁴³Because thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth, But hast enraged me with all these things Therefore also behold! I thy way, upon thine own head, will place Declareth My Lord Yahweh, And thou shalt not commit a crime above all thine abominations ⁴⁴Lo! every one who useth proverbs, against thee, shall use a proverb saying,— Like the mother, so her daughter! ⁴⁵The daughter of thy mother, thou art! One abhorring her own husband and her own children,— Yea the sister of thy sisters, thou art Who abhorred their own husbands and their own children, Your mother was a Hittite, And your father an Amorite. ⁴⁶And thine elder sister, was Samaria, she and her daughters, dwelling on thy left hand,— And thy sister younger than thou dwelling on thy right hand was Sodom and her daughters. ⁴⁷Yet not in their ways, didst thou walk, nor according to their abominations, didst thou do,— As though that were quite too little, thou didst corrupt thyself beyond them in all thy ways. ⁴⁸As I live, Declareth My Lord Yahweh, Very! Sodom thy sister had not done, neither she nor her daughters,—as thou and thy daughters have done. ⁴⁹Lo! this became the iniquity of Sodom thy sister,— Pride, fulness of bread, and careless security came to her and to her daughters, And the hand of the oppressed and the needy, she strengthened not.

⁵⁰So then they became haughty, and committed abomination before me,- And I took them away. when I saw it , ⁵¹Nor did Samaria commit lone-half thy sins,— But thou didst multiply thine abominations more than they, And didst cause thy sisters to appear righteous I by all the abominations which thou didst commit. ⁵²Thou also bear thine own reproach, which thou didst adjudge to thy sisters, by thy sins in which thou wast more abominable than they, thou didst make them appear more righteous than thou,— Thou also, therefore turn thou pale and bear thine own reproach, for making thy sisters appear righteous! ⁵³When therefore I bring back their captivity, The captivity of Sodom and her daughters, And the captivity of Samaria and her daughters Then will I bring back thy captivities in their midst: ⁵⁴That thou mayest bear thine own reproach, And take to thyself reproach because of all that thou didst in comforting them. ⁵⁵When thy sisters Sodom and her daughters shall return to their former estate, And Samara and her daughters shall return to their former estate Then thou and thy daughters, shall return to your former estate. ⁵⁶And Sodom thy sister was never heard in thy mouth, —In the day of thy pride: ⁵⁷Before thy wickedness was discovered, As now, thou art the reproach of the daughters of Syria and all round about her the daughters of the Philistines, —who are despising thee on every side. ⁵⁸As for thy crime and thine abominations, thou thyself, dost bear them,— Declareth Yahweh. ⁵⁹For Thus, saith My Lord, Yahweh, Therefore will I deal with thee just as thou hast dealt,- In that thou didst despise an oath by breaking a covenant. ⁶⁰Therefore will remember my covenant with thee in the days of thy youth,— And will establish for thee a covenant age-abiding. ⁶¹Thou shalt therefore remember thy ways and take to thyself reproach, by receiving thy sisters. The older than thou, And the younger than thou,- And I will give them unto thee for daughters Though not by thine own covenant. ⁶²But I myself, will establish my covenant with thee— And thou shalt know that I, am Yahweh: ⁶³To the end thou mayest remember and turn pale, and there be to thee no more, an opening of mouth, because of thy reproach,- In that I have accepted a propitiatory covering for thee as to all that thou hast done, Declareth My Lord. Yahweh.

17 And the word of Yahweh came unto me saying: ²Son of man Put thou forth a riddle And speak thou a parable,- Unto the house of Israel: ³So then thou shalt say, Thus, saith My Lord. Yahweh,— A great eagle, with large wings of long pinion, full of plumage, which had divers colours, came unto Lebanon, and took the highest branch of the cedar: ⁴The crown of its young twigs, plucked he off, and brought it into a land of traffic, :in a city of merchants, he t it. ⁵So he took of the seed of the land, and planted it in a field for seed,- He took it near mighty waters, Like a willow-tree, he set it. ⁶And it shot forth, and became a spreading vine of lowly stature, Its branches turning towards him, And its roots under him spread,- So it became a vine, And brought forth shoots, And sent forth boughs. ⁷And it came to pass that there was another great eagle, with large wings, and abundant plumage,- And lo! this vine, stretched its roots hungry towards him. And its branches, sent it forth unto him, That he might cause it to drink out of the beds where it was planted: ⁸In a goodly field by mighty waters, was it planted,- That it might bring forth boughs, and bear fruit, That it might become a splendid vine. ⁹Say thou, Thus saith My Lord. Yahweh, I Shall it thrive? Its roots, will he not tear up? Its fruit, will he not cut off, that it wither? All the fresh leaves it hath caused to spring forth shall wither without a strong I arm. or many people, to pull it up by its roots. ¹⁰Lo! therefore though it remain planted, shall it thrive? As soon as an east wind toucheth it, will it not utterly wither? On the beds where it sprang up, will it not wither? ¹¹Then came the word of Yahweh unto me saying: ¹²Say, I pray thee unto the perverse house, Know ye not what these things are? Say thou Lo! the King of Babylon entered Jerusalem And took her king and her princes, And brought them unto him in Babylon; ¹³Yea took of the seed royal And solemnised with him a covenant, And brought him into an oath, Also the mighty ones of the land, did he take. ¹⁴That, the kingdom might be abased, so as not to lift itself up,— By the keeping of his covenant, might be made to stand. ¹⁵But he hath rebelled against him by sending his messengers to Egypt, that there should be given to him horses, and much people. Shall he thrive? Shall he escape that doeth these things? Shall he break a covenant and escape? ¹⁶As I live, Declareth My Lord Yahweh, Very! in the place where dwelleth the king that made him king, Whose oath he hath despised, And whose covenant he hath broken With him in the midst of Babylon, shall he die. ¹⁷Neither shall Pharaoh with a great force. or with a large gathered host, work with him in the war, by casting up an earthwork and by building a siege-wall, —to the cutting off of many lives. ¹⁸Seeing he hath despised an oath. by breaking a covenant—yea lo! hath given his hand and all these things hath done he shall not escape. ¹⁹Therefore, Thus saith My Lord Yahweh As I live, Surely it is mine oath which he hath despised, and my covenant which he hath broken, Therefore will I bring it upon his own head: ²⁰And I will spread over him my net, And he shall be taken in my snare, And I will bring him into Babylon and will enter into judgment with him there, as to his treachery wherewith he hath been treacherous against me; ²¹And all his fugitives throughout all his bands by the sword, shall fall, And they who are left, to every wind, shall be scattered,- So shall ye know that I, Yahweh, have spoken! ²²Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh, Therefore will I, Myself, take of the highest branch of the lofty cedar and set it,— Of the crown of its young twigs, a tender one, will I pluck off, and I. myself will plant it upon a mountain high and terraced, ²³In the mountain of the height of Israel, will I plant it, And it shall put forth boughs And bear fruit, And become a majestic cedar,- And every bird of every wing shall dwell under it, In the shade of its branches, shall they dwell. ²⁴So shall all the trees of the field know that I Yahweh Have laid low the high tree Have exalted the low tree, Have dried up the moist tree, And have caused to flourish the tree, that was dry,— I, Yahweh, have spoken, and performed.

¹⁸And the word of Yahweh came unto me saying: ²What occasion have ye, to be using this proverb, concerning the so of Israel, saying, —Fathers eat sour grapes, And the children's teeth are blunted? ³As I live, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, Surely ye shall have occasion no longer to use this proverb, in Israel. ⁴Lo! as for all persons, mine they are, As the person of the father, so also the person of the son, mine they are,—The person that sinneth, the same shall die. ⁵But when, any man, shall be righteous, and do justice and righteousness: ⁶Upon the mountains, hath not eaten, And his eyes, hath not lifted up unto the manufactured gods of the house of Israel, And the wife of his neighbour, hath not defiled, And unto a woman during her removal, hath not approached; ⁷And no man, hath treated with violence, But his debt-pledge, hath restored. Plunder, hath not seized,— His bread—to the famished, hath given, And the naked, hath covered with clothing; ⁸Upon interest, hath not put out his money. And increase, hath not accepted, From dishonesty, hath turned back his hand,— Justice in truth, hath doze, between man and man; ⁹In my statutes, hath walked. And my regulations, hath observed to do them in truth, Righteous, he is, He shall surely live, Declareth My Lord. Yahweh. ¹⁰But he hath begotten a son Who is a violent man A shedder of blood,- Who doeth the like of any of these things; ¹¹Whereas he, none of those other things, doeth, For indeed upon the mountains, he hath eaten, And the wife of his neighbour, hath defiled; ¹²The oppressed and the needy, hath treated with violence, Hath ruthlessly plundered, The pledge, hath not restored, But unto the manufactured gods, hath lifted up his eyes, Abomination, hath wrought; ¹³Upon interest, hath put out. And increase, hath accepted,— And shall he live? He shall not live All these abominations, he hath done, He shall surely be put to death, His blood, upon himself, shall be. ¹⁴But lo! he hath begotten a son, Who hath considered all the sins of his father which he hath done,- Yea lie hath considered and not done like them: ¹⁵Upon the mountains, hath not eaten, And his eyes, hath not lifted up unto the manufactured gods of the house of Israel, The wife of his neighbour, hath not defiled; ¹⁶And no man, hath he treated with violence, Hath he no means withholden the pledge, And plunder, hath not seized,— His bread—to the famished, hath given And the naked, hath covered with clothing; ¹⁷From dishonesty, hath turned back his hand Neither interest nor increase, hath accepted, my regulations, hath executed, In my statutes, hath walked,— He shall not die for the iniquity of his father He shall surely live. ¹⁸His father Because he exacted unjust gain Seized plunder of a brother, And that which was not good, had-done in the midst of his people Therefore lo! he died, in his iniquity. ¹⁹Will ye then say. Why hath not the son borne a part of the iniquity of the father? But the son hath done justice and righteousness, All my statutes, hath observed and done them He shall surely live. ²⁰The person that sinneth, the same, shall die,— the son shall not bear a part of the iniquity of, the father, neither shall a father bear a part of the iniquity of the son, the righteousness of the righteous upon himself, shall be. And the lawlessness of a lawless man upon himself, shall be. ²¹But as for the lawless man— When he shall turn back from all his sins which he hath committed, And observe all my statutes, And do justice and righteousness He shall surely live. He shall note die: ²²None of his transgressions which he hath committed shall be remembered against him, —In his righteousness which he hath done, he shall live. ²³Could I take delight, in the death of the lawless? Demandeth My Lord. Yahweh. Must it not be in his turning from his ways in which case he shall live? ²⁴But when a righteous man I shall turn away I from his righteousness and do that which is perverse, Shall do according to all the abominations which the lawless man hath done Shall he live? None of his righteous acts which he hath done shall be remembered, In his treachery wherein he hath been treacherous, And in his sin wherein he hath sinned In them, shall he die. ²⁵Can ye then say— The way of My Lord will not be equal? Hear I pray you O house of Israel, Will my way, not be equal? Will not your ways be unequal? ²⁶When a righteous man shall turn away from his righteousness and do that which is perverse and die because of those things In his own perversity which he hath done, shall he die. ²⁷But when a lawless man turneth away from his lawlessness which he hath done, And hath done justice and righteousness He, shall save his own soul, alive: ²⁸When he considered, then he turned away from all his transgressions which he had committed, He shall surely live. He shall not die. ²⁹Can the house of Israel then say- The way of My Lord will not be equal? Will my ways, not be equal O house of Israel? Will not your ways be unequal? ³⁰Therefore, Every man according to his own ways, will I judge you O house of Israel, Declareth My Lord Yahweh, Return ye— and make good your return—from all your transgressions, That they become not unto you a stumbling_ block of iniquity. ³¹Cast off from you all your transgressions which ye have committed against me, And make you a new heart; And a new spirit,- For why should ye die, O house of Israel? ³²For I cannot take delight in the death of him that dieth, Declareth My Lord Yahweh, Make good your return then and, live!

19Thou. therefore take up a dirge, for the prince of Israel; ²and thou shalt say— How was thy mother a lioness, Between lions, she lay down,- I n the midst of young lions, She nourished her whelps; ³And she reared up one of her whelps— A young lion, he became, And he learned to rend prey. Men, he devoured. ⁴Then nations heard of him. In their pit, was he caught,— So they brought him with hooks. Into the land of Egypt. ⁵And she saw she had waited Lost was her hope, Then took she another of her whelps. A young lion, she made him. ⁶Yea he went to and fro amidst lions A young lion, he became,- And he learned to rend prey. Men, he devoured; ⁷And he injured b his widows, And their cities, laid waste,- And deserted was the land and its fulness, At the noise of his roaring. ⁸Then set upon him the nations round about. From the provinces,- And spread over him their net In their pit, was he caught; ⁹And they put him in a cage with hooks, And brought him to Babylon's king,— They brought him into strong-holds, That his noise might be heard no more Among the mountains of Israel. ¹⁰Thy mother was like a vine of thy vineyard, By waters, was planted,— Fruitful and full of branches, she became By reason of waters abundant; ¹¹And they served her as staves of power For the sceptres of rulers, And high became the stature thereof With its interwoven foliage,- And it was seen by its height, By its multitude of branches. ¹²Then was she uprooted in indignation To the ground, was she east, And an east wind, dried up her fruit,—Broken off and withered were her staves of power, A fire, devoured them. ¹³Now, therefore, is she planted in a desert, -In a land parched and dry; ¹⁴And there hath gone forth a fire out of her staves of rods. Her fruit, hath it devoured, And there is in her no staff of power. As a sceptre to bear rule. A dirge, it is, and hath been made a dirge.

20And it came to pass in the seventh year in the fifth month, on the tent of the month, that there came in men of the elders of Israel to enquire of Yahweh,—and they sat before me. ²Then came the word of Yahweh unto me saying:- ³Son of man, Speak thou with the elders of Israel, and say unto them, Thus, saith My Lord. Yahweh, To enquire of me, are ye coming in. As I live, very I will no be enquired of by you, Declareth My Lord Yahweh. ⁴Wilt thou judge them, wilt thou judge, O son of man? The abominations of their fathers, let them know: ⁵So then thou shalt say unto them Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh, In the day when I made choice of Israel, then lifted I up my hand. to the seed of the house of Jacob, and made myself known to them, in the land of Egypt,- Yea I lifted up my hand to them, saying, Yahweh am your God. ⁶In that day, lifted I up my hand to them, to bring them forth out of the land of Egypt,—into a land that I had looked out for them flowing with milk and honey, The beauty, it was of all lands, ⁷And I said unto them. Every one the abomination of his eyes, cast ye away, And with the manufactured gods of Egypt, let it not be that ye defile yourselves: I, Yahweh, am your God. ⁸But they rebelled against me And were not willing to hearken unto me, Every man the abominations of their eyes, they east not away, And the manufactured gods of Egypt, forsook they not; Therefore spake I of pouring out mine indignation upon them to bring mine anger to an end against them, in the midst of the land of Egypt. ⁹Howbeit I wrought with effect, for the sake of mine own Name, that it might not be profaned—before the eyes of the nations in whose midst they were,—before whose eyes I made myself known unto them, by bringing them forth out of the land of Egypt. ¹⁰Therefore brought I them forth out of the land of Egypt,—and caused them to come into the desert. ¹¹Then gave I unto them my statutes, And my regulations, caused I them to know,- By the which the man that doeth them shall live. ¹²Moreover also my sabbaths, gave I unto them, to become a sign betwixt me and them,—that it might be known that, I, Yahweh, was hallowing them. ¹³But the house of Israel rebelled against reel in the desert In ray statutes, walked they not. And my regulations, they rejected By the which the man that doeth them shall live, my sabbaths also, they profaned exceedingly. Therefore spake I of pouring out mine indignation upon them in the desert, to make an end of them. ¹⁴Howbeit I wrought with effect for the sake of mine own Name,—that it should not b profaned in the eyes of the nations, in whose eyes I had brought them forth. ¹⁵Yet even I lifted up my hand to them. in the desert,— That I would not bling them into the land which I had given to them flowing with milk and honey, The beauty, it was. of all lands: ¹⁶Because my regulations, they had rejected. And as for my statutes, they had not walked therein, My sabbaths also, had they profaned; or after their manufactured gods, their heart had been going. ¹⁷Nevertheless mine eye threw a shield over them that they should not be destroyed; So I made not of them a full end in the desert. ¹⁸But I said unto their children in the desert, In the statutes of your fathers, let it not be that ye walk, And their regulations, let it not be that ye observe,— And with their manufactured gods, let it not be that ye defile yourselves. ¹⁹I, Yahweh, am your God, In my statutes, walk ye,— And my regulations, observe ye and do them; ²⁰My sabbaths also, hallow ye,— And they shall become a sign betwixt me and you, That it may be known that I Yahweh am your God. ²¹Notwithstanding. the children rebelled against me. In my statutes, walked they not. And my regulations, observed they not. to do them. Wherein the man who shall do them shall live, My sabbaths, they profaned. Therefore spake I of pouring out mine indignation upon them to bring mine anger to an end against them. in the desert. ²²Howbeit I withdrew my hand, and wrought with effect for the sake of mine own Name, —that it should not be profaned before the eyes of the nations, before whose eyes I had brought them forth: ²³Even, I, lifted up my hand to them in the desert,— That I would disperse them throughout the nations, And scatter them throughout the lands; ²⁴Because my regulations, had they not done And my statutes, they had rejected, My sabbaths also, they had profaned,— And after the manufactured gods of their fathers, were their eyes turned. ²⁵I myself, indeed, suffered them to walk in statutes which were not good,— And regulations in which they could not live. ²⁶Yea I let them defile themselves with their gifts, when they caused every firstborn to pass through the fire,—that I might make them desolate. To the end they might know that, I, am Yahweh. ²⁷Therefore speak thou unto the house of Israel Son of man, and say unto them, Thus saith My Lord Yahweh,— Yet further in this, did your fathers insult me, by the treachery wherewith they dealt treacherously against me; ²⁸When I brought them into the land as to which I had lifted up mine hand to give it them, then beheld they every high hill and every tangled tree And offered there their sacrifices, And presented there, their provoking gift, And placed there, their satisfying odour, And poured out there, their drink-offerings. ²⁹Therefore said I unto them, What! a high-place, whereinto ye are entering, And so the name thereof hath been called High-place, unto this day. ³⁰Therefore say thou unto the house of Israel. Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, Is it in the way of your fathers, you are defiling yourselves,— And after their abominations, that ye are committing lewdness ³¹Yea when ye lift up your gifts When ye cause your children to pass through the fire, Ye are defiling yourselves unto all your manufactured gods unto this day, And shall be enquired of by you. house of Israel. As I live, Declareth My Lord Yahweh, Surely I will not be enquired of by you. ³²And as for that which is rising up on your spirit, it shall not at all come to pass, In that ye are saying Let us be like the nations Like the families of the lands, By ministering unto Wood and Stone! ³³As I live, Declareth My Lord Yahweh, Surely with a strong hand and With an outstretched arm and With outpoured indignation Will I be king over you; ³⁴And I will bring you forth from among the peoples, And gather you together out of the lands, throughout which ye have been dispersed, With t strong hand and With an outstretched arm, and With outpoured indignation; ³⁵And I will bring you into the desert of the peoples,—and will contend with you there, I face to face. ³⁶Just as I contended with yore fathers in the desert of the land of Egypt, So will I contend with you, Declareth My Lord Yahweh; ³⁷And I will cause you to pass under the rod And will bring you into the bond of the covenant; ³⁸And will sever from you those who are rebelling and those who are transgressing against me, Out of the land of their sojournings, will I bring them forth, Yet upon the so of Israel, shall they not enter, So shall ye know that, I, am Yahweh.

³⁹But as for you, O house of Israel Thus, saith my Lord. Yahweh, Go. serve every man his own manufactured gods, Yet afterwards, surely Ye shall be ready to hearken unto me,— And my holy name, shall ye profane no more, With your gifts, and With your manufactured gods. ⁴⁰For in my holy mountain. In the mountain of the height of Israel, Declareth, My Lord Yahweh, There shall all the house of Israel serve me, all of it, in the land, There will I accept them, and There, will I seek your heave-offerings and the firstfruits of your gifts, in all your holy things: ⁴¹As a satisfying odour, will I accept you I, Through my bringing you forth from among the peoples, And gathering you out of the lands, throughout which ye have been dispersed; Thus will I hallow myself in you before the eyes of the nations. ⁴²So shall ye know that I am Yahweh, Through my bringing you in unto the so of Israel, Unto the land as to which I lifted up my hand, to give it unto your fathers. ⁴³Then shall ye call to mind. there, your own ways and all your own doings, where- with ye had defiled yourselves,— And ye stroll become loathsome in your own sight, for all your wickednesses, which ye have done. ⁴⁴So shall ye know that, I, am Yahweh, Through my dealing effectively with you, for the sake of mine own Name,— Not according to your own wicked ways. Nor according to your corrupted doings. O house of Israel, Declareth My Lord Yahweh. ⁴⁵Then came the word of Yahweh unto me. saying: ⁴⁶Son of man Set thy face the way towards Teman, And drop thy word against the land of the sun, And prophesy unto the forest of the field of the South; ⁴⁷And thou shalt say to the forest of the South Hear the word of Yahweh,— Thus saith My Lord Yahweh—Behold me! kindling in thee a fire. And it shall devour in thee every moist tree and every dry tree. The spreading flame shall not be quenched, Then shall be scorched thereby all faces from south to north; ⁴⁸And all flesh shall see that I. Yahweh have kindled it,— It shall not be quenched. ⁴⁹Then said I, Ah! My Lord Yahweh: They are saying of me, Is not he a putter forth of parables?

21 Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying: ²Son of man Set thy face against Jerusalem, And drop thy word against the holy places And prophesy against the so of Israel. ³Thou shalt say then to the so of Israel Thus saith Yahweh, Behold me against thee, Therefore will I bring forth my sword out of its sheath,—and will cut off from thee the righteous and the lawless. ⁴Because I have cut off from thee the righteous and the lawless, Therefore shall my sword go forth out of its sheath against all flesh from south to north: ⁵So shall all flesh know that, I, Yahweh have brought forth my sword out of its sheath,— it shall not return any more. ⁶Thou, therefore O son of man sigh,— In the sharp pain of thy loins and in bitterness, shalt thou sigh before their eyes. ⁷And it shall come to pass when they shall say unto thee, Wherefore art thou sighing? that thou shalt say, For the report because it

cometh, When every heart shall melt. And all hands be unnerved And every spirit shall become faint. And all knees shall be weak as water, Lo! it cometh and shall be brought to pass, Saith My Lord, Yahweh. ⁸And the word of Yahweh came unto me. saying: ⁹Son of man, Prophecy and thou shalt say, Thus saith My Lord,— Say, A sword! a sword! Sharpened moreover also furbished: ¹⁰To make a slaughter, is it sharpened, That it may flash as lightning, is it furbished. Or shall we flourish the royal rod of my son which despiseth every tree? ¹¹It hath. however been given to be furbished that it may be grasped by the hand: The same is a sword sharpened. Yea the same, is furbished, Ready to be given into the hand of the slayer. ¹²Make an outcry and howl son of man, For the same hath come against my people, the same is against all the princes of Israel,— Who are thrown to the sword with my people, Therefore smite thou upon thy thigh. ¹³For trial hath been made, What then, even though the royal rod despiseth, shall it not be? Demandeth My Lord. Yahweh. ¹⁴Thou, therefore, son of man, Prophecy, and smite thy hands together, And let the sword smite twice thrice the sword of the slain! the same is the great sword of the slain, that which hemmeth them in. ¹⁵That the heart may melt And the overthrow be multiplied at all their gates, I have recompensed a slaying by the sword: Surety it hath been made ready to flash like lightning, keen for slaughter. ¹⁶One firm stroke to the right. Turn to the left,— Whithersoever thine edge is directed, ¹⁷Yea even I myself, will smite my hands together, And will cause mine indignation to find rest,— Yahweh have spoken. ¹⁸Then came the word of Yahweh unto me saying: ¹⁹Thou, therefore son of man. Appoint thee two ways For the sword of the king of Babylon to enter, Out of one land shall those two ways come,— And a hand, engrave thou, At the head of the way to the city, engrave it.; ²⁰A way, shalt thou appoint, for the sword to enter. Even to Rabbah of the sons of Ammon,— And to Judah against Jerusalem, the defenced, ²¹For the king of Babylon hath come tea stand At the parting of the way. At the head of the two ways To divine a divination: He hath shaken with arrows He hath asked of the household gods, He hath inspected the liver. ²²On his right hand, hath come the divination—Jerusalem! To plant battering-rams. To open a hole by breach To lift up the voice with a war-shout,— To plant battering-rams against the gates, To cast up an earth-work To bud a siege-wall. ²³Though it will become to them a veritably false divination in their eyes, even when hound by oaths to theme Yet he calling to mind iniquity, will determine that it shall he captured. ²⁴Therefore Thus saith My Lord. Yahweh, Because ye have brought to mind your iniquity, by revealing your transgressions causing your sins to appear in all your doings,— Because ye have brought yourselves to mind By force shall ye be captured. ²⁵Thou therefore, O profane, lawless one, prince of Israel,— Whose day hath come, in a time of final iniquity: ²⁶Thus, saith My Lord. Yahweh, Remove the turban, And lift off the crown,— This not that, The abased, exalt, And the exalted, abase. ²⁷An overthrow, overthrow, overthrow, will I make it,— Even this hath not befallen unto the coming of One to whom belongeth the right Then will I bestow it. ²⁸Thou, therefore, son of man Prophecy and say, thus, saith My Lord. Yahweh, As to the sons of Ammon and as to their reproach Yea thou shalt say. A sword! a sword! Drawn for slaughter, Furbished, that when it beginneth, it may flash like lightning; ²⁹Since they see for thee, false visions, Since they divine for thee lies, To stretch thee upon the necks of them who are the most profaned of lawless ones, Whose day hath come, in a time of final iniquity, ³⁰Put it back into its sheath! In the place where thou wast created In the land of thy nativity, will I judge thee ³¹Then will I pour out upon thee mine indignation, With the fire of mine outburst, will I blow upon thee; and will deliver thee up into the hand of brutish men, skilled to destroy. ³²For the fire, shalt thou serve as fuel, Thy blood shall be in the midst of the land,— Thou shalt not be remembered, For I, Yahweh, have spoken.

22 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying: ²Thou therefore son of man, Wt thou judge wt thou judge the city of bloodshed; and cause her to know all her abominations? ³Thou shalt say then Thus saith My Lord. Yahweh, A city shedding blood in her own midst That her time might come, Therefore hath she been making manufactured gods for herself, to be defiled. ⁴Because of the blood which thou hast shed, hast thou become guilty. And with the manufactured gods which thou hast made, hast thou defiled thyself, Thus hast thou brought near thy days, And hast come unto thy years,— For this cause, have I delivered thee As a reproach to the nations, And as a derision to all the lands. ⁵They who are near and they who are far off from thee shall shew themselves derisive over these,— O thou of impure name, abounding in confusion! ⁶Lo! the princes of Israel, very man for his own arm, have they been in thee, For the sake of shedding blood. ⁷Father and mother, have they despised in thee, To the sojourner, have they dealt with oppression in the midst of thee,— The fatherless and the widow, have they maltreated in thee: ⁸My holy things, hast thou despised,— And my sabbaths, hast thou profaned: ⁹Slanders, have arisen in thee For the sake of shedding blood,— And unto the mountains, have they eaten in thee, Lewdness, have they practised in the midst of thee: ¹⁰A father's shame hath been uncovered in thee, Her that was unclean in her removal, have they humbled in thee; ¹¹And, one man, with the wife of his neighbour, hath wrought abomination, And another hath defiled this daughter-in-law by shameful deed,— And another! his own sister daughter of his own father, hath humbled in thee: ¹²Bribes, have they accepted in thee, For the sake of shedding blood,—Interest and increase, hast thou accepted And thou hast overreached thy neighbour by oppression, And me, hast thou forgotten, Declareth My Lord Yahweh. ¹³Lo! therefore I have smitten my hand, At thine unjust gain which thou hast made— And over thy bloodshed, which they have caused in thy midst. ¹⁴Can thy heart endure or can thy hands be strong in the days when I am dealing with thee? I, Yahweh have spoken and will perform. ¹⁵Therefore will I disperse thee among the nations, And scatter thee throughout the lands,— And will cause to cease thine impurity out of thee; ¹⁶So shalt thou be profaned in thyself, before the eyes of nations, Thus shalt thou know that, I, am Yahweh. ¹⁷Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying: ¹⁸Son of man, The house of Israel hath become to me, dross,— They all are copper and tin and iron and lead in the midst of a furnace, The dross of silver, have they become. ¹⁹Therefore, Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh, Because ye all are become dross, Therefore, behold me! gathering you into the midst of Jerusalem: ²⁰As they gather silver and copper and iron and lead and tin into the midst of a furnace, to blow upon it the fire to melt it, So will I gather in mine anger and in mine indignation, and will let b. and will melt you; ²¹Yea I will gather you together, and blow upon you, with the fire of my wrath,— And ye shall be melted in the midst thereof: ²²As silver is melted in he midst of a furnace, So shall ye be melted in the midst thereof,— Then shall ye know that lit Yahweh have poured out mine indignation upon you. ²³And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying: ²⁴Son of man, say to her. Thou, art a land, that is not to be rained upon, nor to receive fruitful showers, in the day of indignation. ²⁵Because her princes in her midst are like a roaring lion rending prey,— Life, have they devoured Wealth and precious things, have they been wont to take, Her widows, have they multiplied in her midst. ²⁶Her priests have done violence to my law And have profaned my holy things, Between the hallowed and the common, have they put no difference, And between the unclean and clean, have they not taught men to discern,— And from my sabbaths, have they hid their eyes, So that I have been profaned in their midst. ²⁷Her rulers within her have been like wolves, rending prey,— In shedding blood In destroying lives, For the sake of getting dishonest gain. ²⁸And her prophets have coated it for them with whitewash, Seeing visions of falsehood And divining for them lies, Saying, Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, when Yahweh, hath not spoken. ²⁹The people of the land have exacted oppression, and seized plunder,— Even the afflicted and the needy, have they maltreated, And the sojourner have they oppressed without justice. ³⁰Then sought I from among them, a man Who could bud up a wall And stand in the breach before me in behalf of the land So that I might not destroy her,— But I found none. ³¹Therefore have I poured out upon them mine indignation, In the fire of mine outburst, have I consumed them,— Their way, upon their own head, have

I placed Declareth, My Lord Yahweh.

23And the word of Yahweh came unto me saying, ²Son of man, Two women, daughters of one mother, there were; ³And they became unchaste in Egypt, In their youth, became they unchaste, There, were handled their breasts, And there, were pressed their virgin bosoms. ⁴And their names were Oholah the elder And Oholibah—her sister, And they became mine and hare sons and daughters,— And as for their names, Samaria was Oholah, And Jerusalem, was Oholibah. ⁵Then became Oholah unchaste after she had become mine— And lusted after her lovers, For Assyrians, so warlike, ⁶Clothed in blue Governors and deputies, Attractive young men all of them,—Horsemen riding on horses. ⁷So sire bestowed her unchastities upon them, The choicest men of Assyria all of them,— And with whomsoever she lusted after—with all their manufactured gods:, she defiled herself. ⁸And her unchaste doings from the time she was in Egypt:, trod she not forsaken, For with her, had they lain in her youth, Yea They had pressed her virgin bosoms,— and had poured out their unchastity upon her. ⁹therefore, did I deliver her into the hand of her lovers,— into the hand of the sons of Assyria, after whom she lusted: ¹⁰They disclosed her shame, Her sons and her daughters:, took they away, And herself—with the sword, they slew,— Thus became she a by-word among women, when judgments, they had executed upon her. ¹¹And though her sister Oholibah saw, Yet became she more corrupt in her lust than the other,— And her unchaste doings exceeded the unchaste doings of her sister. ¹²After the sons of Assyria:, she lusted Governors and deputies so warlike. Clothed in splendid array, Horsemen, riding on horses, Attractive young men, all of them. ¹³So I saw that she defiled herself,— One way, had they both. ¹⁴Yet did she add, unto her unchaste doings, when she saw men portrayed upon the wall, likenesses of Chaldeans, Portrayed with vermilion: ¹⁵Girded with waistcloths upon their loins With overhanging high turbans upon their heads, In appearance, knights all of theme—The likeness of the sons of Babylon of Chaldea, the land of their birth. ¹⁶Then lusted she after them, as soon as her eyes beheld them,— And she sent messengers unto them to Chaldea. ¹⁷Then came in unto her the sons of Babylon into the bed of endearments, and defiled her with their unchaste doings,— And she defiled herself with them, And then was her soul torn from them. ¹⁸Thus disclosed she her unchaste desires, And disclosed her shame,— So my soul was torn from her, Just as my soul had been torn from her sister. ¹⁹Yea she multiplied her unchaste desires,— calling to mind the days of her youth, when she was unchaste in the land of Egypt; — ²⁰So she lusted after their courtiers,— Whose flesh was the flesh of asses, and Whose issue was the issue of horses. ²¹Yea thou didst look about for the lewdness of thy youth,— When were pressed by the Egyptians. thy bosoms, When they handled thy youthful breasts. ²²Therefore, O Oholibah, Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, Behold me! musing up thy lovers against thee, Even them from whom thy soul hath been torn,- And I will bring them against thee from every side: ²³The sons of Babylon and all Chaldeans Pekod and Shoa and Koa, All the sons of Assyria with them,— Attractive young men Governors and deputies, all of them. Knights and men of renown, Riders on horses all of them; ²⁴And they shall come upon thee— With battle-axe, chariot and wheel And with a gathered host of peoples, :Shield and buckler and helmet, will they array against thee on every side,- And I will put before them judgment, And they shall judge thee with their judgments; ²⁵When I set forth my jealousy against thee, Then will they deal with thee in indignation, :Thy nose and thine ears, will they remove, And that which is left of thee, by the sword, shall fall,— They, will take away thy sons and thy daughters, And that which is left of thee, shall be devoured by the fire; ²⁶And they shall strip off thy raiment,- And take away thine adorning jewels! ²⁷Thus will I cause thy lewdness to cease, from thee Even thine unchastity brought from the land of Egypt,- So that thou shalt not lift up thine eyes unto them, And Egypt, shalt thou not call to mind any more. ²⁸For thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, Behold me! delivering thee up, into the hand of them whom thou hatest, Into the hand of them from whom thy soul hath been torn; ²⁹And they shall deal with thee in hatred And take away all thy labour, And leave thee utterly naked,- And thine unchaste shame, shall be disclosed I, with thy lewdness and unchastities, ³⁰These things shall be done to thee, In that thou hast gone unchastely after the nations, Because thou hast defiled thyself with their manufactured gods. ³¹In the way of thy sister, hast thou walked, Therefore will I put her cup into thy hand. ³²Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh, The cup of thy sister, shalt thou drink, The cup deep and large, Thou shalt become a laughingstock and a derision, much doth it contain! ³³With drunkenness and grief, shalt thou be fled,- The cup of astonishment and desolation, The cup of thy sister Samaria; ³⁴Yea thou shalt drink it and drain it out And the sherds thereof, shalt thou gnaw And thy breasts, shalt thou tear out,- For, I, have spoken, Declareth My Lord. Yahweh. ³⁵Therefore, Thus, saith My Lord. Yahweh, Because thou hast forgotten me, and has cast me behind thy back, Thou also thyself, bear thou thy lewdness and thine unchaste doings. ³⁶And Yahweh said unto me, Son of man Wilt thou judge Oholah and Oholibah? Then declare thou unto them their abominations. ³⁷For they have committed adultery. And blood, is one their hands, Yea with their manufactured gods, have they committed adultery. And even their own children whom they bare unto me, have they set apart for them to be devoured. ³⁸Yet more, this, have they done to me, They have defiled my sanctuary. Ion the same day, And my sabbaths, have they profaned. ³⁹Yea when they had slaughtered their children to their manufactured gods, then entered they into my sanctuary, on the same day, to profane it,- And lo! thus have they done in the midst of mine own house. ⁴⁰Yea verily, that ye must needs send for men, ready to come in. from afar-in that a messenger was sent unto them. and to they came, For whom thou didst bathe thyself Paint thine eyes And deck thyself with ornaments. ⁴¹Then satest thou upon a glorious couch With a table prepared before it,— And mine incense and mine oil, didst thou set thereon. ⁴²The noise of careless throng also, was with her, And besides men out of the mass of mankind, there wore brought in drunkards, out of the desert; And they put bracelets upon the hands of both women, And crowns of adorning upon their heads. ⁴³Then said I of her that was worn out with adulteries, Will they now join in her unchaste doings even hers? ⁴⁴Yet came they in unto her, as men go in unto a woman that is a harlot,— So, came they in unto Oholah, and unto Oholibah—the lewd women! ⁴⁵But righteous men, they, shall judge them, With the judgment of adulteresses, and With the judgment of women that shed blood,— Because adulteresses, they are And blood, is on their hands. ⁴⁶For thus, saith My Lord. Yahweh,- There shall be brought up against them a gathered host, Then shall they be delivered up. for a terror and for a prey, ⁴⁷Yea a gathered host shall stone them with stones, and dispatch them with their swords, Their sons and their daughters, shall they slay, And their houses—in the fire, shall they consume. ⁴⁸So will I make an end of lewdness out of the land,- And all women shall be disciplined, and shall not do according to your lewdness. ⁴⁹Yea the judges Slmil set your lewdness upon you, And your sins with manufactured gods, shall ye bear; shall ye know ha am The Lord. Yahweh.

24And the word of Yahweh came unto me. in the ninth year in the tenth month, on the tenth of the month, saying: ²Son of man. Write thee the name of the day, this selfsame day,—the king of Babylon cast himself against Jerusalem, on this selfsame day. ³Put thou forth therefore, against the perverse house a parable, and say unto them Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh: Sot on the caldron set it on, Moreover also pour into it water: ⁴Gather the pieces thereof into it, Every good piece thigh and shoulder, With the choice of the bones, fill it: ⁵Take of the choice of the rock, Moreover also pe of bones place under it,- Bo the pieces thereof, Yea let the bones of it seethe in the midst thereof. ⁶Wherefore, Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, Woe! city of bloodshed. The caldron whose scum is in it, and whose scum, hath not gone out of it: Piece by piece, bring it out, There hath fallen thereon no lot. ⁷For, her own blood, hath come to be in her midst, Upon the smooth face of the cliff, hath she set it,- She hath not poured it out on the earth, that she might cover it with dust. ⁸To bring up indignation to execute an avenging, have I set her blood upon the smooth face of the cliff,—that it may not be covered. ⁹Wherefore Thus, saith

My Lord Yahweh, Woe! city of bloodshed,—Even I myself, will make large the pe. ¹⁰Heap on the wood Kindle the fire, Consume the flesh, Yea season with spice, And let the bones be scorched. ¹¹Then set it upon the live coals thereof empty,—that the copper of it may be scorched and burn. So that the impurity thereof may be annihilated within it The scum thereof be consumed, ¹²With toils, hath she wearied herself,—Since her abundant scum will not go out of her, into the fire, with her scum! ¹³In thine uncleanness, is lewdness; be- cause I purified thee and thou wast not purified, from thine uncleanness, thou shalt not be purified any more, until I have let mine indignation rest upon thee. ¹⁴I Yahweh, have spoken It cometh and I will perform I will not let alone, neither will I shield, Nor will I repent,—According to thy ways and according to thy doings, have they judged thee, Declareth My Lord Yahweh. ¹⁵And the word of Yahweh came unto me saying: ¹⁶Son of Man Behold! taking away from thee the delight of thine eyes, with a stroke,— But thou shall not lament Neither shalt thou weep, Neither shall come—thy tears: ¹⁷To groan, forbear, Over the dead—no mourning, shalt thou make Thy chaplet, bind thou on thee And thy sandals; put thou on thy feet, And thou shalt not cover thy beard, And the bread of other men, shalt thou not eat. ¹⁸So I spake unto the people in the morning, and my wife died in the even,—and I did in the morning, as I had been commanded. ¹⁹Then said the people unto me: Wt thou not tell us what these things are to us, that thou shouldst be acting thus? ²⁰So I said unto them: The word of Yahweh hath come unto me, saying: ²¹Say to the house of Israel thus, saith My Lord. Yahweh, Behold me! profaning my sanctuary. The pride of your strength, The delight of your eyes And the object of the tender regard of your soul,— And your sons and your daughters whom ye have left behind, by the sword, shall fall. ²²Then shall ye do, as I have done.— The heard, shall ye not cover, And the bread of other men; shall ye not eat; ²³And your chaplets shall be on your heads. And your sandals on your feet, Ye shall neither lament, nor weep,— Yet shall ye pine away in your iniquities, and shall groan one to another. ²⁴So shall Ezekiel become to you a wonder, According to all that he hath done, shall ye do: When it cometh, then shall ye know that I am The Lord, Yahweh. ²⁵Thou, therefore Son of man, Shall it not be— In the day when I take away from them Their strength, The joy of their adorning,— The delight of their eyes And the desire of their soul, Their sons and their daughters ²⁶That in that day, one that hath escaped shall come in unto thee,—to cause thee to hear it with thine own ears? ²⁷That in that day, thy mouth shall be opened unto him that hath escaped, And thou shalt speak and not be dumb any longer? So shalt thou become to them a wonder, And they shall know that, I, am Yahweh.

of man Set thy face against the sons of Ammon,— and prophesy against them. ³So then thou shalt say to the sons of Ammon, Hear ye the word of my Lord Yahweh: Thus, saith My Lord. Yahweh: Because thou saidst Aha! Against my sanctuary when it was profaned. And against the so of Israel when it was laid waste, And against the house of Judah when they went into exile. ⁴Therefore, behold me! delivering thee up to the Sons of the East for a possession And they shall set their encampments in thee, And place in thee their habitations, They, shall eat thy fruits, And they, shall drink thy milk; ⁵And I will make of Rabbah a home for camels, And the sons of Ammon a couching-place for flocks, shall ye know that am Yahweh. ⁶For thus saith My Lord Yahweh, Because thou didst clap thy hands and stamp with thy foot,—and didst rejoice with all thy contempt in thy soul, against the so of Israel. ⁷Therefore behold me! I have stretched out my hand over thee And will deliver thee for a prey to the nations, And will cut thee off from among the peoples, And will cause thee to perish from among the lands,— I will destroy thee, So shalt thou know that IJ am Yahweh. ⁸Thus saith My Lord Yahweh: Because Moab and Seir say, Lo! like all the nations, is the house of Judah. ⁹Therefore, behold me! laying open the side of Moab out of the cities, Out of his cities on his frontiers, The beauty of the land of Beth-jeshimoth, Baal-meon, and Kiriathaim: ¹⁰To the Sons of the East when they come against the sons of Ammon, and I will deliver it up for possession,—to the end the sons of Ammon may not be remembered among the nations: ¹¹Also upon Moab, will I execute judgments,— So shall they know that I, am Yahweh. ¹²Thus, saith My Lord. Yahweh, Because of what Edom hath done, in taking vengeance on the house of Judah, so that they have become guilty again and again and have taken vengeance upon then I ¹³Therefore Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh, I will therefore stretch forth my hand over Edom, and will cut off therefrom man and beast, And will deliver it up as a desolation, from Teman, And they of Dedan, by the sword, shall fall, ¹⁴And I will put forth mine avenging against Edom, by the hand of my people Israel, And they shall deal with Edom, according to mine anger and according to mine indignation,— So shall they know mine avenging, Declareth My Lord. Yahweh, ¹⁵Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, Because of what the Philistines have done by way of vengeance,— In that they have taken vengeance with contempt in the soul, to destroy, with the enmity of age-past times. ¹⁶Therefore, Thus, saith My Lord. Yahweh, Behold me! stretching forth my hand over the Philistines, And I will cut off the Cherethim,— And will cause to perish the remnant of the coast of the sea; ¹⁷And I will execute upon them great vengeance, with rebukes of indignation: shall they know that I am Yahweh, when I put forth mine avenging against them.

25 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying: ²Son

26 And it came to pass in the eleventh year, on the first of the month, that the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying: ²Son of man, Because Tyre hath said concerning Jerusalem. Aha! She is broken that was the doors of the peoples. She is turned unto me,— I shall be fled, She is laid waste, ³Therefore, Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh, Behold me! against thee O Tyre,— So then I will bring up against thee many nations, As the sea bringeth up its rolling waves; ⁴And they shall destroy the walls of Tyre. And break down her towers, And I will scrape clean her dust from off her, —And make of her the glaring face of a cliff: ⁵A place for the spreading of nets, shall she become, in the midst of the sea, For, I, have spoken Declareth My Lord. Yahweh,—And she shall become a prey to the nations. ⁶And her daughters that are in the field: with the sword shall be slain: ho shall they know that I am Yahweh. ⁷For thus saith My Lord. Yahweh, Behold me! bringing against Tyre. Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon out of the North. a king of kings,—with horses and with chariots and with horsemen, and a gathered host, and much people. ⁸Thy daughters in the field—with the sword, shall he slay,— And shall set against thee a siege-wall And cast up against thee an earthwork, And set up against thee a large shield; ⁹And the stroke of his attacking-engine, will he direct against thy walls,— And thy tower., will he break down with his axes. ¹⁰By reason of the multitude of his horses, their dust shall cover thee,— At the noise of horseman and wheel and chariot, shall thy walls tremble, when he entereth into thy gates Just as they do who enter a city broken open. ¹¹With the hoofs of his horses, shall he tread down all thy streets,— Thy people—with the sword, shall he slay, And thy pillars of strength to the earth, shall go down. ¹²And they shall spoil thy wealth And make a prey of thy merchandise, And break down thy walls And thy pleasant houses, shall they lay in ruins; And thy stones and thy timber and thy dust—in the midst of the waters, shall they lay. ¹³And I will cause to cease the hum of thy songs; And the sound of thy lyres, shall not be heard any more. ¹⁴And I will make of thee the glaring face of a cliff. A place for the spreading of nets, shalt thou become, Thou shalt not be but any more, For I. Yahweh have spoken it, Declareth My Lord Yahweh. ¹⁵Thus saith My Lord. Yahweh, to Tyre: Shall it not be that. At the sound of thy fall. With the groan of thy pierced one. With the slaughter made in thy midst, The Coastlands shall tremble? ¹⁶Then shall come down from off their thrones all the princes of the sea, And shall lay aside their robes. And their embroidered garments, shall strip off,— With tremblings, shall they clothe themselves Upon the ground, shall they sit, And shall tremble every moment and be astonished over thee. ¹⁷Then shall they take up over thee a dirge, And say to thee,— How hast thou perished, And ceased from the seas,— The city renowned which was strong in the sea She and they who dwelt in her, Who imparted their terror To all who dwelt in her. ¹⁸Now, shall tremble the Coastlands, In the day of thy fall,— And shall shudder the isles that are in the sea. At thine exit! ¹⁹For thus saith My Lord Yahweh, When I make thee a desolate city, Like cities which cannot be dwelt in,— When I bring up over thee the roaring deep, And the mighty waters cover thee, ²⁰Then will I bring thee down with them that go down into the pit. Unto the people of age-past times And cause thee to dwell in the earth below Among the desolations from age-past times With them that go down into the pit That thou mayest not be dwelt in, Nor yet present thyself in the land of the living. ²¹A terror, will I make thee And thou shalt not be: Though thou be sought for, Thou shalt not be found any more To times age-abiding, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

27 And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying: ²Thou, therefore, son of man, Take up over Tyre a dirge; ³And thou shalt say unto Tyre, O thou that dwellest by the entrances of the sea, Thou merchant of the peoples unto many shores,— Thus, saith My Lord, Yahweh, O Tyre, Thou saidst, I, am the perfection of beauty! ⁴In the heart of the seas, were thy bounds, —Thy builders perfected thy beauty: ⁵With fir-trees from Senir, but they for thee all the two-decked vessels,— Cedar from Lebanon, fetched they, to make masts for thee: ⁶With oaks from Bashan, made they thine oars,— Thy benches, made they of ivory, inlaid with boxwood, From the shores of the West: ⁷Of fine linen with embroidered work from Egypt, was thy sail, To serve thee for ensign,— Blue and purple from the shores of Aeolis became thine awning: ⁸the inhabitants of Zidon and Arvad, Became rowers for thee,— Thine own skilled men O Tyre, were within thee, They were thy sailors: ⁹the elders of Byblus and the skilled men thereof, were within thee, Thy calkers,— All the ships of the sea and their mariners, were within thee, To carry on thy traffic, ¹⁰They of Persia and Lud and Phut were in thine army, Thy men of war,— Shield and helmet, hung they up within thee, They set forth thy splendour: ¹¹The sons of Arvad, :with thine army, were upon thy walls round about, And valorous in thy towers,— Their shields, hung they up on thy walls round about, They perfected thy beauty: ¹²Tarshish was a trader of thine. For the abundance of all wealth,— With silver iron. tin and lead, Took they part in thy traffic: ¹³Javan. Tubal and Meshech, They were merchants of thine,— With the persons of men and vessels of bronze, Shared they in thy barter: ¹⁴Some of the house of Togarmah, with horses and horsemen and mules, Took part in thy traffic: ¹⁵the sons of Dedan were merchants of thine, Many, isles, took the merchandise of thy hand, —Horns of ivory and ebony, gave they back to thee in exchange: ¹⁶Syria, was a trader of thine For the abundance of thy manufactures,— With carbuncle and purple and embroidery and fine linen and coral and rubies, Took they part in thy traffic: ¹⁷Judah and the land of Israel, They, were merchants of thine,— With the wheat of Minnith and the sweets of pannag and honey and oil and balsam, Shared they in thy barter: ¹⁸Damascus was a trader of thine For the multitude of thy manufactures For the multitude of all wealth,— With the wine of Helbon and white wool: ¹⁹Wedan and Javan, from Uzal, Brought into thy traffic,— Steel, cassia and calamus, Were, in thy merchandise: ²⁰Dedan was a merchant of thine,— With spreading wraps for riding: ²¹Arabia and all the princes of Kedar, They, were traders at thy service,— With lambs and rams and he-goats, With these, were they traders of thine: ²²The merchants of Sheba and Raamah, They were merchants of thine,— With the chief of all spices and with every kind of precious stone and gold, Took they part in thy traffic: ²³Haran and Canneh and Eden, the merchants of Sheba,—Asshur. Chilmad, Were merchants of thine: ²⁴Those were thy merchants for gorgeous garments, for wrappings of blue and embroidery, and for treasure-chests of variegated cloth,—for cords, twisted and strong, in thy market: ²⁵the ships of Tarshish, were thy masts Carrying on thy barter, So wast thou fled and becamest very glorious In the heart of the seas. ²⁶Into mighty waters, have they brought thee, the rowers—even thee,— the east wind, hath broken thee In the heart of the seas: ²⁷Thy wealth and thy wares, thy merchandise thy mariners, and thy sailors,—thy calkers and the barterers of thy merchandise and all thy men of war who are in thee and in all thy gathered host which is in thy midst Shall fall into the heart of the seas, In the day of thy fall. ²⁸At the sound of the outcry of thy pots, the coasts shall quake: ²⁹Then shall come down from their ships all that handle the oar, mariners, all the sailors of the sea— Upon the land, shall they take up their station; ³⁰And make loud lament over thee, with their voice, And make bitter outcry,— And shall lift up dust on their heads, In ashes, shall roll themselves; ³¹And shall make bald for thee a baldness And gird them with sackcloth,— And shall weep for time in bitterness of soul. A bitter lamentation; ³²And shall take up for thee in their Wailing: a dirge, And shall chant over thee,— Who is like Tyre? Like the Sent One in the midst of the sea? ³³By the going forth of thy commodities out of the seas, Thou didst satisfy many peoples, By the multitude of thy wares and of thy merchandise, Thou didst enrich the kings of the earth. ³⁴Now, thou art wrecked out of the seas In the depths of waters,— Thy merchandise and all thy gathered host In thy midst, have fallen. ³⁵All the dwellers in the coastlands, Are astounded over thee,— And their king have been made to shudder a shuddering, To be troubled in countenance. ³⁶the traders among the peoples, have hissed over thee: A terror, hast thou become, And I art not k Unto times age-abiding.

28And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying ²Son of man Say to the Prince of Tyre. Thus, saith My Lord.

Yahweh— Because lofty, is thy heart and thou hast said A GOD, am I, In the seat of God, have I taken my seat In the heart of the seas; Whereas thou art a man, and not a GOD, But hast set thy heart as the heart of God: ³Lo! wiser, thou than Daniel,— No secret, have they hidden from thee: ⁴In thy wisdom and in thine understanding, hast thou gotten thee wealth,— And hast gotten gold and silver into thy treasures: ⁵By the greatness of thy wisdom and by thy traffic, hast thou multiplied thy riches, —And thy heart hath become lofty in thy riches: ⁶Therefore, Thus saith My Lord Yahweh,— Because thou hast set thy heart as the heart of God, ⁷Therefore behold me! bringing upon thee aliens, The terrible ones of the nations,— And they shall unsheathe their swords over the beauty of thy wisdom, And profane thy splendour: ⁸To the pit, shall they take thee down,— And thou shalt die the deaths of one thrust through, In the heart of the sec. ⁹Wilt thou really say, God, am I, before him who is slaying thee; When, thou, art a man and not a God, in the hand of them who are piercing h thee? ¹⁰The deaths of the uncircumcised, shalt thou die. by the hand of Miens,— For I have spoken, Declareth My Lord Yahweh. ¹¹And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying: ¹²Son of man Take thou up a dirge over the king of Tyre,— And thou shalt say to him Thus saith My Lord. Yahweh, Thou wast of finished proportions, Full of wisdom and Perfect in beauty: ¹³In Eden the garden of God, thou wast. Of every precious stone, was thy covering—Sardius. topaz, and diamond, Chrysolite beryl, and jasper, Sapphire carbuncle and emerald,— And of gold, was the work of thy timbrels and thy flutes within thee, In the day thou wast created, were they prepared: ¹⁴Thou, wast the anointed cherub that covered,— When I appointed thee, in the holy mount of God, thou wast, Amid stones of fire, thou didst walk to and fro: ¹⁵Complete, wast thou in thy ways, from the day thou wast created,— Until perversity was found in thee. ¹⁶By the abundance of fly traffic, they fled thy midst with violence And thou didst sin,— So I cast thee as profane a out of the mountain of God. And destroyed thee O covering cherub, from amid the stones of fire: ¹⁷Lofty, was thy heart in thy beauty, Thou didst corrupt thy wisdom, because of thy splendour,— Upon the earth, did I cast thee. Before kings, did I set thee That they might look at thee: ¹⁸Owing to the abounding of thine iniquities. In the perversity of thy traffic, Thou didst profane thy sanctuaries, Therefore brought I forth fire out of thy midst. the same devoured thee, And I turned thee to ashes on the ground, Before the eyes of all beholding thee: ¹⁹All that had known thee among the peoples were astounded over thee,— A terror, hast thou become, And tart not I Unto times age-abiding. ²⁰And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying: ²¹Son of man, Set thy face towards Zidon,— And prophesy over it; ²²and thou shalt say— Thus saith My Lord. Yahweh, Behold me! against thee, O Zidon, Therefore will I get myself glory in thy midst,— And they shall know that I am

Yahweh, When I have executed against her judgments And hallowed myself in her. ²³So then I will send against her, pestilence and blood in her streets, And the wounded shall fall in her midst by the sword upon her from every side,— And they shall know that, I, am Yahweh. ²⁴And the house of Israel shall no more have a stinging prickle or a wounding thorn, of any round about them who used to despise them,— So shall they know that I am The Lord Yahweh. ²⁵Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, When I gather together the house of Israel, from the midst of the peoples among whom they have been scattered, and shall hallow myself in them before the eyes of the nations Then shall they dwell upon their own so, which I gave to my servant—to Jacob: ²⁶Yea they shall dwell thereupon securely, Yea shall bud houses, and plant vineyards, and dwell securely,— When I have executed judgments on all that despised them on every side of them, So shall they know that, I, Yahweh am their God

midst of cities that have been laid waste, shall become a desolation forty years,— And I will disperse the Egyptians among the nations, And scatter them throughout the lands. ¹³For thus, saith My Lord Yahweh,— At the end of forty years, will I gather the Egyptians from among the peoples whither I had dispersed them; ¹⁴And I will turn the captivity of the Egyptians, And will cause them to return To the land of Pathros Upon the land of their nativity,— And they shall become, there a kingdom abased: ¹⁵More than any of the kingdoms, shall she be abased, And shall lift herself up no more over the nations, —Yea I will make them too small to rule over the nations. ¹⁶So shall it become no more unto the house of Israel a security. Calling to mind iniquity, by their turning to follow them,— And they shall know that, I, am The Lord Yahweh. ¹⁷And it came to pass in the twenty-seventh year in the first month on the first of the month, that the word of Yahweh came unto me saying: ¹⁸Son of man Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, hath made his army undergo a long service against Tyre, Every head, hath been made bald, and Every shoulder worn beret— But pay, hath he had none nor hath his army, out of Tyre, for the service wherewith he hath served against it. ¹⁹Therefore, Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh, Behold me! giving to Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, the land of Egypt,— And he shall carry off her multitude And capture her spoil And seize her prey, So shall she become pay for his army. ²⁰As a reward for his labour wherewith he hath served, have I given to him the land of Egypt,—in that they wrought for me, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh. ²¹In that day, will I cause to bud a horn for the house of Israel, And to thee, will I give an opening of mouth in their midst, So shall they know that, I, am Yahweh.

30And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying: ²Son of man Prophesy. and thou shalt say, Thus saith My Lord Yahweh,— Howl ye. Alas for the day! ³For near, is a day, Yea near, is a day pertaining to Yahweh, A day of cloud, A time of nations, shall it be! ⁴Then shall come a sword into Egypt, And there shall be a pang in Ethiopia When the deadly wounded one falleth in Egypt,— And they take away her multitude, and I her foundations are broken down. ⁵Ethiopia and Libya and Lydia, and all the mixed multitude and Cub, and the sons of the land of the covenant with them—by the sword, shall they fall. ⁶Thus saith Yahweh, Then shall fall the supporters of Egypt, Then shall come down the pride of her strength, —From Migdol to Seweneh, by the sword shall they fall therein, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh. ⁷So shall they be made desolate in the midst of lands that are desolate,— And :his cities—in the midst of cities that are laid waste, shall be found. ⁸So shall they know that, I am Yahweh,— By my setting a fire in Egypt, When all her helpers shall be broken. ⁹In that day, shall messengers go forth from before me making haste, to cause dread unto Ethiopia so confident,—

And a pang shall be upon them in the day of Egypt, For lo! it cometh. ¹⁰Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh,— Therefore will I cause to cease the multitude of Egypt, by the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon: ¹¹He, and his people with him the terrible ones of the nations are about to be brought in to destroy the land,— Therefore shall they unsheathe their swords against Egypt, and fill the land with the slain; ¹²And I will make the rivers dry, and will sell the land into the hand of wicked one.—and make the land desolate with the fulness thereof, by the hand of foreigners, I, Yahweh! have spoken. ¹³Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, Therefore will I destroy the manufactured gods and Cause to cease the worthless goals, out of Noph, And prince out of the land of Egypt, shall none arise any more,— And I will cause fear in the land of Egypt. ¹⁴Then will I bring desolation upon Pathros, and Set a fire in Zoan, and Execute judgments upon No: and ¹⁵Pour out mine indignation upon Sin the stronghold of Egypt, and Will cut off the multitude of No. ¹⁶So will I set a fire in Egypt, Sore anguish shall take Sin. And, No, shall be for rending asunder, And Noph, be in strait every day, ¹⁷The young men of Aven and Pi-beseth, by the sword, shall fall; And lo! into captivity, stall they themselves wend their way. ¹⁸And in Tehaphnehes, hath the day become dark, Because I have broken, there the yoke-bare of Egypt, And there shall be made to cease therein the pride of her strength,— She, a cloud, shall cover her! And her daughter into captivity, shall wend their way. ¹⁹Thus will I execute judgments on Egypt; And they shall know that I am Yahweh. ²⁰And it came to pass in the eleventh year in the first month on the seventh of the month, that the word of Yahweh came unto me. saying: ²¹Son of man, The arm of Pharaoh king of Egypt, have I broken,— And lo! it hath not been bound up—To apply healing remedies To put on a bandage for binding it up. To make it strong to grasp the sword. ²²Therefore, Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh—Behold me! against Pharaoh king of Egypt, Therefore will I break his arms, That which is strong, and That which is broken,— So will I cause the sword to fall out of his hand. ²³And I will disperse the Egyptians among the nations,— And scatter them throughout the lands; ²⁴And will uphold the arms of the king of Babylon, And put my sword into his hand,— And will break the arms of Pharaoh, And he shall utter the groans of one thrust through, before him. ²⁵Yea I will uphold the arms of the king of Babylon, But the arms of Pharaoh shall fall, And they shall know that I am Yahweh By my putting my sword into the hand of the king of Babylon, And he shall stretch it out against the land of Egypt. ²⁶So will I disperse the Egyptians among the nations, And scatter them throughout the lands, And they shall know that, I, am Yahweh.

³¹And it came to pass in the eleventh year, in the third month, on the first of the month, that the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying: ²Son of man Say unto Pharaoh king of Egypt and unto his multitude,— Whom art thou like in thy greatness? ³Lo! Assyria, was a cedar in Lebanon, Beautiful in bough and Dense in foliage and Lofty in stature,— and Among the clouds, came to be his top: ⁴The waters made him great, the roaring deep, made him high—with its currents going round about the place where it was planted, Its channels also, it sent forth unto all the trees of the field. ⁵For this cause higher, was his stature than any of the trees of the field,—And multiplied were his boughs And lengthened were his branches, By reason of the mighty waters when he shot forth shoots. ⁶Among his branches, all the birds of the heavens I made their nests, And under his boughs, all the wild beasts of the field brought forth I,— And in his shade, dwelt all the mighty nations. ⁷Thus became he beautiful in his greatness, In the length of his waving branches, Because his root had gone towards mighty waters. ⁸Cedars hid him not. in the garden of God, Fir-trees were not like unto his boughs, Nor plane-trees, like his branches,—no, tree in the garden of God, was like unto him in his beauty. ⁹Beautiful, I made him in the abundance of his waving branches,— Therefore was he envied by all the trees of Eden, which were in the garden of God. ¹⁰Therefore Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh, Because thou hast become lofty in stature, And he hath stretched his top among the clouds, And his heart is exalted in his loftiness. ¹¹Let me then deliver him into the hand of the chief of the nations, He shall effectually deal with him! According to his lawlessness, have I driven him out: ¹²Therefore have foreigners the terrible of the nations cut him down. And abandoned him,— Upon the mountains and in all valleys, have fallen his waving branches And broken have been his boughs in all the river-beds of the land, And all the peoples of the earth have come down out of his shade. And abandoned him: ¹³Upon his trunk, shall settle down all the birds of the heavens,— And among his boughs, are to be found all the wild beasts of the field:— ¹⁴To the end that none of the trees of the waters— May exalt themselves in their stature or stretch their top among the clouds, Nor their mighty ones take their stand in their height— any that drink of the waters,— Because they all, are delivered to death Unto the earth below. In the midst of the sons of Adam. Amongst them who descend into the pit. ¹⁵Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh, In the day when he descended into hades, I caused a mourning. I covered over him the roaring deep, And restrained the currents thereof And stayed were the mighty waters, So caused I gloom over him unto Lebanon, And all the trees of the field for him were covered with a shroud. ¹⁶At the sound of his fall, I made nations tremble, When I caused him to descend into hades, with them who descend into the pit,— Then were grieved in the earth below—All the trees of Eden, The choicest and best of Lebanon All who had drunk the waters. ¹⁷Even they, with him descended into hades. Among them who were thrust through with the sword,- Even his seed who dwelt in his shade in the midst of the nations. ¹⁸Unto whom couldst thou be likened thus, in glory and in greatness, among the trees of Eden? Yet shalt thou be caused to descend with the trees of Eden into the earth below In the midst of the uncircumcised, shalt thou lie down With them who were thrust through by the sword, the same, is Pharaoh and all his multitude, Declareth My Lord Yahweh.

32And it came to pass, in the twelfth year, in the twelfth month on the first of the month, that the word of Yahweh me unto me, saying: ²Son of man Take up a dirge over Pharaoh king of Egypt, and thou shalt say unto him. The young lion of the nations, thou didst deem thyself,- Whereas thou, wast like the crocodile in the seas, And didst cause thy streams to burst forth And didst trouble the waters with thy feet, And foul their rivers. ³Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, Therefore will I spread over thee my net, With a gathered host of many e peoples,-And they shall bring thee up in my net; ⁴And I will stretch thee out on the land, Over the face of the field, will I fling thee,- And will cause to settle upon thee all the birds of the heavens, And will satiate with thee the wild beasts of all the earth; ⁵And I will lay thy flesh on the mountains,— And fill the valleys, with thy blood; ⁶And will soak the earth with thy blood, amongst the mountains,- And the channels shall be fled with thee. ⁷And when I quench thee, I will cover the heavens, And obscure their stars,— The sun—with a cloud, will I cover, And the moon shall not shed her light; ⁸As for all the light-bearers in the heavens, I will obscure them over thee— And will stretch out darkness over thy land, Declareth My Lord Yahweh. ⁹And I will aggrieve the heart of many peoples,- when I bring them who are broken off from thee among the nations, unto lands which thou hast not known. ¹⁰Yea I will cause amazement over thee unto many peoples And the hair of their kings shall stand on end over thee, when I brandish my sword over their faces,- And they shall tremble every moment every man for his own life, In the day of thy fall. ¹¹For thus saith My Lord, Yahweh:-the sword of the king of Babylon shall reach thee. ¹²With the swords of mighty men, will I cause thy multitude to fall, Terrible ones of the nations all of them!-And they shall spoil the pride of Egypt, And all her multitude shall be destroyed I, ¹³And I will cause to perish all her beasts, from beside the many waters,— And the foot of man shall not trouble them any more, Nor shall hoof of beast, trouble them. ¹⁴Then, will I make their waters subside, And their streams—like, will I cause to flow,— Declareth My Lord, Yahweh. ¹⁵When I make the land of Egypt an astonishment A land laid bare of its fulness, When I cut off all that dwell therein, Then shall they know that, I am Yahweh. ¹⁶A dirge, it is And they shall chant it, The daughters of the nations Shall chant it:

Over Egypt and over all her multitude, Shall they chant it, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh. ¹⁷And it came to pass in the twelfth year on the fifteenth of the month, that the word of Yahweh came unto me saying: ¹⁸Son of man Wail thou over the multitude of Egypt and cause it to descend—her and to daughters of the famous nations—into the earth below with them who descend into the pit. ¹⁹Than whom, art thou more precious? Descend and be aid low with the uncircumcised: ²⁰Into the midst of them who were thrust through by the sword, let them fall,-To the sword, hath she been delivered up, Lay ye hold of her and all her multitudes. ²¹The chiefs of the mighty shall speak to him out of the midst of hades, with his helpers,- They have descended They have lain down. The uncircumcised! Thrust through by the sword. ²²There, is Assyria with all her gathered host, Round about him, are his graves, All of them thrust through, The fallen by the sword: ²³Whose graves have been set In the recesses of the pit, And so her gathered host is round about her grave, All of them thrust through. Fallen by the sword, Who caused terror in the land of the living. ²⁴There, is Persia with all her multitude, round about her grave,— All of them, thrust through The fallen by the sword Who have descended, uncircumcised into the earth below Who made themselves a terror in the land of the living, And so they have borne their confusion with them who descend into the pit: ²⁵In the midst of them who were thrust through, have they have placed a couch for her with all her multitude, Round about it, are her graves,-All of them, uncircumcised. Thrust through with the sword. For that their terror was caused in the land of the living. And so they have borne their confusion, with them who descend into the pit, In the midst of them who were thrust through, hath it been pleased. ²⁶There, are Meshech-Tuba and all her multitude, Round about it, are her graves,— All of them I uncircumcised Who were thrust through with the sword, For that they made themselves a terror in the land of the living; ²⁷Therefore shall they not lie with the mighty men The fallen ones from age-past times, Who descended into hades with their weapons of war And their swords were placed under their heads. But their iniquities have come upon their bones Because of the terror of the mighty in the land of the living. ²⁸Thou, therefore in the midst of the uncircumcised, shalt be overthrown. And shalt lie low with them who were thrust through by the sword. ²⁹There, are Edom her kings and all her princes, Who have been delivered up in their might. With them who were thrust through by he sword,— They with the uncircumcised, shall lie low. Even with them who descend into the pit. ³⁰There, are the princes of the-North lull of them, and all the Zidonians, Who have descended with them who were thrust through. By reason of the terror they caused, of their might, are they ashamed, So they have lain down uncircumcised. With them who were thrust through by the sword, And they have bowed their confusion with them who descend into the pit. ³¹Them, shall Pharaoh see, and be grieved over all his multitude,—Thrust through with the sword, shall be Pharaoh and all his army! Declareth My Lord, Yahweh. ³²For I have suffered his terror to be in the land of the living, Therefore shall be laid low In the midst of the uncircumcised With them who were thrust through by the sword, Pharaoh and all his multitude! Declareth My Lord, Yahweh.

33And the word of Yahweh came unto me saying: ²Son of man Speak unto the sons of thy people and thou shalt say unto them, A land—when I bring upon it a sword, And the people of the land shall take one man out of their whole number, and appoint him for them, as watchman; ³And he shall see the sword coming upon the land,—and shall blow with the born and warn the people ⁴Then as for him who really heard the sound of the horn and took not warning, The sword indeed hath come and taken him away,—His blood, upon his own head shall remain:— ⁵The sound of the horn, he heard, but took not warning, His blood, upon himself shall remain,— Whereas had he taken warning, his own soul, he should have delivered. ⁶But as for the watchman—When he seeth the sword coming. And hath not blown with the horn. And the people, have not been warned, And the sword, hath come and taken away from among them any person he, for his iniquity, hath been taken away, But his blood at the hand of the watchman will I require. ⁷Thou therefore Son of man, A watchman, have I appointed thee, to the house of Israel, So then thou shalt hear at my mouth. message, and shalt warn them from me. ⁸When I say to the lawless man O lawless man thou shalt surely die, And thou have not spoken to warn the lawless man from his way He the lawless man for his iniquity shall die, But his blood— at thy hand— will I demand. ⁹But as for thyself When thou hast warned a lawless man from his way, to turn therefrom, And he hath not turned from his way He, for his own iniquity shall die, But thou hast delivered thine own life, ¹⁰Thou, therefore, Son of man, Say unto the house of Israel, Thus, have ye spoken saying: When our transgressions and our sins are upon us,—and for them, we are melting away How then can we live? ¹¹Say unto them, As I live, Declareth My Lord Yahweh, Surely, I can take no pleasure in the death of the lawless man, But that the lawless man turn from his way, and live,— Turn ye, turn ye, from your wicked ways, For wherefore should ye die. O house of Israel? ¹²Thou, therefore, Son of man Say unto the sons of thy people— The righteousness of the righteous man, shall not deliver him in the day of his transgression, And as for the lawlessness of the lawless man, He shall not stumble thereby, in the day of his return from his lawlessness,— Nor shall the righteous man be able to live thereby, in the day of his sin. ¹³When I say of the righteous man He shall surely live but he hath trusted in his righteousness and committed perversity None of his righteous deeds shall be mentioned, But by his perversity which he hath committed—thereby, shall he die. ¹⁴And when I say to the lawless man Thou shalt surely die, but he shall turn from his sin, and do justice and righteousness: ¹⁵The debt-pledge, the lawless man shall restore Plunder, shall pay back, In the statutes of life, hath walked, so as not to commit perversity. He shall surely live he shall not die:— ¹⁶None of his sins which he hath committed shall be called to mind against him,— Justice and righteousness, hath he done He shall surely live. ¹⁷And can the sons of thy people say, The way of The Lord will not be equal? Nay! but as for them, their way will not be equal! ¹⁸When the righteous man shall turn from his righteousness and commit perversity Then shall he die for them; ¹⁹But when the lawless man shall turn from his lawlessness, and do justice and righteousness Upon them, shall he live. ²⁰And can ye then say, The way of The Lord will not be equal? Every man—according to his own ways so will I judge you O house of Israel? ²¹And it came to pass in the twelfth year, in the tenth month on the fifth of the month of our exe, that there came unto me one that had escaped out of Jerusalem saying. Smitten is the city! ²²Now the hand of Yahweh, had come unto me in the evening, before the coining of him who had escaped, and he had opened my mouth, by the time that he came to me in the morning, —so my mouth I was opened, and I was dumb no longer. ²³Then came the word of Yahweh unto me saying: ²⁴Son of man These inhabitants of waste places on the so of Israel are saying thus, One, was Abraham. Yet he inherited the land,— But, we, are many, To us, is the land given as an inheritance. ²⁵Wherefore say unto them Thus, saith My Lord. Yahweh. —With the blood, ye do eat. And your eyes, ye do lift up unto your manufactured gods. And blood, ye do shed; And the land, shall ye inherit? ²⁶Ye men have taken your stand by your sword. Ye women have wrought abomination, And every man—with the wife of his neighbour, have ye defiled yourselves; And the land, shall ye inherit? ²⁷Thus shalt thou say unto them, Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, As I live, surely, they who are in the waste places by the sword, shall fall, And him who is on the face of the field to the wild beast, have I given to be devoured,— And they who are in the mountain holds and in the pits :by pestilence, shall die; ²⁸And I will make the land a desolation and an astonishment, So shall be made to cease the pride of her strength,— And the mountains of Israel shall be too desolate for any to pass through. ²⁹So shall they know that I, am Yahweh,— When I makes the land a desolation and an astonishment, because of all their abominations which they have committed. ³⁰Thou therefore Son of man, the sons of thy people who are talking against thee Near the walls and in the entrances of the houses, are speaking one with another, every man with his brother saying. Come in we pray you and heat, what is the word that is coming forth from Yahweh; ³¹That they may come unto thee as people do come And may sit before thee as my people, And they will hear thy words, But the words themselves, they not do,— though fond with their mouths, they seem to be, After their unjust gain, their heart is going. ³²And lo! thou art to them— As a bewitching song, Of one with a beautiful voice. And skilfully touching the strings, —So will they hear thy words, And yet be going to do none of them. ³³But when it cometh Lo! it is coming, Then shall they know that a prophet hath been in their midst.

34And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying: ²Son of man, Prophesy against the shepherds of Israel,— Prophesy, and thou shalt say unto them, even to the shepherds— Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh— Alas! for the shepherds of Israel who have been tending, themselves, Is it not the flock that the shepherds should tend? ³The milk, ye do eat And with the wool, ye do clothe your- selves, The well-fed, ye do sacrifice, The flock, ye do not tend ⁴The weak, have ye not strengthened And, the sick, have ye not healed. And the torn, have ye not hound up, And that which was driven out, have ye not brought back, And that which was straying, have ye not sought out; But with force, have ye ruled them and with rigour. ⁵And they were scattered, because there was no shepherd; And they became food for every wild beast of the field. So were they scattered. ⁶My sheep did wander through all the mountains, And over every high hl,— And over all the face of the and, were my sheep scattered, And there was none to inquire And none to seek out. ⁷Wherefore ye shepherds, hear ye the word of Yahweh: ⁸As I live,— Declareth My Lord Yahweh, Surely because my flock became a prey. And my flock became food for every wild beast of the field, through having no shepherd, Neither did my shepherds inquire after the flock, —But the shepherds tended themselves. And my flock, they tended not ⁹Therefore ye shepherds, hear ye the word of Yahweh: ¹⁰Thus, saith My Lord. Yahweh, Behold me! against the shepherds So then I will require my flock at their hand And will cause them to cease tending the flock, Neither shall the shepherds any longer tend themselves, But I will deliver my flock out of their mouth, that they may not be their food. ¹¹For Thus saith My Lord. Yahweh,— Here am I myself Therefore will I inquire after my flock and seek them out: ¹²As a shepherd seeketh out his flock in the day he is in the midst of his sheep that are scattered, So! will I seek out my sheep, and will deliver them out of all the places where they were scattered in the day of cloud and thick darkness; ¹³And I will bring them out from among the peoples And will gather them out of the lands, And will bring them upon their own soil, And will tend them Upon the mountains of Israel, In the ravines. And in all the habitable places of the land: ¹⁴In good pastures, will I feed them, And on the mountains of the height of Israel, shall be their fold,— There, shall they lie down in a fold that is good, And on pasture that is fat, shall they feed. among the mountains of Israel. ¹⁵myself will tend my flock. And, I, myself will cause them to lie down, Declareth My Lord Yahweh: ¹⁶That which is straying, will I seek out. And that which hath been driven away, will I bring back, And that width is tern, will I bind up, And the weak, will I strengthen,— But the fat and the strong, will I watch I will feed them with justice. ¹⁷And as for you O my flock, Thus saith My Lord. Yahweh: Behold me! judging between one kind of small cattle and another as well the rams as the he-goats. ¹⁸Is it too small a thing for you that on the good pasture, ye feed, But the remainder of your pastures, ye must also trample down with your feet? Or that of the pure waters, ye drink But the waters left remaining—with your feet, ye must needs foul? ¹⁹And my flock On what hath been trampled down by your feet, may feed, And of what hath been fouled by your feet, may drink? O ²⁰Therefore Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh, unto them: Here am I myself. Therefore will I judge between fat sheep and lean sheep, ²¹Because with the side and with the shoulder, ye do thrust, And with your horns, ye do push all the sick,— Until you have scattered them abroad ²²Therefore will I bring salvation to my flock, and they shall be no longer a prey,—but I will judge between one sheep and another, ²³And I will raise up over them one shepherd And he shall tend them, Even my servant David,— he will tend them, And libel will become to them a shepherd; ²⁴And, I, Yahweh will become to them a God. My servant David being a prince in their midst;— I, Yahweh, have spoken; ²⁵And I will solemnise for them a covenant of prosperity, And will cause to cease the mischievous wild-beast out of the land, And they shall dwell in the wilderness, securely, And shall sleep in the forests; ²⁶And I, will make them and the places round about my hill a blessing,— And I will cause the abundant rain to come down in its season abundant rains of blessing, shall they be; ²⁷And the tree of the field shall yield his fruit And The land, shall yield her increase, And they shall remain on their own sell in security,— So shall they know that I, am Yahweh, When I have broken a the bars of their yoke, And shall deliver them out of the hand of them who have been using them as slaves. ²⁸And they shall be no longer a prey for the nations, Nor shall the wild beast of the earth! devour them,— But they shall dwell securely with none to put them in terror. ²⁹And I will raise up unto them a plantation for fame,— And there shall be no longer the destroyed of hunger in the land, Neither shall they bear any longer the reproach of the nations. ³⁰So shall they know that, I, Yahweh their God am with them,— And that they are my people the house of Israel, Declareth My Lord. Yahweh. ³¹Ye, therefore my flock the flock of my pasture are men,— am your God, Declareth My Lord Yahweh.

of man Set thy face against Mount Seir,—and prophesy against it; ³and thou shalt say to it Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, Behold me! against thee Mount Seir,—Therefore will I stretch out my hand against thee, And will make thee a desolation and an astonishment: ⁴Thy cities, will I lay waste, And thou—a desolation, shalt become, So shalt thou know that I, am Yahweh. ⁵Because thou hast had an age-abiding enmity, And hast delivered up the sons of Israel unto the hands of the sword,— In the time of their misfortune, In the time of the final punishment for iniquity, ⁶Therefore, as I live, Declareth My Lord. Yahweh, Surely regarding blood, will deal with thee, Blood therefore, shall pursue thee,—Since blood thou hast not hated, Therefore blood, shall pursue thee, ⁷So then I will deliver up Mount Seir to desolation after desolation,— And will cut off therefrom him that passeth by and him that returneth, ⁸And I will fill his mountains with his slain,— As for thy hills and thy hollows and all thy channels, they who are thrust through by the sword shall fall therein: ⁹Desolations age-abiding, will I make thee, And thy cities, shall not be inhabited,— shall ye know that I, am Yahweh. ¹⁰Because thou hast said, the two nations, and the two lands, mine, shall become, that we may possess it Whereas Yahweh, had been there, ¹¹Therefore as I live, Declareth My Lord Yahweh, I will even deal according to thine anger, and according to thine envy, wherewith thou hast dealt, out of thy hatred with them,— So will I make myself known among them as soon as I shall judge thee ¹²And their shalt know that I, Yahweh, have heard all thy reviling which thou hast uttered against the mountains of Israel saying, They have become desolate,— To us, have they been given for food; ¹³And so ye have magnified yourselves against me with your mouth, And have caused to abound against me your words, —I, have heard! ¹⁴Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh,— When all the earth is rejoicing, la desolation will I make thee: ¹⁵As thou didst rejoice over the inheritance of the house of Israel because it had become a desolation, so, will, I, do unto thee,— A desolation, shalt thou become, O Mount Seir And all Edom all of it, So shall they know that, I, am Yahweh.

36Thou therefore. Son of man, Prophecy unto the mountains of Israel,—and thou shalt say, Ye mountains of Israel Hear ye the word of Yahweh. ²Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, Because the enemy hath said concerning you Aha! Even the high places of age-past times, for a possession have become ours ³Therefore, prophesy, and thou shalt say, Thus saith My Lord Yahweh—Because even because they have desolated and panted for you on every side That ye should become a possession to the rest of the nations, And ye have come up into the talk of the tongue and the slander of the people ⁴Therefore ye mountains of Israel, hear ye the word of My Lord Yahweh,— Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, To the mountains and to the hills, to the channels and to the valleys, and to the desolate waste places and to the cities that are forsaken, which have become a prey and a derision, to the rest of the nations which are on every side: ⁵Therefore, Thus, saith My Lord, Yahweh, Surely in the fire of my jealousy, have I spoken against the rest of the nation and against Edom all of it,— Who have given my land to themselves for a possession, In the rejoicing of all the heart In contempt of soul, To make of its produce a prey. ⁶Therefore prophesy, concerning the so of Israel,—and say to the mountains and to the hills, to the channels and to the valleys Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, Behold me! in my jealousy and in mine indignation, have I spoken, Because the insult of the nations, ye have borne; ⁷Therefore Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, I myself have lifted my hand,— Surely the nations which are yours round about, they their own shame, shall bear: ⁸But ye O mountains of Israel Your boughs, shall ye shoot forth, And your fruit, shall ye bear For my people Israel, For they have drawn near to enter. ⁹For lo! I am towards you, Therefore will I turn towards you, And ye shall be tilled and sown; ¹⁰And I will multiply, upon you—men, All the house of Israel All of it, Then shall the cities be inhabited, And the waste places, shall be but, ¹¹And I will multiply upon you—man and beast, And hey shall multiply and be fruitful,— And I will cause you to be inhabited as in your former estates. And will do you more good than at your beginnings, So shall ye know that am Yahweh; ¹²And I will bring upon you—men even my people Israel That they may possess thee, So shalt thou be theirs, as an inheritance, —And thou shalt no more again make them childless. ¹³Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, Because they are saying to you. A devourer of men, thou art, And one that didst make childless thy nations, hast thou been ¹⁴Therefore, men, shalt thou not devour any more,— And thy nations, shalt thou make childless no more, Declareth My Lord Yahweh; ¹⁵And I will not suffer to be heard against thee any more, the insult of the nations, And the reproach of the peoples, shalt thou not bear any more,— And thy nations, shalt thou not cause to stumble any more, Declareth My Lord Yahweh. ¹⁶And the word of Yahweh came unto me saying: ¹⁷Son of man The house of Israel were dwelling upon their own so, But they defiled it by their way, and by their doings. Like the defilement of her that is removed, became their way before me. ¹⁸So I poured out mine indignation upon them, Because of the blood which they had shed upon the land,— Yea with their manufactured gods, had they defiled it. ¹⁹So I dispersed them among the nations, And they were scattered throughout the lands,— According to their way and according to their doings, I judged them. ²⁰But when they entered among the nations where they did enter, then profaned they my holy Name,—in that it was said of them The people of Yahweh, these! Yet from his land, have they come forth! ²¹So then I had tender regard for my holy Name,— Which the house of Israel had profaned, among the nations, where they had entered. ²²Therefore say thou to the house of Israel Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, Not for your sakes, am I working. O house of Israel, But for my holy Name which ye have profaned, among the nations where ye have entered; ²³Therefore will I hallow my great Name, that hath been profaned among the nations, which ye have profaned in their midst,—So shall the nations know that I am Yahweh Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, When I have hallowed myself in you, before their eyes. ²⁴Therefore will I take you from among the nations, And gather you out of all the lands,— And will bring you upon your own soil; ²⁵And I will throw upon you clean water and ye shall be clean,— From all your uncleannesses and from all your manufactured gods, will I cleanse you; ²⁶And I will give you a new heart, And a new spirit, will I put within you,—And I will take away the heart of stone, of your flesh, And will give you a heart of flesh; ²⁷And my spirit, will I put within you, And will cause That in my statutes, ye shall walk, And my regulations, ye shall observe, and do; ²⁸And ye shall dwell in the land which I gave to your fathers,— And ye shall become my people, And I will become your God; ²⁹And I will save you out of all your uncleannesses, —And will call for the corn and will increase it, And will not lay upon you famine; ³⁰And I will multiply The fruit of the tree, and The increase of the field,— To the end that ye may not receive any more the reproach of famine among the nations. ³¹Then shall ye call to mind Your ways that were wicked, and Your doings that were not good,— And shall become loathsome in your own sight. For your iniquities and For your abominations. ³²Not for your sakes, am I working, Declareth My Lord Yahweh be it known to you,— Turn ye pale and then blush for your ways. O house of Israel. ³³Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, In the day when I cleanse you, from all your iniquities, Then will I cause the cities to be inhabited, And the waste places shall be but; ³⁴And the land that was made desolate shall be tilled,— Whereas it was a desolation, before the eyes of every passer-by; ³⁵And they shall say, This land that was made desolate hath become like the garden of Eden,— And the cities that were waste and deserted and thrown down, now fenced, are inhabited; ³⁶So shall the nations that may be left remaining round about you know that I Yahweh— Have but that which was thrown down, and Have planted that which was made desolate,— I, Yahweh, have spoken, and performed. ³⁷Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, Even yet—for this, will I be prevailed upon by the house of Israel to work for them,— I will multiply them—Like a flock—with men:Like a flock of holy offerings. ³⁸Like the flock of Jerusalem in her appointed feasts So shall the waste cities be filled with flocks of men,— And they shall know that I, am Yahweh.

37 The hand of Yahweh I being upon me, he carried me forth in the spirit of Yahweh, and set me down in the midst of a plain,—and the same was full of bones; ²and he caused me to pass near them. round about on every side,—and lo! they were very many on the face of the plain, and lo! they were very dry. ³Then said he unto me, Son of man. Can these bones live. And I said, My Lord, Yahweh, thou knowest! ⁴Then said he unto me, Prophecy, over these bones,—and thou shalt say unto them, Ye bones so dry! hear ye the word of Yahweh! ⁵Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, Unto these bones,— Lo! I am about to bring into you— spirit, and ye shall live; ⁶Yea I will lay upon you—sinews, And bring up over you flesh. And cover over you—skin, And put in you—spirit And ye shall live, Then shall ye know that I, am Yahweh. ⁷And when I prophesied as I was commanded, then was there a noise, as I prophesied and lo! a rattling, and the bones came near, each bone unto its own bone. ⁸And when I looked, then lo! upon them were sinews, and flesh had come up, and there had spread over them skin above, but spirit, was there none within them. ⁹Then said he unto me, Prophecy unto the spirit, Prophecy, Son of man. and thou shalt say unto the spirit. Thus saith My Lord Yahweh— From the four winds, come thou, O spirit, And breathe into these slain That they may live. ¹⁰And when I prophesied as he commanded me, then came into them the spirit, and they lived and stood upon their feet, an exceeding great army. ¹¹Then said he unto me, Son of man. These bones, are all the house of Israel,— Lo! they are saying. Dried are our bones, and lost is our hope We are quite cut off! ¹²Therefore prophecy and thou shalt say unto them Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, Lo I myself am going to open your graves And will cause you to come up out of your graves. O my people,— And will bring you upon the soil of Israel. ¹³So shall ye know that I, am Yahweh,— When I open your graves. And cause you to come up out of your graves O my people, ¹⁴And I will put my spirit within you and ye shall live, And I will settle you upon your own soil, So shall ye know that I, Yahweh have spoken and have performed. Declareth Yahweh. ¹⁵And the word of Yahweh came unto me saying: ¹⁶Thou therefore Son of man Take thee one stick, and write upon it For Judah, and for the sons of Israel his companions, Then take thou another stick, and write upon it For Joseph the stick of Ephraim, and all the house of Israel his companions. ¹⁷Then bring them near—the one to the other—for thee into one stick,— And they shall become united in thy hand. ¹⁸And when the sons of thy people speak unto thee I. saying,— Wt thou not tell us what these things are to thee? ¹⁹speak unto them Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, Lo! I, myself, am going to take the stick of Joseph. which is in the hand of Ephraim, and the tribes of Israel, his companions,— And I will place them upon it even upon the stick of Judah. And will make of them one stick, And they shall become one in my hand. ²⁰And the sticks whereon thou shalt write shall remain in thy hand before their eyes. ²¹Therefore speak thou unto them Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh, Lo! myself am going to take the sons of Israel, from among the nations whither they have gone,— And I will gather them from every side, And will bring them in upon their own so; ²²And will make of them one nation in the land. among the mountains of Israel, And one king, shall they all have for king, —And they shall remain no longer two nations, Nor shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more. ²³Neither shall they defile themselves any more With their manufactured gods or With their detestable things, or With any of their transgressions,— But I will save them out of all their dwelling- places, wherein they have sinned, And I will cleanse them And they shall become nay people, And I, will become their God. ²⁴And my servant David shall be king over them, And one shepherd, shall they all have, And in my regulations, shall they walk, And my statutes, shall they observe and do them. ²⁵And they shall dwell upon the land. which I gave to my servant- to Jacob, Wherein your fathers dwelt,— Yea they shall dwell thereupon. They, and their children and their children's children Unto times age-abiding, And David my servant shall be prince unto them Unto times age-abiding. ²⁶And I will solemnise to them a covenant of prosperity, A covenant age-abiding, shall it be with them,— And I will place them. And multiply them, And set my sanctuary in the midst of them. Unto times age-abiding. ²⁷And my habitation shall be over them, And I will become their God,— And they, shall become my people, ²⁸So shall the nations know that I, Yahweh, am hallowing Israel,— When my sanctuary is in the midst of them Unto times age-abiding.

38And the word of Yahweh came unto me, saying: ²So of man Set thy face against Gog, of the land of the Magog, Princes of Rash Meshech and Tubal,— And prophesy concerning him, ³and thou shalt say, Thus, saith My Lord Yahweh,— Behold me! against thee O Gog, Prince of Rosh, Meshech and Tubal; ⁴Therefore I will turn thee about, and will put hooks in thy jaws,—and bring thee forth and all thine army. Horses and horsemen Clothed with gorgeous attire, all of them, A mighty gathered host With shield and buckler handling swords tall of them: ⁵Persia Ethiopia and Libya with them, All of them, with shield and helmet; ⁶Gomer and all her hordes, The house of Togarmah the remote men of the North and all his hordes, Many peoples with thee. ⁷Be ready, and show thyself ready, Thou and all thy gathered host who have gathered themselves unto thee,— And become thou for me a guard. ⁸After many days, shalt thou muster thy forces, In the after part of the years, shalt thou enter Into the land of the remnant brought back froth the sword. Gathered from among many peoples, Upon the mountains of Israel which have been waste continually,— But the same! from among the peoples, hath been brought forth, And they shall dwell in security, all of them. ⁹Then shalt thou come up, Like a storm, shalt thou enter, Like a cloud covering the land, shalt thou be,— Thou and all thy hordes, and many peoples with thee. ¹⁰Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh,— So shall it be in that day, that thoughts will come p on thy heart.— And thou wt devise a wicked device; ¹¹and wilt say— I will go up over a land of hamlets, I will enter among them who are at rest dwelling securely,— All of them, dwelling without a wall, Who bars and doors, have none; ¹²To capture spoil. And take prey,— To bring back thy hand over desolate places at length inhabited And against a people gathered from among the nations, Getting herds and substance Dwelling upon the navel of the earth. ¹³Sheba and Dedan and the traders of Tarshish and all her young lions, will say to thee, To capture spoil, art thou coming? And to take prey, hast thou called together thy gathered host? To carry off silver and gold To take away herds and substance, To capture great spoil? ¹⁴Therefore prophesy, Son of man, and thou shalt say to Gog. Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh: Shall it not be in that day, because my people Israel are dwelling securely:, that thou wt rouse thyself? ¹⁵Therefore wilt thou come out of thy place. Out of the remote parts of the North, Thou and many peoples with thee,—Riding on horses all of them, A mighty gathered host. Yea a great army; ¹⁶Therefore wilt thou come up, against my people Israel, like a cloud covering the land,— In the afterpart of the days, shall it be. that I will suffer thee to enter upon my land, To the end the nations may know me, when I hallow myself in thee before their eyes O Gog! ¹⁷Thus, saith My Lord, Yahweh, Art thou, he of whom I spake in days aforetime by the hand of my servants the prophets of Israel, who kept on prophesying in those days for years,—That thou shouldest be suffered to come against them? ¹⁸So then shall it come to pass in that day, In the day when Gog entereth upon the soil of Israel, Declareth My Lord Yahweh, That mine indignation shall come up into my nostrils; ¹⁹Yea, in my jealousy, in the fire of mine outburst, have I spoken,— Surely in that day, shall there be a great trembling upon the so of Israel: ²⁰Then shall tremble before me The fishes of the sea, and The bird of the heavens and The wild beast of the field, and Every creeping thing that creepeth on the ground, and All the men we are on the face of the ground,— and The mountains is hall be torn asunder and The steep places I shall sink down I, and Every wall to the earth, shall be thrown. ²¹Then will I call against him, every terror, Declareth My Lord Yahweh, the sword of every man against his brother, shall be; ²²Then will I contend with him by pestilence and by blood,— And an overflowing downpour and ha- stones fire and brimstone, will I rain Upon him, and Upon his hordes, and Upon the many peoples who are with him. ²³So will I Magnify myself and Hallow myself, and Make myself known. Before the eye of many nations,—And they shall know that I, am Yahweh.

39Thou therefore son of man. Prophecy against Gog, and thou shalt say, Thus saith My Lord Yahweh: Behold me! against thee O Gog Prince of Rosh, Meshech and Tubal. ²Therefore will I turn thee about and lead thee on, and cause thee to come up out of the remote parts of the North,- And will bring thee in upon the mountains of Israel; ³And I will smite thy bow out of thy left hand,- And thine arrows—out of thy right hand, win I cause to fall. ⁴Upon the mountains of Israel, shalt thou fall, Thou and all thy hordes, and the peoples who are with thee,— To birds of prey of every wing. and the wild beast of the field, will I give thee for food: ⁵Upon the, face of the field, shalt thou fall,- For I, have spoken, Declareth My Lord Yahweh. ⁶And I will send a fire into Magog, And among them who are dwelling in the Coastlands securely,— So shalt thou know that I am Yahweh. ⁷And my holy Name, will I make known in the midst of my people Israel, And will not suffer my holy Name to be profaned any more,— So shall the nations know that, I am Yahweh, Holy in Israel. ⁸Lo! it is coming, and shall be brought to pass, Declareth My Lord. Yahweh,-the same, is the day whereof I had spoken. ⁹Then shall go forth the dwellers of the cities of Israel and shall make fires of the weapons and burn them, Both buckler and shield, bow and arrows, and handstaff and spear,- And shall make fires of them. seven years; ¹⁰And they shall not take wood out of the field Neither shall they cut down out of the forests,- For of the armour, shall they make fires,- So shall they spoil those who spoiled them And prey on those who preyed on hem, Declareth My Lord. Yahweh. ¹¹And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will give to Gog a place of memorial for burial in Israel even the valley of them that pass through east of the sea, And it shall be enough to keep back them who would pass through,- and they shall bury there. Gog and all his multitude, and shall call it. Ge-hamon-gog. \u11 That is "The valley of the multitude of Gog." \u10 ¹²So shall the house of Israel bury them hat they may cleanse the land, —seven months; ¹³Yea all the people of the land I shall bury I, and it shall become to them a memorial,—the day that E get myself glory, Declareth My Lord. Yahweh. ¹⁴And men to keep at it constantly, shall they tell of Men to pass throughout the land, who with the passer-by, shall continue burying, them who have been left on the face of the land to cleanse it,— At the end of seven months, shall they make search. ¹⁵And when any of the passers-by, in going through the land, shall see a human bone, then shall he set up near it a sign,—until the buriers have buried it, in Ge-hamon-Gog. ¹⁶Moreover the name of a city shall be Hamonah To the multitude, so shall they cleanse the land. ¹⁷Thou, therefore, son of man, Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, Say to the bird of every wing. And to every wild beast of the field. Assemble yourselves and come Gather yourselves from every side, unto my sacrifice which I am sacrificing for yon A great sacrifice on the mountains of Israel,- And ye shall eat flesh and drink blood: ¹⁸The flesh of mighty men, shall ye eat, And the blood of the princes of the earth, shall ye drink.— Rams well-fed lambs and be-goats bullocks, Fatlings of Bashan all of them; ¹⁹And ye shall eat fat till ye are sated, And drink blood till ye are drunken, Of my sacrifice which I have sacrificed for you; ²⁰So shall ye be sated at my table with horse and chariot team, mighty man and every man of war,— Declareth My Lord, Yahweh. ²¹Thus will I set my glory among the nations, And all the nations I shall see My judgment which I have executed,—and My hand which I have laid upon them. ²²So shall the house of Israel know that I, Yah, am their God,—from that day and forward; ²³And the nations shall know That in their iniquity, were the house of Israel exiled because they had committed treachery against me, And so I hid my face from them,— And gave them into the hand of their adversaries, And they fell by the sword all of them. ²⁴According to their uncleanness and according to their transgressions, dealt I with them,— And so I hid my face from them. ²⁵Therefore— Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, Now, will I bring back them of the captivity of Jacob, And have compassion upon all the house of Israel,- And will be jealous for my holy Name; ²⁶And they shall bear their confusion, and the punishment of all their treachery wherewith they have committed treachery against me,- When they dwell upon their own so securely, with none to make them afraid; ²⁷When I have brought them back from among the peoples, And gathered them out of the lands of their enemies,- So will I hallow myself in them, before the eyes of the many nations; ²⁸And they shall know that I, Yahweh, ara their God, When I have carried them into exe among the nations, And shall then gather them upon their own soil,- And shall no more leave any of them there. ²⁹Neither will I any more hide my face from them,— In that I have poured out my spirit, upon the house of Israel, Declareth My Lord Yahweh.

40In the twenty-fifth year of our exe at the beginning of the year. on the tenth of the month in the fourteenth year, after the city was smitten, on this selfsame day, came upon me the hand of Yahweh, and he brought me thither: ²In the visions of God, he brought me into the land of Israel,— and set me down upon an exceeding high mountain, and thereupon, was, as it were the structure of a city, on the south. ³And when he brought me thither, then lo! a man whose appearance was like the appearance of bronze, with a flax-cord in his hand and measuring reed,—and he was standing in the gate. ⁴And the man spake unto me, saying. Son of man See with thine eyes And with thine ears, hear thou And apply thy heart to whatsoever I am about to show thee, For to the intent it might be shown thee, hast thou been brought hither,- Declare all that thou seest unto the house of Israel. ⁵And lo a wall on the outside of the house round about on every side,—and in the hand of the man, was the measuring reed six cubits by the cubit, and a handbreadth, so he measured the breadth of the enclosing-wall, one reed, and the height one reed. ⁶Then came he unto the gate that looked toward the east, and went up by the steps thereof,—and measured the threshold of the gate one reed broad, and the other threshold one reed broad. ⁷And the lodge was one reed long, and one reed broad, and between the lodges, was a space of five cubits,—and the threshold of the gate from beside the porch of the gate inwards, was one reed. ⁸Then measured he the porch of the gate inwards, one reed. ⁹Then measured he the porch of the gate, eight cubits, and the projections thereof two cubits,—and the porch of the gate was within, ¹⁰And I the ledges of the gate that was towards the east were, three on this side and three on that side, one measure, had they three,—and one measure, had the projections on this side and on that side. ¹¹Then measured he the breadth of the entrance of the gate, ten cubits—the length of the gate, thirteen cubits, ¹²And the space before the lodges was one cubit, and one cubit, the space on that side; and the lodge itself was six cubits on this side, and six cubits on that side. ¹³Then measured he the gate, from the roof of this lodge to the roof of that, a breadth of twenty-five cubits,—entrance over against entrance. ¹⁴Then measured he the porch, twenty cubits,—even unto the projection of the court, the lodges of the gate round about on every side; ¹⁵and from the face of the gate outwards, unto the face of the porch of the inner gate, was fifty cubits. ¹⁶And latticed windows had the lodges, even towards their projections within the gate round about on every side, and, so, had the recesses, —and windows round about on every side inwards, and against each projection, palm trees. ¹⁷Then he brought me into the outer court, and lo! chambers and a tessellated pavement, made to the court round about on every side,—thirty chambers against the pavement, ¹⁸And the pavement, was against the side of the gates, answering to the length of the gates,—the lower pavement, ¹⁹Then measured he the breadth, from the front of the lower gate, to the front of the inner court on the outside one hundred cubits,—to the east and the north. ²⁰And as for the gate which looked towards the north, pertaining to the outer court, he measured the length thereof, and the breadth thereof. ²¹And the lodges thereof were three on this side and throe on that side, and the projections thereof and the recesses thereof were according to the measure of the first gate, fifty cubits the length thereof, and, the breadth, twenty-five, by the cubit. ²²And the windows thereof and the recesses thereof and the palm-trees thereof were according to the measure of the gate that looked toward the east,—and by seven steps, they ascend it, and their recesses were within, ²³And the gate to the inner court, was over against the gate, to the north and to the east,—so he measured from gate to gate. one hundred cubits. ²⁴Then he took me toward the south, and lo! In gate toward the south,—and he measured the projections thereof and the recesses thereof, according to these measures. ²⁵And windows were there to it, and the recesses thereof round about on all sides, like these windows,—fifty cubits in length, and in breadth, five-and-twenty cubits. ²⁶And seven steps the ascents thereof, with its recesses within,—and it had palm trees one on this side and one on that side against the projections thereof. ²⁷And a gate, had the inner court towards the south,—so he measured from gate to gate toward the south, a hundred cubits. ²⁸Yea when he brought me to the inner court through the south gate, then measured he the south gate, according to these measures; ²⁹and the lodges thereof and the projections thereof and the recesses, thereof, were according to these measures, and windows, were there to it, and to the recesses thereof round about on every side,—fifty cubits in length, and in breadth, twenty and five cubits; ³⁰and there were recesses round about on every side;—in length, five and twenty cubits, and in breadth, five cubits; ³¹and the recesses thereof reached unto the outer court, with palm-trees, against the projections thereof, and eight steps were the ascents thereof. ³²And when he brought me unto the inner court toward the east, then measured he the gate, according to these measures; ³³and the lodges thereof and the projections thereof and the recesses thereof, according to these measures, and windows were there to it and to the recesses thereof, round about on every side,—in length fifty cubits, and in breadth, five and twenty cubits; ³⁴and the recesses thereof reached to the outer court, with palm-trees, against the projections thereof, on this side and on that side,—and eight steps, were the ascents thereof. ³⁵And when he brought me to the north gate, then measured he according to these measures: ³⁶the lodge as thereof the projections thereof, and the recesses thereof, with windows, to it round about on every side,—in length fifty cubits, and in breadth five and twenty cubits; ³⁷and the recesses thereof reached unto the outer court, with palm-trees against the projections thereof, on this side and on that side,—and eight steps were the ascents thereof. ³⁸And there was a chamber with its entrance, within the projections at the gates,— there, shall they rinse the ascending-sacrifice, m ³⁹And in the porch of the gate, were two tables on this side, and two tables, on that side,—to slay thereon the ascending-sacrifice, and the sin-bearer, and the gut-bearer. ⁴⁰And at the side without, in ascending to the entrance of the north gate, were two tables,—and at the other side which pertaineth to the porch of the gate, were two tables. ⁴¹Four tables on this side and four tables on that side by the side of the gate,—eight tables whereupon they shall slay. ⁴²And the four tables for the ascending-offering: were of hewn stone. in length, one cubit and a half, and in breadth, one cubit and a half, and in height, one cubit,—that thereon, they may lay the instruments wherewith they shall slay the ascending-offering and the sacrifice. ⁴³And there were hooks of three hand-breadth fastened within round about on every side,—and upon the tables, the flesh of the offering. ⁴⁴And on the outside of the inner gate, were the chambers of the singers in the inner court which was at the side of the north gate, and their front was toward the south,—one, at the side of the south gate, fronting, toward the north. ⁴⁵Then spake he unto me saying, This chamber whose front is toward the south, is for the priests keeping the charge of the house; ⁴⁶and the chamber whose front is towards the north is for the priests keeping the charge of the altar,—the same are the sons of Zadok—who draw near from among the sons of Levi unto Yahweh. to wait upon him. ⁴⁷Then measured he the court, the length, a hundred cubits, and the breadth, a hundred cubits foursquare,—with the altar before the house. ⁴⁸And when he brought me unto the porch of the house, then measured he the projection of the porch, five cubits on this side, and five cubits on that side,—and the breadth of the gate, was three cubits on this side, and three cubits on that side: ⁴⁹the length of the porch was twenty cubits and the breadth twelve cubits, and by ten steps they ascend into it,—and there were pillars against the projections, lion on this side, and one on that side.

41Then he took me unto the temple,—and measured the projection six cubits broad on this side and six cubits broad on that side, the breadth of the tent. ²And the breadth of the entrance was ten cubits and the sides of the entrance were five cubits on this side and five cubits on that side—and he measured the length thereof, forty cubits, and the breadth, twenty cubits. ³Then went he inwards, and measured the projection of the entrance, two cubits,—and the entrance itself was six cubits, and the sides of the entrance seven cubits: ⁴so he measured the length thereof twenty cubits, and the breadth twenty cubits, at the front of the temple. ⁵Then said he unto me This! is the holy of holies. Then measured he the wall of the house six cubits,—and the breadth of the side-chamber, four cubits round about on every side of the house round about. ⁶And the side-chambers, one over another were three, and that thirty times, and they entered into the wall which pertained to the house for the side-chambers round about on every side that they might have support, —and yet not have support in the wall of the house itself. ⁷And there was a broadening and a winding about higher and higher to the side-chambers, for the circuit of the house! was higher and higher round about on every side of the house, for this cause was there a broadening of the house upwards,—and from the lower, one ascended to the higher, by that which was in the middle, ⁸Then saw I that the house had a height round about on every side,—the foundations of the side-chambers, a full reed, six cubits to the joining. ⁹The breadth of the wall which pertained to the side-chamber on the outside was five cubits,—and that which was left vacant between the side-chambers which pertained to the house. ¹⁰And between the chambers, was a breadth of twenty cubits round about the house round about on every side, ¹¹And the entrance of the side-chamber, was at the vacant space, one entrance toward the north, and another entrance, toward the south,—and the breadth of the place left vacant was five cubits round about on every side. ¹²And the building which was toward the front of the secluded place on the side toward the west was a breadth seventy cubits, and the wall of the building was five cubits in breadth round about on every side, —and the length thereof ninety cubits. ¹³And he measured the house, in length, a hundred cubits,—and the secluded place and the structure and the wall thereof, in length, a hundred cubits. ¹⁴And the breadth of the front of the house and the secluded place toward the east, a hundred cubits. ¹⁵And he measured the length of the building against the front of the secluded place which was over the binder part thereof and the galleries thereof on this side and on that side a hundred cubits,—with the inner temple and the porches of the court: ¹⁶the entrance spaces and the latticed windows and the galleries round about their three stories, over against the entrance spaces wainscoted with wood, round about on every side,—and from the ground up to the windows, and the windows, were covered; ¹⁷unto the space above the entrance even unto the inner house and without and against all the wall round about on every side within and without, were the measures ¹⁸And it was made with cherubim and palm-trees,—with a palm-tree between cherub and cherub, and two faces had each cherub; ¹⁹and I the face of a man was toward the palm-tree on this side, and the face of a young lion was toward the palm-tree on that side,—thus was it made unto all the house, round about on every side. ²⁰From the ground as far as the space above the entrance: were the cherubim and the palm-trees made. ²¹As for the wall of the temple, the door-posts were square,—and as for the face of the holy place, the appearance was like the appearance of the temple. ²²The altar, was of wood, three cubits in height and the length thereof, two cubits and the corners thereof and the length thereof and the walls thereof were of wood,—then spake he unto me saying, This, is the table, which is before Yahweh. ²³And there were two doors, to the temple, and to the holy place; ²⁴and two leaves to the doors,—two folding leaves, two to the one door and two to the other door. ²⁵And there had been made unto them unto the doors of the temple cherubim and palm-trees, like as had been made to the walls,—and thick beams of wood unto the front of the porch without. ²⁶And there were latticed windows and palm-trees on this side and on that side, unto the sides of the porch,—and unto the side chambers of the house and the thick beams.

42Then he took me forth unto the outer court, the way toward the north,—and brought me unto the chamber

which was over against the secluded place and which was over against the enclosing-wall, towards the north. ²Facing the length of the hundred cubits, was the entrance of the north,—and the breadth was fifty cubits: ³over against the twenty which pertained to the inner court, and over against the pavement which pertained to the outer court, was gallery facing gallery, by the thirties; ⁴and before the chambers, was a walk ten cubits in breadth inward, a way of one cubit,—and their entrances were to the north. ⁵Now, the highest chambers were shortened, because the galleries took away therefrom more than from the lower or from the middle in structure. ⁶For three stories, they were; and had not pillars like the pillars of the courts; for this cause, it differed from the lowest and from the middle, from the ground. ⁷And as for the wall that was without, answering to the chambers, toward the outer court facing the chambers, the length thereof was fifty cubits. ⁸For the length of the chambers which pertained to the outer court was fifty cubits,—and lo! in front of the temple a hundred cubits, ⁹And from under these chambers, was the entry from the east when one goeth in by them from the outer court. ¹⁰In the thickness of the wall of the court toward the east facing the secluded place and facing the enclosing wall, were chambers. ¹¹And the way before them was like the appearance of the chambers which were toward the north, as was their length, so it was their breadth,—and all their exits were both according to their regulations, and according to their entrances. ¹²And according to the entrances of the chambers which were toward the south, was the entrance at the head of the way—the way in the face of the covered wall, the way toward the east in entering them. ¹³Then said he unto me, The chambers of the north the chambers of the south which face the secluded place, they are the holy chambers where the priests who draw near to Yahweh shall eat the most holy things; there, shall they lay the most holy things, and the meal offering and the sin-bearer and the guilt bearer, for the place is holy! ¹⁴When the priests enter them, then shall they not go forth out of the holy place into the outer court, but there, shall they lay their garments wherein they minister for holy they are, and shall put on other garments, and so draw near unto that which pertaineth to the people. ¹⁵And when he had ended the measurings of the inner house, then he brought me forth by way of the gate which looked toward the east,—and measured it round about on every side. ¹⁶He measured the east side with the measuring reed,—five hundred reeds by the measuring reed round about, ¹⁷He measured the north side, five hundred reeds, by the measuring reed round about. ¹⁸The south side, measured he,—five hundred reeds, by the measuring reed. ¹⁹He turned about to the west side,—he measured five hundred reeds, by the measuring reed. ²⁰Toward the four winds, measured he it a wall, had it round about on every side, in length, five hundred, and in breadth five hundred,—to make a separation, between the holy and the common.

43Then he took me unto the gate,—even the gate that locked toward the east.; ²when lo! the glory of the God of Israel coming from the way of the east,—and the sound of him, was as the sound of many waters, and the earth shone with his glory, a ³And it was like the appearance of the vision which I had seen like the vision which I saw—when I came in to destroy the city, also the visions were like the vision which I saw by the river Chebar,—so I fell upon my face. ⁴And the glory of Yahweh entered into the house,—by way of the gate which locked toward the east. ⁵So then the spirit lifted me up, and brought me into the inner court,—and lo! the glory of Yahweh fled the house. ⁶Then heard I one speaking unto me. out of the house,—and a man, there was standing beside me. ⁷Then said he unto me, Son of man This is the place of my throne and the place of the soles of my feet where I would dwell in the midst of the sons of Israel to times age-abiding,- But the house of Israel must, no more defile my holy Name. They, nor their kings by their unchastity, and by the carcases of their kings in their high places, ⁸When they placed—Their threshold by my threshold and their door-past beside my door-post, With only the wall, between me and them, then defiled they my holy Name by their abominations which they committed, -Wherefore I devoured them in mine anger. ⁹Now, let them remove their unchastity, and the carcases of their kings far from me,- So will I make my habitation in the midst of them, to times age-abiding. ¹⁰Thou, son of man, Declare the house unto the house of Israel, That they may be put to the blush for their iniquities,- Then let them measure the pattern. ¹¹And when they have blushed for all that they have done, then The form of the house. And the arrangement thereof And the exits thereof. And the entrances thereof And all the forms thereof, and all the statutes thereof. And all the forms thereof and all the laws thereof, make thou known unto them, And write e it before their yes; That they may keep— All the forms thereof And all the statutes thereof. And do them. ¹²This shall be the law of the house,— Upon the top of the mountain, all the boundary thereof round about on every side If shall be most holy, Lo! this, shall be the law of the house. ¹³And these, shall be the measures of the altar, in cubits, a cubit being a cubit and a handbreadth; and the hollow, shall be a cubit, and a cubit the breadth, and the boundary thereof unto the edge thereof round about shall be a single span. And this, shall be the upper part of the altar, ¹⁴And from the hollow of the ground unto the lower ledge, shall be two cubits, and the breadth, one cubit,—and from the smaller ledge unto the larger ledge, shall be four cubits, and the breadth, a cubit. ¹⁵And the hearth, shall, be four cubits,—and from the hearth and upward, the horns shall be four. ¹⁶And the hearth shall be twelve cubits in length, by twelve in breadth—square in the four sides thereof. ¹⁷And the ledge shall be fourteen in length, by fourteen in breadth, unto the four sides thereof,—and the boundary round about it shall be half a cubit and the hollow thereof a cubit round about, with the steps thereof looking toward the east. I ¹⁸Then said he unto me, Son of man, Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, There, shall be the statutes of the altar, in the day when it is made,—for offering up thereon—an ascending-sacrifice, and for dashing thereon—blood. ¹⁹So then thou shalt give unto the priests the Levites those who are of the seed of Zadok who approach unto me Declareth My Lord Yahweh. to wait upon me—a young bullock as a sin-bearer, ²⁰Then shalt thou take of the blood thereof and place upon the four horns thereof and on the four corners of the ledge, and on the boundary, round about,—and shalt cleanse it from sin and put a propitiatory-covering over it. ²¹Then shalt thou take the bullock bearing sin,—and shalt burn it in the appointed place of the house, outside the sanctuary, ²²And on the second day, shalt thou bring near a kid of the goats without defect as a sin-bearer,—and they shall cleanse the altar from sin just as they cleansed it from sin with the bullock, ²³When thou hast made an end of cleansing from sin, thou shalt bring near a young bullock without defect, and a ram out of the flock without defect; ²⁴and shalt bring them near before Yahweh,—and the priests shall eat over them salt, so shall they cause them to go up as an ascending-sacrifice to Yahweh. ²⁵Seven days, shalt thou offer a sin-bearing goat for each day,—and a young bullock and a ram out of the flock without defect, shall they offer. ²⁶Seven days, shall they put a propitiatory covering over the altar, and shall purify it,—and shall consecrate it. ²⁷When the days shall be accomplished, then shall it be on the eighth day and forward, that the priests shall offer upon the altar your ascending-sacrifices and your peace offerings. And I will accept you Declareth, My Lord Yahweh.

⁴⁴Then he brought me back toward the outer gate of the sanctuary, which looked toward the east,—but, it was shut. ²Then said Yahweh unto me This gate shut, shall remain It shall not be opened And no man shall enter thereby, Because Yahweh, God of Israel, doth enter thereby,— Therefore shall it remain—shut. ³The prince! as prince, he, shall sit therein, To eat food before Yahweh,— By way of the porch of the gate, shall he go in, and By way thereof, shall he come out. ⁴Then he brought me in by way of the north gate unto the front of the house, and I looked and Lo! the glory of Yahweh fled the house of Yahweh,— so I fell upon my face. ⁵And Yahweh said unto me, Son of man Apply thy heart And see with thine eyes And with thine ears, hear thou All that I am speaking with thee, As to all the statutes of the house of Yahweh and As to all the laws thereof,— And thou shalt apply thy heart To the entering in of the house, With all the exits of the sanctuary. S

⁶So then thou shalt say unto the perverse house unto the house of Israel, Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh: Let it more than suffice you Out of all your abominations, O house of Israel: ⁷That ye brought in the sons of the foreigner Uncircumcised in heart and uncircumcised in flesh, To be in my sanctuary. So that be profaned my house,— That ye brought near as my food the fat and the blood, And so they brake my covenant—Among all your abominations; ⁸Neither kept ye the charge of my holy things,— But ye did set men to be keepers of my charge in my sanctuary, for your own pleasure, ⁹Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, No son of a foreigner Uncircumcised in heart and uncircumcised in flesh, shall enter into my sanctuary,—of any son of a foreigner, who is in the midst of the sons of Israel. ¹⁰But as for the Levites. Who went far from me, when Israel went astray. Who went astray from me, after their manufactured gods, Therefore shall they bear their iniquity, ¹¹Yet shall they remain in my sanctuary As attendants in charge at the gates of the house,— And attending upon the house,— They shall slay the ascending-offering, and the sacrifice of the people, And they, shall stand before them to wait upon them. ¹²Because they used to wait upon them before their manufactured gods, and became to the house of Israel a stumbling-block of iniquity, For this cause have I lifted up my hand concerning them Declareth My Lord Yahweh, and they shall bear their iniquity; ¹³So then they shall not come near unto me To minister as priests unto me, Nor come near unto any of my holy things, As regardeth things most holy,— But they shall bear their rebuke, and their abominations which they have committed; ¹⁴Yet will I make them keepers of the charge of the house,— As to all the labour thereof, and As to all which shall be done therein. ¹⁵But the priests the Levites the sons of Zadok, Who kept the charge of my sanctuary— when the sons of Israel went astray from me, They shall draw near unto me to wait upon me, And shall stand before me, to bring near unto me the fat and the blood Declareth My Lord, Yahweh: ¹⁶They shall enter into my sanctuary, and They shall draw near unto my table to wait upon me,— So shall they keep my charge. ¹⁷And it shall be when they shall enter into the gates of the inner court, Garments of linen, shall they put on, Yea there shall come upon them no wool, when they minister in the gates of the inner court and within: ¹⁸Chaplets of linen, shall be upon their head, and Breeches of linen shall be upon their loins,— They shall not gird themselves, so as to perspire, ¹⁹And when they go forth into the outer court into the outer court unto the people, They shall put off their garments, wherein they do minister, and lay them in the chambers of the holy place,— And shall put on other garments, That they may not hallow the people by their garments. ²⁰And their heads, shall they not shave, Nor let the hair grow long,— They shall only poll, their heads. ²¹And wine, shall no priest drink,—when they enter into the inner court. ²²Neither widow nor divorced woman, shall they take to them to wife,— But, virgins of the seed of the house of Israel, Or a widow who shall be the widow of a priest shall they take. ²³And my people, shall they instruct, between the holy and the common,— And between the unclean and the clean, shall they cause them to distinguish. ²⁴And in a controversy, They shall stand up for justice, With my judgments, shall they judge it, And my laws and my statutes in all mine appointed assemblies, shall they observe, And my sabbaths, shall they hallow. ²⁵And unto no dead person, shall they go in. to defile themselves,— Save that for father or for mother or for son or for daughter, for brother or for sister who hath belonged to no husband they may defile themselves. ²⁶Yet after he is cleansed, seven days shall they count to him. ²⁷And in the day when he entereth into the sanctuary, into the inner court to minister in the sanctuary, He shall bring near his sin-bearer, Declareth My Lord Yahweh. ²⁸So shall it become to them an inheritance, I, am their inheritance,— And possession, shall ye not give them in Israel, I am their possession. ²⁹As for the meal-offering and the sin-bearer and the gut-bearer, they shall eat them, —And everything devoted in Israel to them, shall belong. ³⁰And the first of all the firstfruits of everything, and every heave-offering of everything, from among all your heave-offerings to the priests, shall it belong,— The first of your meal, shall ye give to the priest, To cause a blessing to rest upon by house. ³¹Nothing that died of itself or was torn in pieces, of bird or of beast shall be eaten by the priests.

⁴⁵And when ye shall by lot divide the land as an inheritance, ye shall offer up as a heave-offering to Yahweh a holy portion out of the land, in length, five and twenty thousand long, and in breadth, twenty thousand, —holy shall it be throughout all the territory thereof round about. ²There shall be out of this for the holy place, five hundred by five hundred, four-square round about,—and fifty cubits, as an open space to it, round about, ³And out of this measure, shalt thou measure, a length of five and twenty thousand and a breadth of ten thousand,—and therein, shall be the sanctuary, the holy of holies: ⁴a holy portion out of the land, it is for the priests who wait in the sanctuary, shall it be, who draw near to wait upon Yahweh,— so shall it be theirs as a place for houses, and a sanctuary for the sanctuary. ⁵And five and twenty thousand, in length, and ten thousand, in breadth,—and it shall be for the Levites who wait upon the house theirs as a possession of cities to dwell in ⁶And the possession of the city, shall ye give, five thousand, in breadth, and in length, five and twenty thousand answering to the heave-offering ⁷And to the prince—on his side and on that, shall belong a portion of the heave-offering of the holy portion and of the possession of the city, facing the heave-offering of the holy portion and facing the possession of the city, on the west side westward and on the east side eastward,—and in length, answering to one of the portions, from the west boundary to the east boundary, ⁸Of the land, it shall be his for a possession in Israel,—and so my princes shall no more oppress my people, but the land itself, shall they give to the house of Israel, by their tribes. ⁹Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, Let it more than suffice you O princes of Israel, Violence and spoil, remove ye And justice and righteousness, execute,— Lift off your acts of expulsion from upon my people, Urgeth My Lord Yahweh. ¹⁰Balances of righteousness, and an ephah of righteousness, and A bath of righteousness, have ye: ¹¹the ephah and the bath of one fixed measure, shall be, to contain the tenth of a homer, the bath,—and the tenth of a homer, the ephah, unto the homer, shall be the proportion thereof; ¹²and the shekel shall be twenty gerahs,—twenty shekels five and twenty shekels and fifteen shekels, the weight shall be to you. ¹³This is the heave-offering which ye shall offer up,— the sixth of an ephah, out of a homer of wheat, and the sixth of an ephah, out of a homer of barley; ¹⁴And the statutory portion of oil shall be— per bath for oil—a tenth part of a bath out of a cot, which is ten baths even a homer; for ten baths are a homer. ¹⁵And one lamb out of the flock out of two hundred out of the watered pastures of Israel, for a gift and for an ascending- sacrifice and for peace-offerings,— To pat a propitiatory-covering over them, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh. ¹⁶All the people of the land shall give to this heave-offering,—for the prince in Israel. ¹⁷But on the prince himself, shall rest the ascending-sacrifices and the meal-offering, and the drink-offering, on the festivals, and on the new moons, and on the sabbaths, in all the appointed meetings of the house of Israel,—he, shall offer the sin-bearer. and the meal-offering, and the ascending sacrifice, and the peace-offerings, To put a propitiatory-covering about the house of Israel. ¹⁸Thus saith My Lord, Yahweh, In the first month on the first day of the month, shalt thou take a young bullock without defect, —and shalt cleanse the sanctuary from sin; ¹⁹then shall the priest take of the blood of the sin-bearer and put upon the door-posts of the house, and upon the four corners of the ledge of the altar and upon the door-posts of the gate of the inner court. ²⁰And so shalt thou do in the seventh of the month, for any man that wavereth or is of feeble mind,—so shall ye cleanse the house by propitiation. ²¹In the first month on the fourteenth day of the month, shall ye have the passover,—a festival of seven days, unleavened cakes shall be, eaten; ²²therefore shall the prince offer, on that day, for himself, and for all the people of the land,—a bullock as a sin-bearer; ²³and the seven days of the festival, shall he offer as an ascending-sacrifice to Yahweh seven bullocks and seven rams without defect, day, for the seven days,—and as a sin- bearer, a young goat day; ²⁴and a meal-offering of an ephah to each bullock. and an ephah to each ram, shall he offer,— and of oil a hin to an ephah. ²⁵In the seventh month, on the fifteenth day of the month, throughout the festival, he shall offer like these seven days,—like the sin-bearer like the ascending-sacrifice, and like the meal offering, and like the.

46 Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, the gate of the inner court which looketh toward the east shall be shut, the six days of work,—but on the sabbath-day, shall it be opened, and on the day of the new moon, shall it be opened. ²The prince therefore shall enter by way of the porch of the gate without and shall stand by the post of the gate, and the priests shall offer his ascending-sacrifice and his peace offerings, and he shall bow down upon the threshold of the gate and then go forth, but the gate shall not be shut until the evening; ³and the people of the land I shall bow down at the entrance of that gate on the sabbaths and at the new moons,—before Yahweh. ⁴And, the ascending-sacrifice which the prince shall bring near unto Yahweh, shall be on the sabbath day, six he-lambs without defect and a ram without defect; ⁵and the meal-offering shall be an ephah to a ram, and to the he-lambs, the meal-offering shall be as one is able to give,— and of, a hin to an ephah. ⁶But on the day of the new moon, a young bullock without defect, —and six he-lambs and a ram without defect, shall they be; ⁷and an ephah to a bullock, and an ephah to a ram, shall he offer as a meal-offering, and for the he-lambs, just as his hand shall attain unto,—and of oil a hin to an ephah. ⁸And when the prince shall enter, by way of the porch of the gate, shall he go in, and by way thereof, shall he go out. ⁹But when the people of the land shall enter before Yahweh on the appointed feasts, he that entereth by way of the north gate to bow down shall go forth by way of the south gate, and he that entereth by way of the south gate shall go forth by way of the north gate,—he shall not return by way of the gate by which he entered, but straight-forward, shall he go forth. ¹⁰But as for the prince in their midst when they enter, shall he enter, and when they go forth, shall he go forth, ¹¹And in the festivals and in the appointed feasts, the meal-offering! shall be an ephah to a bullock, and an ephah to a ram, but to the he-lambs, as one is able to give,—and of oil a hin to an ephah. ¹²And when the prince would offer as a free-will offering, an ascending-sacrifice or peace-offerings as a free-will offering to Yahweh, then shall be opened to him the gate that looketh to the east, and he shall offer his ascending-sacrifice and his peace-offerings just as he would offer on the sabbath day,—and when he shall go forth, then shall one shut the gate after he hath gone forth. ¹³And a he-lamb of the first year without defect, shalt thou offer as an ascending-sacrifice day, unto Yahweh,— morning by morning shalt thou offer it. ¹⁴And a meal-offering, shalt thou offer thereupon morning by morning, of the sixth of an ephah and of, the third part of an hin to moisten the fine meal,—a meal-offering to Yahweh, age-abiding statutes continually. ¹⁵Thus shall they offer the he-lamb and the meal-offering and the morning by morning,—a continual ascending-sacrifices. ¹⁶Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, When the prince would bestow gift upon any one of his sons his own inheritance, shall it be, for his sons, shall it remain,— their possession, shall it be by way of inheritance. ¹⁷But when he would bestow a gift out of his inheritance on any one of his servants,, it shall remain his unto the year of liberation, then shall it return to the prince,—surely it is the inheritance of his sons theirs shall it remain. ¹⁸So then the prince shall not take of the inheritance of the people to oppress them out of their possession, out of his own possession, shall he give an inheritance to his sons,—to the end that my people be not scattered, any one out of his possession. ¹⁹Then he brought me in through the entrance which was by the side of the gate, into the chambers of the holy place for the priests, those facing the north,—and lo! there a place, in the hinder parts westwards. ²⁰Then said he unto me,— This is the place where the priests I shall be the gut-bearer and the sin-bearer,—where they shall bake the meal-offering, that one may not carry them forth into the outer court to hallow the people, ²¹So he caused me to go out into the outer court, and then made me pass through into the four corners of the court,—and lo! a court in each corner of the court: ²²and in the four corners of the court, were courts covered over, forty long and thirty broad: of one measure, were those four. ²³And there was an enclosure round about in them round about to those four,—and boiling places had been made under the enclosures round about. ²⁴And he said unto me,— they, are the places of them who boil, where they who wait upon the house shall be the sacrifice of the people.

47 Then he brought me back unto the entrance of the house, and lo! waters coming forth from under the threshold of the house eastward, because the front of the house, was to the east,—and the waters, were coming down from beneath, from the right side of the house, on the south of the altar. ²Then he brought me out by way of the north gate, and took me round by an outer way, unto an outer gate that which looketh eastward—and lo! waters trickling forth out of the right side. ³When the man went forth with a measuring line in his hand, then measured he a thousand, by the cubit, and caused me to pass through the waters—waters reaching to the ankles. ⁴Then measured he a thousand, and caused me to pass through the waters—waters reaching to the knees,—and again measured he a thousand, and caused me to pass through—waters reaching to the loins. ⁵Then measured he a thousand—a river which I could not pass through—for the waters had risen—waters to swim in, la river, that could not be forded. ⁶Then said he unto me Hast thou seen son of man? Then he took me along and caused me to return to the bank of the river. ⁷When returned, then lo! by the hank of the river, trees very many,—on this side and on that side. S

⁸And he said unto me these waters are going forth unto the region toward the east and shall go down unto the waste plain, and shall eater the sea, unto the sea being led forth, then shall the waters be healed; ⁹And it shall come to pass that every living soul that swarmeth whithersoever the rivers shall come, shall live, and the fish shall become a very great multitude; for these waters have come thither, that they may be healed so shall everything live whithersoever the river cometh. ¹⁰And it shall come to pass that there shall stand by it fishers, from En-ge-di even unto En-eglaim, places for spreading out nets, shall they be,—after their kind, shall be their fish, like the fish of the great sea exceeding many. ¹¹the swamps thereof and the pools thereof, shall not be healed to salt, have they been given up. ¹²And by the river, shall grow up on the bank thereof on this side and on that side every tree for food the leaf whereof shall not fade neither shall fade the fruit thereof by its months, shall it break forth, for as for the waters thereof out of the sanctuary, are they coming forth,—and the fruit thereof shall be for food, and the leaf thereof for healing. ¹³Thus saith My Lord Yahweh, This shall be the boundary whereby ye shall take your inheritances in the land, according to the twelve tribes of Israel,—Joseph shall have portions. ¹⁴so shall ye inherit it each man like his brother, as to which I lifted my hand to give it to your fathers,—so shall this land fall to you as an inheritance. ¹⁵This then shall be the boundary of the land,—on the north side, from the great sea by the way of Hethlon to the entering, in of Zedad; ¹⁶Hamath Berothah, Sibraim, which is between the boundary of Damascus and the boundary of Hamath,—Hazer-hatticon, which is by the boundary of Hauran. ¹⁷Thus shall there be a boundary, from the sea Hazar-enan the boundary of Damascus, even the north northward and the boundary of Hamath,—even the north, side. ¹⁸And for the east side, from between Hauran and Damascus and from between Gilead and the land of Israel the Jordan, from the boundary by the sea eastward, shall ye measure—even the east side. ¹⁹And for the south side southward, from Tamar as far as the waters of Meriboth-kadesh, towards the torrent bed unto the great sea,—even the south side southward. ²⁰And for the west side, the great sea, from the boundary as far as over against the entering in of Hamath— this is the west side. ²¹So then ye shall apportion this land to you by the tribes of Israel. — ²²And it shall come to pass that ye shall divide it by lot as an inheritance, to yourselves and to the sojourners who are sojourning in your midst, who have begotten children in your midst,—so shall they be to you as a native among the sons of Israel with you, shall they cast lots for an inheritance, in the midst of the tribes of Israel. ²³And it shall be that with whatsoever tribe the sojourner hath become a sojourner, there shall ye give his inheritance, Declareth My Lord Yahweh.

⁴⁸Now these are the names of the tribes,—At the northern extremity, beside the Hethlon road—as one entereth Hamath, Hazar-enan the boundary of Damascus northwards by the side of Hamath, and so they shall be his as east side and west-Dan, one. ²And on the boundary of Dan from the east side unto the west side,—Asher one ³And on the boundary of Asher from the east side even unto the west side,—Naphtali one. ⁴And on the boundary of Naphtali from the east side unto the west side,—Manasseh one. ⁵And on the boundary of Manasseh from; he east side unto the west side,—Ephraim, one. ⁶And on the boundary of Ephraim from the east side even unto the west side, Reuben one. ⁷And on the boundary of Reuben from the east side unto the west side,—Judah one. ⁸And on the boundary of Judah, from the east side unto the west side, shall be the heave-offering which ye shall offer up, five and twenty thousand in breadth and, in length, like one of the portions from the east side unto the west side, so shall the sanctuary be in the midst thereof. ⁹the heave-offering which ye shall offer up to Yahweh shall be in length, five and twenty thousand, and in breadth, twenty thousand. ¹⁰And pertaining to these, shall be the holy offering, even for the priests, northwards, five and twenty thousand, and westward, a breadth of ten thousand, and eastward, a breadth of ten thousand and south ward, length of five and twenty thousand, —so shall the sanctuary of Yahweh be in the midst thereof:— ¹¹for the priests that are hallowed—the sons of Zadok, who kept my charge,—who went not astray when the sons of Israel went astray, as the Levites I went astray. ¹²So then they shall have an offering out of the offering of the land a holy of holies,—toward the boundary of the Levites; ¹³the Levites boundary answering to the boundary of the priests, five and twenty thousand in length and in breadth, ten thousand,—all the length five and twenty thousand, and the breadth twenty thousand. ¹⁴And they shall not sell thereof, nor shall one exchange or alienate the first-fruits of the land,—for it is holy unto Yahweh. ¹⁵And the five thousand that are left in the breadth, facing the five and twenty thousand, common shall it be to the city, for dwelling and for open space,—and the city shall be in the midst thereof. ¹⁶These moreover shall be the measures thereof the north side, four thousand and five hundred, and the south side, four thousand and five hundred,—and the east side, four thousand and five hundred, and the west side, four thousand and five hundred. ¹⁷And the open space of the city shall be, northward, two hundred and fifty, and southward, two hundred and fifty,—and eastward, two hundred and fifty, and westward, two hundred and fifty, ¹⁸And the residue in length answering to the offering of the holy portion, shall be ten thousand on the east and ten thousand on the west, so shall it answer to the offering of the holy portion,—and the increase thereof shall be for food, for them who serve the city. ¹⁹And they who serve the city shall serve it out of all the tribes of Israel. ²⁰All the offering shall be five and twenty thousand, by five and twenty thousand, —foursquare, shall ye offer up the offering of the holy portion, towards the possession of the city. ²¹And the residue shall be for the prince, on this side and on that side of the holy offering and of the possession of the city, facing the five and twenty thousand of the offering, as far as the east boundary, and westward, facing the five and twenty thousand by the west boundary, answering to the portions for the prince, — thus shall it be the holy offering, with the sanctuary of the house in the midst thereof. ²²And out of the possession of the Levites and out of the possession of the city, in the midst of that which is for the prince, shall it be: between the boundary of Judah, and the boundary of Benjamin, for the prince shall it be. ²³And the residue of the tribes,—from the east side unto the west side, Benjamin one. ²⁴And on the boundary of Benjamin from the east side unto the west side, Simeon one. ²⁵And on the boundary of Simeon from the east side unto the west side, Issachar one. ²⁶And on the boundary of Issachar. from the east side unto the west side, Zebulun, one. ²⁷And on the boundary of Zebulun from the east side unto the west side, Gad, one. ²⁸And on the boundary of Gad, by the south side southward,—so shall there be a boundary from Tamar unto the waters of Meribath-kadish, towards the torrent-bed, as far as the great sea. ²⁹This is the land which ye shall divide by lot for inheritance to the tribes of Israel,—and these shall be their portions, Declareth My Lord Yahweh, ³⁰And these are the exits of the city,—on the north side, four thousand five hundred measures, ³¹And the gates of the city, shall be after the names of the tribes of Israel; three gates, northward,—the gate of Reuben, one the gate of Judah, one the gate of Levi one; ³²and on the east side, four thousand and five hundred, with three gates,— even the gate of Joseph, one the gate of Benjamin, one the gate of Dan, one; ³³and on the south side, four thousand and five hundred in measure, with three gates,— the gate of Simeon, one the gate of Issachar, one the gate of Zebulun, one; ³⁴on the west side, four thousand and five hundred, the gates three,—the gate of Gad, one the gate of Asher, one, The gate of Naphtali one. ³⁵Round about, eighteen thousand. And the name of the city, from the day of Yahweh shall continue to be the name thereof.

Daniel

¹In the third year of the reign of Jehoiakim king of Judah, came Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon to Jerusalem, and laid siege against it; ²and the Lord gave into his hand Jehoiakim king of Judah, and a part of the vessels of the house of God, and he brought them into the land of Shinar, into the house of his gods,—and, the vessels, brought he into the treasure-house of his gods. ³Then did the king give word to Ashpenaz, the chief of his eunuchs,—that he should bring in, of the sons of Israel, even of the seed royal, and of the nobles, ⁴youths in whom was no blemish, but comely of countenance, and skilful in all wisdom, and possessed of knowledge, and able to impart instruction, and who had vigour in them, to stand in the palace of the king,—and that they should be taught the learning and the tongue of the Chaldeans. ⁵And the king appointed them the provision of each day upon its day, out of the delicacies of the king and out of the wine which he drank, and so to let them grow three years,—and, at the end thereof, that they should stand before the king. ⁶Now there were, among them, out of the sons of Judah, Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah; ⁷and the ruler of the eunuchs gave them names,—yea he gave to Daniel the name of Belteshazzar, and to Hananiah of Shadrach, and to Mishael of Meshach, and to Azariah of Abed-nego. ⁸But Daniel laid it upon his heart, that he would not defile himself with the delicacies of the king, nor with the wine which he drank,—therefore sought he of the ruler of the eunuchs, that he might not defile himself. ⁹But, although God had brought Daniel into lovingkindness and tender compassion, before the ruler of the eunuchs, ¹⁰yet said the ruler of the eunuchs unto Daniel, I do fear my lord the king, who hath appointed your food and your drink,—for why should he see your faces more sad than those of the youths of your own age? so should ye bring me under the penalty of mine own head unto the king. ¹¹Then said Daniel, unto the overseer whom the ruler of the eunuchs had appointed over Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah: ¹²I pray thee—prove thy servants, ten days,—and let them give us vegetable food, that we may eat, and water that we may drink: ¹³then let our countenances be looked upon before thee, and the countenances of the youths who have been eating the delicacies of the king,—and, as thou shalt see, deal thou with thy servants. ¹⁴So then he hearkened unto them, according to this word,—and proved them ten-days; ¹⁵and, at the end of ten days, their countenances appeared more comely, and fatter in flesh,—than any of the youths who had been eating the delicacies of the king. ¹⁶Thus it came about that the overseer continued taking away their delicacies, and the wine appointed them to drink,—and kept on giving them vegetable food. ¹⁷And, as for these four youths, God, gave them, knowledge and skill, in all learning and wisdom,—and, Daniel, had discernment, in all visions and dreams. ¹⁸Now, at the end of the days after which the king had given word to bring them in, then did the ruler of the eunuchs bring them in, before Nebuchadnezzar. ¹⁹So then the king, spake with them, and there was not found, from among them all, one like unto Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah,—therefore stood they before the king; ²⁰and, in any matter of wisdom and discernment as to which the king, enquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the sacred scribes—the magicians, who were in all his realm. ²¹Now Daniel continued, until the first year of Cyrus the king.

²And, in the second year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar, Nebuchadnezzar dreamed dreams,—and his spirit, was troubled, and, his sleep, had gone from him. ²So the king gave word to call for the sacred scribes and for the magicians, and for the users of incantations, and for the Chaldeans, that they might tell the king his dreams,—they came in therefore, and stood before the king. ³And the king, said to them, A dream, have I dreamed,—and my spirit is troubled to know the dream. ⁴Then spake the Chaldeans to the king, in Aramaic,—O king, to the ages, live! Tell the dream to thy servants, and, the interpretation, we will declare. ⁵The king answered and said to the Chaldeans, The word from me, is unalterable: If ye shall not make known to me the dream and the interpretation thereof, ye shall be cut in pieces, and, your houses, into a dunghill, shall be turned; ⁶but, if, the dream and the interpretation thereof, ye will declare, gifts and a present and great dignity, shall ye receive from before me,—therefore, the dream and the interpretation thereof, declare ye unto me. ⁷They answered again and said,—Let, the king, tell, the dream, to his servants, and, the interpretation thereof, we will declare. ⁸The king answered and said, Of a certainty, I know, that, time, ye, would gain,—merely because ye see that, unalterable, from me, is the word: ⁹That, if, the dream, ye shall not make known to me, one and the same, is the decree, and, a lying and wicked word, have ye agreed to speak before me, that meanwhile the time may be changed,—therefore, the dream, tell ye me, so shall I know that, the interpretation thereof, ye can declare for me. ¹⁰The Chaldeans answered before the king and said, There is not a man upon the earth, who can declare, the matter of the king,—although indeed, there is no king, chief ruler who, a thing like this, hath asked of any sacred scribe or magician or Chaldean; ¹¹and, the thing which the king hath asked, is difficult, and, none other, is there, who can declare it before the king,—saving the gods whose dwelling is, not with flesh. ¹²For this cause, the king, was provoked and exceedingly indignant,—and gave word to destroy all the wise men of Babylon; ¹³and, the decree, went forth, that, the wise men, should be slain,—and they sought Daniel and his companions that they might be slain. ¹⁴Immediately, Daniel, made answer with prudence and discretion, to Arioch, chief of the executioners of the king,—who had come forth to slay the wise men of Babylon: ¹⁵he began to speak and said to Arioch the king's captain,—For what cause, is the decree raging forth from before the king? Then did Arioch make the matter known unto Daniel. ¹⁶So Daniel entered in, and desired of the king,—that, an appointed time, he would give him, and then, the interpretation, he would declare unto the king. ¹⁷Then Daniel, to his own house, departed,—and, to Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, his companions, made the matter known; ¹⁸that, tender compassion, they might seek from before the God of the heavens, concerning this secret,—that Daniel and his companions, might not be destroyed, with the rest of the wise men of Babylon. ¹⁹Then, unto Daniel—in a vision of the night, the secret was revealed,—whereupon, Daniel, blessed the God of the heavens: ²⁰Daniel responded, and said, Let the name of God be blessed from age to age,—in that wisdom and might, to him belong; ²¹And, he, changeth times and seasons, removeth kings, and setteth up kings,—giving wisdom to the wise, and knowledge to them who are skilled in understanding: ²²He, revealeth the deep things, and the hidden,—knoweth what is in the darkness, and, light, with him, doth dwell. ²³Unto the, O God of my fathers, do I render thanks and praise, in that, wisdom and might, thou hast given unto me,—yea, already, hast thou made known to me that which we desired of thee, for, the matter of the king, hast thou made known unto us. ²⁴Therefore, Daniel entered in unto Arioch, whom the king had appointed to destroy the wise men of Babylon,—he went in, and, thus, he said unto him, The wise men of Babylon, do not thou destroy, bring me in before the king, and, the interpretation—unto the king, will I declare. ²⁵Thereupon,

Arioch—with haste, brought in Daniel before the king,—and, thus, he said to him—I have found a man of the sons of the exile of Judah, who, the interpretation—unto the king, will make known. ²⁶The king answered and said unto Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar,—Art thou able to make known unto me the dream which I have seen, and the interpretation thereof? ²⁷Daniel answered before the king, and said,—The secret which the king hath asked, the wise men, the magicians, the sacred scribes, the astrologers, are not able to declare unto the king; ²⁸but there is a God in the heavens, who revealeth secrets, and hath made known to King Nebuchadnezzar, what shall come to pass, in the afterpart of the days: Thy dream and the visions of thy head upon thy bed, are, these:— ²⁹As for thee, O king, thy thoughts upon thy bed, arose regarding what should come to pass hereafter; and, he that revealeth secrets, made known to thee what shall come to pass. ³⁰But, as for me—not for any wisdom that is in me, more than any of the living, is, this secret, revealed to me,—therefore, it is in order that, the interpretation—unto the king, they should make known, and that, the thoughts of thy heart, thou shouldst get to know. ³¹As for thee, O king, thou wast looking, when lo! a great image, this image, being mighty, and the brightness thereof surpassing, was standing before thee,—and, the appearance thereof, was terrible. ³²As for this image, its head, was of fine gold, its breast and its arms, were of silver,—its belly and its thighs, of bronze; ³³its legs, of iron,—and, its feet, part of them, of iron, and, part of them, of clay. ³⁴Thou didst look, until that a stone tare itself away, not by the aid of hands, and smote the image upon its feet, which were of iron and clay,—and they were broken in pieces. ³⁵Then were broken in pieces at once, the iron, the clay, the bronze, the silver, and the gold, and became like chaff out of the summer threshing-floors, and the wind, carried them away, and, no place, was found for them,—but, the stone that smote the image, became a mighty rock, and filled all the land. ³⁶This, is the dream, and, the interpretation thereof, we will tell before the king. ³⁷Thou, O king, art the king of kings,—for, the God of the heavens, hath given unto thee, the kingship, the might, the power and the dignity; ³⁸and, wheresoever the sons of men do dwell, the wild beasts of the field and the birds of the heavens, hath he given into thy hand, and hath made thee ruler over them all. Thou, art the head of gold. ³⁹And, after thee, shall arise another kingdom, inferior to thee,—and another—a third kingdom, of bronze, which shall bear rule throughout all the earth. ⁴⁰And, the fourth kingdom, shall be hard as iron,—in like manner as iron breaketh in pieces and crusheth all things,—even as iron which bringeth to ruins all these, shall it break in pieces and bring to ruins. ⁴¹And, whereas thou sawest the feet and the toes, part of them of potter's clay, and part of them of iron, the kingdom, shall be, divided, and, of the hardness of the iron, shall there be in it,—forasmuch as thou sawest, the iron, combined with the miry clay; ⁴²and, the toes of the feet, part of them, iron, and, part, of clay,—some part of the kingdom, shall be strong, but, a part thereof, shall be brittle; ⁴³and, whereas thou sawest, the iron, combined with the miry clay, they shall be combined with the seed of men, but shall not cleave firmly one to another,—lo! as iron is not to be combined with clay. ⁴⁴And, in the days of those kings, shall the God of the heavens, set up, a kingdom which, to the ages, shall not be destroyed, and, the kingdom, to another people, shall not be left,—it shall break in pieces and make an end of all these kingdoms, but, itself, shall stand to the ages. ⁴⁵Forasmuch as thou sawest that, out of the rock, a stone tare itself away, but not with hands, and brake in pieces the clay, the iron, the bronze, the silver and the gold, the mighty God, hath made known to the king what shall come to pass hereafter. Exact then is the dream, and trusty its interpretation. ⁴⁶Then, King Nebuchadnezzar, fell upon his face, and, unto Daniel, paid adoration; and, a present and sweet odours, gave he word to pour out unto him. ⁴⁷The king answered Daniel, and said—Of a truth, your God, is a God of gods, and a Lord of kings, and a Revealer of secrets,—seeing thou wast able to reveal this secret. ⁴⁸Then, the king, exalted, Daniel, and, many large presents, gave he unto him, and set him to be ruler over all the province of Babylon,—and chief of the nobles, over all the wise men of Babylon. ⁴⁹And, Daniel, desired of the king, and he appointed—over the business of the province of Babylon—Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego,—but, Daniel himself, was in the gate of the king.

3Nebuchadnezzar the king, made an image of gold, the height thereof, sixty cubits, the breadth thereof, six cubits,—he set it up in the valley of Dura, in the province of Babylon. ²And, Nebuchadnezzar the king, sent to gather together the satraps, the nobles and the pashas, the chief judges, the treasurers, the judges, the lawyers, and all the rulers of the province,—to come to the dedication of the image, which Nebuchadnezzar the king, had set up. ³Then were gathered together, the satraps, the nobles and the pashas, the chief judges, the treasurers, the judges, the lawyers, and all the rulers of the province, to the dedication of the image, which Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up,—and they stood before the image, which Nebuchadnezzar, had set up. ⁴And, the herald, proclaimed aloud,—To you, is given the word, O ye peoples, races, and tongues: ⁵At what time ye shall hear the sound of the horn, the pipe, the lyre, the harp, the psaltery, the bagpipes, and all kinds of instruments of music, ye shall fall down and adore the image of gold, which Nebuchadnezzar the king hath set up; ⁶and, whosoever shall not fall down and adore, shall, instantly, be cast into the burning furnace of fire. ⁷Wherefore, at the same time—when all the peoples heard the sound of the horn, the pipe, the lyre, the harp, the psaltery, and all kinds of instruments of music, they were falling down—even all the peoples, the races, and the tongues,—adoring the image of gold, which Nebuchadnezzar the king, had set up. ⁸Wherefore, at the same time, drew near certain Chaldeans,—and accused the Jews: ⁹they spake, and said, to Nebuchadnezzar the king: O king! for ages, live! ¹⁰Thou thyself, O king, hast made a decree, that, any man who shall hear the sound of the horn, the pipe, the lyre, the harp, the psaltery and the bagpipes, and all kinds of instruments of music, shall fall down and adore the image of gold; ¹¹and, whosoever shall not fall down and adore, shall be cast into the burning furnace of fire. ¹²There are certain Jews whom thou hast set over the business of the province of Babylon, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego,—these men, have made thee, O king, of no account, thy god, they serve not, and, the image of gold which thou hast set up, do they not adore. ¹³Then, Nebuchadnezzar—with anger and wrath, gave word to bring Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, then, these men, brought they before the king. ¹⁴Nebuchadnezzar spake and said unto them, Is it, with design, O Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego,—that, my god, ye are not serving, and, the image which I have set up, are not adoring? ¹⁵Now, if ye be ready, at what time ye shall hear the sound of the cornet, the pipe, the lyre, the harp, the psaltery and the bagpipes, and all the instruments of music, ye shall fall down and adore the image which I have made, but, if ye shall not adore, instantly, shall ye be cast into the midst of the burning furnace of fire,—and who is the god that shall deliver you out of my hands? ¹⁶Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego answered, and said to the king: O Nebuchadnezzar! we are not accounting it needful, concerning this, to answer thee. ¹⁷If it is, our God, whom we serve, is able to deliver us,—out of the burning furnace of fire, and out of thy hand, O king, he will deliver. ¹⁸But, if not, be it known to thee, O king,—that, thy god, will we not serve, and, the image of gold which thou hast set up, will we not adore. ¹⁹Then, Nebuchadnezzar, was filled with wrath, and, the likeness of his countenance, was changed, against Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego,—he spake and gave word to heat the furnace seven times hotter than it was ever seen heated; ²⁰and, to men, who were the mightiest men in his army, gave he word to bind fast Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego,—to cast them into the burning furnace of fire. ²¹Then bound they, these men, in their trousers, their tunics, and their cloaks, and their (other) clothing,—and cast into the midst of the burning furnace of fire. ²²Therefore, because the word of the king had raged forth, and the furnace was exceeding hot, those very men who took up Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, were slain by the flame of the fire; ²³and, these three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, fell down into the midst of the burning furnace of fire, fast bound. ²⁴Then, Nebuchadnezzar the king, was amazed, and rose up in haste: he spake and said to his nearest friends—Were there not three men, we cast into the midst of the fire, fast bound? They answered and said to the king, Surely, O king! ²⁵He answered and said, Lo! I, see four men, unbound, walking in the midst of the fire, and, injury, there is not in them, and, the appearance of the fourth, is like to a son of the gods! ²⁶Then did Nebuchadnezzar, draw near, to the door of the burning furnace of fire, he spake and said, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, ye servants of the most high God, step forth and come hither. Then stepped forth Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, out of the midst of the fire. ²⁷And—being gathered together—the satraps, the nobles, and the pashas and near friends of the king, saw these men, over whose bodies the fire had, no power, nor was, a hair of their head, singed, neither were, their trousers, disfigured,—nor had, the smell of fire, come upon them. ²⁸Nebuchadnezzar spake and said, Blessed be the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, who hath sent his messenger, and delivered his servants, who trusted in him,—when, the word of the king, they transgressed, and delivered up their bodies, that they might not serve nor adore any god, saving their own God. ²⁹Therefore do I make a decree, that, whosoever of any people, race, or tongue it be that shall charge any error upon the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, shall be cut in pieces, and, his house, into a dunghill, shall be changed; because there is no other God, who is able to deliver, like this! ³⁰Then, the king, advanced Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, in the province of Babylon.

⁴Nebuchadnezzar the king, unto all the peoples, the races and the tongues who are dwelling in all the earth, Let, your prosperity, abound! ²The signs, and the wonders, which the most high God, hath wrought with me, it is pleasing before me to declare. ³His signs, how great! and, his wonders, how mighty! His kingdom, is an age-abiding kingdom, and, his dominion, lasteth from generation to generation. ⁴I, Nebuchadnezzar, was at peace in mine own house, and was prosperous in my palace. ⁵A dream, I saw, and it made me afraid,—and, fancies upon my bed, and visions of my head, terrified me. ⁶Therefore made I a decree, to bring in before me, all the wise men of Babylon,—who, the interpretation of the dream, should make known to me. ⁷Then came in the sacred scribes, the magicians, the Chaldeans, and the astrologers,—and, the dream, told I before them, but, the interpretation, could they not make known to me. ⁸Howbeit, at last, came before me—Daniel, whose, name, was Belteshazzar, after the name of my god, and in whom is the spirit of the holy gods; and, the dream—before him, I told saying: ⁹O Belteshazzar, chief of the sacred scribes, because I know that, the spirit of the holy gods, is in thee,—and no secret giveth thee trouble, therefore, the visions of my dream which

I have seen, and the interpretation thereof, do thou tell. ¹⁰The visions then of my head upon my bed were these,—I was looking, when lo! a tree in the midst of the land, and, the height thereof, was great. ¹¹The tree, grew, and became strong,—and, the height thereof, reached unto the heavens, and, the view thereof, unto the end of all the land: ¹²The foliage thereof, was beautiful, and, the fruit thereof, abundant, and there was food for all therein,—under it, the wild beast of the field found shade, and, among its branches, dwelt the birds of the heavens, and, therefrom, was well fed, all flesh. ¹³I was looking, in the visions of my head, upon my bed, when lo! a watcher and holy one, outer the heavens, coming down. ¹⁴He cried aloud, and, thus, he said—Hew ye down the tree, and lop off its branches, strip off its leaves, and scatter its fruit,—let the wild beasts flee from under it, and the birds, out of its branches; ¹⁵Nevertheless, the stock of its roots in the earth, leave ye, yea in a bond of iron and bronze, in the tender grass of the field, and, with the dew of the heavens, let it be drenched, and, with the wild beasts, be its portion, amongst, the herbage of the earth; ¹⁶Let, its heart, from a man's, be changed, and, the heart of a wild beast, be given to it,—and let seven seasons pass over it. ¹⁷By the decree of the watchers, is the thing, and by the mandate of the holy ones, the matter: to the intent that the living, may get to know, that the Most High, hath dominion, over the kingdom of men, and, to whomsoever he pleaseth, he giveth it, and, one low among men, he setteth up over it. ¹⁸This dream, have, I, King Nebuchadnezzar, seen. Thou, therefore, O Belteshazzar, the interpretation, do thou tell, forasmuch as, all the wise men of my kingdom, are unable, the interpretation, to make known to me, but, thou, art able, because, the spirit of the holy gods, is in thee. ¹⁹Then, Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, was astonished for about one moment, and, his thoughts, troubled him. The king spake and said, O Belteshazzar, let neither, the dream, nor the interpretation, trouble thee. Belteshazzar answered and said, My Lord, The dream, be for them who hate thee, and, the interpretation, for them who are thy foes. ²⁰The tree which thou sawest, which grew and became strong, whose, height, reached unto the heavens, and, the view, thereof to all the earth: ²¹Whose, foliage, was beautiful, and whose, fruit, abundant, and, food for all, was in it,—under it, dwelt the wild beasts of the field, and, in the branches thereof, nestled the birds of the heavens: ²²Thyself, it is, O king, in that thou art grown, and become strong,—and, thy greatness hath grown, and reached to the heavens, and, thy dominion, to the end of the earth. ²³And, whereas the king saw a watcher and holy one coming down out of the heavens, who said, Hew ye down the tree and despoil it, nevertheless, the stock of its roots—in the earth, leave ye, even in a bond of iron and bronze, in the tender grass of the field,—and, with the dew of the heavens, let it be drenched, and, along with the wild beasts of the field, be its portion, until that, seven seasons, pass over it. ²⁴This, is the interpretation, O king,—and, the decree of the Most High, it is, which hath come upon my lord the king: ²⁵That, thee, are they going to drive forth from among men, and, along with the wild beasts of the field, shall be thy dwelling, and, grass—like oxen, will they suffer, thee, to eat, and, with the dew of the heavens, will they suffer, thee, to be drenched, and, seven seasons, shall pass over thee,—until that thou come to know, that the Most High, hath dominion, over the kingdom of men, and, to whomsoever he pleaseth, he giveth it. ²⁶And, whereas they gave word to leave the stock of the roots of the tree, thy kingdom, unto thee, is sure,—after that thou come to know, that the heavens, have dominion. ²⁷Wherefore, O king, let, my counsel, be pleasing unto thee, thy sin, then,—by righteousness, break thou off, and, thine iniquities, by shewing favour to the oppressed,—if so be it may become the lengthening out of thy security. ²⁸All this, came upon Nebuchadnezzar the king. ²⁹At the end of twelve months, over the palace of the kingdom of Babylon, was he walking: ³⁰the king spake and said, Is not, this, Babylon the great,—which, I myself, have built as the home of the kingdom, by the might of my power, and for the dignity of my majesty? ³¹While yet the word was in the mouth of the king, a voice, out of the heavens, fell,—Unto thee, is it said, O Nebuchadnezzar the king, The kingdom, hath departed from thee; ³²And, from among men, are they going to drive, thee, forth, and, with the wild beast of the field, shall be thy dwelling, grass—like oxen, will they suffer, thee, to eat, and, seven seasons, shall pass over thee,—until that thou come to know that the Most High, hath dominion, over the kingdom of men, and, to whomsoever he pleaseth, he giveth it. ³³Immediately, the word, was fulfilled upon Nebuchadnezzar, and, from among men, was he driven forth, and, grass—like oxen, did he eat, and, with the dew of the heavens, his body was drenched,—until that, his hair, like to eagles' feathers, was grown, and his nails, like birds' claws. ³⁴And, at the end of the days, I, Nebuchadnezzar, mine eyes unto the heavens, did uplift, and, mine understanding, unto me, returned, and, the Most High, I blessed, and, to him that liveth age-abidingly, I rendered praise and honour,—whose dominion, is an age-abiding dominion, and, his kingdom, lasteth from generation to generation; ³⁵And, all the inhabitants of the earth, as nothing, are accounted, and, according to his own pleasure, dealeth he—with the army of the heavens, and the inhabitants of the earth,—and none there is who can smite upon his hand, or say to him, What hast thou done? ³⁶At the same time, mine understanding, returned unto me, and, for the dignity of my kingdom, my majesty and my brightness, returned unto me, and, unto me, my nearest friends and my nobles, did seek,—and, over my kingdom, was I restored, and, surpassing greatness, was added unto me. ³⁷Now, I, Nebuchadnezzar, am praising and extolling and honouring

the King of the Heavens, all whose works, are truth, and, his ways, right; and, them who walk in pride, he is able to abase, ⁵Belshazzar the king, made a great feast, to a thousand of his nobles,—and, before the thousand, was drinking, wine. ²Belshazzar, gave word, at the flavour of the wine, to bring the vessels of gold and silver, which Nebuchadnezzar his father, had brought forth, out of the temple which was in Jerusalem,—that the king and his nobles, his wives and his concubines, might drink therein. ³Then brought they the vessels of gold which had been taken out of the temple of the house of God, which was in Jerusalem,—and the king and his nobles, his wives and, his concubines, drank therein: ⁴they drank wine,—and praised the gods of gold and silver, bronze, iron, wood and stone. ⁵Immediately, came forth the fingers of the hand of a man, and wrote,, over against the chandelier, upon the plaster of the wall of the palace of the king,—and, the king, saw the part of the hand which was writing, ⁶Then, as for the king, his bright looks, changed in him, and, his thoughts, terrified him,—and, the joints of his loins, were loosed, and, his knees, smote, one against another. ⁷The king began crying out again, to bring in the magicians, the Chaldeans and the astrologers,—the king spake and said to the wise men of Babylon, Whosoever it is that shall read this writing, and, the interpretation thereof, shall declare unto me, with purple, shall he be clothed, and have a chain of gold upon his neck, and, as the third in the kingdom, shall he have dominion. ⁸Then were coming in all the wise men of the king,—but, the writing, could they not read, nor, the interpretation, make known to the king. ⁹Then, King Belshazzar, was greatly terrified, and, his bright looks, were changed upon him,—and, his nobles, were perplexed. ¹⁰The queen, by reason of the words of the king and his nobles, into the house of banqueting, entered,—the queen spake and said, O king! for ages, live! Let not thy thoughts, terrify thee, and, as for thy bright looks, let them not be changed. ¹¹There is a man in thy kingdom in whom is the spirit of the holy gods, and, in the days of thy father, light, and intelligence, and wisdom like the wisdom of the gods, were found in him,—and, King Nebuchadnezzar thy father, appointed him, chief of the sacred scribes, the magicians, the Chaldeans, and the astrologers,—thy father, O king! ¹²Forasmuch as, a distinguished spirit, and knowledge and intelligence, ability to interpret dreams and solve riddles and unravel knotty points, were found in the same Daniel, whom the king named Belteshazzar, now let, Daniel, be called, and, the interpretation, will he declare. ¹³Then, Daniel, was brought in before the king,—the king spake and said unto Daniel, Art, thou, that Daniel, that is of the sons of the exile of Judah, whom the king my father brought out of Judah? ¹⁴Then, I have heard concerning thee, that, the spirit of the gods, is in thee,—and, light and intelligence and distinguished wisdom, are found in thee. ¹⁵Now, therefore, have been brought in before me, the wise men, the magicians, that, this writing, they might read, and, the interpretation thereof, might make known unto me,—but they were not able, the interpretation of the thing, to declare. ¹⁶I, however, have heard concerning thee, that thou art able, interpretations, to unfold, and, knotty points, to unravel,—Now, if thou be able, the writing, to read, and, the interpretation thereof, to make known unto me, with purple, shalt thou be clothed, and, a chain of gold, shalt thou have upon thy neck, and, as the third in the kingdom, shalt thou have dominion. ¹⁷Then spake Daniel, and said before the king, As for thy gifts, thine own let them remain, and, thy presents, on another, bestow,—howbeit, the writing, will I read to the king, and, the interpretation thereof, will I make known to him. ¹⁸As for thee, O king, the Most High God, gave, kingship and greatness and honour and majesty, unto Nebuchadnezzar thy father; ¹⁹and, for the greatness that he gave him, all peoples, races and tongues, used to tremble and to withdraw falteringly from before him,—Whom he would, he slew, and, whom he would, he kept alive, and, whom he would, he set up, and, whom he would, he put down. ²⁰But, when uplifted was his heart and, his spirit, became obstinate so as to act arrogantly, he was put down from the throne of his kingdom, and, his dignity, took they from him; ²¹And, from among the sons of men, was he driven, and, his heart, to a wild beast's, became equal, and, with the wild asses, was his dwelling, and, grass—like oxen, they suffered him to eat, and, with the dew of the heavens, his body, was drenched—until that he came to know that the Most High God, hath dominion, over the kingdom of men, and, whomsoever he pleaseth, he setteth up over it. ²²And yet, thou, his son, O Belshazzar! hast not humbled thy heart, though, all this, thou knewest; ²³but, against the Lord of the heavens, hast uplifted thyself, and, the vessels of his house, have they brought before thee, and, thou, and thy nobles, thy wives and thy concubines, have been drinking, wine, therein, and, gods of silver and gold, of bronze, iron, wood and stone, which see not nor hear nor know, hast thou praised,—whereas, God, in whose hand thy breath is and whose are all thy ways, him, hast thou not glorified. ²⁴Then was there put forth from before him the part of the hand,—and, this writing, was inscribed: ²⁵And this is the writing which was inscribed, M'ne, M'ne, T'kel, u-Pharsin. ²⁶This, is the interpretation of the thing,—M'ne, God hath reckoned up thy reign, and ended it: \fs15 ²⁷T'kel,—thou art weighed in the balances, and found wanting; \fs15 ²⁸P'res,—snatched away is thy kingdom, and given to the Medes and Persians. \fs15 ²⁹Then Belshazzar, gave word, that they should clothe Daniel with purple, and put a chain of gold upon his neck,—and should make a proclamation concerning him, that he should be the third ruler over the kingdom. ³⁰In that night, was slain—Belshazzar, the king of the Chaldeans. ³¹And, Darius the Mede, received the kingdom,—when about sixty-two years of age.

6It was pleasing before Darius, that he should set up over the kingdom, a hundred and twenty satraps,—that they should be over all the kingdom; ²and, over these, three confidential ministers, of whom, Daniel, was first,—that, to them, these satraps should render an account, and, the king, not be suffering loss. ³Then, this Daniel, signalled himself, above the ministers and the satraps, because, a distinguished spirit, was in him, and, the king, thought to set him up over all the kingdom, ⁴Then, the ministers and the satraps, began seeking to find, occasion, against Daniel, in respect of the kingdom,—but, no occasion nor wickedness, could they find, inasmuch as, faithful, was he, and, neither error nor wickedness, could be found against him. ⁵Then, these men, were saying, We shall not find against this Daniel, any occasion; unless we find it against him in respect of the law of his God. ⁶Then, these ministers and satraps, crowded together unto the king,—and, thus, were saying to him, O Darius the king! for ages, live! ⁷All the ministers of the kingdom, the nobles and satraps, the near friends and the pashas, have consulted together, to establish a royal statute, and to confirm an interdict,—That, whosoever shall ask a petition of any God or man, for thirty days, save of thee, O king, shall be cast into the den of lions. ⁸Now, O king! wilt thou establish the interdict, and sign the writing, that it may not be changed—according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which may not be abolished, ⁹Wherefore, King Darius, signed the writing and the interdict. ¹⁰But, Daniel, when he knew that the writing, was signed, went to his own house, and, the windows being opened to him, in his chamber, toward Jerusalem, three times a day, was he kneeling upon his knees, and praying and giving thanks before his God, in like manner as he had been doing aforetime. ¹¹Then, these men, crowded together, and found Daniel,—praying and making supplication, before his God. ¹²Then drew they near, and began to speak before the king, concerning the royal interdict, Didst thou not sign, an interdict, that, any man who should petition of any God or man, for thirty days, save of thee, O king, should be cast into the den of lions? The king answered and said, Certain is the thing—according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which may not be abolished. ¹³Then answered they and were saying before the king, Daniel, who is of the sons of the exile of Judah, hath made thee, O king, of none account, also the interdict which thou hast signed,—but, three times a day, is asking his petition. ¹⁴Then, the king, when he heard, the matter, was sorely displeased with himself, and, upon Daniel, set his heart, to deliver him,—and, until the going in of the sun, was striving to rescue him. ¹⁵Then, these men, crowded unto the king,—and were saying to the king, Know, O king, that the law of the Medes

and Persians is, that, no interdict nor statute which the king establisheth, may be changed. ¹⁶Then, the king, gave word, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of lions. The king spake and said to Daniel,—Thy God, whom thou art serving continually, he, will deliver thee. ¹⁷And there was brought a certain stone, and laid upon the mouth of the den; and the king sealed it with his own signet-ring, and with the signet-ring of his nobles, that nothing might be changed, as to Daniel. ¹⁸Then the king departed to his palace, and spent the night fasting, and no, table, was brought in before him,—and, his sleep, fled from him. ¹⁹Then the king rose early, with the dawn,—and, hastily—unto the den of lions, departed; ²⁰and, when he drew near to the den, unto Daniel, with distressed voice, made he outcry,—the king spake and said unto Daniel, O Daniel! servant of the Living God! Thy God, whom thou art serving continually, hath he been able to deliver thee from the lions? ²¹Then, Daniel, with the king, spake,—O king! for ages, live! ²²My God, hath sent his messenger, and hath shut the mouth of the lions, and they have not hurt me; forasmuch as, before him, rectitude was found in me, moreover also, before thee, O king, no, crime, had I committed. ²³Then, the king, was exceedingly glad concerning him, and gave word to take up, Daniel, out of the den. So Daniel, was taken up, out of the den, and, no manner of hurt, was found in him, for that he had trusted in his God. ²⁴And the king, gave word, that they should bring those men who had accused Daniel, and, into the den of lions, they cast them—them, their children, and their wives,—and, they had not reached the bottom of the den, when the lions, seized them, and, all their bones, brake they in pieces. ²⁵Then, Darius the king, wrote to all the peoples, the races, and the tongues who were dwelling in all the earth, Your prosperity abound! ²⁶From before me, is appointed a decree that, throughout every dominion of my kingdom, men tremble and withdraw falteringly from before the God of Daniel,—for that, he, is the Living God, and abiding for ages, and, his kingdom, that which shall not be destroyed, and, his dominion, is unto the end: ²⁷who delivereth and rescueth and worketh signs and wonders, in the heavens, and in the earth,—for that he hath delivered Daniel out of the power of the lions. ²⁸And, this Daniel, prospered in the reign of Darius,—and in the reign of Cyrus the Persian. :

7In the first year of Belshazzar, king of Babylon, Daniel, beheld, a dream, and visions of his head upon his bed,—then, the dream, he wrote, the sum of the matters, he told. ²Daniel spake and said, I was looking, in my vision which came with the night,—when, lo! the four winds of the heavens, bursting forth upon the great sea; ³and four large wild beasts, coming up out of the sea,—diverse, one from another:—⁴The foremost, like a lion, having, the wings of an eagle,—I looked until the wings thereof, were torn out, and it was lifted up from the earth, and, upon its feet, like a man, was it caused to stand, and, the heart of a man, was given to it. ⁵And, lo! another wild beast, a second, resembling a bear, and, on one side, was it raised up, with three ribs in its mouth, between its teeth,—and, thus, were they saying to it, Rise! devour much flesh. ⁶After that, I was looking, and lo! another like a leopard, and it, had four wings of a bird upon its back,—and four heads, had the wild beast, and dominion, was given to it, ⁷After that, I was looking in the visions of the night, when lo! a fourth wild beast, terrible and well-hipped and exceeding strong, and it had, large teeth of iron, it devoured and brake in pieces, and, the residue—with its feet, it trampled down,—and, it, was diverse from all the wild beasts that were before it, and it had, ten horns. ⁸I was considering the horns, when lo! another horn, a little one, came up among them, and, three of the former horns, were uprooted from before it,—and lo! eyes, like the eyes of a man, in this horn, and, a mouth, speaking great things. ⁹I continued looking, until that, thrones, were placed, and, the Ancient of days, took his seat,—whose, garment, like snow, was white, and, the hair of his head, like pure wool, his throne, was flames of fire, his wheels, a burning fire. ¹⁰A stream of fire, was flowing on and issuing forth from before him, a thousand thousand, waited upon him and, ten thousand times ten thousand, before him, stood up,—Judgment, took its seat, and, books, were opened. ¹¹I continued looking, then because of the sound of the great words which the horn was speaking, I continued looking, until that the wild beast, was slain, and his body destroyed, and given to the burning of the fire. ¹²As concerning the rest of the beasts, their dominion, was taken away,—but, a lengthening of life, was given to them, until time and season. ¹³I continued looking in the visions of the night, when lo! with the clouds of the heavens, one like a son of man, was coming,—and, unto the Ancient of days, he approached, and, before him, they brought him near; ¹⁴and, unto him, were given dominion and dignity and kingship, that all peoples, races and tongues, unto him, should do service,—his dominion, was an age-abiding dominion, which should not pass away, and, his kingdom, that which should not be destroyed. ¹⁵The spirit of, me, Daniel, was grieved in the midst of the sheath,—and, the visions of my head, terrified me. ¹⁶I drew near unto one of them who stood by, and made exact enquiry of him, concerning all this,—so he told me, and, the interpretation of the things, made he known unto me. ¹⁷These great wild beasts, which are four,—are four kings who shall arise out of the earth; ¹⁸but the holy ones of the Highest, shall receive the kingdom,—and shall possess the kingdom for the age, yea for the age of ages. ¹⁹Then desired I to be sure, concerning the fourth wild beast, which was diverse from all of them,—exceeding terrible, whose, teeth, were iron, and, his claws, of bronze, he devoured, brake in pieces, and, the residue—with his feet, he trampled down; ²⁰also concerning the ten horns, which were in his head, and the other, which came up, and there fell—from among them that were before it—three,—and this horn which had, eyes, and, a mouth, speaking great things, and, his look, was more proud than his fellows: ²¹I continued looking, when, this horn, made war with the holy ones,—and prevailed against them: ²²until that the Ancient of Days, came, and, justice, was granted to the holy ones of the Highest,—and, the time, arrived, that the holy ones should possess, the kingdom. ²³Thus, he said, The fourth wild beast, is a fourth kingdom which shall be in the earth, which shall be diverse from all the kingdoms,—and shall devour all the earth, and shall trample it down, and break it in pieces. ²⁴And, the ten horns of that kingdom, are ten kings who will arise,—and, another, will arise after them, and, he, will be diverse from the former ones, and, three kings, will he cast down; ²⁵and, words against the Most High, will he speak, and, the holy ones of the Highest, will he afflict,—and will hope to change times and law, and they will be given into his hand, for a season and seasons and the dividing of a season, ²⁶but, Judgment, will take its seat,—and, his dominion, will they take away, to destroy and make disappear unto an end. ²⁷And, the kingdom, and the dominion, and the greatness of the kingdoms under all the heavens, shall be given to the people of the holy ones of the Highest,—his kingdom, is an age-abiding kingdom, and, all the dominions, unto him, will render service, and show themselves obedient. ²⁸Hitherto is the end of the matter. As for me, Daniel, greatly did my thoughts terrify me, and, my bright looks, were changed upon me, but, the matter—in mine own heart, I kept.

⁸In the third year of the reign of Belshazzar the king, a vision, appeared unto me Daniel, after that which appeared unto me at the beginning. ²So then I saw, in the vision, and it came to pass, when I saw, that I was in Shusan the fortress, which is in Persia the province,—yea I saw it in a vision, when, I, was by the river Ulai. ³So then I lifted up mine eyes, and looked, and lo! a ram, standing before the river, and, it, had two horns,—and, the two horns, were high, but, the one, was higher than the other, and, the higher, had come up, last. ⁴I saw the ram, pushing strongly westward and northward and southward, so that no wild beast could stand before him, and none could deliver out of his hand,—but he did according to his own pleasure, and shewed himself great. ⁵Now, I, was observing, when lo! a he-goat, coming in out of the west, over the face of all the earth, but it meddled not with the earth,—and, the goat, had a conspicuous horn between his eyes. ⁶So then he came up to the ram having the two horns, which I had seen, standing before the river,—and ran unto him, in the fury of his strength. ⁷Yea I saw him coming close upon the ram, and he was enraged at him, and smote the ram, and brake in pieces both his horns, and there was no strength in the ram to stand before him,—but he cast him down to the ground, and trampled him underfoot, and there was none could deliver the ram out of his power. ⁸But, the he-goat, shewed himself very great,—and, when he had become mighty, the great horn, was broken in pieces, and there came up afterwards four, in its stead, towards the four winds of the heavens; ⁹and, out of the first of them, came forth a little horn,—which became exceedingly great, against the south and against the east, and against the beautiful land; ¹⁰yea it became great as far as the host of the heavens,—and caused to fall, to the earth, some of the host and some of the stars, and trampled them underfoot; ¹¹even as far as the ruler of the host, shewed he his greatness,—and, because of him, was taken away the continual ascending-sacrifice, and the place of the sanctuary, was cast down; ¹²and, a host, was set over the continual ascending-sacrifice, by transgression,—and faithfulness, was cast down, to the ground, and so he acted with effect, and succeeded. ¹³Then heard I a certain holy one, speaking,—and another holy one said to that certain holy one who was speaking—How long is the vision of the continual ascending-sacrifice as taken away, and the transgression which astoundeth, for both sanctuary and host to be given over to be trampled underfoot? ¹⁴And he said unto him, Until two thousand and three hundred evening-mornings,—then shall the sanctuary, be vindicated. ¹⁵And it came to pass, when, I Daniel, had seen the vision,—and had sought discernment, that lo! there was standing before me, as the appearance of a man. ¹⁶Then heard I a human voice, between the banks of the Ulai,—which cried out, and said, Gabriel! cause this man to understand the revelation. ¹⁷So he came near where I stood, and, when he came, I was terrified, and fell upon my face,—but he said unto me, Understand, O son of man, that, to the time of the end, belongeth the vision. ¹⁸And, when he spake with me, I fell stunned upon my face, to the earth,—but he touched me, and caused me to stand up where I was. ¹⁹Then said he, Behold me! causing thee to know, that which shall come to pass in the afterpart of the indignation,—for, at an appointed time, shall be an end. ²⁰The ram which thou sawest, having the two horns, representeth the kings of Media and Persia; ²¹and, the he-goat, is the king of Greece,—and, the great horn which was between his eyes, the same, is the first king. ²²Now, as for its being broken in pieces, whereupon there stood up four in its stead, four kingdoms, out of his nation, shall stand up, but not with his strength; ²³but, in the aftertime of their kingdom, when transgressions, have filled up their measure,—there will stand up a king of mighty presence, and skilful in dissimulation; ²⁴and his strength, will be mighty, but not through his own strength, and, wonderfully, will he destroy, and succeed and act with effect,—and will destroy mighty ones, and the people of holy ones; ²⁵and, by his cunning, will he both cause deceit to succeed in his hand, and, in his own heart, will he shew himself to be great, and, by their careless security, will he destroy many,—and, against the ruler of rulers, will he stand up, but, without hand, shall be broken in pieces. ²⁶Now, the revelation of the evening and the morning which hath been told, faithful, indeed it is,—but, thou, close up the vision, because it is for many days. ²⁷Now, as for me Daniel, then was I sick for days, but I arose and did the business of the king,—and, though I was confounded concerning the revelation, yet could no one discern it.

9In the first year of Darius son of Ahasuerus, of the seed of the Medes,—who was made king over the kingdom of the Chaldeans: ²in the first year of his reign, I, Daniel, perceived by the writings,—the number of the years, as to which the word of Yahweh came unto Jeremiah the prophet, to fulfil the desolations of Jerusalem, seventy years. ³So I set my face unto the Lord God, to seek him by prayer, and supplication,—with fasting, and sackcloth and ashes; ⁴yea I prayed unto Yahweh my God, and made confession,—and said—I beseech thee, O Lord, the GOD great and to be revered, keeping the covenant and the lovingkindness, to them who love him, and to them who keep his commandments. ⁵We have sinned and committed iniquity, and been guilty of lawlessness and been rebellious,—even departing from thy commandments, and from thy regulations; ⁶and have not hearkened unto thy servants the prophets, who spake in thy name, unto our kings, our rulers, and our fathers,—and unto all the people of the land. ⁷To thee, O Lord, belongeth righteousness, but, to us, the shame of faces, as at this day,—to the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and to all Israel, the near and the far off, throughout all the lands whither thou hast driven them, in their treachery, where-with they had been treacherous against thee. ⁸O Yahweh, to us, belongeth the shame of faces, to our kings, to our rulers, and to our fathers,—in that we have sinned against thee. ⁹To the Lord our God, belong compassions, and forgivenesses,—for we have rebelled against him; ¹⁰and have not hearkened unto the voice of Yahweh our God,—to walk in his instructions which he set before us, through means of his servants the prophets; ¹¹yea, all Israel, have transgressed thy law, even going away, so as not to hearken unto thy voice,—therefore, were poured out upon us, the curse and the oath which had been written in the law of Moses the servant of God, because we had sinned against him. ¹²Thus hath he confirmed his words which he had spoken against us, and against our judges who had judged us, by bringing in upon us a great calamity,—as to which there had not been done, under all the heavens, as hath been done unto Jerusalem. ¹³Even as written in the law of Moses, hath, all this calamity, come in upon us,—yet entreated we not the face of Yahweh our God, by turning away from our iniquities, and by getting intelligence in thy truth. ¹⁴Therefore hath Yahweh, kept watch, for the calamity, and brought it in upon us,—for righteous is Yahweh our God concerning all his deeds which he hath done, seeing that we had not hearkened unto his voice. ¹⁵Now, therefore, O Lord our God, who didst bring forth thy people out of the land of Egypt with a firm hand, and didst make for thyself a name, as at this day,—we have sinned, we have been guilty of lawlessness. ¹⁶O Lord! according to all thy righteousness, I beseech thee, let thine anger and thine indignation turn away from thy city Jerusalem, thy holy mountain,—for, by reason of our sins, and by reason of the iniquities of our fathers, Jerusalem and thy people, have become a reproach, to all who are round about us. ¹⁷Now, therefore, hearken, O our God, unto the prayer of thy servant, and unto his supplications, and let thy face shine, upon thy sanctuary, that is desolate,—for the sake of thy servants, O Lord. ¹⁸Incline, O my God, thine ear, and hearken, open thine eyes, and behold our desolations, and the city on which hath been called thy name; for, not on the ground of our own righteousnesses, are we causing our supplications to fall down before thee, but on the ground of thine abounding compassions. ¹⁹O Lord, hear! O Lord, forgive! O Lord, hearken and perform! Do not delay! For thine own sake, O my God, because, thine own name, hath been called, upon thy city, and upon thy people. ²⁰And, while yet I was speaking, and praying, and confessing mine own sin, and the sin of my people Israel,—and causing my supplication to fall down before Yahweh my God, concerning the holy mountain of my God; ²¹while yet I was speaking in prayer, then, the man Gabriel, whom I had seen in vision at the beginning, wearied with rapid flight, touched me, about the time of the evening present. ²²Yea he came, and spake with me,—and said—O Daniel! now, have I come forth, to teach thee understanding. ²³At the beginning of thy supplications, came forth a word, I, therefore, am arrived to tell, because, a man delighted in, thou art,—mark then the word, and have understanding in the revelation:— ²⁴Seventy weeks, have been divided concerning thy people and concerning thy holy city—to put an end to the transgression, and fill up the measure of sin, and put a propitiatory-covering over iniquity, and bring in the righteousness of ages, and affix a seal the vision and prophecy, and anoint the holy of holies. ²⁵Thou must know, then, and understand: From the going forth of the word to restore and to build Jerusalem—unto the Anointed One, the Prince, shall be seven weeks, and sixty-two weeks,—the Broadway and the wall, shall again be built, even in the end of the times. ²⁶And, after the sixty-two weeks, shall the Anointed One, be cut off, and have, nothing,—and, the city and the sanctuary, will one destroy with the Prince, and so will his own end come with an overwhelming flood, howbeit, up to the full end of the war, are decreed astounding things. ²⁷And he will confirm a covenant to the many, for one week,—but, in the middle of the week, will cause sacrifice and present to cease, and, in his stead, shall be the horrid abomination that astoundeth, even till, a full end, and that a decreed one, shall be poured out on him that astoundeth.

10In the third year of Cyrus, king of Persia, a matter, was revealed unto Daniel, whose name was called Belteshazzar; and faithful was the matter, but concerned a great warfare, and he marked the word, and had understanding in the revelation. ²In those days, I, Daniel, was mourning three sevens of days: ³food to delight in, did I not eat, neither flesh nor wine, came into my mouth, nor did I so much as, anoint, myself,—until were fulfilled three sevens of days. ⁴And, on the twenty-fourth day of the first month,—when, I, was by the side of the great river, the same, is Tigris, ⁵then lifted I up mine eyes, and looked, and lo! a man, clothed in linen,—whose loins, were girded with the bright gold of Uphaz; ⁶whose body, was like Tarshish-stone, and, his face, like the appearance of lightning, and, his eyes, were like torches of fire, and, his arms and his feet, like the look of bronze burnished,—and, the sound of his words, was like the sound of a multitude. ⁷And, I, Daniel, alone, beheld the revelation, and, the men who were with me, beheld not the revelation,—in truth, a great terror, had fallen upon them, and they had fled while hiding themselves. ⁸I, therefore, was left alone, and beheld this great revelation, and there remained in me no strength,—but, my freshness, was turned upon me into disfigurement, and I retained no strength. ⁹So then I heard the sound of his words,—and, when I heard the sound of his words, then, I myself, came to be in a deep sleep upon my face, with, my face, to the earth. ¹⁰And lo! a hand, touched me; and roused me up on my knees and the palms of my hands. ¹¹Then said he unto me, O Daniel! man greatly delighted in! have understanding in the words which, I, am about to speak unto thee, and stand up where thou art, for, now, have I been sent unto thee. And, when he had spoken with me this word, I stood up trembling. ¹²Then said he unto me, Do not fear, Daniel, for, from the first day that thou didst set thy heart to understand and to humble thyself before thy God, thy words were heard; and, I, am come, by reason of thy words. ¹³But, the ruler of the kingdom of Persia, withstood me twenty-one days, but lo! Michael, one of the chief rulers, came in to help me,—and, I, left him there, beside the kings of Persia. ¹⁴So then I am come to let thee understand that which shall befall thy people in the afterpart of the days,—for yet is the vision for those days. ¹⁵And, when he had spoken with me such words as these,—I set my face towards the earth, and was dumb. ¹⁶Then lo! like the similitude of the sons of men, one was touching my lips,—so I opened my mouth, and spake, and said unto him who was standing before me, O my lord! By the revelation, my pains have seized me, and I retain no strength. ¹⁷How then can the servant of this my lord speak with this my lord,—seeing that, as for me—henceforth, there remaineth in me no strength, and no, spirit, is left in me? ¹⁸Then again there touched me one like in appearance to a son of earth, and he strengthened me. ¹⁹And he said, Do not fear, O man greatly delighted in! peace to thee, be strong, yea be strong! And, as he spake with me, I gained strength, and said, Let my lord speak, for thou hast strengthened me. ²⁰And he said, Knowest thou wherefore I am come unto thee? But, now, must I return to fight with the ruler of Persia; I, therefore am going forth, and lo! the ruler of Greece, is coming. ²¹Howbeit I will tell thee that which is inscribed in the writing of truth,—but there is no one who holdeth strongly with me concerning these things, save Michael your ruler.

11I, therefore, in the first year of Darius the Mede, was at my station to strengthen and embolden him; ²and, now, the truth, I will tell thee:—Lo! there are, yet three kings, to arise—belonging to Persia, and, the fourth, will amass greater riches than they all, and, when he hath strengthened himself in his riches, the whole, will stir up, the kingdom of Greece. ³And so a hero king, will arise,—and wield great authority, and do according to his own pleasure; ⁴but, when he hath arisen, his kingdom, shall be broken in pieces, and be divided, toward the four winds of the heavens,—but not to his own posterity, nor according to his own authority which he wielded, for his kingdom, shall be uprooted, even for others besides these. ⁵But a king of the south, will become strong, even from among his rulers,—and will prevail against him, and have authority, a great authority, shall his authority be. ⁶And, at the end of years, they will league together, yea, the daughter of the king of the south, will go in unto the king of the north, to make peace, but she shall not retain strength of arm, neither shall he stand, nor his arm, but she shall be delivered up—she herself, and they who brought her in, and he who begat her, and he that strengthened her in the times. ⁷But one will stand up from the sprout of her roots, in his stead,—and he will enter the army, and enter into a fortress of the king of the north, and deal with them and shew himself strong; ⁸yea, even their gods, with their molten images, with their delightful vessels of silver and gold, with a host of captives, will he bring into Egypt,—and, he, will stand more, years, than the king of the north; ⁹so will the king of the south, enter into the kingdom, and then return unto his own soil. ¹⁰But, his sons, will rouse themselves to war, and gather together a multitude of large armies, but he will come on and on, and overflow and pass through,—and will return and wage war, up to his fortress. ¹¹Then will the king of the south, be enraged, and go forth and fight with him, with the king of the north,—and will raise a great multitude, but the multitude, will be delivered, into his hand. ¹²And, when he hath taken away the multitude, his heart, will he uplifted,—and he will cause

tens of thousands to fall, but will not conquer. ¹³Then will the king of the north again raise a multitude, greater than the first,—and, at the end of the times—some years, he will come on and on with a great army, and with great substance. ¹⁴And, in those times, many, will rise against the king of the south,—and, the sons of the oppressors of thy people, will exalt themselves to confirm the vision, but will be overthrown. ¹⁵Then will come in the king of the north, and cast up a rampart, and capture a city of strongholds,—and, the arms of the south, will not rise, nor the people of his chosen ones, and there shall be no strength to rise. ¹⁶So shall he that cometh against him do according to his own pleasure, and, none, shall stand before him,—therefore will he take his stand in the beautiful land, and it will languish and be exhausted in his hand. ¹⁷Then will he set his face to enter, with the might of all his kingdom, and, equitable terms with him, will make,—and, a daughter of women, will he give him to corrupt her, but she will not remain, nor, his, shall she become. ¹⁸Then will he turn his face to the Coastlands, and will capture many,—but a commander, will bring to an end, his reproach against himself, that, his reproach, return not unto him. ¹⁹Therefore will he turn his face towards the fortresses of his land,—but he shall stagger and fall, and shall not be found. ²⁰Then will rise up in his stead, one causing an exactor to pass through the ornament of the kingdom,—but, in a few days, shall he be broken in pieces, not with anger, nor in battle. ²¹Then will rise up in his stead, one despised, and they will not lay upon him the dignity of the kingdom,—but he will come in unexpectedly, and strengthen the kingdom by flatteries; ²²and, the arms of an overflowing flood, will sweep all before him, and they shall be broken in pieces,—moreover also, the prince of a covenant; ²³and, by reason of the leaguings against him, he will work deceitfully, and will come up and become strong, with a small nation. ²⁴Unexpectedly, even into the rich places of the province, will he enter, and will do what neither his fathers nor his father's fathers had done, prey and spoil and substance—among them, will he scatter,—and, against strongholds, will he devise plots even until a (convenient) time. ²⁵Then will he stir up his strength and his heart, against the king of the south, with a great army, and, the king of the south, will wage war, with a great and exceedingly mighty army,—but will make no stand, for they will devise against him plots; ²⁶and, they who have been eating his delicacies, will break him in pieces, and, his army, will he overwhelm like a flood,—and many wounded, will fall. ²⁷Now, as for the two kings, their heart, will be set on acting wickedly, and, at one table, will they speak, falsehood,—but it shall not succeed, for yet is the end for an appointed time. ²⁸So then he will return to his own land, with great substance, with, his heart, set upon a holy covenant; yea he will act with effect, and return to his own land. ²⁹At the appointed time, will he again enter the south,—but it shall not be like the former, nor like the latter. ³⁰Then will come in against him the ships of Cyprus, and he will be disheartened, and again have indignation against a holy covenant, and will act with effect,—and again gain intelligence, concerning them who are forsaking a holy covenant. ³¹And, arms, from him, will arise,—and will profane the sanctuary, the fortress, and will set aside the continual ascending-sacrifice, and place the horrid abomination that astoundeth. ³²And, them who are ready to deal lawlessly with a covenant, will he make impious by flatteries,—but, the people who know their God, will be strong and act with effect. ³³And, they who make the people wise, will impart understanding to the many,—yet shall they be brought low, by sword and by flame, by captivity and by prey, for some days; ³⁴but, when they are brought low, they shall be helped with a little help,—and many, will join themselves unto them, by flatteries; ³⁵and, of them who make wise, some shall be brought low, to refine them, and to purify and make white, up to the time of the end,—for yet is it for an appointed time. ³⁶And the king, will do according to his own pleasure, and will exalt himself, and magnify himself against every GOD, yea, against the GOD of GODS, will he speak wonderful things,—and will succeed, until exhausted is the indignation, for, what is decreed, must be done; ³⁷and, for the god of his fathers, will he have no regard, nor, for the delight of women, nor for any god, will he have regard,—for, against all, will he magnify himself. ³⁸Howbeit, to the god of the fortresses, in his place, will he give honour,—even to a god whom his fathers, knew not, will he give honour, with gold and with silver and with precious stones and with articles of delight. ³⁹And he will prepare, for the strongholds of the fortress of the sea, the people of an alien god, whom he will acknowledge—will greatly honour,—and will give them authority over the many, and, the soil, will he apportion for a price. ⁴⁰And, in the time of the end, will the king of the south, push at him, and the king of the north, will rush against him, with chariots and with horsemen, and with many ships,—and he will enter the lands, and overwhelm and pass over; ⁴¹yea he will enter the beautiful land, and, many lands, shall be laid low,—but, these, shall be delivered out of his hand, Edom and Moab, and the first portion of the sons of Ammon; ⁴²yea he will thrust forth his hand against the lands,—and, the land of Egypt, shall have no deliverance; ⁴³and he will have authority over the treasures of gold and silver, and over all the delightful things of Egypt,—with Libyans and Ethiopians among his followers; ⁴⁴but, tidings, will terrify him, out of the east, and out of the north,—therefore will he go forth with great fury, to destroy and to devote many; ⁴⁵and will plant his palace-home between the seas, towards the beautiful holy mountain, but shall come to his end, with none to help him.

¹²And, at that time, will Michael, the great ruler who standeth for the sons of thy people, make a stand, and there will be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation, up to that time,—and, at that time, shall thy people, be delivered, every one found written in the book; ²and, many of the sleepers in the dusty ground, shall awake,—these, shall be to age-abiding life, but, those, to reproach, and age-abiding abhorrence; ³and, they who make wise, shall shine like the shining of the expanse,—and, they who bring the many to righteousness, like the stars to times age-abiding and beyond. ⁴But, thou, Daniel, close up the words, and seal the book, until the time of the end,—many will run to and fro, and knowledge, shall abound. ⁵Then, I, Daniel, looked, and lo! two others, standing,—one on this side of the bank of the river, and one on that side of the bank of the river. ⁶And one said to the man clothed with linen, who was upon the waters of the river, How long shall be the end of the wonders? ⁷And I heard the man clothed with linen who was upon the waters of the river, when he held up his right hand and his left unto the heavens, and sware by him that liveth unto times age-abiding,—For a set time and times and a half, and, when the dispersion of a part of the holy people, is brought to an end, then shall come to an end all these things. ⁸And, I, heard, but could not understand,—so I said, O my lord! what shall be the issue of these things? ⁹Then said he, Go thy way, Daniel; for closed up and sealed are the words, until the time of the end. ¹⁰Many, will purify themselves and be made white and be refined, but the lawless, will act lawlessly, and none of the lawless, shall understand,—but, they who make wise, shall understand; ¹¹and, from the time of the taking away of the continual ascending-sacrifice, and the placing of the horrid abomination that astoundeth, shall be one thousand two hundred and ninety days. ¹²Happy! is he that waiteth, and attaineth to one thousand three hundred and thirty-five days. ¹³But, thou, go thy way to the end,—and thou shalt rest, and shalt rise to thy lot at the end of the days.

Hosea

¹The word of Yahweh which came unto Hosea son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, Hezekiah, kings of Judah,—and in the days of Jeroboam son of Joash, king of Israel. ²The beginning of the word of Yahweh with Hosea, was,—that Yahweh said unto Hosea, Go take thee a woman of unchastity, and the children of unchastity, for, unchastely indeed, hath the land been going away from following Yahweh. ³So he went and took Gomer, daughter of Diblaim,—and she conceived and bare him a son. ⁴Then said Yahweh unto him, Call his name Jezreel: for, yet a little, and I will visit the bloodshed of Jezreel upon the house of Jehu, and will cause to cease the kingdom of the house of Israel. ⁵And it shall come to pass, in that day, that I will break the bow of Israel, in the vale of Jezreel. ⁶Then conceived she again and bare a daughter, and he said to him, Call her name Lo-ruhamah "Uncompassionated" ,—for, not again any more, will I have compassion upon the house of Israel, that I should, forgive, them; ⁷but, on the house of Judah, will I have compassion, and I will save them, as Yahweh their God,—but will not save them by bow, or by sword, or by battle, by horses, or by horsemen. ⁸And, when she had weaned Lo-ruhamah, she conceived, and bare a son. ⁹Then said he, Call his name Lo-ammi,—for ye are Lo-ammi "No people of mine" , and, I, will not be yours. ¹⁰Yet shall the number of the sons of Israel become like the sand of the sea, which can neither be measured, nor numbered,—and it shall come to pass, in the place where it used to be said to them, No people of mine, are ye, it shall be said to them, Sons of a Living God! ¹¹Then shall the sons of Judah and the sons of Israel, gather themselves together, as one, and shall appoint them one head, and come up out of the earth,—for great shall be the day of Jezreel.

and suffer her to die of thirst; ⁴And, on her children, not have compassion,—because, the children of paramours, they are. ⁵For their mother, hath been unchaste, and she that conceived them, hath caused shame,—for she said, Let me go after my lovers! who used to give my bread, and my water, my wool, and my flax, mine oil, and my drink. ⁶Therefore, behold me! hedging up her way, with thorns,—and I will wall her in, and, her footpaths, shall she not find. ⁷And, when she shall pursue her lovers, and not overtake them, and shall seek them and not find, then will she say, Let me go my way now! and return unto my first husband, for it was better with me, then, than, now! ⁸But, she, owneth not, that, I, gave her—the corn, and the new wine and the oil,—silver, also increased I unto her, and gold— which they offered to Baal! ⁹Therefore, will I again take away my corn, in the time thereof, and my new wine, in the season thereof,—and will recover my wool and my flax given to hide her shame. ¹⁰Now, therefore, will I expose her unseemliness, before the eyes of her lovers,—and no, man, shall deliver her out of my hand! ¹¹And I will cause to cease all her mirth, her pilgrim-festival, her new moon and her sabbath,—and her every appointed meeting; ¹²And will lay waste her vine and her fig- tree, as to which she hath said, A present, are they for myself, which my lovers, have given me,—and I will make of them a thicket, and the wild beasts of the field shall devour them. ¹³So will I visit upon her the days of the Baals, unto whom she used to burn incense, and decked herself with her nose-ring and her jewelry, and went her way after her lovers,—whereas, me, she forgot, Declareth Yahweh. ¹⁴Therefore, lo! I, am going to persuade her, and, though I conduct her forth into wilderness, yet will I speak unto her heart. ¹⁵Then will I give to her her vineyards from thence, and the vale of Achor for a door of hope,—and she will respond there, as in the days of her youth, and as in the day when she came up out of the land of Egypt. ¹⁶And it shall come to pass, in that day, Declareth Yahweh, that she will call me Ishi, and will not call me any more, Baali. ¹⁷So will I take away the names of the Baals, out of her mouth,—and they shall not be called to mind any more, by their name. ¹⁸And I will solemnize to them a covenant, in that day, with the wild-beast of the field, and with the bird of the heavens, and the creeping thing of the ground,—and, bow

and sword and battle, will I break in pieces out of the land, so will I cause them to lie down, in security. ¹⁹And I will take thee unto myself, unto times age-abiding,—yea I will take thee unto myself, in righteousness and in justice, and in lovingkindness, and in abounding compassion: ²⁰Yea I will take thee unto myself, in faithfulness,—So shalt thou know Yahweh. ²¹And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will respond, Declareth Yahweh, I will respond to the heavens,—and, they, shall respond to the earth; ²²And, the earth, shall respond to the corn, and to the new wine and to the oil,—and, they, shall respond to Jezreel \fs15 ²³So will I sow her unto me in the land, and will have compassion upon the uncompassionated one,—and will say to him who was No-people-of-mine, My people, thou art, and, he, shall say, My God! \fs15 \fs15

³Then said Yahweh unto me, Once more, go love a woman who loveth a friend, and is an adulteress,—according to the love of Yahweh unto the sons of Israel, though they keep turning away unto other gods, and love idolatrous raisin-cakes. ²So I secured n her to me, for fifteen pieces of silver,—and a homer of barley, and a half-homer of barley; ³and I said unto her, Many days, shalt thou tarry for me, thou shalt not be unchaste, neither shalt thou become another man's,—moreover also, I, will tarry for thee. ⁴For, many days, shall the sons of Israel tarry, without king, and without ruler, and without sacrifice, and without pillar; and without ephod, or household gods. ⁵Afterwards, shall the sons of Israel return, and seek Yahweh their God, and David their king,—and shall turn with throbbing hearts unto Yahweh and unto his goodness, in the afterpart of the days.

⁴Hear the word of Yahweh, ye sons of Israel,—that, a controversy, hath Yahweh with the inhabitants of the land, because there is no faithfulness, nor lovingkindness, nor knowledge of God, in the land: ²Cursing and lying, and killing and stealing, and committing adultery, have broken forth, and, blood-shedding, unto blood-shedding, doth extend. ³For this cause, shall the land mourn, and everyone who dwelleth therein shall languish, with the wild beast of the field and with the bird of the heavens,—moreover also, the fishes of the sea, shall be withdrawn. ⁴Howbeit let, no man, contend, nor let him rebuke another,—since, thy people, are as they who contend against a priest: ⁵So shouldst thou stumble in the daytime, and even the prophet stumble with thee, in the night,—and I should destroy thine own mother. ⁶My people, are destroyed, for lack of knowledge. Because, thou, hast rejected knowledge, therefore will I reject thee from ministering as priest unto me, and, because thou hast forgotten the law of thy God, I also, will forget thy children. ⁷As they were magnified, so, they sinned against me,—My glory—for what was contemptible, did they exchange. ⁸The sin of my people, they do eat,—and, unto their iniquity, lift they up every man his desire. ⁹So doth it come to be—like people, like priest,—therefore will I visit upon him his ways, and, his doings, will I bring back to him; ¹⁰And they shall eat, and not be satisfied, they have encouraged unchastity, yet have not been making increase,—for unto, Yahweh, have they left off giving heed:— ¹¹Unchastity, and wine, and new wine, take away the heart. ¹²My people, of their Wood, do ask,—Let, their Staff, then tell them,—for, the spirit of unchastity, hath led them astray, and they have unchastely departed from under their God. ¹³On the headlands of the mountains, they sacrifice, and, on the hills, burn they incense, under oak and poplar and terebinth, because, pleasant, is the shade thereof: For this cause, do your daughters, become unchaste, and, your brides, commit adultery. ¹⁴I do not bring punishment upon your daughters when they become unchaste, nor upon your brides, when they commit adultery, for, the men themselves, with unchaste women, do seclude themselves, and, with the common women of the shrine, do offer sacrifice,—and, a people who will not discern, must be ruined. ¹⁵Though unchaste art thou, O Israel, let not Judah, become guilty, neither let them enter Gilgal, nor go up to Beth-aven, and then swear, By the life of Yahweh! ¹⁶For, as a heifer that is stubborn, hath Israel, been stubborn,—Now, can Yahweh, turn them out to pasture, like a young ram in a wide place? ¹⁷Mated with idols, is Ephraim, let him alone. ¹⁸Their drinking-bout, having passed,—they became, unchaste, they loved wildly, a contempt, became her great men. ¹⁹The wind hath bound her up in its wings,—that they may be ashamed, because of their sacrifices.

⁵Hear ye this—O priests, and attend, O house of Israel, and ye, House of the King, give ear, for, to you, pertaineth the sentence,—for, a snare, have ye been to Mizpah, and a net spread on Tabor. ²And, a slaughter, have apostates deeply designed,—though, I, was a rebuker to them all. ³I, have known Ephraim, and, Israel, hath not been hidden from me,—for, now, hast thou committed unchastity, O Ephraim, Israel, hath made himself impure. ⁴Their doings, will not suffer, them to return unto their God,—for, the spirit of unchastity, is within them, and, Yahweh, have they not known. ⁵Therefore will the Excellency of Israel, answer, to his face,—and, Israel and Ephraim, shall stumble in their iniquity, even Judah with them, hath stumbled. ⁶With their flocks and with their herds, will they go to seek Yahweh, but shall not find him; he hath withdrawn himself from them. ⁷With Yahweh, have they dealt treacherously, for, to alien children, have they given birth,—now, a new moon, shall devour them, with their portions. ⁸Blow ye a horn in Gibeah, a trumpet in Ramah,—sound an alarm at Beth-aven, behind thee, O Benjamin! ⁹Ephraim, shall become, a desolation, in the day of rebuke: Throughout the tribes of Israel, have I hide known what is sure. ¹⁰The rulers of Judah have become as they who remove a landmark. Upon them, will I pour out, like water, my wrath. ¹¹Oppressed, is Ephraim, crushed in judgment,—because he hath, wilfully, walked after falsehood. ¹²But, I, was like a moth, to Ephraim,—and like rotten wood to the house of Judah. ¹³When Ephraim, saw, his injury, and Judah his wound, then went Ephraim unto Assyria, and Judah sent unto a hostile king,—yet, he, cannot heal you, nor will the wound, remove from you. ¹⁴For, I, will be as a lion unto Ephraim, and as a young lion to the house of Judah,—I, I, will tear in pieces, and depart, I will carry off, and none be able to rescue. ¹⁵I will depart, will return unto my place! till what time they acknowledge their guilt, and seek my face,—In their trouble, will they make for me diligent search.

⁶Come, and let us return unto Yahweh! for, he, hath torn, that he might heal us,—smitten, that he might bind us up. ²He will bring us to life, after two days,—on the third day, will he raise us up, that we may live before him. ³Then let us know—let us press on to know—Yahweh, Like the dawn, is his coming forth assured,—that he may come like a down-pour upon us, like the harvest-rain, and the seed-rain of the land. ⁴What can I do unto thee, O Ephraim? What can I do unto thee, O Judah? for, your lovingkindness, is like a morning cloud, yea, like the dew, early departing! ⁵For this cause, have I hewn them in pieces by the prophets, I have slain them by the sayings of my mouth,—and, my justice, as a light goeth forth. ⁶For, lovingkindness, I desired, and not sacrifice,—and the knowledge of God, more than ascending-offerings. ⁷But, they, like Adam, have transgressed a covenant,—There, have they dealt treacherously with me. ⁸Gilead, is a city of workers of iniquity,—tracked with blood. ⁹And, like liars in wait for a man, in troops, is a band of priests, on the road, will they murder towards Shechem,—because, a shameful deed, they have done. ¹⁰In the house of Israel, have I seen a horrible thing,—there, the unchastity of Ephraim, defiled is Israel. ¹¹Judah too! a harvest is appointed for thee,—in that I will bring back the captivity of my people.

⁷When I would have brought healing to Israel, then was disclosed the iniquity of Ephraim, and the wicked doings of Samaria, for they have wrought falsehood,—when, a thief, would enter, a band roamed about, outside, ²And they say not to their own hearts, that, all their wickedness, I remember, now, have their doings, beset them about, right before my face, have they been done. ³By their wickedness, they gladden a king, and, by their flatteries,—rulers. ⁴They all, are adulterers, like an oven too hot for the baker,—who leaveth off stoking, after kneading the dough, till the whole be leavened. ⁵In the day of our king, the rulers, have made themselves ill, with the heat of wine,—he hath extended his hand with scoffers. ⁶For they have made ready, like an oven, their heart, by their lying in wait,—all the night, their baker sleepeth, in the morning, he, kindleth up as it were a blazing fire. ⁷They all, become hot as an oven, and devour their judges,—all their kings, have fallen, there hath been none among them crying unto me. ⁸As for Ephraim! with the peoples, hath he been mingling himself,—Ephraim, is a cake not turned. ⁹Foreigners have, eaten up, his strength, and, he, knoweth it not,—even gray hairs, are sprinkled upon him, and, he, knoweth it not. ¹⁰Therefore doth the Excellency of Israel, answer, to his face; yet have they not returned unto Yahweh their God, nor have they sought him, in spite of all this! ¹¹So then, Ephraim, hath become, like a simple dove, having no understanding, on Egypt, have they called, to Assyria, have they gone, ¹²Whithersoever they go, I will spread over them my net, like a bird of the heavens, will I bring them down, I will chastise them, by the time the report can reach the flock of them. ¹³Woe to them! for they have taken flight from me, destruction to them! for they have transgressed against me,—when, I, would have ransomed them, then, they, spake—concerning me—falsehoods. ¹⁴Neither made they outcry unto me, in their heart, although they kept on howling upon their beds, over corn and new wine, they gathered themselves together, they rebelled against me. ¹⁵When, I, had warned them, I strengthened their arm,—yet, against me, kept they on devising wickedness. ¹⁶They would return—not to him who is on high! They have become like a deceitful bow, their rulers, shall fall by the sword, for the rage of their tongue, this, shall be their derision in the land of Egypt.

⁸To thy mouth, with a horn! Like an eagle, on the house of Yahweh,—because they have violated my covenant, and, against my law, have they transgressed. ²Unto me, shall they make outcry, My God! we acknowledge thee— we , Israel! ³Israel hath cast away what is good,—an enemy, shall pursue him. ⁴They, have appointed kings, but not from me, have made rulers, but I have not acknowledged them: of their silver and their gold, they made themselves idols, to the end they might be cut off. ⁵He hath cast away thy calf, O Samaria, kindled is mine anger upon them,—How long shall they not endure to be innocent? ⁶For, of Israel, is even that thing! A craftsman, made it, and, a No-god, it is! For, into fragments, shall the Calf of Samaria be broken. ⁷For, to the wind, they sow, and, to the whirlwind, they reap: stalk, hath it none, That which shooteth forth, shall yield no meal, If so be it yield, foreigners, swallow it lip, ⁸Swallowed up, is Israel; Now, have they gone among the nations, like a vessel in which no man taketh, delight. ⁹For, they, have gone up to Assyria, A wild ass going alone for himself, is Ephraim! They have hired lovers! ¹⁰Even though they hire them among the nations, at once, will I gather them, when they have begun to be diminished by reason of the burden of the king of rulers. ¹¹Because Ephraim hath multiplied altars sinfully, they have become to him the altars of sin. ¹²I have been wont to write for him the myriad things of my law,—Like something alien, have they been accounted. ¹³My sacrificial gifts, have they been sacrificing as common flesh, and have eaten, Yahweh, hath not accepted them,—Now, will he call to mind their iniquity, that he may punish their sin, they, to Egypt, will return. ¹⁴And so Israel hath forgotten his Maker, and hath built temples, and, Judah, hath multiplied fortified cities,—Therefore will I send a fire upon his cities, and it shall consume the palaces thereof.

⁹Do not rejoice, O Israel, with exultation, like the peoples, for thou hast gone away unchastely from beside thy God,—thou hast loved a present, upon all the threshing-floors of corn! ²Threshing-floor and wine-vat, will not feed them, and, new wine, will deny them. ³They shall not dwell in the land of Yahweh, but Ephraim shall return to Egypt, and, in Assyria—that which is unclean, shall they eat. ⁴They shall not pour out to Yahweh—wine, neither shall they be pleasing to him, their sacrifices, are as the food of mourning to them, all that eat thereof, shall defile themselves, because, their food for their appetite, entereth not into the house of Yahweh. ⁵What will ye do, for the day of appointed meeting? and in the day of the festival of Yahweh? ⁶For, though they have gone from destruction, yet, Egypt, shall gather them, Memphis, shall bury them,—as for their silver favorites! thistles, shall possess them, thorns in their tents. ⁷Come are the days of visitation, come are the days of recompense, Let Israel know! The prophet is foolish, the man of the spirit doth rave, because of the greatness of thine iniquity, therefore great is the prosecution. ⁸The watchman of Ephraim, should have been with my God: As for the prophet, the snare of the fowler, is on all his ways, a prosecution awaiteth him, in the house of his God. ⁹They have deeply corrupted themselves, like the days of Gibeah: he will call to mind their iniquity, he will punish their sins. ¹⁰Like grapes in the desert, found I Israel, like the first-ripe in the fig-tree when it is young, saw I your fathers,—they, entered Baal-peor, and devoted themselves to the Shameful Thing, Then became their abominations like their lusts. ¹¹As for Ephraim! like a bird, did their glory, fly away,—no birth, and none with child, no conception. ¹²Yea, though they rear their children, yet will I make them childless, till there be no human being,—for it is, nothing less than woe, to them when I depart from them! ¹³Ephraim! just as I provided for Tyre, was planted in a meadow,—yet, Ephraim, must needs bring forth for a murderer his children. ¹⁴Give them, O Yahweh—what wilt thou give? Give them, a miscarrying womb, and breasts dried up. ¹⁵All their wickedness, is in Gilgal, yea, there, have I come to hate them, For the wickedness of their doings—out of my house, will I drive them forth,—no more will I love them, all their rulers, are unruly. ¹⁶Smitten is Ephraim, their root, hath dried up, fruit, shall they not bear,—yea, though they do bring forth, yet will I slay the darlings of their womb. ¹⁷My God will reject them, because they hearkened not unto him,—that they may become wanderers throughout the nations.

^{10A} luxuriant vine, is Israel, fruit, beseemeth him,—According to the abundance of his fruit, hath he brought abundance to the altars, according to the goodness of his land, hath he made goodly statues. ²Hypocritical is their heart, Now, shall they be held guilty,—He, will break down their altars, he will destroy their statutes. ³For, now, will they say, We have no king,—for we revere not Yahweh, and what could, a king, do for us? ⁴They have spoken words, swearing falsely, in solemnizing a covenant,—therefore shall judgment, spring up like a poisonous plant, on the ridges of the field. ⁵About the calves of Beth-aven, will the inhabitant of Samaria be concerned,—for the people thereof, have mourned over it, and, the ascetics thereof, who, over it, used to exult, shall mourn for the glory thereof, because it hath departed therefrom. ⁶Itself also, to Assyria, shall be borne along, as a present to a hostile king,—shame, shall Ephraim receive, that Israel, may be ashamed, of his own counsel. ⁷Silenced is Samaria: her king, is as a chip on the face of the waters, ⁸So shall the high places of Aven, be destroyed, the sin of Israel, Thorn and prickle, shall come up on their altars,—Therefore shall they say to the mountains, Cover us, and to the hills, Fall on us. ⁹Beyond the days of Gibeah, hast thou sinned, O Israel: there, came they to a stand, the battle against the sons of perversity, touched them not in Gibeah. ¹⁰When I please, then will I chastise them,—and there shall be gathered together against them—peoples, they being harnessed to their two Iniquities; ¹¹But, Ephraim, shall be a heifer broken in, loving to tread out corn, when, I, have passed over upon her fair neck,—I will drive Ephraim, Judah, shall plow, Jacob, shall harrow to him. ¹²Sow to yourselves in righteousness, reap ye at the bidding of lovingkindness, furrow to yourselves the newly-ploughed soil,—then will be the time to seek Yahweh, until he come, that he may rain down righteousness for you. ¹³Ye have plowed lawlessness, perversity, have ye reaped, ye have eaten the fruit of deception,—because thou didst trust in thy chariots, in the multitude of thy mighty men. ¹⁴Therefore shall there arise a tumult among thy peoples, and, all thy fortresses, shall be plundered, as Shalman plundered Beth-arbel, in the day of battle,—the mother, upon her children, dashed to the ground. ¹⁵Even so, hath Bethel, done to you, because of your exceeding wickedness,—in the dawn, shall the king of Israel be, utterly silenced.

¹¹When Israel was, a child, then I loved him,—and, out of Egypt, called I my son. ²They invited them,—at once, they departed from before me, they, to the Baals, sacrificed, and, to the images, offered incense. ³Yet, I, had taught Ephraim to walk, I used to take them upon mine arms,—But they acknowledged not that I had healed them. ⁴With human cords, used I to draw them, with the bands of love, so became I unto them like those who remove the yoke that was on their jaws,—and, holding out food to him, I let him eat. ⁵He was not to turn back into the land of Egypt, Howbeit, the Assyrian—he, became his king, for they refused to turn. ⁶Therefore shall the sword, rage, in his cities, and make an end of his multitudes, and consume them,—because of their counsels. ⁷But, my people, are bent towards turning from me, though upwards they call them, none of them can lift them. ⁸How can I give thee up, Ephraim? abandon thee Israel? How can I make thee as Admah? set thee as Zeboim? Mine own heart, turneth against me, at once, are kindled my compassions. ⁹I cannot execute the glow of mine anger, I cannot turn to destroy Ephraim,—for, GOD, am, I, and not man, When thou drawest near, I am a Holy One, though I do not enter a city. ¹⁰After Yahweh, let them go, Like a lion, will he roar,—When, he, shall roar, then let sons, come trembling, out of the West. ¹¹Let them come trembling like a small bird out of Egypt, and like a dove out of the land of Assyria,—so will I cause them to dwell by their own houses, Declareth Yahweh. ¹²They have compassed me about—with denial, Ephraim, with deceit, the house of Israel,—but, Judah, hath, again and again, run riot with GOD, though, with the holy places, entrusted.

12Ephraim, feedeth on wind, and pursueth the east wind, all the day, falsehood and force, doth he magnify,—and, a covenant with Assyria, would they solemnize, and, oil into Egypt, must be borne along. ²But, a controversy, hath Yahweh with Judah,—so that he may bring punishment on Jacob, according to his ways, According to his doings, repay him. ³In the womb, took he his brother by the heel; and, in his manly vigour, strove he with God: ⁴Yea he strove against a Messenger, and prevailed, he wept, and made supplication unto him,—At Bethel, he found him, and, there, he spake with us; ⁵And, Yahweh, is God of host,—Yahweh, is his memorial. ⁶Thou, therefore, by thy God, shalt return,—lovingkindness and justice, do thou keep, so wait thou for thy God, continually. ⁷A trafficker! in his hand, are balances of deceit, to oppress, he loveth. ⁸So then Ephraim said, Surely I have gotten me riches, I have found wealth for myself,—in all my toils, they cannot find in me perversity which is sin. ⁹But, I, Yahweh, have been thy God, from the land of Egypt,—I will yet make thee dwell in tents, as in the days of appointed meeting. ¹⁰And I will lay my word upon the prophets, yea, I myself, have magnified, vision,—and, by the hand of the prophets, will I use similitudes. ¹¹If, Gilead, is in sorrow, surely false, have they been, In Gilgal, have they sacrificed, bullocks,— their very altars, shall become as heaps upon the furrows of the field. ¹²When Jacob fled to the country of Syria, then Israel served for a wife, and, for a wife, he watched over a flock. ¹³And, by a prophet, Yahweh, brought up, Israel out of Egypt,—and, by a prophet, was he watched over. ¹⁴Ephraim hath provoked, very bitterly,—his own blood, therefore, upon him, will he leave, and, his reproach, shall his Lord, bring back to him.

13When Ephraim, spake, there was terror, exalted was, he, in Israel,—but, when he became guilty with Baal, then he died. ²Now, therefore they go on to sin, and have made them a Molten Thing out of their silver, after the notion of idols, the workmanship of craftsmen, all of it! Of them, are they saying—Ye sacrificers of men! The Great Calf, shall ye surely kiss! ³Therefore, shall they become like the morning cloud, and like the dew early departing,—like chaff storm-driven out of the threshing-floor, and like smoke out of a chimney. ⁴Yet, I, Yahweh, have been thy God from the land of Egypt,—and, god beside me, shalt thou not acknowledge, for, saviour, is there none besides me. ⁵I, tended thee in the desert,—in a land parched with drought: ⁶Whenever they were pastured, then were they satisfied, They were satisfied, and their heart, was lifted up,—because of this, they forgot me. ⁷Therefore am I become to them as a lion,—As a leopard by the way, do I watch. ⁸I will fall upon them as a bear bereaved, and will read asunder the enclosure of their heart,—that I may devour them there, like a lioness, the wild beast of the field, shall tear them in pieces. ⁹It hath utterly destroyed thee, O Israel, for it was against me, as thy helper! ¹⁰Where is thy king, then, that he may save thee throughout all thy cities? and thy judges, concerning whom thou saidst, Oh give me a king and rulers? ¹¹I might give thee a king in mine anger, and take him away in my wrath. ¹²Bound up, is the iniquity of Ephraim, stored away, his sin. ¹³The pangs of a woman in labour, shall overtake him,—he, is a son, not wise, for, now, he cannot stand still, when children are about to be born. ¹⁴Out of the hand of hades, will I ransom them, out of death, will I redeem them,—Where is thy pestilence, O death? Where thy plague, O hades? Repentance, shall be hid from mine eyes. ¹⁵Though, he, among brethren, be fruitful, there shall come in an east wind, the blast of Yahweh out of the desert coming up, that his spring, may dry up, and his fountain, be exhausted, he, will rob the treasure-house of all the vessels of delight. ¹⁶Samaria, shall be held guilty, for she hath rebelled against her God, By the sword, shall they fall, their infants, shall be dashed to the ground, and, his women with child, shall be ripped up.

14Return thou, O Israel, unto Yahweh thy God,—for thou hast stumbled by thine iniquity. ²Take with you words, and return to Yahweh: say unto him—Wholly, shalt thou take away iniquity, Accept, then, with favour, and we will make good the boldness of our lips! ³Assyria, shall not save us, Upon horses, will we not ride, neither will we say any more—Our god! to the work of our own hands! For, in thee, shall the fatherless, find compassion. ⁴I will heal their apostacy, I will love them freely,—for mine anger, hath turned, from them. ⁵I will become as the dew unto Israel, he shall break forth as the lily,—and he shall strike his roots as Lebanon: ⁶His branches, shall spread, that, like an olive-tree, may be his fresh beauty,—and his fragrance, like Lebanon. ⁷They who dwell in his shade shall again show life like the corn, and break forth as the vine,—and, the remembrance of him, shall be like the wine of Lebanon. ⁸Ephraim saith —What to me any more are idols? I, have answered, and have closely observed him, I, am like a fir-tree that is green, From me, is thy fruit found. ⁹Who is wise, that he may understand these things? intelligent, that he may take knowledge of them? For, straightforward, are the ways of Yahweh, and, the righteous, shall travel therein, but, transgressors, shall stumble therein.

Joel

¹The word of Yahweh, which came unto Joel, son of Pethuel.
²Hear this, ye elders, and give ear, all ye inhabitants of the land,—hath this ever happened in your days? or in the days of your fathers? ³Concerning it, to your children, tell ye the story,—and your children, to their children, and their children, to the generation following:— ⁴That which was left by the creeping locust, hath the swarming locust eaten, and, that which was left by the swarming locust, hath the grass locust eaten; and, that which was left by the grass locust, hath the corn locust eaten. ⁵Awake, ye drunkards, and weep, and howl, all ye drinkers of wine,—over the new wine, because it hath been cut off from your mouth. ⁶For, a nation, hath come up over my land, bold, and without number,—his teeth, are the teeth of a lion, and, the fangs of a lioness, hath he! ⁷He hath turned my vine to a waste, and my fig-tree to splinters,—he hath, barked it clean, and cast it down, bleached are its branches. ⁸Wail thou, like a virgin girded with sackcloth, for the owner of her youth. ⁹Cut off are the meal-offering and the drink-offering, from the house of Yahweh,—In grief are the priests, the attendants on Yahweh:— ¹⁰Laid waste is the field, in grief is the soil,—for laid waste is the corn, abashed is the new wine, languisheth the oil. ¹¹Turn pale, ye husbandmen, howl, ye vinedressers, over the wheat, and over the barley,—for perished is the harvest of the field. ¹²The vine, is abashed, and, the fig-tree, languisheth,—pomegranate, palm also, and apple—all the trees of the field, have withered, Yea abashed is gladness, away from the sons of men. ¹³Gird yourselves and beat the breast—ye priests, howl, ye attendants of the altar, go in and wrap yourselves for the night in sackcloth, ye attendants on my God,—for, withholden from the house of your God, are the meal-offering and the drink-offering. ¹⁴Hallow ye a fast, Call a solemn assembly, Gather, O elders, all the inhabitants of the land, unto the house of Yahweh your God,—and make ye outcry unto Yahweh. ¹⁵Alas for the day! For near is the day of Yahweh, and, as a veritable Destruction from the Destroyer, shall it come. ¹⁶Is it not, before our eyes, that, food, hath been cut off? From the house of our God, rejoicing and exultation. ¹⁷Rotted hath the seed, under their clods, Laid waste are their stores, Thrown down are the garners,—Yea abashed is the corn. ¹⁸How do the beasts groan! Perplexed are the herds of oxen, because there is no pasture for them,—even, the flocks of sheep, are destroyed! ¹⁹Unto thee, O Yahweh, will I cry,—for, a fire, hath consumed the pastures of the wilderness, and, a flame, hath set ablaze all the trees of the field. ²⁰Even the beasts of the field, moan unto thee,—because dried up are the channels of water, and, a fire, hath devoured the pastures of the wilderness.

²Blow ye a horn in Zion, sound an alarm in my holy mountain, let all the inhabitants of the land, tremble,—for coming is the day of Yahweh, for it is near!— ²A day of obscurity and deep gloom, a day of cloud, and thick darkness, as dusk, spread over the mountains,—a people, many and bold, like whom, hath not been from age-past times, and, after whom, shall not be again unto the years of generation after generation. ³Before him, hath a fire, devoured, and, after him, shall a flame, consume,—As the garden of Eden, is the land before him, but, after him, a desert most desolate, Moreover also, escape, giveth he none. ⁴As the appearance of horses, is his appearance, and, as war-horses, so, shall they run: ⁵Like the noise of chariots on the tops of the mountains, shall they rattle along, like the noise of a flame of fire, devouring dry straw,—like a people bold, arrayed for battle. ⁶Because of him, shall peoples', be in anguish,—all faces, have withdrawn their colour. ⁷Like heroes, shall they run, like men of war, shall they mount a wall,—and, every one—along his own road, shall they march along, and shall not change their paths; ⁸Nor, against each other, shall they strike, Each—on his own highway, shall they march,—though, in among the weapons, they fall, they shall not stop. ⁹Upon the city, shall they leap, on the wall, shall they run, up the houses, shall they climb,—through the windows, shall they enter, like a thief, ¹⁰Before him, hath quaked the earth, have trembled the heavens,—the sun and the moon, have become dark, and, the stars, have withdrawn their shining; ¹¹And, Yahweh, hath uttered his voice, before his host, for great indeed is his camp, for bold is he who executeth his word,—for great is the day of Yahweh, and awful exceedingly, Who then shall endure it? ¹²Even now, therefore, urgeth Yahweh, Turn ye unto me, with all your heart,—and with fasting and with weeping, and with lamentation;

¹³And rend your heart, and not your garments, turn therefore, unto Yahweh your God,—for, gracious and full of compassion, is he, slow to anger, and abundant in loving-kindness, and will grieve over calamity. ¹⁴Who knoweth, he may turn and grieve,—and leave behind him, a blessing, a meal-offering and a drink-offering, to Yahweh your God? ¹⁵Blow ye a horn, in Zion,—hallow a fast, call a solemn assembly: ¹⁶Gather the people, hallow a convocation, collect the elders, gather the children, and the sucklings of the breasts,—let the bridegroom, come forth, from his chamber, and the bride from her bower: ¹⁷Between the porch and the altar, let the priests, weep, the attendants of Yahweh,—and let them say—Look with pity, O Yahweh, upon thy people, and do not deliver thine inheritance to reproach, that the nations, should mock them, Why should they say among the peoples, Where is their God? ¹⁸And Yahweh became jealous for his land,—and took pity on his people; ¹⁹Then answered Yahweh, and said to his people:—Behold me! sending you the corn, and the new wine and the oil, so shall ye be satisfied therewith; and I will not make you, any more, a reproach among the nations. ²⁰And, the Northerner, will I remove far from you, and drive him into a land parched and desolate, with, his face, toward the eastern sea, and, his rear, toward the hinder sea,—then shall come up his ill odour, yea his stench, shall ascend, because he hath shown himself great in doing. ²¹Be not thou afraid, O soil,—exult and rejoice, because Yahweh, hath shown himself great, in doing. ²²Be not afraid, ye beasts of the field, for sprouted have the pastures of the wilderness,—for, the tree, hath borne its fruit, the fig-tree and the vine, have yielded their wealth. ²³Ye sons of Zion, then, exult and be glad in Yahweh your God, for he hath given you the seed-rain, in right manner,—Yea he hath caused to descend for you a down-pour, of seed-rain and of the harvest-rain in the first month; ²⁴So shall the threshing-floors, be filled, with corn,—and the vats, overflow, with new wine and oil. ²⁵Then will I make good to you the years which were eaten by the swarming locust, the grass locust, and the corn locust and the creeping locust,—even my great army, which I sent among you. ²⁶And ye shall eat and eat, and be satisfied, and shall praise the name of Yahweh your God, who hath dealt with you wondrously,—so shall my people, not be abashed, unto times age-abiding. ²⁷So shall ye know that, in the midst of Israel, I am, and that, I, Yahweh, am your God, and none else,—and my people, shall not be abashed, unto times age-abiding. ²⁸And it shall come to pass, afterwards, I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters, shall prophesy,—your old men, shall dream, dreams, your young men, shall see, visions; ²⁹Moreover also, upon the servants and upon the handmaids—in those days, will I pour out my spirit; ³⁰And I will set forth wonders in the heavens, and in the earth,—blood, and fire, and columns of smoke: ³¹The sun, shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood,—before the coming of the great and awful day of Yahweh. ³²And it shall come to pass, whosoever, shall call on the name of Yahweh, shall be delivered,—For in Mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, shall be a delivered remnant, just as Yahweh hath said, and among the survivors, whom Yahweh doth call.

3For lo! in those days, and at that time,—when I shall bring back the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem, ²Then will I gather all the nations, and bring them down into the Vale of Jehoshaphat,—and will enter into judgment with them there, concerning my people, and mine inheritance Israel, whom they scattered among the nations, and, my land, they apportioned; ³And, for my people, they cast lots,—and gave a boy for a harlot, and a girl sold they for wine—and drank. ⁴Moreover also, what have, ye, to do with me, O Tyre and Zidon, and all the circuit of Palestine? A recompense, are ye paying back unto me? But, though ye should make a recompense unto me, swiftly, speedily, would I return your recompense upon your own head. ⁵Because, my silver and my gold, ye took away,—and, my richly beautiful things, carried ye into your temples; ⁶And, the sons of Judah and the sons of Jerusalem, ye sold to the sons of Greece,—that they might be far removed from their own boundary. ⁷Behold me! rousing them up out of the place whither ye sold them,—So will I bring back your dealing upon your own head. ⁸And I will sell your sons and your daughters into the hand of the sons of Judah, and they will sell them to Sabeans, unto a nation afar off,—for, Yahweh, hath spoken. ⁹Proclaim ye this, among the nations, Hallow a war, rouse the mighty ones, let them draw near, come up, all the men of war! ¹⁰Beat your plough-shares into swords, and your pruning-hooks into spears,—as for the weak, let him say, mighty, I am. ¹¹Give help—and come in, all ye nations on every side, and gather yourselves together,—Thither, bring down, O Yahweh, thy mighty ones! ¹²Let the nations, be roused, and come up, into the Vale of Jehoshaphat,—for, there, will I sit to judge all the nations, on every side. ¹³Thrust ye in the vintage knife, for, grown ripe, is the vintage,—Go in, tread down, for full is the winepress, flow over do the vats, for abundant is their wickedness. ¹⁴Multitudes, multitudes, in the vale of strict decision,—for near is the day of Yahweh, in the vale of strict decision. ¹⁵The sun and the moon, have become dark,—and, the stars, have withdrawn their shining, ¹⁶And, Yahweh, out of Zion, will roar, and, out of Jerusalem, will utter his voice, and the heavens and the earth, shall tremble,—but, Yahweh, shall be a shelter to his people, and a refuge to the sons of Israel. ¹⁷So shall ye know that, I, Yahweh, am your God, making my habitation in Zion my holy mountain,—So shall, Jerusalem, be, holy, and, foreigners, shall pass through her no more. ¹⁸And it shall come to pass in that day, that the mountains shall drip sweet wine, and the hills shall flow down with milk, and, all the channels of Judah, shall flow down with waters,—and, a spring, out of the house of Yahweh, shall come forth, and shall water the torrent-valley of the acacias. ¹⁹Egypt, to a desolation, shall be turned, and, Edom, to a desert most desolate, shall be changed,—because of the violence done to the sons of Judah, in that they shed innocent blood in their land. ²⁰But, Judah, age-abidingly, shall remain, and, Jerusalem, to generation after generation. ²¹And I will free from their blood-guiltiness them whom I had not freed,—for, Yahweh, is about to make his habitation in Zion.

Amos

¹The words of Amos, who was among the herdmen of Tekoa,—of which (words) he had vision concerning Israel, in the days of Uzziah king of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam son of Joash, king of Israel, two years before the earthquake. ²So then he said—Yahweh, out of Zion, will roar, and, out of Jerusalem, will utter his voice,—and the pastures of the shepherds, shall mourn, and the top of Carmel, be dried up. ³Thus, saith Yahweh, Because of three transgressions of Damascus, and because of four, will I not turn it back,—Because, with threshing instruments of iron, they have threshed Gilead. ⁴Therefore will send a fire, into the house of Hazael,—which shall devour the palaces of Ben- hadad; ⁵And I will break the bolt of Damascus, and cut off the inhabitant out of the plain of Aven, and the holder of the sceptre out of the house of Eden,—and the people of Syria, shall be exiled, unto Kir, saith Yahweh. ⁶Thus, saith Yahweh, Because of three transgressions of Gaza, and because of four, will I not turn it back,—Because of their taking into exile the whole body of exiles, to deliver to Edom, ⁷Therefore will I send a fire upon the wall of Gaza,—which shall devour the palaces thereof; ⁸And I will cut off the inhabitant out of Ashdod, and the holder of the sceptre out of Ashkelon,—and will turn my hand against Ekron, So shall perish the remnant of the Philistines, saith My Lord, Yahweh. ⁹Thus, saith Yahweh, Because of three transgressions of Tyre, and because of four, will I not turn it back,—Because of their delivering up the whole body of exiles to Edom, and they remembered not the brotherly covenant, ¹⁰Therefore will I send a fire upon the wall of Tyre,—which shall devour the palaces thereof. ¹¹Thus, saith Yahweh, Because of three transgressions of Edom, and because of four, will I not turn it back,—Because he pursued, with the sword, his brother, and stifled his compassions, and his anger tare in pieces evermore, and, his indignation, kept watch perpetually, ¹²Therefore will I send a fire into Teman,—which shall devour the palaces of Bozrah. ¹³Thus, saith Yahweh, Because of three transgressions of the sons of Ammon, and because of four, will I not turn it back,—Because of their ripping up the pregnant women of Gilead, that they might enlarge their own boundary, ¹⁴Therefore will I kindle a fire upon the wall of Rabbah, which shall devour the palaces thereof,—with a war-cry in the day of battle, with tempest in the day of storm-wind; ¹⁵And Milcom shall go into exile,—he and his rulers together, saith Yahweh.

²Thus, saith Yahweh, Because of three transgressions of Moab, and because of four, will I not turn it back,—Because he burned the bones of the King of Edom to lime, ²Therefore will I send a fire into Moab, which shall devour the palaces of Kerioth—and Moab, shall die with tumult, with war- cry, with the sound of a horn; ³And I will cut off the judge out of her midst, and, all her rulers, will I slay with him, saith Yahweh. ⁴Thus, saith Yahweh, Because of three transgressions of Judah, and because of four, will I not turn it back,—Because they have rejected the law of Yahweh, and, his statutes, have not kept, but their falsehoods, have led them astray, after the which their fathers, did walk, ⁵Therefore will I send a fire upon Judah,—which shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem. ⁶Thus, saith Yahweh, Because of three transgressions of Israel, and because of four, will I not turn it back,—Because they have sold—for silver—the righteous, and the needy—for a pair of shoes: ⁷Who strive to bring the dust of the earth on the head of the poor, and, the way of the oppressed, they pervert,—Yea, a man and his own father, go in unto the maid, to profane my holy Name! ⁸And, on pledged garments, they recline, beside every altar,—and, exacted wine, do they drink, in the house of their God. ⁹Yet it was, I, who destroyed the Amorite, from before them, whose height was, like the height of cedars, and, strong, was he, like the oaks,—but I destroyed his fruit above, and his roots beneath. ¹⁰And it was, I, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt,—and led you in the desert, forty years, to take possession of the land of the Amorites; ¹¹And I raised up, of your sons, for prophets, and, of your young men, for Nazirites,—Was it not even so, ye sons of Israel? Demandeth Yahweh; ¹²And yet ye caused the Nazirites to drink wine,—and, on the prophet, laid ye command, saying, Ye shall not prophesy! ¹³Lo! I, am pressed under you,—as a full cart is pressed by its sheaves, ¹⁴Therefore shall flight, perish, from the swift, and, the mighty, shall not invigorate his strength,—nor shall, the hero, escape with his life; ¹⁵Nor, he that handleth the bow, make a stand, and, the swift on his feet, shall not escape,—nor, he that rideth on a horse, escape with his life: ¹⁶Nay, he that is stout in his heart, among heroes, naked, shall flee, in that day, Declareth Yahweh.

³Hear ye this word, which Yahweh hath spoken, concerning you, ye sons of Israel,—concerning the whole family which I brought up out of the land of Egypt saying:—²Only you, have I acknowledged, of all the families of the ground, For this cause, will I visit upon you all your iniquities. ³Can two walk together,—except they meet? ⁴Will a lion roar in the forest, when, prey, he hath none? Will a young lion utter his voice out of his den, when he hath made no capture? ⁵Will a bird fall upon a net to the earth, when there is no, snare, for it? Will a net rise front the ground, when it hath, captured nothing? ⁶Or a horn be blown in a city, and, a people, not tremble? Or calamity happen in a city, and, Yahweh, not have wrought with effect? ⁷Surely My Lord Yahweh, will do, nothing,—except he have disclosed his secret unto his servants, the prophets! ⁸A lion, hath roared, Who will not fear? My Lord Yahweh, hath spoken, Who can forbear to prophesy? ⁹Announce it over the palaces in Ashdod, and over the palaces in the land of Egypt,—and say ye—Gather yourselves together upon the mountains of Samaria, and behold ye—the great disorders in the midst thereof, and the oppressed within her. ¹⁰Therefore do they not know how to do right, Declareth Yahweh, who are treasuring up violence and spoil in their palaces. ¹¹Therefore—Thus, saith My Lord, Yahweh, An adversary! Yea round about the land,—and he who shall bring down, from thee, thy strength, And spoiled shall be thy palaces. ¹²Thus, saith Yahweh, Just as a shepherd rescueth, out of the mouth of the lion, a couple of shankbones, or the tip of an ear, so, shall be rescued the sons of Israel, who are tarrying in Samaria, in the corner of the divan, and on the damask of the luxurious couch. ¹³Hear ye and bear witness, throughout the house of Jacob,—Commandeth My Lord, Yahweh, God of hosts: ¹⁴That, in the day I visit the transgressions of Israel upon him, then will I punish, concerning the altars of Bethel, So shall the horns of the altar, be broken off, and they shall fall to the ground; ¹⁵And I will smite the winter house along with the summer house,—and the houses of ivory, shall be destroyed! and the great houses, shall disappear, Declareth Yahweh.

⁴Hear ye this word, ye heifers of Bashan, that are in the mountain of Samaria, who oppress the poor, who crush the needy,—who say to their lords, Bring in, and let us drink! ²Sworn hath My Lord, Yahweh, by his own holiness, That lo! days, are coming upon you,—when he will take you away with hooks, and your followers with fishhooks; ³And, through fissures, shall ye go out, every woman, straight before her,—and ye shall be thrust forth towards the castle, Declareth Yahweh. ⁴Enter ye Bethel, and transgress, At

Gilgal, cause transgression, to abound,—Yea, carry in, every morning, your sacrifices, every three days, your tithes; ⁵Yea, burn thou incense, of that which is leavened, as a thank-offering, and proclaim ye freewill-offerings, let them be known,—for, so, ye love to have it, ye sons of Israel, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh. ⁶Moreover also, I, have given you cleanness of teeth throughout all your cities, and want of bread throughout all your dwelling-places,—Yet have ye not returned unto me, Declareth Yahweh. ⁷Moreover also, I, have withholden from you the abundant rain, when yet there were only three mouths to the harvest, Or I might rain upon one city, and, on another city, might not rain,—One portion, would be rained upon, and, the portion whereupon it should not rain, would be dried up; ⁸Then would two or three cities totter to one city to drink water, without being satisfied,—Yet have ye not returned unto me, Declareth Yahweh. ⁹I have smitten you with blight and with mildew, When your gardens and your vineyards and your fig-trees and your olive-trees have increased, the creeping locust would devour them,—Yet have ye not returned unto me, Declareth Yahweh. ¹⁰I have sent among you pestilence, in the manner of Egypt, I have slain, with the sword, your young men, and therewith have been taken captive your horses, And I have caused to ascend—the stench of your camps, even into your own nostrils, Yet ye have not returned unto me, Declareth Yahweh. ¹¹I have made an overthrow among you, like the divine overthrow of Sodom arid Gomorrah, and ye have become like a brand snatched out of the burning,—Yet hate ye not returned unto me, Declareth Yahweh. ¹²Therefore, thus, will I do unto thee, O Israel,—Because this thing I will do unto thee, Prepare to meet thy God, O Israel. ¹³For lo! He that fashioned the mountains, and created the wind, and who telleth the son of earth what is his thought, who turneth dawn into darkness, and marcheth upon the high places of the earth, Yahweh, God of hosts, is his name!

⁵Hear ye this word, which, I, am taking up concerning you—even a dirge, O house of Israel. ²She hath fallen—she cannot again rise, the virgin, Israel,—she lieth forsaken on her soil, there is none to raise her up. ³For, thus, saith My Lord, Yahweh, The city that goeth out a thousand strong, shall have left it a hundred,—And, that which goeth out a hundred strong, shall have left it ten, belonging to the house of Israel. ⁴For, thus, saith Yahweh, to the house of Israel,—Seek me, and live; ⁵Then do not seek Bethel, and, Gilgal, shall ye not enter, and, unto Beer-sheba, shall ye not cross over, For, Gilgal, shall, surely go into exile, and, Bethel, shall become a trouble. ⁶Seek ye Yahweh, and live,—lest he break forth, like a fire, upon the house of Joseph, and it devour with none to quench it, for Bethel. ⁷Ye who turn, into, wormwood, justice, and, righteousness—to the ground have let fall. ⁸Seek him who made the Cluster and the Giant, and turneth, into morning, the shadow of death, and who, day into night, doth darken, Him who calleth to the waters of the sea, and poureth them out on the face of the land, Yahweh, is his name: ⁹Him who flasheth force on the strong,—and, force, on the fortress, alighteth! ¹⁰They hate the man who, in the gate, rebuketh,—and, him who speaketh truthfully, they abhor. ¹¹Therefore—because ye have trampled on the poor, and, the gift of corn, ye would take away from him, though, houses of hewn stone, ye have built, Yet shall ye not dwell in them,—Though, delightful vineyards, ye have planted, Yet shall ye not drink the wine of them. ¹²For I know how numerous are your transgressions, and how surpassing your sins,—ye adversaries of the righteous! ye acceptors of a bribe! Even the needy in the gate, have they turned away! ¹³Therefore, the prudent man, at that time, will be dumb,—Because an evil time, it is! ¹⁴Seek ye right and not wrong, that ye may live,—that, so, Yahweh God of hosts, may be with you, as ye have said. ¹⁵Hate wrong, and love right, and station, Justice, in the gate,—Peradventure, Yahweh, God of hosts, will be gracious unto the remnant of Joseph. ¹⁶Therefore, thus, saith Yahweh, God of hosts, My Lord, In all broadways, shall be lamentation, and, in all streets, shall they say, Alas! Alas! And they shall call the husbandman unto the mourning, and, unto the lamentation, them who know a wailing song; ¹⁷Ye, in all vineyards, lamentation,—For I will pass along through thy midst, saith Yahweh. ¹⁸Alas for them who are longing for the day of Yahweh,—What good to you, is the day of Yahweh? it, being darkness and not light: ¹⁹As if a man should flee from the face of a lion, and there should meet him—a bear! or he should have entered the house, and leaned his hand upon the wall, and there should bite him—a serpent! ²⁰Shall not the day of Yahweh be, darkness, and not light? yea, thick darkness and no brightness in it? ²¹I hate, I despise your festivals,—and can scent no fragrance in your solemn feasts. ²²Nay, though ye cause to ascend unto me ascending-sacrifices, and your meal-offerings, I will not accept them,—nor, the peace-offering of your fat heifers, will I regard. ²³Take thou away from me, the noise of thy songs,—Even the melody of thy harps, will I not hear. ²⁴But let, justice, roll along like water,—and, righteousness, as a torrent over flowing. ²⁵The sacrifices and meal-offering, ye brought near unto me, in the desert, for forty years O house of Israel; ²⁶But ye carried the tent of your king-idol, and your Saturn-images,—the star of your gods, which ye made for yourselves: ²⁷Therefore will I carry you into exile beyond Damascus,—saith Yahweh, God of hosts, is his name.

of the Philistines, are they better than these kingdoms? or their boundary larger than your boundary? ³Ye who are putting far away the day of calamity,—but bringing near the abode of violence: ⁴Who are lying on beds of ivory, and sprawling on their couch of pleasure,—and eating the well-fed of the flock, and the fatted calves out of the midst of the stalls: ⁵Who are bawling at the bidding of the harp,—like David, have they invented for themselves instruments of song: ⁶Who are quaffing bowls of wine, and, with the best of oils, anointing themselves,—and are not afflicted for the injury of Joseph:— ⁷Therefore, at once, shall they go into exile among the first of the exiles,—so shall be disturbed the revelry of sprawlers. ⁸Sworn hath the Lord, Yahweh, by his own life, Declareth Yahweh, God of hosts, abhorring am I, the grandeur of Jacob, and, his palaces, I hate,—therefore will I cast off the city and the fulness thereof. ⁹And it shall come to pass, though there be left remaining ten men in one house, yet shall they die; ¹⁰And a man's near of kin, even he who is about to burn the bones, shall carry him out of the house, when he shall say to him that is in the hinder parts of the house—Are there yet any with thee? and he shall say—No one. Then shall he say—Hush! for we must not invoke the name of Yahweh. ¹¹For lo! Yahweh, is giving command, and will smite the great house into ruins,—and the little house with clefts. ¹²Shall horses run upon crag? or will a man plough there with oxen? For ye have turned to poison the sentence of justice, and the fruit of righteousness, to wormwood: ¹³Who rejoice in a thing of nought,—who say, Have we not by our own strength, taken to ourselves horns? ¹⁴For behold me! raising up against you, O house of Israel, Declareth Yahweh, the God of hosts—a nation! And they shall crush you, from the entering in of Hamath, unto the torrent-bed of the waste plain.

⁷Here, My Lord, Yahweh gave me to see, and lo! he was preparing the locust, in the beginning of the shooting up of the after-grass,—and lo! after-grass, cometh after the mowings for the king. ²And it came to pass, when they had made an end of eating the herbage of the land, that I said—Oh, My Lord, Yahweh, forgive, I beseech thee: By whom shall Jacob, arise? for, small, he is. ³Grieved was Yahweh, over this,—It shall not be, said Yahweh? ⁴Here, My Lord, Yahweh gave me to see, and lo! My Lord Yahweh proclaiming that, the controversy should be settled by fire,—which, having devoured the mighty roaring deep, should devour the inheritance. ⁵Then said I, My Lord, Yahweh, forbear, I beseech thee, By whom shall Jacob, arise? for, small, he is. ⁶Grieved was Yahweh, over this,—Even this, shall not be, said My Lord, Yahweh. ⁷Here, he gave me to see, and lo! My Lord, stationed upon a pinnacle,—and, in his hand a plummet. ⁸And Yahweh said unto me, What canst thou see, Amos? And I said, A plummet,—Then said My Lord, Behold me! fixing a plummet in the midst of my people

Israel, I will not again any more forgive him. ⁹So shall the high places of Isaac, be made desolate, and, the holy places of Israel, be laid waste,—and I will rise up, against the house of Jeroboam, with the sword. ¹⁰Then sent Amaziah, the priest of Bethel, unto Jeroboam king of Israel, saying: A conspiracy hath Amos, raised against thee, in the midst of the house of Israel, The land, is not able to endure, all his words; ¹¹For, thus, saith Amos, By the sword, shall Jeroboam, die,—and, Israel, shall, surely be exiled, from off his own soil. ¹²Then said Amaziah unto Amos, O seer, go flee thee away unto the land o Judah—and eat, there, bread, and, there, mayest thou prophesy; ¹³But, at Bethel, not again, any more, mayest thou prophesy,—for, the holy place of the king, it is, and, the house of the kingdom, it is. ¹⁴Then answered Amos, and said unto Amaziah, No prophet, was I,—nor the son of a prophet, was I,—but, a herdsman, was I, and a preparer of sycamore fruit; ¹⁵But Yahweh, took me away, from following the flock,—and Yahweh, said unto me, Go prophesy against my people Israel. ¹⁶Now, therefore, hear thou the word of Yahweh,—Thou art saying, Thou must not prophesy concerning Israel, nor let thy word drop down upon the house of Isaac. ¹⁷Therefore—Thus, saith Yahweh, Thy wife, in the city, will commit unchastity, and, thy sons and thy daughters, by the sword, shall fall, and, thine own soil, by line, shall he apportioned,—and, thou, on a polluted soil, shalt die, and, Israel, shall, surely go into exile, away front his own soil.

⁸Here, My Lord, Yahweh, gave me to see,—and lo! there was a basket of summer fruit. ²So then he said, What canst thou see, Amos? And I said, A basket of summer fruit. Then said Yahweh unto me, The end hath come unto my people Israel, I will not again any more forgive them; ³but palace-songs, shall become howlings, in that day, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh,—Many shall be the dead bodies in every place—cast forth— with a hush! ⁴Hear this, ye who pant after the needy, and to make an end of the oppressed of the land: ⁵Who say, When will the new moon, pass away, that we may sell corn? and the sabbath that we may open grain? who diminish the ephah, and increase the shekel, and who falsify by deceitful weights: ⁶Who buy—for silver—the poor, and the needy for a pair of shoes,—and that the refuse of the grain we may sell. ⁷Sworn hath Yahweh, by the Excellency of Jacob,—Surely I will never forget any of their doings! ⁸Is it not, for this, that the land, shall tremble? and shall mourn every inhabitant therein? Shall it not come up—like the Nile, all of it, and be tossed and subside like the river of Egypt? ⁹Yea it shall come to pass, in that day, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, that I will cause the sun to go in at high noon,—and will darken the earth on a day of brightness! ¹⁰So will I turn your festivals into mourning, and all your songs into a dirge, and I will bring up—on all loins—sackcloth, and upon every head—baldness,—and I will make it like the mourning for an only one, even the afterpart thereof, as a day of bitterness. ¹¹Lo! days are coming, Declareth My Lord, Yahweh, that I will send a hunger throughout the land,—not a hunger for food, nor a thirst for water, but for hearing the words of Yahweh; ¹²Therefore shall men rove about—from sea to sea, and from the north even unto sunrise,—they shall run to and fro—seeking the word of Yahweh, but shall not find it. ¹³In that day, shall the fair virgins and the choice young men faint for thirst. ¹⁴They who swear by the Guilt of Samaria, and say, As thy God, liveth, O Dan! and, As the Way of Beer-sheba, liveth, shall fall, and shall not rise any more.

⁹I saw My Lord stationed by the altar, and he said—Smite the capital—that the sills, may tremble, Yea break them off on the head of them all, and, the last of them, with the sword, will I slay,—He that fleeth of them, shall not flee away, and he that escapeth of them, shall not make good his escape. ²Though they break through into hades, from thence, shall my hand fetch them,—and, though they ascend the heavens, from thence, will I bring them down; ³And, though they hide themselves in the top of Carmel, from thence, will I search for them and take them,—and, though they conceal themselves from before mine eyes at the bottom of the sea, from thence, will I command the serpent and he shall bite them; ⁴And, though they go into captivity before their enemies, from thence, will I command the sword, and it shall slay them,—So will I set mine eyes upon them for calamity, and not for blessing. ⁵Now, My Lord, Yahweh of hosts, is he—who toucheth the earth, and it melteth, and all that dwell therein, mourn; and it cometh up like the Nile, all of it, and subsideth like the river of Egypt: ⁶Who buildeth, in the heavens, his upper rooms, and, as for his vault, upon the earth, hath he founded it,—who calleth to the waters of the sea, and poureth them out over the face of the land, Yahweh, is his name. ⁷Like the sons of the Ethiopians, are not ye, unto me, O sons of Israel? Demandeth Yahweh: Was it not, Israel, I brought up out of the land of Egypt, and the Philistines out of Caphtor, and the Syrians out of Kir? ⁸Lo! the eyes of My Lord, Yahweh, are on the sinful kingdom, and I will destroy it from off the face of the ground,—save only that I will not, utterly destroy, the house of Jacob, Declareth Yahweh. ⁹For lo! I am giving command, and will sift, throughout all the nations, the house of Israel,—as grain is sifted in a sieve, yet shall there not fall a kernel, to the earth. ¹⁰By the sword, shall die all the sinners of my people,—who say, The calamity, shall not overtake and close in before us. ¹¹In that day, will I raise up the pavilion of David, that is lying prostrate,—and wall up the breaches of them, and, his ruins, will I raise up, and will build it, as in the days of age-past times:

¹²That they on whom my name hath been called, may take possession, of the residue of Edom and of all the nations, Declareth Yahweh, who executeth this. ¹³Lo! days are coming, Declareth Yahweh, that, the plowman, shall overtake, the reaper, and, he that treadeth out the grapes, him that traileth the seed,—so shall, the mountains, drip sweet wine, and, all the hills, shall melt; ¹⁴And I will bring back the captivity of my people Israel, and they shall build waste cities, and inhabit them, and plant vineyards, and drink the wine thereof, and lay out gardens, and eat the fruit thereof: ¹⁵So will I plant them upon their own soil,—and will not uproot them any more from off their own soil, which I have given to them, saith Yahweh thy God.

Obadiah

¹The vision of Obadiah,—Thus, saith My Lord, Yahweh, concerning Edom—A rumour, have we heard from Yahweh, and, a herald, throughout the nations, hath been sent, Up! and let us rise against her to war. ²Lo! small, have I made thee, among the nations—Despised art thou exceedingly! ³The insolence of thy heart, hath deceived thee, O thou that inhabitest the retreats of the crag, the height of his habitation,—that saith in his heart, Who shall bring me down to the ground? ⁴Though thou build high like an eagle, and though, among the stars, thou set thy nest, from thence, will I bring thee down, Declareth Yahweh. ⁵If, thieves, had come to thee, if robbers by night—how ruined thou art! Would they not have stolen what sufficed them? If, grape-gatherers, had come to thee, Would they not have left gleanings? ⁶How have the things of Esau been searched out! his treasures been sought up! ⁷Up to the boundary, have they sent thee—All thy covenant men, they have deceived thee, prevailed against thee—the men thou wast wont to salute,—The partakers of thy bread, have put a net under thee—No understanding in him! ⁸Shall it not be, in that day, Demandeth Yahweh,—That I will destroy the wise men out of Edom, and understanding out of Mount Esau? ⁹So shall thy mighty men, O Teman, be dismayed,—to the intent that every man, may be cut off, out of Mount Esau, by slaughter. ¹⁰For thy violence against thy brother Jacob, shall shame, cover thee,—so shalt thou be cut off, to times age-abiding. ¹¹In the day when thou didst take thy stand over against him, in the day when foreigners took captive his forces,—and, aliens, entered his gates, and, over Jerusalem, cast lots, even thou, wast like one of them! ¹²Do not, then, look with satisfaction upon the day of thy brother, upon the day of his calamity, Neither rejoice over the sons of Judah—in the day of their ruin,—nor enlarge thy mouth—in the day of distress: ¹³Do not enter into the gate of my people—in the day of their misfortune, Do not, thou also, look with satisfaction on his misery—in the day of his misfortune; neither do thou thrust thy hands on his substance—in the day of his misfortune; ¹⁴Neither do thou stand at the parting of the way, to cut off his fugitives,—neither do thou deliver up his survivors—in the day of distress. ¹⁵For, near, is the day of Yahweh, upon all the nations,—Just as thou hast done, shall it be done to thee, Thy dealing, shall come back upon thine own head. ¹⁶For, as ye have drunk on my holy mountain, all the nations shall drink continually,—Yea they shall drink and swallow down, and shall be, as though they had not been. ¹⁷But, in Mount Zion, shall be a delivered remnant which shall be holy,—and the house of Jacob shall possess their own possessions; ¹⁸And the house of Jacob shall be a fire, and the house of Joseph a flame, with the house of Esau for stubble, So shall they kindle upon them, and devour them,—and there shall be no survivor to the house of Esau, for, Yahweh, hath spoken. ¹⁹Then shall they of the South possess Mount Esau, and they of the Lowlands, the Philistines, and they of the Mountain shall possess the field of Ephraim, and the field of Samaria,—and Benjamin shall possess Gilead; ²⁰And, they of the captivity of this force pertaining to the sons of Israel, shall possess that of the Canaanites, up to Zarephath, and, they of the captivity of Jerusalem who are in Sepharad, shall possess the cities of the South. ²¹And saviours shall come up in Mount Zion, to judge the mountain of Esau,—So shall the kingdom, belong unto Yahweh.

Jonah

1And the word of Yahweh came unto Jonah son of Amitai, saying: ²Arise, get thee to Nineveh the great city, and proclaim unto it,—that their wickedness, hath come up, before me. ³But Jonah arose to flee unto Tarshish, away from the presence of Yahweh,—and went down to Joppa, and found a ship going to Tarshish, so he paid the fare thereof, and went down into it, to go with them to Tarshish,, away from the presence of Yahweh. ⁴But, Yahweh, hurled a great wind against the sea,—and, there arose a mighty tempest in the sea,—and, the ship, thought to be broken in pieces, ⁵Then were the mariners, afraid, and made outcry every man unto his own god, and they hurled the wares which were in the ship, into the sea, to lighten it of them,—but, Jonah, had gone down into the hinder parts of the vessel, and had lain down, and fallen into a sound sleep. ⁶Then drew near unto him the shipmaster, and said to him, What meanest thou, O sound sleeper? Arise, cry unto thy God, Peradventure God will bethink himself of us, that we perish not. ⁷And they said—every one unto his fellow, Come, and let us cast lots, that we may get to know for whose sake this calamity is upon us. So they cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonah. ⁸Then said they unto him, Tell us, we pray thee, for whose sake this calamity is upon us? What is thy business? and from whence comest thou? what is thy country? and of what people art thou? ⁹And he said unto them, A Hebrew, am I,—and, Yahweh, the God of the heavens, do, I, revere, him who made the sea, and the dry land. ¹⁰Then did the men revere with great reverence, and said unto him, What is it thou hast done? For the men knew that, away from the presence of Yahweh, he was fleeing,—for he had told them. ¹¹Then said they unto him, What shall we do to thee, that the sea may cease raging over us? For, the sea, was raging more and more. ¹²And he said unto them, Take me up, and hurl me into the sea, that the sea may cease raging over you,—for I do know that, for my sake, is this great tempest upon you. ¹³Nevertheless the men, wrought hard, to bring it back unto the land, but could not,—for, the sea, was raging over them more and more. ¹⁴Then cried they unto Yahweh, and said, Ah now, Yahweh, pray let it not be that we perish for this man's life, neither lay upon us innocent blood,—for, thou, O Yahweh, as thou hast pleased, hast ever done. ¹⁵So they took up Jonah and hurled him into the sea,—and the sea, left off, her roaring. ¹⁶Then did the men revere Yahweh with a great reverence,—and offered sacrifice to Yahweh, and vowed vows. ¹⁷Now Yahweh had appointed a great fish, to swallow up Jonah,—and Jonah was in the belly of the fish, three days and three nights.

2Then prayed Jonah, unto Yahweh, his God,—out of the belly of the fish; ²and said—I cried—out of my distress—unto Yahweh, and he answered me,—Out of the belly of hades, called I, Thou didst hear my voice. ³For thou hast cast me into the deep, into the heart of the seas, and, a flood, enveloped me,—All thy breakers and thy rolling waves, over me, passed. ⁴And, I, said, I am driven out from before thine eyes,—Yet will I again have regard unto thy holy temple: ⁵The waters, encompassed me, to the peril of my life, The roaring deep, enveloped me,—The seaweed, was wrapped about my head: ⁶To the roots of the mountains, went I down, As for the earth, her bars, were about me, age-abidingly,—Then didst thou bring up—out of the pit—my life, O Yahweh my God. ⁷When my soul, darkened itself over me, Yahweh, I remembered,—and my prayer, came in unto thee, unto thy holy temple. ⁸They who take heed to the vanities of falsehood, do, their own lovingkindness, forsake. ⁹But, I, with the voice of praise, will sacrifice unto thee, What I have vowed, I will pay,—Salvation, belongeth to Yahweh! ¹⁰So then Yahweh spake unto the fish,—and it vomited out Jonah, upon the dry land.

him with sackcloth, and sat on ashes. ⁷And he caused an outcry to be made—and said—throughout Nineveh, By decree of the king and of his great men, Be it known:—Man and beast, herd and flock, Let them taste, nothing, let them not feed, and, water, let them not drink: ⁸Let both man and beast, cover themselves with sackcloth, and let them cry unto God, mightily,—Yea let them turn, every man from his wicked way, and from the violence which is in their hands: ⁹Who knoweth whether God himself—may turn and grieve,—and turn away from the glow of his anger, that we perish not? ¹⁰And God saw their doings, that they turned from their wicked way,—and God was grieved over the calamity which he had spoken of executing upon them, and executed it not.

⁴And it was vexing unto Jonah, with a great vexation,—and it angered him. ²So he prayed unto Yahweh, and said—Ah now! Yahweh! Was not, this, my word, while I was yet upon mine own soil? For this cause, did I hasten to flee unto Tarshish,—because I knew that, thou, art a GOD of favour and compassion, slow to anger, and abundant in lovingkindness, and art grieved over calamity. ³Now, therefore, O Yahweh, take, I pray thee, my life from me,—for it were better for me, to die, than, to live. ⁴Then said Yahweh, Art thou rightly angry? ⁵But Jonah, went forth, out of the city, and abode on the east side of the city; and made for himself there, a hut, and sat under it, in the shade, until he should see what would become of the city. ⁶Now Yahweh God appointed a gourd, and caused it to come up over Jonah, that it might be a shade over his head, to deliver him from his vexation,—and Jonah rejoiced over the gourd, with great rejoicing. ⁷But God appointed a worm, at the uprisings of the dawn, the next day,—and it smote the gourd, that it withered. ⁸And it came to pass, at the breaking forth of the sun, that God appointed a sultry east wind, and the sun smote upon the head of Jonah, that he became faint,—and asked his life, that he might die, and said, It were better for me, to die, than, to live. ⁹Then said God unto Jonah, Art thou rightly angry over the gourd? And he said, I am rightly angry, unto death. ¹⁰Then said Yahweh, Thou, wouldest have spared the gourd, for which thou hadst not toiled, neither hadst thou made it grow,—which, as the off-spring of a night, came up, and, as the offspring of a night, perished; ¹¹And was not, I, to spare Nineveh, the great city,—wherein are more than twelve times ten thousand human beings, who cannot discern between their right hand and their left, besides much cattle?

Micah

¹The word of Yahweh which came unto Micah the Morashtite, in the days of Jotham, Ahaz, Hezekiah, kings of Judah,—of which he had vision concerning Samaria, and Jerusalem:—
²Hear ye peoples, all of you, Hearken, O earth and the fulness thereof,—and let My Lord Yahweh be among you for a witness, My Lord out of his holy temple. ³For lo! Yahweh, coming forth out of his place,—that he may descend, and march along upon the high places of the earth. ⁴Then shall the mountains be melted beneath him, and, the valleys, be cleft,—as wax before the fire, as waters poured out in a steep place. ⁵For the transgression of Jacob, is all this, and for the sin of the house of Israel,—Whose is the transgression of Jacob? Is it not Samaria's? And whose is the sin of Judah? Is it not Jerusalem? ⁶Therefore will I make of Samaria a heap in a field, the plantings in a vineyard,—and I will pour down, into the valley, her stones, and, her foundations, will I lay bare; ⁷And, all her images, shall be beaten in pieces, and, all her rewards for unchastity, shall be burned in the fire, and, all her idols, will I make a desolation,—for, out of the reward of unchastity, she gathered them, and, unto the reward of unchastity, shall they return. ⁸For this cause, will I lament and howl, I will go stript and bare,—I will make a lamentation, like the wild dogs, and a mourning, like ostriches. ⁹For dangerous are her wounds,—for she hath come as far as Judah, she hath reached as far as the gate of my people, as far as Jerusalem. ¹⁰In Gath, do not tell, in Accho, do not weep,—in Beth-l'aphrah, roll yourselves in dust. ¹¹Pass thou over (for you), thou inhabitress of Shaphir, of disgraceful disclosure,—the inhabitress of Zaanan, hath not gone forth, at the lamentation of Beth-ezel, shall he take from you his station, ¹²Though the inhabitress of Maroth waited for blessing,—yet there came down calamity from Yahweh, to the gate of Jerusalem. ¹³Bind the chariot to the steed, O inhabitress of Lachish,—the beginning of sin, was she to the daughter of Zion, for, in thee, have been found the transgressions of Israel. ¹⁴Therefore, shalt thou give a dismissal, against Moresheth-gath,—The houses of Achzib, served for a deception to the kings of Israel. ¹⁵The time shall yet be when, the heir, I will bring unto thee, O inhabitress of Mareshah,—as far as Adullam, shall enter the glory of Israel. ¹⁶Make thee bald, and cut off thy hair, for the children of thy pleasures,—enlarge thy baldness, like a vulture, for they are exiled from thee.

⁴But it shall come to pass, in the afterpart of the days, that the mountain of the house of Yahweh shall be, set up, as the head of the mountains, and, exalted, shall it be, above the hills,—and peoples, shall stream thereunto; ²Yea many nations, shall go, and say—come ye, and let us ascend unto the mountain of Yahweh, and unto the house of the God of Jacob, that he may teach us of his ways, and we may walk in his paths,—for, out of Zion, shall go forth a law, and, the word of Yahweh, out of Jerusalem; ³And he will judge between many peoples, and be umpire to strong nations far and wide,—and they will beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks, Nation—against nation—shall not lift up sword, neither shall they learn—any more—to make war. ⁴And they shall dwell—every man—under his own vine and under his own fig-tree, with none to make them afraid,—for, the mouth of Yahweh of hosts, hath spoken. ⁵For, all the peoples, walk, every man in the name of his god,—we, therefore, will walk in the name of Yahweh our God, to times age-abiding and beyond. ⁶In that day, Declareth Yahweh, will I take up her teat is lame, and, her that hath been an outcast, will I carry,—even whomsoever I have afflicted; ⁷And will make of her that was lame a residue, and of her that was removed far away a strong nation,—and Yahweh, shall be king, over them, in Mount Zion, from henceforth, even unto times age-abiding. ⁸Thou, therefore, O Migdal-eder, mound of the daughter of Zion, as far as thee, shall it come,—so shall arrive the chief dominion, the kingdom of the daughter of Jerusalem. ⁹Meanwhile, wherefore shouldst thou cry out aloud? King, is there none within thee? or hath, thy counselor, perished? for labour, hath seized thee, as a woman in child-birth:— ¹⁰Be in labour, and bear, O daughter of Zion, as a woman in child-birth,—for, meanwhile, shalt thou go forth out of the city, and dwell in the field, and shalt come as far as Babylon, there, shalt thou be delivered, there, will Yahweh, redeem thee, out of the grasp of thine enemies. ¹¹Meanwhile, therefore, shall be gathered against thee many nations,—who are saying—Let her be defiled, and let our eyes gaze upon Zion. ¹²But, they, know not the purposes of Yahweh, neither have they discerned his counsel,—for he hath gathered them, as sheaves, to a threshing-floor. ¹³Arise and thresh, O daughter of Zion, for, thy horn, will I make to be iron, and, thy hoofs, will I make to be bronze, so shalt thou beat in pieces many peoples,—and shalt devote to Yahweh their unrighteous gain, and their substance, to the Lord of all the earth.

⁵Meanwhile, shalt thou gather together in troops, thou daughter of a troop, siege, hath he laid against us,—with a sceptre, will they smite on the cheek, the judge of Israel! ²Thou, therefore, Bethlehem Ephrathah, though, little, to be among the thousands of Judah, out of thee, shall Mine come forth, to be ruler in Israel,—whose comings forth, have been from of old, from the days of age-past time. ³Therefore, will he give them up, until the time when, one who is to bring forth, hath brought forth,—and, the remainder of his brethren, return unto the sons of Israel. ⁴Then shall he stand, and tend his flock in the strength of Yahweh, In the excellency of the name of Yahweh his God, have they endured,—For, now, shall he be great unto the ends of the earth; ⁵So shall this one be Prosperity. As for Assyria—when he shall enter our land, and when he shall tread down in our palaces, then will we raise up against him, seven shepherds, and eight princes of mankind. ⁶Then shall they shepherd the land of Assyria with the sword, and the land of Nimrod in the entrances thereof,—So shall he deliver from Assyria, when he shall enter our land, and when he shall tread down within our bounds. ⁷And, the remnant of Jacob, shall be, in the midst of many peoples, as dew from Yahweh, as myriad drops on plants,—which tarrieth not for man, nor waiteth for the sons of Adam. ⁸And, the remnant of Jacob, shall be among the nations, in the midst of many peoples, as a lion among the beasts of the jungle, as a young lion among flocks of sheep,—who, if he passeth by, both treadeth down—and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver. ⁹Let thy hand be uplifted against thine adversaries,—and, all thine enemies, shall be cut off. ¹⁰And it shall come to pass, in that day, Declareth Yahweh, That I will cut off thy horses out of thy midst,—and will destroy thy chariots; ¹¹And will cut off the cities of thy land,—and will pull down all thy fortresses; ¹²And will cut off incantations, out of thy hand,—and, users of hidden arts, shalt thou not have; ¹³And I will cut off thine images and thy pillars out of thy midst,—and thou shalt not bow thyself down, any more, to the work of thine own hands; ¹⁴And I will uproot thy Sacred Stems out of thy midst,—and will destroy thy cities: ¹⁵Then will I execute, with anger and with indignation, vengeance upon the nations,—of which they have not heard.

⁶Hear, I pray you, what, Yahweh, is saying,—arise thou, maintain thy controversy before the mountains, and let the hills hear thy voice:—²Hear, ye mountains, the controversy of Yahweh, and ye lasting rocks, the foundations of the earth,—for, a controversy, hath Yahweh, with his people, and, with Israel, will he dispute. ³O my people! what have I done to thee? and wherein have I wearied thee? Testify thou against me! ⁴For I brought thee up out of the land of Egypt, and, out of the house of slaves, I ransomed thee,—and I sent before thee, Moses, Aaron and Miriam. ⁵O my people! remember, I pray you, what Balak king of Moab, counseled, and what Balaam son of Beer, answered him,—from the Acacias as far as Gilgal, that ye may know the righteousness of Yahweh. ⁶Wherewith, shall I come before Yahweh? bow myself to God on high? Shall I come before him with ascending-sacrifice? with calves of a year old? ⁷Will Yahweh, be pleased, with thousands of rams? with myriads of torrents of oil? Shall I give my firstborn for my transgression? the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul? ⁸He hath told thee, O son of earth, what is good,—what then is, Yahweh, seeking of thee, but, to do justice, to delight in lovingkindness, and humbly to walk with thy God? ⁹The voice of Yahweh, to the city, crieth out, With safety for him who regardeth his name,—Hear ye the rod, and who hath appointed it. ¹⁰Even yet, are there, in the house of the lawless one, the treasures of lawlessness,—and the scant measure—accurst? ¹¹Shall I be pure with lawless balances? or with bag of deceitful weights? ¹²For, her rich men, are full of violence, and, her inhabitants, have spoken falsehood,—and, their tongue, is deceitful in their mouth. ¹³Moreover also, I, have made thee sick with smiting thee,—laying thee waste because of thy sins. ¹⁴Thou, shalt eat—and not be satisfied, but be shrunk with hunger within thee,—Though thou remove, yet shalt thou not set in safety, and, what thou dost set in safety, to the sword, will I deliver. ¹⁵Thou, shalt sow, but shalt not reap,—thou, shalt tread the olive, but shalt not anoint thee with oil, also the grape, but shalt not drink the wine. ¹⁶For strictly observed are the statutes of Omri, and every doing of the house of Ahab, and ye have walked in their counsels,—to the end I may give thee up to desolation, and her inhabitants to hissing, that, the reproach of peoples, ye may bear.

⁷Alas for me! for I am become as gatherings of summer fruit, as gleanings-grapes in harvest, there is no cluster to eat, the first ripe fruit, my soul, craved. ²Perished is the man of lovingkindness out of the earth, and, upright among men, is there none,—they all, for bloodshed, lie in wait. Every man—for his brother, do they hunt as for one devoted to destruction. ³Of wickedness with both hands to make sure, the ruler, doth make demand—and the judge—for a recompense,—and, as for the great man, he, is putting into words the desire of his soul, So have they woven the net! ⁴The best of them, is as a sharp briar, and, the most upright, worse than a thorn hedge, The day of thy watchmen—of thy visitation, hath come, Now, shall be their confusion! ⁵Do not trust in a friend, do not put confidence in an associate,—from her that lieth in thy bosom, keep thou the doors of thy mouth; ⁶For, the son, treateth as foolish, the father, and, the daughter, riseth up against, her mother, the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law,—The foes of a man, are the men of his own house. ⁷But, I, for Yahweh, will watch, I will wait for the God of my salvation,—My God, will hear me. ⁸Do not rejoice, O mine enemy, against me, Though I fall, I shall rise again! Though I sit in darkness, Yahweh, is a light to me. ⁹The indignation of Yahweh, will I bear, for I have sinned against him,—until he take up my controversy, then will he do me justice, he will bring me forth to the light, I shall behold his righteousness. ¹⁰So shall she who had been mine enemy fear, and shame, shall cover her, who used to say unto me—Where is Yahweh thy God? Mine own eyes, shall look upon her, Now, shall she become one to be trodden down, like the mire of the lanes. ¹¹On the day for building thy walls,—on that day, far away shall be thy boundary: ¹²The very day, that, against thee, shall one come from Assyria, and from the cities of Egypt; yea from Egypt, even unto the River, and from sea to sea, and from mountain to mountain: ¹³Though the land become a desolation, because of them that dwell therein,—by reason of the fruit of their doings. ¹⁴Shepherd thou thy people with thy rod, the flock of thine inheritance, Dwell thou alone, a jungle in the midst of a fruitful field,—Let them feed in Bashan and in Gilead, as in the days of age-past times. ¹⁵As in the days of thy coming forth out of the land of Egypt, will I shew him wonders. ¹⁶Nations, shall see, that they may turn pale at all their valour,—they shall lay hand on mouth, their ears, shall be silent: ¹⁷They shall lick the dust like the serpent, Like the crawlers of the earth, shall they come quaking out of their fastnesses,—Towards Yahweh our God, shall they pay adoration, and shall fear because of thee. ¹⁸Who is a GOD like unto thee, taking away the iniquity—and passing over the transgression—of the remnant of his inheritance? He hath not held fast, perpetually, his anger, for, one who delighteth in lovingkindness, is he! ¹⁹He will again have compassion upon us, he will subdue our iniquities,—Thou wilt cast—into the depths of the sea—all their sins. ²⁰Thou wilt grant—the faithfulness to Jacob, the lovingkindness to Abraham,—which thou didst swear to our fathers, from the days of ancient time.

Nahum

¹The oracle, on Nineveh,—the scroll of the vision of Nahum, the Elkoshite. ²A GOD jealous and avenging, is Yahweh, an avenger, is Yahweh, and a lord of wrath, an avenger, is Yahweh towards his adversaries, and, a retainer of anger, is he to his foes. ³Yahweh, is slow to anger, but great in vigour, He will not leave, unpunished, as for Yahweh, in storm-wind and in tempest, is his way, and, clouds, are the dust of his feet. ⁴Who rebuketh the sea and hath made it dry, and, all the streams, hath he dried up,—withered are Bashan and Carmel, Even the bloom of Lebanon, is withered: ⁵Mountains, have trembled because of him, and, the hills, have melted,—and the earth, hath lifted itself up, at his presence, the world also, and all who dwell therein. ⁶Before his indignation, who shall stand? And who shall abide the glow of his anger? His wrath, hath been poured forth like fire, and, the rocks, have been broken down because of him. ⁷Good is Yahweh, as a protection in the day of distress,—and one who acknowledgeth them who seek refuge in him. ⁸But, with an overflow rolling on, a full end, will he make of them who rise up against him,—and, his foes, will he pursue into darkness. ⁹What can ye devise against Yahweh? A full end, is he making,—Distress, shall not rise up twice: ¹⁰Though they were like thorns intertwined, and as drunkards drenched with their drink, yet have they been devoured, like stubble fully dry. ¹¹Out of thee, hath one come forth—plotting, against Yahweh, wickedness,—A counselor of the Abandoned One. ¹²Thus, saith Yahweh, Though they be in full force, and so in great numbers, yet, even so, have they been cut off, and have passed away,—If I humble thee once, I will not humble thee again. ¹³Now, therefore, will I break his yoke from off thee,—and, thy fetters, will I tear off. ¹⁴Then will Yahweh give command concerning thee, None of thy name shall be sown any more,—out of the house of thy gods, will I cut off carved image and molten image, I will appoint thy grave, for thou art of little esteem. ¹⁵Lo! upon the mountains, The feet of one, who bringeth Good Tidings! who publisheth Prosperity! Celebrate, O Judah, thy pilgrim festivals, fulfil thy vows, for, not again, any more, shall the Abandoned One, pass through thee, he hath been wholly cut off.

²He that breaketh in pieces hath come up over thy face,

Keep the keeps,—watch the way, brace the loins, make vigour very firm. ²For Yahweh hath restored the excellency of Jacob, like the excellency of Israel,—for the plunderers have plundered them, and, their vine branches, have they marred. ³The shield of his heroes, is made red, the men of war, are clad in crimson, on fire, are the chariot-steels, on the day he maketh ready,—and, the lances, are put in motion. ⁴In the streets, madly go the chariots, they rush along in the broadways,—their appearance, is like torches, as lightnings, hither and thither do they run. ⁵Let him call to mind his nobles, they shall stumble as they go—let them hasten to her wall, yet the storming cover, is prepared. ⁶The gates of the rivers, have been opened,—and, the palace, doth quake. ⁷And, Huzzab, hath been taken captive—hath been led up,—and, her handmaids, are making a moan like the sound of doves, as they taber upon their heart. ⁸Yet, as for Nineveh, like a reservoir of waters, are her waters,—but, those men, are in flight! Stand! stand!! but no one is turning. ⁹Plunder silver, plunder gold,—and there is no end to the costly furnishing, rich with every article of delight. ¹⁰Emptiness, yea turned to emptiness, aye deserted is she! with, heart, unnerved, and, a tottering, of knees, and, anguish, in all loins, and, the faces of them all, have withdrawn their colour. ¹¹Where is the lair of the lions? Yea the very feeding-place of the young lions,—where walked the lion, the lioness, the lion's whelp, with none to make them afraid? ¹²The lion, used to tear in pieces enough for his whelps, and to strangle for his lionesses,—and then fill with prey his holes, and his lairs with what he had torn. ¹³Behold me! against thee, Declareth Yahweh of hosts, Therefore will I burn up in smoke her chariots, and, thy young lions, shall be devoured by the sword,—so will I cut off, out of the earth, thy prey, nor shall be heard any more, the voice of thine envoy.

³Alas for the city of bloodshed! All of it, deceit, of violence full, none releaseth prey! ²The sound of the whip, and the sound of the rushing wheel,—and horse galloping, and dancing chariot rattling along. ³Horsemen uplifting both the flashing sword, and the lightning spear, Aye, a mass of slain, and a weight of dead bridles,—and no end of corpses, so that they stumble upon their corpses.

⁴Because of the multitude of the unchaste doings of the unchaste one, fair in grace, mistress of secret arts,—who hath been selling nations by her unchaste doings, families by her secret arts, ⁵Behold me! against thee, Declareth Yahweh of hosts, Therefore will I remove thy shirts over thy face,—and let, nations, see thy nakedness, and, kingdoms, thy shame; ⁶And I will cast upon thee abominable filth, and treat thee as foolish,—and set thee as a gazing-stock. ⁷And it shall come to pass that, all who see thee, shall flee from thee, and shall say, Destroyed is Nineveh! Who will bemoan her?—Whence shall I seek any to comfort thee? ⁸Art thou better than No-amon, who sat among the Nile-streams, waters round about her,—whose fortress was the sea, from the sea, her wall. ⁹Ethiopia, was her strength, and Egypt—Yea, without end,—Put and Lubim, were among thy helpers. ¹⁰Yet, she, was given up to exile, she went into captivity, even her babes, were dashed to the ground, at the head of all the streets,—and, for her honourable men, cast they lots, and, all her great men, were bound together in chains. ¹¹Thou too, shalt be drunken, thou shalt hide thyself,—thou too, shalt seek shelter from the foe: ¹²All thy fortresses, shall be fig-trees with first-ripe figs: if thy be shaken, then shall the fruit fall on the mouth of the eater. ¹³Lo! thy people, are women, in thy midst, to thy foes, have been set wide open the gates of thy and,—a fire, hath devoured, thy bars. ¹⁴Siege-water, draw for thyself, strengthen thy fortresses,—go into the clay, and tread thou the mortar, make strong the brick. ¹⁵There, shall a fire devour thee, the sword, shall cut thee off, it shall devour thee like the grass locust, make thyself numerous like the grass locust, make thyself numerous as the swarming locust: ¹⁶Though thou have multiplied thy foot-soldiers beyond the stars of the heavens, the grass locust, hath stript itself and flown away! ¹⁷Thy mercenary crowds, are like the swarming locust, and, thy mixed multitudes, like locusts—swarms of locusts,—which settle in the hedges on a cold day, the sun, hath broken forth, and they are in flight, and unknown is the place where they are! ¹⁸Asleep are thy shepherds, O king of Assyria, thy nobles, must needs rest. Scattered are thy people upon the mountains, and there is none to gather them. ¹⁹No lessening of thine injury, grievous is thy wound,—all who have heard the report of thee, have clapped their hands over thee, for, upon whom, hath not thy cruelty passed without ceasing?

Habakkuk

¹The oracle of which Habakkuk the prophet, had vision:
²How long, O Yahweh, have I called out, and thou wouldst not hear me? Have I kept crying unto thee of violence, and thou wouldst not save? ³Wherefore shouldst thou let me see iniquity, and, wrong, shouldst let me behold, and, force and violence, be straight before me,—and there should have ever been someone who, contention and strife, would uphold? ⁴For which cause, benumbed is the law, and there is never any going forth of justice,—for, the lawless, doth circumvent the righteous, for which cause, justice doth go forth perverted? ⁵Behold ye, among the nations, and look around, Yea stand stock still—stare,—for, a work, is being wrought in your days, ye will not believe, when it is recounted. ⁶For, behold me! raising up the Chaldeans, the bitter and headlong nation,—that marcheth to the breadths of the earth, to take possession of habitations, not his. ⁷Awful and fearful, is he,—from himself, his decision and his uprising, proceed. ⁸Then, swifter than leopards, are his horses, and, more sharply they attack, than evening wolves, and forward have leapt his chargers,—Yea, his chargers, from afar, will come in, they will fly as an eagle hath hastened to devour. ⁹Solely for violence, will he come, the intent of their faces, is—To the east! And he hath gathered, as the sand, a captive host; ¹⁰And, he, over kings, will make merry, and, nobles, will be a scorn to him: he, at any fortress, will laugh, once he hath heaped up dust, he hath captured it! ¹¹Then, hath he become arrogant in spirit, and hath committed excess, and so is guilty,—this his violence, is due to his god. ¹²Art not, thou, from of old, O Yahweh, my God, my Holy One? Thou diest not! O Yahweh, to judgment, hast thou appointed him, and, O Rock, to correction, hast thou devoted him: ¹³Thou whose eyes are too pure to look with approval on wrong, to respect oppression, canst not endure,—Wherefore, shouldst thou respect the treacherous? Be silent, when the lawless, swalloweth up, one more righteous than he? ¹⁴So wouldst thou have made Men, like the fishes of the sea,—like the creeping thing that hath no ruler over it: ¹⁵All of which, with a hook, one bringeth up, raketh together with his drag, and hath gathered with his net,—¹⁶On which account, he is glad and exulteth: on which account, he sacrificeth to his Net, and burneth incense to his Drag; because, thereby, rich, is his portion, and his food—fatness! ¹⁷Shall he, on this account, empty his net? And, the continual slaying of nations, deem to be no pity?

²Upon my watch-tower, will I stand, and will station myself upon the bulwark,—so will I keep outlook, to see—what he will speak with me, and what I shall reply, when I am reproved. ²Then Yahweh answered me, and said, Write the vision, Yea, make it plain on tablets, that one may swiftly read it; ³For yet is the vision for an appointed time, still, it presseth towards an end, and will not deceive,—if it tarry, wait thou for it, for it, surely cometh,—will not be too late. ⁴Lo! as for the conceited one, crooked is his soul within him,—but, one who is righteous, by his faithfulness, shall live. ⁵Moreover also, when wine betrayeth, a man, is arrogant, and findeth no rest,—because he hath enlarged, like hades, his desire, yea, he, is like death, and cannot be satisfied,—but hath gathered unto himself, all the nations, and assembled unto himself, all the peoples. ⁶Shall not, these, all of them, against him, take up—a taunt, a mocking poem, enigmatical sentences—concerning him? And say—Alas! for him who maketh abundance in what is not his own, How long? that he should be burdening himself with heavy debts? ⁷Will not thy creditors, suddenly rise up? and they who shall violently shake thee, all at once become active? Then shalt thou serve for booties, unto them! ⁸Because, thou, hast plundered many nations, all the residue of the peoples, shall plunder thee,—for shedding Human blood, and doing violence to the earth, to the city, and to all who dwell therein. ⁹Alas! for him who extorteth an extortion of wrong for his own house,—that he may set on high his nest, that he may be delivered from the grasp of calamity. ¹⁰Thou hast counseled shame to thy house—making an end of many peoples, and endangering thine own life. ¹¹Surely, the stone out of the wall, will make outcry,—and, the tie out of the timber, will answer it. ¹²Alas! for him who buildeth a city with deeds of blood,—and establisheth a town with perversity. ¹³Lo! is it not from Yahweh of hosts—that peoples labour for fire, and, populations, for emptiness, weary themselves? ¹⁴For the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of Yahweh,—as, the waters, cover the sea. ¹⁵Alas! for him who causeth his neighbour to drink, from the goblet of thy fury, and also, making him drunk,—to the end thou mayest gloat over their parts of shame. ¹⁶Thou art sated with contempt, more than glory, drink, thou too, and expose thy person,—the cup of the right hand of Yahweh, shall come round unto thee, and ignominious filth be upon thy glory; ¹⁷For, the violence done to Lebanon, shall cover thee, and wasting by wild beasts shall cause them terror,—for shedding Human blood, and doing violence to the earth, to the city, and to all who dwell therein. ¹⁸What hath a carved image, profited, though the fashioner thereof, carved it? a molten image, and a teacher of falsehood,—though the fashioner of his fashioned thing trusted therein? that men should make Dumb Nonentities! ¹⁹Alas! for him who saith to wood, Awake, bestir thee! to a silent stone, he, shall teach! Though he is overlaid with gold and silver, yet, no spirit whatsoever, is in him! ²⁰Howbeit, Yahweh, is in his holy temple,—Hush before him, all the earth.

3A prayer by Habakkuk the prophet,—in the manner of an Ode. ²O Yahweh, I have heard tidings of thee, I am afraid. O Yahweh! Thy work—in the midst of the years, O revive it, in the midst of the years, wilt thou make known? In trouble, wilt thou remember, compassion? ³GOD, from Teman, cometh in, and, the Holy One, from Mount Paran. Selah. His splendour, hath covered the heavens, and, his praise, hath filled the earth: ⁴And, a brightness, as light, appeareth, Rays, out of his hand, hath he,—and, there, is the hiding of his power. ⁵Before him, marcheth pestilence,—and fever, goeth forth, at his feet: ⁶He hath stood and measured the earth, he hath looked, and caused nations to tremble, and, scattered as dust, are the perpetual mountains, and, sunk, are the age-abiding hills,—Forthgoings age-abiding, are his. ⁷Under distress, saw I the tents of Ethiopia,—tremble, do the curtains of the land of Midian. ⁸Against the rivers, is Yahweh wroth? Against the rivers, is thine anger? Against the sea, is thine indignation? For thou wilt ride on Thy horses, Thy chariots, shall be salvation! ⁹To nakedness, is bared thy bow, oaths of chastisement—song! Selah. With rivers, thou dost cleave open the land. ¹⁰The mountains, have seen thee—they tremble, a downpour of waters, hath passed along,—the roaring deep, hath given forth, his voice, on high—his hand, hath he uplifted. ¹¹Sun, moon, have stood still, on high,—like light, thine arrows, speed along, like brightness, is the flash of thy spear. ¹²In wrath, dost thou stride through the land,—in anger, dost thou thresh the nations. ¹³Thou hast come forth to the salvation of thy people, to salvation, with thine Anointed One,—Thou hast crushed the Head out of the house of the lawless one, barring the foundation up to the neck, Selah. ¹⁴Thou hast pierced, with his own staves, the head of his chiefs, they storm along, to scatter me,—their exultant thought, is, in very deed, to devour the oppressed one, in a secret place!

¹⁵Thou hast driven, into the sea, thy chariot-horses. Foaming are the mighty waters! ¹⁶I heard, and I trembled within me, at the voice, my lips, quivered, decay, entered, my bones, and, in my limbs, I trembled,—though I am to find rest, in the day of distress, when their invader, cometh up against the people. ¹⁷Though, the fig-tree, should not blossom, and there be no sprouting in the vines, the yield of the olive, should have deceived, and, the fields, not have brought forth food,—the flock, have been consumed out of the fold, and there be no herd in the stalls, ¹⁸Yet, I, in Yahweh, will rejoice,—I will exult in the God of my salvation. ¹⁹Yahweh, My Lord, is my strength, therefore hath he made my feet like hinds, and, upon my high places, will he cause me to march along. To the chief musician, on my double harp.

Zephaniah

¹The word of Yahweh which came unto Zephaniah, son of Cushi, son of Gedaliah, son of Amariah, son of Hezekiah,—in the days of Josiah son of Amon, king of Judah. ²I will take clean away everything from off the face of the ground, Declareth Yahweh. ³I will take away man and beast, I will take away the bird of the heavens and the fishes of the sea, and the stumblingblocks, even them who are lawless,—and will cut off mankind, from off the face of the ground, Declareth Yahweh. ⁴And I will stretch out my hand—over Judah, and over all the inhabitants of Jerusalem,—and will cut off out of this place, the name of Baal, the name of the priestlings, with the priests; ⁵And them who bow down upon the housetops to the host of the heavens,—and them who bow down—who swear to Yahweh, and swear by Milcom; ⁶And them who turn away from following Yahweh,—and have neither sought Yahweh, nor enquired for him. ⁷Hush! at the presence of My Lord, Yahweh,—for, near, is the day of Yahweh, for Yahweh hath prepared his sacrifice, hath hallowed his guests. ⁸And it shall come to pass, in the day of Yahweh's sacrifice, that I will punish the rulers, and the sons of the king,—and all such as are clothed with foreign apparel; ⁹And I will punish every one who leapeth over the threshold, in that day,—those who fill the house of their lords with violence and deceit. ¹⁰And there shall come to be, in that day, declareth Yahweh, The noise of an outcry from the fish-gate, and of a howling out of the new city,—and of a great crashing, from the hills. ¹¹Howl, ye inhabitants of the lower city,—because destroyed are all the people of traffic, cut off are all they who were laden with silver. ¹²And it shall come to pass, at that time, that I will search through Jerusalem, with lamps,—and will punish the men who are thickened upon their lees, who are saying in their heart, Yahweh, will not give blessing, neither will he bring calamity. ¹³Therefore shall their goods become a booty, and their houses, a desolation,—and they shall build houses, but not inhabit them, and plant vineyards, but not drink the wine thereof. ¹⁴Near is the great day of Yahweh, near, and very speedy,—The noise of the day of Yahweh, a strong man—there!—bitterly crying out! ¹⁵A day of indignation,—that day! day of danger and distress, day of rush, and of crash, day of obscurity, and deep gloom, day of cloud, and thick darkness; ¹⁶day of horn, and war-

shout,—against the fortified cities, and against the high towers. ¹⁷And I will bring distress to mankind, and they shall walk like them who are blind, because, against Yahweh, have they sinned,—and their blood, shall be poured out, as dust, and their bowels like dung. ¹⁸Neither their silver nor yet their gold, shall be able to deliver them, in the day of the indignation of Yahweh, but, in the fire of his jealousy, shall the whole earth be consumed; For, a destruction, surely a terrible one, will he make, with all them who dwell in the earth.

²Collect your thoughts, aye collect them,—O nation, depressed! ²Ere yet the decree, have given birth, like chaff, the day, have vanished,—ere yet shall come upon you, the glow of the anger of Yahweh, ere yet shall come upon you, the day of the anger of Yahweh. ³Seek Yahweh—all ye lowly of the land, who have wrought, what he appointed,—seek righteousness, seek humility, peradventure, ye shall be concealed, in the day of the anger of Yahweh? ⁴For, Gaza, forsaken, shall be, and, Ashkelon, a desolation,—Ashdod! at high noon, shall they drive her forth, and, Ekron, be uprooted: ⁵Alas! for the inhabitants of the line of the sea, the nation of Kerethim,—The word of Yahweh, is against you, O Canaan of the land of the Philistines, therefore will I destroy thee, to the last inhabitant. ⁶So shall the line of the sea become a meadow, the wells of shepherds, and the folds of flocks; ⁷And the line shall belong to the remnant of the house of Judah, Thereon, shall they feed their flocks,—In the houses of Ashkelon, shall they, at eventide, lie down, for Yahweh their God will visit them, and bring their captives back. ⁸I have heard the reproach of Moab, and the revilings of the sons of Ammon,—who have reproached my people, and have magnified themselves up to their bounds. ⁹Wherefore, as I live, declareth Yahweh of hosts, God of Israel, Surely, Moab, like Sodom, shall become, and, the sons of Ammon, like Gomorrah, a possession for the thorn, and a pit of salt, Yea a desolation, unto times age-abiding: The remnant of my people, shall make of them a prey, and, the residue of my nation, shall inherit them. ¹⁰This, shall they have, instead of their pride,—because they reproached and magnified themselves against the people of Yahweh of hosts. ¹¹Terrible will Yahweh be against them, for he hath caused to waste away all the gods of the earth, that men may bow down to him, every one from his place, all the coastlands of the nations: ¹²Even ye Ethiopians, the slain of my sword were they! ¹³And may he stretch out his hand against the North, and destroy Assyria,—and may he make of Nineveh a desolation, dry as the desert! ¹⁴So shall lie down in her midst—flocks, each living thing of a nation, both pelican and bittern, in her capitals, shall roost,—a voice, shall resound in the window, the bustard, on the sill, for he hath destroyed, hath laid bare. ¹⁵This, is the city exultant, that sat secure, that said in her heart, I, am ! and no one besides! How hath she become a desolation! a lair of beasts, every one passing, by her doth hiss, shaketh his hand.

3Alas for her that is rebellious, and polluted, the city that oppresses! ²She hath hearkened to no voice, accepted no correction; in Yahweh, hath not trusted, to her God, hath not drawn near: ³Her rulers in her midst, are roaring lions,—her judges, evening wolves, they have left nothing until morning! ⁴Her prophets, are reckless, treacherous men! her priests, have profaned the holy, done violence to law. ⁵Yahweh, the Righteous One, is in her midst, he dealeth not perversely,—Morning by morning, his justice, bringeth he forth the light, He is not found lacking, but the perverse man knoweth no shame. ⁶I have cut off nations, deserted are their towers, have made desolate their streets, that none passeth through; ruined are their cities, for want of men of note, from lack of any dweller! ⁷I said, Surely thou wilt reverence, Me, wilt accept correction, lest her abode, should be cut of, howsoever I had punished her; but, in truth, they soon corrupted all their deeds. ⁸Wherefore, wait for me, urgeth Yahweh, until the day when I rise up as witness, for, my decision, is to gather nations, to assemble kingdoms, to pour out on them mine indignation, all the glow of mine anger, for, in the fire of my jealousy, shall be devoured the whole earth. ⁹Surely, then, will I turn unto the peoples a lip made pure,—that they all may call on the name of Yahweh, may serve him with one consent. ¹⁰From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia, shall come my suppliants, the daughter of my dispersed ones, shall bear along a gift for me. ¹¹In that day, wilt thou not turn pale for all thy deeds, wherein thou hast transgressed against me? For, then, will I take away out of thy midst thy proudly exulting ones, and thou shalt not again be haughty any more in my holy mountain: ¹²So will I leave remaining in thy midst, a people oppressed and poor,—who will seek refuge in the name of Yahweh: ¹³The remnant of Israel—will not do perversity, nor speak falsehood, neither shall there be found in their mouth a tongue of deceit,—surely, they, shall feed and lie down, with none to make them afraid. ¹⁴Sing out, O daughter of Zion, shout aloud, O Israel,—rejoice and exult with all thy heart, O daughter Jerusalem: ¹⁵Yahweh, hath set aside, thy judgments, hath turned back thy foe,—The king of Israel, Yahweh, is in thy midst, thou shalt not fear calamity, any more. ¹⁶In that day, shall it be said—to Jerusalem, Do not fear,—O Zion, Let not thy hands hang down: ¹⁷Yahweh, thy God, in the midst of thee, as a mighty one, will save,—will be glad over thee with rejoicing, will be silent in his love, will exult over thee with shouts of triumph. ¹⁸The sad exiles from the appointed meeting, have I gathered, from thee, had they been! but were a burden on thee—a reproach! ¹⁹Behold me! dealing with all thine oppressors, at that time,—and I will save her that is lame, and, her that hath been an outcast, will I carry, and I will make them to be a Praise and a Name, in the whole earth that hath witnessed their shame. ²⁰At that time, will I bring you in, even at the time when I gather you,—Yea I will grant you to become a Name and a Praise, among all the peoples of the earth, when I cause them of your captivities to return before your eyes, saith Yahweh.

¹In the second year of Darius the king, in the sixth month, on the first of the month, came the word of Yahweh, by the hand of Haggai the prophet, unto Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, pasha of Judah, and unto Jehoshua son of Jehozadak the high priest, saying: ²Thus, speaketh Yahweh of hosts, saying,—This people, have said, Not yet hath come the time for the house of Yahweh to be built. ³Therefore hath come the word of Yahweh by the hand of Haggai the prophet, saying: ⁴Is it a time that, ye yourselves, should be dwelling in your own paneled houses? and, this house, be in ruins? ⁵Now, therefore, Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts,—Apply your heart unto your own experience: ⁶Ye have sown much, but have brought in little, have eaten, and not been filled, have drunk, and not been satisfied with drink, have clothed you, and none hath been warm,—and, he that hath hired himself out, hath put his wages into a bag with holes. ⁷Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts,—Apply your heart to your own experience: ⁸Ascend the mountain—and bring in wood and build the house,—that I may be pleased therewith and get myself glory, saith Yahweh. ⁹When ye looked for much, then lo! it came to little, when ye brought it home, then I did blow into it,—Because of what? Demandeth Yahweh of hosts, Because of my house, the which is in ruins, while ye keep running every man to his own house. ¹⁰Wherefore—on your account, have the heavens, held back, dew,—and, the earth, held back her fruit; ¹¹And I have called for drought, upon the land and upon the mountains, and upon the corn and upon the new wine and upon the oil, and upon that which the ground, bringeth forth,—and upon man, and upon beast, and upon all the labour of the hands. ¹²Then hearkened Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, and Jehoshua son of Jehozadak the high priest, and all the remnant of the people, unto the voice of Yahweh their God, and unto the words of Haggai the prophet, as Yahweh their God, had sent him,—and the people, stood in awe, before Yahweh. ¹³Then spake Haggai the messenger of Yahweh, in the message of Yahweh, to the people saying,—I, am with you, Declareth Yahweh. ¹⁴Thus did Yahweh, stir up—the spirit of Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, pasha of Judah, and the spirit of Jehoshua son of Jehozadak the high priest, and the spirit of all the remnant of the people,—and they came in and did service in the house of Yahweh of hosts their God: ¹⁵on the twenty-fourth day of the month, in the sixth month,—in the second year of Darius the king.

²In the seventh month, on the twenty-first of the month, came the word of Yahweh, by the hand of Haggai the prophet, saying: ²Speak, I pray thee, unto Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, pasha of Judah, and unto Jehoshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest,—and unto the remnant of the people, saying:—³Who is there among you that is left, that saw this house, in its former glory? And how do ye see it now? Is it not, in comparison with that, as nothing, in your eyes? ⁴Now, therefore—Be strong, O Zerubbabel, urgeth Yahweh, and be strong, O Jehoshua son of Jehozadak the high priest, and be strong, all ye people of the land, urgeth Yahweh, and work; For, I, am with you, Declareth Yahweh of hosts. ⁵The very thing that I solemnized with you, when ye came forth out of the land of Egypt, That, my spirit abiding in your midst, ye should not fear. ⁶For, thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, Yet once, a little, it is,—and I am shaking the heavens and the earth, and the sea and the dry land; ⁷And I will shake all the nations, and the delight of all the nations, shall come in,—and I will fill this house with glory, saith Yahweh of hosts. ⁸Mine is the silver and Mine the gold, Declareth Yahweh of hosts: ⁹Greater shall be the last glory of this house than the first, saith Yahweh of hosts,—and, in this place, will I give prosperity, Declareth Yahweh of hosts. ¹⁰On the twenty-fourth of the ninth month, in the second year of Darius, came the word of Yahweh unto Haggai the prophet, saying: ¹¹Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts,—I pray you, ask the priests a direction, saying: ¹²If a man carry holy flesh in the skirt of his garment, and then toucheth with his skirt bread or a cooked dish or wine or oil or any food, shall it be holy? And the priests answered and said, No. ¹³Then said Haggai, If one who is defiled for a dead person touch any of these, shall it be defiled? And the priests answered and said, It shall be defiled. ¹⁴Then answered Haggai and said, So, is this people and, so, is this nation before me, Declareth Yahweh, and, so, is every work of their hands,—therefore, whatsoever they offer there, is, defiled. ¹⁵Now, therefore, I pray you apply your heart, from this day and upwards,—So long as there had not been laid one stone upon another in the temple of Yahweh, ¹⁶So long were things thus, that, on coming unto a heap of twenty, then was it found to be ten,—on coming unto the vat to draw off fifty measures, then were there found to be twenty. ¹⁷I smote you with blight and with mildew and with hail, in all the work of your hands,—Yet ye did not return unto me, Declareth Yahweh. ¹⁸Apply your heart, I pray you, from this day and upwards,—from the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month, even from the day when was founded the temple of Yahweh, apply your heart: ¹⁹Is the seed yet in the store-house? Howbeit, though at present neither, the vine nor the fig-tree nor the pomegranate nor the olive tree, hath brought forth, from this very day, will I bless you. ²⁰Then came the word of Yahweh, the second time unto Haggai, on the twenty-fourth of the month, saying: ²¹Speak thou unto Zerubbabel, pasha of Judah, saying,—I am shaking, the heavens and the earth; ²²And I will overturn the throne of kingdoms, and will destroy the strength of the kingdoms of the nations,—and I will overturn the chariots and them who ride therein, and horses and their riders, shall come down, every man by the sword of his brother. ²³On that day, declareth Yahweh of hosts, will I take thee, O Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel—my servant, declareth Yahweh, and will set thee as a signet-ring; For, thee, have I chosen, Declareth Yahweh of hosts.

Zechariah

1In the eighth month, in the second year of Darius, came the word of Yahweh unto Zechariah, son of Berechiah, son of Iddo, the prophet, saying:— ²Yahweh, was sore displeased, with your fathers: ³therefore shalt thou say unto them, Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, Return ye unto me, urgeth Yahweh of hosts,—that I may return unto you, saith Yahweh of hosts. ⁴Do not become like your fathers, unto whom the former prophets, proclaimed, saying, Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, Return, I pray you, from your wicked ways, and from your wicked practices; but they heard not, nor hearkened unto me, declareth Yahweh. ⁵Your fathers, where are they? and, the prophets, to times age-abiding, do they live? ⁶Howbeit, as for my words and my statutes with which I charged my servants the prophets, did they not overtake your fathers? and so they returned and said, Just as Yahweh of hosts planned to do unto us, according to our ways and according to our practices, So hath he dealt with us? ⁷Upon the twenty-fourth day of the eleventh month, the same, is the month Shebat, in the second year of Darius, came the word of Yahweh unto Zechariah, son of Berechiah, son of Iddo, the prophet, as followeth: ⁸I looked by night, And lo! a man riding upon a red horse, and he was standing among the myrtle trees, in the shade; and, after him, were horses, red, bay, and white. ⁹Then said I, What are these, my lord? And the messenger who was speaking with me, said unto me, I, will shew thee what these, are. ¹⁰So the man who was standing among the myrtle-trees responded, and said,—These, are they whom Yahweh, hath sent, to go to and fro through the earth. ¹¹Then responded they to the messenger of Yahweh, who was standing among the myrtle-trees, and said, We have gone to and fro through the earth,—and lo! all the earth, resteth and is quiet. ¹²Then the messenger of Yahweh responded, and said, O Yahweh of hosts! How long wilt, thou, not have compassion upon Jerusalem, and the cities of Judah,—against which thou hast had indignation these seventy years? ¹³And Yahweh answered the messenger who was speaking with me, in words that were pleasant,—words that were consoling, ¹⁴Then the messenger who was speaking with me, said unto me, Proclaim thou, saying, Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, I am jealous for Jerusalem, and for Zion, with a great jealousy; ¹⁵And, with a great displeasure, am I displeased with the careless nations,—in that, when, I, was displeased (for) a little, then, they, helped forward the calamity, ¹⁶Wherefore, Thus, saith Yahweh, I have returned to Jerusalem, with compassions,, My house, shall be built therein, declareth Yahweh of hosts, and, a line, shall be stretched forth over Jerusalem. ¹⁷Further, proclaim thou, saying, Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, Yet, shall my cities overflow with blessing! So will Yahweh yet, have compassion, upon Zion, and yet make choice of Jerusalem. ¹⁸Then lifted I up mine eyes and looked,—and lo! Four Horns. ¹⁹And I said unto the messenger who was speaking with me, What are these? And he said unto me, These, are the horns which have scattered Judah, Israel, and Jerusalem. ²⁰Then Yahweh shewed me Four Craftsmen. ²¹And I said, What are these coming in to do? And he spake, saying, These, are the horns which have scattered Judah, so that no man lifted up his head, but these others have come in to put them in fear, to cast down the horns of the nations, the which have lifted up the horn against the land of Judah to scatter her.

2Then lifted I up mine eyes and looked, and lo! a Man,—and, in his hand, a Measuring Line. ²And I said, Whither art thou going? And he said unto me, To measure Jerusalem, to see what should be the breadth thereof, and what the length thereof. ³And lo! the messenger who was talking with me, coming forward,—and another messenger, coming forward to meet him. ⁴So he said unto him, Run, speak unto this young man, saying: Like open villages, shall Jerusalem remain, for the multitude of men and cattle in her midst; ⁵And, I, will become to her, declareth Yahweh, A wall of fire round about,—and, a glory, will I become in her midst. ⁶Ho! ho! flee ye, therefore, out of the land of the North, urgeth Yahweh. For, as the four winds of the heavens, have I spread you abroad, declareth Yahweh. ⁷Ho! Zion, deliver thyself,—thou that dwellest with the daughter of Babylon. For, ⁸Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, For his own honour, hath he sent me unto the nations that are spoiling you,—Surely, he that toucheth you, toucheth the pupil of mine eye. ⁹For behold me! brandishing my hand over them, and they shall become a spoil unto their own slaves,—and ye shall know that, Yahweh of hosts, hath sent me. ¹⁰Sing out and rejoice, O daughter of Zion,—For behold me! coming in, and I will make my habitation in thy midst, declareth Yahweh. ¹¹Then shall many nations, join themselves, unto Yahweh, in that day, and shall become my people,—and I will make my habitation in thy midst, so shalt thou know that, Yahweh of hosts, hath sent me unto thee. ¹²Thus will Yahweh inherit Judah, his portion, on the soil of the sanctuary,—and make choice, yet again, of Jerusalem. ¹³Hush! all flesh, before Yahweh,—For he hath roused himself up out of his holy dwelling.

³And he shewed me, Joshua the high priest, standing before the messenger of Yahweh,—and, the Accuser, standing at his right hand, to accuse him. ²Then said Yahweh unto the Accuser, Yahweh rebuke thee, O Accuser, Yea Yahweh rebuke thee, he who is choosing Jerusalem,—Is not, this, a brand snatched out of the fire? ³Now, Joshua, was clothed with filthy garments,—though standing before the messenger. ⁴Then responded he and spake unto those who were standing before him, saying, Take away the filthy garments from off him; and he said unto him, See! I have caused to pass from off thee, thine iniquity, And will cause thee to be clothed in robes of state. ⁵Then said I, Let them put a clean turban upon his head,—So they put the clean turban upon his head, and clothed him with garments, and, the messenger of Yahweh, was standing up. ⁶So then the messenger of Yahweh did solemnly affirm unto Joshua, saying: ⁷Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, If, in my ways, thou wilt walk, and if, of my charge, thou wilt keep charge, Then, even thou, shalt govern my house, Moreover also, thou shalt have charge of my courts,—and I will give thee free access among these who stand by. ⁸Hear, I pray thee, O Joshua the high priest, thou and thy friends who are sitting before thee, for, men to serve as signs, they are,—For behold me! bringing in my servant, the Bud; ⁹For lo! the stone which I have set before Joshua, Upon one stone, are Seven (pairs of) Eyes,—Behold me! cutting the engraving thereof, declareth Yahweh of hosts. So will I take away the iniquity of that land in one day. ¹⁰In that day, declareth Yahweh of hosts, Ye shall invite one another,—to come under the vine and under the fig-tree.

⁴And once more the messenger who was speaking with me, roused me up, just as a man might be roused up out of his sleep. ²Then said he unto me, What canst thou see? And I said—I have looked, and lo! a Lampstand—all of gold, with the Bowl thereof upon the top thereof, and its Seven Lamps upon it, Seven Pipes each, to the lamps which are upon the top thereof; ³and, Two Olive-trees, by it,—one upon the right hand of the bowl, and one upon the left hand thereof. ⁴Then responded I, and said unto the messenger who was speaking with me, saying,—What are these, my lord? ⁵Then answered the messenger who was speaking with me, and said unto me, Knowest thou not what these, are? And I said, No my lord. ⁶Then responded he, and spake unto me, saying, This, is the word of Yahweh, unto Zerubbabel, saying,—Not by wealth, nor by strength, but by my spirit, saith Yahweh of hosts. ⁷Who, art, thou, O great mountain? Before Zerubbabel, brought down to a plain! So shall he bring forth the headstone, with thundering shouts Beautiful! Beautiful! thereunto. ⁸Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying: ⁹The hands of Zerubbabel, have founded this house, and, his hands, shall finish it,—So shalt thou know that, Yahweh of hosts, hath sent me unto you. ¹⁰For who hath despised the day of small things? Yet shall they rejoice, when they see the plummet-stone in the hand of Zerubbabel,—these seven! The eyes of Yahweh, they are—running to and fro throughout all the earth. ¹¹Then responded I, and said unto him,—What are these two olive-trees, upon the right of the lampstand, and upon the left thereof? ¹²And I responded a second time, and said unto him,—What are the two branches of the olive-trees which join the two golden tubes, which empty out of them the golden oil? ¹³And he spake unto me, saying, Knowest thou not what these are? And I said, No, my lord. ¹⁴Then said he, These, are the two Anointed Ones,—who stand near the Lord of all the earth.

⁵And once more lifted I mine eyes, and looked,—and lo! a Flying Volume. ²And he said unto me, What canst thou see? So I said, I, can see a flying volume, the length thereof, twenty by the cubit, and, the breadth thereof, ten by the cubit. ³Then said he unto me, This, is the curse, which is going forth over the face of all the earth,—Because, every one who stealeth, on the one side, hath in one way been let off, and, every one who sweareth, on the other side, hath in another way been let off, ⁴therefore have I brought it forth, Declareth Yahweh of hosts, And it shall enter—into the house of the thief, and into the house of him that sweareth by my name, falsely,—and it shall roost in the midst of his house, and shall consume it, both the timbers thereof, and the stones thereof. ⁵Then came forward, the messenger who was talking with me,—and said unto me—Lift up, I pray thee, thine eyes, and see what this is which is coming forth. ⁶And I said, What is it? Then said he, This, is an ephah that is coming forth. And he said, This, is their iniquity, throughout all the land. ⁷And lo! a leaden disc uplifted,—and here a certain woman, sitting inside the ephah. ⁸Then said he, This, is Lawlessness. So he thrust her back inside the ephah,—and then thrust the leaden weight into the mouth thereof. ⁹Then lifted I up mine eyes and looked, and lo! Two Women coming forward, with the wind in their wings, and, they, had wings, like the wings of the stork,—and bare up the ephah, between the earth and the heavens. ¹⁰Then said I unto the messenger who was speaking with me,—Whither are they carrying the ephah? ¹¹And he said unto me, To build for it a house in the land of Shinar,—so shall it be ready, and they shall settle it there, upon its own base?

⁶And once again I lifted mine eyes, and looked, and lo! four chariots, coming forward from between two mountains, now, the mountains, were mountains of copper. ²In the first chariot, were red horses,—and, in the second chariot, black horses; ³and, in the third chariot, white horses,—and, in the fourth chariot, horses spotted, deep red. ⁴Then began I, and said, unto the messenger who was speaking with me,—What are these, my lord? ⁵And the messenger answered, and said unto me,—These, are the four winds of the heavens, coming forward after each hath presented itself near the Lord of all the earth. ⁶They in whose chariot are the black horses, are going forth into the land of the North, and, the white, have gone forth after them,—and, the spotted, have gone forth into the land of the South; ⁷and, the deep red, have come forward and sought to go their way, that they might journey to and fro in the land, so he said, Go your way, journey to and fro in the land,—and they journeyed to and fro in the land. ⁸Then made he outcry beside me, and spake unto me, saying,—See, these who are going forth into the land of the North, have settled my spirit in the land of the North. ⁹Then came the word of Yahweh unto me, saying: ¹⁰Take of them of the exile, of Heldai, and of Tobijah, and of Jedaiah,—then shalt, thou thyself, enter, on that day, yea thou shalt enter the house of Josiah son of Zephaniah, with them who have come in out of Babylon; ¹¹yea thou shalt take silver and gold, and make a crown,—and set it upon the head of Jehoshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest; ¹²then shalt thou speak unto him, saying, Thus, speaketh Yahweh of hosts, saying,—Lo! a man! Bud, is his name, and, out of his own place, shall he bud forth, and shall build the temple of Yahweh; ¹³Yea, he, shall build the temple of Yahweh, and, he, shall bear the honour, and shall sit and rule upon his throne,—and shall become a priest upon his throne, and, the counsel of peace, shall be between the two of them. ¹⁴But, the crown, shall belong to Heldai and to Tobiah and to Jedaiah, and to Hen son of Zephaniah,—for a memorial in the temple of Yahweh. ¹⁵And, they who are afar off, shall come in and shall build at the temple of Yahweh, so shall yea know that, Yahweh of hosts, hath sent me unto you,—and it shall come to pass if ye will, indeed hearken, unto the voice of Yahweh your God.

came the word of Yahweh of hosts unto me, saying: ⁵Speak thou unto all the people of the land, and unto the priests, saying,—When ye fasted and lamented in the fifth and in the seventh, even these seventy years, did ye, really fast, unto, me? ⁶And, when ye used to eat and when ye used to drink, was it not, of your own accord, ye did eat, and, of your own accord, ye did drink? ⁷Should ye not have been doing the things which Yahweh, had proclaimed, by the hand of the former prophets, while yet Jerusalem was inhabited and in peace, with her cities round about her,—and the South and the Lowland were inhabited? ⁸And the word of Yahweh came unto Zechariah, saying: ⁹Thus, spake Yahweh of hosts, saying,—With true justice, give ye judgment, and, lovingkindness and compassions, observe ye, one with another; ¹⁰And, the widow and the fatherless, the sojourner and the humbled, do not ye oppress,—and, wickedness between one man and another, do not ye devise in your hearts. ¹¹Howbeit they refused to give heed, but put forth a rebellious shoulder,—and, their ears, made they hard of hearing, that they might not hear; ¹²and, their heart, turned they into adamant, that they might not hear the law, nor the words which Yahweh of hosts sent by his spirit, through the former prophets,—and so there came great wrath from Yahweh of hosts. ¹³Therefore came it to pass that—just as he cried out and they hearkened not, so, used they to cry out, and I used not to hearken, saith Yahweh of hosts; ¹⁴But I whirled them over all the nations whom they had not known, and, the land, was made desolate after them, that none passed through and returned,—Yea they made of a delightful land—a desolation.

⁸And the word of Yahweh of hosts came, saying: ²Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, I am jealous for Zion with a great jealousy,—Yea, with great wrath, am I jealous for her. ³Thus, saith Yahweh, I have returned unto Zion, and will make my habitation in the midst of Jerusalem,—and Jerusalem, shall be called, The city of fidelity, and the mountain of Yahweh of hosts, The mountain of holiness. ⁴Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, Yet shall old men and old women sit in the broadways of Jerusalem,—Yea, each one with his staff in his hand for multitude of days: ⁵And, the broadways of the city, shall be full of boys and girls,—playing in the broadways thereof. ⁶Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, Because it will be marvellous in the eyes of the remnant of this people, in those days, In mine own eyes also, shall it be marvellous? Demandeth Yahweh of hosts. ⁷Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, Behold me! saving my people out of the land of the dawn,—and out of the land of the going in of the sun; ⁸And I will bring them in, and they shall have their habitation in the midst of Jerusalem,—and shall become my people, and, I, will become their God, In faithfulness and in righteousness. ⁹Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, Let your hands be strong, ye who are hearing, in these days, these words,—from the mouth of the prophets who, on the day the house of Yahweh of hosts, was founded, foretold that, the temple, should be built:—¹⁰That, before those days, hire for man, could not be obtained, and, hire for beast, was there none,—and, neither to him who went out nor to him who came in, was there success by reason of the danger, Yea I let all men loose, each one against his neighbour.

¹¹But, now, not as in the former days, am I to this remnant of the people,—Declareth Yahweh of hosts; ¹²For, the seed, shall be secure—the vine, shall yield her fruit, and the land, yield her increase, and the heavens, yield their dew,—and I will cause this remnant of the people to inherit all these things. ¹³And it shall come to pass that—Just as ye had become a curse among the nations, O house of Judah and house of Israel, So, will I save you, and ye shall become a blessing,—Do not fear, let your hands, be strong. ¹⁴For, thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, Just as I planned to bring calamity upon you, when your fathers provoked me, saith Yahweh of hosts,—and I relented not, ¹⁵So, have I again planned, in these days, to do good unto Jerusalem, and unto the house of Judah,—Do not fear! ¹⁶These, are the things which ye shall do: Speak ye the truth, every man with his neighbour, truth and the sentence of peace, pronounce ye in your gates; ¹⁷And let, no man, devise, the injury of his neighbour, in your heart, and the oath of falsehood, do not love,—for, all these, are things which I hate, declareth Yahweh. ¹⁸And the word of Yahweh of hosts came unto me, saying: ¹⁹Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts—The fast of the fourth, and the fast of the fifth, and the fast of the seventh, and the fast of the eleventh, shall become to the house of Judah a gladness and a rejoicing, and pleasant appointed meetings,—But, truth and peace, see that ye love. ²⁰Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts,—It shall yet be that there shall come in peoples, and the inhabitants of many cities; ²¹And the inhabitants of one city, shall go, unto them of another, saying, Let us be going on to pacify the face of Yahweh, and to seek Yahweh of hosts,—I also, will go! ²²So shall enter many peoples, and strong nations, to seek Yahweh of hosts in Jerusalem,—and to pacify the face of Yahweh. ²³Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, In those days, it shall be that ten men out of all the tongues of the nations, shall take hold,—yea take hold of the skirt of every one that is a Jew, saying—We will go with you! For we have heard that, God, is with you.

⁹The oracle of the word of Yahweh on the land of Hadrach, and, Damascus, shall be the resting-place thereof,—For, Yahweh, hath an eye—to mankind, and to all the tribes of Israel; ²Moreover also, Hamath, adjoineth thereto, Tyre and Zidon,—because very wise; ³Therefore did Tyre build a stronghold for herself,—and did heap up silver like dust, yea gold, like the mire of the lanes. ⁴Lo! My Lord, shall dispossess her, and smite, into the sea, her fortress,—and, she herself, in fire, shall be consumed. ⁵Ashkelon, shall see, and fear, Gaza, also, which shall writhe in great anguish, Ekron, also, because abashed is her expectation,—and the king, shall perish, from Gaza, and, Ashkelon, not be inhabited; ⁶And there shall be seated a half-breed in Ashdod,—So will I cut off the arrogance of the Philistines; ⁷And will take away his reeking prey out of his mouth, and his abominations, from between his teeth, but, he that is left, even he, shall belong to our God,—So shall he become as a chief in Judah, and, Ekron, as a Jebusite! ⁸Then will I encamp about my house—against an army, against him that passeth by, and against him that returneth, neither shall an exactor, tread them down any more,—for, now, have I seen with mine own eyes. ⁹Exult greatly, O daughter of Zion, Shout in triumph, O daughter of Jerusalem, Lo! thy king, cometh unto thee, vindicated and victorious, is he,—lowly, and riding upon an ass, yea, upon a colt, a young ass. ¹⁰So will he cut off the chariot out of Ephraim, and the horse out of Jerusalem, and the war-bow, shall be cut off, So shall he speak peace to the nations, and, his dominion, shall be from sea to sea, and from the river Euphrates to the ends of the earth. ¹¹As for thee also,—By the blood of thy covenant, have I sent forth thy prisoners out of a pit, wherein is no water. ¹²Return to the stronghold, ye prisoners of hope,—Even to-day, do I declare—Double, will I return to thee! ¹³For I have bent for me—Judah, As a bow, have I grasped Ephraim, Thus will I rouse up thy sons, O Zion, against the sons of Greece, and will make thee as the sword of a mighty one. ¹⁴But, Yahweh, over them, will appear, and forth shall go, as lightning, his arrow,—Yea, My Lord Yahweh, with a horn, will blow, and will move along in the whirlwinds of the south. ¹⁵Yahweh of hosts, will throw a covering over them, so shall they eat, and trample underfoot sling-stones, and shall drink—shall shout as with wine,—and shall be filled like tossing-bowls,—like the corners of an altar. ¹⁶So will Yahweh their God, save them, on that day. yea, as a flock of sheep, his people,—for they shall be like the jewels of a diadem sparkling over his land. ¹⁷For how excellent it is! Yea how beautiful! Corn, shall make the young men flourish, and new wine the maidens.

¹⁰Ask ye from Yahweh rain, in the time of the latter rain, Yahweh, who causeth flashes of lightning,—and, rain in abundant showers, giveth he unto them, to every man, herbage in the field; ²For, the household gods, have spoken vanity, and, the diviners, have had vision of falsehood, and, deceitful dreams, do they relate, vainly, do they console,—for this reason, have they moved about like a flock, they suffer ill, because there is no shepherd. ³Against the shepherds, is kindled mine anger, and, upon the leaders of the flock, will I bring punishment,—for Yahweh of hosts hath visited his flock, the house of Judah, and will make them like his noble horse in battle: ⁴From him, the commander, from him, the supporter, from him, the war-bow,—from him, shall proceed every one that driveth on, together; ⁵So shall they become like mighty ones, trampling on the mire of lanes, in battle, and they will fight because, Yahweh, is with them,—and will abash the riders of horses. ⁶So will I make mighty ones of the house of Judah, and, the house of Joseph, will I save, and will cause them to continue, because I have had compassion upon them, So shall they be as though I had not rejected them,—for, I, Yahweh, will be their God, and will answer them; ⁷And they shall be as the mighty one of Ephraim, and their heart, shall rejoice, as through wine,—yea, their children, shall see and rejoice, their heart, shall exult, in Yahweh. ⁸I will signal for them, and will gather them, because I have ransomed them,—and they shall multiply, according as they have multiplied; ⁹Though I scatter them among the peoples, yet, in places far away, shall they remember me,—and they shall live with their children, and shall return; ¹⁰And I will bring them back out of the land of Egypt, and, out of Assyria, will I gather them,—and, into the land of Gilead and Lebanon, will I bring them, and room shall not be found for them: ¹¹Though he pass through a sea of affliction, yet shall he smite the sea, with its waves, and the roaring depths of the Nile, shall appear dry,—So shall be brought down the pride of Assyria, and, the sceptre of Egypt, shall depart; ¹²And I will make them mighty in Yahweh, and, in his name, shall they march to and fro,—Declareth Yahweh.

¹¹Open, O Lebanon, thy doors,—that a fire, may devour, thy cedar, ²Howl, fir-tree, for fallen is the cedar, because, the majestic ones, are spoiled: howl, ye oaks of Bashan, for the inaccessible forest, hath come down. ³The noise of the howling of the shepherds, for spoiled is their majesty,—The noise of the roaring of the young lions, for spoiled are the proud banks of the Jordan. ⁴Thus, saith Yahweh my God,—Tend thou the flock doomed to slaughter: ⁵Whose, buyers, slay them, and are not held guilty, and whose, sellers, say—Blessed be Yahweh, that I am become rich, And so, their own shepherds, have no pity upon them. ⁶Surely I will have pity no longer upon the inhabitants of the earth, Declareth Yahweh,—Therefore lo! I am delivering up mankind, every man into the hand of his neighbour, and into the hand of his king, and they will crush the earth, nor will I deliver out of their hand. ⁷So I tended the flock doomed to slaughter, for the sheep-merchants,—and took unto me two staves, the one, I called Grace, and, the other, I called Union, thus I tended the sheep, ⁸And I sent off three shepherds, in one month,—for impatient was my soul with them, moreover also, their soul, felt a loathing against me. ⁹Then said I—I will not tend you,—the dying, may die, and, the disappearing, may disappear, and, the remainder, may devour one another. ¹⁰So I took my staff Grace, and cut it in two,—that I might set aside my covenant which I had solemnised with all the peoples. ¹¹When it was broken, on that day, then did the sheep-merchants who were watching me, know, that, the word of Yahweh, it was. ¹²Then said I unto them, If it be good in your eyes, give me my wage, and, if not, forbear. So they weighed out my wage, thirty pieces of silver. ¹³Then said Yahweh unto me, Cast it into the treasury, the magnificent price at which I had been valued by them! So I took the thirty pieces of silver, and cast them, in the house of Yahweh, into the treasury. ¹⁴Then cut I in two my second staff, even Union,—that I might break the brotherhood between Judah and Israel. ¹⁵Then said Yahweh unto me,—Yet further take thee the implements of a worthless shepherd. ¹⁶For lo! I am raising up a shepherd in the land, the disappearing, will he not visit, the straying, will he not seek, and, the fractured, will he not bind up,—the weak, will he not nourish, but, the flesh of the fat, will he eat, and, their hoofs, will he break in pieces. ¹⁷Alas! for my worthless shepherd, who forsaketh the flock, A sword upon his arm, and upon his right eye!—his arm, shall be, utterly withered, and, his right eye, shall be, wholly darkened.

¹²The oracle of the word of Yahweh, on Israel,—Declareth Yahweh—Stretching out the heavens, and founding the earth, and fashioning the spirit of man within him: ²Lo! I am making Jerusalem a bowl of reeling to all the peoples, round about,—Moreover also, on Judah, shall it be in the siege against Jerusalem; ³And it shall come to pass, in that day, that I will make Jerusalem a lifting-stone, to all the peoples, all who seek to lift her, shall, cut themselves in pieces,—though all the nations of the earth, gather themselves together against her. ⁴In that day, Declareth Yahweh, I will smite every horse with terror, and his rider with madness,—and, over the house of Judah, will I keep opening mine eyes, and, every horse of the peoples, will I smite with blindness. ⁵Then will the chiefs of Judah say in their hearts,—A strength unto me, would be the inhabitants of Jerusalem, in Yahweh of hosts, their God. ⁶In that day, will I make the chiefs of Judah like a pan of fire among sticks, and like a torch of fire in a sheaf, so shall they devour, on the right hand and on the left, all the peoples round about; so shall Jerusalem yet, be inhabited, in her own place, as Jerusalem. ⁷But Yahweh will save the tents of Judah first,—lest the honour of the house of David, and the honour of the inhabitant of Jerusalem, should be magnified over Judah. ⁸In that day, will Yahweh, throw a covering, around the inhabitant of Jerusalem, so shall the tottering among them, in that day, become like David,—and the house of David—like God, like the messenger of Yahweh, before them. ⁹And it shall come to pass, in that day,—That I will seek to destroy all the nations, that come against Jerusalem. ¹⁰But I will pour out upon the house of David and upon the inhabitant of Jerusalem, the spirit of favour, and of supplications, and they will look unto me, whom they have pierced,—and will wail over him, as one waileth over an only son, and will make bitter outcry over him, as one maketh bitter outcry over a firstborn. ¹¹In that day, will the wailing, be great, in Jerusalem, as the wailing of Hadadrimmon, in the valley of Megiddon; ¹²So shall the land, wail, family by family, apart,—the family of the house of David apart, and their wives apart, the family of the house of Nathan apart, and their wives apart; ¹³The family of the house of Levi, apart, and their wives apart, the family of Shimei, apart,—and their wives apart: ¹⁴All the families that remain, family by family, apart,—and their wives, apart.

¹³In that day, there shall be an opened fountain, for the house of David, and for the Inhabitants of Jerusalem,—for sin and for uncleanness. ²And it shall come to pass, in that day, declareth Yahweh of hosts, That I will cut off the names of idols out of the land, and they shall not be remembered any more,—Moreover also, even the prophets and the spirit of impurity, will I cause to pass away out of the land. ³So shall it come about that, when any man shall prophesy again, then will his own father and his own mother, of whom he was born, say unto him,—Thou shalt not live! For falsehood hast thou spoken in the name of Yahweh,—So will his own father and his own mother of whom he was born, pierce him through, when he prophesieth, ⁴Yea it shall come to pass, in that day, that the prophets, will turn pale, every man by reason of his vision when he prophesieth,—neither will they put on a mantle of hair to deceive. ⁵But he will say, No prophet, am I,—One tilling the ground, am I, for, one of the common people, hath owned me from my youth. ⁶Then will one say unto him, What are these wounds between thy hands? And he will say, Wherewith I was wounded in the house of them who loved me. ⁷O Sword! awake against my shepherd, even against the man that is my companion, urgeth Yahweh of hosts,—Smite the shepherd, and let the flock, be scattered, Howbeit I will turn back my hand over the little ones. ⁸And it shall come to pass, in all the land, declareth Yahweh, Two-thirds therein, shall be cut off, and expire,—but, a third, shall be left therein; ⁹And I will bring the third into the fire, and will smelt them as one smelteth silver, and will try them, as one trieth gold,—It, will call upon my name, and, I, will answer it, and will say, My people, it is! and, it, will say, Yahweh, is my God!

¹⁴Lo! a day, cometh, pertaining to Yahweh,—when apportioned shall be thy spoil in thy midst; ²Yea I will gather together all the nations unto Jerusalem, to battle, and the city, shall be captured, and the houses, plundered, and, the women, ravished,—and half of the city, shall go forth, into exile, but, the remainder of the people, shall not be cut off out of the city. ³Then will Yahweh go forth, and fight against those nations,—just as he did in the day when he fought, in the day of battle; ⁴Yea his feet, shall stand, in that day, on the Mount of Olives, which is before Jerusalem on the east, and the Mount of Olives, shall

cleave asunder, from the midst thereof, towards the east and towards the west, an exceeding great valley,—and half of the mountain, shall give way, toward the north, and half of it toward the south. ⁵Then shall ye flee to the valley of my mountains, for the valley of the mountains, shall reach, very near, Yea, ye shall flee, just as ye fled from before the earthquake, in the days of Uzziah king of Judah,—Then, shall arrive, Yahweh my God, All thy holy ones, with thee! ⁶And it shall come to pass, in that day,—that there shall be no light, the bright stars, shall be withdrawn; ⁷And it shall be a day by itself, The same, shall be known unto Yahweh—Not day, nor night,—But it shall come to pass, that, at evening time, there shall be light. ⁸And it shall come to pass, in that day, that there shall go forth living waters out of Jerusalem, half of them unto the sea before, and half of them unto the sea behind, in summer and in winter, shall it be. ⁹So will Yahweh become king over all the earth,—In that day, shall there be one Yahweh, and, his Name, be one. ¹⁰All the land shall turn into a plain, from Geba to Rimmon, south of Jerusalem,—and shall lift herself on high and abide in her own place, from the gate of Benjamin up to the place of the first gate, up to the corner gate, and from the tower of Hananeel up to the wine-presses of the king. ¹¹So shall men dwell therein, and, utter destruction, shall not be any more,—but Jerusalem, shall abide, in security. ¹²And, this, shall be the plague wherewith Yahweh will plague all the peoples who have made war against Jerusalem,—his flesh, shall be made to rot, while he is standing upon his feet, and, his eyes, shall rot in their sockets, and, his tongue, shall rot in their mouth; ¹³And it shall come to pass, in that day, that there shall be a great confusion from Yahweh among them,—and they will lay hold every one upon the hand of his neighbour, and his hand, will rise up, against the hand of his neighbour; ¹⁴Moreover also, Judah, will fight with Jerusalem,—and the wealth of all the nations round about, shall be gathered together, gold and silver and apparel, in great abundance. ¹⁵And, so, shall be the plague of the horse, the mule, the camel, and the ass, and all the beasts which shall be in those camps,—like this plague! ¹⁶And it shall come to pass, that, as for every one that is left out of all the nations that came against Jerusalem, that they shall come up, from year to year, to bow down to the king, Yahweh of hosts, and to celebrate the festival of booths. ¹⁷And it shall come to pass that—whoso shall not come up out of the families of the earth unto Jerusalem, to bow down to the king, Yahweh of hosts,—there shall not, on them, be any rain. ¹⁸And, if the family of Egypt shall not come up, and shall not enter in, upon whom there falleth none, then shall smite them the plague wherewith Yahweh, did plague, the nations, because they came not up to celebrate the festival of booths. ¹⁹This, shall be the punishment of Egypt,—and the punishment of all the nations, when they come not up to celebrate the festival of booths. ²⁰In that day, shall there be inscribed upon the bells of the horses, Holy unto Yahweh,—and the caldrons in the house of Yahweh shall be like the dashing bowls before the altar. ²¹And every caldron in Jerusalem and in Judah shall be Holy unto Yahweh of hosts,—So shall all who are offering sacrifice, come in, and take of them, and boil therein,—Neither shall there be a merchant any more in the house of Yahweh of hosts, in that day.

Malachi

¹The oracle of the word of Yahweh, unto Israel,—by the hand of Malachi. ²I have loved you, saith Yahweh, and yet ye say, Wherein hast thou loved us? Is not Esau, brother, to Jacob? enquireth Yahweh, Yet have I loved Jacob, ³And, Esau, have I hated,— and made his mountains a desolation, and his inheritance a dwelling for the jackals of the wilderness. ⁴Whereas Edom, may say, We are laid waste, but we will again build the desolate places, Thus, saith Yahweh of hosts, They, may build, but, I, will pull down,— and men shall call them, The Boundary of Lawlessness, and, The people with whom Yahweh hath indignation unto times age-abiding; ⁵And, your own eyes, shall see,—and, ye yourselves, shall say, Yahweh, be magnified, beyond the boundary of Israel. ⁶A son, will honour a father, and, a servant, his lord,— If then, a father, I am, where is mine honour? And, if, a lord, I am, where is my reverence? saith Yahweh of hosts— to you, ye priests, who despise my Name, and yet say, Wherein have we despised thy Name? ⁷In bringing near upon mine altar, polluted food, while yet ye say, Wherein have we polluted thee? Because ye say, As for the table of Yahweh, a thing to be despised, it is; ⁸And when ye bring near the blind as a sacrifice, saying —No harm! or when ye bring near the lame or the sick saying —No harm! Offer it, I pray you, unto thy pasha, Will he accept thee? or lift up thy countenance? saith Yahweh of hosts. ⁹Now, therefore, pacify, I pray you, the face of GOD, that he may grant us favour,—at your hands, hath this come to pass, Will he lift up the countenances, of any of you? saith Yahweh of hosts. ¹⁰Who is there, even among you, that will shut the doors, so as not to set light to mine altar, for nothing? I can take no pleasure in you, saith Yahweh of hosts, and, your present, can I not accept at your hand. ¹¹For, from the rising of the sun, even unto the going in thereof, great is my Name among the nations, and, in every place, incense, is offered to my Name, and a pure present,—for great is my Name among the nations, saith Yahweh of hosts. ¹²But ye are profaning me,— in that ye say, As for the table of the Lord, polluted it is, and, as for his produce, contemptible is his food. ¹³And ye have said, Lo! what a weariness! And ye have snuffed at Me, saith Yahweh of hosts, and have brought in the torn and the lame and the sick, thus have ye brought the present,— Could I accept it at your hand? saith Yahweh. ¹⁴But accursed is he that defraudeth, who, when there is in his flock a male, yet voweth and sacrificeth a corrupt thing to the Lord, for, a great king, am I, saith Yahweh of hosts, and, my Name, is revered among the nations.

²Now, therefore, for you, is this charge, O ye priests:— ²If ye will not hear, and if ye will not lay it to heart, to give glory to my Name, saith Yahweh of hosts, then will I send among you the curse, and will curse your blessings,—and indeed I have cursed them, because ye are not at all laying it to heart. ³Behold me! threatening, on your account, the seed, and I will scatter refuse upon your faces, the refuse of your festivals,—and one shall carry you away unto it; ⁴So shall ye know that I sent unto you this charge,—as being my covenant with Levi, saith Yahweh of hosts. ⁵My covenant, was with him, Life and Well-being, so I gave them to him— I as One to be revered— and he did revere me,— and, before my Name, dismayed, was he. ⁶The deliverance of truth, was in his mouth, and, perverseness, was not found in his lips,— In well-doing and in uprightness, walked he with me, and, multitudes, did he turn from iniquity. ⁷For, the lips of a priest, should keep knowledge, and, a deliverance, should men seek at his mouth,— for, the messenger of Yahweh of hosts, he is. ⁸But, ye, have departed out of the way, ye have caused multitudes to stumble at the deliverance,— ye have violated the covenant of Levi, saith Yahweh of hosts. ⁹Therefore, I also, will suffer you to be despised and of no account unto all the people,— in proportion as none of you have been keeping my ways, but have had respect to persons, in giving your deliverance. ¹⁰Is there not, one Father, to us all? Did not, one GOD, create us? Wherefore should we deal treacherously one with another, profaning the covenant of our fathers? ¹¹Judah, hath dealt treacherously, and, an abomination, hath been wrought in Israel, and in Jerusalem,— for Judah, had profaned, the holy place of Yahweh, which he had loved, and hath taken to himself the daughter of a foreign GOD. ¹²May Yahweh, cut off, from the man that doeth it—him that crieth out and him that answereth, out of the tents of Jacob,— him also that bringeth near a present to Yahweh of hosts. ¹³And, this, a second time, will ye do, covering with tears, the altar of Yahweh, weeping and making outcry,—because he will not again turn unto the gift, and receive it with acceptance, at your hands? ¹⁴Yet ye say, For what cause? Because, Yahweh, hath been witness between thee and the wife of thy youth, with whom, thou, hast dealt treacherously, though, she, was thy consort, and thy covenant wife. ¹⁵Now was it not, One, who made you who had, the residue of the spirit? What, then, of that One? He was seeking a godly seed. Therefore should ye take heed to your spirit, and, with the wife of thy youth, do not thou deal treacherously. ¹⁶For he hateth divorce, saith Yahweh, God of Israel, him also who covereth with violence his own clothing, saith Yahweh of hosts,—therefore should ye take heed to your spirit, and not deal treacherously. ¹⁷Ye have wearied Yahweh with your words, and yet ye say, Wherein have we been wearisome? When ye have said, Everyone who doeth wrong, is right in the eyes of Yahweh, and, in them, he hath taken delight, or, Where is the God of justice?

3Behold me! sending my messenger, who will prepare a way before me,— and, suddenly, shall come to his temple The Lord whom ye are seeking, even the messenger of the covenant in whom ye are delighting, Lo! he cometh! saith Yahweh of hosts. ²But who may endure the day of his coming? And who is he that can stand when he appeareth? For he is like a refiner's fire, and like fullers' alkali; ³Therefore will he sit as a refiner and purifier of silver, and will purify the sons of Levi, and will smelt them, as gold and as silver; so shall they belong to Yahweh, offering a gift in righteousness. ⁴Then shall the gift of Judah and Jerusalem, be pleasant to Yahweh,—as in the days of age-past times, and as in the ancient years. ⁵Therefore will I draw near unto you for judgment, and will become a swift witness against the mutterers of incantations, and against the adulterers, and against them that swear to a falsehood,—and against them who rob the hire of the hireling, the widow and the fatherless, and that drive away the sojourner, and do not revere me, saith Yahweh of hosts. ⁶Because, I, Yahweh, have not changed, therefore, ye, the sons of Jacob, have not been utterly consumed. ⁷From the days of your fathers, have ye departed from my statutes, and not observed them, Return ye unto me, that I may return unto you, saith Yahweh of hosts. And yet ye say, Wherein shall we return? ⁸Will, a son of earth, defraud, God? Nevertheless, ye, have been defrauding me, and yet ye say, Wherein have we defrauded thee? In the tithe and the offering. ⁹With a curse, have ye been cursing, and yet, me, have ye been defrauding,— the whole nation. ¹⁰Bring ye all the tithe into the storehouse, that there may be food in my house, Yea, I pray you, put me to the proof hereby, saith Yahweh of hosts, whether I will not open to you the sluices of the heavens, and pour out for you blessing, until there be no room. ¹¹Then will I rebuke, for you, the devourer that he spoil not, for you, the fruit of the ground,—neither shall the vine in the field, be barren to you, saith Yahweh of hosts. ¹²So shall all the nations, pronounce you happy,—for, ye, shall become, a land of delight, saith Yahweh of hosts. ¹³Stout against me, have been your words, saith Yahweh,—and yet ye say, What have we spoken, one to another, against thee? ¹⁴Ye have said, Vain is it to serve God,—and, What profit when we have kept his charge, or when we have walked gloomily before Yahweh of hosts? ¹⁵Now, therefore, we are pronouncing happy—the proud,—and, the doers of lawlessness have, even been built up, and, they who have put God to the proof, have even been delivered. ¹⁶Then, they who revered Yahweh, conversed, one with another,—and Yahweh hearkened, and heard, and there was written a book of remembrance before him, for them who revered Yahweh, and for such as thought of his Name. ¹⁷Therefore shall they be mine, saith Yahweh of hosts, in the day for which, I, am preparing treasure,—and I will deal tenderly with them, just as a man, dealeth tenderly, with his own son who is serving him. ¹⁸So shall ye return, and see the difference, between the righteous and the lawless,—between him that serveth God, and him that serveth him not.

4For lo! the day, cometh, that burneth as a furnace,—and, all the proud and everyone who worketh lawlessness, shall be, stubble, and the day that cometh, shall consume them utterly, saith Yahweh of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch. ²So shall the sun of righteousness, arise to you who revere my Name, with healing in his wings,—and ye shall come forth and leap for joy like calves let loose from the stall; ³And ye shall tread down the lawless, for they shall be ashes under the soles of your feet,—in the day when I am working with effect, saith Yahweh of hosts. ⁴Remember ye the law of Moses my servant,—which I commanded him in Horeb, for all Israel, statutes and regulations. ⁵Lo! I am sending unto you Elijah the prophet,—before the coming of the great and awful day of Yahweh; ⁶And he shall bring back the heart of the fathers unto the children, and the heart of the children unto their fathers,—lest I come, and smite the land, with utter destruction.

Part II

The New Testament

Matthew

¹The Lineage Roll of Jesus Christ,—Son of David, Son of Abraham. ²Abraham begat Isaac, and Isaac begat Jacob, and Jacob, begat Judah and his brethren; ³And Judah begat Perez and Zarah of Tamah, and Perez begat Hezron, and Hezron begat Ram; ⁴And Ram begat Amminadab, and Amminadab begat Nashon, and Nashon begat Salmon; ⁵And Salmon begat Boaz of Rahab, and Boaz begat Obed of Ruth, and Obed begat Jesse; ⁶And Jesse begat David the King. And David begat Solomon of her that had been the wife of Uriah; ⁷And Solomon begat Rehoboam, and Rehoboam begat Abijah, and Abijah begat Asa; ⁸And Asa begat Jehoshaphat, and Jehoshaphat begat Joram, and Joram begat Uzziah; ⁹And Uzziah begat Jotham, and Jotham begat Ahaz, and Ahaz begat Hezekiah: ¹⁰And Hezekiah begat Manasseh, and Manasseh begat Amon, and Amon begat Josiah; ¹¹And Josiah begat Jechoniah, and his brethren,—upon the removal to Babylon. ¹²And, after the removal to Babylon, Jechoniah begat Shealtiel, and Shealtiel begat Zerubbabel; ¹³And Zerubbabel begat Abiud, and Abiud begat Eliakim, and Eliakim begat Azor; ¹⁴And Azor begat Sadoc, and Sadoc begat Achim, and Achim begat Eliud; ¹⁵And Eliud begat Eleazar, and Eleazar begat Matthan, and Matthan begat Jacob;—¹⁶And Jacob begat Joseph, the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus,—who is called Christ. ¹⁷So then, all the generations from Abraham unto David, are, fourteen, generations, and, from David unto the removal to Babylon, fourteen, generations; and, from the removal to Babylon unto the Christ, fourteen, generations. ¹⁸Now the birth, of \ul1 Jesus\ul0 Christ, was, thus: His mother Mary having been betrothed to Joseph,—before they came together, she was found with child by the Holy Spirit. ¹⁹Moreover, Joseph her husband, being, righteous, and yet unwilling to expose her,—intended, privately, to divorce her. ²⁰But, when, these things, he had pondered, lo! a messenger of the Lord, by dream, appeared to him, saying,—Joseph, son of David! do not fear to take unto thee Mary thy wife, for, that which, in her, hath been begotten, is of the , Holy Spirit. ²¹Moreover she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus,—for, he, will save his people from their sins. ²²But, all this, hath come to pass, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Lord, through the prophet, saying: ²³Lo! a Virgin, shall be with child, and shall bring forth a son,—and they shall call his name Emmanuel; which is, being translated, God with us. ²⁴And Joseph, awaking, from his sleep, did as the messenger of the Lord directed him,—and took unto him his wife; ²⁵and knew her not, until she had brought forth a son,—and he called his name Jesus.

²Now, when, Jesus, was born in Bethlehem of Judaea, in the days of Herod the king, lo! wise men from eastern parts, came into Jerusalem: ²saying—Where is he that hath been born king of the Jews? for we saw his star in the east, and have come to bow down to him. ³But, when King Herod heard, he was troubled, and all Jerusalem with him; ⁴and, assembling all the high-priests and scribes of the people, he was enquiring of them—Where is, the Christ, to be born? ⁵And, they, said to him, In Bethlehem of Judaea,—for, so, is it written through the prophet: ⁶And, thou, Bethlehem, land of Judah, by no means least, art thou, among the governors of Judah,—For, out of thee, shall one come forth to govern, Who shall shepherd my people Israel. ⁷Then Herod, privately, calling the wise men, ascertained from them the time of the appearing star; ⁸and sending them to Bethlehem, said—Go search out accurately concerning the child,—and, as soon as ye find it, bring report unto me, that, I also, may come and bow myself down to it. ⁹Now, they, hearing the king, went, and lo! the star which they had seen in the east, was going before them, until it went and stood over where the child was; ¹⁰and, seeing the star, they rejoiced with exceeding great joy; ¹¹and, coming into the house, they saw the child, with Mary its mother,—and, falling down, prostrated themselves unto it, and, opening their treasures, offered unto it gifts—gold and frankincense and myrrh; ¹²and, being instructed by dream, not to return unto Herod, by another way, retired they unto their own country. ¹³Now, when they had retired, lo! a messenger of the Lord, appeareth by dream unto Joseph, saying, Arise, take unto thee the child and its mother, and flee into Egypt, and be there, until I tell thee,—for Herod is about to seek the child, to destroy it. ¹⁴And, he, arising, took unto him the child and its mother, by night, and retired into Egypt; ¹⁵and was there, until the death of Herod,—that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the Lord through the prophet, saying, Out of Egypt, called I my son. ¹⁶Then Herod, seeing that he had been mocked by the wise men, was exceedingly enraged,—and sent and slew all the male children that were in Bethlehem, and in all its bounds, from two years old and under, according to the time which he had ascertained from the wise men. ¹⁷Then was fulfilled, that which was spoken through Jeremiah the prophet, saying: ¹⁸A voice, in Ramah, was heard, weeping and great mourning,—Rachel weeping for her children, and would not be comforted,—because they are not. ¹⁹But, when Herod was, dead, lo! a messenger of the Lord, appeareth by dream unto Joseph in Egypt; ²⁰saying—Arise! and take unto thee the child and its mother, and be journeying into the land of Israel,—for they are dead, who were seeking the life of the child. ²¹And, he, arising, took unto him the child and its mother, and entered into the land of Israel. ²²Hearing, however, that, Archelaus, was reigning over Judaea instead of his father Herod, he was afraid, thither, to go,—and so, being instructed by dream, he retired into the parts of Galilee; ²³and came and fixed his dwelling in a city called Nazareth,—that it might be fulfilled which was spoken through the prophets—A Nazarene, shall he be called.

be immersed by him. ¹⁴But, he, would have hindered him, saying—I, have, need, by thee, to be immersed,—and dost, thou, come unto me? ¹⁵But Jesus answering, said unto him, Suffer me even now,—for, thus, it becometh us, to fulfil, all righteousness; then, he suffered him. ¹⁶And Jesus, having been immersed, straightway, went up from the water,—and lo! the heavens were opened and he saw the Spirit of God, descending like a dove coming upon him; ¹⁷and lo! a voice out of the heavens,—saying, This, is my Son, the Beloved, in whom I delight.

⁴Then, Jesus was led up into the wilderness, by the Spirit, to be tempted by the adversary; ²and, fasting forty days and forty nights,—afterwards, he hungered. ³And, coming near, the tempter said to him,—If thou art God's, Son, speak! that, these stones, may become, loaves. ⁴But, he, answering, said, It is written,—Not on bread alone, shall man live, but on every declaration coming forth through the mouth of God. ⁵Then, the adversary taketh him with him, unto the holy city,—and he set him upon the pinnacle of the temple; ⁶and saith to him—If thou art God's, Son, cast thyself down,—for it is written, To his messengers, will he give charge concerning thee; and, on hands, will they bear thee up, lest once thou strike, against a stone, thy foot. ⁷Jesus said to him, Again, it is written,—Thou shalt not put to the test, the Lord thy God. ⁸Again, the adversary taketh him with him, into an exceeding high mountain,—and pointeth out to him all the kingdoms of the world, and their glory; ⁹and said to him, All these things, will I give thee,—if thou wilt fall down and worship me. ¹⁰Then saith Jesus unto him, Withdraw, Satan! for it is written,—The Lord thy God, shalt thou worship, and, to him alone, render divine service. ¹¹Then, the adversary leaveth him,—and lo! messengers came near, and began ministering unto him. ¹²And, hearing that, John, had been delivered up, he retired into Galilee; ¹³and, forsaking Nazareth, he came and fixed his dwelling in Capernaum, which was by the lake,—within the bounds of Zebulun and Naphtali: ¹⁴that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken through Isaiah the prophet, saying: ¹⁵Land of Zebulun, and land of Naphtali, the lake-way across the Jordan,—Galilee of the nations, ¹⁶The people that was sitting in darkness, a great light, beheld,—and, on them who were sitting in land and shade of death, Light rose on them. ¹⁷From that time, began Jesus to be making proclamation, and saying,—Repent ye, for the kingdom of the heavens hath drawn near. ¹⁸And, walking round beside the sea of Galilee, he saw two brethren—Simon who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother,—casting a large fishing-net into the sea, for they were fishers; ¹⁹and he saith unto them, Come after me,—and I will make you fishers, of men. ²⁰And, they, straightway, leaving the nets, followed him. ²¹And, going forward from thence, he saw other two brethren—James the son of Zebedee, and

John his brother—in the boat with Zebedee their father, putting in order their nets,—and he called them. ²²And, they, straightway, leaving the boat and their father, followed him. ²³And Jesus was going round throughout all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and proclaiming the glad-message of the kingdom,—and curing every disease, and every infirmity, among the people. ²⁴And forth went the report of him into all Syria; and they brought unto him all who were sick, with divers diseases and tortures, distressed, demonized and lunatic and paralyzed,—and he cured them. ²⁵And there followed him large multitudes—from Galilee, and Decapolis, and Jerusalem, and Judaea, and across the Jordan.

⁵But, seeing the multitudes, he went up into a mountain, and, when he had taken a seat, his disciples came unto him; ²and, opening his mouth, he began teaching them, saying:—³Happy, the destitute, in spirit; for, theirs, is the kingdom of the heavens; ⁴Happy, they who mourn; for, they, shall be comforted: ⁵Happy, the meek; for, they, shall inherit the earth: ⁶Happy, they who hunger and thirst for righteousness; for, they, shall be filled: ⁷Happy, the merciful; for, they, shall receive mercy: ⁸Happy, the pure, in heart; for, they, shall, see God: ⁹Happy, the peace-makers; for, they, shall be, called sons of God: ¹⁰Happy, they who have been persecuted for righteousness' sake; for, theirs, is the kingdom of the heavens. ¹¹Happy, are ye, whensoever they may reproach you and persecute you, and say every evil thing against you, falsely, for my sake: ¹²Rejoice and exult, because, your reward, is great in the heavens; for, so, persecuted they the prophets who were before you. ¹³Ye, are the salt of the earth; but, if the salt become tasteless, wherewith shall it be salted? it is good, for nothing, any more, save, being cast out, to be trampled on by men. ¹⁴Ye, are the light of the world: it is impossible for a city to be hid, on the top of a mountain, lying. ¹⁵Neither light they a lamp, and place it under the measure; but upon the lampstand, and it giveth light to all that are in the house. ¹⁶In like manner, let your light shine before men,—that they may see your good works,—and glorify your Father who is in the heavens. ¹⁷Do not think, that I came to pull down the law, or the prophets,—I came not to pull down, but to fulfil. ¹⁸For, verily, I say unto you, until the heaven and the earth shall pass away, one least letter, or one point, may in nowise pass away from the law, till all be accomplished. ¹⁹Whosoever, therefore, shall relax one of these commandments, the least, and teach men so, shall be called, least, in the kingdom of the heavens; but, whosoever shall do and teach, the same, shall be called, great, in the kingdom of the heavens. ²⁰For I say unto you, that, unless your righteousness exceed that of the Scribes and Pharisees, in nowise, may ye enter into the kingdom of the heavens. ²¹Ye have heard, that it was said, to them of olden time,—Thou shalt not commit murder, and, whosoever shall commit murder, shall be, liable, to judgment. ²²But, I, say unto you, that, every one who is angry with his brother, shall be, liable, to judgment,—and, whosoever shall say to his brother, Worthless one!, shall be, liable, to the high council; and, whosoever shall say, Rebel!, shall be, liable, unto the fiery gehenna. ²³If, therefore, thou be bearing thy gift towards the altar, and, there, shouldst remember that, thy brother, hath aught against thee, ²⁴leave, there, thy gift before the altar, and withdraw,—first, be reconciled unto thy brother, and, then, coming, be offering thy gift. ²⁵Be making agreement with thine adversary, quickly, while thou art with him, in the way,—lest once thine adversary deliver thee up unto the judge, and the judge, unto the officer, and, into prison, thou be cast. ²⁶Verily, I say unto thee, In nowise, mayest thou come out from thence, until thou pay the last half-penny. ²⁷Ye have heard, that it was said, Thou shalt not commit adultery: ²⁸But, I, say unto you, that, Every one who looketh on a woman so as to covet her, already, hath committed adultery with her, in his heart. ²⁹And, if, thy right eye, is causing thee to stumble, pluck it out, and cast it from thee,—for it profiteth thee, that, one of thy members, should perish, and not, thy whole body, be cast into gehenna. ³⁰And, if, thy right hand, is causing thee to stumble, cut it off, and cast it from thee,—for it profiteth thee, that, one of thy members, should perish, and not, thy whole body, into gehenna, depart. ³¹It was said, moreover, Whosoever shall divorce his wife, let him give her a writing of divorcement; ³²But, I, say unto you, that, Everyone who divorceth his wife—saving for unfaithfulness, causeth her to be made an adulteress,—\u01 and, whosoever shall marry a divorced woman, committeth adultery\u01 . ³³Again, ye have heard that it was said, to them of olden time, Thou shalt not swear falsely,—but shalt render unto the Lord, thine oaths. ³⁴But, I, tell you—not to swear, at all: Neither by heaven, because it is the, throne of God,—³⁵Nor by the earth, because it is his, footstool; nor by Jerusalem, because, it is the, city, of the Great King; ³⁶Nor, by thine own head, mayest thou swear, because thou art not able to make, one hair, white or black. ³⁷But let your word be, Yea, yea,—Nay, nay; and, what goeth beyond these, is, of evil. ³⁸Ye have heard, that it was said,—Eye for eye, and tooth for tooth. ³⁹But, I, tell you, not to resist evil,—Nay, whoever is smiting thee on the right cheek, turn to him, the other also; ⁴⁰And, him who is desiring thee to be judged, and to take, thy tunic, let him have, thy mantle also. ⁴¹And, whoever shall impress thee one mile, go with him two: ⁴²To him who is asking thee, give; and, him who is desiring from thee to borrow, do not thou turn away. ⁴³Ye have heard, that it was said, Thou shalt love thy neighbour, and hate thine enemy. ⁴⁴But, I, say unto you, Be loving your enemies, and praying for them who are persecuting you: ⁴⁵That ye may become sons of your Father who is in the heavens:

because, his sun, he maketh arise on evil and good, and sendeth rain, on just and unjust. ⁴⁶For, if ye love them that love you, what reward have ye? are not, even the tax-collectors, the same thing, doing? ⁴⁷And, if ye salute your brethren only, what, more than common, are ye doing? are not, even the nations, the same thing, doing? ⁴⁸Ye, therefore, shall become, perfect: as, your heavenly Father, is perfect.

⁶But take heed, that ye do not, your righteousness, before men, to be gazed at by them,—otherwise at least, reward, have ye none, with your Father who is in the heavens. ²When, therefore, thou mayest be doing an alms, do not sound a trumpet before thee, just as, the hypocrites, do in the synagogues and in the streets—that they may be glorified by men,—Verily, I say unto you, they are getting back their reward. ³But, thou, when doing an alms, let not, thy left hand, know what thy right hand is doing; ⁴that thine alms may be in secret,—and, thy Father, who seeth in secret, will give it back to thee. ⁵And, when ye may be praying, ye shall not be as the hypocrites, because they love, in the synagogues, and at the corners of the broad ways, to take their stand and pray, that they may shine before men; Verily, I say unto you, they are getting back their reward. ⁶But, thou, when thou wouldest pray, enter into thy closet, and, fastening thy door, pray unto thy Father who is in secret,—and, thy Father who seeth in secret, will reward thee. ⁷And, being at prayer, use not vain repetitions, just like the nations,—for they think, that, in their much speaking, they shall be hoard; ⁸do not, therefore, make yourselves like them, for God your Father knoweth of what things ye have, need, before ye ask him. ⁹Thus, therefore pray, ye: Our Father, who art in the heavens,—Hallowed be thy name, ¹⁰Come may thy kingdom,—Accomplished be thy will, as in heaven, also on earth: ¹¹Our needful bread, give us, this day; ¹²And forgive us our debts, as, we also, have forgiven our debtors; ¹³And bring us not into temptation, but rescue us from the evil one. ¹⁴For, if ye forgive men their faults, Your Father who is in the heavens, will forgive, even you; ¹⁵But, if ye forgive not men their faults, neither will your Father forgive, your faults. ¹⁶And, when ye may be fasting, become not ye, as the hypocrites, of sullen countenance,—for they darken their looks, that they may appear, unto men, to be fasting; Verily, I say unto you, they are getting back their reward. ¹⁷But, when, thou, art fasting, anoint thy head, and, thy face, wash,—¹⁸that thou do not appear, unto men, to be fasting, but to thy Father who is in secret,—and, thy Father who seeth in secret, will reward thee. ¹⁹Be not laying up for yourselves treasures upon the earth, where, moth and rust, do tarnish, and where, thieves, dig through and steal; ²⁰but be laying up or yourselves treasures in heaven, where, neither moth nor rust, doth tarnish, and where, thieves, dig not through nor steal:

²¹for, where, thy treasure, is, there, will be, thy heart also. ²²The lamp of the body, is the eye: if therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body, shall be, lighted up; ²³But, if thine eye be, evil, thy whole body, shall be, in the dark;—if therefore, the light which is in thee, is, darkness, the darkness, how great! ²⁴No one, unto two masters, can be in service; for either, the one, he will hate, and, the other, love, or, one, he will hold to, and, the other, despise: Ye cannot be in service, unto God, and, unto Riches. ²⁵For this cause, I say unto you: Be not anxious for your life, what ye shall eat or what ye shall drink,—or for your body, what ye shall put on: Is not, the life, more than, the food? And, the body, than, the raiment? ²⁶Observe intently, the birds of the heaven,—that they neither sow, nor reap, nor gather into barns, and yet, your heavenly Father, feedeth, them: Are no, ye, much better than, they? ²⁷But who from among you, being anxious, can add to his stature one cubit? ²⁸And, about clothing, why are ye anxious? Consider well the lilies of the field, how they grow,—they toil not neither do they spin; ²⁹And yet, I say unto you, not even Solomon, in all his glory, was arrayed like, one of these! ³⁰Now, if the grass of the field—which to-day, is, and, to-morrow, into an oven, is cast—God thus adorneth, not much rather, you, little of faith? ³¹Do not then be anxious saying, What shall we eat? or What shall we drink? or Wherewithal shall we be arrayed? ³²For, all these things, the nations, seek after,—for your heavenly Father, knoweth, that ye are needing, all these things. ³³But be seeking first, the kingdom and its righteousness,—and, all these things, shall be added unto you. ³⁴Do not, then, be anxious for the morrow; for the morrow, will be anxious, for itself: Sufficient for the day, is the evil thereof.

⁷Judge not, that ye be not judged;—²For, with what judgment ye judge, shall ye be judged,—and, with what measure ye mete, shall it be measured unto you. ³Why, moreover, beholdest thou the mote, in the eye of thy brother,—while, the beam in thine own eye, thou dost not consider? ⁴Or how wilt thou say unto thy brother, Let me cast the mote out of thine eye,—when lo! a beam, is in thine own eye? ⁵Hypocrite! cast first, out of thine own eye, the beam,—and, then, shalt thou see clearly to cast the mote, out of the eye of thy brother. ⁶Do not give what is holy unto dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine,—lest once they trample, them, down with their feet, and, turning, tear, you. ⁷Be asking, and it shall be given you, Be seeking, and ye shall find,—Be knocking, and it shall be opened unto you. ⁸For, whosoever asketh, receiveth, and, he that seeketh, findeth,—and, to him that knocketh, shall it be opened. ⁹Or what man, from among yourselves, whom his son shall ask for a loaf,—a stone, will give him? ¹⁰Or, a fish also, shall ask,—a serpent, will give him? ¹¹If then, ye, being, evil, know how, good gifts, to be giving

unto your children, how much more, will, your Father who is in the heavens, give good things to them that ask, him? ¹²Whatsoever things, therefore, ye would, that men be doing unto you, so, be, ye also, doing, unto them,—for, this, is the law and the prophets. ¹³Enter ye in at, the narrow gate; because broad and roomy is the way that leadeth unto destruction,—and, many, are they who enter thereby: ¹⁴Because, narrow, is the gate, and, confined, the way, that leadeth unto life,—and, few, are they who find, it. ¹⁵Beware of false prophets, who come unto you in clothing of sheep,—while, within, they are ravening wolves. ¹⁶By their fruits, shall ye find, them, out,—unless perhaps men gather—from thorns, grapes! or, from thistles, figs! ¹⁷So, every good tree, fine fruit, produceth,—whereas, the worthless tree, evil fruit, produceth: ¹⁸It is, impossible, for a, good tree, to be bearing, evil fruit, neither doth, a worthless tree, produce, fine fruit. ¹⁹Every tree that beareth not fine fruit, is hewn down, and, into fire, is cast. ²⁰After all then, by their fruits, shall ye find, them, out. ²¹Not every one that saith unto me, Lord! Lord! shall enter into the kingdom of the heavens,—but he that doeth the will of my Father who is in the heavens. ²²Many, will say unto me, in, that, day, Lord! Lord! did we not, in thy name, prophesy, and, in thy name, cast, demons, out,—and, in thy name, many works of power, perform? ²³And, then, will I confess unto them, Never, have I acknowledged you,—Depart from me, ye workers of lawlessness! ²⁴Every one, therefore, who heareth \u0022these\u0022 my words, and doeth them, shall be likened to a prudent man, who built his house upon the rock; ²⁵And the rain descended, and the streams came, and the winds blew, and rushed against that house, and it fell not; for it had been founded upon the rock. ²⁶And every one who heareth these my words, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, who built his house upon the sand; ²⁷And the rain descended, and the streams came, and the winds blew, and dashed against that house, and it fell; and, the fall thereof, was, great. ²⁸And it came to pass, when Jesus ended these words, with astonishment were the multitudes being struck at his teaching; ²⁹for he was teaching them as one having, authority, and not as their Scribes.

⁸And when he came down from the mountain, there followed him large multitudes. ²And lo! a leper, coming near, began to bow down to him saying,—Lord! if thou be willing, thou canst cleanse me. ³And, stretching forth the hand, he touched him, saying,—I am willing, be cleansed! And, straightway, cleansed was his leprosy. ⁴And Jesus saith unto him, Mind! tell, no one,—but withdraw, thyself, shew to the priest, and offer the gift which Moses directed, for a witness unto them. ⁵And, when he entered into Capernaum, there came near unto him a centurion, beseeching him, ⁶and saying, Lord! my servant, is laid prostrate in the house, a paralytic, fearfully tortured. ⁷He saith unto him, I, will come and cure him. ⁸But the centurion, answering, said, Lord! I am of no consideration, that, under my roof, thou shouldest enter,—but, only say with a word, and healed shall be my servant. ⁹For, I also, am a man \u0022set\u0022 under authority, having under myself, soldiers,—and I say to this one, Go! and he goeth, and to another, Come! and he cometh, and, to my servant, Do this! and he doeth it. ¹⁰Now Jesus, hearing, marveled, and said to them that followed,—Verily, I say unto you, With no one in Israel, such faith as this, have I found. ¹¹But I say unto you, Many from east and west, will have come, and shall recline with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob, in the kingdom of the heavens; ¹²Whereas, the sons of the kingdom, shall be cast forth into the darkness outside,—There, will be wailing and gnashing of teeth. ¹³And Jesus said unto the centurion, Withdraw! and, as thou hast believed, be it done for thee. And healed was the servant in that hour. ¹⁴And Jesus, coming into the house of Peter, saw his mother-in-law laid prostrate and in a fever, ¹⁵and he touched her hand, and the fever left her,—and she arose, and began ministering unto him. ¹⁶But, when, evening, came, they brought unto him many demonized,—and he cast out the spirits with a word, and, all who were sick, he cured: ¹⁷that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken through Isaiah the prophet, saying,—Himself, our weaknesses, took, and, diseases, bare. ¹⁸Now Jesus, seeing a multitude about him, gave orders to depart unto the other side. ¹⁹And a certain scribe, coming near, said unto him,—Teacher; I will follow thee, whithersoever Thou goest. ²⁰And Jesus saith unto him: The foxes, have, dens, and, the birds of the heavens, nests,—but, the Son of Man, hath not where, his head he may recline. ²¹And, another of the disciples, saith unto him,—Lord! suffer me, first, to depart, and bury my father. ²²But, Jesus, saith unto him,—Be following me, and leave, the dead, to bury, their own dead. ²³And, when he, entered, into a boat, his disciples followed him. ²⁴And lo! a great squall, arose in the sea, so that, the boat, was being covered, by the waves,—but, he, was sleeping. ²⁵And, coming near, they aroused him, saying, Master! save, we perish! ²⁶And he saith unto them, Why, are ye, fearful, little of faith? Then, aroused, he rebuked the winds and the sea,—and it became a great calm. ²⁷But, the men, marveled, saying, Whence is this one,—that, both the winds and the sea, unto him, give ear? ²⁸And, when he, came, unto the other side, into the country of the Gadarenes, there met him, two men demonized, out of the tombs, coming forth,—fierce exceedingly, so that no one could pass that way; ²⁹and lo! they cried aloud, saying, What have we in common with thee, O Son of God? Hast thou come hither, before the right time, to torment us? ³⁰Now there was, far from them, a herd of many swine, feeding; ³¹and, the demons, began to beseech him, saying, If thou dost cast us out, send us away, into the herd of swine. ³²And he said unto them, Withdraw!

So, they, going out, departed into the swine,—and lo! all the herd rushed down the cliff, into the sea, and died in the waters. ³³And, they who were feeding them, fled,—and, departing into the city, reported all things, and what concerned them who had been demonized. ³⁴And lo! all the city, came out to meet Jesus,—and, seeing him, they besought that he would pass on from their bounds.

⁹And, entering into a boat, he crossed over, and came into his own city. ²And lo! they were bringing unto him a paralytic, on a couch, laid prostrate; and Jesus, seeing, their faith, said to the paralytic,—Take courage! child, forgiven are thy sins. ³And lo! certain of the scribes, said within themselves,—This man, speaketh profanely! ⁴And Jesus, knowing, their inward thoughts, said,—To what end are ye cherishing evil thoughts within your hearts? ⁵For which is easier—To say, Forgiven are thy sins,—or to say, Rise and be walking! ⁶But, that ye may know, that the Son of Man hath, authority, upon the earth, to be forgiving sins, then, saith he to the paralytic,—Rise! take up thy couch, and withdraw unto thy house. ⁷And, rising, he departed unto his house. ⁸Now the multitudes, seeing, were struck with fear, and glorified the God who had given authority, such as this, unto men. ⁹And Jesus, passing aside from thence, saw a man presiding over the tax-office, called, Matthew, and saith unto him,—Be following me. And, arising, he followed him. ¹⁰And it came to pass, as he was reclining in the house, that lo! many tax-collectors and sinners, came, and were reclining together with Jesus and his disciples. ¹¹And, the Pharisees, observing it, began to say unto his disciples,—Wherefore, with tax-collectors and sinners, doth your Teacher eat? ¹²And, he, hearing it, said,—No need have the strong, of a physician, but they who are sick. ¹³But go ye, and learn what this meaneth,—Mercy, I desire, and not, sacrifice; For I came, not to call the righteous, but sinners. ¹⁴Then come near unto him the disciples of John, saying,—Wherefore do, we, and the Pharisees, fast, whereas, thy disciples, fast not? ¹⁵And Jesus said unto them,—Can, the sons of the bridechamber, mourn, so long as, the bridegroom, is, with them? But days will come, when the bridegroom, shall be taken from them, and, then, will they fast. ¹⁶Howbeit, no one, layeth on a patch of unshrunk cloth, upon an old garment,—for the shrinking of it teareth away from the garment, and, a worse rent, is made. ¹⁷Neither pour they new wine into old skins: otherwise at least, the skins are burst, and, the wine, runneth out, and, the skins, are spoiled,—but they pour new wine into unused skins, and, both, are together preserved. ¹⁸While, these things, he was speaking unto them, lo! a certain ruler, came, and began bowing down to him, saying,—My daughter, just now died! But come, and lay thy hand upon, her, and she shall live. ¹⁹And Jesus, arising, was following him, also his disciples. ²⁰And lo! a woman, having a flow of blood twelve years, coming near behind, touched the fringe of his mantle. ²¹For she kept saying within herself,—If only I touch his mantle, I shall be made well! ²²And, Jesus, turning and seeing her, said,—Take courage! daughter, Thy faith, hath made thee well. And the woman was made well, from that hour. ²³And, Jesus, coming, into the house of the ruler, and seeing the flute-players and the multitude in confusion, was saying: ²⁴Give place! for the maiden died not, but is sleeping. And they began to deride him. ²⁵But, when the multitude had been put forth, he went in, and grasped her hand,—and the maiden arose. ²⁶And forth went this report, into the whole of that land. ²⁷And, as Jesus, was passing aside from thence, there followed him, two blind men, crying aloud and saying,—Have mercy on us, O Son of David! ²⁸And, when he entered the house, the blind men came unto him,—and Jesus saith unto them, Believe ye, that I can, do this? They say unto him, Yea, Lord! ²⁹Then touched he their eyes, saying, According to your faith, be it done unto you. ³⁰And their eyes were opened. And Jesus, sternly charged them, saying, Mind! let no one know! ³¹They, however, going forth, made him known throughout the whole of that land. ³²And, as, they, were going forth, lo! there was brought to him, a dumb man, demonized. ³³And, the demon being cast out, the dumb man spoke; and the multitudes marvelled, saying,—Never, was it seen thus, in Israel. ³⁴But, the Pharisees, beg to say, In the ruler of the demons, is he casting out the demons. ³⁵And Jesus was going round all the cities and the villages, teaching in their synagogues, and proclaiming the glad-message of the kingdom,—and curing every disease, and every infirmity. ³⁶But, seeing the multitudes, he was moved with compassion concerning them, because they were torn and thrown down, like sheep having no shepherd. ³⁷Then, saith he unto his disciples, The harvest, indeed, is great, but, the labourers, few; ³⁸Beg ye, therefore, of the Lord of the harvest,—That he would thrust forth labourers, into his harvest.

¹⁰And, calling near his twelve disciples, he gave them authority over impure spirits,—so as to be casting them out, and curing every disease and every infirmity. ²Now, the twelve apostles' names, are these:—first Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother,—and James, the son of Zebedee, and John, his brother; ³Philip, and Bartholomew,—Thomas, and Matthew, the tax-collector; James, the son of Alphaeus, and Thadaeus; ⁴Simon, the zealot, and Judas Iscariot, who also delivered him up. ⁵These twelve, Jesus sent forth, charging them, saying:—Into any way to the nations, do not depart,—and, into any city of Samaritans, do not enter; ⁶But be going, rather, unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel. ⁷And, as ye go, proclaim, saying, The kingdom of the heavens hath drawn near! ⁸Be curing, the sick, raising, the dead,—cleansing, lepers, casting out, demons: freely, ye have, received, freely, give. ⁹Ye may procure—neither gold, nor silver, nor copper, for your belts,—¹⁰neither satchel for journey, nor two tunics, nor sandals, nor staff; for, worthy, is the labourer, of his maintenance. ¹¹And, into whatsoever city or village ye enter, search out who in it is, worthy, and, there, abide, till ye go forth. ¹²And, as ye enter the house, salute it; ¹³And, if the house be worthy, let your peace come upon it, but, if it be not worthy, let your peace, unto you, return. ¹⁴And, whosoever shall neither welcome you, nor hear your words, as ye go forth outside that house or city, shake off the dust of your feet: ¹⁵Verily, I say unto you,—More tolerable, will it be, for the land of Sodom and Gomorrha in the day of judgment, than for, that, city! ¹⁶Lo! I, send you forth as sheep amidst wolves; become ye therefore—prudent, as serpents, and simple, as doves. ¹⁷But beware of men; for they will deliver you up into high-councils, and, in their synagogues, will they scourge you,—¹⁸And, before both governor and kings, shall ye be brought, for my sake—for a witness to them and the nations. ¹⁹And, when they deliver you up, be not anxious how or what ye shall speak,—for it shall be given you in that hour what ye shall speak; ²⁰For it is not, ye, who are speaking, but, the Spirit of your Father, that is speaking in you. ²¹And, brother, will deliver up, brother, unto death, and, father, child,—and, children, will rise up, against parents, and will put them to death. ²²And ye will be hated by all, because of my name,—but, he that endureth throughout, the same, shall be saved. ²³And, when they persecute you in this city, flee into another,—for, verily, I say unto you, in no wise shall ye finish the cities of Israel, till, he Son of Man, come. ²⁴A, disciple, is not above, the teacher, nor, a servant, above, his lord: ²⁵Sufficient for the disciple, that he become, as his teacher, and, the servant, as, his lord. If, the master of the house, Beelzebul, they called, how much more, the men of his house! ²⁶Then do not fear them,—for, nothing hath been covered, which shall not be, uncovered, and, hidden, which shall not be, made known. ²⁷What I am saying to you in the darkness, tell ye in the light,—and, what whispered into the ear ye are hearing, proclaim ye on the housetops. ²⁸And be not in fear, by reason of them that are killing the body,—and, the soul, are not able to kill. But fear, rather, him who is able, both soul and body, to destroy in gehenna! ²⁹Are not, two sparrows, for a farthing, sold? And, one from among them, shall not fall upon the ground, without your Father; ³⁰But, even the hairs of, your, head, have all been numbered. ³¹Then be not in fear—than many sparrows, better are, ye! ³²Every one therefore who shall confess me before men, I also, will confess, him, before my Father who is in the heavens; ³³But, whoever shall deny me before men, I also, will deny, him, before my Father who is in the heavens. ³⁴Do not think, that I came to thrust peace upon the earth,—I came not to thrust, peace, but, a sword; ³⁵For I came to set at variance—a man, against, his father, and, a daughter, against, her mother, and, a bride, against, her mother-in-law; ³⁶And, a man foes, are, they of his own house. ³⁷He that loveth father or mother above me, is not, worthy, of me,—and, he that loveth son or daughter above me, is not, worthy, of me; ³⁸And, he that doth not take his cross and follow after me, is not, worthy, of me. ³⁹He that hath found his life, shall lose it,—and, he that hath lost his life, for my sake, shall find it. ⁴⁰He that giveth welcome unto you, unto me, giveth welcome, and, he that, unto me, giveth welcome, giveth welcome—unto him that sent me forth. ⁴¹He that giveth welcome unto a prophet, in the name of a prophet, the reward of a prophet, shall receive; and, he that giveth welcome unto a righteous man, in the name of a righteous man, the reward of a righteous man, shall receive;—⁴²And, whosoever shall give to drink—unto one of these little ones—a cup of cold water only, in the name of a disciple, Verily, I say unto you, in nowise, shall lose his reward!

11And it came to pass, when Jesus had finished giving instructions to his twelve disciples, he passed on from thence, to be teaching and proclaiming in their cities. ²Now, John, hearing in the prison the works of the Christ, sending through his disciples, ³said unto him, Art, thou, the coming one? or, a different one, are we to expect? ⁴And, answering, Jesus said unto them—Go report unto John what ye do hear and see:—⁵The, blind, recover sight, and, the lame, walk, lepers, are cleansed, and, the deaf, hear,—and, the dead, are raised, and, the destitute, are told the joyful tidings; ⁶And, happy, is he, whosoever shall not find cause of stumbling, in me. ⁷But, as these were going their way, Jesus began to say unto the multitudes, concerning John,—What went ye forth into the wilderness to gaze at? A reed, by a wind, shaken? ⁸But what went ye forth to see? A man, in soft clothing, arrayed? Lo! they who soft clothing do wear, are in the houses of kings. ⁹But why went ye forth? A prophet, to see? Yea, I say unto you, and much more than a prophet. ¹⁰This, is he, concerning whom it is written,—Lo! I, send my messenger before thy face, who shall make ready thy way before thee! ¹¹Verily, I say unto you—There hath not arisen, among such as are born of women, a greater than John the Immerser,—yet, he that is less in the kingdom of the heavens, is, greater than he. ¹²But, from the days of John the Immerser, until even now, the kingdom of the heavens, is being invaded, and, invaders, are, seizing upon it. ¹³For, all the prophets and the law, until John, did prophesy; ¹⁴And, if ye are willing to accept it, he, is Elijah—the one destined to come. ¹⁵He that hath ears, let him hear! ¹⁶But, unto what, shall I liken this generation? It is, like, unto children, sitting the market-places, who, calling unto the others, ¹⁷say, We played the flute to you, and ye danced not,—we sang a lament, and ye beat not the breast. ¹⁸For, John, came, neither eating nor drinking, and they say—A demon, he hath!

¹⁹The Son of Man, came, eating and drinking, and they say, Lo! a gluttonous man and a wine-drinker! a friend of, tax-collectors, and sinners! And yet wisdom hath been justified by her works. ²⁰Then, began he to upbraid the cities, in which had been done his noblest mighty works; because they repented not:— ²¹Alas for thee, Chorazin! Alas for thee, Bethsaida! Because, if, in Tyre and Zidon, had been done the works of power, which were done in you, of old, in sackcloth and ashes, had they repented. ²²Moreover, I say unto you, For Tyre and Zidon, more tolerable, will it be, in the day of judgment, than for you. ²³And, thou, Capernaum! Unto heaven, shalt thou be uplifted? Unto hades, thou shalt be brought down; because, if, in Sodom, had been done the works of power, which were done in thee, it would, in that case, have remained until this day. ²⁴Moreover, I say unto you—For the land of Sodom, more tolerable, will it be in a day of judgment, than, for thee. ²⁵In that season, answered Jesus, and said—I openly give praise unto thee, Father, Lord of heaven and earth,—in that thou hast hid these things from the wise and discerning, and hast revealed them unto babes; ²⁶Yea, O Father! That, so, it hath become, a delight, before thee. ²⁷All things, unto me, have been delivered up by my Father; and, no one, fully knoweth the Son, save the Father, neither doth any one fully know, the Father, save, the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son, may be minded, to reveal, him. ²⁸Come unto me! all ye that toil and are burdened, and, I, will give you rest: ²⁹Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me,—because, meek, am I and lowly, in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls; ³⁰For, my yoke, is easy, and, my burden, light.

12In that season, went Jesus, on, the sabbath, through the cornfields,—and, his disciples, hungered, and began to pluck ears of corn, and to eat. ²But, the Pharisees, observing it, said unto him, Lo! thy disciples, are doing what is not allowed to do, on sabbath. ³And he said unto them, have ye never read what, David, did, when he hungered, and they who were with him? how ⁴he entered into the house of God and, the presence-bread, did eat, which it was not, allowable, for him to eat, nor for them who were with him,—save for the priests, alone? ⁵Or have ye not read, in the law, that, on the sabbaths, the priests, in the temple, the sabbath, profane, and are, blameless? ⁶But I say unto you,—Something greater than the Temple, is here! ⁷If, however, ye had known what this meaneth—Mercy, I desire, and not, sacrifice, ye would not have condemned the blameless; ⁸For, the Son of Man, is, Lord of the Sabbath. ⁹And, passing on from thence, he came into their synagogue; ¹⁰and lo! a man having, a withered hand, and they questioned him, saying, Is it allowable, on the sabbath, to heal? that they might accuse him. ¹¹And said unto them, What man, from among yourselves, \u0177ull shall there be\u0177ul0,—Who shall have one sheep, and, if this should fall, on the sabbath, into a pit, will not lay hold of it, and raise it? ¹²How much better, then, a man, than, a sheep? So that it is allowable, on the sabbath, nobly, to act. ¹³Then saith he unto the man, Stretch forth thy hand! And he stretched it forth,—and it was restored, whole, as the other. ¹⁴And the Pharisees, going forth, took, counsel, against him, to the end that, him, they might destroy. ¹⁵But, Jesus, taking note, retired from thence,—and many followed him, and he cured them all; ¹⁶and straitly charged them, lest they should make him, manifest: ¹⁷that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken through Isaiah the prophet, saying:— ¹⁸Lo! my servant, whom I have chosen, My beloved, in whom, my soul, delighteth,—I will put my Spirit upon him, and, justice, unto the nations, will he report: ¹⁹He will not strive, nor will he cry out, nor shall any hear, in the broadways, his voice: ²⁰A bruised cane, will he not break, and, a smoking wick, will he not quench,—until he urge on, justice, to victory, ²¹And, in his name, shall nations hope. ²²Then they brought unto him, one demonized, blind and dumb,—and he cured him, so that the dumb did speak and see. ²³And all the multitudes were beside themselves, and were saying, Can, this one, be, the Son of David? ²⁴But, the Pharisees, hearing it, said, This one, doth not cast out the demons, save in Beelzebul ruler of the demons. ²⁵And, knowing their inward thoughts, he said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself, is laid waste,—and, no city or house divided against itself, will stand; ²⁶And, if, Satan, is casting, Satan, out, against himself, hath he become divided,—How then shall, his kingdom, stand? ²⁷And, if, I, in Beelzebul, am casting out the demons, In whom are, your sons, casting them out? Wherefore, they, shall be, judges of you. ²⁸But, if, in God's Spirit, I, am casting out the demons, then doubtless hath come upon you un-awares, the kingdom of God! ²⁹Or how can one enter the house of the mighty and, seize his goods, unless, first, he bind the mighty one? and, then, his house, he will plunder. ³⁰He that is no with me, is, against me,—and, he that gathereth not with me, scattereth ³¹Wherefore, I say unto you, All sin and profane speaking, shall be forgiven unto men,—but, the speaking profanely of the Spirit, shall not be forgiven; ³²And, whosoever shall speak a word against the Son of Man, it shall be forgiven him,—but, whosoever shall speak against the Holy Spirit, it shall not be forgiven him, either in this age, or the coming. ³³Either make the tree good, and its fruit good, or make the tree worthless, and its fruit worthless; for, from the fruit, the tree is known. ³⁴Broods of vipers! How can ye speak, good things, being, evil? For, out of the abundance of the heart, the mouth speaketh. ³⁵The good man, out of the good treasure, putteth forth, good things; and, the evil man, out of the evil treasure, putteth forth, evil things. ³⁶But I say unto you, That, every useless expression that men shall utter, they shall render, concerning it, an account, in a day of judgment; ³⁷For, by thy words, shalt thou be, justified, and, by thy words, shalt thou be condemned. ³⁸Then, answered him, certain of the Scribes and Pharisees, saying, Teacher! we desire of thee, a sign, to behold. ³⁹But, he, answering, said unto them, A wicked and adulterous generation, a sign, doth seek, and, a sign, will not be, given, it, save the sign of Jonah the prophet. ⁴⁰For, just as was Jonah in the belly of the sea-monster three days and three nights, so, will be the Son of Man, in the heart of the earth, three days and three nights. ⁴¹Men of Nineveh, will rise up in the judgment, with this generation, and will condemn it,—because they repented into the proclamation of Jonah; and lo! something greater than Jonah, here. ⁴²The queen of the south, will arise in the judgment with this generation and will condemn it—because she came out of the ends of the earth, to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and lo! something greater than Solomon, here. ⁴³But, when the impure spirit goeth out of the man, it passeth through waterless places, seeking rest,—and findeth it not. ⁴⁴Then, it saith, Into my house, will I return whence I came out,—and, coming, findeth it empty \u1 and \u10 swept and adorned. ⁴⁵Then, it goeth, and taketh along with itself, seven diverse spirits, more wicked than itself,—and, entering, abideth there; and, the last state of that man, becometh, worse than the first. So, shall it be, with this, wicked, generation. ⁴⁶While yet he was speaking unto the multitudes, lo! his mother and brethren, were standing without, seeking to speak with him. ⁴⁷\u1 And one said to him, Lo! thy mother and thy brethren, without, are standing, seeking, to speak, with thee. \u10 ⁴⁸But, he, answering, said unto him that was telling him, Who is my mother? and who are my brethren? ⁴⁹And, stretching forth his hand towards his disciples, he said, Lo! my mother and my brethren! ⁵⁰For, whosoever shall do the will of my Father who is in the heavens, he, is my, brother, and sister, and mother.

13On that day, Jesus, going out of the house, was sitting near the sea: ²and there were gathered unto him, large multitudes, so that, he, into a boat, entered, and was sitting, and, all the multitude, on the beach was standing. ³And he spake unto them many things, in parables, saying: Lo! the sower went forth to sow,— ⁴and, as he sowed, some, indeed, fell by the pathway, and, the birds, came, and devoured it; ⁵And, some, fell on the rocky places, where it had not much earth,—and, straightway, it sprang up, because it had no depth of earth; ⁶and, the sun arising, it was scorched, and, because it had no root, it withered away; ⁷And, some, fell upon the thorns, and the thorns came up, and choked it; ⁸But, some, fell upon the good ground, and did yield fruit,—this, indeed a hundred fold, and, that, sixty, and, the other, thirty. ⁹He that hath ears, let him hear. ¹⁰And the disciples, coming near, said to him, Wherefore, in parables, art thou speaking to them? ¹¹And, he, answering, said, Because, unto you, hath it been given, to get to know the sacred secrets of the kingdom of the heavens,—whereas, unto them, hath it not been given. ¹²For, whosoever hath, it shall be given, to him, and he shall be made to abound,—but, whoever hath not, even what he hath, shall be taken from him? ¹³For this reason, in parables, unto them, do I speak,—because, seeing, they see not, and, hearing, they hear not,—neither do they understand. ¹⁴And, again is being fulfilled in them, the prophecy of Isaiah, which saith,—They shall, surely hear, and yet will not understand, and, surely see, and yet not perceive; ¹⁵For the heart of this people hath become dense, and, with their ears, heavily have they heard, and, their eyes, have they closed,—lest, once they should see with their eyes, and, with their ears, should hear, and, with their hearts, should understand, and return; when I would certainly heal them. ¹⁶But happy are, your, eyes, that they see, and your ears, that they hear; ¹⁷For, verily, I say unto you—Many prophets and righteous men, have coveted to see what ye see, and have not seen, and to hear what ye hear, and have not heard. ¹⁸Hear, ye, then, the parable of him that sowed:— ¹⁹When anyone heareth the word of the kingdom, and understandeth it not, the wicked one cometh, and catcheth up that which hath been sown in his heart,—this, is he, by the pathway, sown. ²⁰And, he on the rocky places sown, the same, is he that, heareth the word, and, straightway, with joy, receiveth it; ²¹yet hath he no root in himself, but is, only for a season,—and, there arising, tribulation or persecution because of the word, straightway, he findeth cause of stumbling. ²²And, he among the thorns sown, the same, is he that, heareth the word,—and, the anxiety of the age and the deceit of riches, choke up the word, and, unfruitful, it becometh. ²³But, he on the good ground sown, the same, is he who doth hear and understand the word, who, indeed, beareth fruit and produceth,—this, a hundred, and, that, sixty, and, the other, thirty. ²⁴Another parable, put he before them, saying—The kingdom of the heavens hath become like a man sowing good seed in his field; ²⁵and, while men were sleeping, his enemy came, and sowed over darnel, in among the wheat,—and away he went. ²⁶And, when the blade shot up, and brought forth, fruit, then, appeared, the darnel also. ²⁷And the servants of the householder, coming near, said to him,—Sir! was it not, good seed, thou didst sow in thy field? Whence then hath it, darnel? ²⁸And he said unto them—An enemy, hath, done this. And they say, unto him—Wilt thou, then, that we go and collect it? ²⁹And, he, saith—Nay! lest, at any time, while collecting the darnel, ye uproot, along with it, the wheat: ³⁰Suffer both to grow together until the harvest, and at, harvest time, I will say unto the reapers,—Collect ye first, the darnel, and bind it into bundles, with a view to the burning it up; but, the wheat, be gathering it into my barn. ³¹Another parable, put he before them, saying—The kingdom of the heavens is like unto, a grain of mustard seed, which a man took and sowed in his field; ³²which, indeed, is, less, than all seeds, but, when grown, is greater than garden-plants, and becometh a tree,—so that the birds of heaven come, and lodge among its branches. ³³Another parable, \u11 spake he unto them\u10 :—The kingdom of the heavens is like, unto leaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of flour until, the whole, was leavened. ³⁴All these things, spake Jesus in parables, unto the multitudes, and, without a parable, was he speaking, nothing, unto them: ³⁵that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken through the prophet, saying—I will open, in parables, my mouth, I will bring up things hidden from the foundation! ³⁶Then, dismissing the multitudes, he went into the house, and his disciples came near to him, saying—Make quite plain to us the parable of the darnel of the field. ³⁷And, he, answering, said—He that soweth the good seed, is the Son of Man; ³⁸And, the field, is the world, and, the good seed, these are the sons of the kingdom,—and, the darnel seeds, are the sons of the evil one; ³⁹And, the enemy that sowed them, is the adversary, and, the harvest, is, the conclusion of an age, and, the reapers, are, messengers. ⁴⁰Just, therefore, as collected is the darnel, and, with fire is burned, so, will it be in the conclusion of the age:—⁴¹The Son of Man will send forth his messengers, and they will collect, out of his kingdom, all the causes of stumbling, and the doers of lawlessness, ⁴²and will cast them into the furnace of fire: there, will be wailing and gnashing of teeth. ⁴³Then, the righteous, will shine forth as the sun, in the kingdom of their Father. He that hath ears, let him hear! ⁴⁴The kingdom of the heavens is like unto, a treasure hid in the field, which a man, finding, hid,—and, by reason of his joy, withdraweth and selleth whatsoever he hath, and buyeth that field. ⁴⁵Again, the kingdom of the heavens is, like, unto, a merchant, seeking beautiful pearls,—⁴⁶and, finding one very precious pearl, departing, he at once sold all things, whatsoever he had, and bought it. ⁴⁷Again, the kingdom of the heavens is like unto, a large drag-net, cast into the sea and gathering of every kind,—⁴⁸which, when it was filled, they dragged up on the beach, and, sitting down, collected the good into vessels, but, the worthless, forth they cast. ⁴⁹So, will it be in the conclusion of the age: The messengers will come forth, and separate the wicked from among the righteous; ⁵⁰and will cast them into the furnace of fire: there, will be wailing and gnashing of teeth. ⁵¹Have ye understood all these things? They say unto him, Yea! ⁵²And, he, said unto them—Wherefore, every scribe, disciplined unto the kingdom of the heavens, is like unto a householder, who putteth forth out of his treasure, things new and old. ⁵³And it came to pass, when Jesus had finished these parables, he removed from thence; ⁵⁴and, coming into his own city, began teaching them in their synagogue, so that with astonishment were they being struck, and were saying—Whence, hath, this one, this wisdom, and the mighty works? ⁵⁵Is not, this one, the carpenter's, son? Is not, his mother, called Mary, and are not his brethren—James and Joseph, and Simon, and Judas? ⁵⁶and, his sisters, are they not all with us? Whence, then hath, this one, all these things? ⁵⁷And they began to find cause of stumbling in him. But, Jesus, said unto them—A prophet is not without honour, save in his city, and in his house. ⁵⁸And he did not, there, many mighty works, because of their unbelief.

¹⁴In that season, heard Herod the tetrarch, the fame of Jesus: ²and he said unto his servants—This, is John the Immerser,—he hath arisen from the dead, for this cause, are the powers working mightily within him. ³For, Herod, seizing John, had bound him, and, in prison, put him away,—because of Herodias, the wife of Philip his brother; ⁴for John had been saying to him, It is not allowed thee, to have her. ⁵And desiring, to kill, him, he feared the multitude, because, as a prophet, they held him. ⁶But, a birthday feast of Herod taking place, the daughter of Herodias danced in the midst, and pleased Herod; ⁷wherefore, with an oath, he promised to give her, whatsoever she should ask for herself; ⁸and, she, being led on by her mother,—Give me (saith she) here, upon a charger, the head of John the Immerser. ⁹And the king, though grieved, yet, because of the oaths and the guests, ordered it to be given; ¹⁰and sent and beheaded John in the prison. ¹¹And his head was brought upon a charger, and given unto the maiden, and she brought it to her mother. ¹²And his disciples, going near, bare away the corpse, and buried him, and came and brought tidings unto Jesus. ¹³And Jesus, hearing it, retired from thence in a boat, into a desert place, apart,—and the multitudes, hearing of it, followed him on foot from the cities. ¹⁴And, coming forth, he saw a great multitude,—and was moved with compassion a over them, and cured their sick. ¹⁵And, evening, arriving, the disciples came unto him, saying—The place is, a desert, and, the hour, hath already passed,—dismiss the multitudes, that they may go away into the villages, and buy themselves food. ¹⁶But, Jesus, said unto them, No need, have they to go away,—give, ye, them to eat. ¹⁷But, they, say unto him—We have nothing here, save five loaves and two fishes. ¹⁸But, he, said—Bring, them, to me, here. ¹⁹And, giving orders that the multitudes should recline upon the grass,—taking the five loaves and the two fishes,—looking up into the heaven, he blessed; and, breaking, gave, the disciples, the loaves, and the disciples unto the multitude. ²⁰And they did all eat, and were filled,—and they took up the remainder of the broken pieces, twelve baskets, full. ²¹And, they who did eat, were about five thousand, men, besides women and children. ²²And \u11 straightway\u10 constrained he the disciples to enter into a boat, and be going before him unto the other side, while he dismissed the multitudes. ²³And, dismissing the multitudes, he went up into the mountain, apart, to pray,—and when, evening, came, alone, was he, there. ²⁴Now, the boat, still many furlongs from the land, was holding off, being distressed by the waves,—for, the wind, was, contrary. ²⁵And, in the fourth watch of the night, he came unto them, walking upon the sea. ²⁶And, the disciples, seeing him, upon the lake walking, were troubled,—saying—It is, a ghost; and, by reason of their fear, they cried out. ²⁷And, straightway, Jesus spake unto them, saying—Take courage! it is, I,—be not afraid. ²⁸And, making answer, Peter said unto him,—Lord! if it is, thou, bid me come unto thee, upon the waters. ²⁹And, he, said—Come! And, descending from the boat, Peter walked upon the waters, and came unto Jesus. ³⁰But, seeing the wind, he was affrighted, and, beginning to sink, cried out, saying—Lord! save me! ³¹And, straightway, Jesus, stretching forth his hand, laid hold upon him and saith unto him—O little-of-faith! why didst thou doubt? ³²And, when they came up into the boat, the wind abated. ³³And, they in the boat, bowed down to him, saying—Truly, God's Son, thou art! ³⁴And, going across, they came up the land, into Gennesaret. ³⁵And, recognizing him, the men of that place, sent out into all that region, and they brought unto him all who were sick; ³⁶and were beseeching \u0026 him \u0026 , that they might, only, touch the border of his mantle, and, as many as touched, were made quite well.

15Then, there come unto Jesus from Jerusalem Pharisees and Scribes, saying— ²Wherefore do thy disciples transgress the tradition of the elders? for they wash not their hands, when they eat bread! ³But, he, answering, said unto them—Wherefore do, ye also, transgress the commandment of God for the sake of your tradition? ⁴For, God, said—Honour thy father and thy mother, and—He that revileth father or mother, let him, surely die! ⁵But, ye, say—Whosoever shall say to his father or his mother—A gift! Whatsoever, out of me, thou mightest be profited, ⁶in nowise, shall honour his father or his mother—and so ye have cancelled, the word of God, for the sake of your, tradition. ⁷Hypocrites! well prophesied concerning you, Isaiah, saying— ⁸This people, with the lips, do, honour, me, while, their heart, far off, holdeth from me; ⁹But, in vain, do they pay devotions unto me, teaching, for teachings, the commandments of men. ¹⁰And, calling near the multitude, he said to them—Hear and understand! ¹¹Not that which entereth into the mouth, defileth the man, but, that which proceedeth out of the mouth, the same, defileth the man, ¹²Then, coming near, his disciples say unto him—Knowest thou, that the Pharisees, hearing the word, were caused to stumble? ¹³And, he, answering, said—Every plant which my heavenly Father hath not planted, will be uprooted: ¹⁴Let them alone! they are, blind leaders; and, if the, blind, lead the, blind, both, into a ditch, will fall. ¹⁵And Peter, answering, said unto him, Declare to us the parable. ¹⁶And, he, said, To this moment, are, ye also, without discernment? ¹⁷Perceive ye not that, every thing which entereth into the mouth, into the stomach, findeth way, and, into the draught, is passed; ¹⁸while, the things which proceed out of the mouth, out of the heart, come forth, and, they, defile the man. ¹⁹For, out of the heart, come forth wicked designs,—murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false testimonies, profane speakings: ²⁰these, are the things which defile the man, but, the eating with unwashed hands, doth not defile the man. ²¹And, going forth from thence, Jesus retired into the parts of Tyre and Zidon. ²²And lo! a Canaanite woman, from those bounds, coming forth, began crying out, saying, Have mercy on me, Lord, Son of David! My daughter, is miserably demonized. ²³But, he, answered her no a word. And his disciples, coming forward began requesting him, saying—Dismiss her, because she is crying out after us. ²⁴But, he, answering, said, I was not sent forth, save unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel. ²⁵And, she, coming, began bowing down to him, saying, Lord! help me. ²⁶But, he, answering, said, It is, not seemly, to take the loaf of, the children, and cast, to the little dogs. ²⁷And, she, said, True, Lord! \u0026 for \u0026 , even the little dogs, eat of the crumbs which are falling from the table of, their masters. ²⁸Then, answering, Jesus said to her—O woman! great, is, thy faith! Be it, done, for thee, as thou desirest. And her daughter was healed, from that hour. ²⁹And, passing on from thence, Jesus came near the sea of Galilee, and, going up into the mountain, was sitting there. ³⁰And there came unto him large multitudes, having with themselves the lame, the maimed, the blind, the dumb, and many others,—and they cast them near his feet, and he cured them; ³¹so that the multitude marvelled, seeing the dumb speaking, the lame walking, and the blind seeing,—and they glorified the God of Israel. ³²But, Jesus, calling near his disciples, said—My compassions are moved towards the multitude, because \u0026 even now \u0026 , three days, abide they with me, and they have nothing to eat,—and, to dismiss them fasting, I am not willing, lest by any means they faint in the way. ³³And his disciples say unto him—Whence, to us, in a wilderness, loaves in such numbers as to fill a multitude, so great? ³⁴And Jesus saith unto them—How many, loaves have ye? And, they, said,—Seven, and a few small fishes. ³⁵And, sending word to the multitude to recline upon the ground, ³⁶he took the seven loaves, and the fishes, and, giving thanks, brake,—and began giving to his disciples, and, the disciples, to the multitudes. ³⁷And they all did eat and were filled,—and, the remainder of the broken pieces, took they up, seven hampers, full. ³⁸And, they who did eat, were four thousand men, besides women and children. ³⁹And, dismissing the multitudes, he went up into the boat,—and came into the bounds of Magadan.

16And, the Pharisees and Sadducees coming near, putting him to the test, requested him, a sign out of the heaven, to shew unto them. ²But, he, answering said unto them—

When evening cometh ye say, Fair! for fiery is the heaven; ³And at morn, To-day, a storm! for fiery, and yet sad, is the heaven. The face of the heaven indeed, ye learn to distinguish,—but, the signs of the times, ye cannot. ⁴A wicked and adulterous generation, a sign, doth seek after, and, a sign, will not be given it,—save the sign of Jonah. And, leaving them behind, he departed. ⁵And the disciples coming, to the other side, had forgotten to take loaves. ⁶And, Jesus, said unto them—Mind! and beware, of the leaven of the Pharisees and Sadducees. ⁷And, they, began to deliberate among themselves, saying—Because, loaves, we took not. ⁸And, observing it, Jesus said—Why are ye deliberating among yourselves, ye little-of-faith! because, loaves, ye have not? ⁹Not yet, perceive ye, neither remember,—The five loaves of the five thousand, and how many baskets ye received? ¹⁰Nor the seven loaves of the four thousand, and how many hampers ye received? ¹¹How is it ye perceive not, that, not concerning loaves, spake I unto you,—but beware of the leaven, of the Pharisees and Sadducees? ¹²Then, understood they that he did not bid them beware of \u01 the\ul0 leaven \u01 of loaves\ul0 but of, the teaching, of the Pharisees and Sadducees. ¹³And, Jesus coming into the parts of Caesarea of Philip, began questioning his disciples, saying—Who are men saying that, the Son of Man, is? ¹⁴And, they, said—Some, indeed, John the Immerser, and, others, Elijah,—but, others, Jeremiah, or one of the prophets. ¹⁵He saith unto them—But who say, ye, that I am? ¹⁶And, Simon Peter, answering, said—Thou, art the Christ, the Son of the Living God. ¹⁷And Jesus, answering, said to him—Happy, art thou, Simon Bar-yona,—because, flesh and blood, revealed it not unto thee, but my Father who is in the heavens. ¹⁸And, I also, unto thee, say—Thou, art Peter,—and, upon this rock, will I build my assembly, and, the gates of hades, shall not prevail against it. ¹⁹I will give thee, the keys of the kingdom of the heavens,—and, whatsoever thou shalt bind upon the earth, shall be bound in the heavens, and, whatsoever thou shalt loose upon the earth, shall be loosed in the heavens. ²⁰Then, straitly charged he the disciples, lest, to any man, they should say—He, is, the Christ. ²¹From that time, began Jesus Christ to be pointing out to his disciples that he must needs, into Jerusalem, go away, and, many things, suffer, from the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be slain,—and on, the third day, arise. ²²And, taking him aside, Peter began to rebuke him, saying—Mercy on thee Lord! In nowise, shall, this, befall thee. ²³But, he, turning, said to Peter—Withdraw behind me, Satan! A snare, art thou of mine, because thou art not regarding the things of God, but the things of men. ²⁴Then, Jesus said unto his disciples—If any one intendeth, after me, to come, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and be following me; ²⁵For, whosoever intendeth, his life, to save, shall lose it,—but, whosoever shall lose his life, for my sake, shall find it. ²⁶For what shall a man be profited, though, the whole world, he gain, and, his life, he forfeit? Or what shall a man give, in exchange for his life? ²⁷For the Son of Man is destined to be coming, in the glory of his Father, with his messengers,—and, then, will he give back unto each one, according to his practice. ²⁸Verily, I say unto you—There are some of those, here standing, who, indeed, shall in nowise taste of death, until they see the Son of Man, coming in his kingdom.

¹⁷And, after six days, Jesus taketh with him, Peter and James and John his brother, and bringeth them up into a high mountain, apart; ²and was transformed before them,—and his face shone as the sun, and, his garments, became white as the light. ³And lo! there appeared to them Moses and Elijah, conversing with him. ⁴And Peter, answering, said unto Jesus—Lord! it is, delightful, for us, to be here,—If thou wilt, I will make here three tents, for thee, one, and, for Moses, one, and, for Elijah, one. ⁵While yet he was speaking, lo! a brightly shining cloud, overshadowed them, and lo! a voice, out of the cloud, saying—This, is, my Son, the Beloved, in whom I delight,—Be hearkening to him. ⁶And, hearing it, the disciples fell upon their face, and were caused to fear exceedingly. ⁷And Jesus came near, and, touching them, said—Arise! and be not afraid. ⁸And, lifting up their eyes, no one, saw they, save Jesus, himself, alone. ⁹And, as they were coming down out of the mountain, Jesus commanded them, saying—Unto no one, may ye tell the vision, until the Son of Man, from among the dead shall arise. ¹⁰And the disciples questioned him, saying—Why then do, the Scribes, say, that, Elijah, must needs come, first? ¹¹And, he, answering, said—Elijah, indeed, cometh, and will restore all things; ¹²But, I say unto you—that, Elijah, just now, came,—and they recognised him not, but did with him, whatsoever they pleased: Thus, the Son of Man also, is destined to suffer by them. ¹³Then, perceived the disciples, that, concerning John the Immerser, he spake to them. ¹⁴And, when they came unto the multitude, there approached him a man, falling on his knees to him, ¹⁵and saying—Lord! have mercy upon my son,—because he is lunatic, and in a grievous condition; For, many times, falleth he into the fire, and, many times, into the water. ¹⁶And I brought him unto thy disciples, and they could not cure, him. ¹⁷And Jesus, answering, said—O faithless and perverted generation! How long shall I be with you? How long shall I bear with you? Bring him to me, here. ¹⁸And Jesus rebuked it; and the demon came out of him,—and cured was the boy, from that hour. ¹⁹Then, the disciples, coming near, to Jesus, privately, said—Wherefore could, we, not cast it out? ²⁰And, he, saith unto them—Because of your little faith. For, verily, I say unto you—If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say to this mountain, remove hence yonder; and it shall be removed, and, nothing, shall be impossible to you. ²¹²²And, as they were being gathered together in Galilee, Jesus said unto them—The Son of Man is about to be delivered up into the hands of men; ²³And they will slay him, and, on the third day, will he, arise. And they were grieved exceedingly. ²⁴And, when they came into Capernaum, they who, the half shekel, were receiving, came near unto Peter, and said, Your teacher, doth he not pay the half shekel? ²⁵He saith—Yea. And, coming into the house, Jesus anticipated him, saying, How, to thee, doth it seem, Simon? The kings of the earth, of whom receive they dues or tax? from their sons, or from the aliens? ²⁶And, when he said, From the aliens, Jesus said unto him, Well then, free, are the sons! ²⁷But, that we may not cause them to stumble, go unto the sea, and cast in a hook, and, the first fish that cometh up, take, and, opening its mouth, thou shalt find a shekel,—that, take, and give to them for me and thee.

¹⁸In that hour came, the disciples unto Jesus, saying—Who then is, greatest, in the kingdom of the heavens? ²And, calling near a child, he set it in the midst of them, ³and said—Verily, I say unto you, Except ye turn and become as the children, in nowise, shall ye enter into the kingdom of the heavens. ⁴Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this child, the same, is the greatest, in the kingdom of the heavens; ⁵And, whosoever shall give welcome unto one such child as this, upon my name, unto me, giveth welcome. ⁶And, whosoever shall cause to stumble one of these little ones who believe in me, it profiteth him, that there be hung a large mill-stone about his neck, and he be sunk in the wide main of the sea. ⁷Alas for the world! by reason of the causes of stumbling; for it is, necessary, that the causes of stumbling come,—nevertheless, alas for the man through whom the cause of stumbling cometh! ⁸But, if, thy hand or thy foot, be causing thee to stumble, cut it off, and cast it from thee: It is, seemly for thee, to enter into life, maimed or lame, rather than, having two hands or two feet, to be cast into the age-abiding fire. ⁹And, if, thine eye, causeth thee to stumble, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: It is, seemly, for thee, one-eyed, into life, to enter, rather than, having two eyes, to be cast into the fiery gehenna. ¹⁰Beware! do not despise one of these little ones; For I say unto you—that, their messengers in the heavens, do, continually, behold the face of my Father in the heavens. ¹¹¹²How, to you, doth it seem? If a certain man come to have a hundred sheep and one from among them go astray, Will he not leave the ninety-nine upon the mountains, and going, seek the straying one? ¹³And, if it should be that he find it, Verily, I say unto you—He rejoiceth over it, more than over the ninety-nine that have not gone astray. ¹⁴Thus, there is no desire, in the presence of my Father who is in the heavens, that, one of these little ones, should be lost. ¹⁵But, if thy brother sin, withdraw, convince him, betwixt thee and him, alone,—If unto thee he hearken, thou hast gained thy brother; ¹⁶But, if he do not hearken, take with thee, yet one or two, that, at the mouth of two witnesses or three, every declaration, maybe established; ¹⁷But, if he hear them amiss, tell it to the assembly,—And, if, even the assembly, he hear amiss, Let him be unto thee, just as the man of the nations and the tax-collector. ¹⁸Verily, I say unto you—Whatsoever things ye shall bind on the earth, shall be bound in heaven; and, whatsoever things ye shall loose on the earth, shall be loosed in heaven. ¹⁹Again, \u01 verily\u01 I say unto you—If two from among you shall agree upon the earth concerning any matter, whatsoever they shall ask, it shall be brought to pass for them, from my Father who is in the heavens; ²⁰For, where there are two or three, gathered together into my name, there, am I, in their midst. ²¹Then, coming near, Peter said \u01 to him\u01 —Lord! how many times, shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? Until, seven, times? ²²Jesus saith to him—I say not unto thee, unto, seven, times, but, until seventy times seven. ²³For this cause, hath the kingdom of the heavens become like unto a man, a king, who wished to settle an account with his servants; ²⁴And, when he, began, to settle, there was brought unto him a, certain, debtor, of a thousand talents; ²⁵and, he, not having, wherewith to pay, the master ordered him to be sold, and the wife, and the children, and whatsoever he had,—and payment to be made. ²⁶The servant therefore, falling down, began to do homage unto him, saying—Have patience with me, and, all, will I pay thee. ²⁷And, moved with compassion, the master of that servant released him, and, the loan, he, forgave, him. ²⁸But that servant, going out, found one of his fellow-servants, who owed him, a hundred denaries, and, laying hold of him, he began seizing him by the throat, saying, Pay! if anything thou owest. ²⁹His fellow servant, therefore, falling down, began beseeching him, saying, Have patience with me! And I will pay thee. ³⁰He, however, would not, but went away and cast him into prison,—until he should pay what was owing. ³¹His fellow-servants, therefore, seeing, the things that were done, were grieved exceedingly,—and went and made quite plain to their master all the things which had been done. ³²Then, calling him near, his master saith unto him—O wicked servant! All that debt, forgave I thee, because thou didst beseech me. ³³Was it not binding, upon thee also, to have mercy upon thy fellow-servant, as, I also, on thee, had mercy? ³⁴And, provoked to anger, his master delivered him up to the torturers, until he should pay all that was owing. ³⁵Thus, my heavenly Father also, will do unto you, if ye forgive not each one his brother, from your hearts.

¹⁹And it came to pass, when Jesus ended these words, he removed from Galilee and came into the bounds of Judaea beyond the Jordan. ²And there followed him large multitudes, and he cured them there. ³And there came unto him Pharisees, testing him, and saying,—Whether is it allowed a man to divorce his wife, for every cause? ⁴And, he, answering, said—Did ye never read—He who created at the beginning, Male and female, made them,—⁵and said—For this cause, will a man leave his father and his mother, and be united to his wife,—and, the two, will become, one flesh; ⁶So that, the longer, are they, two, but, one flesh, What, therefore, God, hath yoked together, Let not, a man, put asunder. ⁷They say unto him—Why then did, Moses, command, to give a writing of repudiation and to divorce? ⁸He saith unto them—Moses, in view of your hardness of heart, permitted you to divorce your wives; From the beginning however, hath it not been done, thus. ⁹And I say unto you—Whosoever shall divorce his wife, saving for unfaithfulness, and shall marry another, committeth adultery. ¹⁰The disciples say unto him—If, so, is the cause of the husband with the wife, it is not expedient to marry. ¹¹But, he, said unto them—Not all, find room for he word, save they to whom it hath been given; ¹²For there, are, eunuchs, who, from their mother's womb, were born so, and there, are, eunuchs, who were made eunuchs, by men,—and there, are, eunuchs, who have made, themselves, eunuchs, for the sake the kingdom of the heavens: He that is able to find room, let him find room. ¹³Then, wore brought unto him children,—that he might lay his hands upon them, and pray. And, the disciples, rebuked them. ¹⁴But, Jesus, said—Suffer the children—and do not hinder them—to come unto me,—for, of such, is the kingdom of the heavens. ¹⁵And, laying his hands upon them, he went his way from thence. ¹⁶And lo! one coming near unto him, said, Teacher! what good thing shall I do, that I may have life age-abiding? ¹⁷And, he, said unto him—Why dost thou question me concerning that which is good? There is, One, that is good! But, if thou desirest, into life, to enter, be keeping the commandments. ¹⁸He saith unto him, Which? Jesus, said—These: Thou shalt not commit murder, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not steal,—Thou shalt not bear false witness; ¹⁹Honour thy father and thy mother,—and—Thou shalt love thy neighbour as, thyself. ²⁰The young man saith unto him—These all, have I kept,—What, further, do I lack? ²¹Jesus said unto him—If thou desirest to be perfect, Withdraw! sell thy substance, and give to the destitute,—and thou shalt have treasure in the heavens; and come! be following me. ²²And the young man, hearing, this word, went away sorrowing,—for he was holding large possessions. ²³And, Jesus, said unto his disciples—Verily, I say unto you, A rich man, with difficulty, shall enter into the kingdom of the heavens. ²⁴Again I say unto you—Easier, is it for, a camel, through the eye of a needle, to enter, than a rich man—into the kingdom of God. ²⁵And, hearing it, the disciples were being struck with the greatest astonishment, saying—Who then can be saved? ²⁶And, looking intently, Jesus said unto them—With men, this is, impossible, but, with God, all things are possible. ²⁷Then, making answer,

Peter said unto him—Lo! we, have left all, and followed thee,—What then shall there be, for us? ²⁸And, Jesus, said unto them—Verily, I say unto you, As for you who followed me in the regeneration, When the Son of Man shall take his seat on his throne of glory, ye also, shall be seated upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. ²⁹And, whosoever left houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or children, or lands, for sake of my name, manifold, shall receive, and life, age-abiding, shall inherit. ³⁰But many shall be—first-last, and last-first.

20For the kingdom of the heavens, is like, a man, a householder,—who went forth with the morning, to hire labourers into his vineyard; ²and, when he had agreed with the labourers for a denary the day, he sent them into his vineyard. ³And, going forth about the third hour, he saw others, standing in the market-place, unemployed; ⁴and, to them, he said—ye also, go your way into the vineyard, and, whatsoever may be right, I will give you; ⁵and, they, departed. And, again, going forth about the sixth and ninth hour, he did likewise. ⁶And, about the eleventh, going forth, he found others, standing, and saith unto them—Why, here, stand ye, all the day, unemployed? ⁷They say unto him—Because, no one, hath hired, us. He saith unto them—Ye also, go your way into the vineyard. ⁸And, when evening came, the master of the vineyard saith unto his steward—Call the labourers, and pay the hire,—beginning from the last, unto the first. ⁹And they of the eleventh hour, coming, received severally a denary. ¹⁰And, when the first came, they supposed that, more, they should receive,—and, they also, received severally a denary. ¹¹And, having received it, they began to murmur against the householder, saying—¹²These last, one hour, wrought, and thou hast made them, equal unto us, who have borne the burden of the day, and the scorching heat. ¹³And, he, answering, unto one of them, said,—Friend! I wrong thee not: Was it not, for a denary, thou didst agree with me? ¹⁴Take thine own, and go thy way; but I please, unto this last, to give, as also to thee: ¹⁵Is it not allowed me to do, what I please, with my own? or is, thine eye, evil, because I good? ¹⁶Thus, shall be—The last first, and the first last. ¹⁷And, Jesus, being about to go up unto Jerusalem, took unto him the twelve \ul1 disciples\ul0 , apart, and, in the way, he said unto them—¹⁸Lo! we are going up unto Jerusalem; and, the Son of Man, will be delivered up unto the chief-priests and Scribes, and they will condemn him, \ul1 to death\ul0 , ¹⁹And deliver him up unto the nations, to mock and to scourge and to crucify,—and, on the third day, he will, arise. ²⁰Then came unto him the mother of the sons of Zebedee, with her sons, bowing down, and asking something from him. ²¹And, he, said to her—What desirest thou? She saith unto him—Bid, that these my two sons may sit, one on thy right hand, and one on thy left, in thy kingdom. ²²But Jesus, answering, said—

Ye know not what ye are asking: Are ye able to drink the cup, which, I, am about to drink; They say unto him—We are able. ²³He saith unto them—My cup, indeed, ye shall drink; but, to sit on my right hand and on my left, is not mine to give,—except unto those for whom it hath been prepared by my Father. ²⁴And the ten, hearing, were sorely displeased, concerning the two brethren. ²⁵But, Jesus, calling them near, said—Ye know that, the rulers of the nations, lord it over them, and, the great ones, wield authority over them: ²⁶Not so, is it, among you,—but, whosoever shall desire, among you, to become, great, shall be, your minister; ²⁷And, whosoever shall desire, among you, to be first, shall be, your servant:—²⁸Just as, the Son of Man, came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom instead of many. ²⁹And, as they were going forth from Jericho, there followed him a great multitude; ³⁰and lo! two blind men, sitting beside the road, hearing that Jesus was passing by, cried aloud saying—Lord! have mercy on us! Son of David! ³¹But the multitude rebuked them, that they might hold their peace. But, they, the more, cried aloud, saying—Lord, have mercy on us! Son of David! ³²And, standing still, Jesus called them, and said—What desire ye I should do for you? ³³They say unto him—Lord! that, our eyes, may open. ³⁴And, moved with compassion, Jesus touched their eyes,—and, straightway, they recovered sight, and followed him.

21And, when they drew near unto Jerusalem, and came unto Bethphage, unto the Mount of Olives, then, Jesus sent forth two disciples; ²saying unto them—Be going into the village that is over against you, and, straightway, ye shall find an ass, bound, and a colt with her,—loose them, and lead them unto me. ³And, if anyone, unto you, say aught, ye shall say—Their Lord, hath, need,—and, straightway, he will send them. ⁴But, this, hath come to pass, that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken through the prophet, saying: ⁵Tell ye the daughter of Zion, Lo! thy King, is coming unto thee, meek and mounted upon an ass, and upon a colt the foal of a toiling ass. ⁶And the disciples, went, and did as Jesus directed them; ⁷and led the ass and the colt, and laid upon them their garments, and he took his seat upon them. ⁸And, the chief multitude, spread their own mantles in the way, and, others, were cutting off young branches from the trees, and spreading them in the way; ⁹and the multitudes, they who were going before him and they who were following after, were crying aloud, saying—Hosanna! to the Son of David, Blessed is he that is coming in the name of the Lord, Hosanna in the highest. ¹⁰And, when he entered into Jerusalem, all the city was startled, saying—Who is this? ¹¹And, the multitudes, were saying—This, is the prophet Jesus,—He from Nazareth of Galilee. ¹²And Jesus entered into the temple, and cast out all who were selling and buying in the temple,—and, the tables of the money-changers, he overthrew, and the seats of them who were selling doves; ¹³and saith unto them—It is written, My house, a house of prayer, shall be called; but, ye, are making it, A den of robbers! ¹⁴And there came unto him blind and lame, in the temple, and he cured them. ¹⁵But the Chief-priests and the Scribes, seeing, the marvels that he wrought, and the boys who were crying aloud in the temple, and saying, Hosanna to the Son of David! were greatly displeased; ¹⁶and said unto him—Hearest thou what these are saying? And, Jesus, saith unto them—Yea: Have ye never read, Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings, hast thou prepared praise? ¹⁷And, leaving them behind, he went forth outside the city into Bethany, and spent the night there. ¹⁸And, early, returning into the city, he hungered; ¹⁹and, seeing one fig-tree by the way, he came up to it, and nothing, found he thereon, save leaves only,—and he saith unto it—No more, from thee, let fruit spring forth, unto times age-abiding,—and the fig-tree, instantly withered away. ²⁰And the disciples, seeing it, marvelled, saying—How instantly, did the fig-tree wither away. ²¹And Jesus, answering, said unto them—Verily, I say unto you, If ye have faith, and do not doubt, not only, this of the fig-tree, shall ye do,—but, even if, unto this mountain, ye shall say, Be lifted up, and be cast into the sea, it shall be done. ²²And, all things whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive. ²³And, when he, entered, the temple, the Chief-priests and the Elders of the people, came unto him as he was teaching, saying, By what authority, these things, art thou doing? and, who, to thee, gave, this authority? ²⁴And, making answer, Jesus said unto them—I also, will ask, you, one thing,—which if ye tell me, I also, will tell, you, by what authority, these things, I am doing:—²⁵The immersion by John, whence was it? Of heaven, or of men? But, they, began to deliberate among themselves, saying—If we say, Of heaven; He will say unto us, Wherefore then did ye not believe him? ²⁶But, if we say, Of men, we fear the multitude, for, all, as a prophet, are holding John. ²⁷And, making answer to Jesus, they said—We know not. He also, said unto them—Neither do, I, tell, you, by what authority, these things, I am doing. ²⁸But how, to you, doth it seem? A man, had two sons: coming unto the first, he said, Son! go thy way, to-day, be working in the vineyard. ²⁹And, he, answering, said, I, sir! and went not; ³⁰And, coming unto the second, he spake, in like manner,—and, he, answering, said, I will not: afterwards, smitten with regret, he went. ³¹Which of the two, did the will of the father? They say, The latter. Jesus saith unto them—Verily, I say unto you, the tax-collectors and the harlots, are going before you, into the kingdom of God; ³²For John came unto you, in a way of righteousness, and ye believed him not,—but, the tax-collectors and the harlots, believed him; and, ye, seeing it, were not even smitten with regret, afterwards, so as to believe him. ³³Another parable, hear ye:—A man there was, a householder, who planted a vineyard, and, a wall around it, placed, and digged in it a wine-vat, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen,—and left home. ³⁴And, when the season of fruits drew near, He sent forth his servants unto the husbandmen to receive his fruits. ³⁵And the husbandmen, taking his servants, one, indeed, they beat, and, another, slew,—and, another, stoned. ³⁶Again, sent he forth other servants, more than the first, and they did unto them, likewise. ³⁷Afterwards, however, he sent forth unto them his son, saying,—They will pay deference unto my son! ³⁸But, the husbandmen, seeing the son, said among themselves,—This, is, the heir: Come on! Let us slay him, and have his inheritance. ³⁹And, taking him, they cast him forth outside the vineyard,—and slew him. ⁴⁰When therefore the master of the vineyard shall come, what will he do unto those husbandmen? ⁴¹They say unto him—Miserable men! Miserably, will he destroy them; and will let out, the vineyard, to other husbandmen, who will render unto him the fruits in their seasons. ⁴²Jesus saith unto them—Have ye, never, read in the Scriptures, A stone which the builders rejected, the same, hath become, head of the corner: From the Lord, hath this come to pass, and is marvellous in our eyes. ⁴³Wherefore I say unto you, The kingdom of God, will be taken away from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof: ⁴⁴And, he that falleth on this stone, will be sorely bruised; but, on whomsoever it may fall, it will utterly destroy him. ⁴⁵And the Chief-priests and the Pharisees, hearing his parables, took note, that, concerning them, he was speaking. ⁴⁶And, seeking to secure him, they feared the multitudes; since, for a prophet, were they holding him.

²²And, answering, Jesus, again, spake in parables unto them, saying:—²The kingdom of the heavens hath become like a man, a king,—who made a marriage-feast for his son; ³And sent his servants, to call the invited into the marriage-feast,—and they would not come. ⁴Again, sent he other servants, saying—Say to the invited, Lo! my dinner, have I prepared, mine oxen and my fatlings, are slain,—and, all things, are, ready: Come ye into the marriage-feast. ⁵And, they, slighting it, went off, one, indeed, into his own field, and, another, unto his merchandise,—⁶And, the rest, securing his servants, ill-treated and slew them. ⁷And, the king, was provoked to anger,—and, sending his armies, destroyed those murderers, and, their city, set on fire. ⁸Then, saith he unto his servants—The marriage, indeed, is ready,—but, the invited, were not, worthy; ⁹Be going, therefore, into the crossways of the roads, and, as many as ye shall find, call ye into the marriage-feast. ¹⁰And those servants, going forth, into the roads, gathered together all whom they found, both bad and good,—and filled was the bride-chamber with guests. ¹¹But the king, entering to view the guests, saw there a man, who had not put on a wedding-garment,—¹²And saith unto him—Friend! how camest thou in here, not having a wedding-garment? And, he, was put to silence. ¹³Then, the king said unto the ministers, Binding him feet and hands, cast him forth into the darkness, outside: There, shall be wafting and gnashing of teeth. ¹⁴For, many, are called, but, few, chosen. ¹⁵Then, went the Pharisees and took, counsel, that they might ensnare him, in discourse. ¹⁶And they sent forth to him their disciples, with the Herodians, saying, Teacher! we know that, true, thou art, and, the way of God, in truth, dost teach, and it concerneth thee not about anyone,—for thou lookest not unto the face of men: ¹⁷Tell us then, how, to thee, it seemeth? Is it allowable to give tax unto Caesar, or not? ¹⁸But Jesus, taking note of their wickedness, said—Why are ye tempting me, hypocrites? ¹⁹Shew me the coin appointed for the tax. And, they, brought unto him a denary. ²⁰And he saith unto them—Whose, is this image and the inscription? ²¹They say—Caesar's. Then, saith he unto them—Render, therefore, the things of Caesar, unto Caesar,—and, the things of God, unto God. ²²And, hearing, they marvelled,—and, leaving him, departed. ²³On that day, there came unto him Sadducees, who say, there is, no resurrection—and they questioned him, ²⁴saying—Teacher! Moses, said, If any man die not having children, his brother shall marry his wife, and raise up seed unto his brother. ²⁵Now there were, with us, seven brethren; and, the first, marrying, died, and not having seed, left his wife unto his brother. ²⁶Likewise, the second also, and the third,—unto the seven. ²⁷And, last of all, died, the wife. ²⁸In the resurrection, therefore,—Of which of the seven, shall she be wife? For, all, had her. ²⁹And Jesus answering, said—Ye are deceiving yourselves, knowing neither the Scriptures, nor yet the power of God. ³⁰For, in the resurrection, they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but, as messengers in the heaven, are they. ³¹But, as touching the resurrection of the dead—Have ye not read what was spoken unto you by God, saying—³²I, am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob?—He is not God, of the dead, but, of the living. ³³And, the multitudes, hearing, were being struck with astonishment at his teaching. ³⁴Now, the Pharisees, hearing that he had silenced the Sadducees, were brought together with one accord; ³⁵and one from among them, a lawyer, proposed a question, putting him to the test: ³⁶Teacher! which commandment, is greatest in the law? ³⁷And, he, said unto him—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God—with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind: ³⁸This, is the great and first commandment. ³⁹The second, like it, is, this: Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. ⁴⁰In these two commandments, all the law, is contained, and the prophets. ⁴¹Now, the Pharisees having come together, Jesus questioned them, saying—⁴²How, to you, doth it seem, concerning the Christ? Whose son, is he? They say unto him—David's. ⁴³He saith unto them—How then doth, David, in spirit, call him, Lord, saying—⁴⁴The Lord, hath said unto, my Lord,—Sit thou on my right hand, until I make thy foes thy footstool? ⁴⁵If then, David, calleth him, Lord, How, is he, his son? ⁴⁶And, no one, was able to answer him a word, neither durst anyone, from that day, question him, any more.

23Then, Jesus spake unto the multitudes and unto his disciples, ²saying—Upon Moses' seat, have sat down, the Scribes and the Pharisees: ³All things, therefore, whatsoever they tell you, do and observe,—but, according to their works, do ye not, for they, say, and do not, perform. ⁴But they bind together heavy burdens, and lay upon men's shoulders, whereas, they, with their finger, are not willing to move them. ⁵But, all their works, they do, to be gazed at, by men,—for they make broad their amulets, and make large their fringes, ⁶And dearly love the first couch in the chief meals, and the first seats in the synagogues, ⁷And the salutations in the market-places, and to be called by men, Rabbi. ⁸But, ye,—do not be called Rabbi,—for, one, is your Teacher, and, all ye, are brethren; ⁹And, father, be none of you called, upon the earth, for, one, is your Father, the Heavenly; ¹⁰Neither be called leaders, for, your leader, is one, the Christ; ¹¹And, the greatest of you, shall be to you, a minister; ¹²And, whoever shall exalt himself, shall be, abased, and, whoever shall abase himself, shall be, exalted, ¹³¹⁴But alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; because ye are locking up the kingdom of the heavens before men,—for, ye, are not entering, neither, them who are entering, suffer ye to enter. ¹⁵Alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites: because ye compass sea and dry land, to make one convert—and, when it is done, ye make him a son of gehenna, twofold more than ye. ¹⁶Alas for you, blind guides! that say—Whosoever shall swear by the Temple, it is, nothing, but, whosoever shall swear by the gold of the Temple, is bound: ¹⁷Foolish and blind! for which is, greater, The gold, or the Temple that hath hallowed the gold? ¹⁸And, whosoever shall swear by the altar, it is, nothing, but, whosoever shall swear by the gift that is upon it, is bound: ¹⁹Blind! for which is greater, The gift, or the altar that halloweth the gift? ²⁰He therefore that hath sworn by the altar, sweareth by it, and by all that is upon it; ²¹And, he that hath sworn by the Temple, sweareth by it, and by him who dwelleth therein; ²²And, he that hath sworn by heaven, sweareth by the throne of God, and by him who sitteth thereupon. ²³Alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; because ye tithe the mint and the anise and the cummin,—and have dismissed the weightier matters of the law—the justice, the mercy, and the faith; whereas, these, it was binding, to do, and, those, not to, dismiss. ²⁴Blind guides! Straining out the gnat, but, the camel, swallowing. ²⁵Alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; because ye cleanse the outside of the cup and of the dish,—while, within, they are full of plunder and intemperance. ²⁶Blind Pharisee! cleanse, first, the inside, of the cup \ul1 and of the dish\ul0, that, the outside thereof, may become, clean. ²⁷Alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; because ye make yourselves like sepulchres whitewashed, which, outside, indeed, appear, beautiful, but, within, are full, of dead men's bones and all uncleanness,—²⁸Thus, ye also, outside, indeed, appear to men, righteous, but, within, are full, of hypocrisy and lawlessness. ²⁹Alas for you, Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites; because ye build the sepulchres of the prophets, and adorn the monuments of the righteous, ³⁰and say—If we had been in the days of our fathers, we would not have been their partners in the blood of the prophets: ³¹So that ye bear witness against yourselves, that ye are, sons, of them who murdered the prophets. ³²And, ye, fill ye up the measure of your fathers! ³³Serpents! broods of vipers! how should ye flee from the judgment of gehenna? ³⁴For this cause, lo! I, send unto you, prophets and wise men and scribes,—some from among them, ye will slay and crucify, And some from among them ye will—scourge in your synagogues, and pursue from city to city: ³⁵That there may come upon you—all righteous blood poured out upon the earth, from the blood of Abel the righteous, unto the blood of Zachariah, son of Barachiah, whom ye murdered between the Temple and the altar. ³⁶Verily, I say unto you—All these things, will have come, upon this generation. ³⁷Jerusalem! Jerusalem! that slayeth the prophets, and stoneth them that have been sent unto her,—how often, would I have gathered thy children, like as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings,—and ye would not! ³⁸Lo! your house is left to you; ³⁹For I say unto you—in no wise, may ye see me, henceforth, until ye say, Blessed, is he that cometh, in the name of the Lord!

24And, Jesus coming forth, from the temple, was taking his departure, when his disciples came forward to point out to him the buildings of the temple. ²But, he, answering, said unto them—Are ye not beholding all these things? Verily, I say unto you—in no wise, shall there be left here, stone upon stone, which shall not be thrown down. ³And, as he was sitting upon the Mount of Olives, the disciples came unto him, privately, saying—Tell us, when these things shall be,—and what the sign of thy presence, and the conclusion of the age. ⁴And, answering, Jesus said unto them—Be taking heed, lest anyone, deceive, you; ⁵For, many, will come upon my name, saying—I, am the Christ,—and will, deceive many. ⁶Moreover ye will be sure to be hearing of wars, and rumours of wars: Mind! be not alarmed, for it must needs happen,—but, not yet, is, the end; ⁷For there will arise—nation against nation, and kingdom against kingdom,—and there will be famines and earthquakes, in places. ⁸But, all these things, are a beginning of birth-pangs. ⁹Then, will they deliver you up into tribulation, and will slay you,—and ye will be men hated by all the nations, because of my name ¹⁰And, then, will many be caused to stumble, and, one another, will deliver up, and will hate one another; ¹¹And, many false prophets, will arise, and deceive, many; ¹²And, because of lawlessness being brought to the full, the love of the many, will grew cold. ¹³But, he that hath endured throughout, the same, shall be saved. ¹⁴And this glad message of the kingdom will be proclaimed in all the inhabited earth, for a witness unto all the nations,—and, then, will have come, the end. ¹⁵Whensoever, therefore, ye shall see the abomination desolation, that was spoken of through Daniel the prophet, standing in a holy place,—he that readeth, let him think, ¹⁶Then, they who are in Judaea, let them flee into the mountains; ¹⁷And, he that is on the house-top, let him not come down, to take away the things out of his house; ¹⁸And, he that is in the field, let him not turn back, to take away his mantle. ¹⁹But alas! for the women with child, and for them that are giving suck, in those days; ²⁰But be praying that your flight, may not happen in winter, nor on sabbath; ²¹For there will be then, Great tribulation, such as hath not happened, from the beginning of the world, until the present time, neither in any wise shall happen. ²²And, except those days had been shortened, no flesh had been saved; but, for the sake of the chosen, those days shall be shortened. ²³Then, if any, unto you, say—Lo! here, is the Christ, or, there, Do not believe it; ²⁴For there will arise, false Christs, and false prophets,—and they will show great signs and wonders, so that, if possible, even the chosen, should be deceived:—²⁵Lo! I have foretold you. ²⁶If therefore they should say unto you, Lo! in the desert, he is, Do not go forth; Lo! in the chambers, Do not believe it. ²⁷For, just as the lightning goeth forth from the east, and shineth unto the west, so, shall be the presence of the Son of Man. ²⁸Wheresoever, the corpse, shall be, there, shall be gathered, the vultures! ²⁹But, straightway after the tribulation of those days, the sun, will be darkened, and, the moon, will not give her brightness, and, the stars, will fall from heaven,—and, the powers of the heavens, will be shaken; ³⁰And, then, will be displayed—The sign of the Son of Man in heaven, and, then, will smite their breasts—all the tribes of the earth; and they will see the Son of Man—coming upon the clouds of heaven, with great power and glory. ³¹And he will send forth his messengers, with a great trumpet, and they will gather together his chosen—Out of the four winds, from heavens' bounds, unto their bounds. ³²Now, from the fig-tree, learn ye, the parable:—When, already, her young branch, becometh tender, and the leaves, may be sprouting, ye observe, that, near, is, the summer: ³³Thus, ye also, when ye shall see all these things, observe ye, that, near, he is, at the doors. ³⁴Verily, I say unto you—In nowise, shall this generation, pass away, until all these things, shall happen: ³⁵The heaven and the earth, shall pass away, but, my words, shall, in nowise, pass away. ³⁶But, concerning that day and hour, no one, knoweth, neither the messengers of the heavens, nor the Son,—save the Father only. ³⁷For, just as the days of Noah, so, will be the presence of the Son of Man; ³⁸For, as they were in those days that were before the flood, feeding and drinking, marrying and being given in marriage,—until the day Noah entered into the ark; ³⁹And they observed not, until the flood came and took away all together, so, will be, the presence of the Son of Man. ⁴⁰Then, shall there be two men in the field,—one, is taken near, and, one, is left behind: ⁴¹Two women grinding at the mill,—one, is taken near, and, one, is left behind. ⁴²Be watching, therefore, for ye know not, on what manner of day, your Lord is coming. ⁴³But there is, one thing, ye know—That, if the householder, had known, in what watch, the thief was coming, he would have been on the alert, and not have suffered his house to be dug through. ⁴⁴Wherefore, ye also, be getting ready, because, in what hour ye are, not thinking, The Son of Man doth come. ⁴⁵Who then is the faithful and prudent servant, whom the master hath appointed over his household, to give them food in season? ⁴⁶Happy! that servant, whom his master, when he cometh, shall find so doing! ⁴⁷Verily, I say unto you—Over all his substance, will he appoint him. ⁴⁸But, if that wicked servant should say in his heart—My master, delayeth, ⁴⁹And begin to be striking his fellow-servants, and eating and drinking with the drunken, ⁵⁰The master of that servant, will have come, on a day when he is not expecting, and in an hour when he is not observing,—⁵¹And will cut him asunder; and, his part, with the hypocrites, will appoint: There, shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth!

called his own servants, and delivered up to them his substance; ¹⁵And, to one, indeed, gave he five talents, and, to another, two, and, to another, one,—to each according to his particular ability, and went from home. ¹⁶Straightway, he who, the five talents, had received, went and traded with them, and gained other five: ¹⁷Likewise, he of the two, gained other two: ¹⁸But, he who the one had received, went away, and digged up ground, and hid the silver of his lord. ¹⁹And, after a long time, cometh the lord of those servants, and reckoneth with them. ²⁰And he who the five talents had received, coming forward, brought other five talents, saying,—Lord! five talents, to me, thou didst deliver up: See! other five talents, I gained. ²¹His lord said unto him—Well-done! good and faithful servant,—Over a few things wast thou faithful, over many things, will I appoint thee: Enter into the joy of thy lord. ²²He also of the two talents, coming forward, said—Lord! two talents, to me, didst thou deliver up: See! other two talents, I gained. ²³His lord said unto him—Well-done! good and faithful servant,—Over a few things, wast thou faithful, over many things, will I appoint thee: Enter into the joy of thy lord. ²⁴But he also who, the one talent, had received, coming forward, said—Lord I knew thee, that thou art a, hard, man, reaping, where thou hast not sown,—and gathering, whence thou hast not winnowed; ²⁵And, overcome with fear, I went away, and hid thy talent in the ground: See! thou hast what is thine! ²⁶And his lord, answering, said unto him—O wicked servant, and cowardly, knewest thou that I reap, where I have not sown, and gather, whence I have not winnowed? ²⁷It was binding on thee, therefore, to cast my silver into the money-changers,—and, I, when I, came, might have obtained what was mine, with interest. ²⁸Therefore take away, from him, the talent, and give unto him that hath the ten talents; ²⁹For, to every one that hath, shall be given, and he shall be made to abound; but, from him that hath not, even what he hath, shall be taken away from him: ³⁰And, the unprofitable servant, cast ye forth into the darkness, outside: There, shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth. ³¹But, whensoever the Son of Man shall come in his glory, and all the messengers with him, then will he sit on his throne of glory; ³²And there will be gathered before him, all the nations, and he will separate them one from another, just as, the shepherd! separateth the sheep from the goats,— ³³And he will set, the sheep, indeed, on his right hand, but, the goats, on the left. ³⁴Then, will the king say to those on his right hand: Come ye, the blessed of my Father! Inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world; ³⁵For I hungered, and ye gave me to eat, I thirsted, and ye gave me drink, a stranger, was I, and ye took me home, ³⁶Naked, and ye clothed me, sick, and ye visited me, in prison, was I, and ye came unto me. ³⁷Then, will the righteous answer him, saying: Lord! when, saw we thee—hungry, and fed thee, or thirsty, and gave thee drink? ³⁸And, when, saw we thee—

a stranger, and took thee home, or naked, and clothed thee? ³⁹And, when, saw we thee—sick, or in prison, and came unto thee? ⁴⁰And, answering, the king will say unto them: Verily, I say unto you—Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of these my least brethren, unto me, ye did it. ⁴¹Then, will he say unto those also, on his left hand: Depart ye from me, accursed ones! Into the age-abiding fire, which hath been prepared for the adversary and his messengers; ⁴²For I hungered, and ye gave me not to eat, \u01 and\u01 I was thirsty, and ye gave me not to drink, ⁴³A stranger, was I, and ye took me not home, naked, and ye clothed me not, sick, and in prison, and ye visited me not. ⁴⁴Then, will, they also, answer, saying: Lord! when saw we thee—hungry, or thirsty, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and ministered not unto thee? ⁴⁵Then, will he answer them, saying: Verily, I say unto you—Inasmuch as ye did it not, unto one of these least, neither unto me, did ye it. ⁴⁶And, these, shall go away, into, age-abiding, correction, but, the righteous, into, age-abiding, life.

26And it came to pass, when Jesus ended all these words, he said unto his disciples: ²Ye know that, after two days, the passover, taketh place,—and, the Son of Man, is to be delivered up, to be crucified. ³Then, were gathered together, the High-priests and the Elders of the people, into the court of the High-priest who was called Caiaphas; ⁴and they took counsel together, in order that, Jesus, by guile, they might secure, and slay. ⁵They were saying, however: Not during the feast, lest, an uproar, arise among the people. ⁶But, Jesus, happening to be in Bethany, in the house of Simon the leper, ⁷there came unto him a woman, holding an alabaster-jar of costly perfume, and she poured it down upon his head, as he was reclining. ⁸And the disciples, seeing it, were greatly displeased, saying—To what end, this loss? ⁹For this could have been sold for much, and given to the destitute. ¹⁰But Jesus, taking note, said unto them—Why vex ye the woman? for, a seemly work, hath she wrought for me; ¹¹For, always, the destitute, have ye with you,—but, me, not always, have ye; ¹²For, she, pouring this perfume upon my body, so as to prepare me for burial, did it. ¹³Verily, I say unto you—Wheresoever this glad-message shall be proclaimed in all the world, also what she did, will be told, as a memorial of her. ¹⁴Then, went one of the twelve, the one called Judas Iscariot, unto the High-priests, ¹⁵and said—What are ye willing to give unto me? and, I, unto you, will deliver him up. And they appointed him thirty pieces of silver. ¹⁶And, from that time, was he seeking a favourable opportunity that he might, deliver him up. ¹⁷And, on the first of the days of unleavened bread, the disciples came unto Jesus, saying—Where wilt thou, that we make ready for thee to eat the passover? ¹⁸And, he, said—Go your way into the city, unto such-a-one, and say to him, The teacher, saith, My season, is, near, with thee, will I keep the passover, into his face, and buffeted him; and, others, struck him smartly, ⁶⁸saying—Prophecy unto us, O Christ! Who is he that struck thee? ⁶⁹Now, Peter, was sitting without, in the court; and there came unto him a certain female servant, saying—Thou also, wast with Jesus, the Galilaean. ⁷⁰But, he, denied before all, saying—I know not what thou sayest. ⁷¹And, when he went out into the porch, another female saw him, and said unto them who were there—This, one was with Jesus the Nazarene. ⁷²And, again, he denied, with an oath—I know not the man. ⁷³And, after a little, the by-standers, coming forward, said unto Peter: Truly, thou also, art, from among them, for, thy very speech, maketh thee, manifest. ⁷⁴Then, began he to be cursing and swearing—I know not the man! And, straightway, a cock crowed. ⁷⁵And Peter was put in mind of the declaration of Jesus, of his having said—Before a cock crow, thrice, wilt thou utterly deny me; and, going forth outside, he wept bitterly.

27Now, when morning came, all the High-priests and Elders of the people took, counsel, against Jesus, so as to put him to death: ²and, binding him, they led him away, and delivered him up unto Pilate the governor. ³Then, Judas who had delivered him up, seeing that he was condemned, being smitten with remorse, returned the thirty pieces of silver unto the High-priests and Elders, ⁴saying—I have sinned, in delivering up righteous blood. But, they, said—What is that to us? thou, shalt see to it for thyself. ⁵And, throwing the pieces of silver into the Temple, he withdrew, and, going away, hanged himself. ⁶But, the High-priests, taking the pieces of silver, said—It is not allowed, to cast them into the treasury; since, a price of blood, they are. ⁷And, taking counsel, they bought with them, the field of the potter, as a burial-place for strangers. ⁸Wherefore, that field hath been called Field of Blood, until this day. ⁹Then, was fulfilled, that which was spoken through Jeremiah the prophet, saying: And they took the thirty pieces of silver, as the value of him whom they had valued, whom they had valued, of Israel's sons,—¹⁰And gave them for the field of the potter, as, the Lord, directed me. ¹¹Now, Jesus, stood before the governor; and the governor questioned him, saying—Thou, art the king of the Jews? And, Jesus, said—Thou, sayest. ¹²And, while he was being accused by the High-priests and Elders, he answered nothing. ¹³Then, Pilate saith unto him—Hearest thou not how many things against thee they are bearing witness? ¹⁴And he answered him, no not so much as a single word, so that the governor was marvelling exceedingly. ¹⁵But, feast by feast, the governor had been wont to release one unto the multitude, a prisoner whom they were desiring. ¹⁶Now they had at that time a distinguished prisoner, called, Barabbas. ¹⁷They therefore having come together, Pilate, said to them—Whom will ye I should release unto you? Barabbas? or Jesus, who is called Christ?

¹⁸For he knew that, for envy, they had delivered him up. ¹⁹And, as he was sitting upon the judgment seat, his wife sent unto him, saying: Have thou nothing to do with that righteous man, for, many things, have I suffered this day, by dream, because of him. ²⁰But, the High-priests and the elders, persuaded the multitudes, that they should claim Barabbas, but, Jesus, should, destroy. ²¹Now the governor, answering, said unto them—Which of the two desire ye I should release unto you? And they said—Barabbas! ²²Pilate saith unto them—What then shall I do unto Jesus, who is called Christ? They all say—Let him be crucified! ²³But, he, said—Indeed! what evil hath he done? But, they, vehemently, were crying aloud, saying—Let him be crucified! ²⁴And Pilate, seeing, that, nothing, it availed, but rather, a tumult, was arising, taking water, washed his hands of it before the multitude, saying—Innocent, am I, of the blood of this man,—Ye, shall see to it for yourselves. ²⁵And all the people, answering, said—His blood be upon us and upon our children! ²⁶Then released he unto them Barabbas, but, scourging, Jesus, delivered him up, that he might be crucified. ²⁷Then the soldiers of the governor, taking Jesus aside into the judgment-hall, gathered unto him all the band; ²⁸and, unclothing him, a scarlet scarf, put they about him,—²⁹and, plaiting a crown out of thorns, they put it upon his head, and a reed in his right hand,—and, kneeling before him, began to mock him, saying—Joy to thee, King of the Jews! ³⁰And, spitting upon him, they took the reed, and began striking upon his head. ³¹And, when they had mocked him, they put off him the scarf, and put on him his garments, and led him away unto the crucifying. ³²And, as they were going forth, they found a man of Cyrene, by name, Simon,—the same, they impressed to bear his cross. ³³And, coming into a place called Golgotha, that is to say, Skull-place, ³⁴they gave him to drink, wine, with gall, mingled, and, tasting, he would not drink. ³⁵And, having crucified him, they parted among themselves his garments, casting a cloth; ³⁶and, being seated, were watching him there. ³⁷And they put up, over his head, his accusation, written—THIS, IS JESUS, THE KING OF THE JEWS. ³⁸Then, are crucified with him, two robbers,—one on the right hand, and one on the left. ³⁹And, they who were passing by, were reviling him, shaking their heads, ⁴⁰and saying—The man that taketh down the Temple and in three days buildeth it! Save, thyself! If thou art God's, Son, come down from the cross. ⁴¹Likewise, the High-priests, \u1 also\u10, mocking, with the Scribes and Elders, were saying: Others, he saved,—Himself, he cannot save: ⁴²Israel's King, he is! Let him come down, now, from the cross,—and we will believe on him! ⁴³He hath put confidence upon God, Let him rescue him, now, if he desireth him; for he said, I am, God's Son. ⁴⁴And, the same thing, the robbers also, who were crucified with him, were casting in his teeth. ⁴⁵Now, from the sixth hour, darkness, came upon all the land—

until the ninth hour. ⁴⁶And, about the ninth hour, Jesus uttered a cry, with a loud voice, saying—Eloi! Eloi! lema sabachthanei? that is, My God! my God! to what end hast thou forsaken me? ⁴⁷Now certain of them who were there standing, when they heard, began to say—This man, calleth, Elijah. ⁴⁸And, straightway, one from among them, running, and taking a sponge, and filling it with vinegar and putting it on a reed, was giving him to drink; ⁴⁹but, the rest, said—Stay! let us see whether Elijah is coming, and will save him. But, another, taking a spear, pierced his side, and there came forth water and blood. ⁵⁰And, Jesus, again crying out with a loud voice, dismissed the spirit. ⁵¹And lo! the veil of the Temple, was rent, from top to bottom, into two; and, the earth, was shaken, and, the rocks, were rent; ⁵²and, the tombs, were opened and, many bodies of the holy ones who had fallen asleep, arose,—⁵³and, coming forth out of the tombs after his arising, entered into, the holy city, and plainly appeared unto many. ⁵⁴Now, the centurion, and those with him watching Jesus, seeing the earthquake and the things coming to pass, were violently affrighted, saying—Truly, God's Son, was, he! ⁵⁵Now there were there, many women, from afar, beholding, who indeed had followed Jesus from Galilee, ministering unto him; ⁵⁶among whom was Mary the Magdalene, also Mary the mother of James and Joseph, and the mother of the sons of Zebedee. ⁵⁷And, when, evening, arrived, there came a rich man from Arimathaea, whose name was Joseph, who also, himself, had been discipled unto Jesus. ⁵⁸The same, going unto Pilate, claimed the body of Jesus. Then, Pilate commanded it to be given up. ⁵⁹And Joseph, taking the body, wrapped it up in a clean Indian-cloth, ⁶⁰and laid it in his new tomb, which he had hewn in the rock, and, rolling near a large stone unto the door of the tomb, departed. ⁶¹Now there were there, Mary the Magdalene, and the other Mary, sitting over against the sepulchre. ⁶²And, on the morrow, which is after the preparation, the High-priests and the Pharisee were gathered together unto Pilate, ⁶³saying—Sir! we have been put in mind that, that deceiver, said, while yet living,—After three days, will I, arise. ⁶⁴Command, therefore, that the sepulchre be made secure until the third day,—lest once the disciples should come and steal him, and say unto the people, He hath arisen from the dead! and, the last deception, shall be, worse than the first. ⁶⁵Pilate saith unto them—Ye have a guard: Go your way, secure it for yourselves, as ye know how. ⁶⁶And, they, went and secured for themselves the sepulchre, sealing the stone, with the guard.

²⁸And, late in the week, when it was on the point of dawning into the first of the week, came Mary the Magdalene, and the other Mary, to view the sepulchre. ²And lo! a great commotion occurred,—for, a messenger of the Lord, descending out of heaven, and coming near, had rolled away the stone, and was sitting upon it. ³Now his appearance, was, as lightning, and, his clothing, white as snow; ⁴and, for fear of him, they who were keeping watch were thrown into a commotion, and became as dead men. ⁵But the messenger, answering, said unto the women—Be not, ye, afraid! For I know that, Jesus the crucified, ye are seeking: ⁶He is not here, for he hath arisen, as he said. Come! see the place where he lay; ⁷And, quickly going, tell his disciples—He hath arisen from the dead, and lo! he is going before you into Galilee;—There, shall ye yourselves see him: Lo! I have told you. ⁸And, departing quickly from the tomb with fear and great joy, they ran to bring tidings unto his disciples. ⁹And lo! Jesus, met them, saying—Joy to you! And, they, going forward, held his feet, and worshipped him. ¹⁰Then, Jesus saith unto them—Be not afraid! Go your way, bear tidings unto my brethren, that they may depart into Galilee; and, there, shall they themselves see me. ¹¹Now as they were, going, lo! certain of the guard, went into the city and reported unto the High-priests all the things that had come to pass; ¹²and, being gathered together with the Elders and taking counsel, sufficient pieces of silver, gave they unto the soldiers,—¹³saying—Say ye, His disciples, coming, by night, stole him, while we were sleeping; ¹⁴And, if this be reported unto the governor, we, will persuade him, and will make, you, free from care. ¹⁵And, they, taking the pieces of silver, did as they were instructed. And this account was spread abroad among the Jews...until this \ul1 very\ul0 day. ¹⁶And, the eleven disciples, went into Galilee, unto the mountain which, Jesus, had appointed them; ¹⁷and, seeing him, they worshipped, but, some, doubted. ¹⁸And Jesus, coming near, spake unto them, saying—All authority, in heaven and on earth, hath been given unto me; ¹⁹Go ye, therefore, and disciple all the nations, Immersing them into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit,—²⁰Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I myself have commanded you, And lo! I, am, with you, all the days, until the conclusion of the age.

Mark

¹Beginning of the glad-message of Jesus Christ. ²According as it is written in Isaiah the prophet—Lo! I send my messenger before thy face, Who shall prepare thy way,— ³A voice of one crying aloud—In the wilderness, prepare ye the way of the Lord, straight, be making his paths. ⁴John the Immerser came, in the wilderness, proclaiming an immersion of repentance for remission of sins; ⁵and there were going out unto him all the Judaea country and all they of Jerusalem, and were being immersed by him in the Jordan river, openly confessing their sins; ⁶and John was clothed with camel's-hair and a leathern girdle about his loins, and was eating locusts and wild honey; ⁷and he proclaimed, saying—He that is mightier than I cometh after \ul1 me\ul0 , of whom I am not worthy to stoop and unloose the strap of his sandals: ⁸I, have immersed you, with water,—He, will immerse you, with the Holy Spirit. ⁹And it came to pass, in those days, that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee, and was immersed into the Jordan by John; ¹⁰And, straightway, as he was coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens rending asunder, and, the Spirit, as a dove, descending unto him; ¹¹and a voice \ul1 came\ul0 out of the heavens—Thou, art my Son, the Beloved,—In thee, I delight. ¹²And, straightway, the Spirit urgeth him forth into the wilderness; ¹³and he was in the wilderness, forty days, tempted by Satan, and was with the wild beasts,—and, the messengers, were ministering unto him. ¹⁴And after John was delivered up, Jesus came into Galilee, proclaiming the glad-message of God, ¹⁵\ul1 and saying\ul0 —The season is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God hath drawn near,—Repent ye, and have faith in the glad-message. ¹⁶And, passing by near the sea of Galilee, he saw Simon, and Andrew the brother of Simon, casting a net in the sea,—for they were fishers; ¹⁷and Jesus said unto them—Come after me, and I will make you become fishers of men; ¹⁸and, straightway, leaving the nets, they followed him. ¹⁹And, going forward a little, he saw James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, and them who were in the boat putting in order the nets; ²⁰and, straightway, he called them,—and, leaving their father Zebedee in the boat, with the hired men, they came away after him. ²¹And they journey into Capernaum. And, straightway, on the Sabbath, entering into the synagogue, he began teaching; ²²and they were being struck with astonishment at his teaching,—for he was teaching them as one having authority, and, not as the Scribes. ²³And, straightway, there was in their synagogue, a man in an impure spirit,—and he cried out aloud, ²⁴saying—What have we in common with thee, Jesus of Nazareth? Hast thou come to destroy us? I know thee, who thou art, The Holy One of God. ²⁵And Jesus rebuked him, \ul1 saying\ul0 —Be silenced, and come forth out of him! ²⁶And the impure spirit, tearing him, and calling out with a loud voice, came forth out of him; ²⁷and they were amazed, one and all, so that they began to discuss among themselves, saying—What is this? New teaching! With authority, to the impure spirits also, he giveth orders, and they obey him! ²⁸And forth went the report of him, straightway, on every hand, into the surrounding country of Galilee. ²⁹And, straightway, out of the synagogue, going forth, he went unto the house of Simon and Andrew, with James and John. ³⁰Now, the mother-in-law of Simon, was lying in a fever, and, straightway, they speak to him concerning her; ³¹and, coming near, he raised her up, grasping her hand,—and the fever left her, and she began ministering unto them. ³²And, evening arriving, when the sun went in, they were bearing unto him all who were sick, and them who were demonized; ³³and all the city was gathered unto the door; ³⁴and he cured many that were sick with divers diseases, and, many demons, he cast out, and suffered not the demons to be talking,—because they knew him \ul1 to be Christ\ul0 . ³⁵And, very early by night arising, he went out \ul1 and departed\ul0 into a desert place, and, there, was praying; ³⁶and Simon, and they who were with him, went in quest of him, ³⁷and found him, and say unto him—All, are seeking thee; ³⁸and he saith unto them—Let us be going elsewhere, into the neighbouring country-towns, in order that, there also, I may be making proclamation,—for, to this end, came I forth; ³⁹and he came, making proclamation, into their synagogues, throughout the whole of Galilee,—and, was casting the demons out. ⁴⁰And there cometh unto him, a leper, beseeching him and \ul1 kneeling\ul0 ,—saying unto him—If thou be willing, thou canst cleanse me; ⁴¹and, moved with compassion, he stretched forth the hand, and touched him, and saith unto him—I am willing, Be cleansed! ⁴²and, straightway, the leprosy departed from him, and he was cleansed; ⁴³and, strictly charging him, straightway, he urged him forth; ⁴⁴and saith unto him—Mind! unto no one, say aught,—but withdraw, thyself, show unto the priest, and offer for thy cleansing what things Moses enjoined, for a witness unto them. ⁴⁵But, he, going forth, began to be proclaiming many things, and blazing abroad the story, so that, no longer, was it possible for him, openly, into a city, to enter,—but, outside, in desert places, \u1 was he\u0 , and they were coming unto him from every quarter.

2And, entering again into Capernaum, after some days, it was heard say—He is in a house; ²and many were gathered together, so that no longer was there room even in the approaches to the door,—and he began speaking unto them the word; ³and they come, bearing unto him a paralytic, upborne by four,— ⁴and, not being able to get near him by reason of the multitude, they uncovered the roof where he was, and, having broken it up, they began letting down the couch whereon the paralytic was lying; ⁵and, Jesus, seeing their faith, saith unto the paralytic—Child! forgiven are thy sins! ⁶Now there were certain of the Scribes there, sitting and deliberating in their hearts,— ⁷Why doth, this, man thus talk? he is speaking profanely! Who can forgive sins, save one, God? ⁸And Jesus, straightway, taking note in his spirit, that \u1 thus\u0 they are deliberating within themselves, saith \u1 unto them\u0 —Why, these things, are ye deliberating in your hearts? ⁹Which is easier—to say unto the paralytic, Forgiven are thy sins, or to say, Rise, \u1 and\u0 take up thy couch, and be walking? ¹⁰But, that ye may know that the Son of Man hath authority to be forgiving sins upon the earth, he saith to the paralytic: ¹¹To thee, I say, Rise, take up thy couch, and be going thy way unto thy house. ¹²And he arose, and, straightway taking up the couch, went forth before all,—so that all were beside themselves and were glorifying God, \u1 saying\u0 —Thus, we never saw it! ¹³And he went forth again by the sea,—and all the multitude was coming unto him, and he began teaching them. ¹⁴And, passing by, he saw Levi, the son of Alphaeus, sitting over the tax-office,—and saith unto him—Be following me! And, arising, he followed him. ¹⁵And it cometh to pass, that he is reclining in his house, and many tax-collectors and sinners were reclining with Jesus and his disciples; for there were many, and they began following him. ¹⁶And the Scribes and Pharisees, seeing that he was eating with the sinners and the tax-collectors, began saying unto his disciples—With the tax-collectors and sinners, is he eating? ¹⁷And, hearing it, Jesus saith unto them—No need, have the strong of a physician, but they who are sick, I came not to call the righteous, but sinners. ¹⁸And the disciples of John and the Pharisees were fasting; and they come and say unto him—For what cause, do, the disciples of John and the disciples of the Pharisees, fast, whereas, thy disciples, fast not? ¹⁹And Jesus said unto them—Is it possible for the sons of the bridechamber, while the bridegroom is with them, to be fasting? So long as they have the bridegroom with them, it is impossible, to fast. ²⁰But there will come days, when the bridegroom shall be taken from them, and, then, they will fast, in that day. ²¹No one, seweth a patch of unshrunk cloth upon an old mantle,—otherwise, at least, the shrinking teareth away from it—the new from the old—and, a worse rent is made. ²²And, no one, poureth new wine into fold skins,—otherwise, at least, the wine will burst the skins, and the wine is lost, and, the skins. \u1 But new wine is for unused skins.\u0 ²³And it came to pass, that he, on the Sabbath, was passing through the cornfields, and his disciples began to be going forward, plucking the ears of corn. ²⁴And, the Pharisees, were saying,—See! why are they doing, on the Sabbath, what is not allowed? ²⁵And he saith unto them—Have ye never read what David did, when he had need and hungered,—he, and they who were with him: ²⁶\u1 how\u0 he entered into the house of God, while Abiathar was High-priest, and, the presence-bread, did eat,—which it is not allowed to eat, save unto the priests,—and gave, unto them also who were with him? ²⁷And he was saying unto them—The Sabbath, for man, was made, and not, man, for, the Sabbath: ²⁸So that the Son of Man is, Lord, even of the Sabbath.

3And he entered again into a synagogue, and there was there, a man having, his hand, withered; ²and they were narrowly watching him, whether, on the Sabbath, he would cure him, that they might accuse him. ³And he saith unto the man who hath his hand withered, Arise into the midst! ⁴and saith unto them—Is it allowed, on the Sabbath, to do good, or to do evil? To, save, life, or, to slay? but they remained silent. ⁵And, looking round upon them with anger, being at the same time grieved on account of the hardening of their heart, he saith unto the man—Stretch forth thy hand! and he stretched it forth, and his hand, was restored. ⁶And, the Pharisees, going out straightway with the Herodians, were giving counsel against him, that they should, destroy, him. ⁷And, Jesus, with his disciples, retired unto the sea; and, a great throng from Galilee, followed, also from Judaea, ⁸and from Jerusalem, and from Idumaea, and beyond the Jordan, and around Tyre and Zidon, a great throng, hearing whatsoever things he was doing, came unto him. ⁹And he spake unto his disciples that a little boat might attend him, because of the multitude,—that they might not be pressing upon him. ¹⁰For he cured many, so that they were besieging him, that they might touch him—as many as had plagues; ¹¹and the impure spirits, as soon as they beheld him, were falling down to him, and crying aloud, while he was speaking, Thou, art the Son of God! ¹²and sternly was he rebuking them, lest they should make him manifest. ¹³And he goeth up into the mountain and calleth near whom, he, pleased,—and they went away unto him; ¹⁴and he appointed a twelve, whom also he named, Apostles,—that they might be with him, and that he might be sending them forth to make proclamation, ¹⁵and to have authority to cast out the demons; ¹⁶and he appointed the twelve (and imposed a name on Simon—) Peter, ¹⁷and James the son of Zebedee, and John the brother of James (and imposed on them a name—Boanerges, that is, sons of thunder); ¹⁸and Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and Thomas, and James the son of Alphaeus, and Thaddaeus, and Simon the zealot; ¹⁹and Judas Iscariot, who also delivered him up. And he cometh into a house; ²⁰and the multitude come together again, so that they could not so much as eat bread. ²¹And they who were near to him, hearing of it, went out to secure him,—for they were saying—He is beside himself! ²²And, the Scribes who from Jerusalem had come down, were saying—He hath, Beelzebul; and—In the ruler of the demons, casteth he out the demons. ²³And, calling them near, in parables, began he to say unto them—How can, Satan, cast, Satan out? ²⁴And, if a kingdom against itself be divided, that kingdom cannot be made to stand; ²⁵And, if a house against itself be divided, the house shall be unable to stand; ²⁶And, if, Satan, hath risen up against himself, and become divided, he cannot stand, but hath an end. ²⁷But, no one is able into the house of the mighty one to enter, and, his spoils, to carry off, unless, first the mighty one, he bind, and, then his house, will he plunder! ²⁸Verily, I say unto you—All things shall be forgiven unto the sons of men,—the sins and the profanities wherewithal they shall profane; ²⁹But, whosoever shall revile against the Holy Spirit, hath no forgiveness, unto times age-abiding,—but is guilty of an age-abiding sin: ³⁰because they were saying—An impure spirit, he hath! ³¹And there come his mother and his brethren, and, standing, outside, they sent unto him, calling him. ³²And there was sitting around him a multitude, and they say unto him—Lo! thy mother and thy brethren, outside, are seeking thee! ³³And, answering them, he saith—Who are my mother and my brethren? ³⁴And, looking around on them who, about him, in a circle, were sitting, he saith, See! my mother and my brethren! ³⁵Whosoever shall do the will of God, the same, is my brother and sister and mother.

⁴And, again, began he to be teaching by the sea; and there come together unto him a very great multitude, so that, he, into a boat, entering, was sitting upon the sea,—and, all the multitude, were, near the sea upon the land. ²And he began to teach them, in parables, many things, and was saying unto them, in his teaching—³Hearken! Lo! the sower went forth to sow; ⁴And it came to pass, as he sowed, some, indeed, fell by the pathway, and the birds came, and devoured it; ⁵And, some, fell on the rocky places, \u011 even\u010 where it had not much earth,—and, straightway, it sprang forth, by reason of its not having depth of earth; ⁶and, when the sun arose, it was scorched,—and, by reason of its not having root, it was dried up; ⁷And, some, fell among the thorns, and the thorns came up and choked it, and, fruit, it yielded not; ⁸And, other, fell into the good ground, and was yielding fruit, coming up and growing,—and was bearing, thirtyfold and sixtyfold and a hundredfold, ⁹And he was saying—He that hath ears to hear, let him hear! ¹⁰And when he was alone they who were about him with the twelve questioned him as to the parables; ¹¹and he was saying unto them—To you, the sacred secret hath been given of the kingdom of God, whereas, to them who are outside, in parables are all things coming to pass,—that ¹²They may surely look and yet not see, and surely hear and yet not understand, lest once they should return and it be forgiven them. ¹³And he saith unto them—Know ye not this parable? How then will ye get to know all the parables? ¹⁴The sower, soweth the word; ¹⁵And these are they beside the pathway where the word is sown,—and, as soon as they hear, straightway, cometh Satan, and snatcheth away the word which hath been sown into them; ¹⁶And these are likewise they upon the rocky places sown,—who, as soon as they hear the word, straightway, with joy receive it, ¹⁷and have no root in themselves, but, only for a season are,—afterwards, when there ariseth tribulation or persecution by reason of the word, straightway, they find cause of stumbling; ¹⁸And others are they who among thorns are sown,—these are they who hear the word, ¹⁹and, the anxieties of the age, and the deceit of wealth, and the covetings about the remaining things, entering in, choke up the word, and, unfruitful, it becometh; ²⁰And those yonder are they who on the good ground are sown,—who, indeed, hear the word, and accept it, and bear fruit—thirtyfold and sixtyfold and a hundredfold. ²¹And he was saying unto them—Doth the lamp come that under the measure it should be put, or under the couch? Is it not that upon the lampstand it may be put? ²²For it is not hidden, save that it may be made visible; neither did it get hidden away, but that it might come into a place where it could be seen. ²³If any one hath ears to hear, let him hear. ²⁴And he was saying unto them—Be taking heed what ye are hearing:—with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured unto you, and added unto you; ²⁵For, he that hath, it shall be given, unto him, and, he that hath not, even what he hath, shall be taken from him. ²⁶And he was saying—Thus, is the kingdom of God: As a man may cast seed upon the earth, ²⁷and be sleeping and rising, night and day,—and the seed be sprouting, and lengthening itself,—how, he, knoweth not: ²⁸of itself, the earth beareth fruit,—first, a blade, afterwards, an ear, after that, full corn in the ear; ²⁹but, as soon as the fruit yieldeth itself up, straightway, he sendeth forth the sickle, because standing by is the harvest.—³⁰And he was saying—How shall we liken the kingdom of God, or, in what parable, shall we put it? ³¹As a grain of mustard seed,—which, whensoever it may be sown upon the earth, is less than all the seeds that are upon the earth; ³²and, as soon as it is sown, springeth up, and becometh greater than all garden plants, and produceth large branches, so that, under the shade thereof, the birds of heaven can find shelter. ³³And, with many such parables as these, was he speaking unto them the word,—according as they were able to hear; ³⁴but, without a parable, was he not speaking unto them,—privately, however, unto his own disciples, was he explaining all things. ³⁵And he saith unto them, on that day, when evening came, Let us cross over unto the other side; ³⁶and, dismissing the multitude, they take him with them, as he was, in the boat, and, other boats, were with him. ³⁷And there ariseth a great tempest of wind,—and, the waves, were dashing over into the boat, so that, already being filled, was the boat. ³⁸And he was in the stern, on the cushion, sleeping. And they arouse him, and say unto him, Teacher! carest thou not that we perish? ³⁹And, roused up, he rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea—Hush! be still! and the wind lulled, and it became a great calm. ⁴⁰And he said unto them—Why, are ye, fearful? Not yet, have ye faith? ⁴¹And they were caused to fear a great fear, and were saying one to another—Who then is, this, that, both the wind and the sea, give ear unto him?

⁵And they came unto the other side of the sea, into the country of the Gerasenes. ²And, when he went forth out of the boat, \u011 straightway\u011, there met him, from amongst the tombs, a man, in an impure spirit: ³who had his dwelling among the tombs, and, not even with a chain, any longer, was anyone able to bind him,—⁴because of his having been, many times, with fetters and chains, bound, and the chains having been plucked asunder by him, and the fetters smashed, and no one was mighty enough to tame him; ⁵and, continually, night and day, in the tombs and in the mountains, was he crying aloud, and cutting himself in pieces with stones. ⁶And, seeing Jesus from afar, he ran and bowed down to him; ⁷and, crying out with a loud voice, saith—What have in common with thee? O Jesus, Son of God Most High? I adjure thee by God,—Do not torment me! ⁸For he was saying to him—Go forth thou impure spirit, out of the man; ⁹and he was questioning him—What is thy name? and he saith to him—Legion, is my name, because we are, many; ¹⁰and he was beseeching him much that he would not send them forth outside the country. ¹¹Now there was there, near the mountain, a large herd of swine, feeding; ¹²and they besought him, saying—Send us into the swine, that, into them, we may enter; ¹³and he suffered them. And the impure spirits, going out, entered into the swine, and the herd rushed down the cliff into the sea, about two thousand, and were choked in the sea. ¹⁴And, they who had been feeding them, fled, and bare tidings into the city and into the fields,—and they came to see what it was that had happened. ¹⁵And they come unto Jesus, and view the demonized man, clothed and of sound mind, him who had had the legion,—and they were struck with fear. ¹⁶And the beholders narrated to them, how it happened to the demonized man, and concerning the swine. ¹⁷And they began to beseech him, to depart from their bounds. ¹⁸And, as he was entering into the boat, he who had been demonized was beseeching him, that, with him, he might be. ¹⁹And he suffered him not, but saith unto him—Withdraw into thy house, unto thine own, and bear tidings unto them, how many things the Lord for thee hath done, and hath had mercy on thee. ²⁰And he departed, and began proclaiming, in the Decapolis, how many things Jesus had done for him,—and, all, were marvelling. ²¹And, Jesus crossing over in the boat again unto the other side, there was gathered a large multitude unto him, and he was by the lake. ²²And there cometh one of the synagogue-rulers, by name Jairus, and, seeing him, falleth at his feet, ²³and beseecheth him much, saying—My little daughter is at her last!—that, coming, thou wouldest lay thy hands upon her, that she may be made well, and live; ²⁴and he departed with him. And there was following him a large multitude, and they were pressing upon him. ²⁵And, a woman, who had had a flow of blood twelve years, ²⁶and suffered much from many physicians, and spent all her means, and profited, nothing,—but had, rather, become worse, ²⁷hearing the things about Jesus, came in the crowd from behind, and touched his mantle; ²⁸for she was saying—If I can touch so much as his mantle, I shall be made well; ²⁹and, straightway, the fountain of her blood was dried up, and she knew, in her body, that she was healed from the plague. ³⁰And, straightway, Jesus, taking note in himself of the power which, out of him, went forth, turning round in the crowd, was saying—Who hath touched my garments? ³¹and his disciples were saying to him—Thou seest the crowd pressing upon thee,—and sayest thou—Who hath touched me? ³²and he was looking round to see her who, this thing had done. ³³And, the woman, overcome with fear, and trembling, knowing what had happened to her, came, and fell down before him, and told him all the truth. ³⁴And, he, said to her—Daughter! thy faith hath made thee well; withdraw into peace, and be whole from thy plague. ³⁵While yet he is speaking, they come from the synagogue-ruler's, saying—Thy daughter, is dead! Why, further, annoy the teacher? ³⁶But, Jesus, overhearing the word being spoken, saith unto the synagogue-ruler—Do not fear, only have faith! ³⁷And he suffered no one to follow with him, save Peter and James and John the brother of James. ³⁸And they come into the house of the synagogue-ruler, and he observeth a tumult, and persons weeping and wailing greatly; ³⁹and, entering, he saith unto them—Why are ye making a tumult, and weeping? The child, is, not dead, but, is sleeping; ⁴⁰and they were de-riding him. But, he, thrusting all forth, taketh with him the father of the child, and the mother, and them who were with him,—and entereth where the child was; ⁴¹and, grasping the hand of the child, he saith unto her—Talitha, koum! which is, when translated—O damsel! to thee, I say, Arise! ⁴²And, straightway, the damsel arose, and was walking about; for she was twelve years of age. And they were beside themselves, straightway, with a great transport; ⁴³and he commanded them, again and again, that, no one, should get to know this thing,—and bade that food should be given her to eat.

⁶And he went forth from thence, and cometh into his own city,—and his disciples follow him. ²And, when it was Sabbath, he began to be teaching in the synagogue, and, the greater part, as they heard, were being struck with astonishment, saying—Whence hath this man these things?—and—What the wisdom which hath been given to this man?—and—Such mighty works as these, through his hands, are coming to pass! ³Is not, this, the carpenter? the son of Mary, the brother of James and Joses and Judas and Simon? And are not his sisters here with us?—and they were finding cause of stumbling in him. ⁴And Jesus was saying unto them—A prophet is not without honour, save in his own city and among his kinsfolk, and in his house; ⁵and he could not, there, do so much as a single mighty work,—save, on a few sick, he laid his hands and cured them. ⁶And he marvelled because of their unbelief. And he was going round the villages in a circuit, teaching. ⁷And he calleth near the twelve, and began to be sending them forth two and two,—and was giving them authority over the impure spirits: ⁸and charged them that they should take, nothing, for a journey, save a staff only,—no bread, no satchel, no copper, for the belt; ⁹but having bound on light sandals, and not to put on, two tunics; ¹⁰and he was saying unto them—Wheresoever ye shall enter into a house, there, abide, until ye go forth from thence; ¹¹And, whatsoever place shall not welcome you nor hearken unto you, when ye are going forth from thence, shake off the dust that is under you feet, for a witness against them. ¹²And they went forth and made proclamation, in order that men should repent; ¹³and, many demons, were they casting out,—and were anointing with oil, many sick, and were curing them. ¹⁴And King Herod heard,—for, famous, had become his name; and he was saying—John the Immerser hath arisen from among the dead, and, for this cause, are the powers working mightily in him; ¹⁵But, others, were saying—It is Elijah, and, others were saying—A prophet, like one of the prophets! ¹⁶But, when Herod heard, he was saying—He whom I beheaded—John, the same, hath been raised. ¹⁷For, Herod himself, had sent and secured John and bound him in prison, for the sake of Herodias the wife of Philip his brother,—for, her, had he married, ¹⁸For John had been saying to Herod—It is not allowed thee, to have, the wife of thy brother. ¹⁹And, Herodias, was cherishing a grudge against him, and wishing, to slay him,—and could not; ²⁰for, Herod, stood in fear of John, knowing him to be a man righteous and holy,—and was keeping him safe; and, when he heard him, he paid earnest heed, and, with pleasure, used to listen to him. ²¹And, an opportune day arriving, when Herod on his birthday made a feast for his nobles, and for the rulers of thousands and for the first men of Galilee, ²²when the daughter of this very Herodias came in and danced, she pleased Herod and those reclining together, and, the king, said unto the damsel—Ask me what thou wilt, and I will give it thee; ²³and he took an oath to her—Whatsoever thou shalt ask me, I will give thee, unto half my kingdom. ²⁴And, going out, she said unto her mother—What shall I ask? and she said—The head of John the Immerser; ²⁵And, coming in straightway, with hast, unto the king, she asked, saying—I desire, that, forthwith, thou give me, upon a charger, the head of John the Immerser. ²⁶And, though the king was, very grieved, yet, by reason of the oaths, and of them who were reclining, he would not refuse her. ²⁷And the king, straightway, sending off a guard, gave orders to bring his head. ²⁸And, departing, he beheaded him in the prison, and brought his head upon a charger, and gave it unto the damsel—and, the damsel, gave it unto her mother. ²⁹And, hearing of it, his disciples went and took away his corpse, and laid it in a tomb. ³⁰And the apostles gather themselves together unto Jesus, and reported unto him all things, as many as they had done, and as many as they had taught. ³¹And he saith unto them—Come, ye yourselves, apart, into a desert place, and rest yourselves a little. For they who were coming and they who were going were many, and, not even to eat, were they finding fitting opportunity. ³²And they departed, in the boat, into a desert place, apart. ³³And many saw them going away, and took note of it, and, afoot, from all the cities, ran they together thither,—and outwent them. ³⁴And, coming forth, he saw, a great multitude, and was moved with compassion towards them, because they were like sheep having no shepherd, and he began to be teaching them many things. ³⁵And, already, a late hour, having arrived, his disciples came unto him and were saying, A desert, is the place, and it is, already, a late hour: ³⁶dismiss them, that, departing into the surrounding hamlets and villages, they may buy themselves something to eat. ³⁷But, he, answering said to them—Ye, give them, to eat. And they say unto him—Shall we depart and buy two hundred denaries' worth of loaves, and give them to eat? ³⁸And, he, saith unto them—How many loaves, have ye? Go, see! And, getting to know, they say—Five, and, two fishes. ³⁹And he gave them orders, that all should be made recline, in parties, upon, the green grass. ⁴⁰And they fell back, in companies, by hundreds and by fifties. ⁴¹And, taking the five loaves, and the two fishes, looking up into heaven, he blessed, and brake up the loaves, and began giving unto the disciples, that they might set before them, and, the two fishes, divided he, unto all. ⁴²And they did all eat, and were filled. ⁴³And they took up broken pieces, twelve baskets, full measure, and from the fishes. ⁴⁴And they who did eat the loaves were, five thousand men. ⁴⁵And, straightway, constrained he his disciples to enter into the boat, and be going forward to the other side, unto Bethsaida,—while, he, was dismissing the multitude. ⁴⁶And, bidding them farewell, he departed into the mountain to pray. ⁴⁷And, when, evening, came, the boat was in the midst of the sea, and, he alone, on the land. ⁴⁸And, seeing them distressed in the rowing, for the wind was against them, about the fourth watch of the night, he cometh unto them, walking upon the sea,—and was wishing to pass by them. ⁴⁹But, they, seeing him, upon the sea, walking, supposed that it was an apparition, and cried out aloud; ⁵⁰for, all, saw him, and were troubled. But, he, straightway, talked with them, and saith unto them—Take courage! it is, I—be not afraid! ⁵¹And he went up unto them, into the boat,—and the wind lulled. And, exceedingly, within themselves, were they astonished; ⁵²for they understood not by the loaves,—but their, heart, had been, hardened. ⁵³And crossing over unto the land, they came unto Gennesaret, and cast anchor near. ⁵⁴And, when they had, come forth, out of the boat, straightway, recognizing him, ⁵⁵the people ran round the whole of that country, and began to be carrying round, upon couches, them who were sick, wherever they heard that he was. ⁵⁶And, where-soever he was entering into villages, or into cities, or into hamlets, in the marketplaces, laid they the sick, and were beseeching him, that, only the fringe of his mantle, they might touch, and, as many soever as touched it, were being made well.

⁷And the Pharisees and certain of the Scribes who have come from Jerusalem gather themselves together unto him; ²and, observing certain of his disciples, that, with defiled hands, that is unwashed, they are eating bread,— ³For, the Pharisees, and all the Jews, unless with care they wash their hands, eat not, holding fast the tradition of the elders; ⁴and coming from market, unless they sprinkle themselves, they eat not,—and, many other things, there are, which they have accepted to hold fast—immersions of cups and measures and copper vessels— ⁵and so the Pharisees and the Scribes, question, him—For what cause do thy disciples not walk according to the tradition of the elders, but, with defiled hands, eat bread? ⁶But, he, said unto them—Well, prophesied Isaiah concerning you, ye hypocrites, as it is written—This people, with the lips do honour me, while, their heart, far off, holdeth from me,— ⁷But, in vain, do they pay devotions unto me, teaching for teachings, the commandments of men; ⁸Having, dismissed, the commandment, of God, ye, hold fast, the tradition, of men. ⁹And he was saying to them—Well, do ye set aside the commandment of God, that, your own tradition, ye may observe; ¹⁰For, Moses, said—Honour thy father and thy mother, and—He that revileth father or mother, let him, surely die,— ¹¹But, ye, say—If a man shall say to his father or his mother, Korban! that is, A gift, whatsoever, out of me, thou mightest be profited, ¹²no longer, do ye suffer him to do, aught, for his father or his mother,— ¹³cancelling the word of God by your tradition which ye have delivered. And, many such similar things, are ye doing! ¹⁴And, again calling near the multitude, he was saying unto them—Hearken to me, all! and understand: ¹⁵Nothing, is there, from without the man, entering into him, which can defile him; but, the things which, out of the man, come forth, are the things that defile the man. ¹⁶¹⁷And, when he entered into a house from the multitudes, his disciples began to question him as to the parable; ¹⁸And he saith unto them—Thus, are, ye also, without discernment? Perceive ye not that, nothing, from without, entering into the man, can defile him; ¹⁹because it entereth not into his heart, but into his stomach, and, into the draught, is passed—purifying all foods? ²⁰And he was saying—That which, out of the man, cometh forth, that, defileth the man; ²¹For, from within, out of the heart of men, the base designs, come forth,—fornications, thefts, ²²murders, adulteries, covetousnesses, knaveries, deceit, wantonness, an evil eye, profane speaking, foolishness,— ²³all these wicked things, from within, come forth, and defile, the man. ²⁴And, from thence arising, he departed into the bounds of Tyre \ull and Zidon\ul0 . And, entering into a house, he was wishing, no one, to know it, and yet could not escape notice,— ²⁵but, straightway, a woman hearing about him, whose daughter had an impure spirit, she came and fell down at his feet. ²⁶Now, the woman, was a Grecian, a Syrophoenician by race,—and she was requesting him that, the demon, he would cast forth out of her daughter. ²⁷And he was saying to her—Suffer, the children, first, to be fed; for it is not seemly to take the bread of the children, and, unto the little dogs, to cast it; ²⁸but she answered and saith to him—Yea, Lord! and yet, the little dogs under the table, do eat of the crumbs of the children; ²⁹and he said to her—Because of this word, go thy way, the demon hath gone forth out of thy daughter; ³⁰and, departing unto her house, she found the child laid prostrate on the couch, and the demon gone forth. ³¹And, again coming forth out of the bounds of Tyre, he came unto the sea of Galilee, through the midst of the bounds of Decapolis. ³²And they bring to him one deaf and stammering, and beseech him that he would lay upon him his hand. ³³And, taking him away from the multitude apart, he thrust his fingers into his ears, and, spitting, touched his tongue; ³⁴and, looking up into the heaven, sighed deeply, and saith unto him—Ephphatha! that is, Be opened! ³⁵and his ears opened, and the string of his tongue was loosed,—and he was speaking correctly. ³⁶And he charged them that they should be telling, no one,— but, as much as to them he gave charge, they, exceeding more abundantly, were making proclamation. ³⁷And, superabundantly, were they being struck with astonishment, saying—Well, hath he, all things, done,—both, the deaf, he causeth to hear, and, the dumb, to speak.

⁸In those days, there being, again a large multitude, and they not having any thing to eat, calling near the disciples, he saith unto them—²I am moved with compassion towards the multitude, because, already three days, abide they with me, and they have nothing to eat; ³and, if dismiss them fasting unto their home, they will be exhausted in the way,—and, certain of them, are, from afar. ⁴And his disciples answered him—Whence shall any one be able, here, to fill, these, with bread, in a desert? ⁵And he was questioning them—How many loaves have ye? and they said—Seven. ⁶And he sendeth word to the multitude, to fall back upon the ground. And, taking the seven loaves, giving thanks, he brake, and was giving unto his disciples, that they might be setting before them; and they set before the multitude. ⁷And they had a few small fishes; and, blessing them, he bade them set, these also, before them. ⁸And they did eat, and were filled, and took up remainders of broken pieces, seven hampers. ⁹Now they were about four thousand; and he dismissed them. ¹⁰And, straightway, entering into the boat with his disciples, he came into the parts of Dalmanutha; ¹¹and forth came the Pharisees, and began discussing with him, seeking of him, a sign from the heaven, testing him. ¹²And, deeply sighing in his spirit, he saith—Why, doth this generation seek, a sign? Verily, I say—there shall, not be given, to this generation, a sign. ¹³And leaving them, again, embarking, he departed unto the other side. ¹⁴And they forgot to take loaves, and, save one loaf, they had nothing with them in the boat. ¹⁵And he began charging them, saying—Mind! beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, and of the leaven of Herod! ¹⁶And they began deliberating one with another, because they had no loaves. ¹⁷And, taking note, he saith unto them—Why do ye deliberate, because ye have no, loaves? Not yet perceive ye, neither understand,—keep ye your hearts, hardened? ¹⁸Eyes having, see ye not? and ears having, hear ye not? and remember ye not ¹⁹when, the five loaves, I brake unto the five thousand, how many baskets, full of broken pieces, ye took up? They say unto him—Twelve,—²⁰When the seven, unto the four thousand, how many hampers, full measure, of broken pieces, ye took up? And they say unto him—Seven. And he was saying unto them—²¹Not yet, do ye understand? ²²And they come into Bethsaida. And they bring unto him one blind, and beseech him that him, he would touch. ²³And, laying hold of the hand of the blind man, he brought him forth outside the village, and, spitting into his eyes, laying his hands upon him, he was asking him—Anything, seest thou? ²⁴and, looking up, he was saying—I see men, because, like trees, I behold them walking ²⁵Then again, put he his hands upon his eyes, and he saw clearly, and was restored, and was seeing distinctly, in broad splendour, all things together. ²⁶And he sent him away unto his house, saying—Not even into the village, mayest thou enter. ²⁷And forth went Jesus and his disciples, into the villages of Caesarea of Philip. And, in the way, he was questioning his disciples, saying unto them—Who, are men saying that I am? ²⁸And they answered him, saying—John the Immerser, and, others, Elijah,—and, others, One of the prophets. ²⁹And, he, went on to question them—But, who, say, ye, that I am? Peter, answering, saith unto him—Thou, art, the Christ. ³⁰And he straitly charged them, that, no one, they should tell concerning him. ³¹And he began to be teaching them—The Son of Man, must needs suffer many things, and be rejected by the Elders and the High-priests and the Scribes,—and be slain; and, after three days, arise. ³²And, openly, was he speaking the word. And Peter, taking him aside, began to rebuke him. ³³But, he, turning round and looking upon his disciples, rebuked Peter, and saith—Withdraw behind me, Satan! because thou art not regarding the things, of God, but the things, of men. ³⁴And, calling near the multitude with his disciples, he said unto them—If anyone willeth, after me, to come, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and be following me. ³⁵For, whosoever willeth, his own life, to save, shall lose it, but, whosoever shall lose his life for the sake of me and of the glad-message, shall save it; ³⁶For, what doth it profit a man, to gain the whole world, and be made to forfeit his life? ³⁷For what can a man, give, in exchange for his life? ³⁸For, whosoever shall be ashamed of me and of my words, in this adulterous and sinful generation, the Son of Man also, will be ashamed, of him, whensoever he shall come, in the glory of his Father, with the holy messengers.

⁹And he was saying to them: Verily, say unto you—There, are, certain of those here standing, who shall in nowise taste of death, until they see the kingdom of God, already come in power. ²And, after six days, Jesus taketh with him Peter and James and John, and bringeth them up into a high mountain, apart, alone,—and he was transformed before them; ³and his garments became brilliant, exceeding white, such as, no fuller on the earth, is able, so, to whiten. ⁴And there appeared unto them Elijah, with Moses,—and they were conversing with Jesus. ⁵And Peter, answering, saith unto Jesus—Rabbi! it is, delightful, for us to be, here,—let us therefore make three tents, for thee, one, and, for Moses, one, and, for Elijah, one; ⁶for he knew not what he should answer, for, greatly affrighted, had they become. ⁷And there came a cloud, overshadowing them, and there came a voice, out of the cloud,—This is, my Son, the Beloved, Be hearkening unto him. ⁸And, suddenly looking round, no longer, saw they, anyone, with them, save, Jesus only. ⁹And, as they were coming down out of the mountain, he charged them, that, unto no one, they should narrate what they had seen, save whenever the Son of man, from among the dead should arise. ¹⁰And, the word, they held fast unto themselves, discussing what was, the rising from among the dead. ¹¹And they began to question him, saying—The Scribes, say, that, Elijah, must needs come, first? ¹²And, he, said unto them—Elijah, indeed, coming first, restoreth all things; and yet, how is it written, regarding the Son of Man, that, many things, he must suffer, and be set at nought? ¹³But I say unto you—Elijah also, hath come, and they have done with him, whatsoever they pleased,—according as it is written regarding him. ¹⁴And, coming unto the disciples, they saw a large multitude around them, and Scribes discussing with them. ¹⁵And, straightway, all the multitude, seeing him, were greatly amazed, and, running near, began saluting him. ¹⁶And he questioned them—What are ye discussing with them? ¹⁷And one out of the multitude answered him—Teacher! I brought my son unto thee, having a dumb spirit; ¹⁸and, wheresoever it seizeth him, it teareth him, and he foameth, and grindeth his teeth, and weareth himself out;—and I spake to thy disciples, that they should cast it out, and they could not. ¹⁹But, he, answering, saith—O faithless generation! how long, shall I be with you? how long, shall I bear with you? Bring him unto me! ²⁰And they brought him unto him. And, seeing him, the spirit, straightway tare him,—and, falling upon the ground, he wallowed, foaming. ²¹And he questioned his father—How long a time, is it, that, this, hath befallen him? and he said—From childhood; ²²and, many times, hath it cast him, both into fire, and into waters, that it might destroy him; but, if anything be possible to thee, help us, have compassion upon us. ²³And, Jesus, said unto him—As for this, If it be possible to thee, all things, are possible, to him who hath faith. ²⁴Straightway crying out, the father of the child was saying—I have faith! help my, want, of faith. ²⁵And Jesus, seeing that a multitude is running together, rebuked the impure spirit, saying unto it—Thou dumb and deaf spirit, I, give orders unto thee: Come forth out of him, and do not, any more, enter into him. ²⁶And, crying out, and greatly mangling him, it came forth; and he became as if dead, so that, the more part, were saying—He is dead! ²⁷But, Jesus, grasping his hand, raised him, and he stood up. ²⁸And, when he had gone into a house, his disciples, privately, were questioning him—Why, were, we, not able to cast it out? ²⁹And he said unto them—This kind, by nothing, can come out, save, by prayer. ³⁰And, from thence, going forth, they were journeying through Galilee,—and he was not wishing that any should get to know it; ³¹for he was teaching his disciples and saying \u0022unto them\u0022, The Son of Man, is to be delivered up, into the hands of men, and they will slay him,—and, being slain, after three days, will he arise. ³²But they were not understanding the declaration, and feared, to question, him. ³³And they came into Capernaum. And, happening to be, in the house, he was questioning them—What, in the way, were ye discussing? ³⁴And they were silent; for, with one another, they had discussed in the way, who should be greatest. ³⁵And, taking a seat, he addressed the twelve, and saith unto them—If anyone willeth to be, first, he shall be, least of all, and, minister of all. ³⁶And, taking a child, he set it in the midst of them,—and, folding it in his arms, said unto them—³⁷Whosoever, unto, \u0022one of\u0022 these children, shall give welcome, upon my name, unto me, giveth welcome; and, whosoever, unto me, giveth welcome, not, unto me, giveth welcome, but, unto him that sent me. ³⁸John said unto him—Teacher! we saw someone, in thy name, casting out demons,—and we forbade him, because he was not following with us. ³⁹But, Jesus, said—Do not forbid him! For, no one, is there, who shall do a work of power in my name, and have power, soon, to revile me; ⁴⁰For, whosoever is not, against, us, is, for, us; ⁴¹For, whosoever shall give you to drink a cup of water, in name that, Christ's, ye are, Verily! I say unto you, in nowise, shall lose his reward. ⁴²And, whosoever shall cause to stumble one of these little ones that believe, it is, seemly, for him, rather, if there is hung a large millstone about his neck, and he is cast into the sea. ⁴³And, if thy hand shall cause thee to stumble, cut it off,—it is, seemly, for thee, maimed, to enter into life, rather than having, the two hands, to depart into the gehenna, into the fire that is not quenched; ⁴⁴⁴⁵And, if thy foot be causing thee to stumble, cut it off,—it is, seemly, for thee, to enter into life, lame, rather than having, the two feet, to be cast into the gehenna; ⁴⁶⁴⁷And, if thine eye be causing thee to stumble, thrust it out,—it is, seemly, for thee, one-eye, to enter into the kingdom of God, rather than having, two eyes, to be cast into gehenna, ⁴⁸Where, their worm, dieth not, and, the fire, is not quenched, ⁴⁹For, everyone, with fire, shall be salted. ⁵⁰Salt is, good: but, if, salt, become, saltless, wherewith will ye, prepare, it? Have, within yourselves, salt, and be at peace, one with another.

¹⁰And, from thence, arising, he cometh into the bounds of Judaea and beyond the Jordan,—and there come together again, multitudes unto him, and, as he had been wont, again, was he teaching them. ²And Pharisees coming near were questioning him—whether it is allowed a husband to divorce a wife, testing him. ³But, he, answering, said unto them—What unto you did, Moses, command? ⁴And, they, said—Moses permitted, to write, a roll of dismissal, and to divorce. ⁵But, Jesus, said unto them—In view of your hardness of heart, wrote he for you this commandment; ⁶But, from the beginning of creation, male and female, made he \u0022them\u0022; ⁷For this cause, shall a man leave behind his father and mother, ⁸and, the two, shall become, one flesh; so that, no longer, are they two, but, one flesh. ⁹What then, God, hath yoked together, let, a man, not put asunder. ¹⁰And, coming into the house again, the disciples, concerning this, were questioning him; ¹¹and he saith unto them—Whosoever shall divorce his wife, and marry another, committeth adultery against her; ¹²And, if, she, divorcing her husband, marry another, she committeth adultery. ¹³And they were bringing unto him children, that he might, touch, them,—the disciples, however, were rebuking them. ¹⁴But Jesus, seeing it, was greatly displeased, and said unto them—Suffer the children to come unto me,—do not hinder them; for, of such, is the kingdom of God. ¹⁵Verily, I say unto you—Whosoever shall not welcome the kingdom of God, as a child, in nowise shall enter thereinto. ¹⁶And, folding them in his arms, he was blessing them, having laid his hands upon them. ¹⁷And, as he was going forth into a road, one, running, and kneeling before him, was questioning him—Good Teacher! what shall I do that, life age—abiding, I may inherit? ¹⁸And, Jesus, said unto him—Why callest thou me, good? None, is good, save one—God. ¹⁹The commandments, thou knowest,—Do not commit murder, Do not commit adultery, Do not steal; Do not bear false witness, Do not defraud, Honour thy father and mother. ²⁰And, he, said unto him—Teacher! all these things, have I kept, from my youth. ²¹And, Jesus, looking at him, loved him, and said unto him—One thing, unto thee, is wanting;—Withdraw! whatsoever thou hast, sell, and give unto \u0022 the \u0022 destitute,—and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come! be following me. ²²And, he, becoming gloomy because of the word, departed sorrowing, for he was holding, many possessions. ²³And, looking around, Jesus saith unto his disciples—With what difficulty, shall, they who have money, enter, into the kingdom of God! ²⁴And, the disciples, were in amazement, because of the words. But, Jesus, again answering, saith unto them—Children! how difficult, it is, to enter, into the kingdom of God! ²⁵It is, easier, for a camel, through the eye of a needle, to pass, than for, a rich man, into the kingdom of God, to enter. ²⁶And, they, were being exceedingly struck with astonishment, saying unto him—Who, then, can, be saved? ²⁷Looking at them, Jesus saith—With men, impossible, but not, with God; for, all things, are possible, with God ²⁸Peter began to be saying unto him—Lo! we, have left all, and followed thee! ²⁹Jesus said—Verily, I say unto you—There is, no one, who hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or mother, or father, or children, or lands, for the sake of me, and \u0022 for the sake of \u0022 the glad-message, ³⁰who shall not receive a hundredfold, now, in this season, houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands,—with persecutions, and, in the age that is coming, life age-abiding. ³¹But, many, shall be—first-last, and \u0022 the \u0022 Last-first. ³²Now they were in the way, going up unto Jerusalem, and Jesus was going on before them,—and they were in amazement; and, they who followed, were in fear. And, taking unto himself, again, the twelve, he began to be saying unto them, as to the things about to befall him— ³³Lo! we are going up unto Jerusalem; and, the Son of Man, will be delivered up, unto the Chief-priests and the Scribes,—and they will condemn him to death, and deliver him up unto the nations; ³⁴And they will mock him, and spit upon him, and scourge him, and, slay;—and, after three days, will he, arise. ³⁵And there come near unto him, James and John, the \u0022 two \u0022 sons of Zebedee,—saying unto him—Teacher! we desire, that, whatsoever we shall ask thee, thou wilt do for us. ³⁶But, he, said unto them—What desire ye, I should do for you? ³⁷And, they, said unto him—Grant us, that, one on thy right hand, and one on thy left, we may sit, in thy glory. ³⁸But, Jesus, said unto them—Ye know not what ye are asking: Are ye able to drink the cup that, I, am to drink? or to be immersed, with the immersion wherewith, I, am to be immersed? ³⁹And, they, said unto him—We are able. And, Jesus, said unto them—The cup which, I, am to drink, ye shall drink, and, with the immersion wherewith, I, am to be immersed, shall ye be immersed; ⁴⁰But, to sit on my right hand and on my left, is not mine to give, except unto them for whom it hath been prepared. ⁴¹And the ten, hearing, began to be sorely displeased, concerning James and John. ⁴²And Jesus, calling them near, saith unto them—Ye know that, they who think to rule the nations, lord it over them, and, their great ones, wield authority over them; ⁴³But, not so, it is, among you. But, whosoever desireth to become, great, among you, shall be, your minister, ⁴⁴And, whosoever desireth, among you, to be, first, shall be, servant of all; ⁴⁵For, even the Son of Man, came not to be ministered unto, but minister,—and to give his life, a ransom instead of many. ⁴⁶And they come into Jericho. And, as he was journeying forth from Jericho, and his disciples, and a considerable multitude, the son of Timaeus, blind Bar-Timaeus, a beggar, was sitting beside the road. ⁴⁷And, hearing that it was, Jesus the Nazarene, he began to be crying aloud, and saying—O Son of David! Jesus! have mercy on me. ⁴⁸And many were rebuking him, that he might hold his peace; but, he, so much the more, was crying aloud, O Son of David, have mercy on me. ⁴⁹And, coming to a stand, Jesus said—Call him! And they call the blind man, saying unto him—Take courage! rise! he calleth thee! ⁵⁰And, he, throwing off his mantle—springing to his feet, came unto Jesus. ⁵¹And, answering him, Jesus said—What desirest thou, I should do for thee? And, the blind man, said unto him—Rabboni! that may recover sight. ⁵²And, Jesus, said unto him—Go thy way! thy faith, hath saved thee. And, straightway, he recovered sight, and was following him in the road.

unto Bethphage and Bethany, towards the Mount of Olives, he sendeth forth two of his disciples,—²and saith unto them—Go your way into the village that is over against you, and, straightway, as ye are entering it, ye shall find a colt tied, upon which, no, man, yet, hath sat: loose him, and bring him. ³And, if anyone unto you should say—Why are ye doing this? say—The Lord, of him hath need; and, straightway, he sendeth him off again here. ⁴And they departed, and found a colt, tied unto a door outside, on the street,—and they are loosing him. ⁵And, certain of them that were there standing, were saying unto them—What are ye doing, loosing the colt? ⁶and they said unto them as, Jesus, said,—and they let them go. ⁷And they bring the colt unto Jesus, and throw upon him their mantles,—and he took his seat upon him. ⁸And, many, spread out, their mantles, along the way, and, others, young branches,—cutting them out of the fields. ⁹And, they who were going before, and they who were following after, were crying aloud—Hosanna! Blessed, is he that is coming in the name of the Lord! ¹⁰Blessed, is the coming kingdom of our father David! Hosanna in the highest! ¹¹And he entered into Jerusalem, into the temple, and, looking round on all things, late already being the hour, he went out into Bethany, with the twelve. ¹²And, on the morrow, when they came forth from Bethany, he hungered; ¹³and, seeing a fig-tree from afar, having leaves, he came... if, therefore, he should find aught in it, and, coming up to it, nothing, found he, save, leaves; for it was not, the season, of figs. ¹⁴And, answering, he said unto it—No more, unto times age-abiding, let anyone of thee, eat fruit. And his disciples were listening. ¹⁵And they come into Jerusalem. And, entering into the temple, he began to be casting out them who were selling and them who were buying in the temple, and, the tables of the money-changers, and the seats of them who were selling doves, he overthrew,—¹⁶and was not suffering that anyone should carry a vessel through the temple; ¹⁷and was teaching, and saying—Is it not written, My house, a house of prayer, shall be called, for all the nations? but, ye, have made it, A den of robbers. ¹⁸And the High-priests and the Scribes, heard, it, and began seeking how they might, destroy, him,—for they were fearing him; for, all the multitude, were being struck with astonishment at his teaching. ¹⁹And, as soon as it became late, they were going forth outside the city. ²⁰And, passing by early, they saw the fig-tree, withered from its roots; ²¹and, put in mind, Peter saith unto him—Rabbi! see! the fig-tree which thou didst curse, is withered. ²²And, answering, Jesus saith unto them—Have faith in God. ²³Verily, I say unto you—Whosoever shall say unto this mountain, Be lifted up, and cast into the sea, and shall not doubt in his heart but shall believe that, what he speaketh, cometh to pass, it shall be his. ²⁴For this cause, I say unto you—All things, whatsoever ye are praying for and asking, believe that ye have received, and they shall be yours. ²⁵And, when ye stand praying, forgive, if aught ye have against any,—that, your Father also, who is in the heavens, may forgive you your offences. ²⁶²⁷And they come again into Jerusalem. And, as he is walking in the temple, the High-priests and the Scribes and the Elders come unto him, ²⁸and were saying unto him—By what authority, these things, art thou doing? And who to thee hath given this authority that, these things, thou shouldst be doing? ²⁹But, Jesus, said unto them—I will question you, as to one matter, and answer me,—and I will tell you, by what authority, these things, I am doing: ³⁰The immersion by John, Of heaven, was it, or, of men? Answer me! ³¹And they were deliberating among themselves, saying—If we say, Of heaven, he will say, Wherefore \u011 then\u010 did ye not believe him? ³²But, should we say, Of men..., they were in fear of the multitude, for, one and all, were holding John, in very deed, that he was, a prophet. ³³And, making answer unto Jesus, they say—We know not; and Jesus saith unto them—Neither do, I, tell you, by what authority, these things, I am doing.

¹²And he began to be speaking unto them, in parables,—A man planted, a vineyard, and put round it a wall, and digged a wine-vat, and built a tower,—and let it out to husbandmen; and left home. ²And he sent forth, unto the husbandmen, in the season, a servant, that, from the husbandmen, he might receive of the fruits of the vineyard; ³and, taking him, they beat him, and sent him away, empty. ⁴And, again, sent he forth unto them, another servant; and, him, they smote on the head, and dishonoured. ⁵And another sent he forth; and, him, they slew. And many others; some, indeed beating, and, others, slaying. ⁶Yet one, had he, a son beloved: he sent him forth last unto them, saying—They will pay deference unto my son! ⁷But, those husbandmen, unto themselves, said—This, is the heir: Come! let us slay him, and, ours, shall be, the inheritance. ⁸And, taking, they slew him, and cast him forth outside the vineyard. ⁹What will the lord of the vineyard do? He will come, and destroy the husbandmen, and let the vineyard unto others. ¹⁰Have ye not, this scripture, read—A stone which the builders rejected, the same, hath become head of the corner! ¹¹From the Lord, hath this come to pass, and is marvellous in our eyes? ¹²And they were seeking, to secure, him,—and were in fear of the multitude; for they perceived that, against them, the parable he had spoken. And, leaving him, they departed. ¹³And they send forth unto him certain of the Pharisees and of the Herodians, that they might, catch, him, in discourse. ¹⁴And, coming, they say unto him—Teacher! we know that, true, thou art, and it concerneth thee not about anyone,—for thou lookest not unto the face of men; but, in truth, the way of God, dost teach:—Is it allowable to give tax unto Caesar, or not? Should we give, or should we not give? ¹⁵But, he, knowing their hypocrisy, said unto them—Why are ye, tempting, me? Bring me a denary, that I may see it. ¹⁶And, they, brought one. And he saith unto them—Whose, is this image, and the inscription? And, they, said unto him—Caesar's. ¹⁷And, Jesus, said—the things of Caesar, render, unto Caesar, and, the things of God, unto God. And they were marvelling at him. ¹⁸And there come Sadducees unto him,—who, indeed say—Resurrection, there is none! and they were questioning him, saying—¹⁹Teacher! Moses, wrote for us, that—If one's brother die, and leave behind a wife, and leave no child, that his brother should take his wife, and raise up seed unto his brother. ²⁰Seven brethren, there were: and, the first, took a wife, and, dying, left no seed,—²¹And, the second, took her, and died, not leaving behind seed,—and, the third, likewise,—²²And, the seven, left no seed; last of all, the woman also, died:—²³In the resurrection,—of, which, of them shall she be, wife? For, the seven, had her to wife. ²⁴Jesus said unto them—Are ye not, for this cause, deceiving yourselves, knowing neither the Scriptures, nor the power of God? ²⁵For, when, from among the dead, they rise, they neither marry, nor are given in marriage, but are like messengers in the heavens. ²⁶But, as touching the dead, that they, do rise,—Have ye not read in the book of Moses, at the Bush, how God spake unto him, saying—I am the God of Abraham, and God of Isaac, and God of Jacob:—²⁷He is not a God of, dead, men, but of, living. Greatly, are ye deceiving yourselves. ²⁸And one of the Scribes, coming near, hearing them discussing, seeing that, well, he had answered them, began to question him—Which is the chief commandment of all? ²⁹Jesus answered—The chief is: Hear! O Israel,—The Lord our God, is, one Lord; ³⁰Therefore shalt thou love the Lord thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul,—and with all thy mind; and with all thy strength. ³¹The second, is, this—Thou shalt love, thy neighbour, as thyself. Greater than these, other commandment, is there none. ³²The Scribe said unto him—Well, Teacher! in truth, hast thou said—He is, One, and there is none other, than he; ³³And, to love him, with all the heart, and with all the understanding,—and with all the might; and to love one's neighbour as one's self, is, abundantly more, than all the whole burnt offerings and sacrifices. ³⁴And, Jesus, seeing him, that, with intelligence he answered, said unto him—Not far, \u0022art thou\u0022 from the kingdom of God! And, no one, any longer, was daring to, question, him. ³⁵And Jesus, answering, was saying, as he taught in the temple—How say the Scribes that, the Christ, is, Son of David? ³⁶David himself, hath said, by the Holy Spirit,—The Lord, hath said unto, my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, until I put thy foes beneath thy feet. ³⁷David himself, calleth him, Lord: whence, then, is he, his own soul? And, the great multitude, was hearing him gladly. ³⁸And, in his teaching, he was saying—Beware of the Scribes, who desire, in robes, to be walking about, and salutations in the markets,

13And, as he was going forth out of the temple, one of his disciples saith unto him—Teacher! see what manner of stones, and what manner of buildings! ²And, Jesus, said unto him—Art thou beholding these great buildings? In nowise, shall there be left here, stone upon stone, which shall, in any wise, not be thrown down. ³And, as he was sitting within the mount of Olives, over against the temple, Peter and James and John and Andrew were questioning him, privately—⁴Tell us, When, these things, shall be, and, what the sign, when all these things shall be about to be concluded. ⁵And, Jesus, began to be saying unto them—Beware, lest anyone, deceive, you; ⁶For, many, will come on my name, saying, I, am he! and, will deceive, many. ⁷And, when ye shall hear of wars, and rumours of wars, be not alarmed—it must needs come to pass, but, not yet, is, the end. ⁸For there will arise—Nation against nation, and, kingdom against kingdom,—there will be earthquakes in places, there will be famines:—⁹A beginning of birth-pangs, are these things. But be, ye, taking heed, unto yourselves: they will deliver you up into high-councils, and, in synagogues, shall ye be beaten,—and, before governors and kings, shall ye be set, for my sake, for a witness unto them. ¹⁰And, unto all the nations, first, must needs be proclaimed, the glad-message. ¹¹And, when they are leading you, as they are delivering you up, be not beforehand anxious, what ye shall speak; but, whatsoever shall be given you in that hour, the same, speak,—for, ye, are not the speakers, but the Holy Spirit. ¹²And, brother, will deliver up, brother, unto death, and, father, child, and, children, will rise up, against parents, and put them to death; ¹³And ye will be men hated by all, because of my name; but, he that hath endured throughout, the same, shall be saved. ¹⁴But, when ye shall see the abomination of desolation, standing where it ought not, he that readeth, let him, think, then, they who are in Judaea, let them flee into the mountains; ¹⁵He that is on the house-top, let him not come down, neither let him enter, to take away anything out of his louse; ¹⁶And, he that hath gone into the field, let him not turn back unto the things behind, to take away his mantle. ¹⁷But alas for the women with child, in this night, before that twice a cock crow, thrice, will deny me. ³¹But he, most vehemently, was saying—Even though I must needs die with thee, in nowise, will I, deny thee. Likewise, indeed, were, all besides, saying. ³²And they come into an estate the name of which is Gethsemane, and he saith unto his disciples—Sit ye here, while I pray. ³³And he taketh Peter and James and John with him, and began to be exceedingly amazed, and in great distress; ³⁴and he saith unto them—Encompassed with grief is my soul, unto death: Abide ye here, and be watching. ³⁵And, going forward a little, he fell upon the ground, and was praying that, if it were possible, the hour might pass from him; ³⁶and was saying—Abba! O Father! All things, are possible to thee: Bear aside this cup from me; but not what, I, will, but what, thou, wilt. ³⁷And he cometh and findeth them sleeping, and saith unto Peter—Simon! art thou sleeping? Hadst thou not strength, one hour, to watch? ³⁸Be watching and praying, that ye enter not into temptation: the, spirit, indeed, is willing, but, the flesh, weak. ³⁹And, again, departing, he prayed, \ull the same thing, saying\ul0. ⁴⁰And, again, coming, he found them sleeping, for their eyes were being, weighed down,—and they knew not what to answer him. ⁴¹And he cometh the third time, and saith unto them—Ye are sleeping the remaining time and taking your rest:—It is enough! the hour hath come! Lo! the Son of Man is being delivered up into the hands of sinners. ⁴²Be rousing yourselves, let us be leading on! Lo! he that is delivering me up, hath drawn near. ⁴³And, straightway, while yet he is speaking, Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve, cometh near, and, with him, a multitude, with swords and clubs, from the High-priests and the Scribes and the Elders. ⁴⁴He that is delivering him up hath given an agreed sign unto them, saying—Whomsoever I shall kiss, he, it is! Secure him, and be leading away, safely. ⁴⁵And, coming, straightway, stepping forward to him, he saith—Rabbi! and openly kissed him. ⁴⁶And, they, thrust their hands on him, and secured him. ⁴⁷\ull A certain\ul0 one of the by-standers, drawing a sword, smote the servant of the High priest, and took off his, ear. ⁴⁸And Jesus, answering, said unto them—As against a robber, came ye forth, with swords and clubs, to arrest me? ⁴⁹Daily, was I with you, in the temple, teaching; and ye secured me not. But, that, the Scriptures, may be fulfilled... ⁵⁰And they, all, forsook, him, and fled. ⁵¹And, a certain young man, was following with him, having cast about himself a fine Indian cloth, over his naked body,—and they are securing him; ⁵²but, he, leaving behind the cloth, fled naked. ⁵³And they led away Jesus unto the High-priest; and all the High-priests and the Elders and the Scribes gather together. ⁵⁴And, Peter, afar of, followed him, as far as within, into the court of the High-priest; and was sitting with the attendants, and warming himself by the light. ⁵⁵Now, the High-priest, and all the High-council, were seeking, against Jesus, testimony, with the intent to put him to death,—and were not finding any; ⁵⁶for, many, were bearing false-witness against him, and the testimonies were not, agreed. ⁵⁷And some, standing up, were bearing false-witness against him, saying— ⁵⁸We, heard him saying, I, will pull down this shrine, the one made by hand, and, in three days, another, not made by hand, will I raise. ⁵⁹And, not even so, was the testimony, agreed. ⁶⁰And, the High-priest rising up into the midst, questioned Jesus, saying—Answerest thou, nothing? What are these, against thee, witnessing? ⁶¹But, he, was silent, and answered, nothing. Again, the High-priest was questioning him, and saith unto him—Art, thou, the Christ the Son of the Blessed? ⁶²And Jesus said—I, am; and ye shall see the Son of Man—sitting, on the right hand, of Power, and coming with the clouds of heaven. ⁶³And, the High-priest, having rent asunder his inner-garments, saith—What, further, need have we, of witnesses? ⁶⁴Heard ye the profanity? What, to you, doth it appear? And they, all, condemned him to be, worthy, of, death. ⁶⁵And some began to be spitting at him, and, covering up his face, and to be buffeting him, and saying to him—Prophecy! And, the attendants, with smart blows, took him. ⁶⁶And, Peter, being, below in the court, there cometh one of the maid-servants of the High-priest; ⁶⁷and, seeing Peter warming himself, having looked at him, saith—And, thou, wast, with the Nazarene—with Jesus. ⁶⁸But, he, denied, saying—I neither know him, nor do I well understand what, thou, sayest; and went out into the porch. ⁶⁹And, the maid-servant, seeing him, began, again, to be saying unto the by-standers—This one, is, from among them. ⁷⁰But, he, again, was denying. And, after a little again, the by-standers, were saying unto Peter—Truly, thou, art, from among them; for thou art, a Galilean, also. ⁷¹And, he, began to be cursing and swearing—I know not this man, of whom ye are speaking! ⁷²And, straightway, a second time, a cock, crowed; and Peter was reminded of the declaration, how Jesus had said to him—Before a cock, twice, crow, thrice, wilt thou deny me. And, when he thought thereon, he began to weep.

15And, straightway, early, when they had made, a council, the High-priest, with the Elders, and Scribes, and all the High-council, binding Jesus, led him away, and delivered him up unto Pilate. ²And Pilate questioned him—Art, thou, the king of the Jews? And, he, answering him, saith—Thou, sayest. ³And the High-priests began to accuse him, of many things. ⁴And, Pilate, again, was questioning him, \ull saying\ul0 —Answerest thou, nothing? See! of how many things, they are accusing thee! ⁵But, Jesus, no further, answered, anything, so that Pilate began to marvel. ⁶Now, at feast time, he was wont to release unto them one prisoner, whom they were claiming. ⁷And there was the so-called Barabbas, with the rebels, bound, even with them who, in the rebellion, had committed, murder. ⁸And, going up, the multitude began to be claiming—according as he was wont to do for them. ⁹But, Pilate, answered them, saying—Will ye, I release unto you, the King of the Jews? ¹⁰For he was getting to know that, for envy, had \u11 the High-priests\ul0 delivered him up. ¹¹But, the High-priests, stirred up the multitude, that, rather Barabbas, he should release unto them. ¹²But, Pilate, again answering, was saying unto them—What then shall I do with him whom ye call, the King of the Jews? ¹³And, they, again, cried out—Crucify him! ¹⁴But, Pilate, was saying unto them—Why! what, evil, hath he done? And, they, vehemently, cried out—Crucify him! ¹⁵And Pilate, being minded to do what would satisfy, the multitude, released unto them Barabbas, and delivered up Jesus, having scourged him, that he should be crucified. ¹⁶And, the soldiers, led him away, inside the court, which is a judgment-hall,—and called together the whole band; ¹⁷and they array him in purple, and set upon him, when they have plaited it; a crown of thorns,—¹⁸and began to be saluting him—Joy to thee! King of the Jews! ¹⁹and were striking him on the head with a reed, and were spitting at him,—and, bowing their knees, were doing him homage. ²⁰And, when they had mocked him, they put off him, the purple, and put on him, his own garments. And they lead him forth, that they may crucify him. ²¹And they impress a certain passer-by, Simon a Cyrenian, coming from a field, the father of Alexander and Rufus,—that he may carry his cross. ²²And they bring him unto the Golgotha place, which is, being translated, Skull-place. ²³And they would have given him, myrrhed wine,—who, however, received it not. ²⁴And they crucify him, and part asunder his garments, casting a lot upon them—who should have anything. ²⁵And it was the third hour, and they crucified him. ²⁶And the inscription of his accusation, had been inscribed—THE KING OF THE JEWS. ²⁷And, with him, they crucify, two robbers, one on his right hand, and one on his left. ²⁸²⁹And, the passers-by, were reviling him, shaking their heads, and saying—Aha! thou who wast pulling down the shrine, and building one in three days! ³⁰Save thyself,—coming down from the cross. ³¹Likewise, the High-priests also, mocking one to another, with the Scribes, were saying—Others, he saved, himself, he cannot save! ³²The Christ, the King of Israel—let him come down now from the cross, that we may see and believe. And, they who had been crucified with him, were casting it in his teeth. ³³And, when it was the sixth hour, darkness, came on all the land—until the ninth hour; ³⁴and, at the ninth hour, Jesus, uttered a cry, with a loud voice—Eloi! Eloi! lama sabachthanei? which is, being translated—My God! \u11 My God!\ul0 to what end, didst thou forsake me? ³⁵And, some of the by-standers, having heard, were saying—See! Elijah, he calleth! ³⁶And one, running, filled a sponge with vinegar, and, putting it about a reed, was giving him to drink, saying—Stay! let us see whether Elijah is coming, to take him down! ³⁷But, Jesus, sending out a loud voice, ceased to breathe. ³⁸And, the veil of the Temple, was rent into two, from top to bottom. ³⁹Now the centurion, who was standing near, out over against him, seeing, that, thus, he ceased to breathe, said—Truly, this man, was God's son! ⁴⁰And there were, women also, from afar, looking on,—among whom were both Mary the Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James the Little and Joses, and Salome; ⁴¹who, when he was in Galilee, used to follow him, and minister unto him,—and many other women, who had come up with him unto Jerusalem. ⁴²And evening, already, having begun, since it was a preparation, that is, the eve of a Sabbath, ⁴³Joseph of Arimathaea, a noble counsellor, who, also himself, was awaiting the kingdom of God, came; and, venturing, went in unto Pilate, and claimed the body of Jesus. ⁴⁴But, Pilate, wondered whether, already, he was dead; and, calling near the centurion, questioned him—whether he had, already, died. ⁴⁵And, getting to know from the centurion, he presented the corpse unto Joseph. ⁴⁶And, buying a fine Indian cloth, he took him down, and wrapped him about with the cloth, and laid him in a tomb, which had been hewn out of a rock,—and rolled near a stone upon the door of the tomb. ⁴⁷Now, Mary the Magdalene, and Mary the mother of Joses, were viewing how he had been laid.

¹⁶And, the Sabbath having passed, Mary the Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome, bought spices, that, coming, they might anoint him. ²And, very early, on the first of the week, they are coming towards the tomb—when, the sun, arose. ³And they were saying one to another—Who, shall roll away for us the stone, out of the door of the tomb? ⁴And, looking up, they observe that the stone hath been rolled up,—for it was exceeding great. ⁵And, entering into the tomb, they saw a young man, sitting on the right, clothed with a white robe,—and they were greatly alarmed. ⁶But, he, saith unto them—Be not alarmed! Jesus, ye are seeking, the Nazarene, the crucified: He hath arisen! he is not here,—See! the place where they laid him! ⁷But go your way, tell his disciples, and Peter—He is going before you into Galilee: there, shall ye yourselves see him,—according as he said unto you. ⁸And, going out, they fled from the tomb, for, trembling and transport, were holding them; and, unto no one, said they, anything, for they were afraid. ⁹And, arising early, on the first of the week, he was manifested, first, unto Mary the Magdalene, from whom he had cast, seven demons. ¹⁰She, going her way, bare tidings unto them who had come to be with him, as they were mourning and weeping. ¹¹And, they, hearing that he was living, and had been looked upon by her, disbelieved. ¹²But, after these things, unto two from among them, as they were walking, was he manifested, in a different form, as they were going unto a country place; ¹³and, they, departing, bare tidings unto the rest,—but, even them, they believed not. ¹⁴But, afterwards, unto the eleven themselves, as they reclined, was he manifested, and he upbraided their disbelief and hardness of heart,—because, them who had looked upon him when arisen \ul1 from among the dead\ul0 they believed not; ¹⁵and he said unto them—Go ye into all the world, and proclaim the glad-message, to the whole creation: ¹⁶He that hath believed, and been immersed, shall be saved; but, he that hath disbelieved, shall be condemned: ¹⁷Signs, moreover, shall follow, them who have believed,—these:—In my name, shall they cast, demons, out, with tongues, shall they speak,—\ul1 and, in their hands,\ul0 they shall take up, serpents; ¹⁸And, if, any deadly thing, they have drunk, in nowise, shall it, hurt, them: Upon sick persons, shall they lay, hands, and, well, shall they remain. ¹⁹The Lord \ul1 Jesus\ul0 , therefore, on the one hand, after talking with them, was taken up into heaven, and sat down on the right hand of God: ²⁰They, on the other hand, going forth, proclaimed on every side, the Lord, co-working, and confirming, the word, through, the closely following signs. OTHERWISE. All the things given in charge unto the companions of Peter, they concisely reported. But, after these things, Jesus also, himself, from east even unto west, sent forth, through them, the sacred and incorruptible proclamation of the age-abiding salvation.

Luke

¹Seeing, indeed, that, many, had taken in hand to rearrange for themselves a narrative, concerning the facts which have been fully confirmed amongst us,—²according as they who from the beginning became eye-witnesses and attendants of the Word delivered them unto us, ³it seemed good, even to me, having closely traced from the outset all things accurately, to write unto thee, in order, most excellent Theophilus: ⁴that, as touching the matters which thou hadst been taught by word of mouth, thou mightest obtain full knowledge, of the certainty. ⁵It came to pass, in the days of Herod, king of Judaea, that there was a certain priest, by name Zachariah, of the daily course of Abia; and that he had a wife of the daughters of Aaron, and, her name, was Elizabeth. ⁶Now they were both righteous before God, walking in all the commandments and righteous appointments of the Lord, blameless; ⁷and they had no child, inasmuch as Elizabeth was barren, and, both, had become, advanced in their days. ⁸But it came to pass, as he was doing priestly service in the order of his daily course, before God, ⁹according to the custom of his priesthood, it fell to his lot to offer incense, entering into the Temple of the Lord; ¹⁰and, all the throng of the people, was praying outside, at the hour of the incense offering. ¹¹And there appeared unto him a messenger of the Lord, standing on the right hand of the altar of incense; ¹²and Zachariah was troubled when he beheld, and, fear, fell upon him. ¹³But the messenger said unto him—Do not fear, Zachariah! Inasmuch as thy supplication hath been hearkened to,—and, thy wife Elizabeth, shall bring forth a son to thee, and thou shalt call his name, John; ¹⁴And there shall be joy to thee and exulting, and, many, over his birth, shall rejoice; ¹⁵For he shall be great before the Lord, and, wine and strong drink, in nowise may he drink, and, with Holy Spirit, shall he be filled, already, from his mother's womb; ¹⁶And, many of the Sons of Israel, shall he turn towards the Lord their God; ¹⁷And, he, shall go before him, in the spirit and power of Elijah,—To turn the hearts of fathers unto children, and the unyielding, into the prudence of the righteous, and to prepare, for the Lord, a people made ready. ¹⁸And Zachariah said unto the messenger—Whereby, shall I know this? for, I, am, aged, and, my wife, advanced in her days. ¹⁹And the messenger, answering, said unto him—I, am Gabriel,—he that standeth near before God; and have been sent forth to speak unto thee, and to deliver the joyful message unto thee, as touching these things. ²⁰And lo! thou shalt be silent, and not able to speak until the day when these things shall come to pass; because thou didst not believe in my words,—the which shall be fulfilled for their season. ²¹And the people were expecting Zachariah, and began to marvel that he should tarry in the Temple; ²²and when he came forth he was not able to speak unto them, and they perceived that, a vision, he had seen in the Temple,—and, he, continued making signs unto them, and remained dumb. ²³And it came to pass, when the days of his public ministration were fulfilled, that he departed unto his house. ²⁴And, after these days, Elizabeth his wife conceived, and she disguised herself five months, saying—²⁵Thus, for me, hath the Lord wrought,—in the days in which he looked upon me, to take away my reproach among men. ²⁶Now, in the sixth month, was the messenger Gabriel sent forth from God, into a city of Galilee, the name of which was Nazareth,—²⁷unto a virgin, betrothed to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and, the name of the virgin, was, Mary; ²⁸and entering in unto her, he said—Joy to thee, favoured one! The Lord, be with thee! ²⁹And, she, at the word, was greatly troubled, and began to deliberate, of what kind, this salutation, might be. ³⁰And the messenger said unto her—Do not fear, Mary, for thou hast found favour with God,—³¹And lo! thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name, Jesus: ³²the same, shall be great, and, Son of the Most High, shall be called, and the Lord God, will give unto him, the throne of David his father,—³³And he shall reign over the house of Jacob, unto the ages, and, of his kingdom, there shall be, no end. ³⁴But Mary said unto the messenger—How, shall this thing be, seeing that, a man, I know not? ³⁵And answering, the messenger said unto her—The Holy Spirit, shall come upon thee, and, the power of the Most High, shall overshadow thee; wherefore, even that which is to be born, Holy, shall be called, Son of God. ³⁶And lo! Elizabeth thy kinswoman, even she, hath conceived a son in, her old-age;—and, this month, is, the sixth, to her, the so-called barren one; ³⁷Because no declaration from God, shall be void of power. ³⁸And Mary said—Lo!

the handmaid of the Lord! Might it come to pass unto me, according to thy declaration. And the messenger departed from her. ³⁹And Mary, arising, in these days, journeyed into the hill country with haste, into a city of Judah,—⁴⁰and entered into the house of Zachariah, and saluted Elizabeth. ⁴¹And it came to pass that, as Elizabeth heard the salutation of Mary, the babe leapt in her womb, and Elizabeth was filled with Holy Spirit,—⁴²and lifted up her voice with loud exclamation, and said—Blessed, art thou among women, and, blessed, is the fruit of thy womb; ⁴³And, whence, to me is, this, That the mother of my Lord should come, unto me? ⁴⁴For lo! as the sound of thy salutation came into mine ears, the babe in my womb, leapt in exultation. ⁴⁵And, happy, is she who hath believed, that there shall be a perfecting of the things which have been spoken to her from the Lord! ⁴⁶And Mary said—My soul doth magnify the Lord, ⁴⁷And my spirit hath exulted upon God my saviour; ⁴⁸Because he hath looked upon the humbling of his handmaid; for lo! from the present time, all the generations, will pronounce me happy. ⁴⁹Because he that is mighty hath done for me great things, and, holy, is his name; ⁵⁰And his mercy is unto generations and generations, to them who revere him; ⁵¹He hath wrought strength with his arm, He hath scattered men arrogant in the intention of their heart; ⁵²He hath deposed potentates from thrones, and uplifted the lowly; ⁵³The hungry, hath he filled with good things, and, the wealthy, hath he sent empty away; ⁵⁴He hath laid hold of Israel his servant, to be mindful of mercies: ⁵⁵According as he spake unto our fathers,—To Abraham, and to his seed,—Unto times age-abiding. ⁵⁶And Mary abode with her about three months, and returned unto her house. ⁵⁷And, to Elizabeth, was the time fulfilled, that she should be bringing forth,—and she gave birth to a son. ⁵⁸And her neighbours and kinsfolk heard, that the Lord had magnified his mercy with her, and they were rejoicing with her. ⁵⁹And it came to pass, on the eighth day, that they came to circumcise the child, and were calling it, after the name of its father, Zachariah. ⁶⁰And his mother, answering, said—Nay! but he shall be called, John. ⁶¹And they said unto her—There is, no one from among thy kindred, who is called by this name! ⁶²And they began making signs unto his father, as to what he might be wishing it to be called. ⁶³And, asking for a small tablet, he wrote, saying—John, is his name! and they marvelled all. ⁶⁴And his mouth was opened instantly, and his tongue loosed, and he began to speak, blessing, God. ⁶⁵And fear came upon all the neighbours themselves; and, throughout all the hill-country of Judaea, were all these matters being much talked of; ⁶⁶and all who heard laid them up in their hearts, saying—What then shall his child be? for, even the hand of the Lord, was with him. ⁶⁷And, Zachariah his father, was filled with Holy Spirit, and prophesied, saying:—⁶⁸Blessed, be the Lord, the God of Israel! Because he hath visited and wrought redemption for his people, ⁶⁹And hath raised up a horn of salvation for us, In the house of David his servant: ⁷⁰According as he hath spoken by mouth of his holy ancient prophets,—⁷¹Of salvation from among our foes, and out of the hand of all them that hate us: ⁷²To perform mercy with our fathers, and to be mindful of his holy covenant,—⁷³The oath which he sware unto Abraham our father, To grant us, ⁷⁴without fear, from the hand of enemies rescued, to be rendering divine service unto him, ⁷⁵in lovingkindness and righteousness before him, all our days. ⁷⁶And, even thou, child, prophet of the Most High, shalt be called,—for thou shalt march on before the Lord, to prepare his ways, ⁷⁷Giving a knowledge of salvation unto his people, by a remission of their sins. ⁷⁸Because of the yearning compassion of the mercy of our God, wherein shall visit us a day-dawn from on high,—⁷⁹To shine on them who, in the darkness and shade of death, are sitting, to guide our feet into a way of peace. ⁸⁰And, the child, went on growing, and being strengthened in spirit, and was in the deserts, until the day he was pointed out unto Israel.

2Now it came to pass, in those days, that there went forth a decree from Caesar Augustus, for all the inhabited earth to be enrolled: ²this enrolment, first was made while Cyrenius was governor of Syria: ³and all were journeying to be enrolled, each one unto his own city. ⁴And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of a city Nazareth, into Judaea, into the city of David which is called Bethlehem; because he was of the house and family of David: ⁵to enrol himself with Mary who was betrothed to him, she being with child. ⁶And it came to pass, while they were there, that the days were fulfilled for her to give birth; ⁷and she gave birth to her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn. ⁸And there were, shepherds, in the same country, dwelling in the fields, and keeping the watches of the night over their flock. ⁹And, a messenger of the Lord, stood over them, and, a glory of the Lord, shone round about them; and they feared, a great fear. ¹⁰And the messenger said unto them—Be not afraid! For lo! I bring you good tidings of a great joy, the which shall be for all the people: ¹¹That there hath been born unto you, this day, a saviour,—Who is Christ the Lord—in the city of David! ¹²And, this, to you is, a sign: Ye shall find a babe, wrapped in swaddling clothes, and lying in a manger. ¹³And, suddenly, there came to be, with the messenger, the throng of the heavenly host, praising God, and saying—¹⁴Glory, in the highest, unto God! And, on earth, peace, among men of goodwill. ¹⁵And it came to pass, when the messengers had departed from them into heaven, that, the shepherds, began to say one to another—Let us go through forthwith as far as to Bethlehem, and see this thing which hath come to pass, which the Lord hath made known to us. ¹⁶And they came, with haste, and found both Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in the manger. ¹⁷Now, when they beheld, they made known concerning the thing which had been told them as to this child. ¹⁸And, all who heard, marvelled concerning the things which had been told by the shepherds unto them; ¹⁹but, Mary, was closely observing, all, these things, putting them together in her heart. ²⁰And the shepherds returned, giving glory and singing praise unto God, over all things which they had heard and seen, according as it had been told unto them. ²¹And, when eight days were fulfilled for circumcising him, then was his name called, Jesus,—which it was called by the messenger, before he was conceived in the womb. ²²And, when the days of their purification, according to the law of Moses, were fulfilled, they took him up into Jerusalem, to present him unto the Lord,—²³according as it is written in the law of the Lord—Every male that is a firstborn, Holy unto the Lord, shall be called, ²⁴and to give a sacrifice, according to that which is said in the law of the Lord—A pair of turtle-doves, or two young pigeons. ²⁵And lo! there was, a man, in Jerusalem, whose name, was Symeon; and, this man, was righteous and devout, awaiting the consolation of Israel, and Holy Spirit was upon him; ²⁶and it had been intimated to him by the Holy Spirit, that he should not see death, before he had seen the Christ of the Lord. ²⁷And he came, in the Spirit, into the temple; and, when the parents brought in the child Jesus, that they might do according to that which was customary by the law concerning it, ²⁸even he, welcomed it into his arms, and blessed God, and said—²⁹Now, dost thou dismiss thy servant, O Sovereign, according to thy declaration—in peace; ³⁰Because mine eyes have seen thy salvation, ³¹Which thou hast prepared in face of all the peoples: ³²A light for the unveiling of nations, and the glory of thy people Israel. ³³And his father and mother were marvelling over the things which were being spoken concerning him. ³⁴And Symeon blessed them, and said unto Mary his mother—Lo! this one, is being set for the falling and rising of many in Israel, and for a sign to be spoken against; ³⁵And, thou! through thy very soul, shall pass a sword, that, reasonings, may be revealed, out of many hearts. ³⁶And there was one Anna, a prophetess, daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Asher;—the same, advanced in many days; having lived with a husband seven years from her virginity, ³⁷and, she, had been a widow for as long as eighty-four years,—who left not the temple, with fastings and supplications, rendering divine service night and day;—³⁸and, in that very hour, coming near, she began to give thanks unto God, and to speak concerning him unto all who were waiting for the redemption of Jerusalem. ³⁹And, when they had finished all things that were according to the law of the Lord, they returned into Galilee, into their own city, Nazareth. ⁴⁰And, the child, went on growing, and waxing strong, becoming filled with wisdom; and, the favour of God, was upon it.

⁴¹And his parents used to journey yearly into Jerusalem, at the feast of the passover. ⁴²And, when he became twelve years, and they went up, according to the custom of the feast, ⁴³and completed the days, and then were returning, the boy Jesus remained behind in Jerusalem,—and his parents noticed it not; ⁴⁴but, supposing him to be in the company, went a day's journey, and then began to seek for him among their kinsfolk and acquaintances, ⁴⁵and, not finding him, returned unto Jerusalem, seeking him. ⁴⁶And it came to pass, that, after three days, they found him in the temple, sitting amidst the teachers,—both hearkening unto them, and questioning them. ⁴⁷Now all who heard him were beside themselves, because of his understanding and his answers. ⁴⁸And, when they behold him, they were astounded, and his mother said unto him—Child! why, hast thou dealt with us, thus? Lo! thy father and I, in anguish, were seeking thee. ⁴⁹And he said unto them—Why was it that ye were seeking me? Perceived ye not, that, in the courts of my Father, I must needs be? ⁵⁰And, they, understood not the thing which he spake to them. ⁵¹And he went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was submitting himself unto them. And, his mother, was closely observing all these things in her heart. ⁵²And, Jesus, went on advancing in wisdom, and in stature, and in favour with God and men.

3Now, in the fifteenth year of the supremacy of Tiberius Caesar,—Pontius Pilate being governor of Judaea, and Herod being tetrarch of Galilee, and, Philip his brother, tetrarch of Ituraea and the country of Trachonitis, and Lysanius, tetrarch of Abylene,—²in the High-priesthood of Annas and Caiaphas, came a word of God unto John the son, of Zechariah, in rue desert; ³and he came into all the country about the Jordan, proclaiming an immersion of repentance into remission of sins: ⁴as it is written in the book of the discourses of Isaiah the prophet: A voice of one crying aloud! In the desert, prepare ye the way of the Lord, straight, be making his paths; ⁵Every chasm, shall be filled up, and, every mountain and hill, be made low; and the, crooked, places shall become, straight, and the, rugged, places, smooth ways;—⁶And all flesh shall see the salvation of God. ⁷He was saying, therefore, unto the multitudes who were going forth to be immersed by him—Broods of vipers! who suggested to you, to flee from the coming wrath? ⁸Bring forth, therefore, fruits worthy of repentance, and do not begin to be saying within yourselves, As our father, we have, Abraham; for, I say unto you—God is able, out of these stones, to raise up children unto Abraham. ⁹And, already, even the axe, unto the root of the trees is being laid; every tree, therefore, not bringing forth \ul1 good\ul0 fruit, is to be hewn down, and, into fire, to be cast. ¹⁰And the multitude began to question him saying—What, then, shall we do? ¹¹And, answering, he said unto them—He that hath two tunics, let him share with him that hath none, and, he that hath food, in like manner, let him be doing. ¹²And there came, even tax-collectors, to be immersed; and they said unto him—Teacher! what, shall we, do? ¹³And, he, said unto them, Nothing more than what is appointed you, exact ye. ¹⁴Then were questioning him, soldiers also, saying—What shall, even we, do? And he said unto them—Molest ye, no one, neither accuse falsely; and be content with your supplies. ¹⁵Now, as the people were in expectation, and all were deliberating in their hearts, concerning John,—whether by any means, he, might be, the Christ, ¹⁶John answered, saying unto all—I, indeed, in water, am immersing you, but he that is mightier than I, cometh, the thong of whose sandals I am not worthy to unloose,—he, will immerse you in Holy Spirit and fire: ¹⁷whose fan is in his hand, to clear out his threshing-floor, and to gather the wheat into his granary; but, the chaff, will he burn up with fire unquenchable. ¹⁸So then indeed, as to many things and various, he exhorted, and continued telling his glad-message unto the people. ¹⁹But, Herod the tetrarch, being reproved by him concerning Herodias, the wife of his brother, and concerning all the wicked things Herod had done, ²⁰added this also unto all,—he locked up John in prison. ²¹Now it came to pass, when one and all the people were immersed, Jesus also, having been immersed, and being at prayer, heaven was opened; ²²and the Holy Spirit descended, in bodily appearance, as a dove, upon him,—and, a voice out of heaven, came—Thou, art my Son, the Beloved, in thee, I delight. ²³And, Jesus himself, was, when he began, about thirty years of age, being the son, as was supposed—of Joseph, of Heli: ²⁴of Matthat, of Levi, of Melchi,—of Jannai, of Joseph: ²⁵of Mattathias, of Amos, of Nahum,—of Esli, of Naggai: ²⁶of Maath, of Mattathias, of Semein,—of Josech, of Joda: ²⁷of Joanan, of Rhesa, of Zerubbabel,—of Salathiel, of Neri: ²⁸of Melchi, of Addi, of Cosam,—of Elmadam, of Er: ²⁹of Jesus, of Eliezer, of Jorim,—of Matthat, of Levi: ³⁰of Symeon, of Judas, of Joseph,—of Jonam, of Eliakim: ³¹of Melea, of Menna, of Mattatha,—of Natham, of David: ³²of Jesse, of Obed, of Boaz,—of Salmon, of Nashon: ³³of Amminadab, of Arni, of Hezron,—of Perez, of Judah: ³⁴of Jacob, of Isaac, of Abraham,—of Terah, of Nahor: ³⁵of Serug, of Reu, of Peleg,—of Eber, of Shelah: ³⁶of Cainan, of Arphaxad, of Shem,—of Noah, of Lamech: ³⁷of Methuselah, of Enoch, of Jared,—of Mahalaleel, of Cainan: ³⁸of Enos, of Seth,—of Adam; of God.

⁴And, Jesus, full of Holy Spirit, returned from the Jordan, and was led in the Spirit in the desert, ²forty days,—being tempted by the adversary; and he did eat nothing in those days,—and, when they were concluded, he hungered. ³And the adversary said to him—If thou art God's, Son, speak unto this stone; that it become bread. ⁴And Jesus made answer unto him—It is written: Not, on bread alone, shall, man, live. ⁵And, leading him up, he shewed him all the kingdoms of the inhabited earth, in a moment of time. ⁶And the adversary said to him—Unto thee, will I give this authority, all together, and their glory; because, unto me, hath it been delivered up, and, to whomsoever I please, I give it: ⁷Thou, therefore, if thou wilt worship before me, it shall all, be thine. ⁸And, answering, Jesus said to him—It is written: The Lord thy God, shalt thou worship, and, unto him alone, render divine service. ⁹And he led him into Jerusalem, and set him upon the pinnacle of the temple,—and said \u01 to him\u01 —If thou art God's, Son, cast thyself, from hence, down; ¹⁰for it is written—Unto his messengers, will he give command concerning thee, to keep vigilant watch over thee,— ¹¹And, On hands, will they take thee up, lest once thou strike, against a stone, thy foot. ¹²And Jesus, answering, said to him—It is said: Thou shalt not put to the test the Lord thy God. ¹³And, having concluded every temptation, the adversary departed from him until a fitting season. ¹⁴And Jesus returned, in the power of the Spirit, into Galilee; and, a report, went out along the whole of the region, concerning him; ¹⁵and, he, began teaching in their synagogues, being glorified by all. ¹⁶And he came into Nazareth, where he had been brought up, and entered, according to his custom, on the sabbath day, into the synagogue,—and stood up to read. ¹⁷And there was handed to him a scroll of the prophet Isaiah; and unfolding the scroll, he found the place where it was written: ¹⁸The Spirit of the Lord, is upon me, because he hath anointed me—to tell glad tidings unto the destitute; He hath sent me forth,—To proclaim, to captives, a release, and, to the blind, a recovering of sight,—to send away the crushed, with a release; ¹⁹To proclaim the welcome year of the Lord. ²⁰And, folding up the scroll, he handed it to the attendant, and sat down; and, the eyes of all, in the synagogue, were intently fixed upon him; ²¹and he began to be saying to them—This day, is fulfilled this scripture, in your ears. ²²And, all, were bearing witness to him, and marvelling at the words of favour which were proceeding out of his mouth; and they were saying—Is not, this, the, son of Joseph? ²³And he said unto them—By all means, ye will speak to me this similitude: Physician! heal, thyself,—Whatsoever things we have heard of coming to pass in Capernaum, do here also, in thine own country. ²⁴And he said—Verily, I say unto you, No prophet, is, welcome, in his own country, ²⁵And, of a truth, I say unto you—Many widows, were in the days of Elijah, in Israel, when the heaven was shut up three years and six months, when there came a great famine upon all the land; ²⁶And, unto none of them, was Elijah sent, save unto Sarepta of Sidonia, unto a woman that was a widow. ²⁷And, many lepers, were in Israel, in the time of Elisha the prophet, and, not one of them, was cleansed, save Naaman the Syrian. ²⁸And all were filled with wrath, in the synagogue, as they heard these things.

²⁹And, rising up, they thrust him forth outside the city, and led him as far as a brow of the hill on which their city was built,—so that they might throw him down headlong. ³⁰But, he, passing through the midst of them, went his way. ³¹And he came down into Capernaum, a city of Galilee. And he was teaching them on the sabbath; ³²and they were being struck with astonishment at his teaching, because, with authority, was his word. ³³And, in the synagogue, was a man having a spirit of an impure demon; and he cried out with a loud voice—³⁴Let be! What have we in common with thee, O Jesus, Nazarene! Hast thou come to destroy us? I know thee, who thou art,—The Holy One of God. ³⁵And Jesus rebuked it, saying—Hold thy peace! and go forth from him. And the demon, throwing him into the midst, went forth from him, doing him no hurt. ³⁶And amazement came upon all, and they began to converse one with another, saying—What is this word, that, with authority and power, he giveth orders unto the impure spirits, and they go forth? ³⁷And a noise concerning him began to go out into every place of the country around. ³⁸And, rising up, from the synagogue, he went into the house of Simon. Now, the mother-in-law of Simon, was in distress with a great fever; and they made request to him concerning her. ³⁹And, standing over her, he rebuked the fever, and it left her; and, instantly arising, she began to minister unto them. ⁴⁰But, as the sun was going in, they one and all, as many as had any sick with divers diseases, brought them unto him; and, he, upon each one of them laying, his hands, was curing them. ⁴¹And demons also were going forth from many; crying aloud, and saying—Thou, art the Son of God. And, rebuking them, he suffered them not be talking; because they knew him to be, The Christ. ⁴²And, when it was day, going forth, he journeyed into a desert place; and, the multitudes, were seeking after him, and they came unto him, and would have detained him, that he might not depart from them. ⁴³But, he, said unto them—To the other cities also, I must needs tell the good-news of the kingdom of God, because, hereunto, was I sent forth. ⁴⁴And he was proclaiming in the cities of Judaea.

⁵And it came to pass, while the multitude was pressing upon him, and was hearing the word of God, that, he, was standing near the lake of Gennesaret; ²and he saw two boats placed near the lake, and, the fishers, having gone away, from them, were washing their nets. ³And, entering into one of the boats, which was Simon's, he requested him, to put off from the land, a little; and, taking a seat, out of the boat, began he teaching the multitudes. ⁴And, when he ceased speaking, he said unto Simon—Put off into the deep, and let down your nets for a draught. ⁵And Simon, answering, said—Master! although through the whole night we toiled, we took, nothing; howbeit, at thy bidding, I will let down the nets. ⁶And, when this they had done, they enclosed a very large number of fishes, and their nets began to break. ⁷And they made signs to their partners in the other boat, to come and help them; and they came, and filled both the boats,—so that they began to sink. ⁸And Simon, beholding, fell down at the knees of Jesus, saying—Depart from me! Because, a sinful man, am I, O Lord! ⁹For, amazement, overcame him, and all them who were with him, on account of the draught of the fishes which they had taken; ¹⁰likewise also, both James and John, sons of Zebedee, who were partners with Simon. And Jesus said unto Simon—Do not fear! henceforth, shall thou be taking, men, that they may, live. ¹¹And, bringing the boats down on to the land, they left all, and followed him. ¹²And it came to pass, while he was in one of the cities, that lo! there was a man full of leprosy; and, seeing Jesus, he fell on his face, and entreated him, saying—Lord! if thou be willing, thou canst cleanse me. ¹³And, stretching forth the hand, he touched him, saying—I am willing: Be cleansed! And, straightway, the leprosy departed from him. ¹⁴And, he, charged him to tell, no one,—but, departing, Show thyself to the priest, and offer for thy cleansing, according as Moses enjoined, for a witness unto them. ¹⁵But the report concerning him the more went abroad, and many multitudes were coming together, to hear, and be getting cured from their infirmities; ¹⁶howbeit, he, was retiring in the deserts, and engaging in prayer. ¹⁷And it came to pass, on one of the days, that, he, was teaching, and there were sitting Pharisees and Teachers of the law, who had come out of every village of Galilee and Judaea and Jerusalem; and, the power of the Lord, was there, that he might heal. ¹⁸And lo! men bearing, upon a couch, one who was paralyzed, and they were seeking to bring him in, and lay him before him. ¹⁹And, not finding by what means they might bring him in, because of the multitude, going up on the house-top, through the tiling, let they him down, with the little-couch, into the midst before Jesus. ²⁰And, beholding their faith, he said—O man! thy sins are forgiven thee. ²¹And the Scribes and the Pharisees began to reason, saying—Who is this that speaketh profanities? Who can forgive, sins, save, God alone? ²²And Jesus, taking note of their reasonings, answering, said unto them—Why are ye reasoning in your hearts? ²³Which is easier, To say—Thy sins are forgiven thee; or to say—Arise and be walking? ²⁴But, that ye may know that, the Son of Man, hath, authority, upon the earth to forgive sins—he said to the paralyzed man—To thee, I say, Arise, and, taking up thy couch, be going thy way unto thy house. ²⁵And, instantly arising before them, he took up that whereon he had been lying, and departed unto his house, glorifying God. ²⁶And, astonishment, seized one and all, and they began glorifying God, and were filled with fear, saying—We have seen unaccountable things, to-day! ²⁷And, after these things, he went forth, and looked upon a tax-collector, by name Levi,—presiding over the tax-office; and he said to him—Be following me! ²⁸And, forsaking all, he arose, and was following him. ²⁹And Levi made a great reception for him, in his house, and there was a great multitude of tax-collectors, and others,—who were with them reclining. ³⁰And the Pharisees and their Scribes began murmuring unto his disciples, saying—Wherefore, with the tax-collectors and sinners, are ye eating and drinking? ³¹And, answering, Jesus said unto them—No need, have, the whole, of a physician, but, they who are sick. ³²I have not come to call, righteous, men, but, sinners, unto repentance. ³³But, they, said unto him—The disciples of John, do fast much, and, supplications, do make,—likewise also the disciples of the Pharisees; but, thine, do eat and drink! ³⁴Jesus, however, said unto them—Can, ye make, the sons of the bridechamber, fast, while the bridegroom is with them? ³⁵But there will come days, even when the bridegroom shall be taken from them, then, will they fast, in those days. ³⁶Moreover, he went on to speak, a parable also, unto them—No one, rending a patch from a new mantle, patcheth it upon an old mantle; otherwise, at least, both, the new, he will rend, and, with the old, the patch which is from the new, will not agree. ³⁷And, no one, poureth new wine into old skins; otherwise, at least, the new wine, will burst the skins, and will, itself, be poured out, and the skins be destroyed. ³⁸But, new wine, into unused skins, must be poured. ³⁹\ul No one, having drunk old, desireth new; for he saith, The old, is, mellow.\ul0

⁶And it came to pass, on a Sabbath, that he was passing along through cornfields, and his disciples were plucking and eating the ears of corn, rubbing them with their hands. ²But, certain of the Pharisees, said—Why are ye doing what is not allowed on the Sabbath? ³And, making answer unto them, Jesus said—Have ye never read, even this, what David did when he hungered, he, and they who were with him— ⁴How he entered into the house of God, and, the presence-bread, receiving, did eat, and gave to them who were with him, which it is not allowable to eat, save alone, to the priests? ⁵And he was saying to them—The Son of Man is, Lord of the Sabbath. ⁶And it came to pass, on another Sabbath, that he entered into the synagogue, and was teaching, and there was a man there, and, his right hand, was withered. ⁷Now the Scribes and the Pharisees were narrowly watching him, whether, on the Sabbath, he healeth,—that they might find whereof to accuse him. ⁸But, he, knew their reasonings, and said to the man who had the, withered, hand—Arise, and stand forward in the midst! And, arising, he stood forward. ⁹And Jesus said unto them—I ask you, whether it is allowed, on the Sabbath, to do good or to do harm,—life, to save, or, to destroy. ¹⁰And, looking round upon them all, he said unto him—Stretch forth thy hand! and, he, did so, and his hand was restored. ¹¹But, they, were filled with folly, and began conversing one with another, as to, what they might do with Jesus. ¹²And it came to pass, in these days, that he went forth into the mountain to pray, and was spending the night in the prayer-house of God. ¹³And, when it became day, he called his disciples, and chose from them, twelve, whom also he named, Apostles,— ¹⁴Simon, whom also he named Peter, and Andrew hie brother; and James and John; and Philip and Bartholomew; ¹⁵and Matthew and Thomas; and James, son of Alphaeus, and Simon, who was called Zealot; and Judas, son of James, ¹⁶and Judas Iscariot, who became betrayer;— ¹⁷and, coming down with them, he stood upon a level place, also a great multitude of his disciples,—and a great throng of the people, from all Judaea and Jerusalem and the sea-coast of Tyre and Zidon, who had come to hearken unto him and to be healed from their diseases; ¹⁸and, they who were molested by impure spirits, were being cured; ¹⁹and, all the multitude, were seeking to touch him, because, power, from him, was coming forth, and healing all. ²⁰And, he, lifting up his eyes towards his disciples, was saying—Happy, ye destitute, for, yours, is the kingdom of God. ²¹Happy, ye that hunger now, for ye shall be filled. Happy, ye that weep now, for ye shall laugh. ²²Happy, are ye, whensoever men shall hate you, and whensoever they shall separate you, and reproach you, and cast out your name as evil, for the sake of the Son of Man: ²³be rejoiced in that day, and leap, for lo! your reward, is great in heaven; for, according to the same things, were their fathers doing unto the prophets. ²⁴But alas! for you, ye wealthy, for ye are duly receiving you consolation. ²⁵Alas! for you, ye who are filled full now, for ye shall hunger. Alas! ye that laugh now, for ye shall mourn and weep. ²⁶Alas! whensoever all men shall, speak well of you, for, according to the same things, were their fathers doing unto the false prophets. ²⁷But, unto you, I say, who are hearkening: Be loving your enemies; be doing, good, unto them that hate you; ²⁸Be blessing them that curse you; be praying for them that wantonly insult you. ²⁹To him who is smiting thee upon the one cheek, be offering, the other also; and, from him who is taking away thy mantle, thy tunic also, do not forbid: ³⁰To every one asking thee, give, and, from him that taketh away thy possessions, ask them not back. ³¹And, according as ye desire that men be doing unto you, be ye doing unto them, in like manner. ³²And, if ye love them that love you, what sort of thanks are there for you? for, even sinners, love, such as love them. ³³\ul For\ul0 , if ye even do good unto them that do good unto you, what sort of thanks are there for you? Even sinners, the same, are doing. ³⁴And, if ye lend to them from whom ye are hoping to receive, what sort of thanks are there for you? Even sinners, unto sinners, do lend, that they may receive back, as much. ³⁵But love your enemies, and do good and lend, hoping for, nothing, back; and your reward shall be, great, and ye shall be sons of the Most High,—for, he, is, gracious, unto the ungrateful and wicked. ³⁶Become ye compassionate, according as, your Father, is, compassionate; ³⁷And do not judge, and in nowise shall ye be judged; and do not condemn, and in nowise shall ye be condemned; release, and ye shall be released; ³⁸Give, and it shall be given unto you: good measure, pressed down, shaken together, running over, will they give into your lap; for, with what measure ye mete, shall it be measured back unto you. ³⁹He spake, moreover, a parable also, unto them: Can, the blind, guide, the blind? will not, both, fall into, a ditch? ⁴⁰A disciple is not above the teacher; but, when trained, every one shall be as his teacher. ⁴¹But why beholdest thou the mote that is in the eye of thy brother, while, the beam that is in thine own eye, thou dost not consider? ⁴²How canst thou say to thy brother—Brother! let me cast out the mote that is in thine eye,—thyself, the beam in thine own eye, not beholding? Hypocrite! cast out, first, the beam out of thine own eye, and, then, shalt thou see clearly, to cast out, the mote that is in the eye of thy brother. ⁴³For a good tree doth not produce worthless fruit, neither again doth, a worthless tree, produce good fruit. ⁴⁴For, every tree, by its own fruit, becometh known. For not, of thorns, do they gather figs, neither, of a bramble-bush, do they gather, a bunch of grapes. ⁴⁵The good man, out of the good treasure of the heart, bringeth forth that which is good; and, the wicked man, out of the wicked heart, bringeth forth that which is wicked; for, out of an overflowing of heart, speaketh, his mouth. ⁴⁶And why call ye me, Lord! Lord! and not do the things that I say? ⁴⁷Every one coming unto me, and hearkening unto my words, and doing them, I will suggest to you, whom he is like: ⁴⁸He is like unto a man building a house, who digged, and deepened, and laid a foundation upon the rock,—and, a flood, coming, the stream burst against that house, and was not strong enough to shake it, because it had been, well, built. ⁴⁹But, he that hath heard and not done, is like unto a man having built a house upon the earth, without a foundation,—against which the stream burst, and, straightway, it fell in; and it came to pass, that, the crash of that house, was, great.

am a man ranked, under authority, having, under myself, soldiers; and I say to this one—Go! and he goeth,—and to another—Come! and he cometh,—and to my servant—Do this! and he doeth it. ⁹And, hearing these things, Jesus marvelled at him; and, turning to the multitude following him, said—I tell you, Not even in Israel, such faith as this, have I found! ¹⁰And they who were sent, returning unto the house, found the servant, well. ¹¹And it came to pass thereafter, that he journeyed unto a city called Nain, and there were journeying with him, his disciples and a great multitude. ¹²Now, as he drew near unto the gate of the city, then lo! there was being brought forth, one dead, the only-begotten son of his mother,—and, she, was a widow; and, a considerable multitude of the city, was with her. ¹³And, beholding her, the Lord, was moved with compassion over her, and said to her—Be not weeping! ¹⁴And, going forward, he touched the coffin, and the bearers stood still; and he said—Young man! to thee, I say, Arise! ¹⁵And the dead man sat up, and began to speak; and he gave him to his mother. ¹⁶And fear seized them, all, and they began to glorify God, saying—A great prophet, hath been raised up amongst us! and—God hath visited his people! ¹⁷And this report went forth throughout the whole of Judaea, and all the surrounding country. ¹⁸And John's disciples carried tidings unto him concerning all these things. ¹⁹And, calling unto him certain two of his disciples, John sent unto the Lord, saying—Art, thou, the Coming One, or, a different one, are we to expect? ²⁰And, coming near unto him, the men said—John the Immerser, hath sent us unto thee, saying, Art, thou, the Coming One, or, another, are we to expect? ²¹In that very hour, he cured many from diseases, and plagues, and wicked spirits; and, unto many blind, gave he the favour to see. ²²And, answering, he said unto them—Go and bear tidings unto John, as to what ye have seen and heard: The blind, are receiving sight, the lame, walk, lepers, are cleansed, and, the deaf, hear, the dead, are raised, the destitute, are told the glad-message; ²³And, happy, is he, whosoever shall not find occasion of stumbling in me! ²⁴And, the messengers of John having departed, he began to say unto the multitudes, concerning John—What went ye forth into the desert to gaze at? A reed, by a wind, shaken? ²⁵But what went ye forth to see? A man, in soft garments, arrayed? Lo! they who in splendid apparel and luxury are found, are, in the kingly courts. ²⁶But what went ye forth to see? A prophet? Yea! I say unto you,—and abundantly more than a prophet. ²⁷This, is he concerning whom it is written—Lo! I am sending forth my messenger before thy face, who shall prepare thy way before thee. ²⁸I say unto you—A greater, among them that are born of women, than John, is there none; but, he that is least in the kingdom of God, is greater than he. ²⁹And, all the people, when they heard, and the tax-collectors, justified God, having been immersed with the immersion of John; ³⁰but, the Pharisees and the lawyers, had set aside, the counsel of God against themselves, not being immersed by him. ³¹Unto what, then, shall I liken the men of this generation? And unto what are they like? ³²They are like unto the children sitting, in a market-place, and calling one to another, who say—We played the flute for you, and ye danced not, We wailed, and ye wept not. ³³For John the Immerser hath come, neither eating bread nor drinking wine, and ye say—A demon, he hath: ³⁴The Son of Man hath come, eating and drinking, and ye say—Lo! a man, gluttonous and a wine-drinker, a friend of tax-collectors and sinners. ³⁵And yet wisdom hath been justified by all her children. ³⁶And a certain one of the Pharisees was requesting him, that he would eat with him; and, entering into the house of the Pharisee, he reclined. ³⁷And, lo! a woman, who indeed was in the city a sinner; and, when she found out that he was reclining in the house of the Pharisee, providing an alabaster-jar of perfume, ³⁸and standing behind, near his feet, weeping, with the tears, began she to be wetting his feet, and, with the hair of her head, was wiping off the tears, and was tenderly kissing his feet, and anointing them with the perfume. ³⁹But the Pharisee who had invited him, seeing it, spake within himself, saying, This one, if he were the prophet, would have been taking note, who and of what sort, is the woman, who is even touching him, that she is, a sinner. ⁴⁰And, making answer, Jesus said unto him—Simon! I have, unto thee, something to say. He, then—Teacher, speak!—saith he. ⁴¹Two debtors, there were, to a certain creditor,—the one, owed five hundred denaries, and, the other, fifty. ⁴²they not having wherewith to pay, he forgave, both. Which of them, therefore, will love him, more? ⁴³Making answer, Simon said—I suppose, that he to whom, the more, he forgave. And, he, said unto him—Rightly, hast thou judged. ⁴⁴And, turning towards the woman, unto Simon, he said—Seest thou this woman? I entered into thy house: water to me, on my feet, thou didst not give,—but, she, with her tears, hath wetted my feet, and, with her hair, wiped off the tears. ⁴⁵A kiss, to me, thou didst not give,—but, she, from the time I came in, hath not ceased tenderly kissing my feet. ⁴⁶With oil, my head, thou didst not anoint,—but, she, with perfume, hath anointed, my feet. ⁴⁷For which cause, I say unto thee—Her many sins, have been forgiven, because she hath loved, much: but, he to whom little is forgiven, little, loveth. ⁴⁸And he said unto her—Thy sins have been forgiven. ⁴⁹And they who were reclining together, began to be saying within themselves—Who is, this, that, even forgiveth sins? ⁵⁰But he said unto the woman—Thy faith, hath saved thee,—Go thy way into peace.

⁸And it came to pass, in due course, that he was passing through, city by city and village by village, proclaiming, and delivering the glad-message of the kingdom of God,—and, the twelve, were with him; ²and certain women, who had been cured from evil spirits and infirmities,—Mary, the one called Magdalene, from whom seven demons had gone forth, ³and Joana, wife of Chuza steward of Herod, and Susanna, and many others,—who indeed were ministering unto them out of their possessions. ⁴And, seeing that a great multitude were coming together, and they who from every city were journeying forth unto him, he spake through means of a parable:—⁵The sower went forth to sow his seed,—and, as he sowed, some, indeed, fell beside the pathway, and was trodden down; and, the birds of heaven, devoured it. ⁶And, other, fell down upon the rock; and, growing, was withered, because it had not moisture. ⁷And, other, fell and thorns; and, growing together, the thorns, choked it. ⁸And, other, fell into good ground; and, growing, brought forth fruit, a hundredfold. These things, saying, he went on to cry aloud—He that hath ears to hear, let him hear. ⁹But his disciples began to question him—What might, this very, parable be? ¹⁰And, he, said—Unto you, hath it been given, to get to know the sacred secrets of the kingdom of God; but, unto the rest, in parables,—in order that, seeing, they may not see, and, hearing, they may not understand. ¹¹Now the parable, is this—The seed, is, the word of God. ¹²And, those beside the pathway, are they who have heard; afterwards, cometh the adversary, and catcheth away the word from their heart, lest, believing, they should, be saved. ¹³And, those upon the rock, are they who, as soon as they hear, with joy, welcome the word; and, these, not having, root, are they who, for a season, believe,—and, in a season of testing, draw back. ¹⁴And, that which in among the thorns fell, these, are they who have heard; and, by anxieties and wealth and pleasures of life being borne along, are choked up, and bear not to perfection. ¹⁵But, that in the good ground, these, are they who, indeed, in a noble and good heart having heard the word, hold fast, and bear fruit with endurance. ¹⁶And, no one having lit a lamp, covereth it up with a vessel, or, beneath a couch, putteth it; but, upon a lamp-stand, putteth it, that, they who come in, may see the light. ¹⁷For there is no secret, which shall not be made, manifest; neither a hidden thing, which shall in anywise not be made known, or not come, where it can be seen. ¹⁸Be taking heed therefore how ye hear; for, whosoever shall have, it shall be given unto him; and, whosoever shall not have, even what he seemeth to have, shall be taken from him. ¹⁹And his mother and brethren came near unto him, and were unable to reach him, because of the multitude. ²⁰And it was reported to him—Thy mother and thy brethren, are standing outside, desiring, to see, thee. ²¹But, he, answering, said unto them—My mother and my brethren, are, these—they who, the word of God, are hearing and doing. ²²And it came to pass, on one of the days, that, he, entered into a boat, and his disciples; and he said unto them—Let us pass over unto the other side of the lake. And they set sail. ²³Now, as they were sailing, he fell asleep. And there came down a hurricane of wind upon the lake, and they began to be filled, and to be in peril. ²⁴And, coming near, they roused him up, saying—Master! Master! we perish! And, he, roused up, rebuked the wind, and the surging of the water; and they ceased, and it became a calm. ²⁵And he said unto them—Where was your faith? But, struck with fear, they marvelled, saying one to another—Who then is, this,—that, even unto the winds, he giveth orders, and unto the water, and they hearken unto him. ²⁶And they sailed down into the country of the Gerasenes, the which is over against Galilee. ²⁷And, when he went forth upon the land, there met him a certain man, out of the city, having demons; and, for a considerable time, he had put on no garment, and, in a house, would not abide, but among the tombs. ²⁸But, seeing Jesus, he cried out aloud, and fell down before him, and, with a loud voice, said—What have I in common with thee, O Jesus, Son of \u0111 God\u0111 the Most High? I beg of thee—Do not torment me!—²⁹for he was about to charge the impure spirit to come out from the man. For, many times, had it snatched him away; and he used to be bound with chains and fetters, for a safe-guard, and was wont to break in pieces the bonds, and to be driven by the demon into the deserts. ³⁰And Jesus questioned him—What name hast thou? And, he, said—Legion! because many demons had entered into him. ³¹And they were beseeching him that he would not order them, into the abyss, to depart. ³²Now there was there, a herd of a good many swine, feeding in the mountain; and they besought him, that he would suffer them, into those, to enter; and he suffered them. ³³And the demons, going forth from the man entered into the swine; and the herd rushed down the cliff, into the lake, and were choked. ³⁴And they who had been feeding them, seeing what had happened, fled, and carried tidings into the city, and into the country-places. ³⁵And they went forth to see what had happened; and came unto Jesus, and found the man from whom the demons had gone forth, sitting, clothed, and of sound mind, near the feet of Jesus,—and they were struck with fear. ³⁶And they who had seen it, reported unto them, how the demonized man was saved. ³⁷And one and all of the throng of the surrounding country of the Gerasenes, requested him, to depart from them; because, with a great fear, were they oppressed. And, he, entering into a boat, returned. ³⁸And the man from whom the demons had gone forth, began to beg of him, that he might be with him; but he dismissed him, saying—³⁹Be returning unto thy house, and telling forth what great things, God, for thee, hath done. And he departed, through all the city, proclaiming what great things, Jesus, had done for him. ⁴⁰Now, when Jesus returned, the multitude welcomed him back, for they were all expecting him. ⁴¹And lo! there came a man, whose name was Jairus, and, the same, was, a ruler of the synagogue,—and, falling down near the feet of Jesus, he began beseeching him to enter into his house; ⁴²because

he had, an only-begotten daughter, about twelve years old, and, she, was dying. Now, as he withdrew, the multitudes, were hemming him in. ⁴³And, a woman, with a flow of blood of twelve years standing, who indeed could, from no one, be cured, ⁴⁴coming near behind, touched the fringe of his mantle; and, instantly, was stayed the flow of her blood. ⁴⁵And Jesus said—Who, is it that touched me? And, when all were denying, Peter said—Master! the multitudes, are hemming thee in, and pressing along. ⁴⁶But, Jesus, said—Some one touched me, for, I, took note of power, gone out from me. ⁴⁷And, the woman seeing that she had not escaped notice, trembling, came, and, falling down before him, reported before all the people, for what cause she had touched him, and how she was healed instantly! ⁴⁸And, he, said to her—Daughter! thy faith, hath saved thee: Go thy way into peace. ⁴⁹While yet he is speaking, there cometh one from the synagogue ruler's, saying—Thy daughter, is dead: No further, be troubling the teacher. ⁵⁰But, Jesus, hearing, answered him—Do not fear! Only believe, and she shall be saved. ⁵¹And, when he came into the house, he suffered no one to enter with him, save Peter and John and James, and the father of the girl, and the mother. ⁵²And they were all weeping, and beating themselves, for her. And he said—Be not weeping; for she died not, but is sleeping. ⁵³And they were deriding him, knowing that she died. ⁵⁴But, he, grasping her hand, called aloud, saying—O girl! arise! ⁵⁵And her spirit returned, and she rose up instantly, and he ordered that something should be given her to eat. ⁵⁶And her parents were beside themselves. But, he, charged them to tell, no one, what had happened.

⁹And, calling together the twelve, he gave them power and authority over all the demons, and to be curing, diseases; ²and sent them forth, to be proclaiming the kingdom of God, and to be healing; ³and said unto them—Nothing, take ye for the journey,—neither staff, nor satchel, nor bread, nor silver, nor to have, two tunics. ⁴And, into whatsoever house ye enter, there, abide, and, thence, be going forth. ⁵And, as many soever as shall not welcome you, in going forth from that city, the dust of your feet, shake ye off, for a witness against them. ⁶And they went forth, and were passing through, along the villages,—delivering the glad-message, and effecting cures in every direction. ⁷Now Herod the tetrarch heard of all the things which were coming to pass, and was utterly at a loss, because of its being said, by some, that, John, had been raised from the dead; ⁸and, by some, that, Elijah, had appeared; and, by others, that, some prophet of the ancients, had arisen. ⁹But Herod said—John, I myself, beheaded; but, who is this, concerning whom I am hearing such things as these? And he was seeking to see him. ¹⁰And the Apostles, returning, related to him what great things they had done. And, taking them aside, he retired privately, into a city called Bethsaida. ¹¹But, the multitudes, getting to know, followed him; and, giving them welcome, he began speaking unto them concerning the kingdom of God,—and, them that had need of cure, he healed, ¹²And, the day, began to decline; and the twelve, coming near, said to him—Dismiss the multitude, that, going into the surrounding villages and hamlets, they may lodge, and find provisions; because, here, in a desert place, are we. ¹³But he said unto them—Give, ye, them to eat. They, however, said—We have not more than five loaves, and two fishes,—unless perhaps, we, should go, and buy food, for all this people. ¹⁴For there were about five thousand men. And he said unto his disciples—Make them recline, in companies of about fifty each. ¹⁵And they did so,—and made, one and all, recline. ¹⁶And, taking the five loaves, and the two fishes, looking up into heaven, he blessed them, and brake them up, and went on giving to the disciples, to set before the multitude; ¹⁷and they did all eat and were filled. And that which remained over to them, was taken up,—of broken pieces, twelve baskets. ¹⁸And, it came to pass, when he was praying in solitude, the disciples, were with him. And he questioned them, saying—Who do the multitudes say that I am? ¹⁹And they, answering, said John the Immerser; But some, Elijah, and others, that, some prophet of the ancients, hath arisen. ²⁰And he said to them—But who say, ye, that I am? And, Peter, answering, said—The Christ of God! ²¹He, however, sternly admonishing them, gave charge that, unto no one, should they be telling this; ²²saying—The Son of Man must needs suffer, many things, and be rejected by the Elders and High priests and Scribes, and be slain,—and, on the third day, arise. ²³And he was saying, unto all—If any one intendeth after me to come, Let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily,—and be following me. ²⁴For, whosoever intendeth, his life, to save, shall lose it; but, whosoever shall lose his life for my sake, the same, shall save it? ²⁵For what doth a man profit, who hath gained the whole world, but hath lost, or been made to forfeit, himself? ²⁶For, whosoever shall be ashamed of me, and of my words, of him, the Son of Man, will be ashamed, whensoever he shall come in his glory, and that of the Father, and of the holy messengers. ²⁷But I tell you of a truth—There, are, some of those, here, standing, who shall in nowise taste of death, until they see the kingdom of God. ²⁸And it came to pass, after these words, about eight days, taking with him Peter and John and James, he went up into the mountain to pray. ²⁹And it came to pass, while he was praying, that, the appearance of his face, was changed, and, his clothing, became white, effulgent. ³⁰And lo! two men, were conversing with him, who, indeed, were Moses and Elijah,—³¹who, appearing in glory, were speaking as to his departure, which he was about to fulfil in Jerusalem. ³²Now, Peter, and they who were with him, had become heavy with sleep; but, waking up, they saw his glory, and the two men who were standing with him. ³³And it came to pass, when they were being parted from him, Peter said unto Jesus—Master! it is, delightful, for us to be, here: Let us, therefore, make three tents, one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah:—not knowing what he said. ³⁴Now, while he was saying these things, there came a cloud, and it began to overshadow them,—and they were overcome with fear as they entered into the cloud. ³⁵And, a voice, came out of the cloud, saying—This, is my Son, the Chosen One: Unto him, be hearkening. ³⁶And, when the voice came, there was found, Jesus alone. And they held their peace, and, unto no one, reported they, in those days, any of the things which they had seen. ³⁷And it came to pass, on the next day, when they came down from the mountain, that there met him a great multitude. ³⁸And lo! a man from the multitude, uttered a cry, saying—Teacher! I beg of thee, to look upon my son, because, my only begotten, he is. ³⁹And lo! a spirit, taketh him, and, suddenly, he crieth out,—and it convulseth him—with foaming, and with difficulty departeth from him, sorely bruising him. ⁴⁰And I begged of thy disciples, that they would cast it out, and they could not. ⁴¹And, making answer, Jesus said—O faithless and perverted generation! how long shall I be with you, and bear with you? Bring, hither, thy son. ⁴²And, while yet he was coming, the demon tare him, and mangled him. But Jesus rebuked the impure spirit, and healed the boy, and gave him back to his father. ⁴³And they were all being struck with astonishment, at the majesty of God. And, while all were marvelling at all things which he was doing, he said unto his disciples: ⁴⁴Lay, ye, up in your ears, these words; for, the Son of Man, is about to be delivered up, into the hands of men. ⁴⁵But, they, understood not this saying, and it had become veiled from them, that they might not grasp it,—and they were afraid to question him, concerning this saying. ⁴⁶But there entered a reasoning among them, as to who of them should be greatest. ⁴⁷And, Jesus, perceiving the reasoning of their heart, taking a child, placed it near himself,—⁴⁸and said unto them—Whosoever shall give welcome unto this child, on my name, unto me, giveth welcome; and, whosoever, unto me, giveth welcome, giveth welcome unto him that sent me forth. For, he who is least among you all, the same, is, great. ⁴⁹But John, answering, said—Master! we saw some one, in thy name, casting out demons,—and we forbade him, because he followeth not with us. ⁵⁰And Jesus said unto him—Do not forbid; for, whosoever is not against you, is, for you. ⁵¹And it came to pass, when the days for taking him up were on the point of being fulfilled, even he himself, set, his face, to be journeying unto Jerusalem; ⁵²and he sent messengers before his face,—and, taking their journey, they entered into a village of Samaritans, so as to prepare for him. ⁵³And they welcomed him not, because, his face, was for journeying unto Jerusalem. ⁵⁴And the disciples James and John, seeing it, said—Lord! wilt thou, that we bid fire come down from heaven, and destroy them? ⁵⁵But, turning, he rebuked them. ⁵⁶And they journeyed into a different village. ⁵⁷And, as they were journeying on the road, one said unto him—I will follow thee, whithersoever thou shalt depart. ⁵⁸And Jesus said unto him—the foxes, have, dens, and, the birds of heaven, nests; but, the Son of Man, hath not where, his head, he may recline. ⁵⁹And he said unto another—Be following me! But, he, said—Suffer me, first, to depart, and bury my father. ⁶⁰And he said unto him—Leave, the dead, to bury their own dead; but, thou, departing, be declaring the kingdom of God. ⁶¹And, yet another, said—I will follow thee, Lord; But, first, suffer me to bid adieu to them that are in my house. ⁶²But Jesus said unto him—No one, laying the hand on a plough and looking unto the things behind, is, fit, for the kingdom of God.

10And, after these things, the Lord appointed seventy two others, and sent them forth, two and two before his face, into every city and place whither, he himself, was about to come. ²And he was saying unto them—The harvest, indeed, is, great, but, the labourers, few; beg ye, therefore, of the Lord of the harvest, that he would thrust forth, labourers, into his harvest. ³Withdraw! Lo! I send you forth as lambs amid wolves. ⁴Be not carrying purse, or satchel, or sandals, and, no one along the road, salute ye; ⁵And, into whatsoever house ye enter, First, say, Peace to this house! ⁶And, if the son of peace be, there, your peace, shall rest upon it; but, otherwise, at least, unto you, shall it return. ⁷And, in the self-same house, abide ye, eating and drinking such things as they have; for, worthy, is the labourer, of his hire: be not removing from house to house. ⁸And, into whatsoever city ye shall enter, and they bid you welcome, be eating such things as are set before you; ⁹And be curing the sick that are, therein, and be saying unto them—The kingdom of God hath drawn nigh upon you. ¹⁰But, into whatsoever city ye shall enter, and they do not welcome you, going forth into the broadways thereof, say ye: ¹¹Even the dust that cleaveth unto us, out of your city, unto our feet, do we wipe off against you; nevertheless, of this, be taking notice—The kingdom of God hath drawn near. ¹²I tell you, for them of Sodom, in that day, more tolerable, will it be, than for that city. ¹³Alas for thee, Chorazin! Alas for thee, Bethsaida! Because, if, in Tyre and Zidon, had been done the works of power which have been down in you, of old, in sackcloth and ashes sitting, they would have repented. ¹⁴Moreover, for Tyre and Zidon, more tolerable, will it be, in the judgment, than, for you. ¹⁵And, thou, Capernaum,—Unto heaven, shalt thou be uplifted? ...Unto hades, thou shalt be brought down! ¹⁶He that hearkeneth unto you, unto me, doth hearken, and, he that setteth you aside, doth set, me, aside; and, he that setteth, me, aside, doth set aside, him that sent me. ¹⁷And the seventy returned, with joy, saying—Lord! even the demons, submit themselves unto us, in thy name! ¹⁸And he said unto them—I was beholding Satan, when, like lightning, out of heaven, he fell! ¹⁹Lo! I have given you the authority—to be treading upon serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy, and, nothing, unto you, shall in anywise do harm; ²⁰Notwithstanding, in this, be not rejoicing—that, the spirits, unto you submit themselves; but be rejoicing—that, your names, are inscribed in the heavens! ²¹In the self-same hour, exulted he in the Holy Spirit, and said—I openly give praise unto thee, Father! Lord of heaven and earth! in that thou hast hid these things from the wise and discerning, and hast revealed them unto babes,—Yea, O Father! that, so, hath it become, a delight, before thee. ²²All things, unto me, have been delivered up by my Father; and, no one, knoweth, who the Son is, save the Father,—and who the Father is, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son may be minded to reveal him. ²³And, turning unto his disciples, privately, he said—Happy, the eyes, that see what ye see! ²⁴For I tell you, Many prophets and kings, have desired to see what, ye, see, and they saw not, and to hear what ye hear, and they heard not. ²⁵And lo! a certain lawyer, arose, putting him to the test, saying—Teacher! by doing what, shall I inherit, life age-abiding? ²⁶And, he, said unto him—In the law, what is written? how dost thou read? ²⁷And, he, answering, said—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, out of all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might, and with all thine intention; and thy neighbour, as thyself? ²⁸And he said unto him—Rightly, hast thou answered: This, do, and thou shalt live. ²⁹But, he, wishing to justify himself, said unto Jesus—And, who is, my, neighbour? ³⁰And taking up the question, Jesus said—A certain man, was going down from Jerusalem unto Jericho, and, with robbers, fell in,—who, stripping him, and inflicting, wounds, upon him, departed, leaving him, half dead. ³¹And, by chance, a certain priest, was coming down by that road, and, seeing him, passed by, on the opposite side. ³²And, in like manner, a Levite also, coming down to the place, and seeing him, passed by, on the opposite side. ³³But, a certain Samaritan, going on his journey, came down to him, and, seeing him, was moved with compassion; ³⁴and, coming near, bound up his bruises, pouring thereon oil and wine,—and, setting him on his own beast, brought him into an inn, and took care of him. ³⁵And, on the morrow, throwing out two denaries, he gave them to the inn-keeper, and said—Take care of him, and, whatsoever thou shall further spend, I, when on my way back, will duly pay thee. ³⁶Which of these three, seemeth unto thee to have become, neighbour, unto him who fell among the robbers? ³⁷And, he, said—He who dealt mercifully with him. And Jesus said unto him—Be taking thy journey, and, thou, be doing, in like manner. ³⁸And, as they were journeying, he, entered into a certain village; and, a certain woman, named Martha, welcomed him into her house. ³⁹And, she, had a sister, called Mary, who also, seating herself at the feet of the Lord, was hearing his word. ⁴⁰But, Martha, was distracted about much ministering, and, coming near, said—Lord! carest thou not that, my sister, hath left me to be ministering, alone? Speak to her, then, that she help me. ⁴¹But the Lord, answering, said to her—Martha! Martha! thou art anxious and troubled about many things: ⁴²Of few things, is there need, or, of one; Mary, in fact, hath chosen, the good part,—one which shall not be taken away from her.

11 And it came to pass, when he was in a certain place praying, as he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him—Lord! teach us to pray, as, John also, taught his disciples. ²And he said unto them—Whensoever ye are praying, say—Father! Hallowed be thy name, Come may thy kingdom, ³Our needful bread, be giving us, day by day; ⁴And forgive us our sins, for, even we ourselves, forgive every one indebted to us; And bring us not into temptation. ⁵And he said unto them—Who from among you, shall have a friend, and shall go unto him at midnight, and say unto him—Friend! supply me with three loaves, ⁶forasmuch as, a friend of mine, hath come off a journey unto me, and I have not what I can set before him; ⁷and, he, from within, shall answer, and say—Be not disturbing me,—already, the door hath been fastened, and, my children, with me, are, in bed: I cannot rise and give thee? ⁸I say unto you—Even though he will not give him, rising because of his being a friend of his, because, at least, of his importunity, he will rouse himself, and give him as many as he needeth. ⁹I, therefore, unto you, say—Be asking, and it shall be given to you, Be seeking, and ye shall find,—Be knocking, and it shall be opened unto you. ¹⁰For, whosoever asketh, receiveth, and, he that seeketh, findeth,—and, to him that knocketh, shall it be opened. ¹¹But which is the father, from among yourselves, whom the son will ask for, a fish, who, instead of a fish, will give him, a serpent? ¹²Or shall also ask, an egg, who will give him, a scorpion? ¹³If therefore, ye, being, evil, know how to be giving, good gifts, unto your children, how much rather, will, the heavenly Father, give Holy Spirit unto them that ask him! ¹⁴And he was casting out a demon that was dumb; and it came to pass, when the demon went out, the dumb began speaking. And the multitudes marvelled; ¹⁵but, some from among them, said—In Beelzebul, the ruler of the demons, is he casting out the demons; ¹⁶and, others, putting him to the test, a sign out of heaven, were seeking from him. ¹⁷But, he, knowing their thoughts, said unto them—Every kingdom, against itself divided, is laid waste, and, a house, against a house, divided, falleth; ¹⁸And, if, even Satan, against himself hath become divided, how shall his kingdom stand? because ye are saying that, in Beelzebul, am I casting out the demons. ¹⁹But, if, I, in Beelzebul, am casting out the demons, In whom are, your sons, casting them out? Wherefore, they, shall be, your judges. ²⁰But, if, with the finger of God, I, am casting out the demons, then doubtless unawares hath come upon you, the kingdom of God. ²¹Whensoever, the mighty one, armed, may be guarding his own dwelling, in peace, are his goods; ²²But, whensoever, a mightier than he, shall come upon and vanquish him, his panoply, he taketh away, wherein he was trusting, and, his spoils, he distributeth. ²³He that is not with me, is, against me; and, he that gathereth not with me, scattereth. ²⁴Whensoever, the impure spirit, goeth out from the man, it passeth through waterless places, seeking rest; and, not finding it, \u0026 then, \u0026 it saith, I will return unto my house, whence I came out;— ²⁵and, coming, findeth it, \u0026 empty, \u0026 swept, and adorned. ²⁶Then, goeth it, and taketh along with itself, other spirits, more wicked than itself—seven, and, entering in, fixeth its dwelling there; and, the last state of that man, becometh, worse than the first. ²⁷Now it came to pass, while he was saying these things, that a certain woman out of the multitude, lifting up her voice, said unto him—Happy the womb that bare thee! And the breasts which thou didst suck! ²⁸But, he, said—Yea rather!—Happy they who hear the word of God, and observe it! ²⁹And, as the multitudes were thronging together, he began to be saying—This generation, is, a wicked generation: A sign, it is seeking, and, a sign, shall not be given it, save the sign of Jonah. ³⁰For, according as, Jonah, became, unto the Ninevites, a sign, so, shall be, the Son of Man also, unto this generation. ³¹The queen of the south, will rise up, in the judgment, with the men of this generation, and will condemn them; because she came out of the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon,—and lo! something more than Solomon, here. ³²Men of Nineveh, will rise up, in the judgment, with this generation, and will condemn it; because they repented into the proclamation of Jonah,—and lo! something more than Jonah, here. ³³No one, having lighted, a lamp, into a covered place, a putteth it, nor, under the measure; but upon the lampstand, that they who enter may see, the light. ³⁴The lamp of thy body, is thine eye: Whensoever, thine eye, may be, single, even the whole of thy body, is, lighted up; but, whensoever it may be, useless, even thy body, is darkened. ³⁵Be looking to it, therefore, lest, the light that is in thee, be, darkness. ³⁶If, therefore, thy whole body, is lighted up, not having any part darkened, the whole, shall be lighted up, as whensoever, the lamp, with its radiance, may be giving thee light. ³⁷And, when he had spoken, a Pharisee was requesting him that he would dine with him; and, entering, he reclined. ³⁸And, the Pharisee, beholding, marvelled that he was not, first, immersed, before the dinner. ³⁹And the Lord said unto him: Now, ye, the Pharisees, the outside of the cup and of the tray, do make pure; but, your inward part, is full of plunder and wickedness. ⁴⁰Simple ones! Did not, he who made the outside, the inside also, make? ⁴¹Notwithstanding, as to the things within, give alms, and lo! everything, is, pure unto you. ⁴²But alas for you, the Pharisees! because ye tithe the mint, and the rue, and every garden herb, and pass by justice, and the love of God. But, these things, it was biding to do, and, those, not to pass by. ⁴³Alas for you, the Pharisees! because ye love the first seats in the synagogues, and the salutations in the market-places! ⁴⁴Alas for you! because ye are as the secret tombs: even the men that are walking above them, know it not. ⁴⁵And, making answer, one of the Lawyers saith unto him, Teacher! these things, saying, us also, dost thou insult! ⁴⁶And, he, said—And, for you, the lawyers, alas! because ye lade men with burdens hard to be borne, and, yourselves, with one of your fingers, touch not the burdens. ⁴⁷Alas for you! because ye build the tombs of the prophets, and your fathers slew them! ⁴⁸Hence, witnesses, are ye, and find consenting pleasure in the works of your fathers: because, they, indeed, slew them, and, ye, are building, their tombs. ⁴⁹For this cause, the Wisdom of God hath said—I will send forth, unto them, prophets and apostles,—and, some from among them, will they slay, and, some persecute: ⁵⁰That the blood of all the prophets which hath been shed from the foundation of the world, may be sought out, from this generation,— ⁵¹From the blood of Abel, unto the blood of Zachariah who was destroyed betwixt the altar and the house; Yea! I say unto you—It shall be sought out from this generation. ⁵²Alas for you, the lawyers! because ye took away the key of knowledge: yourselves, entered not, and, them who were entering, ye hindered. ⁵³And, when, from thence, he came out, the Scribes and the Pharisees began, with vehemence, to be hemming him in, and trying to make him speak off-hand concerning many things,— ⁵⁴lying in wait for him, to catch something out of his mouth.

12Amongst which things, when the ten thousands of the multitude were gathered together, so that they were treading one upon another, he began to be saying, unto his disciples, first—Be keeping yourselves free from the leaven of the Pharisees, the which is, hypocrisy. ²But, nothing, hath been, covered up, which shall not be uncovered, and hidden, which shall not be made known. ³Because, as many things as, in the darkness, ye have said, in the light, shall be heard; and, what to the ear ye spake, in the chambers, shall be proclaimed on the housetops. ⁴And I say unto you, my friends—Do not be put in fear of them who kill the body, and, after these things, have nothing more uncommon which they can do. ⁵But I will suggest to you, whom ye should fear—Fear him who, after killing, hath authority to cast into gehenna,—Yea, I say unto you—Him, fear ye. ⁶Are not, five sparrows, sold for two farthings? and, not one from among them, hath been forgotten before God. ⁷But, even the hairs of your head, have all been numbered: Be not afraid: many sparrows, ye excel. ⁸And I say unto you—Whosoever shall confess me before men, even the Son of Man, will confess him, before the messengers of God; ⁹But, he who denied me before men, shall be denied before the messengers of God. ¹⁰And, whosoever shall say a word against the Son of Man, it shall be forgiven him; but, unto him who, against the Holy Spirit, speaketh profanely, it shall not be forgiven. ¹¹But, whensoever they shall be bringing you in before the synagogues, and the rulers, and the authorities, do not be anxious how, \ul1 or what\ul0 ye shall answer, or what ye shall say; ¹²For, the Holy Spirit, shall teach you, in that very hour, what ye ought to say. ¹³And one from amongst the multitude said unto him—Teacher! bid my brother divide with me the inheritance. ¹⁴But, he, said unto him—Man! who hath appointed me a judge or divider over you? ¹⁵And he said unto them—Mind and be guarding yourselves from all covetousness; for not, in one's abundance, doth his life spring out of his possessions. ¹⁶And he spake a parable unto them, saying—A certain rich man's estate, bare well. ¹⁷And he began to deliberate within himself, saying—What shall I do? because I have not where I can gather my fruits. ¹⁸And he said—This, will I do,—I will pull down my barns, and, greater ones, build, and gather, there, all my wheat and good things; ¹⁹and will say to my soul—Soul! thou hast many good things \ul1 lying by for many years: be taking thy rest, eat, drink,\ul0 be making merry! ²⁰But God said unto him—Simple one! on this very night, they are asking, thy soul, from thee; The things, then, which thou hast prepared, whose shall they be? ²¹\ul1 So, is he that is laying up treasure for himself, and is not rich, towards God.\ul0 ²²And he said unto his disciples—For this cause, I say unto you,—Be not anxious for the life, what ye shall eat, nor yet for \ul1 your\ul0 body, what ye shall put on; ²³For, the life, is more, than the food, and, the body, than, the clothing. ²⁴Consider well the ravens—That they sow nor, neither do they reap, which have neither chamber nor barn,—and, God, feedeth, them! By how much do, ye, excel, the birds? ²⁵And, who from among you, though anxious, can, unto his stature, add a cubit? ²⁶If then, not even the least thing, ye can do, why, concerning the rest, are ye anxious? ²⁷Consider well the lilies, how they grow: they toil not, neither do they spin, and yet I say unto you—Not even Solomon, in all his glory, was arrayed like one of these. ²⁸But, if God thus adorneth, the grass, which is, in a field, to-day, and, to-morrow, into an oven, is cast, how much rather you, O little-of-faith? ²⁹Ye, therefore, be not seeking what ye shall eat and what ye shall drink, and be not held in suspense; ³⁰For, after all these things, do, the nations of the world, seek,—but, your Father, knoweth that ye need these things. ³¹Notwithstanding, be seeking his kingdom,—and, these things, shall be added unto you. ³²Be not afraid, the dear little flock! for your Father delighteth to give you, the kingdom. ³³Sell your possessions, and give alms, make for yourselves purses that wax not old,—treasure unfailing, in the heavens, where, thief, doth not draw near, and, moth, doth not spoil. ³⁴For, where your treasure is, there, will your heart be also. ³⁵Let your loins be girded, and your lamps burning, ³⁶And, ye yourselves, like unto men awaiting their own lord, once he may break up out of the marriage-feast,—that, when he cometh and knocketh, straightway, they may open unto him. ³⁷Happy those servants, whom the lord, when he cometh, shall find watching! Verily, I say unto you—he will gird himself, and make them recline, and, coming near, will minister unto them. ³⁸And, if, in the second, or if, in the third, watch, he come and find, thus, happy, are, they! ³⁹But, of this, be taking note—Had the householder known, in what hour the thief was coming, he would have watched, and not suffered his house, to be digged through. ⁴⁰Ye, therefore, be getting ready, because, in what hour ye are not thinking, The Son of man cometh! ⁴¹But Peter said—Lord! unto us, this parable, speakest thou? or, even unto all? ⁴²And the Lord said—Who then is the faithful steward, the prudent one, whom the lord will appoint over his body of attendants, to be giving, in due season, the measured allowance of wheat? ⁴³Happy, that servant, whom the lord, when he cometh shall find doing, thus! ⁴⁴Of a truth, I say unto you—Over all his possessions, will he appoint him. ⁴⁵But, if that servant should say in his heart—My lord delayeth to come! and should begin to be striking the youths and the maidens,—to be eating also, and drinking, and making himself drunk, ⁴⁶The lord of that servant, will have come—on a day when he is not expecting, and in an hour when he is not taking note,—and will cut him asunder, and, his part, with the unfaithful, will appoint. ⁴⁷And, that servant, who had come to know the will of his lord, and neither prepared, nor wrought unto his will, shall be beaten with many stripes; ⁴⁸Whereas, he who had not come to know, and did things worthy of stripes, shall be beaten with few stripes. And, every one to whom was given much, much, shall be sought from him; and, he to whom they committed much, for more than common, will they ask him. ⁴⁹Fire, came I to cast upon the earth,—and what can I wish, if, already, it hath been, kindled? ⁵⁰But, an immersion, have I, to be immersed with, and how am I distressed, until it be ended! ⁵¹Suppose ye, that, peace, I am come to give in the earth? Nay, I tell you, but rather division. ⁵²For there shall be, henceforth, five in one house, divided,—three against two, and two against three: ⁵³There shall be divided—Father against son, and son against father, mother against daughter, and daughter against the mother,—mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law, and daughter-in-law against the mother-in-law. ⁵⁴And he went on to say, even unto the multitudes,—Whensoever ye see a cloud springing up from the west, straightway, ye are saying—A thunderstorm is coming! and it happeneth thus. ⁵⁵And, whensoever a south wind, blowing, ye say—A scorching heat, will there be! and it cometh to pass. ⁵⁶Hypocrites! the face of the earth and of the heaven, ye know how to scan; but, this season, how know ye not to scan; ⁵⁷Why, moreover, even from yourselves, judge ye not what is just? ⁵⁸For, as thou art going along with thine adversary unto a ruler, on the way, take pains to get a release from him; lest once he drag thee along unto the judge, and, the judge, deliver thee up to the punisher,—and, the punisher, cast thee into prison: ⁵⁹I tell thee—In nowise shalt thou come out from thence, until, even the last fraction, thou pay!

13Now there were present some, in that very season, bringing tidings to him, concerning the Galileans whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices. ²And, answering, he said unto them—Suppose ye, that, these Galileans, had become, sinners beyond all the Galileans, because, these things, they have suffered? ³Nay! I tell you, but, except ye repent, ye, all, in like manner, shall perish. ⁴Or, those eighteen, upon whom fell the tower in Siloam, and slew them, suppose ye that, they, had become, debtors, beyond all the men who were dwelling in Jerusalem? ⁵Nay! I tell you, but, except ye repent, ye, all, in the same way, shall perish. ⁶And he went on to speak this parable:—A certain man had, a fig-tree, planted in his vineyard, and he came seeking fruit therein, and found none. ⁷And he said unto the vine-dresser—Lo! three years, I come, seeking fruit in this fig-tree, and find none. Cut it down! Why doth it make, even the round useless? ⁸And, he, answering, saith unto him—Sir! let it alone this year also, until such time as I dig about it, and throw in manure,—⁹and if it may bear fruit for the future; ...but, otherwise, certainly, thou shalt cut it down. ¹⁰And he was teaching in one of the synagogues, on the Sabbath. ¹¹And lo! a woman, having a spirit of weakness eighteen years,—and was bowed together, and unable to lift herself up, at all. ¹²And, seeing her, Jesus called her and said to her—Woman! thou art loosed from thy weakness,—¹³and laid on her his hands; and, instantly, she was made straight again, and began glorifying God. ¹⁴But the synagogue-ruler, answering, being greatly displeased that, on the Sabbath, Jesus had healed, began saying unto the multitude—Six days, there are, in which men ought to get their work done; On them, therefore, come and be healed, and, not on the day of rest. ¹⁵The Lord answered him, and said—Hypocrites! Doth not, each one of you, on the Sabbath, loose his ox or ass from the manger, and, leading it away, give it drink? ¹⁶But, this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan had bound, lo! eighteen years, was there not a need—be that she should be loosed from this bond, on the day of rest? ¹⁷And, as he was saying, these, things, all who had been setting themselves against him were being put to shame; and, all the multitude, were rejoicing over all the glorious things which were being brought to pass by him. ¹⁸He went on to say, therefore—Whereunto, is the kingdom of God, like? And, whereunto, shall I liken it? ¹⁹It is, like, unto a grain of mustard seed, which a man took and cast into his own garden; and it grew, and became a tree, and, the birds of heaven, lodged amongst its branches. ²⁰And, again, he said—Whereunto, shall I liken the kingdom of God? ²¹It is, like leaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of flour, until, the whole, was leavened. ²²And he was journeying on, city by city and village by village, and making, progress, unto Jerusalem. ²³And one said unto him—Lord! are they, few, who are being saved? And, he, said unto them—²⁴Be striving to enter through the narrow door; for, many, I say unto you, will seek to enter, and will not be able,—²⁵when once the householder shall rouse himself, and lock the door, and ye begin to stand, outside, and to knock at the door, saying—Lord! open to us; and he shall answer and say unto you—I know you not, whence ye are. ²⁶Then, will ye begin to say—We did eat and drink in thy presence, and, in our broadways, thou didst, teach; ²⁷And he will speak, saying unto you—I know not whence ye are; Depart from me, all workers of unrighteous—²⁸There, will be weeping and gnashing of teeth, as soon as ye see Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and, yourselves, being thrust forth outside. ²⁹And they shall have come from east and west, and from north and south, and be made recline in the kingdom of God. ³⁰And lo! there are, last, who shall be, first, and there are, first, who shall be, last; ³¹In that very hour, came near certain Pharisees, saying unto him, Go forth, and be journeying hence, because, Herod, desireth to slay thee. ³²And he said unto them—Go and tell this fox, Lo! I am casting out demons, and, cures, am I finishing, to-day, and to-morrow,—³³and, on the third, I am to be made perfect. Nevertheless, I must needs, to-day, and tomorrow, and the following, be journeying on, because it is impossible that a prophet perish, outside Jerusalem. ³⁴Jerusalem! Jerusalem! she that slayeth the prophets, and stoneth them that are sent unto her! How often, have I desired to gather together thy children, like as a hen, her own brood, under her wings,—and ye did not desire! ³⁵Lo! your house is left to you. \u1 And\u10 I say unto you—In nowise shall ye see me, until ye say,—Blessed, is he that cometh in the name of the Lord!

¹⁴And it came to pass, when he entered into the house of one of the rulers of the Pharisees, on a Sabbath, to eat bread, that, they, were narrowly watching him. ²And lo! there was, a certain man, who had the dropsy, before him. ³And Jesus, answering, spake unto the Lawyers and Pharisees, saying—Is it allowed, on the Sabbath, to cure, or not? But, they, held their peace. ⁴And taking hold of him he healed and dismissed him,—⁵and, unto them, said—Which of you, shall have a son or an ox that, into a pit, shall fall, and will not straightway pull him up, on the day of rest? ⁶And they could not return an answer unto these things. ⁷And he went on to speak, unto the invited, a parable,—observing how, the first couches, they were choosing; saying unto them—⁸Whosoever thou hast been invited by anyone unto a marriage feast, do not recline on the first couch; lest once, a more honourable than thou, have been invited by him, ⁹and he that invited both thee and him should come, and say unto thee—Give, unto this one, place! and, then, thou shouldst begin, with shame, the last place, to occupy. ¹⁰But, whensoever thou hast been invited, pass on and fall back into the last place, that, whensoever he that hath invited thee shall come, he may say unto thee—Friend! come close up, higher. Then, shalt thou have honour before all who are reclining together with thee. ¹¹Because, everyone who exalteth himself, shall be abased; and, he that abaseth himself, shall be exalted? ¹²Moreover he went on to say, unto him also who had invited him,—Whosoever thou mayest be making a dinner or a supper, do not call thy friends, or thy brothers, or thy kinsfolk, or rich neighbours,—lest once, they also, invite thee in return, and it become a recompense unto thee. ¹³But, whensoever, an entertainment, thou mayest be making, invite the destitute, the tried, the lame, the blind; ¹⁴and, happy, shalt thou be, that they have not wherewith to recompense thee, for it shall be recompensed unto thee, in the resurrection of the righteous. ¹⁵And one of those reclining together, hearing these things, said unto him—Happy, whoever shall eat bread in the kingdom of God! ¹⁶But, he, said unto him—A certain man, was making a great supper, and invited many; ¹⁷and he sent out his servant, at the hour of the supper, to say unto the invited—Be coming! because, even now, is it, ready. ¹⁸And they all began, one after another to excuse themselves. The first, said unto him—A field, have I bought, and have need to go out and see it: I request thee, hold me excused. ¹⁹And, another, said—Five yoke of oxen, have I bought, and am going my way to prove them; I request thee, hold me excused. ²⁰And, another, said—A wife, have I married, and, for this cause, I cannot come! ²¹And, going near, the servant reported unto his lord these things. Then, provoked to anger, the master of the house said unto his servant—Go out quickly, into the broadways and streets of the city,—and, the destitute, and tried, and blind, and lame, bring thou in here. ²²And the servant said—Lord! what thou didst order, hath been done; and, yet, there is, room. ²³And the lord said unto the servant—Go out among the highways and fences, and compel them to come in; that my house may be filled. ²⁴For, I say unto you—Not one of those men who had been invited, shall taste of my supper. ²⁵And there were journeying together with him many multitudes; and, turning, he said unto them—²⁶If anyone cometh unto me, and hateth not his own father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brothers, and sisters, further also, even his own life, he cannot be my disciple. ²⁷Whoever beareth not his own cross, and cometh after me, cannot be my disciple. ²⁸For, who from among you, wishing to build a tower, doth not first sit down and count the cost,—whether he hath sufficient for completion; ²⁹lest once, he having laid a foundation, and not being able to finish, all who are looking on, should begin to mock at him, ³⁰saying—This man, began to build, and was not able to finish! ³¹Or, what king, moving on to encounter, another king, in battle, will not sit down first and take counsel, whether he is able, with ten thousand, to meet him who, with twenty thousand, is coming against him. ³²And, if not, by any means, while he is yet afar off, he sendeth, an embassy, and requesteth the conditions of peace. ³³Thus, therefore, everyone from amongst you, who doth not bid adieu unto all his own possessions, cannot be my disciple. ³⁴Good, therefore is the salt; but, if, even the salt, become tasteless, wherewith shall it be seasoned? ³⁵Neither for land nor for manure, is it, fit: outside, they cast it! He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

15But all the tax-collectors and the sinners were, unto him, drawing near, to be hearkening unto him; ²and both the Pharisees and the Scribes were murmuring, saying, This man, unto sinners, giveth welcome, and eateth with them. ³And he spake unto them this parable, saying—⁴What man from among you, having a hundred sheep, and losing, from among them, one, doth not leave the ninety-nine in the wilderness and go his way after the lost one, until he find it? ⁵And, finding it, he layeth it upon his shoulders, rejoicing; ⁶and, coming unto his house, calleth together the friends and the neighbours, saying unto them—Rejoice with me! because I have found my sheep that was lost! ⁷I say unto you—Thus, joy in heaven, will there be, over one sinner repenting, rather than over ninety-nine righteous persons, who indeed have, no need, of repentance. ⁸Or, what woman, having, ten pieces of silver, if she lose one piece, doth not light a lamp, and sweep the house, and seek carefully, until she find it? ⁹And, having found it, she calleth together her female friends and neighbours, saying—Rejoice with me! because I have found the piece of silver which I had lost. ¹⁰Thus, I say unto you, there ariseth joy in presence of the messengers of God, over one sinner repenting. ¹¹And he said—A certain man, had two sons. ¹²And the younger of them said unto the father—Father! give me the share that falleth to me, of what there is. And, he, divided unto them the living. ¹³And, after not many days, the younger son, gathering all together, left home for a country far away, and, there, squandered his substance with riotous living. ¹⁴And, when he had spent all, there arose a mighty famine throughout that country,—and, he, began to be in want. ¹⁵And he went his way, and joined himself unto one of the citizens of that country, and he sent him into his fields to be feeding swine. ¹⁶And he used to long to be filled with the pods which the swine were eating; and, no man, was giving unto him. ¹⁷But coming, to himself, he said—How many hired servants of my father, have bread enough and to spare, whereas, I, with famine, here, am perishing! ¹⁸I will arise, and go unto my father, and will say unto him—Father! I have sinned against heaven, and before thee: ¹⁹No longer, am I worthy to be called a son of thine,—Make me as one of thy hired servants. And he arose, and came unto his own father. ²⁰Now, while yet he was holding afar off, his father saw him, and was moved with compassion, and, running, fell upon his neck, and tenderly kissed him. ²¹And the son said unto him—Father! I have sinned against heaven, and before thee: No longer, am I worthy to be called a son of thine,—\u01 make me as one of thy hired servants.\u01 ²²But the father said unto his servants—Quick! bring forth a robe—the best! and put on him, and get out a ring for his hand, and sandals for his feet. ²³And be bringing the fatted calf, sacrifice! and let us eat and make merry: ²⁴Because, this my son, was, dead, and hath come to life again, was lost, and is found. And they began to be making merry. ²⁵But his elder son was in a field; and, as, in coming, he drew near unto the house, he heard music and dancing,—²⁶and, calling near one of the youths, he inquired what these things, could be. ²⁷And, he, said unto him,—Thy brother, hath come, and thy father hath sacrificed the fatted calf, because, safe and sound, hath he received him back. ²⁸But he was provoked to anger, and would not go in. And, his father, coming out, began to entreat him. ²⁹But, he, answering said unto his father—Lo! so many years as these, do I serve thee, and, at no time, a commandment of thine, have I transgressed,—And, unto me, at no time, hast thou given a kid, that, with my friends, I might make merry; ³⁰But, when, this thy son, who had devoured thy living with harlots, came, thou didst sacrifice, for him, the fatted calf; ³¹But, he, said unto him—Child! thou, always, art, with me, and, all that is mine, is, thine; ³²But, to make merry and rejoice, there was need, because, this thy brother—was, dead, and hath come to life again, and was lost, and is found.

16And he went on to say, unto his disciples also,—There was, a certain rich man, who had a steward, and, the same, was accused to him as squandering his goods. ²And, accosting him, he said unto him—What is this I hear of thee? Render the account of thy stewardship, for thou canst no longer be steward. ³And the steward said within himself—What shall I do, because my lord taketh away the stewardship from me? Dig, I cannot: to beg, I am ashamed. ⁴I know what I will do, that, when I am removed out of the stewardship, they may welcome me into their own houses. ⁵And, calling unto him each one of the debtors of his own lord, he was saying unto the first,—How much owest thou my lord? ⁶And, he, said—A hundred baths of oil. And, he, said unto him—Kindly take thine accounts, and, sitting down, make haste and write—Fifty! ⁷After that, unto another, he said—And how much owest, thou? And, he, said—A hundred homers of wheat. He saith unto him—Kindly take thine accounts, and write—Eighty! ⁸And the lord praised the unrighteous steward, in that with forethought he acted:—Because, the sons of this age, have more forethought than the sons of light, respecting their own generation. ⁹And, I, unto you, say—For yourselves, make ye friends, with the unjust Riches, in order that, as soon as it shall fail, they may welcome you into the age-abiding tents. ¹⁰The faithful in least, in much also, is, faithful, and, he that in least is unrighteous, in much also, is, unrighteous. ¹¹If therefore, in the unjust Riches ye proved unfaithful, the true, who, unto you, will entrust? ¹²And, if, in what was another's, ye proved unfaithful, your own, who will give unto you? ¹³No domestic, can, unto two masters, be in service; for either, the one, he will hate, and, the other, love, or, unto the one, he will hold, and, the other, despise: Ye cannot, unto God, be in service, and unto Riches. ¹⁴Now the Pharisees, who were, lovers of money, were hearing all these things, and were openly sneering at him. ¹⁵And he said unto them—Ye, are they who justify themselves before men, but, God, knoweth your hearts; because, that which amongst men is lofty, is an abomination before God. ¹⁶The law and the prophets, were until John,—from that time, the good news of the kingdom of God, is being proclaimed, and, everyone, thereinto, is forcing his way. ¹⁷But it is, easier, for heaven and earth to pass away, than that, of the law, one little point, should fail. ¹⁸Every one divorcing his wife and marrying another, committeth adultery; and, he that marrieth a woman divorced from a husband, committeth adultery. ¹⁹Now, a certain man, was rich, and he used to clothe himself with purple and fine linen, making merry day by day, brilliantly. ²⁰And, a certain beggar, by name Lazarus, used to be cast near his gate, full of sores, ²¹and to long to be fed from the crumbs that fell from the table of the rich man: nay! even, the dogs, used to come and lick his sores. ²²And it came to pass that the beggar died, and was carried away by the messengers, into the bosom of Abraham. And, the rich man also, died, and was buried. ²³And, in hades, lifting up his eyes, being in torments, he seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom. ²⁴And, he, calling out, said—Father Abraham! have mercy upon me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue,—because I am in anguish in this flame. ²⁵But Abraham said—Child! remember—That thou didst duly received thy good things in thy life, and, Lazarus, in like manner, the evil things; but, now, here, he is comforted, and, thou, art in anguish. ²⁶And, besides all these things, betwixt us and you, a great chasm, hath been fixed,—so that, they who might wish to cross over from hence unto you, should not be able, nor any, from thence unto us, be crossing over. ²⁷But he said—I request thee then, father, that thou wouldst send him unto my father's house,—²⁸for I have five brethren;—that he may solemnly testify unto them, lest, they also, come into this place of torment. ²⁹But Abraham saith—They have Moses and the Prophets: Let them hearken unto them. ³⁰But, he, said—Nay! father Abraham, but, if one, from the dead, should go unto them, they would repent. ³¹But he said unto him—If, unto Moses and the Prophets, they do not hearken, neither, if one, from among the dead, should arise, would they be persuaded.

17And he said unto his disciples:—It is, impossible, that occasions of stumbling should not come, notwithstanding, alas! for him through whom they do come: ²It profiteth him, if, a mill-stone, is hung about his neck, and he is cast into the sea, than that he cause, one, of these little ones, to stumble. ³Be taking heed to yourselves,—If thy brother sin, rebuke him, and, if he repent, forgive him; ⁴Even if, seven times a day, he sin against thee, and, seven times, turn to thee, saying, I repent, thou shalt forgive him. ⁵And the apostles said unto the Lord—Bestow on us faith! ⁶And the Lord said—If ye have faith like a grain of mustard-seed, ye should be saying unto \ull this\ul0 mulberry-tree—Be uprooted! and be planted in the sea,—and it should obey you. ⁷But, who from among you, having, a servant, plowing or keeping sheep, when he hath come in out of the field, will say to him—Straightway, come, and recline;—⁸on the contrary, will not say to him—Make somewhat ready, that I may dine,—and, girding thyself, be ministering unto me, until I have eaten and drunk; and, after these things, thou, shalt eat and drink? ⁹Doth he offer thanks unto the servant, because he hath done the things enjoined? ¹⁰Thus, ye also, when ye have done all the things enjoined upon you, say—Unprofitable servants, are we,—What we were bound to do, we have done! ¹¹And it came to pass, during the journey unto Jerusalem, that, he, was going through the midst of Samaria and Galilee. ¹²And, as he was entering into a certain village, there met him ten leprous men, who stood still, afar off; ¹³and, they, lifted up a voice, saying—Jesus! Master! have mercy on us! ¹⁴And, beholding, he said unto them—Go your way, and show yourselves unto the priests. And it came to pass, as they withdrew, they were cleansed. ¹⁵But, one from among them, beholding that he was healed, returned, with a loud voice, glorifying God,—¹⁶and fell prostrate at his feet, giving him thanks; and, he, was a Samaritan. ¹⁷And Jesus, answering, said—Were not, the ten, cleansed? \ull but,\ul0 where, are, the nine? ¹⁸Have none been found returning to give glory to God, save this one of another race? ¹⁹And he said unto him—Arise and go thy way: thy faith, hath saved thee. ²⁰And, being questioned by the Pharisees, When cometh the kingdom of God? he answered them and said—The kingdom of God cometh not with narrow watching; ²¹Neither shall they say—Lo, here!

or, There. For lo! the kingdom of God, is, among you. ²²But he said unto the disciples—There will come days—when ye will long to see, one of the days of the Son of Man, and shall not see. ²³And they will say unto you, Lo there! or, Lo here! Do not \u005C\u005C depart, and do not \u005C\u005C pursue. ²⁴For, just as, the lightning, flashing out of the one part under heaven, unto the other part under heaven, shineth, so, shall be, the Son of Man. ²⁵But, first, he must needs suffer, many things, and be rejected by this generation. ²⁶And, as it came to pass in the days of Noah, so, will it be, even in the days of the Son of Man: ²⁷They were eating, they were drinking, they were marrying, they were being given in marriage,—until the day that Noah entered into the ark, and the flood came, and destroyed them all. ²⁸In like manner, as it came to pass in the days of Lot, They were eating, they were drinking, they were buying, they were selling, they were planting, they were building,—²⁹But, on the day Lot came out from Sodom, it rained fire and brimstone from heaven, and destroyed them all:—³⁰According to the same things, will it be on the day the Son of Man is revealed. ³¹In that day, he that shall be on the housetop, and his utensils in the house, let him not go down, to take them away! And, he that is in the field, in like manner, let him not turn unto the things behind, ³²Bear in mind the wife of Lot! Whosoever shall seek to make his life his own, shall lose it, ³³But, whosoever shall lose it, shall give it a living birth. ³⁴I say unto you—On the selfsame night, there shall be two men on \u005C\u005C one \u005C\u005C bed,—the one, shall be taken near, and, the other, left behind; ³⁵There shall be two women grinding together,—the one, shall be taken near, and, the other, left behind. ³⁶³⁷And, answering, they say unto him—Where, Lord? And, he, said unto them—Where the body is, there, the vultures also, will be gathered together.

¹⁸And he was speaking a parable unto them, as to its being needful for them always to pray, and not be faint-hearted; ²saying—A certain judge, there was in a certain city,—having, for God, no reverence, and, for man, no respect. ³And, a widow, there was, in that city; and she kept coming unto him, saying—Vindicate me from mine adversary! ⁴And he was unwilling for a time; but, after these things, he said within himself—Although, neither God, I reverence, nor man, I respect, ⁵Yet, if only because this widow annoyeth me, I will vindicate her,—lest, persistently coming, she wholly wear me out. ⁶And the Lord said—Hear ye what, the unrighteous judge saith;—⁷And shall, God, in any wise not execute the vindication of his chosen ones, who are crying out to him day and night, although he beareth long with regard to them? ⁸I tell you—He will execute their vindication, quickly! nevertheless, though, the Son of Man, do come, will he, after all, find the faith on the earth? ⁹And he spake, even unto certain who were confident in themselves that they were righteous, and were despising the rest, this parable:—¹⁰Two men, went up into the temple to pray, one, a Pharisee, and, the other, a tax-collector. ¹¹The Pharisee, taking his stand, these things unto himself was praying: O God! I thank thee, that I am not like the rest of men,—extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or, even as this tax-collector; ¹²I fast twice in the week, I give a tenth of whatsoever things I gain! ¹³But, the tax-collector, afar off, standing,—would not so much as lift up, his eyes, unto heaven, but kept smiting his own breast saying—O God! be propitiated unto me, the sinner! ¹⁴I tell you—This one went down justified, unto his house, rather than that one; because, every one who exalteth himself, shall be abased, but, he that abaseth himself, shall be exalted? ¹⁵And they were bringing unto him, even the babes, that he might touch, them; but the disciples, seeing it, began to rebuke them. ¹⁶But, Jesus, called them near, saying—Suffer, the children, to be coming unto me, and do not hinder them; for, of such, is the kingdom of God. ¹⁷Verily I say unto you—Whosoever shall not welcome the kingdom of God, as a child, in nowise shall enter thereinto. ¹⁸And a certain, ruler, questioned him, saying—Good Teacher! by doing what, shall I inherit life age-abiding? ¹⁹But Jesus said to him—Why, callest thou me, good? None, is good, save one—God. ²⁰The commandments, thou knowest:—Do not commit adultery, Do not commit murder, Do not steal, Do not bear false witness,—Honour thy father and mother, ²¹And, he, said—All these things, have I kept from my youth. ²²And Jesus, hearing, said unto him—Yet one thing, unto thee, is lacking: Whatsoever thou hast, sell, and distribute unto the destitute,—and thou shalt have treasure in \u005C\u005C the \u005C\u005C heavens; and come! be following me. ²³But, he, hearing these things, became, encompassed with grief; for he was rich exceedingly. ²⁴And Jesus, beholding him, said—With what difficulty, shall, they who have money, enter, into the kingdom of God. ²⁵For it is, easier, for a camel, to enter, through the eye of a needle, than for, a rich man, to enter, into the kingdom of God. ²⁶And they who heard said—Who, then, can be saved? ²⁷And, he, said—The things impossible with men, are, possible with God. ²⁸And Peter said—Lo! we, have left our own possessions, and followed thee! ²⁹And, he, said unto them—Verily, I say unto you—No one, is there, who hath left—house, or wife, or brethren, or parents, or children,—for the sake of the kingdom of God; ³⁰who shall in anywise not receive manifold in this season, and, in the age that is coming, life age-abiding. ³¹And, taking aside the twelve, he said unto them—Lo! we are going up unto Jerusalem, and all the things will be finished, which have been written through means of the prophets, respecting the Son of Man; ³²For he will be delivered up unto the nations, and be mocked, and insulted, and spit upon,—³³and, having scourged him, they will slay him, and, on the third day, will, he, arise. ³⁴And, they, not one of these things, understood, and this saying was hidden from them, and the could not comprehend the things spoken. ³⁵And it came to pass, as he was drawing near unto Jericho, a certain blind man, was sitting beside the road, begging. ³⁶And, hearing unto a multitude moving along, he enquired, what this, might be. ³⁷And they told him—Jesus of Nazareth, is passing by! ³⁸And he cried aloud, saying—Jesus, son of David! have mercy upon me! ³⁹And, they that were going before, began to rebuke him, that he might hold his peace. But, he, by so much the more, was crying out—O Son of David! have mercy upon me! ⁴⁰And, standing still, Jesus commanded him to be led unto him; and, when he had drawn near, he questioned him—⁴¹What desirest thou, I should do unto thee? And, he, said—Lord! ...that I may recover sight! ⁴²And, Jesus, said unto him—Recover sight! Thy faith, hath saved thee. ⁴³And, instantly, he recovered sight, and began to follow him, glorifying God. And, all the people, beholding, gave praise unto God.

19And, having entered, he was passing through Jericho; ²and lo! a man, by name called Zacchaeus, and, he, was a chief tax-collector, and \u01 he\u00 was rich. ³And he was seeking to see Jesus, what sort of man he was, and could not for the multitude, because, in stature, he was, small. ⁴And, running forward unto the front, he got up a sycamore-tree, that he might see him; for, by that way, was he about to pass. ⁵And, as he came up to the place, looking up, Jesus said unto him—Zacchaeus! make haste, and come down; For, to-day, in thy house, I must needs abide. ⁶And he made haste, and came down, and received him joyfully. ⁷And all, when they beheld, began to murmur, saying—With a sinful man, hath he gone in to lodge! ⁸But, taking his stand, Zacchaeus said unto the Lord—Lo! the half of my possessions, Lord, unto the destitute, I give; and, if, from anyone, I have taken aught by false accusation, I give back fourfold. ⁹And Jesus said unto him—This day, salvation, unto this house, hath come,—for that, he too, is, a son of Abraham; ¹⁰For the Son of Man came, to seek and to save what was lost. ¹¹And, because they were hearing these things, he added and spake a parable, because of his being near Jerusalem, and their supposing that, instantly, was the kingdom of God to shine forth. ¹²He said, therefore—A certain man, of noble birth, went into a country far away, to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return. ¹³And, calling ten servants of his own, he gave unto them ten minas, and said unto them—Do business, till I come. ¹⁴But, his citizens, hated him, and sent off an embassy after him, saying—We desire not, this, man, to be made king over us! ¹⁵And it came to pass, when he returned, having received the kingdom, that he bade be called unto him these servants, to whom he had given the silver, that he might take note, what business they had done. ¹⁶And the first came near, saying—Lord! thy mina, hath made, ten minas. ¹⁷And he said to him—Well done!

good servant. Because, in a very small thing, thou hast been, faithful, have thou authority over, ten cities. ¹⁸And the second came, saying—Thy mina, lord, hath made five minas. ¹⁹And he said, to him also, And, thou, be over five cities. ²⁰And, the other, came, saying—Lord, lo! thy mina, which I kept lying by in a napkin; ²¹For I was afraid of thee, because, a harsh man, thou art,—Thou takest up, what thou layedst not down, and reapest, what thou sowedst not! ²²He saith to him—Out of thy mouth, do I judge thee, O wicked servant! Thou knewest that, I, a harsh man, am,—taking up, what I laid not down, and reaping, what I did not sow; ²³Wherefore, then, didst thou not place my silver upon a \u01 money-changer's\u00 table, and, I, when I came, with interest might have exacted it? ²⁴And, unto the by-standers, he said—Take, from him, the mina, and give unto him that hath, the ten minas;—²⁵And they said to him, Lord! he hath ten minas;—²⁶I tell you—Unto everyone that hath, shall be given, whereas, from him that hath not, even what he hath, shall be taken away. ²⁷But, these mine enemies who desired not that I should be made king over them, bring ye here, and slay them outright before me. ²⁸And, having said these things, he was moving on in front, going up into Jerusalem. ²⁹And it came to pass, as he drew near unto Bethphage, and Bethany, unto the mount which is called the Mount of Olives, he sent off two of his disciples, ³⁰saying—Go your way unto the opposite village, in which, as ye are entering, ye shall find a colt, bound, whereon, no man, hath, ever sat,—and, having loosed him, bring him. ³¹And, if any one question you—Wherefore are ye loosing him? thus, shall ye say—His Lord, hath, need. ³²And they who were sent, departing, found as he had said to them. ³³And, as they were loosing the colt, his lords said unto them—Why are ye loosing the colt? ³⁴And, they, said—His Lord, hath, need. ³⁵And they brought him unto Jesus; and, throwing their mantles over the colt, they seated Jesus thereon. ³⁶And, as he moved along, they were spreading their own mantles in the way. ³⁷And, when he was drawing near, already, unto the descent of the Mount of Olives, one-and-all the throng of the disciples began joyfully to be praising God with a loud voice, concerning all the mighty works which they had seen; ³⁸saying—Blessed is he that cometh... The king! In the name of the Lord! In heaven, peace! And glory in the highest! ³⁹And, certain of the Pharisees from the multitude, said unto him—Teacher! rebuke thy disciples. ⁴⁰And he answered and said—I tell you—If, these, shall hold their peace, the stones, will cry out. ⁴¹And, when he drew near, beholding the city, he wept over it, saying—⁴²If thou hadst got to know, in this day, even thou, the conditions of peace... But, now, are they hid from thine eyes: ⁴³Because days will have come upon thee, that thine enemies will throw around a rampart against thee, and enclose thee; and hem thee in from every side,—⁴⁴And will level thee with the ground, and thy children within thee, and will not leave, stone on stone, within thee: because thou didst not get to know the season of thy visitation. ⁴⁵And, entering into the temple, he began to be casting out them who were selling; ⁴⁶saying unto them—It is written, And, my house, shall be, a house of prayer; but, ye, have made, it, a den of robbers. ⁴⁷And he was teaching day by day in the temple; but, the High-priests and the Scribes, also the chiefs of the people, were seeking to destroy him,—⁴⁸and could not find what they might do, for, the people, one and all, were hanging upon him, as they hearkened.

²⁰And it came to pass, on one of the days, as he was teaching the people in the temple, and telling the good tidings, that the High-priests and the Scribes, with the Elders, came upon him,—²and spake, saying, unto him—Tell us, by what authority, these things, thou art doing, and, who, is it, that gave thee this authority. ³And answering, he said unto them—I too, will question, you, as to a matter,—and tell me! ⁴The immersion of John, Of heaven, was it, or of men? ⁵And they deliberated together by themselves, saying—If we say, Of heaven, he will say, Wherefore did ye not believe him? ⁶But, if we say, Of men, the people, one and all, will stone us, for, persuaded, they are, that, John, was, a prophet. ⁷And they answered, that they knew not whence. ⁸And, Jesus, said unto them—Neither do, I, tell, you, by what authority, these things, I am doing. ⁹And he began, unto the people, to be speaking this parable:—A man, planted a vineyard, and let it out to husbandmen, and went from home for a long time. ¹⁰And, in due season, he sent unto the husbandmen, a servant, that, of the fruit of the vineyard, they might give him; but, the husbandmen, having beaten him, sent him away empty. ¹¹And he, further, sent another servant; but, they, beating, that one also, and dishonouring him, sent him away, empty. ¹²And he, further, sent, a third; but, they, bruising, this one also, thrust him out. ¹³And the lord of the vineyard said—What shall I do? I will send my son, the beloved,—It may be, that, him, they will respect. ¹⁴But he husbandmen, seeing him, began to deliberate one with another, saying—This, is, the heir: Let us slay him, that, ours, may be, the inheritance. ¹⁵And, thrusting him forth outside the vineyard, they slew him. What, then, will the lord of the vineyard do unto them? ¹⁶He will come, and destroy these husbandmen, and give the vineyard unto others. But, when they heard it, they said—Far be it! ¹⁷But, he, looking at them, said—What, then, is this that is written,—A stone which the builders' rejected, The same, hath become, head of the corner? ¹⁸Every one who falleth on that stone, will be sorely bruised, but, on whomsoever it shall fall, it will utterly destroy him. ¹⁹And the Scribes and the High-priests sought to thrust on him their hands, in that very hour; and feared the people; for they perceived that, against them, spake he this parable.

²⁰And, watching narrowly, they sent forth suborned men, feigning themselves to be, righteous, that they might lay hold of a word of his, so as to deliver him up unto the rule and the authority of the governor. ²¹And they questioned him, saying—Teacher! we know that, rightly, thou speakest and teachest, and respectest no person, but, in truth, the way of God, dost teach: ²²Is it allowable for us to give, unto Caesar, tribute, or not? ²³But, observing their villainy, he said unto them—²⁴Shew me a denary. Of whom, hath it an image and inscription? And, they, said—Of Caesar. ²⁵And, he, said unto them—Well then! render the things of Caesar, unto Caesar, and the things of God, unto God. ²⁶And they could not lay hold of the saying, before the people; and, marvelling at his answer, they held their peace. ²⁷But there came near certain of the Sadducees, they who say, Resurrection, there is none! and questioned him, ²⁸saying—Teacher! Moses, wrote for us, If one's brother die, having a wife, and, he, be, childless, that his brother shall take the wife, and raise up seed unto his brother. ²⁹Seven brethren, therefore, there were,—and, the first, taking a wife, died childless, ³⁰And, the second, ³¹and the third, took her,—yea, likewise, even the seven; They left no children, and died: ³²Later on, the woman also, died. ³³The woman, therefore, in the resurrection, Of which of them, doth she become wife? for, the seven, had her to wife. ³⁴And Jesus said unto them—The sons of this age, marry, and are given in marriage,—³⁵But, they who have been accounted worthy, that age, to obtain, and the resurrection that is from among the dead, neither marry, nor are given in marriage; ³⁶For they cannot, even die any more,—for, equal unto messengers, are they, and are, sons of God, Of the resurrection, being, sons. ³⁷But, that the dead do rise, even Moses, disclosed at the bush, when he calleth the Lord—The God of Abraham and God of Isaac and God of Jacob: ³⁸Now, God, he is not, of the dead, but, of the living,—for, all, unto him, do live. ³⁹And certain of the Scribes, answering, said—Teacher! Well, hast thou spoken. ⁴⁰For, no longer, were they daring to ask him any questions. ⁴¹And he said unto them—How say they, that, the Christ, is, David's Son? ⁴²For, David himself, saith, in the book of Psalms: Said the Lord, unto my Lord, Sit thou at my right hand, ⁴³Until I make thy foes thy footstool. ⁴⁴David, therefore, calleth, him Lord: How, then, his son, is he? ⁴⁵And, all the people hearing, he said unto the disciples: ⁴⁶Be taking heed of the Scribes—Who desire to walk about in long robes, and are fond of salutations in the markets, and first seats in the synagogues, and first couches in the chief meals,—⁴⁷Who devour the houses of widows, and, for a show, are a long time at prayer. These, shall receive, a heavier sentence.

²¹And, looking up, he saw the, rich, who were casting their gifts into the treasury,—²and he saw a certain poor widow, casting in thither two mites; ³and he said—

Of a truth, I say unto you—This destitute widow, more than they all, hath cast in; ⁴For, all these, out of their superfluity, have cast in among the gifts, but, she, out of her deficiency, all the living that she had, hath cast in. ⁵And, certain saying, of the temple—With beautiful stones and offerings, hath it been adorned! he said—⁶As to these things, which ye are looking upon, There will come days, in which there will not be left here, stone upon stone, which will not be taken down. ⁷And they questioned him, saying—Teacher! when, therefore, will these things be? And, what the sign, when these things shall be about to come to pass? ⁸And, he, said—Be taking heed ye be not deceived; for, many, will come upon my name, saying—I, am he,—and—The season, hath drawn near! Do not go after them. ⁹But, whensoever ye shall hear of wars and revolutions, be not terrified,—for these things, must needs, come to pass first, but, not immediately, is the end. ¹⁰Then, said he unto them—There will rise up, nation against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; ¹¹As well great earthquakes, as also, in places, pestilences and famines, will there be, as well objects of terror, as also, from heaven, great signs, will there be. ¹²And before, all these things, they will thrust upon you their hands, and persecute you, delivering you up into the synagogues and prisons,—when ye have been led away before kings and governors, for the sake of my name; ¹³But it shall turn out to you for a witness. ¹⁴Settle, then, in your hearts, not to be studying beforehand, how to make defense; ¹⁵For, I, will give you a mouth and wisdom, which one-and-all who are setting themselves against, you shall be unable to withstand or gainsay. ¹⁶But ye will be delivered up, even by parents, and brethren, and kinsfolk, and friends, and they will put to death some from among you; ¹⁷And ye will be hated by all, because of my name: ¹⁸And, a hair of your head, in nowise shall perish,—¹⁹By your endurance, shall ye gain your lives for a possession. ²⁰But whensoever ye shall see Jerusalem, encompassed by armies, then, know, that her desolation hath drawn near. ²¹Then they who are in Judaea, let them flee into the mountains, and they who are in her midst, let them go forth,—and they who are in the fields, let them not enter into her; ²²For, days of avenging, are, these, for all the things written to be fulfilled. ²³Alas! for the women with child, and for them who are giving suck, in those days; for there will be great distress upon the land, and anger against this people. ²⁴And they will fall by the edge of the sword, and be carried away captive into all the nations, and, Jerusalem, shall be trodden down by the nations, until the seasons of the nations shall be fulfilled \u0026 shall be\u0026 . ²⁵And there will be signs in sun, and moon, and stars, and, on the earth, anguish of nations in embarrassment—sea and surge resounding,—²⁶Men fainting, from fear and expectation of the things overtaking the inhabited earth. For, the powers of the heavens, will be shaken. ²⁷And, then, will they see the Son of Man—coming in a cloud, with great power and glory. ²⁸And, when these things are beginning to come to pass, unbend and lift up your heads, because that, your redemption, is drawing near. ²⁹And he spake a parable unto them: See the fig-tree, and all the trees,—³⁰Whensoever they have already budded, seeing it, of yourselves, ye observe that, already near, is, the summer: ³¹Thus, ye also, whensoever ye shall see, these, things coming to pass, observe ye, that, near, is the kingdom of God! ³²Verily, I say unto you—In nowise shall this generation pass away, until, all things, shall happen: ³³Heaven and earth, will pass away, but, my word, in nowise will pass away. ³⁴But be taking heed unto yourselves, lest once your hearts be made heavy—with debauch and drunkenness and anxieties about livelihood, and that day come upon you suddenly, ³⁵as a snare,—For it will come in by surprise, upon all them that are dwelling on the face of all the earth. ³⁶But be watching in every season, making supplication, that ye may gain full vigour, to escape all these things that are about to be coming to pass, and to stand before the Son of Man. ³⁷And he was, by day, in the temple, teaching; but, by night, going forth, he was lodging in the mount which is called the Mount of Olives. ³⁸And, all the people, were coming at day-break unto him, in the temple, to be hearkening unto him.

22And the feast of the unleavened bread, which is called a Passover, was drawing near. ²And the High-priests and the Scribes were seeking, how they might get rid of him; for they feared the people. ³But Satan entered into Judas, him called Iscariot, being of the number of the twelve; ⁴and, departing, he conversed with the High-priests and Captains, as to how, unto them, he might deliver him up. ⁵And they rejoiced, and bargained with him to give him, silver; ⁶and he freely consented, and began seeking a good opportunity for delivering him up, in the absence of a multitude, unto them. ⁷Now the day of the unleavened bread came,—on which it was needful to be sacrificing the passover. ⁸And he sent forth Peter and John, saying—Go, and make ready, for us, the passover, that we may eat. ⁹And, they, said unto him—Where wilt thou, we should make ready? ¹⁰And, he, said unto them—Lo! when ye have entered into the city, there will meet you a man, bearing, an earthen-jar of water: follow him into the house into which he is entering. ¹¹And ye shall say unto the master of the house—The teacher saith unto thee, where is the lodging, where, the passover, with my disciples, I may eat? ¹²And, he, unto you, will shew, a large upper room, spread: there, make ready. ¹³And, departing, they found according as he had said unto them, and made ready the passover. ¹⁴And, when the hour arrived, he reclined, and the apostles with him. ¹⁵And he said unto them—I have greatly desired, to eat, this passover, with you before I suffer; ¹⁶For, I say unto you—In nowise shall I eat it, until it have been fulfilled in the kingdom of God. ¹⁷And, accepting a cup, giving thanks, he said—Take this, and divide among yourselves; ¹⁸For, I say unto you—In nowise shall I drink henceforth of the fruit of the vine, until, the kingdom of God, shall come. ¹⁹And, taking a loaf, he gave thanks, and brake, and gave unto them, saying—This is my body which in your behalf is being given: this, be ye doing, in remembrance, of me. ²⁰And—the cup, in like manner, after the taking of supper, saying—This cup, is the new covenant in my blood, which, in your behalf, is to be poured out. ²¹Nevertheless, lo! the hand of him who is delivering me up, is with me upon the table. ²²Because, the Son of Man, indeed, according to what is marked out, goeth his way; nevertheless, alas! for that man through whom he is being delivered up. ²³And, they, began to be enquiring together, among themselves, as to which, then, it could be, from among them, who, this thing, was about to perpetrate! ²⁴And it came to pass that there was, a rivalry also, among them, as to which of them seemed to be greater than the rest. ²⁵And, he, said unto them—The kings of the nations, lord it over them, and, they who wield authority over them, benefactors, are called. ²⁶But, ye, not so! On the contrary—the greater among you, Let him become as, the younger, and, he that governeth, as, he that ministereth, ²⁷For which is greater—he that reclineth? or he that ministereth? Is not he that reclineth? But, I, am, in your midst, as he that ministereth, ²⁸Ye, however, are they who have remained throughout with me in my temptations; ²⁹And, I, covenant unto you—as my Father hath covenanted unto me—a kingdom, ³⁰That ye may eat and drink, at my table, in my kingdom, and sit upon thrones, judging, the twelve tribes of Israel. ³¹Simon! Simon! lo! Satan, hath claimed you, to sift as wheat; ³²But, I, have entreated for thee, that thy faith may not fail. And, thou, once thou hast turned, strengthen thy brethren. ³³But, he, said unto him—Lord! with thee, am I, ready, both into prison and unto death, to be going. ³⁴And, he, said: I tell thee, Peter—A cock will not crow this day, until, thrice, thou deny that thou knowest me. ³⁵And he said unto them—When I sent you forth, without purse or satchel or sandals, of anything, came ye short? And, they, said—Of nothing! ³⁶And he said unto them—But, now, he that hath a purse, let him take it, in like manner also, a satchel; and, he that hath nothing, let him sell his mantle, and buy a sword! ³⁷For I say unto you—This that is written, must needs be completed in me,—And, with lawless ones, was he reckoned; for, even that which concerneth me, hath, completion. ³⁸And, they, said—Lord, lo! two swords, here! And, he, said unto them—'Tis, enough! ³⁹And going out, he went, according to his custom, unto the Mount of Olives; and the disciples \ul1 also\ul0 followed him. ⁴⁰And, coming up to the place, he said unto them—Be praying, lest ye enter into temptation. ⁴¹And, he, was torn from them about a stone's throw; and, bending his knees, he began to pray, ⁴²saying—Father! if thou please, bear aside this cup from me. Nevertheless, not my will, but thine, be accomplished. ⁴³And there appeared unto him a messenger from heaven, strengthening him,—⁴⁴and, coming to be in an agony, more intensely, was he praying; and his perspiration became, as if great drops of blood, falling upon the ground. ⁴⁵And, arising from prayer, he came unto his disciples, and found them falling asleep by reason of their grief; ⁴⁶and he said unto them—Why are ye slumbering? Arise! and be praying, lest ye enter into temptation. ⁴⁷While yet he was speaking, lo! a multitude; and, he that was called Judas, one of the twelve, was leading them on,—and he drew near unto Jesus, to kiss him. ⁴⁸But, Jesus, said to him—Judas! with a kiss, the Son of Man, dost thou deliver up? ⁴⁹And they who were about him, seeing what would be, said—Lord! shall we smite with the sword? ⁵⁰And a certain one from among them smote, the High-priest's, servant, and took off his right ear. ⁵¹But Jesus, answering, said—Let be—as long as this! ...And, touching the ear, he healed him. ⁵²And Jesus said unto the High-priests, and Captains of the temple, and Elders, who had come against him—As against a robber, have ye come out, with swords and clubs? ⁵³Daily, was I with you, in the temple, and yet ye stretched not forth your hands against me! ...But, this, is your hour, and the authority of darkness. ⁵⁴And, having arrested him, they led him away, and took him into the house of the High-priest; and, Peter, was following afar. ⁵⁵And, they having kindled up a fire in the midst of the court, and taken seats together, Peter was for sitting among them. ⁵⁶But, a certain maid-servant, seeing him seating himself towards the light, and looking steadfastly at him, said—This one also, was, with him. ⁵⁷But, he, denied, saying—I know him not, woman! ⁵⁸And, after a little, another, beholding him, said—Thou also, art, from among them. But, Peter, said—Man! I am not. ⁵⁹And, about one hour having passed, a certain other, began stoutly to insist, saying—Of a truth, this one also, was with him; for indeed he is, a Galilaean. ⁶⁰But Peter said—Man! I know not what thou art saying! And, instantly while yet he was speaking, a cock crew. ⁶¹And the Lord turned, and looked at Peter; and Peter was put in mind of the declaration of the Lord, how he had said to him—Before, a cock, crow this day, thou wilt deny me thrice! ⁶²\ul1 And, going forth outside, he wept bitterly.\ul0 ⁶³And, the men who held him bound, kept mocking him, with blows; ⁶⁴and, blindfolding him, questioned him, saying—Prophecy! which is he that smote thee? ⁶⁵and, many other things, with profane speech, were they saying unto him. ⁶⁶And, when it became day, the Eldership of the people was gathered together—both High-priests and Scribes,—and they led him away into their high-council, saying—If, thou, art the Christ, tell us! ⁶⁷But he said unto them—If I should tell, you, in nowise would ye believe, ⁶⁸And, if I should put questions, in nowise would ye answer; ⁶⁹But, henceforth, shall the Son of Man be seated on the right hand of the power of God. ⁷⁰And they all said—Thou, then, art the Son of God? And, he, unto them said—Ye, say it,—because, I, am. ⁷¹And, they, said—What, further, need have we, of witness? We ourselves, have heard it from his mouth.

23And one and all the throng of them, arising, led him unto Pilate. ²And they began to accuse him, saying—This one, found we, perverting our nation, and forbidding to give, tribute unto Caesar,—and affirming himself to be, an anointed king. ³And, Pilate, questioned him, saying—Art, thou, the king of the Jews? And, he, answering him, said—Thou, sayest. ⁴And, Pilate, said unto the High-priests and the multitudes, Nothing, find I, worthy of blame, in this man. ⁵But, they, began to be urgent, saying—He is stirring up the people, teaching along all Judaea, even beginning from Galilee unto this place. ⁶Now, Pilate, hearing that, questioned whether the man was, a Galilaean. ⁷And, getting to know that he was of the jurisdiction of Herod, he sent him back unto Herod, he also, being in Jerusalem in these days. ⁸And, Herod, seeing Jesus, rejoiced exceedingly; for he had been, a considerable number of times, wishing to see him,—because he had heard concerning him, and was hoping, some sign, to behold, by him, brought to pass. ⁹And he went on to question him in a good many words; but, he, answered him, nothing. ¹⁰And the High-priests and the Scribes stood vehemently accusing him. ¹¹And Herod with his soldiery, having set him at nought, and mocked him, threw about him a gorgeous robe, and sent him back unto Pilate. ¹²And they became friends—both Herod and Pilate—on the self-same day, one with another; for they had previously been at enmity between themselves. ¹³And, Pilate, calling together the High-priests, and the Rulers, and the people, ¹⁴said unto them—Ye brought unto me this man, as one turning away the people, and lo! I, in your presence, examining him, found, nothing, in this man worthy of blame, in respect of the things whereof ye were making accusation against him. ¹⁵Nay! nor Herod; for he hath sent him back unto you,—and lo! nothing worthy of death, hath been done by him. ¹⁶So, then, chastising him, I will release him. ¹⁷¹⁸But they cried aloud, with the whole throng, saying—Away with this man! and release unto us Barabbas:— ¹⁹who indeed, because of a certain revolt which had occurred in the city, and of murder, had been thrown into prison. ²⁰Again, however, Pilate, called out unto them, wishing to release Jesus. ²¹But, they, called out in return, saying—Crucify! crucify him! ²²But, he, the third time, said unto them—Why! what base thing hath this man done? Nothing worthy of death, found I in him. Chastising him, then, I will release him! ²³But they became urgent with loud voices, claiming to have him crucified; and their voices began to prevail. ²⁴And, Pilate, consented, that their request should be granted; ²⁵and released him who, for revolt and murder, had been cast into prison, whom they claimed,—whereas, Jesus, delivered he up unto their will. ²⁶And, as they led him away, they laid hold of a certain Simon, a Cyrenian, coming from the country,—they laid on him the cross, that he might bear it after Jesus. ²⁷And there was following him a great throng of the people, and of women, who were smiting themselves and lamenting him. ²⁸But, turning towards them, Jesus said—Daughters of Jerusalem! Do not weep for me; but, for yourselves, be weeping, and for your children. ²⁹For lo! days are coming, in which they will say—Happy the barren! even the wombs that never bare, and the breasts that never gave suck. ³⁰Then, will they begin to say—unto the mountains, Fall upon us! and unto the hills, Cover us! ³¹Because if, in moist wood, these things, they are doing,—in, the dry, what shall happen? ³²And there were being led, two other evil-doers also, to be lifted up. ³³And, when they came into the place which was called Skull, there, they crucified him; and the evil-doers, one indeed on the right hand, and the other on the left. ³⁴But, Jesus, was saying—Father! forgive them; for they know not what they do. And, when they were parting his garments, they cast lots. ³⁵And the people were standing, looking on. But the rulers were sneering, saying—Others, he saved, let him save himself,—if, this, is, the Christ of God, the Chosen. ³⁶Moreover the soldiers also mocked him,—coming near, offering, vinegar, unto him, ³⁷and saying—If, thou, art the King of the Jews, save thyself. ³⁸Now there was an inscription also, over him—THE KING OF THE JEWS, THIS! ³⁹And, one of the suspended evil-doers, began to defame him—Art not, thou, the Christ? Save thyself and us! ⁴⁰But the other, answering, rebuked him, and said—Neither fearest, thou, God, in that thou art, in the same judgment? ⁴¹And, we, indeed, justly,—for, things worthy of what we have done, are we duly receiving, but, this man, nothing amiss, hath done. ⁴²And he went on to say—Jesus! remember me, whensoever thou shalt come into thy kingdom. ⁴³And he said unto him—Verily, I say unto thee this day: With me, shalt thou be in Paradise. ⁴⁴And it was already about the sixth hour, and, darkness, came upon the whole land, until the ninth hour,— ⁴⁵the sun failing; and the veil of the temple was rent in the midst. ⁴⁶And, calling out with a loud voice, Jesus said—Father! into thy hands, I commend my spirit. And, this, saying, he ceased to breathe. ⁴⁷And the centurion, beholding that which came to pass, began to glorify God, saying—In very deed, this man, was, righteous. ⁴⁸And, all the multitudes who had been drawn together unto this spectacle, having looked upon the things that came to pass, smiting their breasts, began to return. ⁴⁹But all they who were acquainted with him, were standing afar off, women also who had followed with him from Galilee,—beholding these things. ⁵⁰And lo! a man, by name Joseph, being, a councillor,—a good and righteous man ⁵¹(the same had not consented unto their plan and deed),—from Arimathaea, a city of the Jews, who was awaiting the kingdom of God, ⁵²the same, going unto Pilate, claimed the body of Jesus. ⁵³And, taking it down, he wrapped it in a fine Indian cloth, and laid him in a tomb hewn in stone,—where no one as yet was lying. ⁵⁴And it was a day of preparation, and, a Sabbath, was about to dawn. ⁵⁵And the women, they who had come out of Galilee with him, following after, observed the tomb, and how his body was laid. ⁵⁶And, returning, they made ready spices and perfumes. And, on the Sabbath, indeed, they were quiet, according to the commandment;

²⁴but, on the first day of the week, at early dawn, unto the tomb, came they, bringing the spices which they had prepared. ²And they found the stone, rolled away from the tomb; ³but, when they entered, they found not the body of the Lord Jesus. ⁴And it came to pass, while they were perplexing themselves concerning this, that lo! two men, stood near them, in dazling raiment. ⁵And, they becoming afraid, and bending their faces unto the ground, they said unto them—Why seek ye the Living One with the dead? ⁶He is not here, but hath arisen: Remember how he spake unto you while yet he was in Galilee: ⁷Saying, as to the Son of Man, that he must needs be delivered up into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified,—and, on the third day, arise. ⁸And they remembered his sayings; ⁹and, returning from the tomb, reported all these things unto the eleven, and unto all the rest. ¹⁰Now they were the Magdalene Mary, and Joana, and Mary the mother of James; and, the other women with them, were telling, unto the apostles, these things. ¹¹And these sayings appeared before them, as if idle talk, and they were minded to disbelieve them. ¹²But, Peter, arising, ran unto the tomb,—and, bending near, beholdeth the linen bandages, alone; and departed, unto himself, marveling at the thing that had happened. ¹³And lo! two from among them, on the selfsame day, were journeying unto a village, distant sixty furlongs from Jerusalem, the name of which, was Emmaus; ¹⁴and, they, were conversing one with another, about all these things which had occurred. ¹⁵And it came to pass, as they were conversing and reasoning together, that, Jesus himself, drawing near, was journeying with them; ¹⁶but, their eyes, were held, so as not to know him. ¹⁷And he said unto them—What are these things which ye are debating one with another, as ye walk along? And they came to a stand, sad in countenance. ¹⁸But one, by name Cleopas, answering, said unto him—Art, thou, lodging, alone, in Jerusalem, and knowest not the things which have come to pass therein in these days? ¹⁹And he said unto them—What things? And, they, said unto him—The things concerning Jesus the Nazarene, who became a prophet, mighty in work and word, before God and all the people: ²⁰In what way also our High-priests and Rulers delivered him up unto a sentence of death, and crucified him. ²¹We, however, were hoping that, he, was the one destined to redeem Israel! But indeed, even with all these things, this brings on, the third, day, since these things happened:—²²Nay! certain women also, from amongst us, have made us beside ourselves, in that they went early unto the tomb; ²³and, not finding his body, came, saying—that, a vision of messengers, they had seen, who were affirming him to be alive. ²⁴And certain of them who were with us departed unto the tomb,—and found so, according as, the women, had said; but, him, they saw not. ²⁵And, he, said unto them—O thoughtless ones! and slow in heart to rest your faith upon all things which the prophets have spoken:—²⁶Was it not needful for the Christ, these very things, to suffer, and to enter into his glory? ²⁷And, beginning from Moses, and from all the prophets, he thoroughly explained to them, in all the Scriptures, the things concerning himself. ²⁸And they drew near unto the village, whither they were journeying; and, he, made for journeying, further. ²⁹And they constrained him, saying—Abide with us; because it is, towards evening, and the day hath already declined. And he went in to abide with them. ³⁰And it came to pass, when he reclined with them, taking the loaf, he blessed, and, breaking it, went on to give unto them. ³¹And, their, eyes were opened, and they knew him; and, he, vanished from them. ³²And they said one to another—Was not, our heart, burning, as he was speaking to us in the way, as he was opening to us the Scriptures? ³³And, arising in that very hour, they returned unto Jerusalem,—and found, gathered together, the eleven, and them who were with them, ³⁴saying—In truth, the Lord hath arisen, and hath appeared unto Simon! ³⁵And, they, went on to relate the things, that had passed on the journey, and how he was made known unto them in the breaking of the loaf. ³⁶Now, as, these very things, they were telling, he himself, stood in their midst and saith unto them—Peace to you! ³⁷But, being agitated and becoming, afraid, they began to imagine, that, upon a spirit, they were looking. ³⁸And he said unto them—Why are ye troubled? and for what cause do reasonings arise in your hearts? ³⁹See my hands, and my feet,—that it is, I, myself: Handle me, and see! because, a spirit, hath not, flesh and bones, as ye perceive, I, have. ⁴⁰And, this saying, he pointed out to them his hands and his feet. ⁴¹Now, while yet they believed not for the joy, and were marvelling, he said unto them—Have ye anything to eat, here? ⁴²And they gave unto him a piece of boiled fish; ⁴³and, taking it before them, he did eat. ⁴⁴And he said unto them—These, are my words, which I spake unto you yet being with you: That all the things that are written in the law of Moses and the Prophets and Psalms, concerning me, must needs be fulfilled. ⁴⁵Then, opened he their mind, to understand the Scriptures; ⁴⁶and said unto them—Thus, it is written, That the Christ, should suffer, and arise from among the dead on the third day; ⁴⁷And that repentance for remission of sins should be proclaimed upon his name unto all the nations,—beginning from Jerusalem. ⁴⁸Ye, are witnesses of these things. ⁴⁹And lo! I, am sending forth the promise of my Father upon you; but tarry, ye, in the city, until ye be clothed, from on high, with power. ⁵⁰And he led them forth as far as unto Bethany; and, uplifting his hands, he blessed them. ⁵¹And it came to pass, while he was blessing them, he parted from them and was born up into heaven. ⁵²And, they, having bowed down unto him returned unto Jerusalem, with great joy; ⁵³and were continually in the temple, blessing God.

John

¹Originally, was, the Word, and, the Word, was, with God; and, the Word, was, God. ²The same, was originally, with God. ³All things, through him, came into existence, and, without him, came into existence, not even one thing: that which hath come into existence, ⁴in him, was, life, and, the life, was, the light of men.— ⁵And, the light, in the darkness, shineth; and, the darkness, thereof, laid not hold. ⁶There arose a man, sent from God, whose name was, John: ⁷The same, came, for a witness, That he might bear witness, concerning the light, that, all, might believe, through him. ⁸He, was not the light,—but, that he might bear witness concerning the light, ⁹It, was—The real light that enlighteneth every man—Coming into the world. ¹⁰In the world, he was, and, the world, through him, came into existence, and, the world, knew him not. ¹¹Into his own possessions, he came, and, his own people, received him not home. ¹²But, as many as did receive him, he gave, unto them, authority, children of God, to become,—unto them who were believing on his name: ¹³Who—not of bloods, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but—of God, were born. ¹⁴And, the Word, became, flesh, and pitched his tent among us, and we gazed upon his glory,—a glory, as an Only-begotten from his Father. Full of favour and truth. ¹⁵(John beareth witness concerning him, and hath cried aloud, saying—the same, was he that said—He who, after me, was coming, before me, hath advanced; because, my Chief, was he.) ¹⁶Because, out of his fulness, we all, received, even favour over against favour. ¹⁷Because, the law, through Moses, was given, favour and truth, through Jesus Christ, came into existence. ¹⁸No one, hath seen, God, at any time: An Only Begotten God, The One existing within the bosom of the Father, He, hath interpreted him. ¹⁹And, this, is the witness of John, when the Jews sent forth unto him, out of Jerusalem, priests and Levites,—that they might question him—Who art, thou? ²⁰and he confessed, and did not deny,—and he confessed—I, am not, the Christ; ²¹and they questioned him—What then? Art, thou, Elijah? and he saith—I am not; The prophet, art, thou? and he answered—No! ²²So they said unto him—Who, art thou? that, an answer, we may give, unto them who sent us,—What sayest thou, concerning thyself? ²³He said—I, am a Voice, of one crying aloud;—In the desert, make ye straight, the way of the Lord: according as said Isaiah the prophet. ²⁴And they had been sent forth from among the Pharisees; ²⁵and they questioned him, and said unto him—Why, then, dost thou immerse,—if, thou, art not, the Christ, nor Elijah, nor, the Prophet? ²⁶John answered them, saying—I, immerse, in water. In the midst of you, standeth one, whom, ye, know not;—²⁷after me, coming:—Of whom, I, am not worthy that I should unloose the thong of the sandal. ²⁸These things, in Bethany, came to pass, beyond the Jordan, where John was, immersing. ²⁹On the morrow, he beholdeth Jesus, coming unto him, and saith—See! the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sin of the world. ³⁰This, is he, of whom, I, said—After me, cometh a man, who, before me, hath advanced, because, my Chief, was he. ³¹And, I, knew him not, but, that he might be manifested unto Israel, therefore, came, I, in water, immersing. ³²And John bare witness, saying—I have gazed upon the Spirit, descending like a dove, out of heaven,—and it abode upon him. ³³And, I, knew him not,—but, he that sent me to immerse in water, he, unto me, said—Upon whomsoever thou shalt see the Spirit descending and abiding upon him, the same, is he that immerseth in Holy Spirit. ³⁴I, therefore, have seen, and borne witness—That, this, is, the, Son of God. ³⁵On the morrow, again, was John standing, and, from among his disciples, two; ³⁶and, looking at Jesus walking, he saith—See! the Lamb of God! ³⁷and the two disciples hearkened unto him speaking, and they followed Jesus. ³⁸But Jesus, turning, and looking at them following, saith unto them—What seek ye? And, they, said unto him—Rabbi! which meaneth, when translated, Teacher, Where abidest thou? ³⁹He saith unto them—Be coming, and ye shall see. They came, therefore, and saw where he abode, and, with him, they abode that day. It was about the tenth, hour. ⁴⁰One of the two that heard from John and followed him, was Andrew, the brother of Simon Peter. ⁴¹The same findeth, first, his own brother Simon, and saith unto him—We have found the Messiah! which is, when translated, Anointed. ⁴²He led him unto Jesus. Jesus, looking at him, said—Thou, art Simon, the son of John,—thou, shalt be called, Cephas; which is to be translated, Peter. ⁴³On the morrow, he desired to go forth into Galilee. And Jesus findeth Philip, and saith unto him—Be following me! ⁴⁴Now Philip was from Bethsaida, of the city of Andrew and Peter. ⁴⁵Philip, findeth, Nathanael, and saith unto him—Him, of whom wrote Moses in the law, and the Prophets, have we found.—Jesus, son of Joseph, him from Nazareth! ⁴⁶And Nathanael said unto him—Out of Nazareth, can any good thing come? Philip saith unto him—Come, and see! ⁴⁷Jesus saw Nathanael coming unto him, and saith concerning him—See! Truly, an Israelite, in whom is no guile. ⁴⁸Nathanael saith unto him—Whence, dost thou, know, me? Jesus answered, and said unto him—Before Philip called thee,—when thou wast under the fig-tree, I saw thee. ⁴⁹Nathanael answered him—Rabbi! thou, art, the Son of God: Thou, art, King, of Israel. ⁵⁰Jesus answered, and said unto him—Because I said unto thee, I saw thee under the fig-tree, believest thou? A greater thing than these, shalt thou see! ⁵¹And he saith unto him—Verily, verily, I say unto you: Ye shall see heaven—when set open, and, the messengers of God, ascending and descending unto the Son of Man.

2And, on the third day, a marriage, took place, in Cana, of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was there,—²and Jesus also was invited, with his disciples, unto the marriage. ³And, wine falling short, the mother of Jesus saith unto him—Wine, have they none! ⁴And Jesus saith unto her—What part can I take with thee, O woman? Not yet, hath come, mine hour. ⁵His mother saith unto them who are ministering—Whatsoever he may say to you, do! ⁶Now there were there, six stone water-vessels, placed, according to the purification of the Jews; holding each, two or three measures. ⁷Jesus saith unto them—Fill the vessels with water. And they filled them up to the brim. ⁸And he saith unto them—Draw out now, and be bearing unto the master of the feast. And they bare. ⁹And, when the master of the feast had tasted the water, now made, wine, and knew not whence it was,—though, they who were ministering, knew, even they who had drawn out the water, the master accosteth the bridegroom, ¹⁰and saith unto him—Every man, first the good wine, setteth out; and, when they had been well-supplied, the inferior:—Thou, hast kept the good wine until, even now. ¹¹This, beginning of his glory, did Jesus, in Cana of Galilee, and manifested his glory; and his disciples believed on him. ¹²After this, he came down into Capernaum,—he, and his mother and brethren, and his disciples; and, there, they abode, not many days. ¹³And, near, was the passover of the Jews; and, Jesus, went up unto Jerusalem. ¹⁴And he found, in the temple, them that were selling oxen and sheep and doves, also the money-changers sitting. ¹⁵And, making a scourge out of rushes, all of them, thrust he forth out of the temple, both the sheep and the oxen; and, the money-changers' small coins, poured he forth, and, the tables, he overturned; ¹⁶and unto them who were selling, the doves, he said—Take these things hence! Be not making, the house of my Father, a house of merchandise. ¹⁷His disciples remembered that it was written—The zeal of thy house, eateth me up. ¹⁸The Jews therefore answered, and said unto him, What sign, dost thou point out to us, in that, these things, thou doest? ¹⁹Jesus answered, and said unto them—Take down this shrine, and, in three days, will I raise it. ²⁰The Jews, therefore, said—In forty and six years, was this shrine built. And, thou, in three days, wilt raise it! ²¹But, he, was speaking concerning the shrine of his body. ²²When, therefore, he had been raised from among the dead, his disciples remembered, that, this, he had been saying; and they believed in the Scripture, and in the word which Jesus had spoken. ²³Now, when he was in Jerusalem, during the passover, during the feast, many, believed on his name, viewing his signs which he was doing. ²⁴Jesus himself, however, was not trusting himself unto them, by reason of his understanding them all, ²⁵and because he had, no need, that anyone should bear witness concerning man; for, he, understood what was in man.

3There was however, a man from among the Pharisees, Nicodemus, his name,—ruler of the Jews. ²The same, came unto him, by night, and said unto him—Rabbi! we know that, from God, thou hast come, a teacher; for, no one, can be doing, these signs, which, thou, art doing, except, God, be with him. ³Jesus answered, and said unto him—Verily, verily, I say unto thee: Except one be born from above, he cannot see the kingdom of God. ⁴Nicodemus saith unto him—How, can a man be born, when he is, old? Can he, into the womb of his mother, a second time, enter, and be born? ⁵Jesus answered—Verily, verily, I say unto thee: Except one be born of water and spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God. ⁶That which hath been born of the flesh, is, flesh, and, that which hath been born of the spirit, is, spirit. ⁷Do not marvel, that I said unto thee: Ye must needs be born from above. ⁸The spirit, where it pleaseth, doth breathe, and, the sound thereof, thou hearest; but knowest not, whence it cometh and whither it goeth: Thus, is every one who hath been born of the spirit. ⁹Nicodemus answered, and said unto him—How, can these things, come about? ¹⁰Jesus answered, and said unto him—Art, thou, the teacher of Israel, and, these things, knowest not? ¹¹Verily, verily, I say unto thee: What we know, we speak, and, of what we have seen, we bear witness, and, our witness, ye receive not. ¹²If, the earthly things, I told you, and ye believe not, How, if I should tell you the heavenly things, will ye believe? ¹³And, no one, hath ascended into heaven, save he that, out of heaven, descended,—The Son of Man. ¹⁴And, just as, Moses, lifted up the serpent in the desert, so, must, the Son of Man, be lifted up,—¹⁵That, whosoever believeth in him, may have life age-abiding. ¹⁶For God, so loved, the world, that, his Only Begotten Son, he gave,—that, whosoever believeth on him, might not perish, but have life age-abiding. ¹⁷For God, sent not, his Son into the world, that he might judge the world, but, that the world might be saved through him. ¹⁸He that believeth on him, is not to be judged: he that believeth not, already, hath been judged,—because he hath not believed on the name of the Only Begotten Son of God. ¹⁹And, this, is the judgment: That, the light, hath come into the world,—and men loved, rather the darkness than the light, for, wicked, were their, works. ²⁰For, whosoever doth practise corrupt things, hateth the light, and cometh not unto the light, lest his works should be reprov'd; ²¹But, he that doeth the truth, cometh unto the light, that his works may be, made manifest, that, in God, have they been wrought. ²²After these things, came Jesus, and his disciples, into the Judaeian land; and, there, was he tarrying with them, and immersing. ²³And John also was immersing in Aenon, near to him, because, many waters, were there; and they were coming, and being immersed;—²⁴for, not yet, had John been cast into prison. ²⁵There arose, therefore, a questioning, from among the disciples of John, with a Jew,—concerning purification. ²⁶And they came unto John, and said unto him—Rabbi! he who was with thee beyond the Jordan, unto whom, thou, hast borne witness, see! the same, is immersing; and, all, are coming unto him. ²⁷John answered, and said—A man can receive, nothing, except it have been given him out of heaven. ²⁸Ye yourselves, unto me, bear witness, that, I, said—I, am not the Christ; but—I am sent before, That One. ²⁹He that hath the bride, is, bridegroom; but, the friend of the bridegroom, who standeth by and hearkeneth unto him, greatly, rejoiceth, by reason of the voice of the bridegroom. This, my joy, therefore, is fulfilled. ³⁰That One, it behoveth to increase,—but, me, to decrease. ³¹He that, from above, doth come, over all, is: he that is of the earth, of the earth, is, and, of the earth, doth speak: he that, out of heaven, doth come, over all, is, ³²What he hath seen and heard, of, the same, he beareth witness,—and, his witness, no one, receiveth:—³³He that hath received his witness, hath set seal—that, God, is, true. ³⁴For, he whom God hath sent, the sayings of God, doth speak; for, not by measure, giveth he the Spirit. ³⁵The Father, loveth the Son, and, all things, hath given into his hand. ³⁶He that believeth on the Son, hath life age-abiding: whereas, he that yieldeth not unto the Son, shall not see life,—but, the anger of God, awaiteth him.

⁴When therefore the Lord knew, that the Pharisees had heard—Jesus, more disciples, is making and immersing, than John,—²although indeed, Jesus himself, was not immersing, but his disciples, ³he left Judaea, and departed again into Galilee. ⁴Now he must needs pass through Samaria. ⁵He cometh, therefore, unto a city of Samaria, called Sychar, near the parcel of ground which Jacob gave unto Joseph his son. ⁶Now Jacob's fountain was there.

Jesus, therefore, having become toil-worn with the journey, was sitting thus, upon the fountain. It was about the sixth hour. ⁷There cometh a woman of Samaria to draw water. Jesus saith unto her—Give me to drink! ⁸for, his disciples, had gone away into the city, that, food, they might buy. ⁹The Samaritan woman, therefore, saith unto him—How dost, thou, being, a Jew, ask to drink, of me, who am, a Samaritan woman? \u011 for, Jews, have no dealings with Samaritans.\u010 ¹⁰Jesus answered, and said unto her—If thou hadst known the free gift of God, and who it is that is saying unto thee, Give me to drink, thou, wouldst have asked him, and he would have given thee living water. ¹¹She saith unto him—Sir! not even a bucket, hast thou,—and, the well, is, deep:—Whence, then, hast thou the living water? ¹²Art, thou, greater than, our father Jacob, who gave us the well,—and, himself, out of it drank, and his sons, and his flocks? ¹³Jesus answered, and said unto her—Whosoever drinketh of this water, will thirst, again; ¹⁴But, whosoever shall drink of the water which, I, will give him, in nowise shall thirst, unto times age-abiding,—but, the water which I will give him, shall become, within him, a fountain of water, springing up unto life age-abiding. ¹⁵The woman saith unto him—Sir! give me this water, that I thirst not, neither be coming hither to draw. ¹⁶He saith unto her—Go, call thy husband, and come hither! ¹⁷The woman answered, and said \u011 unto him\u010 —I have no husband. Jesus saith unto her—Well, saidst thou, A husband, I have not; ¹⁸for, five husbands, thou hast had,—and, now, he whom thou hast, is not thy, husband: This true thing, hast thou spoken. ¹⁹The woman saith unto him—Sir! I perceive that, a prophet, art, thou:—²⁰Our fathers, in this mountain, worshipped; and, ye, say, that, in Jerusalem, is the place, where, to worship, it behoveth. ²¹Jesus saith unto her—Believe me, woman! There cometh an hour, when, neither in this mountain, nor yet in Jerusalem, shall ye worship the Father. ²²Ye, worship, that which ye know not; We, worship, that which we know; because, salvation, is, of the Jews. ²³But there cometh an hour, and, now, is,—when, the real worshippers, shall worship the Father in spirit and truth; for, even the Father, is seeking, such as these, as his worshippers. ²⁴God is, spirit; and, they that worship him, in spirit and truth, must needs worship. ²⁵The woman saith unto him—I know that, Messiah, cometh, who is called Christ,—Whensoever, he, shall come, he will tell us, everything. ²⁶Jesus saith unto her—I, that speak unto thee, am he. ²⁷And, hereupon, came his disciples, and they began to marvel, that, with a woman, he was talking. No one, however, said—What seekest thou? or—Why talkest thou with her? ²⁸The woman, therefore, left her water-vessel, and went away into the city, and saith unto the men—²⁹Come! see a man, that told me all things that ever I did: Can, this, be, the Christ? ³⁰They came forth out of the city, and were coming unto him. ³¹In the meantime, the disciples were requesting him, saying—Rabbi! eat. ³²But, he, said unto them—I, have, food, to eat, of which, ye, know not. ³³The disciples, therefore, began to say, one to another—Hath anyone brought him, to eat? ³⁴Jesus saith unto them—My food, is, that I should do the will of him that sent me, and complete, his work. ³⁵Are, ye, not saying—Yet, a fourmonth, it is, and, the harvest, cometh? Lo! I say unto you—Lift up your eyes, and gaze at the fields,—that, white, are they unto, harvest. Already, ³⁶he that reapeth, receiveth, a reward, and gathereth fruit unto life age-abiding; that, he that soweth, together may rejoice, with him that reapeth. ³⁷For, herein, doth the saying, hold good,—One, is the sower, and, another, is the reaper. ³⁸I, sent you forth, to be reaping that whereon, ye, have not toiled: Others, have toiled, and, ye, into their toil, have entered. ³⁹And, out of that city, many, believed on him—of the Samaritans,—by reason of the word of the woman in bearing witness—He told me all things that ever I did. ⁴⁰When, therefore, the Samaritans came unto him, they went on to request him to abide with them; and he abode there two days. ⁴¹And, many more, believed by reason of his discourse; ⁴²and, unto the woman, began to say—No longer, by reason of thy talk, do we believe; for, we ourselves, have heard, and know that, This One, is, in truth, the Saviour of the world. ⁴³But, after the two days, he went forth from thence, into Galilee. ⁴⁴For, Jesus himself, bare witness, that, a prophet, in his own fatherland, hath not, honour. ⁴⁵So, when he came into Galilee, the Galilaeans welcomed him, having seen, all things, whatsoever he had done in Jerusalem during the feast; for, they also, went unto the feast. ⁴⁶So he came again into Cana of Galilee, where he had made the water, wine. And there was a certain courtier, whose son was sick, in Capernaum. ⁴⁷The same, hearing that Jesus had come out of Judaea into Galilee, came away unto him, and began requesting him, that he would come down and heal his son; for he was on the point of dying. ⁴⁸Jesus therefore said unto him—Except, signs and wonders, ye see, in nowise will ye believe. ⁴⁹The courtier saith unto him—Sir! come down, ere my child die! ⁵⁰Jesus saith unto him—Be going thy way: thy son, liveth! And the man believed in the word which Jesus spake to him, and at once went his way. ⁵¹And, when he was even now going down, his servants, met him, saying, that, his boy, was living. ⁵²So he enquired the hour, from them, when he began, to amend. They said, therefore, unto him—Yesterday, at the seventh hour, the fever left him. ⁵³So the father took note that it was, in that hour, wherein Jesus said unto him—Thy son, liveth! and he believed, he, and all his house. ⁵⁴Now, this again, as, a second sign, Jesus did, after coming out of Judaea into Galilee.

⁵After these things, was a feast of the Jews, and Jesus went up unto Jerusalem. ²Now there is in Jerusalem, at the

Sheep-gate, a pool, which is called in Hebrew Bethzatha,—having, five porches. ³In these, was lying a throng of them who were sick,—blind, lame, withered. ⁴⁵And there was a certain man there, who, for thirty-eight years, had continued in his sickness. ⁶Jesus, seeing, this one, lying, and taking note that now, a long time, had he continued, saith unto him—Desirest thou to be made, well? ⁷The sick man answered him—Sir! I have, no man, that, as soon as the water hath been troubled, might thrust me into the pool; but, while, I, am coming, another, before me, goeth down. ⁸Jesus saith unto him—Rise! take up thy couch, and be walking. ⁹And, straightway, the man was made well and took up his couch, and began to walk. Now it was Sabbath, on that day. ¹⁰The Jews, therefore, were saying, unto him who had been cured—It is, Sabbath; and it is not allowable for thee to take up thy couch:—¹¹who, however, answered them—He that made me well, he, unto me, said—Take up thy couch, and be walking. ¹²They questioned him—Who is the man that said unto thee, Take up thy couch, and be walking? ¹³But, the healed one, knew not, who, it was; for, Jesus, had turned aside, a multitude, being in the place. ¹⁴After these things, Jesus findeth him, in the temple, and said unto him—See! thou hast become, well:—No more, be committing sin, lest, some worse thing, do thee befall. ¹⁵The man went away, and told the Jews, that it was, Jesus, who had made him well. ¹⁶And, on this account, were the Jews persecuting Jesus, because, these things, he had been doing, on Sabbath. ¹⁷But, he, answered them—My Father, until even now, is working; and, I, am working. ¹⁸On this account, therefore, the rather, were the Jews seeking to slay him,—because, not only was he breaking the Sabbath, but was calling God, his own Father, making, himself, equal, with, God. ¹⁹Jesus, therefore, answered, and went on to say unto them—Verily, verily, I say unto you: The Son cannot be doing, of himself, a single thing,—save anything he may see, the Father, doing; for, whatsoever, he, may be doing, these things, the Son also, in like manner, doeth. ²⁰For, the Father, dearly loveth the Son, and, all things, pointeth out to him, which, himself, is doing; and, greater works than these, will he point out to him, that, ye, may marvel. ²¹For, just as the Father waketh up the dead, and quickeneth them, in like manner, the Son also, whom he pleaseth, doth quicken. ²²For neither doth, the Father, judge anyone,—but, all the judging, hath given unto the Son: ²³That, all, may honour the Son, just as they honour the Father: he that doth not honour the Son, doth not, in fact, honour the Father who sent him. ²⁴Verily, verily, I say unto you: He that heareth, my word, and believeth in him that sent me, hath life age-abiding, and, into judgment, cometh not, but hath passed over, out of death into life. ²⁵Verily, verily, I say unto you: There cometh an hour, and now is, when, the dead, shall hearken unto the voice of the Son of God, and, they who have hearkened, shall live. ²⁶For, just as, the Father, hath life, in himself, in like manner, unto the Son also, hath he given, life, to have, in himself; ²⁷And, authority, hath he given him, to be executing, judgment,—because, Son of Man, is he! ²⁸Do not be marvelling at this: because there come an hour, in which, all they in the tombs, shall hearken unto his voice, ²⁹and shall come forth,—they who, the good things, have done, unto a resurrection, of life; but, they who the corrupt things, have practised, unto a resurrection, of judgment. ³⁰I, cannot be doing, of myself, a single thing,—Just as I hear, I judge; and, my judging, is, just,—because I seek not my own will, but the will of him that sent me. ³¹If, I, bear witness, concerning myself, my witness, is not, true. ³²Another, it is, who beareth witness concerning me,—and I know that, true, is the witness which he witnesseth concerning me. ³³Ye, have sent forth unto John,—and he hath borne witness to the truth:—³⁴I, however, not from man, my witness, receive; but, these things, I say, that, ye, may be saved:—³⁵He, was the burning and shining lamp, and, ye, were willing to exult, for an hour, in his light. ³⁶But, I, have, as my witness, something greater than John's; for, the works which the Father hath given me, that I should complete them,—the works themselves which I am doing, bear witness concerning me, that, the Father, hath sent me. ³⁷And so, the Father who sent me, he, hath borne witness concerning me; Neither, a sound of him, at any time, have ye heard, nor, a form of him, have ye seen; ³⁸And, his word, ye have not, within you abiding—because, as touching him whom, he, sent, in him, ye, believe not. ³⁹Ye search the Scriptures, because, ye, think, by them, to have, life age-abiding; and, those Scriptures, are they which bear witness concerning me: ⁴⁰And yet ye choose not to come unto me, that, life, ye may have. ⁴¹Glory from men, am I not receiving;—⁴²But I have taken knowledge of you, that, the love of God, ye have not, in yourselves:—⁴³I, have come, in the name of my Father,—and ye are not receiving me: If, another, shall come in his own name, him, ye will receive! ⁴⁴How can, ye, believe,—Glory from one another, receiving; and, the glory which is from the only God, are not seeking? ⁴⁵Do not think that, I, will accuse you unto the Father: There, is, who accuseth you, even, Moses,—on whom, ye, have set your hope. ⁴⁶For, if ye had been believing, in Moses, ye would, in that case, have been believing, in me: for, concerning me, he wrote. ⁴⁷But, if, in his writings, ye are not believing, how, in my sayings, will ye believe?

⁶After these things, Jesus went away across the sea of Galilee, that is, of Tiberias; ²and there was following him a great multitude, because they had been viewing the signs which he did upon such as were sick. ³But Jesus had gone up into the mountain, and, there, was sitting with his disciples. ⁴Now the passover was near, the feast of the Jews. ⁵So then Jesus, lifting up his eyes, and beholding that a great multitude was coming unto him, saith unto Philip—

Whence are we to buy loaves, that these may eat? ⁶But, this, he was saying, to test him; for, he himself, knew, what he was about to do. ⁷Philip answered him—Two hundred denaries-worth of loaves, are not sufficient for them, that, each one, may take, a little. ⁸One from among his disciples, Andrew, the brother of Simon Peter, saith unto him—⁹There is a little lad here, that hath five barley loaves, and two small fishes,—but, these,—what are they, for such numbers? ¹⁰Jesus said—Make the people recline. Now there was much grass in the place. So the men reclined, to the number of about five thousand. ¹¹Jesus therefore took the loaves, and, giving thanks, went on distributing unto them that reclined; in like manner, of the small fishes also: as much as they were wishing. ¹²And, when they were well-filled, he saith unto his disciples—Gather up the broken pieces left over, that nothing be lost. ¹³So they gathered them up, and filled twelve baskets, with broken pieces out of the five barley loaves,—which were left over by them who had eaten. ¹⁴The people, therefore, seeing what signs he wrought, began to say—This, is, of a truth, the prophet who was to come into the world. ¹⁵Jesus, therefore, getting to know that they were about to come, and seize him, that they might make him king, retired again into the mountain, himself, alone. ¹⁶But, when evening came, his disciples went down unto the sea; ¹⁷and, entering into a boat, were going across the sea into Capernaum. And, dark, already, had it become, and, not yet, had Jesus reached them; ¹⁸moreover the sea, by reason of a great wind that blew, was rising high. ¹⁹Having therefore rowed about twenty-five or thirty furlongs, they observe Jesus, walking upon the sea, and, near the boat, coming; and they were affrighted. ²⁰But, he, saith unto them—It is, I: be not affrighted! ²¹They were willing, therefore, to receive him into the boat; and, straightway, the boat was at land, whither they had been slowly going. ²²On the morrow, the multitude that was standing on the other side of the sea, saw that there was not, another small-boat, there, save one,—and that Jesus entered not, along with his disciples, unto the boat, but that, alone, his disciples departed:—²³howbeit there came boats out of Tiberias, near the place where they did eat the bread, after the Lord had given thanks:—²⁴When, therefore, the multitude saw, that, Jesus, was not there, nor yet his disciples, they themselves, got into the small boats, and came unto Capernaum, seeking Jesus; ²⁵and, finding him on the other side of the sea, they said unto him—Rabbi! when, camest thou, hither? ²⁶Jesus answered them, and said—Verily, verily, I say unto you: Ye seek me, not because ye saw signs, but because ye did eat of the loaves and were filled. ²⁷Be working, not for the food that perisheth, but for the food that endureth unto life age-abiding,—which, the Son of Man, unto you, will give; for upon, the same, hath the Father, even God, set his seal. ²⁸They said, therefore, unto him—What are we to do, that we may be working the works of God?

²⁹Jesus answered, and said unto them—This, is the work of God: that ye believe on him whom, he, hath sent forth. ³⁰They said, therefore, unto him—What, then, art, thou, doing, by way of sign, that we may see, and believe in thee: what art thou working? ³¹Our fathers, did eat, the manna, in the desert,—just as it is written: Bread out of heaven, he gave them to eat. ³²Jesus said unto them—Verily, verily, I say unto you: Not Moses, gave you the bread out of heaven; but, my Father, giveth you the real bread out of heaven. ³³For, the bread of God, is that which is coming down out of heaven, and giving, life, unto the world. ³⁴They said, therefore, unto him—Sir! Evermore, give us this bread. ³⁵Jesus said unto them—I, am the bread of life: he that cometh unto me, in nowise shall hunger, and, he that believeth on me, in nowise shall thirst, any more. ³⁶But I told you—Ye have even seen \u1 me\u10 , and yet do not believe. ³⁷All that which the Father is giving me, unto me, will have come, and, him that cometh unto me, in nowise will I cast out,—³⁸Because I have come down from heaven,—Not that I should be doing my own will, but the will of him that sent me. ³⁹And, this, is the will of him that sent me, That, of all that which he hath given me, I should lose nothing, but should raise it up at the last day. ⁴⁰For, this, is the will of my Father, That, every one that vieweth the Son, and believeth on him, should have life age-abiding, and, I, should raise him up, at the last day. ⁴¹The Jews, therefore, began to murmur concerning him, because he said—I, am the bread that came down out of heaven; ⁴²and were saying—Is not, this, Jesus, the son of Joseph,—of whom, we, know the father and the mother! How is it then, that he, now, saith: Out of heaven, have I come down? ⁴³Jesus answered, and said unto them—Be not murmuring, one with another: ⁴⁴No one, can come unto me, except, the Father who sent me, draw him,—and, I, will raise him up, in the last day. ⁴⁵It is written in the prophets,—And they shall be, all, the instructed of God: Every one who hath heard of the Father, and learned, cometh unto me. ⁴⁶Not that any one hath seen, the Father, save he who is from God,—this one, hath seen the Father. ⁴⁷Verily, verily, I say unto you: He that believeth, hath life age-abiding. ⁴⁸I am the bread of life:—⁴⁹Your fathers, did eat, in the desert, the manna,—and died: ⁵⁰This, is the bread which, out of heaven, cometh down, that one, thereof, may eat,—and not die. ⁵¹I, am the living bread, which, out of heaven, came down: If one eat of this bread, he shall live unto times age-abiding; and, the bread, moreover, which, I, will give, is, my flesh—for the world's life. ⁵²The Jews, therefore, began to strive one with another, saying—How can this one, unto us, give his flesh to eat? ⁵³Jesus, therefore, said unto them—Verily, verily, I say unto you—Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man, and drink his blood, ye have not life within yourselves. ⁵⁴He that feedeth upon my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath life age-abiding, and, I, will raise him up at the last day; ⁵⁵For, my flesh, is, true, food, and, my blood, is, true, drink: ⁵⁶He that feedeth upon my flesh, and drinketh my blood, in me, abideth, and, I, in him. ⁵⁷Just as the living Father sent me,—and I live by reason of the Father, he also that feedeth upon me, even he, shall live by reason of me. ⁵⁸This, is the bread, which, out of heaven, came down:—Not just as your fathers did eat—and died! He that feedeth upon this bread, shall live unto times age-abiding. ⁵⁹These things, said he, as, in a synagogue, he was teaching, in Capernaum. ⁶⁰Many, of his disciples, therefore, when they heard, said—Hard, is this discourse,—Who can, thereunto, hearken? ⁶¹But Jesus, knowing within himself that his disciples were murmuring concerning this, said unto them—Doth, this, cause, you, to stumble? ⁶²What then, if ye should view the Son of Man ascending where he was before? ... ⁶³The spirit, it is, that giveth life,—the flesh, profiteth, nothing: The declarations which, I, have spoken unto you, are, spirit, and, are, life. ⁶⁴But there are some from among you, who do not believe. For Jesus knew from the beginning, who they were that did not believe, and who it was would deliver him up;—⁶⁵and he went on to say—For this cause, have I said unto you: No one, can come unto me, except it have been given him, of the Father. ⁶⁶Because of this, many from among his disciples, went away back, and, no longer, with him, were walking. ⁶⁷Jesus, therefore, said unto the twelve—Are, ye also, wishing to withdraw? ⁶⁸Simon Peter answered him—Lord! unto whom, shall we go? Declarations o life age-abiding, thou hast; ⁶⁹And, we, have believed, and come to know,—that, thou, art the Holy One of God. ⁷⁰Jesus answered them—Did not, I, make choice, of you, the twelve? And yet, from among you, one, is, an adversary. ⁷¹Now he was speaking of Judas, son of Simon Iscariot: for, the same, was about to deliver him up,—one of the twelve.

⁷And, after these things, Jesus was walking in Galilee; for he was not wishing, in Judaea, to be walking, because the Jews were seeking to slay him. ²But the feast of the Jews was near, that of the pitching of tents. ³His brethren, therefore, said unto him—Remove hence, and withdraw into Judaea, that, thy disciples also, may view thy works which thou art doing. ⁴For, no one, anything in secret, doeth, and yet is seeking, himself, to be well-known. If, these things, thou art doing, manifest thyself unto the world. ⁵For, not even his brethren, were believing on him. ⁶Jesus, therefore, saith unto them—My season, not yet, is here; but, your season, at anytime, is ready: ⁷The world cannot hate you; but, me, it hateth, because, I, bear witness concerning it, that, the works thereof, are, wicked. ⁸Ye, go up unto the feast: I, not yet, am coming up unto this feast, because, my season, not yet, hath fully come. ⁹And, these things, having said unto them, he was still abiding in Galilee. ¹⁰But, when his brethren had gone up unto the feast, then, he also, went up,—not openly, but as it were in secret. ¹¹The Jews, therefore, were seeking him in the feast, and were saying—Where is that one? ¹²and there was great, murmuring, about him among the multitudes: some, indeed, were saying—Good, is he! \u0001 but\u0000 , others, were saying—Not so! but he is leading the multitude astray. ¹³No one, nevertheless, was speaking, openly, about him, because of their fear of the Jews. ¹⁴Presently, however, the feast being at its height, Jesus went up unto the temple and was teaching. ¹⁵The Jews, therefore, began to marvel, saying—How, doth this one know, letters, not having learned? ¹⁶Jesus, therefore, answered them, and said—My teaching, is not mine, but his who sent me. ¹⁷If any one intend, his will, to do, he shall get to know concerning the teaching—whether it is, of God, or, I, from myself, am speaking, ¹⁸He that, from himself, doth speak, his own glory, is seeking: he that seeketh the glory of him that sent him, the same, is, true, and, injustice, in him, is there none. ¹⁹Did not, Moses, give you the law? And yet, not one of you, doeth the law!—Why, seek ye, to slay, me? ²⁰The multitude answered—A demon, thou hast: Who, is seeking, to slay, thee? ²¹Jesus answered, and said unto them—One work, I did, and ye, all, are marvelling: ²²For this cause, Moses, hath given you, circumcision,—not that, of Moses, it is, but of the fathers;—and, on Sabbath, ye circumcise a man. ²³If, circumcision, a man receiveth, on Sabbath, that the law of Moses may not be broken, with me, are ye bitter as gall, because, a whole man, I made, well, on Sabbath? ²⁴Be not judging according to appearance, but, just judgment, be judging, ²⁵So then, some of them of Jerusalem were saying—Is not, this, he whom they are seeking to kill? ²⁶And yet, see! with freedom of speech, he is talking, and, nothing, unto him, do they say:—Have the rulers perhaps come to know, of a truth, that, this, is, the Christ? ²⁷But, as for this one, we know whence he is; The Christ, however, whensoever he shall come, no one, getteth to know whence he is. ²⁸Jesus, therefore, cried aloud in the temple, teaching, and saying—Both me, ye know, and ye know whence I am,—and yet, of myself, have I not come, but he is real, who sent me, whom, ye, know not. ²⁹I, know him, because, from him, I am, and, he, sent me forth. ³⁰They were seeking therefore to seize him; and yet no one laid on him his hand, because, not yet, had come his hour. ³¹But, from amongst the multitude, many, believed on him, and were saying—The Christ, whensoever he cometh, greater signs, will he do, than those which, this one, did? ³²The Pharisees hearkened unto the multitude murmuring concerning him these things; and the High-priests and the Pharisees sent forth officers, that they might seize him. ³³Jesus, therefore, said—Yet a little time, I am, with you, and withdraw unto him that sent me: ³⁴Ye shall seek me, and not find me, and, where, I, am, ye, cannot come. ³⁵The Jews, therefore, said unto themselves—Whither, is, this one, about to go, that we shall not find him? Unto the dispersion of the Greeks, is he about to go, and teach the Greeks? ³⁶What, is this which he said: Ye shall seek me and not find me, and, where, I, am, ye, cannot come? ³⁷Now, on the last—the great—day of the feast, Jesus was standing, and he cried aloud, saying—If any man thirst, let him come unto me and drink: ³⁸He that believeth on me—just as said the Scripture,—River, from within him, shall flow, of living water. ³⁹Now, this, spake he concerning the Spirit which they who believed on him were about to receive; for, not yet, was there Spirit, because, Jesus, not yet, was glorified! ⁴⁰Some from amongst the multitude, therefore, having hearkened unto these words, were saying—This, is, in truth, the prophet. ⁴¹Others, were saying—This, is, the Christ. But, others, were saying—Out of Galilee, is, the Christ, to come? ⁴²Hath not the Scripture said: Of the seed of David, and from Bethlehem, the village where David was, cometh the Christ? ⁴³A division, therefore, arose in the multitude, because of him. ⁴⁴Certain, indeed, from among them, were wishing to seize him; but, no one, thrust upon him his hands. ⁴⁵So then the officers came unto the High-priests and Pharisees, and, they, said unto them—For what cause, have ye not brought him? ⁴⁶The officers answered—Never, man spake thus! ⁴⁷The Pharisees, therefore, answered them—Surely, ye also, have not been led astray? ⁴⁸Surely, none of the rulers, hath believed in him, nor of the Pharisees? ⁴⁹But, this multitude, that take no note of the law, are, laid under a curse. ⁵⁰Nicodemus saith unto them—he that came unto him formerly, being, one, from among them—⁵¹Surely, our law, doth not judge the man, unless it hear first from him, and get to know what he is doing? ⁵²They answered and said unto him—Surely, thou also, art not, of Galilee? Search and see! That, out of Galilee, a prophet is not to arise. ⁵³And they went, each unto his own house;

8but, Jesus, went unto the Mount of Olives. ²And, early in the morning, again, came he into the temple, \u0001 and all the people were coming unto him; and, sitting down, he began to teach them.\u0000 ³And the Scribes and the Pharisees bring a woman, caught, in adultery; and, setting her in the midst, ⁴they say unto him—Teacher! this woman, hath been caught in the very act of committing adultery! ⁵Now, in the law, Moses, \u0001 unto us\u0000 gave command to stone, such as these. What, then, dost, thou, say? ⁶\u0001 This, however, they were saying, by way of testing him,—that they might have whereof to accuse him.\u0000 But, Jesus, stooping down, with his finger, wrote in the ground. ⁷When, however, they still continued questioning him, he lifted himself up and said \u0001 unto them\u0000 —He of you, that is without sin, let him first cast at her a stone; ⁸and, again stooping down, he wrote in the ground. ⁹And, they who heard, began to go out, one by one, beginning from the elders,—and he was left, alone; the woman also, being, in the midst. ¹⁰And lifting himself up, Jesus said unto her—Woman, where are they? Hath, no one, condemned thee? ¹¹And, she, said—No one, Sir! And Jesus said—Neither do, I, condemn thee,—be going thy way: Henceforth, be sinning, no more. ¹²Again, therefore, unto them, spake Jesus, saying—I, am the light of the world: He that followeth me, shall in nowise walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life. ¹³The Pharisees, therefore, said unto him—Thou, concerning thyself, bearest witness: thy witness, is not true. ¹⁴Jesus answered, and said unto them—Even though, I, bear witness concerning myself, true, is my witness, because I know whence I came, and whither I go; but, ye, know not whence I come, and whither I go. ¹⁵Ye, according to the flesh, do judge: I, am judging no one. ¹⁶And, even if, I, am judging, my judging, is, genuine,—because, alone, am I not, but, I, and the Father who sent me; ¹⁷And, in your own law, it is written, that, two men's witness, is, true: ¹⁸I, am the one bearing witness of myself, and the Father who sent me is bearing witness concerning me. ¹⁹They were saying unto him, therefore—Where, is thy father? Jesus answered—Neither, me, do ye know, nor yet my Father: If, me, ye had known, my Father also, had ye known. ²⁰These sayings, spake he in the treasury, teaching in the temple, and yet, no one, seized him, because, not yet, had come his hour. ²¹He said unto them again, therefore—I, go, and ye shall seek me,—and yet, in your sin, shall ye die: Whither, I, go, ye, cannot come. ²²The Jews, therefore, were saying—Can it be that he will kill himself, that he saith, Whither, I, go, ye, cannot come? ²³And he was saying unto them—Ye, are, of the realms below, I, am, of the realms above: Ye, are, of this world, I, am not of this world. ²⁴Therefore said I unto you, Ye shall die in your sins: For, if ye believe not that, I, am he, ye shall die in your sins. ²⁵They were saying unto him, therefore—Who art, thou? Jesus said unto them—First and foremost, even what I speak unto you. ²⁶Many things, have I, concerning you, to speak, and to judge; but, he who sent me, is, true, and, I, what things I heard from him, the same, speak I unto the world. ²⁷They noted not that, as touching the Father, unto them, he was speaking. ²⁸Jesus, therefore, said—Whosoever ye shall lift up the Son of Man, then, shall ye know, that, I, am he, and, of myself, am doing, nothing; but, just as the Father taught me, the same things, am I speaking. ²⁹And, he that sent me, is, with me: He hath not left me, alone. Because, I, the things that please him, ever do. ³⁰As he was speaking these things, many, believed on him. ³¹Jesus was saying, therefore, unto the Jews who had believed on him—If, ye, abide in my word, of a truth, my disciples, ye are; ³²And ye shall know the truth, and, the truth, shall make you free. ³³They made answer unto him—Seed of Abraham, are we, and, unto no one, have been brought into bondage, at any time: How sayest, thou, Free, shall ye be made? ³⁴Jesus answered them, Verily, verily, I say unto you: Every one who committeth sin, is, a slave, \u011f of sin:\u011f ³⁵Now, the slave, doth not abide in the house, evermore. The Son, abideth, evermore. ³⁶If then, the Son, shall make you free, really free, shall ye be. ³⁷I know that ye are, seed of Abraham; but ye are seeking to kill me, because, my word, findeth no place in you. ³⁸What things, I, have seen with the Father, I am speaking; Ye, also, then, what things ye have heard from your father, are doing.—³⁹They answered and said unto him—Our father, is, Abraham. Jesus saith unto them—If, children of Abraham, ye are, the works of Abraham, are ye doing. ⁴⁰But, now, ye are seeking, to kill me,—A man who, the truth, unto you, hath spoken, which I have heard from God: this, Abraham, did not. ⁴¹Ye, are doing the works of your father. They said unto him—We, of fornication, were not born: One father, have we—God. ⁴²Jesus said unto them—If, God, had been your father, ye had been loving me, for, I, from God, came forth, and am here; for, not even of myself, have I come, but, he, sent me forth. ⁴³Wherefore, is it, that, my speech, ye do not understand? because ye cannot hear my word. ⁴⁴Ye, are, of your father—the adversary, and, the covetings of your father, ye choose to be doing. He, was, a murderer, from the beginning, and, in the truth, he stood not; because truth is not in him: Whosoever he speaketh falsehood, of his own, he speaketh; because, false, he is, and, the father of it. ⁴⁵But, as for me, because, the truth, I speak, ye do not believe me. ⁴⁶Which of you convicteth me of sin? If, truth, I speak, wherefore, do, ye, not believe me? ⁴⁷He that is of God, heareth, the sayings of God; therefore, do, ye, not hear, because, of God, ye are not. ⁴⁸The Jews answered, and said unto him—Do, we, not, well, say: Thou, art, a Samaritan, and hast a demon? ⁴⁹Jesus answered—I, have not, a demon, but honour my Father: and, ye, dishonour me. ⁵⁰But, I, seek not my glory: There is one who seeketh and judgeth. ⁵¹Verily, verily, I say unto you: If anyone shall keep, my word, death, shall he not see, unto times age-abiding. ⁵²The Jews said unto him—Now, we know that, a demon, thou hast:—Abraham, died, and, the prophets, and yet, thou, sayest: If anyone shall keep, my word, in nowise shall he taste of death, unto times age-abiding. ⁵³Surely, thou, art not, greater, than our father Abraham,—who, indeed, died? and, the prophets, died:—Whom, makest thou thyself? ⁵⁴Jesus answered—If, I, glorify myself, my glory, is nothing: It is, my Father, that glorifieth me,—of whom, ye, say—He is, your God! ⁵⁵And yet ye have not come to know him; but, I, do know him: If I say, I know him not, I shall be like you—false; but I know him, and, his word, am I keeping. ⁵⁶Abraham, your father, exulted that he should see my day; and he saw, and rejoiced. ⁵⁷The Jews, therefore, said unto him—Fifty years old, not yet art thou, and, Abraham, hast thou seen? ⁵⁸Jesus said unto them—Verily, verily, I say unto you: Before, Abraham, came into existence, I, am. ⁵⁹They took up stones, therefore, that they might cast at him; but, Jesus,

9And, passing along, he saw a man, blind from birth. 2And his disciples questioned him, saying—Rabbi! who sinned, this man or his parents, that, blind, he should be born? 3Jesus answered—Neither, this man, sinned nor his parents; but...that the works of God should be made manifest in him. 4We must needs be working the works of him that sent me, while it is, day: There cometh a night, when, no one, can work. 5Whosoever I may be, in the world, I am, the light, of the world. 6These things, having said, he spat on the ground, and made clay with the spittle, and laid the clay upon his eyes; 7and said unto him—Withdraw! wash in the pool of Siloam,—which is to be translated, Sent. He went away, therefore, and washed, and came, seeing. 8The neighbours, therefore, and they who used to observe him aforetime—that he was, a beggar, were saying—Is not, this, he that used to sit and beg? 9Others, were saying—'Tis, the same. Others, were saying—Nay! but he is, like him. He, was saying—I, am he. 10So they were saying unto him—How \u01 then\u00 were thine eyes opened? 11He, answered—The man that is called Jesus, made, clay, and anointed mine eyes, and said unto me: Withdraw unto the pool of Siloam, and wash. Going away, therefore, and washing, I received sight. 12And they said unto him—Where is, He? He saith—I know not. 13They bring him unto the Pharisees—him at one time blind. 14Now it was Sabbath, on the day when Jesus made, the clay, and opened his eyes. 15Again, therefore, the Pharisees also questioned him, as to how he received sight. And, he, said unto them—Clay, laid he upon mine eyes, and I washed,—and do see. 16Certain from among the Pharisees, therefore, were saying—This man is not, from God, because, the Sabbath, he keepeth not. Others, \u01 however\u00 were saying—How can a sinful man, such signs as these, be doing? And there was, a division, among them. 17So they were saying unto the blind man, again, What dost, thou, say concerning him, in that he opened thine eyes? And, he, said—A prophet, is he. 18The Jews, therefore, did not believe, concerning him, that he was blind, and received sight,—until they called the parents of him that had received sight, 19and questioned them, saying—Is, this, your son, of whom, ye, say, that blind, he was, born? How, then, seeth he, even now? 20His parents, therefore, answered, and said—We know that, this, is our son, and that, blind, he was born; 21But, how he now seeth, we know not, or, who opened his eyes, we, know not,—Question, him, he is, of age, he, concerning himself, shall speak. 22These things, said his parents, because they were in fear of the Jews,—for, already, had the Jews agreed together, that, if anyone should confess, him, to be Christ, an, excommunicant from the synagogue, should he be made. 23For this cause, his parents said—He is, of age,—question him. 24So they called the man a second time— him who had been blind, and said unto him—Give glory unto God! We know that, this man, is, a sinner. 25He, therefore, answered—Whether he is a sinner, I know not: One thing, I know,—That, whereas I was, blind, now, I see! 26They said, therefore, unto him—What did he unto thee? How opened he thine eyes? 27He answered them—I told you just now, and ye did not hear: Why, again, do ye wish to hear? Are, ye also, wishing to become, his disciples? 28And they reviled him, and said—Thou, art, the disciple, of that man; but, we, are, Moses', disciples:—29We, know, that, unto Moses, hath God spoken; but, as for this man, we know not whence he is. 30The man answered, and said unto them—Why! Herein, is, the marvel: That, ye, know not whence he is, and yet he opened mine eyes. 31We know that, God, unto sinners, doth not hearken: but, if one be, a worshipper of God, and be doing, his will, unto this one, he hearkeneth. 32Out of age-past time, hath it never been heard, that anyone opened the eyes of one who, blind, had been born. 33If this man were not from God, he could have done nothing. 34They answered and said unto him—In sins, wast, thou, born, altogether; and art, thou, teaching, us? And they cast him out. 35Jesus heard that they had cast him out: and, finding him, said—Dost, thou, believe on the son of Man? 36He answered \u01 and said\u00 —And, who, is he, Sir, that I may believe on him? 37Jesus said unto him—Thou hast both seen him and, he that is speaking with thee, is, he. 38And, he, said—I believe, Sir! and worshipped him. 39And Jesus said—For judgment, I, unto this world, came: that, they who were not seeing, might see, and, they who were seeing, might become, blind. 40They of the Pharisees who were with him, heard, these things, and said unto him—Are, we also, blind? 41Jesus said unto them—If, blind, ye had been, ye had not had sin; but, now, ye say, We see, your sin, abideth.

10Verily, verily, I say unto you:—He that entereth not, through the door, into the fold of the sheep, but goeth up from another place, that man, is, a thief, and, a robber. 2But, he that entereth through the door, is, shepherd, of the sheep: 3To him, the porter openeth, and, the sheep, unto his voice, hearken: and, his own sheep, he calleth by name, and leadeth them forth. 4As soon as, all his own, he hath put forth, before them, he moveth on, and, the sheep, follow him, because they know his voice; 5But, a stranger, will they in nowise follow, but will flee from him, because they know not the voice, of strangers. 6This similitude, spake Jesus unto them; but, those men, understood not what the things were which he was speaking unto them. 7Jesus, therefore, said, again—Verily, verily, I say unto you:—I, am the door of the sheep: 8All, as many as came before me, are thieves, and, robbers: but the sheep hearkened nor unto them. 9I, am the door: through me, if anyone enter, he shall be saved, and shall come in and go out, and, pasture, shall find. ¹⁰The thief, cometh not, save that he may thieve and slay and destroy: I, came, that, life, they might have, and, above measure, might have. ¹¹I, am the good shepherd: The good shepherd, his life, layeth down, for the sheep. ¹²The hireling, even because he is no shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, vieweth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth,—and, the wolf, seizeth them and scattereth,—¹³Because, a hireling, he is, and hath no care for the sheep. ¹⁴I, am the good shepherd, and know my own, and, my own, know me,—¹⁵Just as, the Father, knoweth me, and, I, know, the Father; and, my life, I lay down for the sheep. ¹⁶And, other sheep, have I, which are not of this fold: those also, I must needs bring, and, unto my voice, will they hearken, and there shall come to be, One flock, One shepherd. ¹⁷Therefore, doth the Father, love, me, because, I, lay down my life, that, again, I may receive it:—¹⁸No one, forced it from me, but, I, lay it down, of myself,—Authority, have I, to lay it down, and, authority, have I, again, to receive it: This commandment, received I, from my Father. ¹⁹A division, again, took place among the Jews, because of these words. ²⁰But many from among them were saying—A demon, he hath, and is raving,—Why, unto him, do ye hearken? ²¹Others, said—These sayings, are not those of one demonized,—Can, a demon, open the eyes of, the blind? ²²The feast of dedication took place at that time, in Jerusalem: it was, winter, ²³and Jesus was walking in the temple, in the porch of Solomon. ²⁴The Jews, therefore, surrounded him, and were saying unto him—How long, holdest thou, our lives, in suspense? If, thou, art the Christ, tell us, plainly. ²⁵Jesus answered them—I told you, and ye believe not: The works which, I, am doing in the name of my Father, the same, bear witness concerning me. ²⁶But, ye, believe not, because ye are not of my sheep. ²⁷My sheep, unto my voice, hearken,—and, I, know, them, and they follow me,—²⁸And, I, give unto them life age-abiding, and in nowise shall they perish, unto times age-abiding; and no one shall carry them off out of my hand. ²⁹What, my Father, hath given me, is, something greater than all, and, no one, can carry off out of the hand of my Father:—³⁰I and the Father, are, one. ³¹The Jews again lifted up stones, that they might stone him. ³²Jesus answered them—Many works, have I showed you, noble ones, from my Father: For which of those works are ye stoning me? ³³The Jews answered him—Concerning a noble work, are we not stoning thee; but concerning profane speech,—and because, thou, being, a man, art making thyself, God. ³⁴Jesus answered them—Is it not written in your law: I, said, Ye are, gods? ³⁵If, those, he called gods, unto whom, the word of God, came—and the Scripture cannot be broken—³⁶Of him whom, the Father, hallowed and sent forth into the world, are, ye, saying—Thou speakest profanely, because I said, Son of God, I am? ³⁷If I am not doing the works of my Father, do not believe in me; ³⁸But, if I am doing them, even though, in me, ye believe not, in the works, believe,—that ye may get to know and go on to know, that the Father is, in me, and, I, am, in the Father. ³⁹They were \ull therefore\ul0 again seeking to take him; and he went forth out of their hand. ⁴⁰And he went away again, beyond the Jordan, unto the place where John was at the first, immersing; and he abode there. ⁴¹And, many, came unto him, and were saying—John, indeed, did not so much as, one sign; but, all things, whatsoever John said concerning this one, were, true. ⁴²And, many, believed on him there.

11Now a certain man was sick, Lazarus of Bethany, of the village of Mary and Martha her sister. ²And Mary was she who anointed the Lord with perfume, and wiped his feet with her hair—whose brother Lazarus was sick. ³The sisters, therefore, sent out unto him, saying—Lord, see! he whom thou tenderly lovest, is sick. ⁴But Jesus hearing, said—This sickness, is not unto death, but for the glory of God,—that the Son of God may be glorified thereby. ⁵Now Jesus loved Martha, and her sister, and Lazarus. ⁶When, therefore, he heard that he was sick, then, indeed, he abode in the place where he was, two days. ⁷Then, after this, he saith unto the disciples—Let us be leading on into Judaea, again. ⁸The disciples say unto him—Rabbi! just now, were the Jews seeking to stone thee—and, again, goest thou thither? ⁹Jesus answered—Are there not, twelve hours, in the day? If one walk in the day, he doth no stumble, because, the light of this world, he seeth; ¹⁰But, if one walk in the night, he stumbleth, because, the light, is not in him. ¹¹These things, he said, and, after this, he saith unto them—Lazarus, our dear friend, hath fallen asleep; but I am going, that I may awake him. ¹²The disciples, therefore, said unto him—Lord! if he have fallen asleep, he will recover. ¹³But Jesus had spoken concerning his death; whereas, they, supposed that, concerning the taking of rest in sleep, he had been speaking. ¹⁴Jesus, therefore, then, said unto them, plainly,—Lazarus, died; ¹⁵and I rejoice, for your sake—that ye may believe,—that I was not there; but let us be going unto him. ¹⁶Thomas, therefore, the one called Didymus, said unto his fellow-disciples—Let, us also, be going, that we may die with him. ¹⁷Jesus, therefore, coming, found that, four days already, had he been in the tomb. ¹⁸Now Bethany was near Jerusalem, about fifteen furlongs off; ¹⁹and, many from among the Jews, had come unto Martha and Mary, that they might console them concerning their brother. ²⁰Martha, therefore, when she heard that Jesus was coming, went to meet him; but, Mary, in the house, remained sitting. ²¹Martha, therefore, said unto Jesus—Lord! if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died; ²²And, now, I know, that, whatsoever thou shalt ask of God, God, will give unto thee. ²³Jesus saith unto her—Thy brother shall rise. ²⁴Martha saith unto him, I know that he shall rise, in the resurrection, in the last day. ²⁵Jesus said unto her—I, am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth on me, even though he die, shall live again! ²⁶And, no one who liveth again and believeth on me, shall in anywise die, unto times age-abiding. Believest thou this? ²⁷She saith unto him—Yea, Lord! I, have believed, that, thou, art the Christ, the Son of God,—He who, into the world, should come. ²⁸And this saying, she went away, and called Mary her sister, secretly, saying—The teacher, is present, and calleth thee. ²⁹And, she, when she heard, was roused up quickly, and was coming unto him. ³⁰Not yet, however, had Jesus come into the village, but was still in the place where, Martha, met him. ³¹The Jews, therefore, who were with her in the house and consoling her, seeing Mary, that quickly she arose and went out, followed her, supposing that she was withdrawing unto the tomb, that she might weep there. ³²Mary, therefore, when she came where Jesus was, seeing him, fell at his feet, saying unto him—Lord! if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died. ³³Jesus, therefore, when he saw her weeping, and the Jews who came with her weeping, was indignant in the spirit, and troubled himself, ³⁴and said—Where have ye laid him? They say unto him—Lord! come and see. ³⁵Jesus wept. ³⁶The Jews, therefore, were saying—See! how tenderly he loved him! ³⁷But, some from among them, said—Could not this man, who opened the eyes of the blind, have caused that, this one also, should not have died? ³⁸Jesus, therefore, again, being indignant within himself, cometh unto the tomb. Now it was a cave, and, a stone, was lying thereon. ³⁹Jesus, saith, Take ye away the stone! Martha, the sister of the deceased, saith unto him—Lord! by this time, he stinketh, for it is, four days. ⁴⁰Jesus saith unto her—Said I not unto thee, that, if thou wouldst believe, thou shouldst see the glory of God? ⁴¹So they took away the stone. And, Jesus, lifted up his eyes on high, and said—Father! I thank thee, thou didst hear me: ⁴²I, indeed, knew that, always, unto me, thou dost hearken; but, for the sake of the multitude standing around, I spake,—that they might believe that, thou, didst send me forth. ⁴³And, these things, having said, with a loud voice, he cried out—Lazarus! Come forth! ⁴⁴He that was dead came forth, bound feet and hands with bandages, and, his face, with a napkin, was bound about. Jesus saith unto them—Loose him, and let him go. ⁴⁵Many therefore from among the Jews, who had come unto Mary, and gazed on what he did, believed on him ⁴⁶but, certain from among them, went away unto the Pharisees, and told them what Jesus had done. ⁴⁷The High-priests and Pharisees, therefore, brought together a high-council, and were saying—What are we to do, in that, this man, doeth, many signs? ⁴⁸If we let him alone thus, all, will believe on him, and the Romans will come, and take away, both our place and nation. ⁴⁹But, a certain one from among them, Caiaphas, being, High-priest, for that year, said unto them—Ye, know, nothing at all; ⁵⁰nor do ye take into account, that it is profitable for you that, one man, should die for the people, and not, the whole nation, perish. ⁵¹This, however, from himself, he spake not, but, being, High-priest, for that year, he prophesied, that Jesus was about to die for the nation; ⁵²and, not for the nation only, but that, the scattered children of God also, he might gather together into one. ⁵³From that day, therefore, they took counsel, that they might put him to death. ⁵⁴Jesus, therefore, no longer openly, was walking among the Jews, but departed thence, into the country near the desert, unto a city called, Ephraim; and, there, abode, with his disciples. ⁵⁵Now the passover of the Jews was at hand, and many went up unto Jerusalem, out of the country, before the passover, that they might purify themselves. ⁵⁶They were therefore seeking Jesus, and were saying one to another, in the temple, standing—How seemeth it unto you? that he will in nowise come unto the feast? ⁵⁷Now the High-priests and the Pharisees had given commands, that, if anyone came to know where he was, he should inform them, so that they might seize him.

12 Jesus, therefore, six days before the passover, came unto Bethany, where Lazarus was, whom Jesus had raised from among the dead. ²So they made for him a supper, there; and, Martha, was ministering, but, Lazarus, was one of them who were reclining with him. ³Mary, therefore, taking a pound of pure nard perfume, very precious, anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped, with her hair, his feet; and, the house, was filled with the fragrance of the perfume. ⁴But Judas Iscariot, one of his disciples, he that was about to deliver him up, saith—⁵Why was, this perfume, not sold for three hundred denaries, and given unto the destitute? ⁶Howbeit he said this, not that, for the destitute, he cared, but because, a thief, he was, and holding, the bag, used to carry away, what was cast therein. ⁷Jesus, therefore, said—Let her alone, that, for the day of my burial, she may observe it; ⁸For, the destitute, always, have ye with you, whereas, me, not always, have ye. ⁹The great multitude of the Jews, therefore, got to know that he was, there, and came, not on account of Jesus only, but that, Lazarus also, they might see, whom he had raised from among the dead. ¹⁰But the High-priests took counsel, that Lazarus also, they might put to death; ¹¹because, many of the Jews, by reason of him, were withdrawing, and believing on Jesus. ¹²On the morrow, the great multitude that had come unto the feast, hearing that Jesus was coming into Jerusalem, ¹³took the branches of the palm trees, and went out to meet him, and began crying aloud—Hosanna! Blessed is he that is coming in the name of the Lord,—even the King of Israel! ¹⁴And Jesus, finding a young ass, took his seat thereon, just as it is written—¹⁵Do not fear, O daughter of Zion! Lo! thy king, cometh, sitting upon the colt of an ass. ¹⁶These things, his disciples noticed not, at the first; but, when Jesus was glorified, then, remembered they that, these things, had, for him, been written,—and that, these things, they had done unto him. ¹⁷The multitude, therefore, that was with him when he called, Lazarus, out of the tomb, and raised him from among the dead, was bearing witness. ¹⁸On this account, the multitude met him also, because they heard that he had done, this sign. ¹⁹the Pharisees, therefore, said among themselves—Ye observe that ye are profiting nothing: See! the world, after him, hath gone away. ²⁰Now there were certain Greeks, from among them who were coming up that they might worship in the feast. ²¹These, therefore, came unto Philip, him who was from Bethsaida of Galilee,—and were requesting him, saying—Sir! We desire to see, Jesus. ²²Philip cometh, and telleth Andrew: Andrew and Philip come, and tell Jesus. ²³But, Jesus, answereth them, saying—The hour hath come, that the Son of Man should be glorified! ²⁴Verily! Verily, I say unto you: Except, the kernel of wheat, shall fall into the ground, and die, it, alone, abideth; but, if it die, much fruit, it beareth. ²⁵He that loveth his life, loseth it; but, he that hateth his life, in this world, unto life age-abiding, shall guard it. ²⁶If, with me, anyone be ministering, with me, let him be following; and, where, I, am, there, my minister also, shall be. If anyone, with me, be ministering, the Father, will honour him. ²⁷Now, is my soul troubled,—and what can I say? Father! save me from this hour? But, on this account, came I unto this hour. Father, glorify thy name! ²⁸There came, therefore, a voice out of heaven—I both have glorified it, and will glorify it again. ²⁹\u1 So\u0 , the multitude that was standing by, and heard it, were saying—It hath, thundered. Others, were saying—A messenger, unto him, hath spoken. ³⁰Jesus answered, and said—Not for my sake, hath this voice come, but, for your sake. ³¹Now, is there, a judging, of this world,—Now, the ruler of this world, shall be cast out; ³²And, I, if I be lifted up out of the earth, will draw, all, unto myself. ³³But, this, he was saying, signifying, by what manner of death, he was about to die. ³⁴The multitude, therefore, answered him—We, have heard, out of the law, that, the Christ, abideth evermore; How then dost, thou, say,—It behoveth the Son of Man to be lifted up? Who is this Son of Man? ³⁵Jesus, therefore, said unto them—Yet a little while, the light, is, among you: Walk, while ye have, the light, lest, darkness, on you should lay hold; and, he that walketh in darkness, knoweth not whither he drifteth. ³⁶While, the light, ye have, believe on the light, that, sons of light, ye may become. These things, spake Jesus,—and, departing, was hid from them. ³⁷And, although such signs, as these, he had done before them, they were not believing on him:—³⁸that, the word of Isaiah the prophet, might be fulfilled, which said—Lord! who believed, what we have heard? And, the arm of the Lord, to whom, was it revealed? ³⁹On this account, they could not believe, because, again, said Isaiah—⁴⁰He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their heart; lest they should see with their eyes, and should understand with their heart, and should turn,—and I should heal them. ⁴¹These things, said Isaiah, because he saw his glory, and spake concerning him. ⁴²Nevertheless, however, even from among the rulers, many believed on him; but, because of the Pharisees, they were not confessing him, lest, excommunicants from the synagogue, they should be made; ⁴³for they loved the glory of men, more than the glory of God. ⁴⁴And, Jesus, cried aloud, and said—He that believeth on me, believeth not on me, but on him that sent me; ⁴⁵And, he that vieweth me, vieweth him that sent me. ⁴⁶I, a light, into the world have come, that, no one who believeth on me, in darkness, should abide. ⁴⁷And, if anyone shall hearken unto my sayings, and not guard them, I, am not judging him; for I came not that I might judge the world, but that I might save the world. ⁴⁸He that setteth me aside, and receiveth not my sayings, hath that which is to judge him: The word that I spake, that, will judge him, in the last day. ⁴⁹Because, I, out of myself, spake not, but, the Father who sent me, hath, himself, given me commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak. ⁵⁰And I know that, his commandment, is, life age-abiding; The things, therefore, which I speak, just as the Father hath told me, so, I speak.

13Now, before the feast of the passover, Jesus, knowing that his hour had come, that he should remove out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own that were in the world, unto the end, loved them. ²And, supper, being in progress, the adversary, having already thrust into the heart of Judas son of Simon Iscariot, that he should deliver him up,—³Jesus knowing that, all things, the Father had given unto him, into his hands, and that, from God, he had come, and, unto God, he was going, ⁴rouseth himself out of the supper, and layeth aside his garments, and taking a linen cloth, girded himself. ⁵Next, he poureth water into the wash-basin, and began to be washing the feet of the disciples, and to be wiping them with the linen cloth wherewith he was girded. ⁶So he cometh unto Simon Peter. He saith unto him—Lord, dost, thou, wash my feet? ⁷Jesus answered, and said unto him—What, I, am doing, thou, knowest not, as yet; howbeit, thou shalt got to know, hereafter. ⁸Peter saith unto him—In nowise shalt thou, ever, wash my feet. Jesus answered him—If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me. ⁹Simon Peter saith unto him—Lord! not my feet only, but my hands also, and my head. ¹⁰Jesus saith unto him—He that hath bathed himself, hath no need \u1 save as to the feet\u0 to get washed; but is pure, as a whole. And, ye, are, pure, but not ye, all. ¹¹For he know the man that was delivering him up; therefore, said he—Not ye all, are pure. ¹²When, therefore, he had washed their feet, and taken his garments, and reclined, again said he unto them—Are ye taking note, what I have done unto you? ¹³Ye, call me, The Teacher, and, The Lord,—and, well, say, for I am. ¹⁴If then, I, have washed your feet,— I The Lord, and, The Teacher, ye also, ought to wash, one another's, feet; ¹⁵For, an example, have I given you,—that, just as, I, did unto you, ye also, should be doing. ¹⁶Verily, verily, I say unto you—A servant is not greater than his lord, neither one sent forth greater than he that sent him. ¹⁷If, these things, ye know, happy, are ye, if ye be doing them. ¹⁸Not, concerning you all, am I speaking,—for, I, know of whom I made choice; but...that, the Scripture, might be fulfilled: He that feedeth on my bread, hath lifted up against me, his heel. ¹⁹Henceforth, I tell you, before it cometh to pass,—that ye may believe, whensoever it doth come to pass, that, I, am he. ²⁰Verily, verily, I say unto you—He that receiveth whomsoever I shall send, receiveth, me; and, he that receiveth, me, receiveth him that sent me. ²¹These things, having said, Jesus, was troubled in spirit, and bare witness, and said—Verily, verily, I say unto you—One from among you, will deliver me up. ²²The disciples began to look one at another, being at a loss concerning whom he was speaking. ²³One of Jesus' disciples was reclining in his bosom, one whom Jesus loved: ²⁴so Simon Peter beckoneth unto the same, and saith unto him—Say, Who is it? concerning whom he speaketh. ²⁵He, falling back thus, upon the breast of Jesus, saith unto him—Lord! who is it? ²⁶Jesus, therefore, answereth—That one, it is, for whom, I, shall dip the morsel, and give unto him. So, dipping the morsel, he taketh and giveth it unto Judas, son of Simon Iscariot. ²⁷And, after the morsel, then, entered, Satan, into that man. Jesus, therefore, saith unto him—What thou art doing, do quickly! ²⁸But, as to this, none of them who were reclining with him knew respecting what, he said it to him. ²⁹For, some, were thinking, since Judas held the bag, that Jesus was saying to him—Buy the things of which we have, need, for the feast; or that, unto the destitute, he should give something. ³⁰So, he, taking the morsel, went out straightway;—and it was night. ³¹When, therefore, he had gone out, Jesus saith—Just now, was, the Son of Man, glorified, and, God, was glorified in him; ³²And, God, will glorify him, in himself,—and, straightway, glorify him. ³³Dear children! Yet a little, am I, with you. Ye shall seek me, and, just as I said unto the Jews, Whither, I, go, ye, cannot come, unto you also, I say it, even now. ³⁴A new commandment, give I unto you,—That ye be loving one another: Just as I loved you, that, ye also, be loving one another: ³⁵By this, shall all men take knowledge, that, my disciples, ye are,—If ye have, love, one to another. ³⁶Simon Peter saith unto him—Lord! whither dost thou withdraw? Jesus answered—Whither I withdraw, thou canst not, now, follow me, but thou shalt follow, hereafter. ³⁷Peter saith unto him—Lord! why, cannot I follow thee, even now? My life, in thy behalf, will I lay down. ³⁸Jesus answereth—Thy life, in my behalf, wilt thou lay down? Verily, verily, I say unto thee—In nowise shall a cock crow till thou hast denied me, thrice.

¹⁴Let not your heart be troubled: Believe on God, and, on me, believe. ²In the house of my Father, are, many dwellings; or else I would have told you, I go to prepare a place for you. ³And, if I go, and prepare a place for you, again, am I coming, and will take you home unto—myself, that, where, I, am, ye also, may be. ⁴And, whither, I, go, ye know, the way. ⁵Thomas saith unto him—Lord! we know not whither thou goest: How know we, the way? ⁶Jesus saith unto him—I, am the way, and the truth, and the life: No one, cometh unto the Father, but through me. ⁷If ye had been getting to know me, my Father also, had ye known: from henceforth, are ye getting to know him, and have seen him. ⁸Philip saith unto him—Lord! show us the Father, and it sufficeth us. ⁹Jesus saith unto him—So long a time as this, have I been, with you,—and thou hast not come to know me, Philip? He that hath seen me, hath seen the Father. How art, thou, saying, Show us the Father? ¹⁰Believest thou not, that, I, am in the Father, and, the Father, is, in me? The things which I am saying unto you, from myself, I speak not; but, the Father, within me abiding, doeth his works. ¹¹Believe me, That, I, am in the Father, and, the Father, in me;—or else, on account of the works themselves, believe ye. ¹²Verily, verily, I say unto you—He that believeth on me, the works which, I, am doing, he also, shall do; and, greater than these, shall he do, because, I, unto the Father, am going,—¹³And because, whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, the same, will I do, that, the Father, may be glorified, in the Son: ¹⁴If anything ye shall ask \u0177\u0177\u0177 in my name, the same, will I do. ¹⁵If ye be loving me, my commandments, ye will keep; ¹⁶And, I, will request the Father, and, Another Advocate, will he give unto you, that he may be with you age-abidingly, ¹⁷The Spirit of truth,—which, the world, cannot receive, because it beholdeth it not, nor getteth to know it. But, ye, are getting to know it; because, with you, it abideth, and, in you, it is. ¹⁸I will not leave you bereft,—I am coming unto you. ¹⁹Yet a little, and, the world, no longer beholdeth me; but, ye, behold me,—Because, I, live, ye also, shall live. ²⁰In that day, shall ye get to know, That, I, am in my Father, and, ye, in me, and, I, in you. ²¹He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he, it is that loveth me; and, he that loveth me, shall be loved by my Father, and, I, will love him, and will manifest, myself, unto him. ²²Judas, not the Iscariot, saith unto him—Lord! what hath happened, that, unto us, thou art about to manifest thyself, and, not unto the world? ²³Jesus answered, and said unto him—If any man be loving me, my word, he will keep, and, my Father, will love him,—and, unto him, will we come, and, an abode with him, will we make. ²⁴He that loveth me not, doth not keep, my word;—and, the word which ye hear, is not mine, but, the Father's who sent me. ²⁵These things, have I spoken unto you, With you abiding; ²⁶But, the Advocate, The Holy Spirit, which the Father will send in my name,

He, will teach you all things, and will put you in mind, of all things which, I, told you. ²⁷Peace, I leave with you, My own peace, give, I, unto you,—Not as, the world, giveth, give, I, unto you:—Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid. ²⁸Ye heard that, I, said unto you—I go my way, and I come unto you,—Had ye loved me, ye would have rejoiced, that I am going unto the Father, for, the Father, is, greater than I. ²⁹But, now, have I told you, before it cometh to pass, that, whensoever it shall come to pass, ye may believe. ³⁰No longer, many things, will I speak with you; for, the world's ruler, is coming, and, in me, hath, nothing,—³¹But, that the world may get to know that I love the Father, and just as the Father hath given me commandment, so, I do. Be rousing yourselves! let us be leading on from hence.

¹⁵I, am the real vine, and, my Father, is, the husbandman. ²Every branch in me that beareth not fruit, He taketh it away; and, every one that beareth, fruit, He pruneth it, that, more fruit, it may bear. ³Already, ye, are, pure, because of the word which I have spoken unto you: ⁴Abide in me, and, I, in you. Just as, the branch, cannot be bearing fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine, so, neither, ye, except, in me, ye abide. ⁵I, am the vine: Ye, are the branches. He that abideth in me and, I, in him, the same, beareth much fruit; because, apart from me, ye can bring forth, nothing. ⁶If one abide not me, he is cast out as the branch, and withered, and they gather them,—and, into fire, they cast them, and they are burned. ⁷If ye abide in me, and, my sayings, in you, abide, whatsoever ye may be desiring, ask! and it shall be brought to pass for you. ⁸Herein, was my Father glorified, that, much fruit, ye should bear, and become my disciples. ⁹Just as the Father loved me, I also, loved you: Abide ye in my love. ¹⁰If, my commandments, ye keep, ye shall abide in my love,—just as, I, the Father's commandments, have kept, and abide in his love. ¹¹These things, have I spoken unto you, that, my own joy, in you, may be, and, your joy, may be made full. ¹²This, is my own commandment, That ye be loving one another, just as I loved you. ¹³Greater love than this, hath, no one, That, his life, one should lay down in behalf of his friends. ¹⁴Ye, are, friends of mine, if ye be doing that which, I, am commanding you. ¹⁵No longer, do I call you, servants, for, the servant, knoweth not what, his lord, is doing. But, you, I have called, friends, because, all things which I heard from my Father, made I known unto you. ¹⁶Not, ye, chose, me, but, I, chose you, and placed you, that ye should go your way and bear, fruit,—and, your fruit, should abide: that, whatsoever ye should ask the Father in my name, he might give unto you. ¹⁷These things, I command you, That ye be loving one another. ¹⁸If, the world, is hating, you, ye are getting to know that, me, before you, it hath hated. ¹⁹If, of the world, ye had been, the world, of its own, had been fond; but, because, of the world, ye are not, on the contrary, I, chose you out of the world, therefore, the world, doth hate you. ²⁰Remember the word which, I, spake unto you: A servant is not greater than his lord. If, me, they persecuted, you too, will they persecute,—If, my word, they kept, your own also, will they keep. ²¹But, all these things, will they do unto you, on account of my name, because they know not him that sent me. ²²Had I not come and spoken unto them, Sin, had they none; but, now, have they no, excuse, for their sin. ²³He that hateth me, hateth, my Father also. ²⁴Had I not done among them, the works, which, no other, had done, sin, had they none; but, now, have they, both seen and hated both me and my Father. ²⁵But...that the word which, in their law, is written, might be fulfilled—They hated me without cause. ²⁶Whensoever the Advocate shall come, Whom, I, will send unto you from the Father, The Spirit of truth, which, from the Father, cometh forth, He, will bear witness concerning me; ²⁷And do, ye also, bear witness, because, from the beginning, ye are, with me,

¹⁶These things, have I spoken unto you, that ye may not be caused to stumble: ²Excommunicants from the synagogue, will they make you; Nay! there cometh an hour, that, every one who killeth you, shall think to be rendering, divine service, unto God! ³And, these things, will they do, because they got to know, neither the Father nor me. ⁴But, these things, have I told you,—That, whensoever their hour shall come, ye may remember, that, thereof, I told you. These things, however, I told you not, from the beginning, because I was, with you; ⁵But, now, I go my way unto him that sent me, and, not one from among you, questioneth me—Whither goest thou? ⁶But, because, these things, I have told you, sorrow, hath filled your heart. ⁷But, I, the truth, am telling you—It is profitable for you, that, I, depart; for, if I should not depart, The Advocate, would in nowise come unto you, but, if I go, I will send him unto you. ⁸And, having come, He, will reprove the world—Concerning sin, and concerning righteousness, and concerning judgment: ⁹Concerning sin, indeed, because they are not believing on me; ¹⁰But, concerning righteousness, because, unto the Father, I go my way, and, no longer, do ye behold me; ¹¹And, concerning judgment, because, the ruler of this world, hath been judged. ¹²Yet many things, have I, unto you, to be saying,—but ye cannot bear them, just now; ¹³Howbeit, as soon as, he, hath come—The Spirit of truth, he will guide you into all truth; for he will not speak from himself, but, whatsoever he heareth, he will speak, and, the coming things, will he announce unto you. ¹⁴He, shall glorify me; for, of mine, shall he receive, and announce unto you. ¹⁵All things, whatsoever the Father hath, are, my own; therefore, said I—Of mine, shall he receive, and announce unto you. ¹⁶A little while, and, no longer, ye behold me; and, again a little while, and ye shall see me. ¹⁷Some of his disciples, therefore, said one to another—What is this which he is saying to us:—A little while, and ye behold me not, and, again a little while, and ye shall see me; and—Because I go my way unto the Father? ¹⁸They were saying, therefore—What is this which he saith:—A little while? We know not \u01 what he is saying\u01. ¹⁹Jesus took note, that they were wishing to question him, and said unto them—Concerning this, are ye enquiring one with another,—because I said:—A little while, and ye behold me not, and, again, a little while, and ye shall see me? ²⁰Verily, verily, I say unto you—Ye, shall weep and lament, but, the world, shall rejoice: Ye, shall be grieved, but, your grief, into joy, shall be turned. ²¹A woman, as soon as she is about to bring forth, hath, grief, because her hour hath come; but, as soon as she hath given birth to the child, no longer, remembereth she the anguish, by reason of the joy, that a human being into the world hath been born. ²²And, ye, therefore, now, indeed have grief; but, again, will I see you, and your heart shall rejoice,—and, your joy, no one, shall force from you. ²³And, in that day, shall ye request me, nothing:—Verily, verily, I say unto you—Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father, He will give you, in my name. ²⁴Until even now, ye have asked nothing in my name: Be asking, and ye shall receive,—that, your joy, may be made full. ²⁵These things, in similitudes, have I spoken unto you: There cometh an hour, when, no longer in similitudes, will I speak unto you, but, openly, concerning the Father, will I tell you. ²⁶In that day, In my name, shall ye ask:—and I say not that, I, will request the Father for you; ²⁷For, the Father himself, dearly loveth you, because, ye, have dearly loved me, and believed that, I, from the Father, came forth:—²⁸I came forth out of the Father, and have come into the world,—Again, I leave the world, and go, unto the Father. ²⁹His disciples say—See! now, openly, art thou speaking, and, not a single similitude, art thou using: ³⁰Now, we know, that thou knowest all things, and hast, no need, that one be questioning thee. Hereby, do we believe, that, from God, thou camest forth. ³¹Jesus answered them—As yet, ye believe: ³²Lo! there cometh an hour, and hath come, that ye should be scattered, each, unto his own home; and, me, alone, should leave;—And yet I am not, alone, but, the Father, is, with me! ³³These things, have I spoken unto you, that, in me, ye may have, peace: In the world, ye have, tribulation; but be taking courage,—I, have overcome the world.

17 These things, spake Jesus, and, lifting up his eyes unto heaven, said:—Father! The hour is come! Glorify thy Son, that, the Son, may glorify, thee,—²Even as thou gavest him authority over all flesh, that, as touching whatsoever thou hast given him, he might give unto them, life age-abiding. ³And, this, is the age-abiding life, That they get to know thee, the only real God, and him whom thou didst send, Jesus Christ. ⁴I, glorified thee on the earth, The work, finishing, which thou hast given me that I should do. ⁵And, now, glorify me—thou, Father! with thyself, with the glory which I had, before the world's existence, with thee. ⁶I manifested thy name, unto the men whom thou gavest me out of the world: Thine, they were, and, to me, thou gavest them, and, thy word, have they kept: ⁷Now, have they come to know, That, all things, as many as thou gavest me, are, from thee; ⁸And, the declarations which thou gavest me, have I given them, and, they, received them, and came to know in truth, that, from thee, came I forth,—and they believed, that, thou, didst send me forth. ⁹I, concerning them, make request: not, concerning the world, do I make request, but concerning them whom thou hast given me, because, thine, they are,—¹⁰And, all my possessions, are, thine, and, thy possessions, mine, and I have been glorified in them. ¹¹And, no longer, am I in the world, and, they, are, in the world,—and, I, unto thee, am coming. Holy Father! Keep them in thy name which thou hast given me, that they may be one, as, we. ¹²When I was with them, I, kept them in thy name which thou hast given me,—And I kept watch, and, none from among them, went the destruction,—save the son of destruction, that, the Scripture, might be fulfilled. ¹³But, now, unto thee, am I coming; and, these things, am I speaking in the world, that they may have my own joy fulfilled in themselves. ¹⁴I, have given them thy word, and, the world, hated them, because they are not of the world—even as, I, am not of the world. ¹⁵I request not, that thou wouldst take them out of the world, but that thou wouldst keep them out of the evil: ¹⁶Of the world, they are not, even as, I, am not of the world. ¹⁷Hallow them in the truth: Thine own word, is, truth: ¹⁸Even as thou didst send me forth into the world, I also, send them forth into the world; ¹⁹And, on their behalf, I, hallow myself, that, they also, may have become hallowed in truth. ²⁰Not however concerning these alone, do I make request, but, concerning them also who believe, through their word, on me: ²¹That they, all, may be, one,—even as, thou, Father, in me, and, I, in thee,—that, they also, in us, may be;—that, the world, may believe that, thou, didst send me forth. ²²And, I, the glory which thou hast given to me, have given to them, that they may be one, even as, we, are, one.—²³I, in them and, thou, in me; That they may have been perfected into, one,—That the world may get to know, that, thou, didst send me forth, and didst love them even as thou didst love, me. ²⁴Father! As touching that which thou hast given me, I desire—That, where, I, am, they also, may be, with me, that they may behold my own glory which thou hast given me,—because thou lovedst me, before the foundation of the world. ²⁵Righteous Father! And so, the world, came not to know thee; but, I, came to know thee, and, these, came to know that, thou, didst send me forth: ²⁶And I made known unto them thy name, and will make known,—that, the love wherewith thou lovedst me, in them, may be, and, I, in them.

¹⁸Having said these things, Jesus, went out, with his disciples, across the winter-torrent of the Kedron, where was a garden,—into which he entered, he, and his disciples. ²Now, Judas also, who was delivering him up, knew the place: because, oft, had Jesus been gathered there, with his disciples. ³Judas, therefore, receiving the band, and officers, from among the High-priests and \ull from among\ul0 the Pharisees, cometh thither, with lights and torches and weapons. ⁴Jesus, therefore, knowing all the things coming upon him, went forth, and saith unto them—Whom, seek ye? ⁵They answered him—Jesus, the Nazarene. He saith unto them—I, am he. Now Judas also, who was delivering him up, was standing with them. ⁶When, therefore, he said unto them, I, am he, they went backwards, and fell to the ground. ⁷Again, therefore, he questioned them—Whom, seek ye? And, they, said—Jesus, the Nazarene. ⁸Jesus answered—I told you, I, am he. If, then, ye seek me, let these go their way:—⁹that the word might be fulfilled which he had said—As touching them whom thou hast given me, I lost from among them, not so much as one. ¹⁰Simon Peter, therefore, having a sword, drew it, and smote the High-priest's servant, and cut off his right ear. Now the name of the servant was Malchus. ¹¹Jesus, therefore, said unto Peter—Thrust the sword into its sheath:—The cup which the Father hath given me, shall I in anywise not drink it? ¹²The band, therefore, and the captain, and the officers of the Jews, apprehended Jesus, and bound him, ¹³and led him unto Annas, first; for he was father-in-law of Caiaphas, who was the High-priest of that year. ¹⁴Now Caiaphas was he that gave counsel unto the Jews, that it was profitable for, one man, to die in behalf of the people. ¹⁵And Simon Peter was following with Jesus, also another disciple. But, that disciple, was known unto the High-priest, and entered in, with Jesus, into the court of the High-priest; ¹⁶whereas, Peter, remained standing at the door outside. The other disciple, therefore, that was known of the High-priest, went out, and spake unto the portress, and brought in Peter. ¹⁷The female servant, therefore, the portress, saith unto Peter—Art, thou also, from among the disciples of this man? He, saith—I am not! ¹⁸Now the servants and the officers were standing by, having made, a coal fire, because it was cold,—and were warming themselves; and Peter also was with them, standing and warming himself. ¹⁹The High-priest, therefore, questioned Jesus concerning his disciples, and concerning his teaching. ²⁰Jesus answered him—I, openly, have spoken, unto the world,—I, ever, taught, in synagogue, and in the temple, where all the Jews gather together; and, in secret, spake nothing: ²¹Why questionest thou me? question them who have heard, what I spake unto them. See! these, know what, I, said. ²²And, when, these things, he had said, one of the officers who was standing by, gave a smart blow to Jesus, saying—Thus, answerest thou, the High-priest? ²³Jesus answered him—If, with abuse, I spake, bear witness of the abuse: but, if with respect, why, smitest thou me? ²⁴Annas therefore sent him forth, bound, unto Caiaphas the High-priest. ²⁵Now Simon Peter was standing and warming himself. They said, therefore, unto him—Art, thou also, from among his disciples? He, denied, and said—I am not! ²⁶Saith one from among the servants of the High-priest, being, kinsman, of him whose ear Peter cut off,—Did not, I, see thee, in the garden with him? ²⁷Again, therefore, Peter denied. And, straightway, a cock crew. ²⁸So they lead Jesus from Caiaphas unto the judgment-hall. Now it was early; and, they themselves, entered not into the judgment-hall, that they might not be defiled, but might eat the passover. ²⁹Pilate, therefore, went forth outside unto them, and saith,—What accusation bring ye against this man? ³⁰They answered and said unto him—If this one had not been doing, mischief, unto thee, had we not delivered him up. ³¹Pilate, therefore, said unto them—Ye, take him, and, according to your law, judge ye him. The Jews said unto him—Unto us, it is not allowed, to kill anyone!—³²that, the word of Jesus, might be fulfilled, which he spake, signifying, by what manner of death, he was about to die. ³³Pilate, therefore, entered again into the judgment-hall; and addressed Jesus, and said unto him—Art, thou, the king of the Jews? ³⁴Jesus answered—Of thyself, art, thou, this thing saying; or did, others, tell thee concerning me? ³⁵Pilate answered—Am, I, a Jew? Thine own nation, and the High-priests, delivered thee up, unto me! What, hast thou done? ³⁶Jesus answered—My kingdom, is not of this world: If, of this world, had been my kingdom, mine own officers, would have been striving, that I should not be delivered up unto the Jews: but, now, my kingdom, is not from hence. ³⁷Pilate, therefore, said unto him—And yet, thou, art, not a king? Jesus answered—Thou, sayest, that, a king, I am: I, for this, have been born, and, for this, have come into the world,—that I may bear witness unto the truth: Every one who is of the truth, hearkeneth unto my voice. ³⁸Pilate saith unto him—What, is truth? And, this saying, again, went he out to the Jews, and saith unto them,—I, find in him, not a single fault. ³⁹Howbeit ye have, a custom, that, some one, I should release unto you, during the passover:—Are ye minded, then, that I release unto you the king of the Jews? ⁴⁰So they cried aloud again, saying—Not this man, but Barabbas! Now, Barabbas, was, a robber.

¹⁹Then Pilate, therefore, took Jesus, and scourged him. ²And, the soldiers, plaiting a crown out of thorns, placed it upon his head, and, a purple robe, cast they about him; ³and kept coming unto him, and saying—Joy to thee! O King of the Jews!—and were giving unto him smart blows. ⁴And Pilate went forth again outside, and saith unto them—See! I lead him unto you outside, that ye may take knowledge, that, no single fault, do I find in him. ⁵Jesus, therefore, came forth outside, wearing the thorn crown, and the purple mantle. And he saith unto them—Lo! the Man! ⁶When, therefore, the High-priests and the officers saw him, they cried aloud, saying—Crucify! Crucify! Pilate saith unto them—Ye, take him, and crucify; for, I, find not in him, a fault. ⁷The Jews answered him—We, have, a law, and, according to the law, he ought to die, because, Son of God, himself, he made. ⁸When, therefore, Pilate heard this word, he was the more afraid; ⁹and entered into the judgment-hall again, and saith unto Jesus—Whence, art, thou? But, Jesus, gave him no, answer. ¹⁰Pilate, therefore, saith unto him—Unto me, dost thou not speak? Knowest thou not, that, authority, have I to release thee, and, authority, have I to crucify thee? ¹¹Jesus answered him—Thou couldst have had no authority against me, at all, if it had not been given unto thee from above. Therefore, he that delivered me unto thee, hath, greater sin. ¹²For this cause, Pilate, began seeking to release him; but, the Jews, cried aloud saying—If this man thou release, thou art not a friend of Caesar, for, every one who maketh himself king, speaketh against Caesar. ¹³Pilate, therefore, when he heard these words, led Jesus outside, and sat down upon a raised seat, in a place called Pavement, but, in Hebrew, Gabbatha. ¹⁴Now it was the preparation of the passover,—it was about the sixth hour. And he saith unto the Jews—See! your King! ¹⁵They, therefore, cried aloud—Away! away! Crucify him! Pilate saith unto them—Your king, shall I crucify? The High-priests answered—We have no king but Caesar! ¹⁶Then, therefore, he delivered him up unto them, that he might be crucified. They took possession, therefore, of Jesus. ¹⁷And, bearing for himself the cross, he went forth unto the so-called Skull-place, which is named, in Hebrew, Golgotha; ¹⁸where, him, they crucified; and, with him, other two, on this side and on that, and, in the midst, Jesus. ¹⁹And Pilate wrote a title also, and placed on the cross; and there was written—JESUS, THE NAZARENE, THE KING OF THE JEWS. ²⁰This title, therefore, read many of the Jews, because, near, was the place to the city where Jesus was crucified; ad it was written in Hebrew, in Latin, in Greek. ²¹The High-priests of the Jews, therefore, were saying unto Pilate—Do not be writing, The King of the Jews; but that, he, said: King of the Jews, I am. ²²Pilate answered—What I have written, I have written! ²³The soldiers, therefore, when they had crucified Jesus, took his garments and made four parts, unto each soldier, a part; also the tunic. Howbeit, the tunic was without seam, from above, woven throughout. ²⁴They said, therefore, one to another—Let us not rend it, but cast lots for it, whose, it shall be;—that, the Scripture, might be fulfilled—They parted my garments amongst them, and, for my vestment, they cast lots:—yes verily, the soldiers, these things did. ²⁵And there were standing by the cross of Jesus, his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of Clopas, and Mary the Magdalene. ²⁶Jesus, therefore, seeing his mother and the disciple whom he loved, saith unto his mother—O woman, see! thy son! ²⁷Afterwards, he saith unto the disciple—See! thy mother! And, from that hour, the disciple took her unto his own home. ²⁸After this, Jesus, knowing that, already, all things, have been finished,—that the Scripture might be fulfilled, saith—I thirst! ²⁹A vessel, was standing, full of vinegar. A sponge, therefore, full of the vinegar, put about, hyssop, brought they unto his mouth. ³⁰When, therefore, he had received the vinegar, Jesus said—It is finished! And, bowing his head, delivered up his spirit. ³¹The Jews, therefore, since it was, a preparation, that the bodies might not remain upon the cross during the Sabbath,—for that Sabbath day was, great, requested Pilate that their legs might be broken, and they be taken away. ³²The soldiers, therefore, came; and, of the first, indeed, brake the legs, and of the other who was crucified with him,—³³but coming, unto Jesus, when they saw that, already, he was dead, they brake not his legs;—³⁴but, one of the soldiers, with a spear, pierced, his side, and there came out, straightway, blood and water. ³⁵And, he that hath seen, hath borne witness; and, genuine, is his testimony, and, he, knoweth that he saith, what is true, that, ye also, may believe. ³⁶For these things came to pass, that, the Scripture, might be fulfilled—A bone thereof, shall not be crushed; ³⁷and, again, a different Scripture, saith—They shall look unto him whom they pierced. ³⁸But, after these things, Joseph from Arimathaea, being a disciple of Jesus, but having kept it secret for fear of the Jews, requested Pilate, that he might take away the body of Jesus; and Pilate gave permission. He came, therefore, and took away his body. ³⁹There came, moreover, Nicodemus also,—he that came unto him by night at the first,—bearing a roll of myrrh and aloes, about a hundred pounds' weight. ⁴⁰So they received the body of Jesus, and bound it in linen-bandages with the spices,—just as it is, a custom, with the Jews to prepare for burial. ⁴¹Now there was, in the place where he was crucified, a garden; and, in the garden, an unused tomb, wherein, as yet, no one had been laid. ⁴²So, there, by reason of the preparation of the Jews, because, near, was the tomb, laid they Jesus.

20But, on the first day of the week, Mary the Magdalene, cometh early, while it is yet, dark, unto the tomb,—and beholdeth the stone, already taken away out of the tomb. ²She runneth, therefore, and cometh unto Simon Peter, and unto the other disciple whom Jesus dearly loved, and saith unto them—They have taken away the Lord out of the tomb, and we know not where they have laid him. ³Peter, therefore, went out, and the other disciple,—and they were going unto the tomb; ⁴and the two were running together, and, the other disciple, outran Peter, and came first unto the tomb; ⁵and, stooping aside, behold—

eth, lying, the linen-bandages, nevertheless, he entered not. ⁶So Simon Peter also cometh, following him, and entered into the tomb, and vieweth the linen-bandages lying,—⁷and the napkin, which was upon his head, not, with the linen-bandages, lying, but apart, folded up into one place. ⁸Then, entered, therefore, the other disciple also, who had come first unto the tomb, and he saw and believed. ⁹For, not yet, knew they the Scripture, that he must needs, from among the dead, arise. ¹⁰The disciples, therefore, departed again, by themselves. ¹¹Howbeit, Mary, remained standing against the tomb, outside, weeping. So then, as she wept, she stooped aside into the tomb, ¹²and beholdeth two messengers, in white garments, sitting, one at the head, and the other at the feet, where had been lying the body of Jesus. ¹³And, they, say unto her—Woman! why weepest thou? She saith unto them—They have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him. ¹⁴These things saying, she turned round, and seeth Jesus standing, and knew not that it was, Jesus. ¹⁵Jesus saith unto her—Woman! why weepest thou? Whom seekest thou? She, supposing he was, the gardener, saith unto him—Sir! If, thou, hast borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him; and, I, will take him away. ¹⁶Jesus saith unto her—Mary! She, turning saith unto him, in Hebrew—Rabboni! which meaneth, Teacher. ¹⁷Jesus saith unto her—Be not detaining me, for, not yet, have I ascended unto the Father; but be going unto my disciples, and say unto them—I am ascending unto my Father and your Father, and my God and your God. ¹⁸Mary the Magdalene cometh, bringing tidings unto the disciples—I have seen the Lord! and that these things he had said unto her. ¹⁹It being late, therefore, on that day, the first of the week,—and, the doors, having been made fast where the disciples were, for fear of the Jews, Jesus came, and stood in the midst, and saith unto them—Peace be unto you! ²⁰and, this, saying he pointed out both his hands and his side unto them. The disciples, therefore, rejoiced, seeing the Lord. ²¹Jesus, therefore, said unto them, again,—Peace be unto you! Just as, my Father, sent me forth, I, also, send you. ²²And, this, saying, he breathed strongly, and saith unto them—Receive ye Holy Spirit:—²³Whosoever sins ye shall remit, they are remitted unto them, whosoever ye shall retain, they are retained. ²⁴But, Thomas, one of the twelve, the one called Didymus, was not with them when Jesus came. ²⁵The other disciples, therefore, were saying unto him—We have seen the Lord! But, he, said unto them—Except I see, in his hands, the print of the nails, and press my finger into the print of the nails, and press my hand into his side, in nowise will I believe. ²⁶And, eight days after, his disciples again were within, and Thomas with them. Jesus cometh—the doors having been made fast—and stood in the midst, and said—Peace be unto you! ²⁷Then, saith he unto Thomas—Reach thy finger hither, and see my hands, and reach thy hand, and press into my side,—and become not disbelieving, but believing. ²⁸Thomas answered, and said unto him—My Lord, and my God! ²⁹Jesus saith unto him—Because thou hast seen me, hast thou believed? Happy, they who have not seen, and yet have believed! ³⁰Many other signs, doubtless, did Jesus, in presence of the disciples, which are not written in this book; ³¹but, these, are written, that ye may believe that, Jesus, is, the Christ, the Son of God; and that, believing, ye may have life in his name.

21After these things, Jesus manifested himself again, unto the disciples, by the sea of Tiberias; and manifested himself, thus:—²There were together, Simon Peter, and Thomas, who was called Didymus, and Nathanael, who was from Cana of Galilee, and the sons of Zebedee, and, two other, of his disciples. ³Simon Peter saith unto them—I go a fishing! They say unto him—We also, go with thee! They went out, and got up into the boat, and during that night, they caught nothing. ⁴But, morning by this time drawing on, Jesus stood upon the beach; nevertheless, the disciples knew not that it was, Jesus. ⁵Jesus, therefore, saith unto them—Children! perhaps ye have nothing to eat? They answered him—No. ⁶And, he, said unto them—Cast the net, on the right side of the boat,—and ye shall find. They cast, therefore; and, no longer, were they able, to draw, it, for the multitude of the fishes. ⁷That disciple, therefore, whom Jesus loved, saith unto Peter—It is, the Lord! Simon Peter, therefore, hearing that it was the Lord, girded about him, his upper garment,—for he was naked; and cast himself into the sea; ⁸but, the other disciples, came, by the little boat,—for they were not farther from the land than about two hundred cubits off,—dragging the net of fishes. ⁹So, when they got out upon the land, they behold a coal fire lying, and fish lying over, and bread. ¹⁰Jesus saith unto them—Bring of the fish which ye caught just now. ¹¹Simon Peter, therefore, went on board, and drew the net on to the land,—full of large fishes, a hundred and fifty-three; and, though they were so many, the net was not rent. ¹²Jesus saith unto them—Come! break your fast. Not one, of the disciples was venturing to ask him, Who art, thou? knowing that it was, the Lord. ¹³Jesus cometh, and taketh the bread, and giveth unto them; and the fish, in like manner. ¹⁴This, already, is the third time Jesus was manifested unto the disciples, after he was raised from among the dead. ¹⁵When, therefore, they had broken their fast, Jesus saith unto Simon Peter—Simon, son of John! lovest thou me more than these? He saith unto him—Yea, Lord! thou, knowest that I am fond of thee, he saith unto him—Be feeding my lambs. ¹⁶He saith unto him, again, the second time—Simon, son of John! lovest thou me? He saith unto him—Yea, Lord! thou, knowest that I am fond of thee. He saith unto him—Be shepherding my sheep. ¹⁷He saith unto him, the third time—Simon, son of John! art thou fond of me? Peter was grieved, that he said unto him, the third time, Art thou fond of me? and he said unto him—Lord! all things, thou, knowest: thou perceivest that I am fond of thee. Jesus saith unto him—Be feeding my sheep. ¹⁸Verily, verily, I say unto thee—When thou wast younger, thou usedst to gird thyself, and to walk whither thou didst choose; but, when thou shalt become aged, thou shalt stretch out thy hands, and, another, shall gird thee, and bear thee, whither thou dost not choose. ¹⁹Now, this, he said, signifying, by what manner of death, he should glorify God. And, having said this, he saith unto him—Be following me. ²⁰Peter, turning about, beholdeth the disciple whom Jesus loved, following,—who also reclined during the supper upon his breast, and said—Lord, who is it that is delivering thee up? ²¹Peter, therefore, seeing, this one, saith unto Jesus—Lord! and, this one, what? ²²Jesus saith unto him—If I will that, he, remain until I come, what is that to thee? Thou, be following me. ²³This word, therefore, went forth unto the brethren, that, that disciple, should not die. Howbeit, Jesus did not tell him, he should not die; but, If I will that, he, remain until I come, what is that to thee? ²⁴This, is the disciple who beareth witness concerning these things, and who hath written these things; and we know that, true, is, his witness. ²⁵Now there are many other things also, which Jesus did, which, indeed, if they were to be written one by one, not even the world, itself, I suppose, would contain, the books which must be written.

Acts

¹The first narrative, indeed, made I, concerning all things, O Theophilus, which Jesus began both to do and teach,—²Until the day when, having given command unto the apostles, whom through Holy Spirit he had chosen, he was taken up; ³Unto whom he also presented himself alive, after he had suffered, by many sure tokens, throughout forty days making himself visible unto them, and speaking the things concerning the kingdom of God. ⁴And being in company with them he charged them, from Jerusalem, not to absent themselves, but—To abide around the promise of the Father which ye have heard of me, ⁵Because, John, indeed, immersed with water; but, ye, in Holy Spirit shall be immersed,—after not many of these days. ⁶They, therefore, having come together, began to question him, saying—Lord! art thou at this time duly establishing the kingdom unto Israel? ⁷He said unto them—It is not yours to get to know times or seasons which the Father hath put in his own authority; ⁸But ye shall receive power when the Holy Spirit cometh upon you, and ye shall be my witnesses, both in Jerusalem and \u1 in\u0 all Judaea and Samaria and as far as the uttermost part of the land. ⁹And having said these things, as they were beholding, he was lifted up, and a cloud caught him away from their eyes. ¹⁰And, while they were looking steadfastly into heaven as he was going his way, then lo! two men had taken their stand beside them, in white garments,—¹¹Who also said—Men of Galilee! why stand ye looking into heaven? This Jesus who hath been taken up from you into heaven, shall so come, in like manner as ye yourselves have gazed upon him going into heaven. ¹²Then returned they into Jerusalem, from a mountain called Olivet, which is nigh unto Jerusalem a Sabbath day's journey. ¹³And, when they had entered, into the upper-story went they up, where remained behind—both Peter and John and James and Andrew, Philip and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James the son of Alphaeus and Simon the zealot, and Judas the son of James. ¹⁴These all were giving constant attention with one accord unto the prayer, with \u11 certain\u0 women, and Mary the mother of Jesus, and with his brethren. ¹⁵And, in these days, Peter, standing up in the midst of the brethren, said,—and there was a multitude of names, of one accord, about a hundred and twenty,—¹⁶Brethren! It was needful for the Scripture to be fulfilled which the Holy Spirit spake beforehand through the mouth of David, concerning Judas,—who became guide unto them who apprehended Jesus; ¹⁷For that he had come to be reckoned among us and obtained the lot of this ministry.—¹⁸This man therefore had possessed himself of a field out of the reward of unrighteousness,—and falling headlong burst asunder in the midst, and forth gushed all his bowels; ¹⁹And it became known unto all them who were dwelling in Jerusalem, so that that field was called, in their language, Akeldama, that is, Field of Blood.—²⁰For it is written in the book of Psalms: Let his encampment become desolate, and let there be none to dwell therein! And—his overseership, let a different man take! ²¹It is needful then that, of the men who companied with us during all the time in which the Lord Jesus came in and went out over us, ²²Beginning from the immersion by John until the day when he was taken up from us, that, a witness of his resurrection along with us, should one of these become. ²³And they appointed two,—Joseph, called Barsabbas, who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias. ²⁴And, praying, they said—Thou Lord! observer of the hearts of all men! shew forth whom thou hast chosen,—of these two, one;—²⁵To take the place of this ministry and apostleship, from which Judas went aside, to go his way unto his own place. ²⁶And they gave lots for them; and the lot fell upon Matthias, and he was numbered with the eleven apostles.

²And, when the day of pentecost was filling up the number of days they were all together with one intent;—²When there came suddenly out of heaven a sound, just as of a mighty rushing wind,—and it filled all the house where they were sitting; ³And there appeared unto them—parting asunder—tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each one of them; ⁴And they were all filled with Holy Spirit, and began to be speaking with other kinds of tongues just as the Spirit was giving unto them to be sounding forth. ⁵Now there were in Jerusalem sojourning Jews, reverent men from every nation who were under heaven; ⁶And this sound occurring the throng came together and was thrown into confusion, because each one severally heard in his own language them who were speaking; ⁷Yea they were beside themselves and did marvel, saying—Lo! are not all these who are speaking Galilaeans? ⁸How then do, we, hear each one in our own language in which we were born? ⁹Parthians and Medes and Elamites, and those dwelling in Mesopotamia, Judaea also and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia, ¹⁰Phrygia also and Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of the Libya that is towards Cyrene, and the sojourning Romans,—both Jews and proselytes, ¹¹Cretans and Arabians, we do hear them speaking in our own tongues the magnificent things of God. ¹²But they were all beside themselves and were utterly at a loss, saying one to another—What doth this please to be? ¹³While, others, in mockery were saying—With sweet wine, are they drunken! ¹⁴But, taking his stand, Peter with the eleven lifted up his voice, and sounded out unto them—Ye men of Judaea, and all ye who are sojourning in Jerusalem! Let, this, unto you be known, and give ear unto my declarations;—¹⁵For not, as, ye, suppose, are these men drunken, for it is the third hour of the day;—¹⁶But this is that which hath been spoken through the prophet Joel—¹⁷And it shall be, in the last days saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh; and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and, your young men, visions shall see and, your elders, in dreams shall dream,—¹⁸And, even upon my men-servants and upon my maid-servants in those days, will I pour out of my Spirit, and they shall prophesy; ¹⁹And I will set forth wonders in the heaven above, and signs upon the earth beneath,—blood and fire and vapour of smoke: ²⁰The sun, shall be turned into darkness and, the moon, into blood,—before the coming of the day of the Lord, the great and manifest day; ²¹And it shall be—Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord, shall be saved. ²²Ye men of Israel! hear these words:—Jesus the Nazarene, a man pointed out of God unto you by mighty works and wonders and signs, which God did through him in your midst, just as ye yourselves know, ²³The same, by the marked out counsel and foreknowledge of God given up, through the hands of lawless men, suspending, ye slew, ²⁴Whom, God, raised up, loosing the pangs of death, inasmuch as it was, not possible, for him to continue held fast by it. ²⁵For, David, saith concerning him—I foresaw the Lord before me continually, because he is, on my right hand, that I may not be shaken; ²⁶For this reason, was my heart made glad and my tongue exulted,—ye further, even my flesh, shall encamp on hope: ²⁷Because thou wilt not abandon my soul unto hades, neither wilt thou give thy man of lovingkindness to see corruption; ²⁸Thou madest known unto me paths of life, thou wilt make me full of gladness with thy countenance. ²⁹Brethren! it is, allowable, to say with freedom of speech unto you, concerning the patriarch David,—that he both died and was buried, and, his tomb, is among us until this day. ³⁰Being then, a prophet, and knowing that, with an oath, God had sworn unto him, of the fruit of his loins, to seat on his throne, ³¹With foresight, spake he concerning the resurrection of the Christ—that neither was he abandoned unto hades, nor did his flesh see corruption. ³²The same Jesus, hath God raised up, whereof, all we, are witnesses! ³³By the right hand of God, therefore, having been exalted, also, the promise of the Holy Spirit, having received from the Father, He hath poured out this which, yourselves, do see and hear. ³⁴For, David, hath not ascended into the heavens; but he saith, himself,—Said the Lord unto my Lord, Sit thou at my right hand, ³⁵Until I make thy foes thy footstool. ³⁶Assuredly, then, let all the house of Israel know: that, both Lord and Christ, hath God made him, even the same Jesus whom, ye, crucified! ³⁷And, when they heard this, they were pricked to the heart, and said unto Peter and the rest of the apostles—What are we to do, brethren? ³⁸And Peter said unto them—Repent ye, and let each one of you be immersed, in the name of Jesus Christ, into the remission of your sins,—and ye shall receive the free-gift of the Holy Spirit; ³⁹For, unto you, is the promise, and unto your children,—and unto all them who are afar off: as many soever as the Lord our God shall call unto him. ⁴⁰And, with many different words, bare he frail witness, and went on exhorting them saying—Be saved from this perverse generation! ⁴¹They, therefore, who welcomed his word, were immersed; and there were added, on that day, about three thousand souls. ⁴²And they went on to give constant attention—unto the teaching of the apostles, and unto the fellowship, unto the breaking of bread, and unto the prayers. ⁴³And there came on every soul, fear, and, many wonders and signs, through means of the apostles, were coming to pass. ⁴⁴And, all who believed, with one accord, began to hold all things common; ⁴⁵and, their possessions and goods, were they selling and distributing them unto all, in so far as anyone had need. ⁴⁶And, daily giving attendance with one intent in the temple and, at home, breaking bread, they were partaking of food with exultation and singleness of heart; ⁴⁷Praising God, and having favour with all the people. And, the Lord, was adding them who were being saved, daily, together.

3Now, Peter and John, were going up into the temple, for the hour of prayer—the ninth; ²And, a certain man, who had been, lame from his mother's womb, was being carried,—whom they used to lay daily at the door of the temple—the door called Beautiful, that he might ask alms of them who were entering into the temple: ³Who, seeing Peter and John about to enter into the temple, was requesting to receive, an alms. ⁴But Peter looking steadfastly at him—with John—said: Look on us! ⁵And, he, gave heed unto them, expecting to receive, something from them. ⁶But Peter said—Silver and gold, have none, but, what I have, the same, unto thee do give:—In the name of Jesus Christ the Nazarene, Walk! ⁷And, laying hold of him by the right hand, he raised him up; and, instantly, were his feet and ankles strengthened;—⁸And, leaping forward, he stood and walked, and entered with them into the temple, walking and leaping and praising God. ⁹And all the people saw him, walking and praising God; ¹⁰And they began to recognise him, that, the same, was he who, for the alms, used to sit at the Beautiful Gate of the temple;—and they were filled with amazement and transport at what had happened unto him. ¹¹And, as he held fast Peter and John, all the people ran together unto them, in the portico which is called Solomon's,—greatly amazed. ¹²And Peter, seeing it, made answer unto the people:—Ye men of Israel! Why marvel ye at this man? Or, upon us, why are ye intently looking, as though, by our own power or godliness, we had made him walk? ¹³The God of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob,—the God of our fathers, hath glorified his servant Jesus:—whom, ye, indeed, delivered up and denied to Pilate's, face when he had adjudged to release him; ¹⁴But, ye, denied, the Holy and Righteous One, and claimed a man that was a murderer to be granted you; ¹⁵But, the Princely Leader of Life, ye slew:—whom, God, raised from among the dead, whereof, we, are witnesses. ¹⁶And, by the faith of his name, unto this man whom ye see and know, hath his name given strength,—yea, the faith which is through him, hath given unto him this perfect soundness, over against you all! ¹⁷And now brethren, I know that by way of ignorance ye acted,—just as even your rulers. ¹⁸Howbeit, God—what things he had before declared, through the mouth of all the prophets, for his Christ to suffer,—did thus fulfill! ¹⁹Repent ye, therefore, and turn,—unto the blotting out of your sins; to the end that in that case, there may come seasons of refreshing from the face of the Lord, ²⁰And he may send forth him who had been fore-appointed for you—Christ Jesus: ²¹Unto whom, indeed, heaven must needs give welcome, until the times of the due establishment of all things, of which God hath spoken through the mouth of his holy age-past prophets. ²²Moses, indeed, said—A prophet, unto you, shall the Lord God raise up among your brethren, like unto me: unto him, shall ye hearken respecting all things whatsoever he shall speak unto you. ²³And it shall be—every soul, whatsoever, which shall not hearken unto that prophet, shall be utterly destroyed from among the people. ²⁴But, indeed, all the prophets,—from Samuel and those following after, as many as have spoken, have even announced these days. ²⁵Ye, are the sons of the prophets, and of the covenant which God covenanted unto your fathers, saying unto Abraham—And, in thy seed, shall be blessed, all the families of the ground. ²⁶Unto you first, God—having raised up his Servant—hath sent him forth, ready to bless you, when ye are turning away, each one, from your wickednesses.

⁴But, as they were speaking unto the people, the High-priests and the Captain of the temple and the Sadducees came upon them, ²Being tired out because of their teaching the people, and announcing, in Jesus, the resurrection from among the dead; ³And they thrust on them their hands, and put them in custody for the morrow, for it was evening, already. ⁴Howbeit, many of them that heard the word, believed; and the number of the men became about five thousand. ⁵And it came to pass, upon the morrow, that there were gathered together of them, the rulers and the elders and the scribes, in Jerusalem; ⁶Also Annas, the high-priest, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, and as many as were of high-priestly descent;—⁷And, setting them in the midst, they began to enquire—In what manner of power, or in what manner of name, did, ye, do this? ⁸Then Peter, filled with Holy Spirit, said unto them—Ye rulers of the people, and elders! ⁹If, we, this day, are to be examined for doing good to a sick man,—in whom, this, man hath been made well, ¹⁰Be it known unto you all, and unto all the people of Israel: that, in the name of Jesus Christ the Nazarene,—whom, ye, crucified, whom, God, raised from among the dead, in him, doth, this man stand by, in your presence, whole. ¹¹This, is the stone, set at nought by you the builders, which became the head of the corner; ¹²And there is in no one else, salvation, for, neither is there any other name, under heaven, which hath been set forth among men, in which we must needs be saved. ¹³And, looking at Peter's boldness of speech, and John's, and having discovered that they were unlettered and obscure men, they began to marvel, recognising them also, that they had been with Jesus; ¹⁴Seeing, the man also standing, with them, even the man who had been cured, they had nothing wherewith to contradict. ¹⁵Howbeit, ordering them to go forth outside the high-council, they began to confer one with another, ¹⁶Saying—What are we to do with these men? For, indeed, that a notable sign hath come to pass through their means, unto all who are dwelling in Jerusalem, is manifest, and we cannot deny it! ¹⁷Nevertheless, lest it further spread abroad among the people, let us charge them with threats, to be no more speaking upon this name, to any soul of man. ¹⁸And, calling them, they gave them the sweeping charge,—not to be sounding aloud, nor even to be teaching, upon the name of Jesus. ¹⁹But, Peter and John, answering, said unto them—Whether it be right in presence of God, unto you, to be hearkening, rather than unto God, judge! ²⁰For, we, cannot but be speaking the things which we have seen and heard. ²¹They, however, further charging them with threats, let them go, finding nothing as to how they might chastise them, on account of the people; because, all, were glorifying God for that which had come to pass;—²²For, more than forty years old, was the man, upon whom had taken place, this healing sign. ²³But, when they had been let go, they came unto their own friends, and told as many things as, unto them, the High-priests and Elders, had said. ²⁴And, they, having heard, with one accord, uplifted voice unto God, and said—O Sovereign! Thou, art he that made the heaven, and the earth, and the sea, and all things that are herein: ²⁵Who, by our father, through means of the Holy Spirit, even by the mouth of David thy servant, said—Unto what end did nations rage, and, peoples, busy themselves with empty things? ²⁶The kings of the earth stationed themselves, and, the rulers, were gathered together, with one intent, against the Lord, and against his Christ. ²⁷For they were gathered together, of a truth, in this city, against thy holy servant Jesus, whom thou hadst anointed,—both Herod, and Pontius Pilate, with them of the nations, and peoples of Israel;—²⁸To do whatsoever, thy hand and thy counsel, marked out beforehand to come to pass. ²⁹As to the present things, then, O Lord,—look upon their threats, and grant unto thy servants, with all freedom of utterance, to be speaking thy word, ³⁰By stretching forth thy hand for healing, and by the coming to pass of both signs and wonders, through the name of thy holy servant Jesus. ³¹And, when they had made supplication, the place was shaken in which they were gathered together, and they were filled, one and all, with the Holy Spirit, and began speaking the word of God with freedom of utterance. ³²And, the throng of them that believed, had one heart and soul, and not so much as one was saying that, aught of his goods, was, his own, but they had all things common. ³³And, with great power, were the apostles giving forth their witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus; great favour also was upon them all. ³⁴For there was not so much as anyone, lacking, among them; for, as many as were possessors of lands or houses, selling them, were bringing the prices of the things that were being sold, ³⁵And laying them at the feet of the Apostles, while on the other hand they were distributing unto each one, in so far as any one had, need. ³⁶And, Joseph, who had been surnamed Barnabas by the Apostles, which is to be translated Son of Exhortation,—a Levite, a Cyprian by nation, ³⁷Having a field, sold it, and brought the money and laid it at the feet of the Apostles.

⁵But, a certain man, Ananias by name, with Sapphira his wife, sold a possession, ²And kept back part of the price, his wife also being privy to it; and, bringing a certain part, at the feet of the Apostles, he laid it. ³But Peter said—Ananias! wherefore did Satan fill thy heart, that thou shouldst deal falsely with the Holy Spirit, and keep back part of the price of the field? ⁴While it remained, was it not, as thine own, it remained? and, when sold, was it not, in thine own authority, that it still continued? Why was it that thou didst contrive in thy heart this deed? Thou hast not dealt falsely with men but, with God. ⁵And, as Ananias heard these words, he fell, and expired. And there came great fear upon all that heard; ⁶But the young men, rising up, wrapped him about, and, bearing him forth, buried him. ⁷And it came to pass, after about three hours interval, that his wife, not knowing what had happened, came in. ⁸And Peter began to say unto her—Tell me! was it, for so much, ye gave up the field? And she said—Yea! for so much. ⁹And, Peter, said unto her—Why was it agreed by you to put to the proof the Spirit of the Lord? Lo! the feet of them that have buried thy husband, are at the door, and they shall bear thee forth. ¹⁰And she fell instantly at his feet, and expired. And the young men, coming in, found her dead; and, bearing her forth, they buried her with her husband. ¹¹And there came great fear upon the whole assembly, and upon all them that heard these things. ¹²And, through the hands of the Apostles, were coming to pass many signs and wonders among the people; and they were all with one accord in the portico of Solomon; ¹³Howbeit, of the rest, no one, durst join himself unto them,—nevertheless the people continued to magnify them; ¹⁴And, the more, were being added, when they believed in the Lord, throngs both of men and women;—¹⁵So that, even into the broad-ways, were they bringing forth the sick, and laying them on small couches and beds, in order that, if Peter were coming along, even perchance his shadow, might overshadow some one of them. ¹⁶Moreover even the throng of the cities all round Jerusalem was coming together, bearing sick folk, and such as were harassed by impure spirits,—who, indeed, were being cured, one and all. ¹⁷But the High-priest, arising, and all who were with him,—being the sect of the Sadducees,—were filled with jealousy, ¹⁸And thrust their hands upon the Apostles, and put them in a public ward. ¹⁹But, a messenger of the Lord, by night, opened the doors of the prison; and, leading them out, said—²⁰Be going your way, and, taking your stand, be speaking, in the temple, unto the people, all the declarations of this Life. ²¹Now, when they heard this, they entered, under the dawn, into the temple, and began teaching. And the High-priest and they who were with him, arriving, called together the high-council, and all the senate of the sons of Israel; and sent off unto the prison, to have them brought. ²²And, the officers who came to the place, found them not in the prison; and, returning, brought tidings, ²³Saying—The prison, found we locked with all safety, and the keepers standing at the doors; but, when we had opened the prison, inside, found we, no one. ²⁴Now, when both the captain of the temple and the High-priests heard these words, they were utterly at a loss concerning them—what perhaps this might come to. ²⁵But some one, entering, brought tidings unto them—Lo! the men whom ye put in the prison, are in the temple, standing, and teaching the people! ²⁶Then, the captain with the officers, departing, brought them—not with violence,—for they were afraid of the people, lest they should be stoned; ²⁷But, leading them in, set them in the high-council. And the High-priest questioned them, ²⁸Saying—Strictly, did we charge you not to be teaching upon this name; and lo! ye have filled Jerusalem with your teaching, and are

minded to bring down upon us, the blood of this man. ²⁹But Peter and the Apostles, answering, said—It is needful to be yielding obedience unto God rather than unto men:—³⁰The God of our fathers, hath raised up Jesus,—whom, ye, got into your hands, suspending him upon a tree:—³¹Him, as Princely-leader and Saviour, hath God exalted unto his right hand,—to give repentance unto Israel, and remission of sins. ³²And, we, are witnesses of these things,—also the Holy Spirit, which God hath given unto them who are yielding obedience unto him. ³³And, they, when they heard this, were cut to the heart, and were making up their minds to slay them. ³⁴But a certain man, rising up in the high-council, by name Gamaliel, a law-teacher honoured by all the people, gave orders to put the men, outside, for a little,—³⁵And said unto them—Men of Israel! be taking heed unto yourselves, what ye are about to inflict upon these men. ³⁶For, before these days, there rose up one Theudas, affirming, himself, to be somebody,—unto whom was inclined a number of men, about four hundred; who was slain, and, all as many as had been trusting in him, were disbanded, and came to nothing. ³⁷After him, rose up Judas the Galilaean, in the days of the enrolling, and drew a people into revolt after him; and, he, perished, and, all, as many as had trusted in him, were scattered. ³⁸Now, therefore, I say unto you—stand aloof from these men, and let them alone; because if, of men, be this project or this work, it will be overthrown,—³⁹But, if it is, of God, ye will not be able to overthrow them: lest once, even fighters against God, ye be found. ⁴⁰And they were persuaded by him; and, calling unto them the Apostles, they, with beating, charged them not be speaking upon the name of Jesus; and let them go. ⁴¹They, therefore, went rejoicing from the presence of the high-council; in that they had been accounted worthy, in behalf of The Name, to suffer dishonour. ⁴²And, every day in the temple, and at home, they ceased not to be teaching, and telling the good news as to the Anointed Jesus.

⁶But, in these days, the disciples, multiplying, there arose a murmuring of the Grecian Jews against the Hebrews, in that, their widows, were being overlooked in the daily ministry. ²And the Twelve, calling near the throng of the disciples, said—It doth not seem, right, that, we, forsaking the word of God, should be ministering unto tables. ³But look out for yourselves, brethren, seven men from among you, who can be well-attested, full of Spirit and wisdom,—whom we will appoint over this need; ⁴But, we, unto prayer and unto the ministry of the word, will give constant attention. ⁵And the word was pleasing in the sight of all the throng; and they selected Stephen, a man full of faith and Holy Spirit, and Philip and Prochorus and Nicanor and Timon and Parmenas and Nicholas, a proselyte of Antioch; ⁶Whom they set before the Apostles, and, praying, they laid upon them their hands. ⁷And, the word of God, went on growing, and the number of the disciples in Jerusalem continued to multiply exceedingly; a great multitude of the priests also, were becoming obedient unto the faith. ⁸Now, Stephen, full of favour and power, began to do great wonders and signs among the people. ⁹But there rose up certain of those out of the synagogue which is called the synagogue of them of Libertium and Cyrene and Alexandria, and certain of them from Cilicia and Asia,—disputing with Stephen; ¹⁰And they could not withstand the wisdom and the Spirit with which he was speaking, ¹¹Then, they set on men who were saying—We have heard him speaking profane things against Moses and God. ¹²And they stirred up the people and the elders and the scribes; and, coming upon him, they caught him away, and led him into the high-council. ¹³And they set up false witnesses, who said—This man, ceaseth not speaking things against this holy place and the law; ¹⁴For we have heard him saying—This Jesus the Nazarene, will overthrow this place, and will change the customs which, Moses, delivered unto us. ¹⁵And, looking steadfastly at him, all they who were sitting in the high-council, saw his face, as if the face of a messenger;

⁷And the High-priest said—Are these things, so? ²And, he, said—Brethren and fathers, hearken! The God of Glory, appeared unto our father Abraham, while he was in Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Haran,—³And said unto him—Get thee forth, out of thy land, and from among thy kindred, and come unto the land which, unto thee, I will point out. ⁴Then, coming forth out of the land of the Chaldeans, he dwelt in Haran; and, from thence, when his father was dead, he removed him into this land, in which, ye, now dwell; ⁵And gave him no inheritance therein, not even a place to set his foot on; and yet promised to give it unto him in possession, and unto his seed after him, when as yet he had not a child. ⁶But God, spake thus—His seed shall be a sojourner in a foreign land, and they will bring it into bondage, and ill-treat it four-hundred years; ⁷And, the nation unto which they shall be in bondage, will, I, judge—said God; and, after these things, shall they come forth, and render divine service unto me, in this place. ⁸And he gave unto him a covenant of circumcision; and, thus, he begat Isaac, and circumcised him on the eighth day, and Isaac, Jacob, and Jacob, the twelve patriarchs. ⁹And, the patriarchs, being jealous of Joseph, gave him up into Egypt; and, God, was, with him, ¹⁰And rescued him out of all his tribulations, and gave him favour and wisdom before Pharaoh king of Egypt; and he appointed him governor over Egypt and all his house. ¹¹And there came a famine upon all Egypt and Canaan, and great tribulation, and our fathers could not find pasture. ¹²But Jacob, hearing there was corn in Egypt, sent off our fathers, first; ¹³And, the second time, Joseph was made known unto his brethren, and, the race of Joseph was made, manifest, unto

Pharaoh. ¹⁴And Joseph, sending forth, called for Jacob his father, and all the kindred, consisting of seventy-five souls; ¹⁵And Jacob went down into Egypt. And he died, he, and our fathers; ¹⁶And were brought over into Shechem, and laid in the tomb which Abraham had purchased, for a price of silver, of the sons of Hamor in Shechem. ¹⁷Now, just as the time of the promise was drawing near wherewith God had agreed with Abraham, the people grew, and were multiplied in Egypt,—¹⁸Until there arose another sort of king over Egypt, who had not known Joseph. ¹⁹The same, dealing craftily with our race, ill-treated our fathers, so as to cause their babes to be exposed, to the end they might not be suffered to live. ²⁰In which season, Moses, was born, and was exceeding goodly,—who was nourished up three months in the house of his father; ²¹But, when he was exposed, the daughter of Pharaoh rescued him, and nourished him for herself, as a son. ²²And, so Moses was trained in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and was mighty in his words and works. ²³And, when there was being fulfilled unto him a period of forty years, it came up on his heart to look after his brethren the sons of Israel; ²⁴And, seeing one being wronged, he defended him, and avenged him that was getting worn out, smiting the Egyptian. ²⁵But he supposed his brethren would understand that, God, through his hand, would give them deliverance; whereas they understood not. ²⁶On the following day also, he appeared unto them, as they were contending, and would have reconciled them in peace, saying—Men! ye are, brothers! Wherefore wrong ye one another? ²⁷But, he that was wronging his neighbour, thrust him away, saying—Who hath appointed, thee, to be ruler and judge over us? ²⁸Art, thou, wishing, to kill me, in the same way thou didst kill, yesterday, the Egyptian? ²⁹And Moses fled at this saying, and became a sojourner in the land of Midian, where he begat two sons. ³⁰And, when forty years were fulfilled, there appeared unto him, in the desert of Mount Sinai, a messenger, in a flame of fire, in a bush. ³¹And, Moses, seeing it, marvelled at the sight; and, as he was going near to observe, there came a voice of the Lord—³²I, am the God of thy fathers, The God of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob. And Moses becoming, terrified, durst not observe. ³³And the Lord said unto him—Loose the sandals of thy feet; for, the place whereon thou art standing, is, hallowed ground. ³⁴I have, indeed seen, the ill-treatment of my people that is in Egypt, and, unto their groaning, have I hearkened, and have come down to rescue them. Now, therefore, come! I will send thee into Egypt. ³⁵The same Moses whom they had refused, saying—Who hath appointed thee to be ruler and judge? the same, both as ruler and redeemer, did God send, by the hand of the messenger who had appeared unto him in the bush: ³⁶The same, led them forth, doing wonders and signs in Egypt, and in the Red Sea, and in the desert, forty years: ³⁷The same, is the Moses that said unto the sons of Israel—A prophet, unto you, will God raise up, from among your brethren, like unto me: ³⁸The same, is he that came to be in the assembly in the desert, with the messenger who was speaking with him in Mount Sinai, and with our fathers, he who welcomed living utterances, to give unto us: ³⁹Unto whom, our fathers would not become obedient, but thrust him away, and turned in their hearts unto Egypt, ⁴⁰Saying unto Aaron—Make as gods who shall go before us; for, as for this Moses who brought us forth out of Egypt, we know not what hath befallen him! ⁴¹And so they fell to calf-making in those days, and offered sacrifice unto the idol, and rejoiced in the works of their hands. ⁴²But God, turned, and delivered them up to be doing divine service unto the host of heaven,—just as it is written in a book of the prophets—Victims and sacrifices did ye offer unto me, forty years in the desert, O house of Israel? ⁴³Nay! but ye took with you the tent of Moloch, and the star of the god Rephan,—the forms which ye made to bow down unto them: therefore will I carry you away beyond Babylon. ⁴⁴The tent of witness, was with our fathers in the desert, according as he who was speaking unto Moses, gave instructions, to make it, according to the model which he had seen. ⁴⁵Which our fathers succeeding to, also brought in, with Joshua, when taking possession of the nations, which God put out from before our fathers until the days of David; ⁴⁶Who found favour before God, and asked to find a habitation for the God of Jacob. ⁴⁷But, Solomon, built him a house. ⁴⁸Although indeed, the Most High, not in hand-made places, dwelleth; just as, the prophet, saith—⁴⁹Heaven is my throne, and, the earth, is my footstool: What manner of house, will ye build me, saith the Lord,—Or what shall be the place of my resting? ⁵⁰Hath not, my hand, made all these things? ⁵¹Ye stiff-necked and uncircumcised in hearts and in ears, ye, always, against the Holy Spirit, do strive! As your fathers, ye also: ⁵²Which of the prophets, did not your fathers persecute? Yea they slew them who declared beforehand concerning the coming of the Righteous One—of whom, now, ye, have become, betrayers and murderers! ⁵³Who, indeed, received the law through ranks of messengers,—and guarded it not. ⁵⁴And, while they were hearing these things, they were being pierced in their hearts, and began gnashing their teeth against him. ⁵⁵But he, being already full of Holy Spirit, looking steadfastly into heaven, saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing on the right hand of God; ⁵⁶And said—Lo! I see the heavens opened, and the Son of Man, standing, on the right hand of God. ⁵⁷And, crying out with a loud voice, they held their ears, and rushed with one accord upon him; ⁵⁸And, thrusting him forth outside the city, proceeded to stone him. And, the witnesses, laid their garments at the feet of a young man named Saul. ⁵⁹And they stoned Stephen, as he was invoking and saying—Lord Jesus! give welcome unto my spirit. ⁶⁰And, kneeling down, he cried out with a loud voice—Lord! do not charge against them, this sin. And, having said this, he fell asleep.

8And, Saul, was taking pleasure with them in his death. Moreover there arose, in that day, a great persecution against the assembly which was in Jerusalem; \u11 and\u10 , all, were scattered abroad throughout the countries of Judaea and Samaria, except the apostles. 2Howbeit reverent men assisted at the burial of Stephen, and made great lamentation over him. 3But, Saul, went on to lay waste the assembly, along the houses, going in, and, dragging off both men and women, was 4They, indeed, therefore, who were scattered abroad, passed through, telling the good-news of the word; 5And, Philip, going down unto the city of Samaria, proclaimed unto them the Christ. 6And the multitudes began to give heed unto the things that were being spoken by Philip, with one accord, when they heard him, and saw the signs which he was working. 7For, from many who had impure spirits, shouting with a loud voice, they were going out, and, many that were paralysed and lame, were cured. 8And there came to be great joy in that city. 9But, a certain man named Simon, was already in the city, practising magical arts, and astonishing the nation of Samaria,—saying that himself was someone great: 10Unto whom all were giving heed, from small even to great, saying—This, is the Power of God, which is called Great. 11And they were giving heed to him, because that, for a considerable time, with his magical arts, he had astonished them. 12But, when they believed Philip telling the good news concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they proceeded to be immersed, both men and women. 13And, Simon himself also, believed; and, having been immersed, was in constant attendance on Philip,—and, beholding signs and great works of power coming to pass, was astonished. 14And the Apostles who were in Jerusalem, hearing that Samaria had welcomed the word of God, sent out unto them Peter and John; 15Who, indeed, going down, prayed for them, that they might receive Holy Spirit;— 16For, not yet, had it, upon any one of them, fallen, but, only, to begin with, they had been immersed into the name of the Lord Jesus. 17Then, proceeded they to lay their hands upon them, and they were receiving Holy Spirit. 18But Simon, seeing that, through means of the laying on of the hands of the Apostles, the Spirit was being given, offered unto them money, 19Saying—Give unto me also this authority,—in order that, on whomsoever may lay my hands, he may receive Holy Spirit. 20And Peter said unto him—Thy silver, with thee, go to destruction! Because, the free-gift of God, thou didst suppose could, with money, be obtained! 21Thou hast neither part nor lot in this matter; for, thy heart, is not upright before God. 22Repent, therefore, from this thy baseness, and entreat of the Lord—whether, after all, the purpose of thy heart shall be forgiven thee; 23For see that thou servest as a gall-root of bitterness, and a bond of unrighteousness. 24And Simon, answering, said—Entreat ye, in my behalf, unto the Lord; that, nothing, may come upon me, of the things whereof ye have spoken! 25They, therefore, having fully borne witness, and spoken the word of the Lord, began their return unto Jerusalem, and, unto many villages of the Samaritans, were they telling the glad tidings. 26And, a messenger of the Lord, spake unto Philip, saying—Arise, and be journeying along southward, unto the way that goeth down from Jerusalem unto Gaza,—the same, is desert. 27And, arising, he journeyed. And lo! a man of Ethiopia, a eunuch, one in power under Candace queen of the Ethiopians, who was over all her treasure \u11 who\u10 had come to worship in Jerusalem; 28And was returning, and, sitting in his chariot, and was reading the prophet Isaiah. 29And the Spirit said unto Philip—Go near, and join thyself unto this chariot! 30And, running near, Philip heard him reading Isaiah the prophet, and said—Dost thou, then, understand what thou art reading? 31And, he, said—How indeed should be able—unless someone shall guide me? And he called upon Philip, to come up and sit with him. 32Now, the passage of Scripture which he was reading, was, this:—As a sheep, unto slaughter, was he led, and, as a lamb, before him that sheareth it, is dumb, so, he openeth not his mouth. 33In his humiliation, his judgment was taken away,—his generation, who shall describe? because, his life, is taken away from the earth. 34And the eunuch, making answer unto Philip, said—I pray thee! Of whom, is the prophet saying this? of himself, or, of some different person? 35And Philip, opening his mouth, and beginning from this scripture, told him the glad tidings of Jesus. 36And, as they were journeying along the way, they came unto a certain water,—and the eunuch saith—Lo! water! What doth hinder my being immersed? 3738And he commanded the chariot to stand still; and they went down, both, into the water, both Philip and the eunuch,—and he immersed him. 39But, when they came up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, and the eunuch saw him no more; for he was going on his way rejoicing. 40Now Philip was found at Azotus; and, passing through, he was telling the glad tidings unto all the cities, until he came unto Caesarea.

9But, Saul, yet breathing threatening and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord, going unto the High-priest, 2asked from him letters for Damascus, unto the synagogues; to the end that, if he should find, any, who were of The Way, whether men or women, he might bring them, bound, unto Jerusalem. 3But, as he was journeying, it came to pass that he was drawing near unto Damascus, and, suddenly, there flashed around him a light out of heaven; 4And, falling unto the earth, he heard a voice saying unto him—Saul! Saul! why, me, art thou persecuting? 5And he said—Who art thou, Lord? And, he, said—I, am

Jesus, whom, thou, art persecuting! ⁶But rise up, and enter into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou must do. ⁷But, the men who were accompanying him, stood speechless,—hearing, indeed, the voice, but beholding no one. ⁸And Saul arose from the earth, and, his eyes being opened, he could see nothing; and, taking him by the hand, they led him into Damascus,—⁹And he was three days without seeing, and did neither eat nor drink. ¹⁰Now there was a certain disciple in Damascus, by name Ananias; and, the Lord, said unto him in a vision—Ananias! And, he, said—Lo! I, am here, Lord! ¹¹And the Lord said unto him—Rise! go into the street which is called Straight, and seek, in the house of Judas, one Saul, by name, of Tarsus. For lo! he is praying,—¹²And hath seen a man in a vision, Ananias by name, coming in and laying on him his hands, to the intent he should see. ¹³And Ananias, answered—Lord! I have heard from many concerning this man, how many evil things unto thy saints he hath done in Jerusalem; ¹⁴And, here, he hath authority from the High-priests to bind all them that call upon thy name. ¹⁵But the Lord said unto him—Be going thy way; for, a choice vessel unto me, is this man, to bear my name before both the nations and kings, and the sons of Israel; ¹⁶For, I, will let him understand how many things he must needs, for my name, suffer. ¹⁷And Ananias departed, and entered into the house; and, laying upon him his hands, said—Saul, brother! The Lord, hath sent me,—Jesus, who appeared unto thee in the way by which thou wast coming,—that thou mayest recover sight, and be filled with Holy Spirit. ¹⁸And, straightway, there fell from him—from his eyes,—as it were scales; he recovered sight also, and, arising, was immersed: ¹⁹And, receiving food, gained strength. And he came to be with the disciples who were in Damascus certain days; ²⁰And, straightway, in the synagogues, he began proclaiming Jesus, that, This, is the Son of God. ²¹And all who were hearing were astonished, and began to say—is not, this, he who destroyed, in Jerusalem, them that invoke this name; and, here, for this purpose, had come, in order that he might lead them, bound, unto the High-priests? ²²But, Saul, was the more gaining power; and was confounding the Jews who dwelt in Damascus, shewing, by comparison, that—This, is the Christ. ²³Now, when a considerable number of days were being fulfilled, the Jews took counsel together to kill him; ²⁴But their plot was made known unto Saul,—and they were even narrowly watching the gates, both day and night, that they might kill him; ²⁵But the disciples, taking him by night, through the wall, let him down, lowering him in a basket. ²⁶And, when he had arrived in Jerusalem, he made attempts to join himself unto the disciples; and all were afraid of him, not believing that he was a disciple. ²⁷But, Barnabas, taking him, brought him unto the apostles, and related unto them,—how, in the way, he had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken unto him; and how, in Damascus, he had spoken boldly in the name of Jesus. ²⁸And he was with them, coming in and going out in Jerusalem, speaking boldly in the name of the Lord; ²⁹And was both speaking and discussing with the Grecian Jews,—but, they, were setting to work to kill him. ³⁰And the brethren, discovering it, brought him down into Caesarea, and sent him away unto Tarsus. ³¹So then, the assembly throughout the whole of Judaea and Galilee and Samaria, had peace, building itself up, and going on its way in the fear of the Lord; and, by the advocacy of the Holy Spirit, was being multiplied. ³²And it came to pass that, Peter, going through all quarters went down unto the saints also dwelling in Lydda. ³³And he found there a certain man, by name Aeneas, who, for eight years, had been lying prostrate upon a bed, for he was paralysed. ³⁴And Peter said unto him—Aeneas! Jesus Christ healeth thee! Arise, and smooth thy bed for thyself. And, straightway, he arose. ³⁵And all who dwelt in Lydda and Saron, saw him,—and, they, turned unto the Lord. ³⁶Now, in Joppa, there was a certain female disciple, by name Tabitha, which, being translated, means Dorcas a Gazelle. The same, was full of good works and alms which she was doing. ³⁷And it came to pass in those days, that she, sickening, died; and, bathing her, they laid her in an upper room. ³⁸Now, Lydda being nigh unto Joppa, the disciples, hearing that Peter was therein, sent off two men unto him, beseeching him—Do not delay to come through unto us! ³⁹And Peter, arising, went with them,—whom, when he arrived, they brought up into the upper room; and there stood by him all the widows, weeping, and showing the tunics and mantles—whatsoever things Dorcas was making while she was with them. ⁴⁰But Peter, putting them all outside, knelt down and prayed; and, turning towards the body, said—Tabitha, arise! And she, opening her eyes and seeing Peter, sat up. ⁴¹And, giving her his hand, he raised her up; and, calling the saints and the widows, presented her, living. ⁴²And it became known throughout the whole of Joppa, and many believed upon the Lord. ⁴³And it came to pass that, for a considerable number of days, he abode in Joppa, with one Simon, a tanner.

¹⁰But, a certain man in Caesarea, by name Cornelius, a centurion of the band called Italian,—²Devout, and fearing God with all his house, doing many alms unto the people, and supplicating God continually, ³Saw, in a vision, manifestly, as if about the ninth hour of the day, a messenger of God, coming in unto him, and saying unto him—Cornelius! ⁴And he, looking steadfastly at him, and becoming full of fear, said—What is it, Lord? And he said unto him—Thy prayers and thine alms, have gone up for a memorial before God. ⁵Now, therefore, send men unto Joppa, and fetch one Simon who is surnamed Peter,—⁶The same is a guest with one Simon a tanner, whose house is by the sea. ⁷And, when the messenger who had been

speaking with him had departed, calling two of the domestics, and a devout soldier of them that constantly attended him, ⁸And relating everything unto them, he sent them off unto Joppa. ⁹Now, on the morrow, as those men were journeying, and, unto the city, drawing near, Peter went up on the housetop to pray, about the sixth hour; ¹⁰But he became hungry, and wished to eat,—and, while they were making ready, there came upon him a trance; ¹¹And he beholdeth heaven opened, and, coming down, a kind of vessel, like a large linen cloth, by its four corners, being let down upon the earth, ¹²In which were all the quadrupeds and creeping things of earth and birds of heaven. ¹³And there came a voice unto him—Rise, Peter! slay and eat. ¹⁴But Peter said—By no means, Lord! because, at no time, have I eaten anything common or unclean. ¹⁵And a voice came again, a second time, unto him—What things, God, hath cleansed, be not, thou, making common. ¹⁶Now, this, took place thrice; and, straightway, was the vessel taken up into heaven. ¹⁷And, as within himself Peter was doubting what the vision which he had seen might mean, lo! the men who had been sent by Cornelius, having sought out the house of Simon, stood at the gate, ¹⁸And, calling, enquired whether, Simon who was surnamed Peter, was there being entertained. ¹⁹And, as Peter was pondering over the vision, the Spirit said—Lo! two men, seeking thee. ²⁰But rise, go down, and be journeying with them, nothing, doubting; because, I, have sent them. ²¹And Peter, going down unto the men, said—Lo! I, am he whom ye are seeking: What is the cause, for which ye are come? ²²And they said—Cornelius, a centurion, a man righteous and fearing God, well-attested by the whole nation of the Jews, hath been divinely instructed by a holy messenger to send for thee unto his house, and to hear words from thee. ²³Inviting them in, therefore, he entertained them; but, on the morrow, he rose up and went forth with them, and certain of the brethren who were from Joppa went with him; ²⁴And, on the morrow, he entered into Caesarea. And, Cornelius, was expecting them, having called together his kinsfolk and intimate friends. ²⁵And, when it came about that Peter entered, Cornelius met him, and, falling at his feet, did homage. ²⁶But, Peter, raised him up, saying—Arise! I also myself, am, a man. ²⁷And, conversing with him, he went in, and findeth many come together; ²⁸And said unto the—Ye, well know, how unlawful it is, for, a Jew, to be joining himself or coming in unto one of another race. And yet, unto me, hath God pointed out that I should be calling no man, common or unclean. ²⁹Wherefore, even without gainsaying, came I when sent for. I ask, therefore, for what reason ye sent for me. ³⁰And Cornelius said—Four days ago, counting unto this very hour, I was keeping, the ninth hour, as one of prayer, in my house. And lo! a man stood before me, in bright clothing, ³¹And saith—Cornelius! thy prayer hath been heard, and, thine alms, have been remembered before God. ³²Send, therefore, unto Joppa, and fetch Simon, who is surnamed Peter. The same is being entertained in the house of one Simon a tanner, by the sea. ³³Immediately, therefore, I sent unto thee: Thou, also hast, well, done in coming. Now, therefore, all we, before God are present, to hear all things that have been enjoined upon thee by the Lord. ³⁴And Peter, opening his mouth, said—Of a truth, I find that God is no respecter of persons; ³⁵But, in every nation, he that feareth him and worketh righteousness, is acceptable unto him. ³⁶As touching the word he hath sent unto the sons of Israel, announcing the glad tidings of peace through Jesus Christ—the same, is Lord, of all, ³⁷Ye yourselves, know what hath come to pass throughout the whole of Judaea, beginning from Galilee, after the immersion which John proclaimed, respecting Jesus who was of Nazareth:—³⁸How God anointed him with Holy Spirit and with power, who went about doing good and healing all that were oppressed by the adversary, because, God, was with him. ³⁹We also, are witnesses of all things which he did, both in the country of the Jews and Jerusalem; whom they even slew by suspending upon a tree;—⁴⁰The same, God raised up on the third day, and gave him to become, manifest, ⁴¹Not unto all the people, but unto witnesses who had been fore-appointed by God, unto us, who, indeed, did eat and drink with him after his rising from among the dead. ⁴²And he charged us to proclaim unto the people, and bear full witness, that—This, is he that hath been marked out by God to be judge of living and dead. ⁴³Unto the same, do all the prophets bear witness, That, remission of sins, is to be received through his name, by every one that believeth on him. ⁴⁴While Peter was yet speaking these words, the Holy Spirit fell upon all who were hearing the word. ⁴⁵And the faithful, of the circumcision, who had come with Peter, were amazed,—in that, upon the nations also, the free-gift of the Holy Spirit had been poured out; ⁴⁶For they heard them speaking with tongues, and magnifying God. Then answered Peter—⁴⁷Surely then, the water, can no man forbid, that these should not be immersed,—seeing that, the Holy Spirit, they have received, as well as we. ⁴⁸And he commanded them in the name of Jesus Christ to be immersed. Then, requested they him, to abide still some days.

11Now the Apostles and the brethren who were throughout Judaea heard that, the nations also, had welcomed the word of God. ²And, when Peter came up unto Jerusalem, they of the circumcision began to find fault with him, ³Saying—he went in unto men uncircumcised, and did eat with them. ⁴But Peter, making a beginning, went on to set forth the matter unto them in order, saying—⁵I was in the city of Joppa praying, and saw in a trance, a vision:—coming down a sort of vessel, like a large sheet, by four corners, being let down out of heaven, and it came even unto me: ⁶Into which steadfastly looking, began to observe, and saw the quadrupeds of the earth, and the wild beasts, and the creeping things, and the birds of heaven. ⁷Moreover heard a voice also, saying unto me—Rise, Peter! slay and eat. ⁸But I said—By no means, Lord, because, a common or unclean thing, hath at no time entered into my mouth. ⁹And a voice answered, a second time, out of heaven—What things, God, hath cleansed, be not, thou, making common. ¹⁰And, this, took place thrice,—and the whole was drawn up again into heaven; ¹¹And lo! immediately, three men halted at the house wherein we were, sent from Caesarea unto me. ¹²And the Spirit bade me go with them, nothing doubting. And there went with me these six brethren also; and we entered into the house of the man, ¹³And he related to us how he had seen the messenger in his house, standing, and saying—Send away unto Joppa, and fetch Simon, who is surnamed Peter; ¹⁴Who shall speak words unto thee, whereby thou shall be saved, thou, and all thy house. ¹⁵And, as I began to be speaking, the Holy Spirit fell upon them, just as upon us also at the beginning. ¹⁶And I was put in mind of the word of the Lord, how he used to say—John, indeed, immersed with water; but, ye, shall be immersed in Holy Spirit. ¹⁷If therefore the like free-gift God gave unto them, as even unto us, when we had believed upon the Lord Jesus Christ, who was, I, that could withstand God? ¹⁸And, having heard these things, they held their peace, and glorified God, saying—Hence, even unto the nations, God hath granted repentance unto life. ¹⁹They, therefore, who had been scattered abroad by reason of the tribulation that took place on account of Stephen, passed through as far as Phoenice and Cyprus and Antioch, unto no one speaking the word, save alone unto Jews. ²⁰And there were some from among them, Cyprians and Cyrenians, who, indeed, coming unto Antioch, began speaking, even unto the Grecian Jews, announcing the glad tidings as to the Lord Jesus; ²¹And the hand of the Lord was with them, and a great number—they who believed—turned unto the Lord. ²²And the matter was reported in the hearing of the assembly that was in Jerusalem, concerning them; and they sent forth Barnabas, as far as Antioch; ²³Who, arriving, and seeing the favour which was of God, rejoiced, and went on to beseech all, with the purpose of their heart, to abide in the Lord; ²⁴Because he was a good man, and full of Holy Spirit and faith; and a considerable multitude were added unto the Lord. ²⁵He went away, however, unto Tarsus, to seek up Saul; ²⁶And, finding him, he brought him unto Antioch. And so it was with them, that, for a whole year, they were brought together in the assembly, and taught a considerable multitude; also that the disciples, first in Antioch, were called, Christians. ²⁷Now, in these days, there came down from Jerusalem, prophets, unto Antioch. ²⁸And one from among them, by name Agabus, rising up, gave a sign, through means of the Spirit, that, a great famine, was coming over all the inhabited earth; which, indeed, came to pass under Claudius. ²⁹And, according as any one of the disciples was being prospered, they each one of them set apart something for ministering, to send unto the brethren, who dwelt in Jerusalem;—³⁰Which thing they also did, sending it unto the Elders, through the hand of Barnabas and Saul.

¹²Now, in the course of that season, Herod the king thrust forth his hands to harm some of them of the assembly,—²And slew James the brother of John with a sword; ³And, seeing that it was acceptable unto the Jews, he went on to apprehend Peter also (now they were the days of unleavened bread),—⁴Whom also having seized, he put into prison, delivering him up unto four quaternions of soldiers, to be guarding him,—intending, after the passover, to bring him up unto the people. ⁵Peter, therefore, was kept in the prison; but, prayer, was, earnestly, being made by the assembly, unto God, concerning him. ⁶And, when Herod was about to bring him forth, on that night, was Peter sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains, guards, also, before the door, were keeping the prison. ⁷And lo! a messenger of the Lord stood over him, and a light shone in the cell; and, smiting the side of Peter, he roused him up, saying—Rise up quickly! And his chains fell off out of his hands. ⁸And the messenger said unto him—Gird thyself, and bind on thy sandals. And he did so. And he saith unto him—Throw around thee thy mantle, and be following me. ⁹And, coming out, he began following, and knew not that it was true which was coming about through means of the messenger; but supposed that, a vision, he was beholding. ¹⁰And, passing through the first ward and the second, they came unto the iron gate that leadeth into the city, the which, of its own accord, opened unto them; and, coming out, they went on through one street, and, straightway, the messenger was parted from him. ¹¹And, Peter, coming to himself said—Now, know I, of a truth, that the Lord hath sent forth his messenger, and taken me out of the hand of Herod, and all the expectation of the people of the Jews. ¹²And, considering the matter, he came unto the house of Mary, the mother of John who was surnamed Mark, where a considerable number were gathered together and praying. ¹³And, when he had knocked at the door of the porch, there came unto it a maiden to hearken, by name Rhoda; ¹⁴And, recognizing the voice of Peter, by reason of her joy, she opened not the porch,—but, running in, bare tidings that Peter was standing before the porch. But, they, unto her, said—Thou art raving ¹⁵She, however, kept on strongly declaring that, so, it was. But, they, were saying—It is his, messenger. ¹⁶And, Peter, continued knocking; and, opening, they saw him, and were amazed. ¹⁷But, making a sign to them with his hand to hold their peace, he related to them how, the Lord, had brought, him, forth out of the prison; and he said—Carry tidings unto James and the brethren, as to these things. And, going out, he went his way unto some other place. ¹⁸And, when it became day, there was no small commotion among the soldiers, as to what, then, Peter had become! ¹⁹And, Herod, seeking after and not finding, him, having examined the guards, ordered them to be led away to death; and, going down from Judaea unto Caesarea, stayed there. ²⁰Now he was bitterly hostile to them of Tyre and Zidon; but, with one accord, they came unto him, and, persuading Blastus, who was over the bed-chamber of the king, they were suing for peace; because their country was fed by the king's, ²¹And, on an appointed day, Herod, putting on royal apparel, and seating himself upon the tribunal, proceeded to deliver an oration unto them. ²²And, the populace, began to shout—A god's, voice, and not, a man's! ²³And, instantly, there smote him, a messenger of the Lord, because he gave not the glory unto God; and, becoming worm-eaten, he expired. ²⁴And, the word of the Lord, went on growing and multiplying. ²⁵And, Barnabas and Saul, returned unto Jerusalem, fulfilling the ministering, taking with them John who was surnamed Mark.

13Now there were in Antioch, distributed through the existing assembly,—prophets and teachers: both Barnabas and Symeon who was called Niger, and Lucius the Cyrenian, Manaen also, Herod the tetrarch's foster-brother, and Saul. ²And, as they were publicly ministering unto the Lord and fasting, the Holy Spirit said—Separate forthwith unto me, Barnabas and Saul, unto the work whereunto I have called them. ³Then, fasting and praying, and laying their hands upon them, they sent them away. ⁴They, therefore, being sent forth by the Holy Spirit, went down unto Seleucia, and, from thence, sailed away unto Cyprus; ⁵And, coming to be in Salamis, they declared the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews;—and they had, John also, as an attendant. ⁶And, passing through the whole island, as far as Paphos, they found a certain man, a magician, a false-prophet, a Jew, whose name was Bar-jesus; ⁷Who was with the proconsul, Sergius Paulus, an intelligent man. The same, calling for Barnabas and Saul, sought to hear the word of God. ⁸But Elymas the magician,—for so, when translated, is his name,—withstood them; seeking to turn aside the proconsul from the faith. ⁹But Saul, who is also Paul, filled with Holy Spirit, looking steadfastly at him, ¹⁰Said—O full of all guile, and all recklessness! Son of an adversary! Enemy of all righteousness!—Wilt thou not cease to pervert the straight ways of the Lord? ¹¹Now, therefore, lo! the hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou shalt be blind, not seeing the sun, until a fitting time. And, instantly, there fell upon him a mist and darkness; and, going about, he was seeking such as might lead him by the hand. ¹²Then, the proconsul, seeing what had happened, believed, being amazed at the teaching of the Lord. ¹³And, setting sail from Paphos,

Paul's company came into Perga of Pamphylia; but, John, withdrawing from them, returned unto Jerusalem. ¹⁴They, however, passing through from Perga, arrived at Antioch of Pisidia; and, going into the synagogue on the sabbath-day, sat down. ¹⁵And, after the reading of the law and the prophets, the synagogue-rulers sent unto them, saying—Brethren! if there is in you a word of exhortation unto the people, say on. ¹⁶And Paul, standing up, and making a sign with his hand, said—Ye men of Israel! and such as revere God! hearken:— ¹⁷The God of this people Israel, chose our fathers, and, the people, he exalted, by their sojourn in the land of Egypt,—and, with a high arm, brought he them out of it; ¹⁸And, for the time of about forty years, bare with their manners in the desert; ¹⁹And, overthrowing seven nations in the land of Canaan, gave them their land as an inheritance—about four hundred and fifty years. ²⁰And, after these things, he gave them judges, until Samuel the prophet. ²¹And, from that time, they asked for themselves a king, and God gave them Saul, son of Kish, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, during forty years; ²²And, setting him aside, raised up, David, unto them for king,—of whom he also said, bearing witness—I have found David, the son of Jesse,—\ul1 a man\ul0 according to my heart, who will do all my will. ²³From this man's seed, hath God, according to promise, brought unto Israel, a saviour—Jesus: ²⁴John, beforehand proclaiming, before the face of his coming in, an immersion of repentance, unto all the people of Israel. ²⁵And, as John was fulfilling his course, he was saying—Whom are ye supposing that I am? I, am not he! But lo! there cometh, after me, one of whom I am not worthy, the sandals of his feet, to loosen. ²⁶Brethren! sons of the race of Abraham, and those who among you revere God,—unto you, hath this word of salvation been sent forth. ²⁷For, they who were dwelling in Jerusalem, and their rulers, not recognising him, have, by judging him, fulfilled, the very voices of the prophets which every sabbath are being read; ²⁸And, though no single cause of death they found, yet claimed they of Pilate that he should be slain. ²⁹And, when they had finished all those things which, concerning him, had been written, taking him down from the tree, they put him in a tomb. ³⁰But, God, raised him from among the dead: ³¹Who appeared, during many days, unto them who had come up with him from Galilee unto Jerusalem; who, indeed, \ul1 now\ul0 are his witnesses unto the people. ³²We, therefore, unto you, bring the good news, as to the promise which, unto our fathers, was made,— ³³That God hath fulfilled, the same, for our children, by raising up Jesus: as also, in the second psalm, it is written—My son, art, thou: I, this day, have begotten thee. ³⁴And, in that he raised him from among the dead, no more destined to return unto corruption, on this wise hath he spoken—I will give unto you the faithful lovingkindnesses of David. ³⁵Wherefore also, in a different place, he saith—Thou wilt not give thy man of lovingkindness to see corruption. ³⁶For, David, indeed, unto his own generation having done service, by the counsel of God, fell asleep, and was added unto fathers, and saw corruption; ³⁷But, he whom God hath raised, did not see corruption. ³⁸Be it known unto you, therefore, brethren,—that, through this man, unto you, remission of sins is declared; ³⁹And, from all things from which ye could not, by the law of Moses, be justified, by this man, everyone that believeth, is justified. ⁴⁰Be taking heed, therefore, lest that come upon you which hath been spoken in the prophets— ⁴¹See, ye despisers, and marvel, and disappear: in that, a work, am, I, working in your days,—a work, which in nowise will ye believe, though one relate it in full unto you. ⁴²And, as they were going out, they kept on beseeching that, on the ensuing sabbath, might be spoken unto them these things. ⁴³And, when the congregation was broken up, there followed many of the Jews, and of the devout proselytes, with Paul and Barnabas; who, indeed, in speaking unto them, went on persuading them to abide in the favour of God. ⁴⁴And, on the coming sabbath, almost all the city, was gathered together, to hear the word of God. ⁴⁵But, the Jews, seeing, the multitudes, were filled with jealousy,—and began speaking against the things which, by Paul, were being spoken, defaming them. ⁴⁶And Paul and Barnabas, speaking boldly, said—Unto you, was it necessary, that the word of God should first be spoken: seeing ye are thrusting it from you, and, unworthy, are judging yourselves of the age-abiding life, lo! we turn unto the nations; ⁴⁷For so hath the Lord commanded us—I have set thee for a light of nations, that thou mayest be for salvation unto the end of the earth. ⁴⁸And they of the nations, hearing this, began to rejoice, and to be glorifying God, and they believed—as many as had become disposed for life age-abiding. ⁴⁹And the word of the Lord went on to be carried through the whole country. ⁵⁰But, the Jews, urged on the devout women of the higher class, and the chief men of the city, and roused up a persecution against Paul and Barnabas,—and thrust them out from their bounds. ⁵¹But they, shaking off the dust of their feet against them, came into Iconium. ⁵²And, the disciples, were filled with joy, and with Holy Spirit.

¹And it came to pass in Iconium that they together entered into the synagogue of the Jews, and so spake that there believed, both of Jews and Greeks, a great throng. ²But, the unpersuaded Jews, roused up and provoked the souls of them of the nations against the brethren. ³A good while, therefore, tarried they, using boldness of speech in dependence upon the Lord, who was bearing witness unto his word of favour, granting signs and wonders to be coming to pass through their hands. ⁴And the throng of the city was divided; and some indeed were with the Jews, while some were with the apostles. ⁵But, when there took place an assault both of them of the nations and of the Jews, with their rulers, to maltreat and to stone them, ⁶They became aware of it, and fled unto the cities of Lycaonia, Lystra and Derbe, and the surrounding country; ⁷And, there, were they announcing the glad tidings. ⁸And, a certain man in Lystra, impotent in his feet, was sitting,—lame from his mother's womb, who never had walked. ⁹This man, hearkened unto Paul, as he was speaking,—who, looking steadfastly at him, and seeing he had faith to be made well, ¹⁰Said, with a loud voice—Stand up on thy feet, erect! And he sprang up, and began to walk about. ¹¹And, the multitudes, seeing what Paul had done, lifted up their voice, in the speech of Lycaonia—The gods, made like unto men, have come down unto us! ¹²And they went on to call Barnabas, Jupiter, and Paul, Mercury, seeing that, he, was the leader of discourse. ¹³Also, the priest of the Jupiter that was before the city, bringing bulls and garlands unto the gates, with the multitudes, would have offered sacrifice. ¹⁴But the apostles Barnabas and Paul, hearing of it, rending asunder their own mantles, sprang forward amidst the multitude, crying aloud, ¹⁵and saying—Men! Why, these things, are ye doing? We also, of like nature with you, are men, bringing you the good news, that from these vain things, ye should be turning unto a living God:—Who made heaven and the earth and the sea and all things therein; ¹⁶Who in the bygone generations suffered all the nations to be going on in their own ways,— ¹⁷Although, not without witness, he left himself, doing good, from heaven, upon you, giving rain and fruitful seasons, filling, with food and gladness, your hearts. ¹⁸Even these things, saying, scarcely restrained they the multitudes from offering sacrifice unto them. ¹⁹But there came thither, from Antioch and Iconium, Jews, and, persuading the multitudes, and stoning Paul, they dragged him outside the city, supposing him to be dead. ²⁰Howbeit, the disciples surrounding him, he rose up, and entered into the city. And, on the morrow, he went forth, with Barnabas, unto Derbe. ²¹Delivering the good news unto that city also, and making a good number of disciples, they returned unto Lystra, and unto Iconium, and unto Antioch,— ²²confirming the souls of the disciples, beseeching them to abide in the faith, and declaring that, through many tribulations, must we enter into the kingdom of God. ²³Moreover, appointing unto them by vote, in each assembly, elders, praying with fastings, they commended them unto the Lord on whom they had believed. ²⁴And, passing through Pisidia, they came into Pamphylia; ²⁵and, speaking in Perga the word, they came down unto Attalia; ²⁶and, from thence, they set sail for Antioch, whence they had been given up unto the favour of God for the work which they had fulfilled. ²⁷And, when they had arrived and gathered together the assembly, they began recounting how many things God had done with them, and that he had opened, unto the nations, a door of faith. ²⁸And they spent no little time with the disciples.

15And, certain persons, coming down from Judea, began to teach the brethren—Except ye be circumcised according to the custom of Moses, ye cannot be saved. ²And, when Paul and Barnabas had had no little dissension and discussion with them, it was arranged that Paul and Barnabas and certain others from among them should go up unto the Apostles and Elders in Jerusalem concerning this question, ³They, therefore, being set forward by the Assembly, began passing through Phoenicia and Samaria, fully relating the conversion of them of the nations, and were causing great joy unto all the brethren. ⁴And, having arrived in Jerusalem, they were welcomed by the Assembly and the Apostles and the Elders; and they recounted all things God had done with them. ⁵But there had stood forth some of those who, from the sect of Pharisees, had believed, saying—It is needful to be circumcising them, also to charge them to be keeping the law of Moses. ⁶And the Apostles and Elders were gathered together to see about this matter. ⁷And, when much discussion had arisen, Peter standing up, said unto them—Brethren! Ye yourselves, well know that, in days long past, amongst you, God chose that, through my mouth, the nations should hear the word of the glad tidings, and believe. ⁸And, the heart-observing God, bare witness,—unto them, giving the Holy Spirit, just as, even unto us; ⁹and made no distinction at all betwixt us and them, by their faith, purifying their hearts. ¹⁰Now, therefore, why are ye proving God, that ye should put a yoke upon the neck of the disciples, which, neither our fathers, nor we, have been able to bear. ¹¹But, through the favour of the Lord Jesus, we believe we shall be saved, in like manner as, even they. ¹²And all the throng held their peace, and began to hearken unto Barnabas and Paul relating how many signs and wonders God had done among the nations, through them. ¹³And, after they held their peace, James answered, saying—Brethren! hearken unto me. ¹⁴Symeon, hath fully told how God, first visited, to take out of the nations, a people for his name. ¹⁵And, with this, agree the words of the prophets, according as it is written—¹⁶After these things, will I return, and will rebuild the tent of David that hath fallen, and, the ruins thereof, will I rebuild, and will set it up again: ¹⁷That the residues of men may seek out the Lord, and all the nations upon whom my name hath been called, saith the Lord that doeth these things, ¹⁸Known from age-past times. ¹⁹Wherefore, I, judge, not to be troubling them who, from the nations, are turning unto God; ²⁰but to write unto them, to abstain from the pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from what is strangled, and from blood. ²¹For, Moses, out of ancient generation, hath, in every city, them who proclaim him; seeing, that in the synagogues, every sabbath, he is read. ²²Then, seemed it good unto the Apostles and the Elders with the whole Assembly to send chosen men from among them unto Antioch, with Paul and Barnabas,—even Judas who is called Barsabbas, and Silas, men taking a lead among the brethren: ²³writing through their hand—The Apostles and the Elder Brethren, unto the brethren throughout Antioch and Syria and Cilicia, who are from among the nations, wish joy! ²⁴Inasmuch as we had heard that, certain from among us, had troubled you with words, dismantling your souls,—unto whom we had given no instructions, ²⁵It seemed good unto us, coming to be of one accord, that we should choose men and send them unto you, with our beloved Barnabas and Paul,—²⁶men who have given up their lives in behalf of the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. ²⁷We have sent, therefore, Judas and Silas, who also, themselves, by word of mouth, can tell you the same things. ²⁸For it hath seemed good unto the Holy Spirit and unto us, no greater burden, to be laying upon you, than these necessary things:—²⁹To be abstaining from idol sacrifices, and from blood, and from what is strangled, and from fornication,—From which, if ye keep yourselves, ye shall prosper. Fare ye well. ³⁰They, therefore, being let go, came down unto Antioch; and, having gathered together the throng, delivered the letter, ³¹and, when they read it, they rejoiced for the consolation. ³²And, both Judas and Silas, being themselves also prophets, with much discourse, consoled and confirmed the brethren. ³³And, when they had spent a time, they were let go, in peace, from the brethren, unto them who had sent them. ³⁴³⁵But, Paul and Barnabas, tarried in Antioch, teaching and telling the joyful tidings,—along with many others also,—of the word of the Lord. ³⁶And, after certain days, Paul, said unto Barnabas—Let us now return, and visit the brethren in every city in which we have declared the word of the Lord, and see how they are. ³⁷And, Barnabas, was minded to take with them John also, called Mark; ³⁸but Paul deemed it right, as to him who had withdrawn from them, back from Pamphylia, and had not gone with them unto the work, not to be taking with them, this, man. ³⁹And there arose an angry feeling, so that they separated one from the other: and, Barnabas, taking Mark, sailed away unto Cyprus,—⁴⁰whereas, Paul, choosing Silas, went forth, committed unto the favour of the Lord by the brethren, ⁴¹and proceeded to pass through Syria and Cilicia, confirming the assemblies.

16And he came even unto Derbe, and unto Lystra; and lo! a certain disciple, was there, by name Timothy, son of a believing Jewish woman, but whose father was a Greek,—²who was well-attested by the brethren in Lystra, and Iconium. ³The same, would Paul have go forth with him, and took and circumcised him, on account of the Jews who were in those places; for they one and all knew that, his father, was, a Greek. ⁴And, as they passed through the cities, they were delivering unto them, for observance, the decrees which had been decided upon by the Apostles and Elders who were in Jerusalem. ⁵The assemblies, therefore, were being confirmed in the faith, and increasing in number, every day. ⁶And they passed through the Phrygian and Galatian country, being forbidden by the Holy Spirit to speak the word in Asia; ⁷but, coming along Mysia, they were attempting to journey into Bithynia,—and, the Spirit of Jesus, suffered them not; ⁸but, passing by Mysia, they came down unto Troas. ⁹And, a vision, by night, unto Paul appeared:—A man of Macedonia, there was, standing and beseeching him, and saying—Come over into Macedonia, and bring us succour! ¹⁰Now, when, the vision, he had seen, straightway, we sought to go forth unto Macedonia, concluding that God, had summoned us to tell the glad tidings unto them. ¹¹Setting sail, therefore, from Troas, we ran straight into Samothracia, and, on the morrow, unto New City, ¹²and, from thence, unto Philippi,—which, indeed, is the first city of the part of Macedonia—a colony. And we were, in this city, spending certain days; ¹³and on the day of rest, we went forth outside the gate, beside a river, where we supposed there was a place of prayer,—and, sitting down, we went on to speak unto the women who had come together. ¹⁴And, a certain woman, by name Lydia, a seller of purple, of the city of Thyatira, devout towards God, was hearkening, whose heart, the Lord, fully opened, to be giving heed unto the things being spoken by Paul. ¹⁵And, when she was immersed, and her house, she besought us, saying—If ye have judged me to be a believer in the Lord, come into my house, and abide there. And she constrained us. ¹⁶And it came to pass, as we were on our way unto the place of prayer, a certain damsel, having a spirit of Python, met us,—who, indeed, much gain, was presenting unto her masters, by divining. ¹⁷The same, following after Paul and us, kept crying aloud, saying—These men, are servants of the Most High God,—who, indeed, are declaring unto you a way of salvation. ¹⁸And, this, she continued to do for many days. But Paul, worn out, and turning unto the spirit, said—I charge thee, in the name of Jesus Christ, to come out from her. And it came out the same hour. ¹⁹And, her masters, seeing that their hope of gain had gone out, laying hold on Paul and Silas, dragged them into the market-place, unto the rulers; ²⁰and, leading them forward unto the magistrates, said—These men, are exceedingly troubling our city, they, being Jews, ²¹And are declaring customs, which it is not allowable for us either to accept or to observe, being Romans. ²²And the multitude rose up together against them, and, the magistrates, rending off them their mantles, were giving orders to beat them with rods; ²³and, laying upon them many stripes, they thrust them into prison, charging the prison-keeper, safely, to be keeping them: ²⁴who, a charge like this receiving, thrust them into the inner prison, and, their feet, made he fast in the stocks. ²⁵And, at midnight, Paul and Silas, being at prayer, began singing praise unto God; and the prisoners unto them, did hear-ken. ²⁶And, suddenly, a great earthquake took place,—so that the foundations of the prison were shaken, and all the doors were instantly set open, and the bonds of all were unfastened. ²⁷And, the prison-keeper, being wakened and seeing that the doors of the prison had been opened, drawing his sword, was about to kill himself, supposing the prisoners to have fled. ²⁸But Paul called out with a loud voice, saying—By no means, do thyself harm, for we are, one and all, here. ²⁹And, asking for a light, he sprang in, and becoming, agitated, fell down unto Paul and Silas, ³⁰and, leading them forth outside, said—Sirs! what must I be doing, that I may be saved? ³¹And, they, said—Believe on the Lord Jesus, and thou shalt be saved, thou, and thy house. ³²And they spake unto him the word of God, with all who were in his house. ³³And, taking them with him, in that hour of the night, he bathed them from their stripes, and was immersed, he, and his, one and all, on the spot; ³⁴and, leading them up into his house, he set near a table,—and exulted, having, with all his house, believed in God. ³⁵And, when day came, the magistrates sent off the constables saying—Let those men go! ³⁶And the prison-keeper reported the words unto Paul—The magistrates have sent, that ye be let go. Now, therefore, going forth, be taking your journey in peace. ³⁷But, Paul, said unto them—Beating us, in public, uncondemned, men that are Romans, they thrust us into prison;—and, now, by stealth, are they thrusting us forth? Nay, verily! but let them come, themselves, and lead us out! ³⁸And the constables reported unto the magistrates these words; and they were struck with fear, when they heard that they were, Romans; ³⁹and came, and besought them, and, leading them out, went on to request them to depart from the city. ⁴⁰And so, coming forth from the prison, they went unto Lydia, and, seeing the brethren, they comforted them, and went forth.

¹⁷And, travelling through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where was a synagogue of the Jews; ²and, according to Paul's custom, he went in unto them, and, for three sabbaths, reasoned with them from the Scriptures,—³opening up, and setting forth, that it was needful for, the Christ, to suffer, and to arise from among the dead; and saying, This, is the Christ,—Jesus, whom, I, am declaring unto you. ⁴And, some from among them, were persuaded, and cast in their lot with Paul and Silas; also, of the devout Greeks, a great throng, and, of the chief women, not a few. ⁵But the Jews, being, jealous, and taking unto themselves certain wicked men, of the rabble, and making a riot, were setting the city in an uproar; and, besieging the house of Jason, were seeking to lead them forth unto the populace,—⁶and, not finding them, they began dragging Jason and certain brethren unto the city-rulers, shouting—They who have thrown the inhabited earth into confusion, the same, hither also, are come,—⁷unto whom Jason hath given welcome; and, these all, contrary to the decrees of Caesar, are acting,—saying that there is another king, Jesus. ⁸And they troubled the multitude and the city-rulers, when they heard these things; ⁹and, taking security from Jason and the rest, they let them go. ¹⁰But, the brethren, straightway, during the night, sent away both Paul and Silas unto Beroea, who, indeed, arriving, unto the synagogue of the Jews, went off; ¹¹and, these, were more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they welcomed the word with all readiness of mind, daily, searching the Scriptures,—whether these things could be so. ¹²Many, therefore, from among them, believed, and, of the Grecian women of the higher class, and of men, not a few. ¹³But, when the Jews from Thessalonica came to know that, in Beroea also, had the word of God been declared by Paul, they came thither also, stirring up and troubling the multitudes. ¹⁴Howbeit, then, immediately, the brethren sent away, Paul, to be journeying as far as unto the sea; and both Silas and Timothy stayed behind, there. ¹⁵But, they who were conducting Paul, brought him as far as Athens, and, receiving a commandment unto Silas and Timothy, that with, all possible speed, they would come unto him, they departed. ¹⁶But, while, in Athens, Paul was expecting them, his spirit within him was being urged on, seeing how the city was given to idols. ¹⁷So then, he began reasoning in the synagogue with the Jews, and with them who worshipped; and, in the market-place, every day, with them who happened to be at hand. ¹⁸But, certain both of the Epicurean and of the Stoic philosophers, were encountering him; and some were saying—What might this picker-up-of-scrap wish to be saying? And, others—Of foreign demons, he seemeth to be a declarer: because, of Jesus and the Resurrection, he was announcing the joyful tidings. ¹⁹And so, laying hold of him, they brought him up, to the Hill of Mars, saying—Can we get to know what this new teaching is, which, by thee, is being spoken. ²⁰For, certain foreign things, art thou bringing into our hearing: We are minded to get to know, therefore, what these things please to be! ²¹Now, all Athenians and the sojourning foreigners, unto nothing else, were devoting their leisure, than to be telling or hearing, something newer. ²²And Paul taking his stand in the midst of the Hill of Mars, said—Ye men of Athens! In every way, how unusually reverent of the demons ye are, I perceive. ²³For, passing through, and carefully observing your objects of devotion, I found an altar also, in which was inscribed—Unto an Unknown God. What, therefore, not knowing, ye reverence, the same, do, I, declare unto you. ²⁴The God that made the world and all things that are therein, the same, being, Lord, of heaven and earth, not in hand-made shrines, doth dwell, ²⁵nor, by human hands, is waited upon, as though in want of anything, himself, giving unto all life and breath and all things; ²⁶he made also, of one, every nation of men to dwell upon all the face of the earth,—marking out fitting opportunities, and the bounds of their dwelling place, ²⁷that they might be seeking God—if, after all, indeed, they might feel after him and find him,—although, in truth, he is already not far from any one of us. ²⁸For, in him, we live and move and are: as, even some of your own poets, have said—For, his offspring also, we are. ²⁹Being, then, offspring, of God, we ought not to be supposing that, unto gold or silver or stone, graven by art and device of man, the Divine, is like. ³⁰The times of ignorance, therefore, overlooking, God, as things now are, is charging all men everywhere to repent, ³¹inasmuch as he hath appointed a day, in which he is about to be judging the habitable earth in righteousness, by a man whom he hath pointed out,—offering faith unto all, by raising him from among the dead? ³²Now, when they heard of raising the dead, some, indeed, began to mock, while, others, said—We will hear thee, concerning this, even again. ³³Thus, Paul, came forth out of their midst. ³⁴But, certain persons, joining themselves unto him, believed; among whom were even Dionysius the Mars-hill judge, and a woman by name Damaris, and others with them.

¹⁸After these things, withdrawing from Athens, he came unto Corinth; ²and, finding a certain Jew, by name Aquila, of Pontus by birth,—lately come from Italy, and Priscilla his wife, because Claudius had ordered all the Jews to be leaving Rome, he came unto them, ³and, because he was of the same craft, he abode with them, and wrought, for they were tent-makers by their trade. ⁴And he began reasoning in the synagogue every sabbath, and was persuading both Jews and Greeks. ⁵When, however, both Silas and Timothy had come down from Macedonia, Paul began to be urged on in the word, bearing full witness unto the Jews that, Jesus, was, the Christ. ⁶But, as they began opposing and defaming, shaking out his garments, he said unto them—Your blood, be upon your own head! Pure, am, I: henceforth, unto the nations, will I go. ⁷And, removing from thence, he came into the house of a certain man by name Titius Justus, who worshipped God, whose house was adjoining unto the synagogue. ⁸But, Crispus, the ruler of the synagogue, believed in the Lord, with all his house. And, many of the Corinthians, hearing, were believing, and being immersed. ⁹And the Lord said by night, through means of a vision, unto Paul—Be not afraid! but be speaking,—and do not hold thy peace; ¹⁰Inasmuch as, I, am with thee, and, no one, shall set upon thee to harm thee; inasmuch as I have much people in this city. ¹¹And he remained a year and six months, teaching among them the word of God. ¹²But, when Gallio was proconsul of Achaia, the Jews, with one accord, set upon Paul, and led him unto the judgment-seat, ¹³saying—Contrary to the law, is this one seducing men to be worshipping God. ¹⁴But, as Paul was about to open his mouth, Gallio said unto the Jews—If, indeed, it had been some wrong or wicked recklessness, O Jews, with reason, in that case, should I have been bearing with you. ¹⁵If, however, they are questions concerning discourse, and names, and law, that which ye have, ye shall see to it, yourselves; A judge of these things, I, am not disposed to be. ¹⁶And he drove them from the judgment-seat. ¹⁷But they all, laying hold of Sosthenes the ruler of the synagogue, began to strike him before the judgment-seat; and, for none of these things, did Gallio care. ¹⁸Paul, however, still further abiding a good many days with the brethren, bidding them adieu, set sail for Syria; and, with him, Priscilla and Aquila; having shorn his head in Cenchreae, for he had a vow. ¹⁹And they came down to Ephesus; and, as for them, he left them there,—but, himself entering into the synagogue, he reasoned with the Jews. ²⁰And, when they requested him for a longer time to abide, he consented not; ²¹but, bidding them adieu, and saying—Again, will I return unto you, God willing, he sailed away from Ephesus; ²²and, putting in at Caesarea, going up and saluting the assembly, went down unto Antioch; ²³and, spending some time, he went forth, passing through, in order, the country of Galatia and Phrygia, confirming all the disciples. ²⁴But, a certain Jew, Apollos by name, an Alexandrian by birth, a learned man, came down to Ephesus, being, mighty, in the Scriptures. ²⁵The same, had been orally taught the way of the Lord, and, being fervent in his spirit, began speaking and teaching accurately, the things concerning Jesus,—properly knowing, only the immersion of John. ²⁶The same, also began speaking boldly in the synagogue; and Priscilla and Aquila, hearing him, took him unto them, and, more accurately, expounded unto him the way of God. ²⁷And, he being minded to pass through into Achaia, the brethren urgently wrote unto the disciples to welcome him,—who, arriving, was very useful unto them who had believed, with his gift; ²⁸for, with great force, began he confuting the Jews, publicly, shewing by the Scriptures that Jesus was, the Christ.

¹⁹And it came to pass, while Apollos was in Corinth, Paul, passing through the upper parts, came to Ephesus, and found certain disciples; ²and he said unto them—Holy Spirit, received ye, when ye believed? And they said unto him—Nay! not even whether there is Holy Spirit, did we hear. ³And he said—Into what, then, were ye immersed? And, they, said—Unto John's immersion. ⁴Then said Paul—John, immersed with an immersion of repentance, unto the people, saying, that, on him who was coming after him, they should believe,—that is, on Jesus. ⁵And, when they heard this, they were immersed into the name of the Lord Jesus; ⁶and, Paul laying hands upon them, the Holy Spirit came upon them, and they began speaking with tongues and prophesying. ⁷And all the men were about twelve. ⁸And, entering into the synagogue, he was speaking boldly for three months, reasoning and persuading concerning the kingdom of God. ⁹But, when some were hardening themselves, and refusing to be persuaded, speaking evil of the Way before the throng, withdrawing from them, he separated the disciples; day by day, reasoning in the school of Tyrannus. ¹⁰And, this, took place for two years, so that, all who dwelt in Asia, heard the word of the Lord, both Jews and Greeks. ¹¹Mighty works, also, not the ordinary, God was working through the hands of Paul; ¹²so that, even unto the sick, were being carried from his body, handkerchiefs or aprons, and the diseases were departing from them, and, the wicked spirits, were going out. ¹³But certain also of the wandering Jews, exorcists, took in hand to be naming, over them that had the wicked spirits, the name of the Lord Jesus, saying—I adjure you, by Jesus whom Paul proclaimeth! ¹⁴And there were seven sons of one Sceva, a Jew, a High-priest, who, this thing, were doing. ¹⁵But the wicked spirit. Answering, said unto them—Jesus, \u01 indeed\u01, I am getting to know, and, Paul, I well-know,—but who are, ye? ¹⁶And the man in whom was the wicked spirit, springing upon them, mastering them both, prevailed against them, so that, naked and wounded, fled they out of that house. ¹⁷And, this, became known to all—both Jews and Greeks—who were dwelling in Ephesus; and fear fell upon them all, and the name of the Lord Jesus was being magnified. ¹⁸Many also of them who had believed, were coming, making open confession, and renouncing their practices. ¹⁹And, a good many of them who had practised the curious arts, bringing together the books, were burning them before all; and they reckoned up the prices of them, and found them fifty thousand pieces of silver. ²⁰Thus, with might, the Lord's word, was growing and prevailing. ²¹Now, when these things were fulfilled, Paul purposed in his spirit, going through Macedonia and Achaia, to be journeying unto Jerusalem, saying—After I have been there, Rome also, must I see! ²²And, sending off into Macedonia two of them that ministered unto him, Timothy and Erastus, he himself, held on awhile in Asia. ²³And there arose during that season no small disturbance concerning the Way. ²⁴For, one Demetrius by name, a silversmith, making \u01 silver\u01 shrines, of Diana, used to bring unto the craftsmen no little business; ²⁵gathering whom together, and them who in such things wrought, he said—Men! ye well know that, by this business, we have our prosperity; ²⁶and ye perceive and hear that, not only in Ephesus, but well-nigh in all Asia, this Paul, hath persuaded and turned away a considerable multitude, saying that they are, no gods, which, with hands, are made. ²⁷And, not only is there danger that this our heritage into ill-repute may come, but even that the temple, of the great Goddess Diana, for nothing, may be counted; also that, even on the point of being pulled down, may be Her Majesty, whom, all Asia and the habitable world, do worship. ²⁸Now, hearing this, and becoming full of wrath, they began crying aloud, saying—Great, is Diana of the Ephesians! ²⁹And the city was filled with the confusion; they rushed also with one accord into the theatre, carrying off with them Gaius and Aristarchus, Macedonians, fellow-travellers of Paul. ³⁰But, Paul, being minded to enter in among the populace, the disciples would not suffer him. ³¹Moreover, certain of the Asiarchs also, being his friends, sending unto him, were beseeching him not to adventure himself into the theatre. ³²Others, indeed, were crying out something else; for the assembly had become confused, and, the greater part, knew not for what cause they had come together. ³³Howbeit, out of the multitude, they bare aloft one Alexander, the Jews thrusting him forward; Alexander, however, waving his hand, was wishing to make his defense unto the populace. ³⁴But, recognizing that he was a Jew, one voice arose from all for about two hours, as they cried aloud—Great, is Diana of the Ephesians! ³⁵Howbeit the town-clerk, having calmed the multitude, saith—Ephesians! why, who is there of mankind that doth not acknowledge the city of Ephesians to be temple-keeper of the Great Diana, and of the  that fell from Jupiter? ³⁶As these things, then, cannot be denied, it is needful that ye be calmed at once, and, nothing rash, be doing. ³⁷For ye have brought these men, neither as temple-robbers, nor as defaming our goddess. ³⁸If then, Demetrius, and the craftsmen with him, have against anyone an accusation, courts, are being held, and there are, proconsuls: let them accuse one another! ³⁹But, if after, something further, ye are seeking, in the regular assembly shall it be settled. ⁴⁰For we are, even in danger of being accused of riot, concerning this day, no cause at all, existing, by reference to which we shall be able to give a reason for this concourse. ⁴¹And, these things, having said, he dismissed the assembly.

20But, after the tumult had ceased, Paul, sending for the disciples and exhorting them, took leave, and went forth to be journeying unto Macedonia. ²Passing through those parts, however, and exhorting them with much discourse, he came into Greece; ³and, spending three months, when a plot was laid against him by the Jews, as he was about to sail to Syria, he determined to turn back through Macedonia. ⁴Now there were accompanying him, Sopater, son of Pyrrhus a Beroean; and of the Thessalonians, Aristarchus and Secundus; and Gaius of Derbe and Timothy; and, of Asia, Tychicus and Trophimus. ⁵And, these, came and were waiting for us at Troas. ⁶And, we, sailed forth, after the days of unleavened bread, from Philippi, and came unto them in Troas in five days, where we tarried seven days. ⁷And, on the first of the week, when we were gathered together to break bread, Paul went on to discourse with them, being about to depart on the morrow; and he prolonged his discourse until midnight. ⁸Now there were a good many torches in the upper room, where we were gathered together. ⁹And there sat, a certain young man by name Eutychus, in the window, who was getting overpowered by a deep sleep; and, while Paul was dis-

coursing yet further, being overpowered by his sleep, he fell, from the third story, down, and was taken up dead. ¹⁰Going down, however, Paul fell upon him, and, embracing him, said—Be not making confusion; for, his soul, is, in him. ¹¹And, going up, and breaking the loaf, and tasting,—for a good while also conversing, until dawn, thus, he departed. ¹²And they brought the boy alive, and were comforted beyond measure. ¹³And, we, going forward unto the ship, set sail for Assos, from thence being about to take up Paul; for, so, had he arranged, being about, himself, to go on foot. ¹⁴And, when he fell in with us in Assos, we took him on board, and came into Mitylene; ¹⁵and, from thence sailing away on the morrow, we came over against Chios, and, on the next day, we thrust aside into Samos, and, on the succeeding day, we came into Miletus. ¹⁶For Paul had determined to sail past Ephesus, lest he should happen to lose time in Asia; for he hastened, if it were possible for him, against the day of Pentecost, to arrive, in Jerusalem. ¹⁷But, from Miletus, he sent unto Ephesus, and called for the elders of the assembly. ¹⁸And, when they were come to him, he said unto them—Ye yourselves, well know, from the first day when I set foot in Asia, in what manner came to be with you all the time, ¹⁹doing service unto the Lord, with all humility and tears, and temptations which befell me through the plots of the Jews: ²⁰in what manner I in no wise shrank from announcing unto you anything that was profitable and teaching you publicly and in your homes; ²¹bearing full witness, both to Jews and to Greeks, as to the repentance due unto God, and as to belief on our Lord Jesus. ²²And, now, lo! I, bound in my spirit, am journeying unto Jerusalem; the things which therein shall befall me, not knowing,—²³save that, the Holy Spirit, from city to city, doth bear me full witness, saying that, bonds and tribulations, await me. ²⁴But, for no cause whatever, am I making my life dear to myself, so that I may finish my course and the ministry which I have received from the Lord Jesus, to bear full witness as to the good news of the favour of God. ²⁵And, now, lo! I, know that, no more, shall ye see my face,—ye all, among whom I have gone about proclaiming the kingdom. ²⁶Wherefore I take you to witness, on this very day, that, pure am I from the blood of all; ²⁷for I have not shrunk from announcing all the counsel of God unto you. ²⁸Be taking heed unto yourselves, and unto all the little flock in which the Holy Spirit hath set, you, as overseers,—to be shepherding the assembly of God which he hath acquired through means of the blood of his own. ²⁹I, know, that there will enter, after my departure, grievous wolves into your midst, not sparing the little flock; ³⁰and, from among your own selves, will arise men speaking distorted things, to draw away the disciples after themselves. ³¹Wherefore, be on the watch, remembering that, for three years, night and day, I gave myself no rest, with tears, admonishing each one. ³²Now, therefore, I commend you unto the Lord, and unto his word of favour,—which is able to build up and give the inheritance among all the hallowed ones. ³³The silver or gold or apparel of no one, did I covet: ³⁴yourselves, acknowledge that, for my necessities and for those who were with me, hard wrought these hands! ³⁵In all things, I gave you to understand, that, thus toiling, it behoves to be helping the weak, also to be keeping in mind the words of the Lord Jesus, that, he himself, said—Happy is it, rather to give than to receive! ³⁶And, these things saying, kneeling down with them all, he prayed. ³⁷And they all wept much, and, falling upon Paul's neck, they were tenderly kissing him; ³⁸being most distressed for the word which he had said,—That, no more, should they, his face, behold. And they accompanied him unto the ship.

21And it came to pass, when we set sail, having torn ourselves from them, running a straight course, we came unto Cos, and, on the next day, unto Rhodes,—and from thence unto Patara; ²and, finding a ship crossing over to Phoenicia, going on board, we set sail. ³And, sighting Cyprus, and leaving it behind to the left, we held on our voyage to Syria, and landed at Tyre; for, there, the ship was to discharge her cargo. ⁴And, finding up the disciples, we remained there seven days, and they, unto Paul, began to say, through the Spirit, that he would gain no footing in Jerusalem. ⁵And, when it came to pass that we had completed the days, we went forth, and continued our journey, all of them accompanying us, with wives and children, as far as outside the city; and, kneeling down on the beach in prayer, ⁶we tare ourselves from each other, and we went on board the ship, while, they, returned unto their homes. ⁷And, we, finishing the voyage from Tyre, reached Ptolemais, and, saluting the brethren, abode one day with them; ⁸and, on the morrow departing, we came to Caesarea, and, entering into the house of Philip the evangelist, who was of the seven, we abode with him. ⁹Now—this man, had four virgin daughters, who used to prophesy. ¹⁰And, as we stayed on many days, there came down a certain man from Judaea, a prophet, by name Agabus; ¹¹and, coming unto us, and taking Paul's girdle, he bound his own feet and hands, and said—Thus, saith the Holy Spirit, the man whose this girdle is, shall the Jews thus bind in Jerusalem, and deliver up into the hands of Gentiles. ¹²And, when we heard these things, both, we, and they of the place began beseeching him, not to go up unto Jerusalem. ¹³Then, answered Paul—What are ye doing, weeping and breaking my heart? For, I, not only to be bound, but to die in Jerusalem, am ready, in behalf of the name of the Lord Jesus. ¹⁴And, as he was not to be persuaded, we ceased, saying—the Lord's, will be done! ¹⁵And, after these days, making ready what we had, we started to go up unto Jerusalem; ¹⁶and there went certain also of the disciples from Caesarea, along with us, who were to introduce us unto one with whom we might be entertained, one Mna-

son of Cyprus, an early disciple. ¹⁷Now, when we came to Jerusalem, the brethren, gladly welcomed us. ¹⁸And, on the next day, Paul went in with us unto James, and, all the elders, were present. ¹⁹And, saluting them, he went on to narrate, one by one, each of the things which God had wrought among the nations through his ministry. ²⁰And, they, having heard, began glorifying God; and they said to him—Thou observest, brother, how many myriads there are among the Jews who have believed, and, all, are zealous for the law. ²¹Now they have heard it rumoured concerning thee, that, an apostacy, art thou teaching, from Moses, unto all the Jews, who are among the nations, telling them not to be circumcising their children, nor, by the customs, to be walking. ²²What, then, is it? at all events, they will hear that thou hast come. ²³This, then, do, which unto thee, we say:—We have four men who have a vow upon themselves. ²⁴Taking these unto thee, be purified with them, and spend something upon them, that they may shave their head; and all will get to know, that the things which they have heard rumoured concerning thee, are, nothing,—on the contrary, thou thyself, dost keep the ranks, guarding the law. ²⁵But, concerning them of the nations who have believed, we ourselves, sent, deciding that they should be guarding themselves, both as to idol sacrifice, and blood, and what is strangled, and fornication. ²⁶Then Paul, taking unto him the men, on the next day, with them, being purified, began entering into the temple to declare the filling up of the days of the purification—until, the offering, had been presented for each one of them. ²⁷When, however, the seven days were on the point of being concluded, the Jews from Asia, observing him in the temple, began to urge-on all the multitude, and thrust upon them their hands, ²⁸crying out—Israelites! be giving help! This, is the man who, against the people, and the law, and this place, is teaching, all men everywhere; furthermore, even Greeks, hath he brought into the temple, and hath profaned this holy place. ²⁹For they had before seen Trophimus, the Ephesian, in the city along with him, whom they were supposing, Paul, had brought, into the temple. ³⁰And the whole city was set in motion, and there took place a running together of the people, and, laying hold of Paul, they proceeded to drag him outside the temple, and, straightway, the doors were made fast. ³¹When, also, they were seeking to slay him, there was carried up information, unto the captain of the band, that all Jerusalem was in confusion:—³²who, instantly taking unto him soldiers and centurions, ran down upon them; and, they, seeing the captain and the soldiers, left off striking Paul. ³³Then, the captain, drawing near, laid hold of him, and ordered him to be bound with two chains,—and began to enquire, who he might be, and what he had done; ³⁴but, others, were calling out, something else, in the multitude; and so, as he could not get to know the certainty, because of the tumult, he ordered him to be brought into the castle. ³⁵And, when he came unto the stairs, so it was that he was borne along by the soldiers, because of the force of the multitude; ³⁶for the throng of the people was following, crying out—Away with him! ³⁷But, when he was on the point of being taken into the castle, Paul saith unto the captain—Is it allowed me, to say somewhat unto thee? And he said—With Greek, art thou acquainted? ³⁸Not, then, art, thou, the Egyptian, who, before these days, stirred up to sedition and led out into the wilderness the four-thousand men of the Assassins? ³⁹And Paul said—I, indeed, am a Jew, of Tarsus in Cilicia,—a citizen, of no obscure city; but I beseech thee, give me leave to speak unto the people! ⁴⁰And, when he had given leave, Paul, standing upon the stairs, waved with his hand unto the people; and, when great silence was secured, he addressed them in the Hebrew language, saying—

22Brethren and fathers! Hear ye, the defence, which I now make unto you:—²And, when they heard that, in the Hebrew language, he had begun to address them, they kept the more quiet. And he saith—³I, am a Jew, born in Tarsus of Cilicia, but nurtured in this city, at the feet of Gamaliel,—trained after the strictness of our ancestral law; being jealous for God just as, all ye, are this day; ⁴and, this way, I persecuted unto the death, binding and delivering up into prisons both men and women:—⁵as, even the High-priest, beareth me witness, and all the Eldership,—from whom, letters also, accepting to the brethren, unto Damascus, was I journeying, to bring them who were there bound unto Jerusalem, that they might be punished. ⁶But it befell me, as I was journeying and drawing nigh unto Damascus, that, about mid-day—suddenly—out of heaven, there flashed a great light all around me; ⁷I fell also to the ground, and heard a voice saying unto me—Saul! Saul! Why, me, art thou persecuting? ⁸And, I, answered—Who art thou, Lord? And he said unto me—I, am Jesus the Nazarene, whom, thou, art persecuting! ⁹Now, they who were with me, beheld, indeed, the light, but heard not, the voice, of him that was speaking with me ¹⁰And said—What shall I do, Lord? And, the Lord, said unto me—Arise, and be going thy way into Damascus, and, there, shall it be told thee of all things which are appointed for thee to do. ¹¹But, as I could not see clearly owing to the glory of that light, being led by the hand of them who were with me, I came into Damascus. ¹²And, one Ananias, a man devout according to the law, well-attested by all the Jews that dwelt there, ¹³coming unto me, and standing over me, said—Saul, brother! look up. And, I, in that very hour, looked up on him. ¹⁴And he said—The God of our fathers, hath chosen thee to get to know his will, and to see the Righteous One,—and to hear a voice out of his mouth. ¹⁵Because thou shalt be a witness to him unto all men, of the things which thou hast seen and heard. ¹⁶And, now, what art thou going to do? Arise, and get thyself immersed, and have thy sins bathed away, calling upon his name. ¹⁷And it came to pass, when had returned unto Jerusalem, and was praying in the temple, that I came to be in a trance, ¹⁸and saw him, saying unto me—Haste thee, and go forth speedily out of Jerusalem, inasmuch as they will not accept thy witness concerning me. ¹⁹And, I, said—Lord! they themselves, well know that I was imprisoning and beating in every synagogue them who were believing on thee. ²⁰And, when the blood of Stephen thy witness was being shed, even I myself, was standing by, and approving, and guarding the mantles of them who were slaying him. ²¹And he said unto me—Be taking thy journey; because, I, unto nations afar off, will send thee. ²²And they hearkened unto him as far as this word, and lifted up their voice, saying—Away from the earth, with such a man as this, for it is not fit that he should live. ²³Now, as they were both making an outcry and tearing their mantles,—dust, also were throwing into the air, ²⁴the captain ordered him to be brought into the castle, saying, that, with scourging, he should be put to the test,—that he might find out, for what cause they were, thus, clamouring against him. ²⁵But, when they had stretched him out with straps, Paul said unto the by-standing centurion—A Roman, and uncondemned, is it allowed you to be scourging? ²⁶And, when the centurion heard that, he went unto the captain, and reported, saying—What art thou going to do? For, this man, is, a Roman? ²⁷And the captain, coming up, said to him—Tell me! Art, thou, a, Roman? And, he, said—Yea! ²⁸And the captain answered—I, for a large sum, this citizenship acquired! And, Paul, said—But, I, am even, free-born! ²⁹Straightway, therefore, they who were about to put him to the test, withdrew from him; and, even the captain, was struck with fear, when he found out he was, a Roman, and because, him, he had bound. ³⁰But, on the morrow, being minded to get to know the certainty as to why he was being accused by the Jews, he released him, and ordered the High-priests and all the High-council to come together; and, bringing down Paul, set him before them.

23And Paul, looking steadfastly, at the High-council, said—Brethren! I, in all good conscience have used my citizenship for God until this day. ²And, the High-priest, Ananias, ordered them that stood by him, to be smiting him on the mouth. ³Then, Paul, unto him, said—God is about to be smiting thee, thou whited wall! Dost, thou, then sit to judge me according to the law, and, unlawfully, orderest me to be smitten? ⁴And, they who stood by, said—The High-priest of God, dost thou revile? ⁵And Paul said—I was not aware, brethren, that he was high-priest; because it is written—Of a ruler of thy people, shalt thou not speak injuriously. ⁶But Paul, getting to know that, the one part, were Sadducees and, the other, Pharisees, began to cry aloud in the council—Brethren! I, am, a

Pharisee, son of Pharisees:—Concerning a hope, even of a rising again of the dead, am I to be judged. ⁷And, as this he was saying, there arose a dissension of the Pharisees and Sadducees; and rent asunder was the throng. ⁸For, Sadducees, say, there is no rising again, nor messenger, nor spirit, whereas, Pharisees, confess them both. ⁹And there arose a great outcry, and certain of the Scribes of the party of the Pharisees, standing up, began to strive, saying—Nothing bad, find we in this man;—but, if a spirit hath spoken unto him, or a messenger... ¹⁰And, great dissension arising, the captain, fearing lest Paul would be torn in pieces by them, ordered the troop to go down, and take him by force out of their midst, to bring him into the castle. ¹¹But, on the following night, the Lord, standing over him, said—Be of good courage! for, as thou hast fully borne witness of the things concerning me in Jerusalem, so must thou, in Rome also, bear witness. ¹²And, when it became day, the Jews, forming a conspiracy, bound themselves under a curse, saying, that they would neither eat nor drink till they had slain Paul. ¹³And they were, more than forty, who, this sworn-confederacy, had formed. ¹⁴And they went unto the High-priests and Elders, and said—With a curse have we bound ourselves, to taste, nothing, until we have slain Paul. ¹⁵Now, therefore, do, ye, with the High-council, make it appear unto the captain, that he should bring him down unto you, as though about to ascertain more exactly the things that concern him; and, we, or ever he come near, are ready to kill him. ¹⁶But Paul's sister's son hearing of the lying-in-wait, happening to be near, and coming into the castle,—reported it unto Paul. ¹⁷And Paul, calling unto him one of the centurions, said—This young man, lead thou away unto the captain, for he hath somewhat to report unto him. ¹⁸He, therefore, taking him with him, brought him unto the captain, and saith—The prisoner Paul, calling me unto him, requested me to bring this young man unto thee, as having somewhat to tell thee. ¹⁹And the captain, taking him by the hand, and going aside, began, privately, to ask—What is it which thou hast to report unto me? ²⁰And he said—The Jews, have agreed to request thee, that, to-morrow, thou wouldst bring, Paul, down into the High-council, as though about to ascertain something, more exact, concerning him. ²¹Thou, therefore, do not be persuaded by them, for there are lying in wait for him, from among them, more than forty men,—who, indeed, have bound themselves under a curse, neither to eat nor drink, till they have killed him; and, now, are they ready, awaiting the promise, from thee. ²²the captain, therefore, dismissed the young man, charging him—Unto no one, divulge thou, that, these things, thou hast shewed unto me. ²³And calling certain two of the centurions he said—Make ye ready two hundred soldiers, that they may journey as far as Caesarea,—and seventy horsemen, and two hundred spearmen, by the third hour of the night; ²⁴beasts also provide, in order that, seating Paul thereon, they may bring him safely through unto Felix the governor. ²⁵And he wrote a letter, after this form:—²⁶Claudius Lysias, unto the most excellent governor Felix, Joy! ²⁷This man, having been apprehended by the Jews, and being about to be killed by them, I went down with the troop, and rescued; having learned that he was, a Roman. ²⁸And, being minded to find out the cause for which they were accusing him, \u01 I took him down into their High-council\u00 , ²⁹whom I found to be accused concerning questions of their law, but, of nothing worthy of death or bonds, to be charged. ³⁰But, when I was informed there would be a plot against the man, forthwith, I sent him unto thee, charging, his accusers also, to be speaking against him before thee. ³¹So the soldiers, according to their orders, taking up Paul, brought him by night unto Antipatris; ³²and, on the morrow, leaving the horsemen to go on with him, returned to the castle,—³³and the others, entering into Caesarea, and delivering the letter unto the governor, set, Paul also, before him. ³⁴And, when he had read it, and asked out of what province he was, and learned that he was from Cilicia, ³⁵I myself will hear thee in full, said he, whensoever, thine accusers also, are come; and gave orders that, in the palace of Herod, he should be kept under guard.

²⁴And, after five days, came down the High-priest Ananias, with certain Elders and a certain orator Tertullus, and they informed the governor against Paul. ²And, when he was called, Tertullus began to make accusation, saying—Seeing that, great peace, we are obtaining through thee, and that, reforms, are being brought about for this nation through thy forethought, ³both in all ways and in all places, are we accepting it, most excellent Felix, with all thankfulness. ⁴But, lest I too long detain thee, I beseech thee to hear us concisely in thy considerateness. ⁵For, finding this man a pest, and moving sedition with all the Jews that are throughout the inhabited earth, a leader also of the sect of the Nazarenes,—⁶who also attempted to desecrate even, the temple, whom we also seized, ⁷from whom thou shall be able, thyself, by making examination concerning all these things, to ascertain the things of which, we, are accusing him. ⁹Moreover, the Jews also were joining in the attack, saying that, these things, were, so. ¹⁰And Paul answered, when the governor had motioned him to be speaking,—Well knowing thee to have been, for many years, judge unto his nation, cheerfully, as to the things concerning myself, do I make defence; ¹¹seeing thou art able to ascertain, that there are, not more, than twelve days, since I went up to worship in Jerusalem,—¹²and neither, in the temple, found they me, with any one, disputing, or causing, a halt, of the multitude, either in the synagogues or throughout the city,—¹³neither can they make good the things concerning which they are, now, accusing me. ¹⁴But I confess, this, unto thee,—That, ac-

according to the Way which they call a Sect, so, I am rendering divine service unto my father's God, believing in all the things which, throughout the law, and those which, in the prophets, are written: ¹⁵Having, hope, towards God, which, even these themselves, do entertain—that, a resurrection, there shall certainly be, both of righteous and of unrighteous: ¹⁶herein, even I, myself, am studying to have, an unoffending conscience, towards God and men, continually. ¹⁷Now, after many years, intending to do, alms, unto my nation, I arrived,—also to present offerings; among which they found me, purified in the temple, not with a multitude, nor with tumult; ¹⁸but certain Jews from Asia caused it,—¹⁹who ought, before thee, to have presented themselves, and to have been laying accusation, if, anything, they might have had against me:—²⁰Or, let, these themselves, say what wrong they found, when I stood before the High-council,—²¹unless concerning this one voice, wherewith I cried aloud among them, as I stood—Concerning the raising of the dead, am, I, to be judged, this day, by you. ²²And Felix deferred them, having more exact knowledge concerning the Way,—saying—As soon as, Lysias the captain, hath come down, I will give judgment as to your affairs,—²³giving orders unto the centurion, that he should be kept, and have a measure of liberty, and to be hindering, none, of his own from waiting upon him. ²⁴And, after certain days, Felix having arrived, with Drusilla his own wife, who was, a Jewess, he sent for Paul, and heard him concerning the faith, respecting Christ Jesus. ²⁵And, as he was reasoning of righteousness, and self-control, and the judgment to come, Felix, becoming greatly afraid, answered—For the present, be going thy way, and, when I find an opportunity, I will send for thee,—²⁶at the same time, also hoping that, money, would be given him by Paul; wherefore also, the more frequently sending for him, he used to converse with him. ²⁷When, however, two years, were completed, Felix, was succeeded, by Porcius Festus, and Felix, wishing to gain favour with the Jews, left Paul bound.

²⁵Festus, therefore, having come upon the province, after three days, went up unto Jerusalem from Caesarea; ²and the High-priest and chiefs of the Jews laid information before him against Paul, and began to beseech him ³asking for themselves as a favour against him, that he would send for him unto Jerusalem,—making, an ambush, to kill him on the way. ⁴Festus, therefore, answered, that Paul should be kept in Caesarea, and that, he himself, was about, shortly, to be going out thither. ⁵They, therefore, among you (saith he) who are in power, let them go down with me; and, if there is in the man, anything amiss, let them accuse him. ⁶And, spending among them, not more than eight or ten days, he went down unto Caesarea; and, on the morrow, taking his place upon the judgment-seat, ordered Paul to be brought. ⁷And, when he presented himself, the Jews who, from Jerusalem, had come down, stood round about him, many and grievous charges, bringing against him, which they were not able to prove,—⁸Paul saying in defence—Neither against the law of the Jews, nor against the temple, nor against Caesar, have I in anything sinned. ⁹But, Festus, wishing, with the Jews, to gain, favour, answered Paul, and said—Art thou willing, unto Jerusalem, to go up, and, there, concerning these things, be judged before me? ¹⁰But Paul said—Standing before the judgment-seat of Caesar, am I, where, I, ought to be judged. Unto the Jews, have I done no wrong, as, even thou, right well, art discovering. ¹¹If then, on the one hand, I am doing wrong, and, anything worthy of death, have committed, I excuse not myself from dying; but, on the other hand, if there is, nothing, in the things whereof these are accusing me, no man, hath power to give, me, unto them as a favour:—Unto Caesar, I appeal! ¹²Then Festus, having conversed with the council, answered—Unto Caesar, hast thou appealed? Unto Caesar, shalt thou go. ¹³And, some days having gone by, Agrippa the king and Bernice came down to Caesarea, to salute Festus. ¹⁴And, as they were spending more days there, Festus, repeated, unto the king, the things relating to Paul, saying—A certain man, hath been left behind by Felix, as a prisoner; ¹⁵concerning whom, when I happened to be in Jerusalem, the High-priests and the Elders of the Jews laid information, claiming against him a condemnation: ¹⁶unto whom made answer—That it is not a custom with Romans, to grant as a favour any man, before the accused, face to face, should have his accusers, and, opportunity of defence, should receive, concerning the charge. ¹⁷When, therefore, they had come together here, no delay whatever, making, on the next day, taking my place upon the judgment-seat, I ordered the man to be brought: ¹⁸Concerning whom, taking their stand, his accusers, no accusation at all, were bringing, of the evil things which, I, had been suspecting; ¹⁹but, certain questions concerning their own demon-worship, had they against him, and concerning one Jesus, who had died, whom Paul was affirming to be alive. ²⁰And, I, being at a loss as to the inquiry into these things, was asking—whether he might be minded to go unto Jerusalem, and, there, be judged concerning these things. ²¹But, Paul, having appealed to be kept for the decision of the Emperor, I ordered him to be kept, until I could send him up unto Caesar. ²²And, Agrippa, said unto Festus—I could wish, myself also, to hear, the man. Tomorrow, (saith he) thou shalt hear him. ²³On the morrow, therefore, when Agrippa had come, and Bernice, with great display, and they had entered into the audience-chamber, with the captains of thousands and men of distinction of the city,—and Festus had given orders, Paul was brought. ²⁴And Festus saith—King Agrippa! and all ye men, here present with us: Ye observe this person, concerning whom, one and all the throng of the Jews, have interceded with me, both in Jerusalem and here, crying aloud that he ought not to be living any longer. ²⁵But, I, gathered, that, nothing worthy of death, had he committed; and, this man himself, having appealed unto the Emperor, I decided to send him:—²⁶Concerning whom, anything certain to write unto my lord, I have not; wherefore, I have brought him forth before you,—and especially before thee, King Agrippa! in order that, after examination had, I might have something I could write; ²⁷For, unreasonable, unto me, it seemeth, when sending a prisoner, not also, the accusations against him, to signify.

26And, Agrippa, to Paul, said—It is permitted thee, on thine own behalf, to be speaking. Then Paul, stretching forth his hand, went on to make his defence. ²Concerning all things of which I am accused by Jews, King Agrippa, I have been counting myself happy, that, before thee, am I about, this day, to be making my defence; ³especially, as thou art, well-versed, in all the Jewish customs and questions. Wherefore, I beseech thee, patiently, to hear me. ⁴My manner of life, then, from my youth, which, from its commencement, was formed among my nation, even in Jerusalem, know all Jews, ⁵inasmuch as they were aforetime observing me, from the outset,—if they please to bear witness,—that, according to the strictest sect of our own religion, I lived, a Pharisee. ⁶And, now, for the hope of the promise, unto our fathers, being brought to pass by God, am I standing to be judged,—⁷unto which hope, our twelve-tribed nation, with intensity, night and day, rendering divine service, is hoping to attain—concerning which hope, I am being accused by Jews, O King! ⁸What! incredible, is it judged with you, that, God the dead doth raise? ⁹I, therefore, imagined to myself, that, against the name of Jesus the Nazarene, it was needful, many hostile things, to bring about,—¹⁰which also I did in Jerusalem, yea and, many of the saints, I myself, in prisons, shut up,—the authority, from the High-priests, having received: and, when they were to be put to death, I brought against them my vote; ¹¹and, throughout all the synagogues, oftentimes punishing them, I would fain have compelled them to defame; and, being excessively maddened against them, I went on to pursue them as far as even the outlying cities. ¹²Among which things, being on a journey unto Damascus, with the authority and commission of the High-priests, ¹³at midday, on the road, I saw, O King, from heaven, above the splendour of the sun, shining around me, a light, and around them who, with me, were journeying; ¹⁴and, when we were all fallen to the ground, I heard a voice, saying unto me, in the Hebrew language—Saul! Saul! why, me, art thou persecuting? It is hard for thee, against goads, to be kicking! ¹⁵And, I, said—Who art thou, Lord? And the Lord said—I, am Jesus, whom, thou, art persecuting! ¹⁶But rise and stand upon thy feet; for, to this end, have I appeared unto thee,—To appoint thee an attendant and a witness, both of the things as to which thou hast seen me, and of those as to which I will appear unto thee: ¹⁷Rescuing thee from among the people, and from among the nations, unto whom, I, am sending thee—¹⁸To open their eyes; that they turn from darkness unto light, and the authority of Satan unto God, that they may receive remission of sins, and an inheritance among them who have been made holy by the faith respecting me. ¹⁹Wherefore, O King Agrippa,—I became not disobedient unto the heavenly vision; ²⁰But—both to them in Damascus, first, and in Jerusalem, unto all the country of Judaea also, and unto the nations, I carried tidings—that they should repent, and turn unto God, and, works worthy of their repentance, should practise. ²¹Because of these things, Jews seized me in the temple, and were attempting to slay me with their own hands. ²²So then, having met with, the help that is from God, until this day, do I stand, witnessing to both small and great, nothing else saying, than those things which both the prophets, and Moses, did say should certainly come to pass:—²³If, to suffer, the Christ was destined, if, the first of a resurrection of the dead, he is about to carry tidings, of light, both unto the people, and unto the nations. ²⁴Now, as he was saying these things in his defence, Festus, with a loud voice, saith—Thou art raving, Paul! Thy great learning, is turning thee round unto, raving madness. ²⁵But Paul—I am not raving (saith he), most noble Festus,—but, the declarations of truth and soberness, am I sounding forth: ²⁶For well-knoweth, the king, concerning these things, unto whom, with boldness of utterance, am I speaking; for, that these things are not hidden from him, I am well persuaded,—for, not in a corner, hath this thing been done. ²⁷Believest thou, King Agrippa, in the prophets? I know that thou believest! ²⁸And, Agrippa, said unto Paul—Almost, art thou persuading, me, to become a, Christian! ²⁹And, Paul, answered—I could pray unto God that, both almost and altogether, not only thou but all they who are hearing me this day, might become such,—as even, I, am, excepting these bonds. ³⁰And the king rose up, and the governor, Bernice also, and they who had been sitting with them; ³¹And, retiring, they began conversing one with another, saying, Nothing worthy of death or of bonds, doth this man practise. ³²And, Agrippa, unto Festus, said—This man might have been released, if he had not appealed unto Caesar.

27Now, when it was determined that we should sail for Italy, they proceeded to deliver Paul, and certain other prisoners, unto a centurion by name Julius, of an Augustan band. ²And, going on board a ship of Adramittium, about to sail unto the places along the coast of Asia, we put to sea, there being with us, Aristarchus, a Macedonian of Thessalonica; ³and, on the next day, we put into Zidon,—and Julius, treating Paul, kindly, gave him leave to go unto his friends and refresh himself; ⁴and, from thence putting out to sea, we sailed under the lee of Cyprus, because the winds were contrary; ⁵and, sailing across the sea which is off Cilicia and Pamphylia, we came down to Myra, a city of Lycia. ⁶And the centurion, there, finding a ship of Alexandria sailing for Italy, put us therein. ⁷And, for a good many days sailing slowly, and getting with difficulty over against Cnidus, the wind not suffering us to get on, we sailed under the lee of Crete, over against Salmone; ⁸and, with difficulty coasting it, we came to a certain place called Fair Havens, near to which was the city of Lasea. ⁹And, when a considerable time had passed, and sailing was already dangerous, because, even the Fast, had already gone by, Paul began to advise, ¹⁰saying to them—Sirs! I perceive that, with damage and great loss, not only of the cargo and of the ship, but even of our persons, shall the voyage certainly be attended. ¹¹But, the centurion, by the master, and by the shipowner, was more persuaded than by the things which, by Paul, were spoken. ¹²And, the harbour being, incommodious, to winter in, the more part, advised to put to sea from thence, if by any means they might be able to reach Phoenix, to winter, which was a harbour of Crete, looking north-east and south-east. ¹³And, a south wind blowing softly, supposing they had secured their purpose, weighing anchor, they began to sail close in shore along Crete. ¹⁴But, after no long time, there beat down from it a tempestuous wind, called Euraquilo,—¹⁵and, the ship being caught and we not being able to bring her head to the wind, we let her go, and were borne along. ¹⁶And, running under the lee, of some small island, called Cauda, we were able, with difficulty, to make ourselves masters of the boat,—¹⁷which, hoisting up, they began to use, helps, under-girding the ship; and, fearing lest, on the sand-bank of Africa, they should run aground, lowering the gear, so, were they borne along. ¹⁸But, we being exceedingly tempest-tossed, on the next day, they began to throw cargo overboard; ¹⁹and, on the third day, with their own hands, the tackling of the ship, they cast away. ²⁰And, neither, sun nor stars, appearing for many days, and, no small tempest, lying upon us, in the end, all hope that we should be saved, began to be taken from us. ²¹But, when they had been, long without food, then, Paul, standing in the midst of them, said—Ye ought, indeed, Sir! yielding to me, not to have sailed away from Crete, to get this damage and loss. ... ²²And, now, I recommend you to be of good courage; for, loss of life, shall there be, none at all, from among you,—only the ship. ²³For there stood by me this night, belonging unto the God whose I am, unto whom also I am doing divine service, a messenger, ²⁴saying—Be not afraid, Paul! for, before Caesar, must thou needs stand. And lo! God hath granted to thee as a favour, all them who are sailing with thee. ²⁵Wherefore, be of good courage, Sirs; for I believe in God—that, so, it shall be, according as it hath been told me. ²⁶Upon a certain island, however, must we needs be wrecked. ²⁷And, when, the fourteenth night, had come, and we were being driven to and fro in the Adriatic, about midnight, the sailors suspected that some country was, nearing, them; ²⁸and, sounding, they found twenty fathoms,—and, going a little further, and again sounding, they found fifteen fathoms. ²⁹And, fearing lest haply, on rocky places, we should be wrecked, out of stern, cast they four anchors,—and began praying that day might dawn. ³⁰But, when, the sailors, were seeking to flee out of the ship, and had lowered the boat into the sea, by pretext, as though out of the prow they had been about to reach anchors, ³¹Paul said unto the centurion, and unto the soldiers—Except, these, abide in the ship, ye yourselves, cannot be saved! ³²Then, the soldiers cut away the ropes of the boat, and let her fall off. ³³And, until day was about to dawn, Paul continued to beseech one and all to take some food, saying—This day is, the fourteenth day, that, suspense, fasting, ye are completing,—having helped yourselves, to nothing. ³⁴Wherefore, I beseech you to take some food,—for, this, lays a foundation for your safety; for, of no one of you, shall a hair of the head perish. ³⁵And, having said these things, and taken a loaf, he gave thanks unto God before all, and, breaking it, began to eat. ³⁶And, all becoming, of good cheer, they also, helped themselves to food. ³⁷Now we were, in the ship, in all, about seventy-six souls. ³⁸And, when they were satisfied with food, they began lightening the ship, casting out the wheat into the sea. ³⁹And, when day came, they could not recognise, the land; but perceived, a certain bay, having a beach,—upon which they were minded, if they could, safely to bring the ship. ⁴⁰And, casting off the anchors, they let them go into the sea,—at the same time, loosening the lashings of the rudders, and, hoisting up the foresail to the wind, they made for the beach. ⁴¹But, falling into a place where two seas met, they ran the ship aground; and, the foreship sticking fast, remained immoveable, while, the stern, began to break up, from the violence of the waves. ⁴²Now, the soldiers counsel, turned out to be, that they should kill, the prisoners, lest any one should swim out and escape; ⁴³but, the centurion, being minded to bring Paul safely through, hindered them of their purpose, and ordered such as were able to swim, to cast themselves overboard and, get first to the land,—⁴⁴and, the rest, some, on planks, and, some, on other things from the ship, ...and, so, it came to pass, that, all, were brought safely through, on to the land.

28And, when we were safely through, then, we knew that the island was called, Melita. ²And, the natives, began to shew us no common philanthropy; for, kindling a fire, they received us all, because of the rain that had set in, and because of the cold. ³But, when Paul had gathered a certain lot of firewood into a bundle, and laid it on the fire, a viper, by reason of the heat, coming forth, fastened on his hand. ⁴And, when the natives saw the brute hanging out from his hand, they began to say, one to another—

Doubtless, this man is, a murderer, whom, though brought safely through out of the sea, Justice, hath not suffered, to live. ⁵He, however, shaking of the brute into the fire, suffered no harm; ⁶whereas, they, were expecting, that he was about to become inflamed, or to fall down suddenly dead;—but, when they had been long expecting, and had observed, nothing unusual, happening unto him, they changed their minds, and began to say he was a god. ⁷Now, in the neighbourhood of that place, were lands, belonging to the chief man of the island, by name Publius,—who, making us welcome, for three days, hospitably entertained us. ⁸And it so happened that, the father of Publius, with feverish heats and dysentery distressed, was lying prostrate: unto whom Paul entering in and praying, laid his hands on him, and healed him. ⁹And, when this happened, the rest also, even they in the island who were sick, were coming in and getting cured; ¹⁰who also, with many honours, honoured us, and, when we were about to sail, put on board such things as we might need. ¹¹And, after three months, we sailed in a ship which had wintered in the island, a ship of Alexandria, whose ensign was The Twin Brothers; ¹²and, touching at Syracuse, we tarried three days; ¹³whence, going round, we reached Rhegium; and, after one day, a south wind springing up, on the second day, we came to Puteoli; ¹⁴where, finding brethren, we were entreated to tarry, with them, seven days;—and, thus, towards Rome, we came. ¹⁵And, when from thence the brethren heard the tidings concerning us, they came to meet us, as far as The Market of Appius and the Three Taverns—seeing whom, Paul thanked God, and took courage. ¹⁶And, when we entered into Rome, Paul was suffered to abide by himself, with the soldier that guarded him. ¹⁷And it came to pass, after three days, that he called together those who were the chief of the Jews; and, when they came together, he began to say unto them—I, brethren, though I had done nothing against the people, or the customs of our fathers, as a prisoner, out of Jerusalem, was delivered into the hands of the Romans; ¹⁸who, indeed, when they had examined me, were minded to set me at liberty, because there was, nothing worthy of death, in me. ¹⁹But, as the Jews spake against it, I was constrained to appeal unto Caesar,—not as though, against my nation, I had anything to bring by way of accusation. ²⁰For this cause, therefore, have I called for you, to see and to speak with you; for, on account of the hope of Israel, this chain, have I about me! ²¹And, they, said unto him—We, have neither received letters concerning thee from the Jews, nor hath anyone of the brethren who hath arrived reported or spoken concerning thee, anything ill. ²²But we deem it well, that, from thee, we should hear what are thine opinions; for, indeed, concerning this sect, it is, known to us, that, everywhere, is it spoken against. ²³And, having arranged with him a day, there came unto him, to the lodging, a larger number; unto whom he proceeded to expound, bearing full witness as to the kingdom of God, and persuading them concerning Jesus, both from the law of Moses, and from the prophets,—from morning till evening. ²⁴And, some, indeed, were persuaded by the things that were spoken, whereas, others, disbelieved; ²⁵and, not being, agreed, among themselves, they began to leave,—Paul having said one thing—Well, did, the Holy Spirit, speak through Isaiah the prophet, unto your fathers, ²⁶saying—Go thy way unto this people, and say—Ye shall, surely hear, and yet will in nowise understand. And, surely see, and yet will in nowise perceive; ²⁷For the heart of this people, hath become dense, and, with their ears, heavily, have they heard, and, their eyes, have they closed,—lest once they should see with their eyes, and, with their ears, should hear, and, with their hearts, should understand, and return,—when I would certainly heal them. ²⁸Be it, known unto you, therefore, that, unto the nations, hath been sent forth this salvation of God: they, will also hear. ²⁹³⁰And he abode two whole years in his own hired house, and made welcome all who were coming in unto him,—³¹proclaiming the kingdom of God, and teaching the things concerning the Lord Jesus Christ, with all freedom of speech, without hindrance.

Romans

¹Paul, a servant of Jesus Christ, a called apostle, separated unto the glad-message of God—²Which he promised beforehand, through his prophets, in holy scriptures—³Concerning his Son,—who came to be of the seed of David, according to flesh, ⁴Who was distinguished as the Son of God—by power, according to a Holy Spirit, through means of a resurrection of the dead,—Jesus Christ our Lord; ⁵Through whom we have received favour and apostleship, for obedience of faith among all the nations, in behalf of his name, ⁶Among whom are, ye also, called of Jesus Christ: ⁷Unto all that are in Rome, beloved of God, called saints, favour unto you, and peace, from God our Father and Lord Jesus Christ. ⁸First, indeed, I give thanks unto my God, through Jesus Christ, concerning you all, because your faith is being announced throughout the whole world. ⁹For God is, my witness,—unto whom I am rendering divine service in my spirit, in the glad message of his Son,—how incessantly, I am making mention of you ¹⁰At all times in my prayers,—making supplication—if, by some means, even now, at any time, I may have a way opened, in the will of God, to come unto you; ¹¹For I am longing to see you, that I may impart some spiritual gift unto you, to the end ye may be established,—¹²That is to say—there may be a mutual encouragement among you, each by the other's faith, both yours and mine. ¹³I do not wish however that ye should be ignorant, brethren, that, many times, have I purposed to come unto you, but have been hindered, until the present,—in order that, some fruit, I might have among you also, even as among the other nations, ¹⁴Both to Greeks and to Barbarians, both to wise and to unwise, a debtor, I am: ¹⁵Thus, the eagerness on my part—unto you also who are in Rome, to announce the joyful message. ¹⁶For I am not ashamed of the joyful message; for it is God's power unto salvation, to every one that believeth, both to Jew and to Greek; ¹⁷For, a righteousness of God, is therein revealed,—by faith unto faith: even as it is written—But, he that is righteous, by faith, shall live. ¹⁸For there is being revealed an anger of God from heaven—against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men who, the truth, in unrighteousness, do hold down;—¹⁹Inasmuch as, what may be known of God, is manifest among them, for, God, unto them, hath made it manifest,—²⁰For, the unseen things of him, from a world's creation, by the things made, being perceived, are clearly seen, even his eternal power and divinity,—to the end they should be without excuse; ²¹Inasmuch as, having come to know God, not, as God, did they glorify him, or give him thanks, but were made fruitless in their reasonings, and darkened was their undiscerning heart, ²²Professing to be wise, they were made foolish, ²³And, exchanged the glory of the incorruptible God, for the likeness of an image of a corruptible man, and of birds and fourfooted beasts and reptiles: ²⁴Wherefore God gave them up in the covetings of their hearts unto impurity, so as to be dishonouring their bodies among them,—²⁵Who, indeed, exchanged away the truth of God for the falsehood, and rendered worship and service unto the creature rather than unto the Creator,—who is blessed unto the ages. Amen! ²⁶For this cause, God gave them up unto dishonourable passions; for, even their females, exchanged away the natural use into that which is against nature,—²⁷In like manner also, even the males, leaving the natural use of the female, flamed out in their eager desire one for another, males with males, the indecency, effecting,—and, the necessary recompence of their error, within themselves, duly receiving;—²⁸And, even as they did not approve to be holding, God, in acknowledgment, God gave them up unto a disapproved mind to be doing the things that are not becoming, ²⁹Filled with all unrighteousness, wickedness, greed, baseness, full of envy, murder, strife, deceit, evil disposition, ³⁰Whisperers, detractors, haters of God, insolent, arrogant, vain boasters, inventors of vices, unto parents unyielding, ³¹Without discernment, regardless of covenants, without natural affection, unmerciful:—³²Who, indeed, having acknowledged the righteous sentence of God,—that, they who such things as these do practise, are worthy of death, not only, the same things, are doing, but are even delighting together with them who are practising them.

²Wherefore, inexcusable, thou art, O man, whoever judgest; for, wherein thou judgest some one else, thyself, thou dost condemn,—for, the very things, thou dost practise, who art judging: ²We know, however, that, the sentence of God, is according to truth against them who, such things as these, do practise. ³And reckonest thou this, O man—who dost judge them who such things do practise, and yet art doing the same, that, thou, shalt escape the sentence of God? ⁴Or, the riches of his kindness, and forbearance, and long-suffering, dost thou despise,—not knowing that, the kindness of God, unto repentance, is leading thee? ⁵But, according to thy hardness, and thine impenitent heart, art treasuring up for thyself anger, in a day of anger and revelation of the righteous judgment of God,—⁶Who will render unto each one according to his works:—⁷Unto them, on the one hand, who, by way of endurance in good work, are seeking, glory, honour and incorruption, life abiding, ⁸Unto them, on the other hand, who are of contention, and are not yielding unto the truth, but are yielding unto unrighteousness, anger and wrath, ⁹tribulation and anguish—against every soul of man who worketh out what is base, both of Jew first and of Greek,—¹⁰But glory and honour and peace—unto every one who worketh what is good, both unto Jew first and unto Greek: ¹¹For there is no respect of persons with God;—¹²For, as many as without law sinned, without law, also shall perish, and, as many as within law sinned, through law, shall be judged; ¹³For, not the hearers of law, are righteous with God, but, the doers of law, shall be declared righteous; ¹⁴For, whensoever the nations which have not law, by nature, the things of the law, may be doing, the same, not having law, unto themselves, are a law,—¹⁵Who, indeed, shew the work of the law written in their hearts, their conscience therewith bearing witness, and, between one another, their reasonings accusing—or, even excusing, them:—¹⁶In the day on which God judgeth the secrets of men according to my glad-message through Christ Jesus. ¹⁷If, however, thou, art taking the name of Jew, and resting thyself upon law, and boasting in God, ¹⁸And art taking note of his will, and testing the things that differ—when receiving oral instruction out of the law, ¹⁹Art persuaded, moreover, that, thou thyself, art—a guide of the blind, a light of them that are in darkness, ²⁰A trainer of the simple, a teacher of babes, having the forming of knowledge and truth in the law,—²¹Thou, therefore, that art teaching someone else, thyself, art thou not teaching? Thou that proclaimest—Do not steal! Art thou, stealing? ²²That sayest—Do not commit adultery! Art thou, committing adultery? That abhorrest sacrilege, Art thou, robbing temples? ²³That in law dost boast, Through the transgression of the law, art thou dishonouring God? ²⁴For the name of God, because of you, is defamed among the nations,—even as it is written. ²⁵For, circumcision, indeed, profiteth—if, law, thou be practising; but, if thou be a transgressor of law, thy circumcision, hath become, uncircumcision ²⁶If then, the uncircumcision, be guarding the righteous requirement of the law, shall not, his uncircumcision, as circumcision be reckoned?—²⁷And the uncircumcision by nature, completing the law, shall judge, thee, who, notwithstanding letter and circumcision, art a transgressor of law! ²⁸For, not he who is one in appearance, is a Jew, nor is, that which is such in appearance in flesh, circumcision; ²⁹But, he who is one in secret, is a Jew,—and, that is, circumcision, which is of the heart, in spirit, not in letter,—whose, praise, is not of men, but of God.

3What, then, is the preeminence of the Jew? Or what, the profit of his circumcision? ²Much, every way:—First, indeed, that they were entrusted with the oracles of God. ³For what? If some distrusted, shall their distrust make, the trust of God, void? ⁴Far be it! But let, God, prove to be, true, albeit, every man, be false! Even as it is written—That thou mightest be declared righteous in thy words, and overcome when thou art in judgment. ⁵But, if, our unrighteousness, commendeth, God's righteousness, what shall we say? Surely, not unrighteous, is God who visiteth with his anger? After the manner of men, I am speaking,—⁶Far be it! Else how shall God judge the world? ⁷But, if, the truth of God, by my falsehood, hath the more abounded unto his glory, why, any longer, am, even I, as a sinner, to be judged? ⁸And why not, according as we are injuriously charged, \ul1 and\ul0 according as some affirm that we say, Let us do the bad things, that the good ones may come? whose sentence is, just. ⁹What then? do we screen ourselves? Not at all! For we have before accused both Jews and Greeks of being, all under sin; ¹⁰Even as it is written—there is none righteous, not even one, ¹¹There is none that discerneth, There is none that seeketh out God: ¹²All, have turned aside, together, have become useless, There is none that doeth kindness, not so much as one: ¹³A sepulchre opened, is their throat, with their tongues, have they used deceit, the poison of asps, is under their lips, ¹⁴Whose mouth, of cursing and bitterness, is full, ¹⁵Swift, are their feet to shed blood; ¹⁶Destruction and misery, are in their ways, ¹⁷And, the way of peace, have they not known: ¹⁸There is no fear of God before their eyes. ¹⁹Now we know that, whatsoever things the law saith, to them who are within the law, it speaketh, in order that, every mouth, may be stopped and all the world come, under penal sentence, unto God. ²⁰Inasmuch as, by works of law, shall no flesh be declared righteous before him,—through law, in fact, is discovery of sin. ²¹But now, apart from law, a righteousness of God hath been manifested, borne witness to by the law and the prophets,—²²A righteousness of God, through faith in \ul1 Jesus\ul0 Christ, unto all that have faith; for there is no distinction,—²³For, all, have sinned and fall short of the glory of God; ²⁴Being declared righteous freely by his favour through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus:—²⁵Whom God hath set forth as a propitiatory covering, through faith in his blood, for a showing forth of his righteousness, by reason of the passing-by of the previously committed sins, ²⁶In the forbearance of God,—with a view to a showing forth of his righteousness in the present season, that he might be righteous even when declaring righteous him that hath faith in Jesus. ²⁷Where, then, the boasting! It is excluded. Through what kind of law? Of works? Nay! but through a law of faith: ²⁸For we reckon that a man is to be declared righteous by faith, apart from works of law. ²⁹Or, is God the God, of Jews only, and not of the nations also? Yea! of the nations also:— ³⁰If, at all events, God is one, who will declare righteous—the circumcision by faith, and the uncircumcision through their faith. ³¹Do we then make, law, void through means of our faith? Far be it! On the contrary, law, we do establish!

⁴What then shall we say—as touching Abraham our forefather? ²For, if Abraham by works was declared righteous, he hath whereof to boast;—nevertheless, not towards God,— ³For what doth the Scripture say? And Abraham believed in God, and it was reckoned unto him as righteousness. ⁴Now, unto him that worketh, the reward is not reckoned by way of favour but by way of obligation, ⁵Whereas, unto him that worketh not but believeth on him that declareth righteous the ungodly, his faith is reckoned as righteousness. ⁶Just as David also affirmeth the happiness of the man unto whom God reckoneth righteousness apart from works:— ⁷Happy, they whose lawlessnesses have been forgiven and whose sins have been covered, ⁸Happy, the man whose sin the Lord will in nowise reckon. ⁹This happiness, then, is it for the circumcision, or for the uncircumcision? for we say—His faith was reckoned unto Abraham as righteousness: ¹⁰How, then, was it reckoned? When he was in circumcision or in uncircumcision? Not in circumcision, but in uncircumcision; ¹¹And, a sign, he received namely of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had while yet uncircumcised; to the end he might be father of all that believe during uncircumcision, to the end \ul1 the same\ul0 righteousness might be reckoned unto them,— ¹²And father of circumcision—unto them who are not of circumcision only, but who also walk in the steps of the faith, while yet uncircumcised, of our father Abraham. ¹³For, not through means of law, doth the promise belong unto Abraham or unto his seed,—that he should be heir of thee world; but, through a righteousness by faith. ¹⁴For, if they who are of law are heirs, made void is faith and of no effect is the promise. ¹⁵For, the law, worketh out anger, but, where there is no law, neither is there transgression. ¹⁶For this cause, it is by faith, in order that it may be by way of favour, so that the promise is firm unto all the seed,—not unto that by the law only, but unto that also which is such by the faith of Abraham; who is father of us all,— ¹⁷Even as it is written—Father of many nations, have I appointed thee: before him whom he believed—God, who causeth the dead to live, and calleth the things that are not as things that are:— ¹⁸Who, past hope, upon hope believed, so that he became father of many nations,—according to what had been said—So shall be thy seed;— ¹⁹And, without becoming weak in his faith, he attentively considered his own body, already deadened—he being a hundred years old, the deadening also of Sarah's womb; ²⁰In respect, however, of the promise of God, he was not led to hesitate by unbelief, but received power by his faith, giving glory unto God, ²¹And being fully persuaded (that),—what he hath promised, able is he also to perform: ²²Wherefore \ul1 also\ul0 , it was reckoned unto him as righteousness. ²³Now it was not written for his sake alone that it was reckoned unto him, ²⁴But for our sakes also—unto whom it is to be reckoned,—even unto them that believe upon him who raised Jesus our Lord from among the dead: ²⁵Who was delivered up on account of our offences and was raised on account of the declaring us righteous.

⁵Having, therefore, been declared righteous by faith, let us have, peace, towards God, through our Lord Jesus Christ,— ²Through whom also we have had, our introduction, \ul1 by our faith\ul0 into this favour wherein we stand; and let us boast in hope of the glory of God. ³And, not only so, but let us boast also in our tribulations; knowing that, our tribulation, worketh out endurance. ⁴And, our endurance, a testing, and, our testing, hope, ⁵And, our hope, putteth not to shame. Because, the love of God, hath been poured out in our hearts, through the Holy Spirit that hath been given unto us: ⁶Seeing that, Christ, we being weak as yet, seasonably, in behalf of such as were ungodly, died. ⁷For, scarcely in behalf of a righteous man, will one die,—in behalf of the good man indeed, peradventure one even dareth to die; ⁸But God commendeth his own love unto us in that—we as yet being sinners, Christ in our behalf died. ⁹Much more, then, having now been declared righteous by his blood, shall we be saved through him from the anger. ¹⁰For, if being enemies we were reconciled unto God through the death of his Son, much more, having been reconciled, shall we be saved by his life. ¹¹And, not only, so, but are even boasting in God, through our Lord Jesus \ul1 Christ\ul0 ,—through whom, now, the reconciliation we have received. ¹²For this cause,—just as, through one man, sin into the world entered, and through sin, death,—and, so, unto all men death passed through, for that all had sinned;— ¹³For, until law, sin was in the world, although sin is not reckoned when there is no law,— ¹⁴Yet still, death reigned from Adam until Moses, even over them who had not sinned after the likeness of the transgression of Adam,—who is a type of the Coming One;— ¹⁵But, not as the fault, so, \ul1 also\ul0 the decree of favour, for, if, by the fault of the one, the many died, much more, the favour of God and the free-gift in favour, by the one man Jesus Christ, unto the many superabounded; ¹⁶And, not as through one that sinned, is that which is freely given, for, the sentence of judgment, indeed, was—out of one fault into condemnation, whereas, the decree of favour, is—out of many faults, into a recovery of righteousness. ¹⁷For, if, by the fault of the one, death reigned through the one, much more, they who the superabundance of the favour and of \u11 the free-gift of \u10 the righteousness do receive, in life, shall reign through the one, Jesus Christ. ¹⁸Hence then, as through one fault, the sentence was unto all men unto condemnation, so, also, through one recovery of righteousness, the decree of favour is unto all men for righteous acquittal unto life; ¹⁹For, just as, through the disobedience of the one man, sinners, the many were constituted, so, also, through the obedience of the one, righteous, the many shall be constituted—²⁰Law, however, gained admission, in order that the fault might abound, but, where the sin abounded, the favour greatly superabounded: ²¹In order that—just as sin reigned in death, so, also, favour, might reign through righteousness unto life age-abiding, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

⁶What then shall we say? are we still to continue in sin that favour may abound? ²Far be it! we who have died unto sin, how, any longer, shall we live therein? ³Or know ye not that, we, as many as were immersed into Christ \u11 Jesus \u10, into his death were immersed? ⁴We were, therefore, buried together with him through our immersion into his death, in order that—just as Christ was raised from among the dead through the glory of the Father, so, we also, in newness of life should walk. ⁵For, if we have come to be grown together in the likeness of his death, certainly, in that of his resurrection also, shall we be. ⁶Of this taking note—that, our old man, was crucified together with him in order that the sinful body might be made powerless, that we should, no longer, be in servitude to sin; ⁷For, he that hath died, hath become righteously acquitted from his sin. ⁸Now, if we have died together with Christ, we believe that we shall also live together with him; ⁹Knowing that, Christ having been raised from among the dead, no more dieth,—death, over him, no more, hath lordship,—¹⁰For, in that he died, unto sin, died he once for all, but, in that he liveth, he liveth unto God. ¹¹So, ye also, be reckoning yourselves to be—dead indeed unto sin, but, alive unto God in Christ Jesus. ¹²Let not sin, therefore, reign in your death-doomed body, that ye should be obedient to its covetings; ¹³Neither be presenting your members as weapons of unrighteousness unto sin, but present yourselves unto God as though alive from among the dead, and your members as weapons of righteousness unto God; ¹⁴For, sin, over you, shall not have lordship, for ye are not under law, but under favour. ¹⁵What then? Shall we sin, because we are not under law but under favour? Far be it! ¹⁶Know ye not that, unto whom ye are presenting yourselves as servants for obedience, servants ye are unto him unto whom ye are obedient, whether of sin unto death or of obedience unto righteousness? ¹⁷But thanks be unto God, that—whereas ye were servants of sin, ye became obedient out of the heart unto the mould of teaching into which ye were delivered; ¹⁸And, being freed from sin, ye were made servants unto righteousness;—¹⁹In human fashion am I speaking, because of the weakness of your flesh;—for, just as ye presented your members as servants unto impurity and unto lawlessness \u11 for lawlessness \u10, so now, present ye your members as servants unto righteousness for sanctification. ²⁰For, when ye were servants of sin, ye were free as to righteousness;—²¹What fruit, therefore, had ye then—in things for which ye now are taking shame to yourselves? For, the end of those things, is death. ²²Whereas, now, having been freed from sin, and made servants unto God, ye have your fruit for sanctification and, the end, life age-abiding. ²³For, the wages of sin, is death; but, God's gift of favour, is life age-abiding, in Christ Jesus our Lord.

⁷Or are ye ignorant, brethren,—for unto them that understand the law am I speaking, that, the law, hath lordship over a man as long as he liveth? ²For, the married woman, unto her living husband is bound by law; but, if her husband have died, she hath received a full release from the law of her husband. ³Hence then, her husband being alive, an adulteress, shall she be called—if she become another man's, but, if the husband have died, she is free from the law; so that she is not an adulteress, though she become another man's. ⁴So, then, my brethren, ye also, were made dead unto the law through the body of the Christ, to the end ye might become another's—his who from among the dead was raised, in order that we might bring forth fruit unto God. ⁵For, when we were in the flesh, the susceptibilities of sins which were through the law, used to be energized in our members unto the bringing forth of fruit unto death; ⁶But, now, we have received full release from the law, by dying in that wherein we used to be held fast, so that we should be doing service—in newness of spirit and not in obsolescence of letter. ⁷What, then, shall we say? Is the law sin? Far be it! On the contrary, I had not discovered, sin, save through law, for even, of coveting, I had not been aware if, the law, had not kept on saying—Thou shall not covet; ⁸Howbeit sin taking, occasion—through the commandment, wrought out in me all manner of coveting; for, apart from law, sin is dead;—⁹And, I, was alive, apart from law, at one time, but, the commandment coming, sin sprang up to life, ¹⁰Whereas, I, died,—and the commandment which was unto life was found by me to be, itself, unto death; ¹¹For, sin,—taking occasion—through the commandment, completely deceived me and, through it, slew me: ¹²So that, the law, indeed, is holy, and the commandment, holy, and righteous and good. ¹³Did, then, that which is good, unto me become death? Far be it! But it was sin, that it might appear sin, through that which was good unto me working out death, in order that, exceeding sinful, might sin become through the commandment. ¹⁴For we know that, the law, is spiritual,—I, however, am a creature of flesh, sold under sin; ¹⁵For, that which I am working out, I do not approve,—for not, what I wish, the same I practise, but, what I hate, the same I do: ¹⁶Now, if what I wish not the same I do, I consent unto the law that it is right. ¹⁷Now, however, no longer am, I, working it out, but the, sin, that dwelleth in me: ¹⁸I know, in fact, that there dwelleth not in me, that is, in my flesh, anything good; for, the wishing, lieth near me, but, the working out of what is right, not! ¹⁹For not, the good that I wish, I do, but, the evil that I do not wish, the same I practise. ²⁰Now, if what I wish not, the same, I do, no longer am, I, working it out, but the, sin, that dwelleth in me. ²¹Hence, I find the law, to me who wish to be doing the right, that, unto me, the wrong lieth near: ²²I have, in fact, a sympathetic pleasure in the law of God; according to the inner man. ²³But I behold a diverse law in my members, warring against the law of my mind and taking me captive in the law of sin which existeth in my members:—²⁴Wretched, man am, I! Who shall rescue me out of this body doomed to death? ²⁵\ul1 But\ul0 thanks be unto God!—Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Hence, then,—I myself, with the mind, indeed, am in servitude unto a law of God; but; with the flesh; unto a law of sin.

⁸Hence there is now, no, condemnation unto them who are in Christ Jesus; ²For, the-law of the spirit of life in Christ Jesus, hath set thee free from the law of sin and of death;—³For, what was impossible by the law in that it was weak through the flesh, God, by sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh and concerning sin, condemned sin in the flesh, ⁴In order that, the righteous requirement of the law, might be fulfilled in us—who, not according to flesh, do walk, but according to spirit; ⁵For, they who according to flesh have their being, the things of the flesh do prefer, but, they according to the spirit, the things of the spirit; ⁶For, what is preferred by the flesh, is death, whereas, what is preferred by the spirit, is life and peace;—⁷Inasmuch as, what is preferred by the flesh, is hostile towards God, for, unto the law of God, it doth not submit itself, neither in fact can it.—⁸They, moreover, who in flesh have their being, cannot please, God. ⁹But, ye, have not your being in flesh, but in spirit,—if at least, God's Spirit, dwelleth in you; and, if anyone hath not Christ's Spirit, the same, is not his;—¹⁰But, if Christ is in you, the body, indeed, is dead by reason of sin, whereas, the spirit, is life by reason of righteousness; ¹¹If, moreover, the Spirit of him that raised Jesus from among the dead dwelleth in you, he that raised from among the dead Christ Jesus, shall make alive \ul1 even\ul0 your death-doomed bodies, through means of his indwelling Spirit within you. ¹²Hence, then, brethren—debtors, we are, not unto the flesh, that, according to flesh, we should live,—¹³For, if according to flesh ye live, ye are about to die, whereas, if in spirit, the practices of the flesh, ye are putting to death, ye shall attain unto life; ¹⁴For, as many as by God's Spirit are being led, the same, are God's sons,—¹⁵For ye have not received a spirit of servitude, leading back into fear, but ye have received a spirit of sonship, whereby we are exclaiming—Abba! Oh Father! ¹⁶The Spirit itself, beareth witness together with our spirit that we are children of God; ¹⁷And, if children, heirs also—heirs, indeed, of God, but co-heirs with Christ,—if, at least, we are suffering together, in order that we may also be glorified together. ¹⁸For I reckon that unworthy are the sufferings of the present season to be compared with the glory about to be revealed towards us; ¹⁹For, the eager outlook of creation, ardently awaiteth the revealing of the sons of God,—²⁰For, unto vanity, hath creation been made subject—not by choice, but by reason of him that made it subject, in hope ²¹That, creation itself also, shall be freed—from the bondage of the decay into the freedom of the glory of the sons of God; ²²For we know that, all creation, is sighing together, and travailing-in-birth-throes together until the present,—²³And, not only so, but, we ourselves, also, who have the first-fruit of the Spirit—\ul1 we\ul0 even ourselves, within our own selves do sigh,—sonship ardently awaiting—the redeeming of our body;—²⁴For, by our hope, have we been saved,—but, hope beheld, is not hope, for, what one beholdeth, why doth he hope for? ²⁵If, however, what we do not behold we hope for, with endurance, are we ardently awaiting it ;—²⁶In the selfsame way moreover, even the Spirit, helpeth together in our weakness,—for, what we should pray for as we ought, we know not, but, the Spirit itself, maketh intercession with sighings unutterable, ²⁷And, he that searcheth the hearts, knoweth what is preferred by the Spirit—that, according to God, he maketh intercession in behalf of saints; ²⁸We know, further, that, unto them who love God, God causeth all things to work together for good,—unto them who, according to purpose, are such as he hath called; ²⁹For, whom he fore-approved, he also fore-appointed to be conformed unto the image of his Son, that he might be firstborn among many brethren,—³⁰And, whom he fore-appointed, the same, he also called, and, whom he called, the same, he also declared righteous, and, whom he declared righteous, the same, he also made glorious:—³¹What, then, shall we say to a these things? If God is for us, who shall be against us? ³²He, at least, who his own Son did not spare, but in behalf of us all delivered him up, how shall he not also, with him, all things upon us in favour bestow? ³³Who shall bring an accusation against the chosen ones of God? God, who declareth righteous? ³⁴Who is he that condemneth? Christ \ul1 Jesus\ul0 who died?—Nay! rather was raised \ul1 from among the dead\ul0,—who is on the right hand of God, who also is making intercession in our behalf? ³⁵Who shall separate us from the love of the Christ? Shall tribulation, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?—

³⁶According as it is written—For thy sake, are we being put to death all the day long, we have been reckoned as sheep for slaughter.—³⁷Nay, in all these things, we are more than conquering through him that hath loved us. ³⁸For I am persuaded that—neither death nor life, nor messengers nor principalities, nor things present nor things to come, nor powers, ³⁹Nor height nor depth, nor any other created thing, shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

9Truth, say I, in Christ, I utter no falsehood,—my conscience bearing witness with me in the Holy Spirit,—²That I have great grief and incessant travail in my heart; ³For I could have wished to be accursed, even I myself, from the Christ, in behalf of my brethren my kinsmen according to the flesh;—⁴Who, indeed, are Israelites, whose are the sonship, and the glory, and the covenants, and the legislation, and the divine service, and the promises, ⁵Whose are the fathers, and of whom is the Christ—according to the flesh—he who is over all, God, blessed unto the ages. Amen. ⁶It is not, however, as though the word of God had failed; for, not all they who are of Israel, the same are Israel. ⁷Neither, because they are seed of Abraham, are all children,—but, In Isaac, shall there be called unto thee a seed. ⁸That is—not the children of the flesh, the same are children of God; but, the children of the promise, are reckoned as a seed. ⁹For, of promise, is this word—According to this season, will I come, and Sarah shall have a son. ¹⁰And, not only so, but, when, Rebekah also, was with child, of one—Isaac our father,—¹¹They, in fact, not being yet born, nor having practised anything good or bad,—in order that the purpose of God by way of election might stand,—not by works but by him that was calling, ¹²It was said unto her—The elder, shall serve the younger; ¹³Even as it is written—Jacob, have I loved, but, Esau, have I hated. ¹⁴What, then, shall we say? Is there injustice with God? Far be it! ¹⁵For, unto Moses, he saith—I will have mercy upon whomsoever I can have mercy, and I will have compassion upon whomsoever I can have compassion. ¹⁶Hence, then, it is nor of him that wisheth nor of him that runneth, but of the mercy-shewing God. ¹⁷For the Scripture saith unto Pharaoh—Unto this end, have I raised thee up, that I may thus shew in thee my power, and that I may declare my name in all the earth. ¹⁸Hence, then,—on whom he pleaseth, he hath mercy, and, whom he pleaseth, he doth harden. ¹⁹Thou wilt say to me, then—Why longer findeth he fault? For, his purpose, who hath withstood? ²⁰O man! Who, nevertheless, art, thou, that art answering again unto God? Shall the thing formed say unto him that formed it—Why didst thou make me thus? ²¹Or hath not the potter a right over the clay—out of the same lump, to make some, indeed, into a vessel for honour, and some for dishonour? ²²And, if God—wishing to shew his anger and to make known his power—bare, in much patience, with vessels of anger already fitted for destruction, ²³In order that he might make known the riches of his glory upon vessels of mercy which he prepared beforehand for glory,—²⁴Whom he also called, even us, not only from among Jews, but also from among the nations, what then? ²⁵As also in Hosea he saith—I will call the not-my-people, My people, and the not-beloved, beloved, ²⁶And it shall be—in the place where it was said \u011 to them\u010 —not my people are, ye! there, shall they be called—Sons of a Living God. ²⁷Isaiah, moreover, exclaimeth over Israel—Though the number of the sons of Israel be as the sand of the sea, the remnant, shall be saved; ²⁸For, a complete and concise account, will the Lord make upon the earth. ²⁹And, even as Isaiah hath before said,—If, the Lord of hosts, had not left us a seed, as Sodom, had we become, and, as Gomorrha, had we been made like. ³⁰What, then, shall we say? That, they of the nations, who were not in pursuit of righteousness, have laid hold of righteousness,—a righteousness, however, which is by faith; ³¹Whereas, Israel, though in pursuit of a law of righteousness, unto a law, have not attained. ³²Wherefore? Because, not by faith but as by works, have they sought it : they have stumbled at the stone of stumbling, ³³Even as it is written—Lo! I lay in Zion, a stone to strike against and a rock to stumble over, and, he that resteth faith thereupon, shall not be put to shame.

10Brethren! the delight of my own heart and my supplication God-ward in their behalf, are for salvation; ²For I bear them witness that they have, a zeal for God,—but not according to correct knowledge; ³For, not knowing God's righteousness and, their own, seeking to establish, unto the righteousness of God, have they not submitted; ⁴For Christ is an end of law, for righteousness, unto every one that believeth. ⁵For, Moses, writeth that—as touching the righteousness that is by law, The man that hath done it , shall live thereby; ⁶Whereas, the righteousness by faith, thus speaketh—Do not say in thy heart, Who shall ascend into heaven? That is, to bring, Christ, down, ⁷Or, Who shall descend into the abyss? That is, to bring up, Christ, from among the dead; ⁸But what saith it? Near thee, is the declaration, In thy mouth and in thy heart,—that is, the declaration of the faith, which we proclaim:—⁹That, if thou shalt confess the declaration with thy mouth—That Jesus is, Lord, and shalt believe with thy hear—That, God, raised him from among the dead, thou shalt be saved;—¹⁰For, in heart, it is to be believed unto righteousness, and, by mouth, it is to be confessed unto salvation. ¹¹For the scripture saith—No one that resteth faith thereupon, shall be put to shame? ¹²For there is no distinction—of Jew or Greek,—for, the same Lord , is Lord of all, being rich unto all who call upon him; ¹³For, Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord, shall be saved:—¹⁴How, then, shall men call upon one in whom they have not believed? And how shall they believe in one of whom they have not heard? And how shall they hear, without one to proclaim? ¹⁵And how shall they proclaim, except they be sent? Even as it is written—How beautiful the feet of them that bring glad tidings of good things! ¹⁶But, not all, have become obedient unto the glad tidings;—for, Isaiah, saith—Lord! who believed what we have heard? ¹⁷Hence, our faith, cometh by something heard, and, that which is heard, through a declaration of Christ. ¹⁸But I say: Have they not heard? Yea indeed,—into all the earth, hath gone forth their sound, and, unto the ends of the inhabited world, their declarations. ¹⁹But I say: Hath, Israel, not come to know? First, Moses, saith—I, will provoke you to jealousy on account of a no-nation, on account of an undiscerning nation, will I make you very angry. ²⁰Isaiah, however, waxeth daring, and saith,—I have been found by them who after me were not seeking, manifest have I become unto them who for me were not enquiring; ²¹Whereas, regarding Israel, he saith—All day long, have I stretched forth my hands unto a people unyielding and contradicting.

11 I say, then—Hath God cast off his people? Far be it! For, I also, am an Israelite,—of the seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin: ²God hath not cast off his people, whom he fore approved. Or know ye not, in the account of Elijah what the scripture saith, when he intercedeth with God against Israel? ³Lord! Thy prophets, have they slain, thine altars, have they overthrown, and, I, am left alone, and they are seeking my life! ⁴But what saith unto him the response? I have left for myself seven thousand men, who, indeed, have not bowed a knee unto Baal. ⁵Thus, then, in the present season also, a remnant, by way of an election of favour, hath come into being. ⁶If, however, by favour, no longer of works; else, favour, no longer proveth to be favour! ⁷What then? That which Israel seeketh after, the same, it hath not obtained:—the election, however, have obtained it, and, the rest, have been hardened;— ⁸Even as it is written—God hath given unto them a spirit of stupor,—eyes not to see, and ears not to hear,—until this very day; ⁹And, David, saith—Let their table be turned into a snare, and into gin, and into a trap, and into a recompense unto them, ¹⁰Darkened be their eyes, not to see, and, their back, do thou continually bow down. ¹¹I say then—Did they stumble in order that they might fall? Far be it! But, by their fall, salvation hath come unto the nations, to the end of provoking them to jealousy. ¹²If, moreover, their fail, is the riches of a world, and their loss, the riches of nations, how much rather their fullness? ¹³Unto you, however, am I speaking,—you of the nations; inasmuch, indeed, then, as, I, am an apostle to the nations, my ministry, I glorify, ¹⁴If by any means I may provoke to jealousy my own flesh, and save some from among them;— ¹⁵For, if, the casting away of them, hath become the reconciling of a world, what shall, the taking of them in addition, be, but life from among the dead? ¹⁶If, moreover, the first fruit is holy, the lump shall be also; and, if the root is holy, the branches shall be also. ¹⁷If, however, some of the branches, have been broken out, and, thou, being a wild olive hast been grafted in among them, and hast become a joint partaker of the root of the fatness of the olive, ¹⁸Be not boasting over the branches! Howbeit, if thou boast, it is not, thou, that bearest the root, but the root, thee! ¹⁹Thou wilt say, then—Branches were broken out in order that, I, might be grafted in. ²⁰Well: by their want of faith, they have been broken out,—and, thou, by thy faith, dost stand!—Regard not lofty things, but be afraid; ²¹For, if, God, hath not spared, the natural branches, neither, thee, will he spare! ²²See, then, the kindness and the severity of God: upon them who have fallen, severity,—but, upon thee, the kindness of God, if thou abide still in the kindness,—otherwise, thou also, shalt be cut out; ²³Whereas, they also, unless they abide still in their want of faith, shall be grafted in, for God is, able, again to engraft them! ²⁴For, if, thou, out of the naturally wild olive was cut out, and, beyond nature, hast been engrafted into the good olive, how much rather, shall these, the natural branches be engrafted into their own olive tree? ²⁵For I wish not, ye should be ignorant, brethren, of this sacred secret, lest within yourselves ye be presumptuous, that, a hardening in part, hath befallen Israel, until, the full measure of the nations, shall come in; ²⁶And, so, all Israel shall be saved: even as it is written—There shall have come out of Zion the Deliverer,—He will turn away ungodliness from Jacob; ²⁷And, this, for them, is the covenant from me, as soon as I take away their sins. ²⁸As touching the joyful message, indeed, they are enemies for your sake, but, as touching the election, beloved for their father's sake; ²⁹For, not to be regretted, are the gifts and the calling of God:— ³⁰For, just as, ye, at one time had not yielded unto God, and yet now have received mercy by their refusal to yield, ³¹So, these also, have now refused to yield, by your own mercy, in order that, themselves also, should now become objects of mercy; ³²For God hath shut up all together, in a refusal to yield, in order that, upon all, he may bestow mercy. ³³Oh! the depth of the riches and wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable his judgments! and untraceable his ways! ³⁴For who hath come to know the mind of the Lord? Or who hath become his counselor? ³⁵Or who hath first given unto him, and it shall be recompensed to him again? ³⁶Because, of him, and through him, and unto him, are all things:—unto him, be the glory, unto the ages. Amen!

12 I beseech you therefore, brethren, through the compassions of God, to present your bodies a living, holy sacrifice, unto God acceptable,—your rational divine service; ²And be not configuring yourselves unto this age, but be transforming yourselves by the renewing of your mind, to the end ye may be proving what is the thing willed by God—the good and acceptable and perfect. ³For I say, through the favour which hath been given me, unto every one who is among you,—not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think, but so to think as to think soberly—as, unto each one, God hath dealt a measure of faith. ⁴For, just as in one body we have many members, yet, all the members, have not the same office, ⁵So, we, the many, are one body in Christ, yet, severally, members one of another. ⁶Now, having gifts of favour, according to the favour given unto us, differing—whether prophesying, let us use it according to the proportion of our faith, ⁷Or ministering, use it in our ministering, or he that teacheth, let him use his gift in his teaching, ⁸Or he that exhorteth, in his exhorting, he that imparteth, let it be with liberality, he that taketh a lead, with diligence, he that sheweth mercy, with cheerfulness. ⁹Your love, be without hypocrisy,—loathing that which is wicked, cleaving to that which is good; ¹⁰In your brotherly love, unto one another, being tenderly affectioned, in honour, unto one another, giving preference; ¹¹In business, not slothful, in spirit, fervent, to the Lord, doing service, ¹²In hope, rejoicing, in tribulation, enduring, in prayer, persevering, ¹³With the needs of the saints, having fellowship,—hospitality, pursuing. ¹⁴Bless them that persecute, bless, and do not curse. ¹⁵Rejoice with them that rejoice, weep with them that weep: ¹⁶The same thing, one to another regarding,—not the lofty things regarding, but, by the lowly, being led along. Be not getting presumptuous in your own opinion: ¹⁷Unto no one, evil for evil rendering: providing honourable things before all men: ¹⁸If possible—so far as dependeth on you, with all men being at peace: ¹⁹Not avenging, yourselves, beloved, but give place unto their anger; for it is written—Mine, is avenging, I, will recompense;—saith the Lord; ²⁰But—if thine enemy hunger, be feeding him, if he thirst, be giving him drink; for, this doing, coals of fire, shalt thou heap upon his head. ²¹Be not overcome by evil, but overcome evil with good.

13Let, every soul, unto protecting authorities be in subjection; for there is no authority save by God, and, they that are in being, have by God been arranged,—²So that, he who rangeth himself against the authority, against the arrangement of God opposeth himself, and, they who oppose, shall unto themselves a sentence of judgment receive. ³For, they who bear rule, are not a terror unto the good work but unto the evil. Wouldst thou not be afraid of the authority? That which is good, be thou doing, and thou shall have praise of the same; ⁴For, God's minister, is he unto thee for that which is good. But, if, that which is evil, thou be doing, be afraid! For, not in vain, the sword he beareth; for, God's minister, he is,—an avenger, unto anger, to him who practiseth what is evil. ⁵Wherefore it is necessary to be in subjection,—not only because of the anger, but also because of the conscience; ⁶For, because of this, are ye paying tribute also,—for, God's ministers of state, they are, unto this very thing, giving constant attendance. ⁷Render unto all their dues,—unto whom tribute, tribute, unto whom tax, tax, unto whom fear, fear, unto whom honour, honour. ⁸Nothing to any, be owing—save to be loving one another; for, he that loveth his neighbour, hath given to, law, its fulfillment. ⁹For, this—Thou shall not commit adultery, Thou shall not commit murder, Thou shall not steal, Thou shall not covet, and if there is any different commandment, in this word, is summed up, \u1 namely\u0 —Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. ¹⁰Love, unto ones neighbour, worketh not ill; Law's fullness, therefore, is, love. ¹¹And, this besides,—knowing the season—that it is an hour already for you out of sleep to be wakened; for, now, is our salvation nearer than when we believed: ¹²The night, is far spent and, the day, hath drawn near; let us, then, cast off the works of darkness, \u1 and\u0 let us put on the armour of light,—¹³As in daytime, becomingly let us walk: not in revellings and in drunken bouts, not in chamberings and in wanton deeds, not in strife and envy;—¹⁴But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and, for the flesh, take not forethought to fulfil its covetings.

14Him that is weak in his faith, receive ye,—not for disputing opinions:—²One, indeed, hath faith to eat all things, whereas, he that is weak, eateth herbs: ³Let not, him that eateth, despise him that eateth not, and let not, him that eateth not, judge him that eateth; for, God, hath received him. ⁴Who art, thou, that judgest another's domestic? To his own master, he standeth or falleth; he shall, however, be made to stand,—for his master is able to make him stand. ⁵\u1 For\u0 , one, indeed esteemeth one day beyond another, whereas, another, esteemeth every day:—let, each one, in his own mind be fully persuaded. ⁶He that regardeth the day, unto the Lord, regardeth it,—and, he that eateth, unto the Lord, doth eat, for he giveth thanks unto God; and, he that eateth not, unto the Lord, doth not eat and give God thanks. ⁷For, none of us, unto himself liveth, and, none, unto himself dieth; ⁸For both, if we live, unto the Lord, we live, and, if we die, unto the Lord, we die; whether therefore we live, the Lord's, we are; or whether we die, the Lord's, we are; ⁹For, to this end, Christ died and lived, in order that, both of dead and living, he might have lordship. ¹⁰But, thou, why dost thou judge thy brother? Aye! and thou, why dost thou despise thy brother? For, all of us, shall present ourselves unto the judgment seat of God; ¹¹For it is written—Living am, I, saith the Lord, unto me, shall bow every knee, and, every tongue, shall openly confess unto God. ¹²Hence, \u1 then\u0 , each one of us, of himself shall give account unto God. ¹³No longer, then, upon one another, let us be sitting in judgment, but, this, judge ye rather—not to be putting a cause of stumbling before your brother or an occasion to fall. ¹⁴I know and am persuaded in the Lord Jesus—that, nothing, is profane of itself,—save to him who reckoneth anything to be profane, unto that man, it is profane, ¹⁵If, in fact, because of food, thy brother is being grieved, no longer, by the rule of love, art thou walking:—do not, by thy food, that man, be destroying, on whose behalf Christ died! ¹⁶Therefore, suffer not to be defamed, your own good thing; ¹⁷For the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but righteousness and peace and joy in Holy Spirit; ¹⁸For, he that in this doeth service unto the Christ, is acceptable unto God, and approved unto men. ¹⁹Hence, then, the things pertaining to peace, let us pursue, and the things which belong to the upbuilding one of another: ²⁰Do not, for the sake of food, be throwing down the work of God! All things, indeed, are pure; but, ill, is it for the man who with occasion of stumbling doth eat,— ²¹Well, is it not to eat flesh nor to drink wine nor to do aught whereby thy brother is caused to stumble. ²²The faith which thou hast, have to thyself before God: happy, he that bringeth not judgment upon himself by that which he approveth; ²³But, he that is in doubt, if he eat, hath condemned himself,—because, it was not of faith, and, everything which is not of faith, is sin.

15We are bound, however, we, who are strong, the weakness of them who are not strong to be bearing, and not, unto ourselves, to give pleasure. ²Let, each one of us, unto his neighbour give pleasure—for what is good unto upbuilding; ³For, even the Christ, not unto himself gave pleasure, but, even as it is written—The reproaches of them that we reproaching thee, fell upon me: ⁴Whatsoever things, in fact, were written aforetime, \ul1 all\ul0 for our own instruction were written,—in order that, through endurance and through the encouragement of the Scriptures, we might have their hope. ⁵Now may, the God of the endurance and of the encouragement, give you, the same thing, to be regarding amongst one another, according to Christ Jesus; ⁶In order that, with one accord, with one mouth, ye maybe glorifying the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. ⁷Wherefore receive ye one another, even as, Christ also, hath received us unto the glory of God:— ⁸For I affirm Christ to have become a minister of circumcision in behalf of the truth of God,—to confirm the promises of the fathers, ⁹And that, the nations, for mercy should glorify God:—even as it is written—For this cause, will I openly confess unto thee among nations, and, unto thy name, will strike the strings; ¹⁰And again he saith—Be glad ye nations with his people; ¹¹And again,—Be giving praise all ye nations unto the Lord, and let all the peoples repeat his praise; ¹²And, again, Isaiah, saith—There shall be the root of Jesse, and he that ariseth to rule nations,—upon, him, shall nations hope. ¹³Now, the God of the hope, fill you with all joy and peace in believing, so that ye may surpass in the hope, in the power of Holy Spirit. ¹⁴But I am persuaded my brethren,—even, I myself, concerning you: that, ye yourselves, also are full of goodness, filled with all knowledge, able also, unto one another, to be ministering admonition: ¹⁵Howbeit, the more boldly, have I written unto you,—in some measure, as bringing it back to your minds,—by reason of the favour given unto me from God,— ¹⁶That I should be a public minister of Christ Jesus unto the nations, doing priestly service with the glad-message of God, in order that the offering up of the nations might prove to be acceptable, being hallowed in Holy Spirit: ¹⁷I have, therefore, \ul1 my\ul0 boasting in Christ Jesus in the things pertaining to God,— ¹⁸For I wilt not dare to speak anything save of the things which Christ hath wrought out for himself through me for the obedience of nations,—by word and deed, ¹⁹By the power of signs and wonders, by the power of \ul1 Holy Spirit\ul0 ; so that I, from Jerusalem and in a circuit as far as Illyricum, have fulfilled the glad-message of the Christ,— ²⁰Although, thus,—as ambitious to be announcing the glad-message—not where Christ had been named, lest, upon another's foundation, I should be building; ²¹But, even as it is written—They shall see unto whom had been announced no tidings concerning him, and, they who had not heard, shall understand. ²²Wherefore, also, I have been hindered these many times from coming unto you; ²³But, now, no longer having place in these regions, and having had, a longing, to come unto you a good many years,— ²⁴As soon as I am journey to Spain,—I am hoping, in fact, when journeying through to get sight of you, and by you to be set forward thither,—if, with your company, I have first in some measure been satisfied. ²⁵But, now, I am journeying unto Jerusalem, ministering unto the saints; ²⁶For Macedonia and Achaia have been well-pleased to make a certain fellowship for the destitute of the saints who are in Jerusalem,— ²⁷They have been well-pleased, indeed,—and, their debtors, they are; for, if, with their spiritual things the nations have come into fellowship, they are bound also with their own carnal things to minister publicly unto them. ²⁸This, then, having completed, and sealed unto them this fruit, I will come back by you unto Spain:— ²⁹And know that, when I come unto you, in the fullness of the blessing of Christ, I shall come. ³⁰I beseech you, moreover, \ul1 brethren\ul0 , through our Lord Jesus Christ, and through the love of the Spirit, to strive together with me in your prayers on my behalf unto God,— ³¹In order that I may be delivered from them who do not yield in Judaea, and, my ministry which is unto Jerusalem, may prove to be acceptable unto the saints; ³²In order that, with joy coming unto you through God's will, I may together with you find rest. ³³Now, the God of peace, be with you all. Amen.

16And I commend to you Phoebe our sister,—being a

²In order that ye may give her welcome in the Lord in a manner worthy of the saints, and stand by her in any matter wherein she may have need of you; for, she also, hath proved to be a defender of many, and of my own self.

³Salute ye Prisca and Aquila, my fellow-workers in Christ Jesus,—⁴Who, indeed, for my life, their own neck laid down,—unto whom—not, I only, give thanks, but also all the assemblies of the nations; ⁵Salute also the assembly at their house. Salute ye Epaenetus, my beloved, who is a first-fruit of Asia unto Christ. ⁶Salute Mary—who, indeed, hath toiled much for you. ⁷Salute Andronicus and Junias, my kinsmen and my fellow-captives, who, indeed, are of note among the Apostles, who also before me had come to be in Christ. ⁸Salute Ampliatus, my beloved in the Lord. ⁹Salute Urbanus, our fellow-worker in Christ; and Stachys, my beloved. ¹⁰Salute Apelles, the approved in Christ. Salute them of the household of Aristobulus.

¹¹Salute Herodion, my kinsman. Salute them of the household of Narcissus who are in the Lord. ¹²Salute Tryphaena and Tryphosa, sisters who have toiled in the Lord. Salute Persis, the beloved sister, who, indeed, hath toiled much in the Lord. ¹³Salute Rufus, the chosen in the Lord; also his and my mother. ¹⁴Salute Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermes, Patrobas, Hermas, and the brethren that are with them. ¹⁵Salute Philologus and Julia, Nereus and his sister, and Olympus, and all the saints that are with them.

¹⁶Salute ye one another, with a holy a kiss. All the assemblies of the Christ salute you. ¹⁷But I beseech you, brethren, to keep an eye upon them who are causing divisions and occasions of stumbling, aside from the teaching which, ye, have learned,—and be turning away from them;

¹⁸For, they who are such, unto our Lord Christ are not doing service, but unto their own belly,—and, through their smooth and flattering speech, deceive the hearts of the innocent. ¹⁹For, your obedience, unto all hath reached,— over you, therefore, I rejoice! But I wish you—to be wise, \ul1 indeed\ul0, as to that which is good, yet pure, as to that which is evil. ²⁰Howbeit, the God of peace, will crush Satan under your feet shortly. The favour of our Lord Jesus, be with you. ²¹There salute you—Timothy, my fellow-worker, and Lucius, and Jason, and Sosipater, my kinsmen. ²²I, Tertius, who have written the epistle, salute you in the Lord. ²³There saluteth you—Gaius, my host and the host of the whole assembly. There salute you—Erastus, the steward of the city, and Quartus the brother. ²⁴²⁵Now, unto him who hath power to establish you, according to my glad-message—even the proclamation of Jesus Christ, according to the revelation of a sacred secret, in age-past times kept silent, ²⁶But now made manifest, and through means of prophetic scriptures, according to the command of the age-abiding God, for obedience of faith unto all the nations made known, ²⁷Unto a God, wise alone, through Jesus Christ, \ul1 unto whom\ul0 be the glory, unto the

¹Paul, a called apostle of Jesus Christ, through God's will,—and Sosthenes the brother,—²Unto the assembly of God which is in Corinth, sanctified in Christ Jesus, called saints,—with all who call upon the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, in every place,—their Lord and ours:³Favour unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and Lord Jesus Christ. ⁴I give thanks unto my God, at all times, concerning you, by reason of the favour of God given unto you in Christ Jesus,—⁵That, in everything, ye have been enriched in him—in all discourse and in all knowledge;⁶Even as, the witness of the Christ, hath been confirmed in you,⁷So that ye come short in no gift of favour,—ardently awaiting the revelation of our Lord Jesus Christ: ⁸Who will also confirm you unto the end, unaccusable in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ: ⁹Faithful, is God, through whom ye have been called into the fellowship of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord. ¹⁰But I beseech you, brethren, through the name of our Lord Jesus Christ,—that, the same thing, ye, all, be saying, and that there be not, among you, divisions; but that ye be fitly joined together—in the same mind, and in the same judgment. ¹¹For it hath been signified unto me, concerning you, my brethren,—by them who are of the household of Chloe,—that there are strifes among you, ¹²Now I mean this,—that, each one of you, is saying—I, indeed, am of Paul, but, I, of Apollos, but, I, of Cephas, but, I, of Christ: ¹³The Christ is divided! Was, Paul, crucified for you? Or, into the name of Paul, were ye immersed? ¹⁴I give thanks, that, none of you, did I immerse—save Crispus and Gaius, ¹⁵Lest any should say—into my own name, I immersed: ¹⁶Yea! I immersed the house of Stephanas also,—besides, I know not whether, anyone else, I immersed. ¹⁷For Christ sent me not, to be immersing, but to be telling the good news,—not with wisdom of discourse, lest, void should be made, the cross of the Christ. ¹⁸For, the discourse which concerneth the cross, unto them, indeed, who are perishing, is, foolishness; but, unto them who are being saved—unto us, it is, God's power. ¹⁹For it is written—I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and, the discernment of the discerning, will I set aside. ²⁰Where is the wise? Where is the scribe? Where is the disputer of this age? Hath not God made foolish the wisdom of the world? ²¹For, seeing that, in the wisdom of God, the world, through its wisdom, did not get to know God, God was well-pleased—through the foolishness of the thing proclaimed, to save them that believe. ²²Seeing that both, Jews for signs, do ask, and, Greeks for wisdom, do seek, ²³Whereas, we, proclaim a Christ who hath been crucified,—unto Jews, indeed, an occasion of stumbling, and, unto Gentiles, foolishness; ²⁴But, unto the called themselves—both Jews and Greeks, Christ, God's power, and, God's wisdom. ²⁵Because, God's foolish thing, is, wiser than men, and, God's weak thing, mightier than men. ²⁶For be looking at the calling of you, brethren,—that there were not many wise, according to flesh. Not many powerful, not many high-born: ²⁷On the contrary—the foolish things of the world, hath God chosen, that he might put to shame them who are wise, and, the weak things of the world, hath God chosen, that he might put to shame the things that are mighty, ²⁸And, the low-born things of the world, and the things that are despised, hath God chosen,—and the things that are not,—that, the things that are, he might bring to nought; ²⁹So that no flesh should boast before God. ³⁰But, of him, are, ye, in Christ Jesus, who hath been made wisdom unto us, from God,—both righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption: ³¹In order that, even as it is written—He that boasteth, in the Lord, let him boast.

²I, therefore, brethren, when I came unto you, came, not with excellency of discourse or wisdom, declaring unto you the mystery of God; ²For I had not determined to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ,—and, him, as one who had been crucified! ³I, therefore in weakness, and in fear, and in much trembling, came to be with you, ⁴And, my discourse, and what I proclaimed, were not in suasive words of wisdom, but in demonstration of Spirit and power: ⁵In order that, your faith, might not be in men's wisdom, but in God's power. ⁶Wisdom, however, we do speak, among the full-grown,—wisdom, indeed, not of this age, nor of the rulers of this age, who are to come to nought; ⁷But we speak, God's, wisdom, in a sacred secret, that hidden wisdom, which God marked out beforehand, before the ages, for our glory,—⁸Which, none of the rulers of this age had come to know, for, had they known, not, in that case, the Lord of the glory, would they have crucified! ⁹But, even as it is written—The things which eye hath not seen, and ear hath not heard, and upon the heart of man have not come up,—whatsoever things God hath prepared for them that love him, ¹⁰Unto us, in fact, hath God revealed through the Spirit; for, the Spirit, into all things, maketh search, yea! the deep things of God. ¹¹For who of men knoweth the things of a man,—save the spirit of the man that is in him? thus, even the things of God, hath no one come to know, save the Spirit of God. ¹²But, as for us,—not the spirit of the world, have we received, but the Spirit which is of God,—that we might know the things which, by God, have been given in favour unto us:—¹³Which we also speak—not in words taught of human wisdom, but in such as are taught of the Spirit, by spiritual words, spiritual things, explaining. ¹⁴But, a man of the soul, doth not welcome the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishness unto him, and he cannot get to know them, because, spiritually, are they examined; ¹⁵But, the man of the spirit, on the one hand, examineth all things, but, on the other, he himself, by no one, is examined. ¹⁶For who hath come to know the mind of the Lord, that shall instruct him? But, we, have, the mind of Christ.

3I, therefore, brethren, have not been able to speak unto you, as unto men of the Spirit, but as unto men of the flesh—as unto babes in Christ:—²With milk, have I fed you, not, with meat; for, not yet, have ye been able;—nay! not \u01 yet\u00 even now, are ye able, ³For ye are yet fleshly. For, whereas there are, among you, jealousy and strife, are ye not, fleshly, and, after the manner of men, walking? ⁴For, as soon as one beginneth to say—I, indeed, am of Paul! and another—I, of Apollos! are ye not, men? ⁵What then is Apollos? and, what is Paul? ministers through whom ye believed, and, each, as the Lord, gave to him. ⁶I, planted, Apollos, watered,—but, God, caused to, grow. ⁷So that, neither is he that planteth anything, nor, he that watereth,—but, God, who causeth to, grow. ⁸Moreover, he that planteth and he that watereth, are one:—howbeit, each one, his own reward, shall receive,—according to his own labour. ⁹For we are, God's, fellow-workmen: ye are, God's, farm, God's building. ¹⁰According to the favour of God which hath been given unto me, as a wise master-builder, I laid a foundation, whereas, another, is building thereon; but, let each one, see, how he buildeth thereon; ¹¹For, other foundation, can, no one, lay, than that which is lying, which is, Jesus Christ. ¹²But, if anyone is building, upon the foundation—gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, straw, ¹³Each one's work, shall be made, manifest; for, the day, will make it plain, because, by fire, is it to be revealed,—and, each one's work, of what sort it is, the fire itself will prove:—¹⁴If, anyone's work, shall abide, which he built, a reward, shall he receive,—¹⁵If, anyone's work, shall be burnt up, he shall suffer loss, but shall, himself, be saved—though, thus, as through fire. ¹⁶Know ye not that ye are a shrine a of God, and that the Spirit of God within you doth dwell? ¹⁷If anyone doth mar the shrine of God, God, will mar him; for the shrine of God is holy,—and such are ye. ¹⁸Let no one be deceiving himself:—if anyone imagineth himself to be wise among you, in this age, let him become foolish, that he may become wise; ¹⁹For, the wisdom of this world, is, foolishness with God; for it is written—He that taketh the wise in their knavery,—²⁰And again—The Lord taketh note of the speculations of the wise, that they are vain. ²¹So then, let, no one, be boasting in men; for, all things, are yours—²²Whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come, all, are, yours, ²³And, ye, are Christ's,—and, Christ, is, God's.

4Let a man, so, be reckoning of us, as officers of Christ, and stewards of sacred secrets of God. ²Here, furthermore, it is sought in stewards, that, faithful, one be found. ³With me, however, it counteth for the very smallest thing, that, by you, I should be examined, or by a human day. Nay! I am not even examining myself, ⁴For, of nothing, to myself, am I conscious: nevertheless, not hereby, am I declared righteous, but, he that doth examine me, is the Lord. ⁵So then, not before the fitting time, be judging anything,—until the Lord shall come, who will both bring to light the hidden things of darkness, and make manifest the counsels of the hearts; and, then, the praise shall come to each one, from God. ⁶But, these things, brethren, have I transferred unto myself and Apollos, for your sakes, that, in us, ye might learn the lesson —Not beyond the things that are written...! that ye do not puff yourselves up, individually, for this one against that. ⁷For who maketh thee to differ? and what hast thou which thou didst not receive? But, if thou didst even receive it, why dost thou boast, as though thou hadst not received it? ⁸Already, ye have become full, already, ye are become rich,—apart from us, ye are become kings! And I would indeed ye had become kings, that, we also, with you, might have together become kings! ⁹For I think that, God, hath set forth, us the apostles, to be last of all, as men devoted to death,—in that, a spectacle, have we been made, unto the world,—both unto messengers and unto men. ¹⁰We, are foolish for Christ's sake, but, ye, prudent in Christ; we are weak, but, ye, mighty; ye, all-glorious, but, we, dishonoured. ¹¹Until the present hour, we both hunger and thirst, and are naked, and are buffeted, and are wanderers, ¹²And toil, working with our own hands: being reviled, we bless, being persecuted, we hold on, ¹³Being defamed, we beseech: as the sweepings of the world have we become, the offscouring of all—until even now. ¹⁴Not, to shame you, write I these things; but, as my beloved children, I admonish you. ¹⁵For, though myriads of tutors ye should have in Christ, yet not many fathers; for, in Christ Jesus, through means of the joyful message, I, begat you. ¹⁶I beseech you, therefore,—become imitators of me. ¹⁷For this cause, sent I unto you, Timothy,—who is my beloved and faithful child in the Lord, who shall put, you, in mind of my ways which are in Christ \u0001 Jesus\u0000, even as, everywhere, in every assembly, I teach. ¹⁸But, as though I were not coming unto you, some are puffed up! ¹⁹Howbeit, I will come quickly unto you,—if, the Lord, please,—and will get to know—not the speech of them who are puffed up, but, the power; ²⁰For, not in speech, is the kingdom of God, but, in power. ²¹What will ye? that, with a rod, I should come unto you? or, with love, and a spirit of meekness?

5On all hands, there is reported to be among you—fornication, and such fornication as this—which, not among the nations, is found,—as that one should have, his father's wife:—²And, ye, have become puffed up, and have not rather mourned, in order that he might be removed out of your midst, who, this deed, hath wrought. ³For, I, indeed,—being absent in the body, but present in the spirit, have already judged, as present, him who, thus, this thing hath perpetrated:—⁴In the name of our Lord Jesus, ye being gathered together, and my spirit, with the power of our Lord Jesus, ⁵To deliver such a one as this, unto Satan, for the destruction of the flesh,—that, the spirit, may be saved in the day of the Lord. ⁶Unseemly, is your boast! Know ye not that, a little leaven, doth leaven, the whole of the lump? ⁷Purge ye out the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump,—even as ye are unleavened; for, our passover, hath even been sacrificed—Christ: ⁸So then, let us be keeping the feast, not with old leaven, nor with leaven of baseness and wickedness,—but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth. ⁹I wrote a unto you in my letter—not to be mixing yourselves up with fornicators;—¹⁰Not at all, meaning the fornicators of this world, or the covetous and extortioners, or idolaters,—else had ye been obliged, in that case, to go out of the world! ¹¹But, now, I have written unto you not to be mixing yourselves up,—if anyone named a brother, be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a reviler, or a drunkard, or an extortioner, with such a one as this, not so much, as to be eating together, ¹²For what have I to do to be judging them who are without? Do, ye, not judge, them who are within, ¹³Whereas, them who are without, God, judgeth? Remove ye the wicked man from among, yourselves.

6Dare any of you, having, a matter against his brother, sue for judgment before the unrighteous, and not before the saints? ²Or know ye not that, the saints, shall judge the world? And, if, by you, the world, is to be judged, unworthy are ye of the smallest judgment-seats? ³Know ye not that we shall judge, messengers? and not, then, matters of this life? ⁴If, then, for matters of this, life ye have judgment-seats, them who are of no account in the assembly, these, are ye seating thereupon? ⁵With a view to shame you, am I speaking. So, is it possible that there is among you—not so much as one wise man, who shall be able to judge between his brethren,—⁶But, brother with brother, sueth for judgment, and that before unbelievers? ⁷Already, indeed, it is an utter defeat for you, that ye are having, law-suits, one with another. Wherefore are ye not rather taking wrong? Wherefore are ye not rather suffering yourselves to be defrauded? ⁸Nay! but, ye, are doing wrong, and defrauding,—and that your brethren. ⁹Or know ye not that, wrong-doers, shall not inherit, God's kingdom? Be not deceiving yourselves:—neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor sodomites, ¹⁰Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners—shall inherit, God's kingdom. ¹¹And, these things, were some of you; but ye bathed them away,—but ye were sanctified, but ye were justified, in the name of \u0001 our\u0000 Lord Jesus Christ, and in the Spirit of our God. ¹²All things, unto me, are allowable, but, not all things, are profitable: all things, unto me, are allowable, but, I, will not be brought under authority by any. ¹³Foods for the belly, and the belly for foods; but, God, will set aside, both it and them. The body, however, is not for fornication, but, for the Lord,—and, the Lord, for the body. ¹⁴God, moreover, hath both raised up, the Lord, and will raise, us, up from among the dead through his power. ¹⁵Know ye not that, your bodies, are, members of Christ? Shall I, then, take away the members of the Christ and make them members of a harlot? Far be it! ¹⁶Or know ye not that, he that joineth himself unto the harlot, is, one body? For, saith he, the two, shall become, one flesh; ¹⁷But, he that joineth himself unto the Lord, is, one Spirit. ¹⁸Flee fornication! Every sin, whatsoever a man shall commit, is, outside his body, but, he that committeth fornication, bringeth sin into his own body. ¹⁹Or know ye not that, your body, is, a shrine of the Holy Spirit that is within you, which ye have from God? And ye are not your own;—²⁰For ye have been bought with a price! Therefore glorify God in your body.

7Now, concerning the things whereof ye wrote, it were, good, for a man, not to touch, a woman; ²But, on account of fornications, let, each man, have, his own wife, and, each woman, have, her own husband: ³Unto the wife, let the husband render what is her due, and, in like manner, the wife also, unto the husband,—⁴The wife, over her own body, hath not authority, but the husband, and, in like manner, the husband also, over his own body, hath not authority, but the wife. ⁵Be not depriving one another—unless perhaps by consent for a season, that ye may have leisure for prayer, and, again, may be together,—lest Satan be tempting you by reason of your want of self-control. ⁶This, however I am saying, by way of concession, not of injunction; ⁷Besides, I desire all men to be, even as myself,— but, each one, hath his, personal, gift from God, one, after this manner, and, another, after that. ⁸But I say, to the unmarried, and to the widows, good, were it for them, that they should abide, even as I; ⁹But, if they have not self-control, let them marry, for, better, is it, to marry than to burn. ¹⁰To the married, however, I give charge—not, I, but the Lord,—that, a wife, from her husband, do not depart,—¹¹But, if she should even depart, let her remain unmarried, or, to her husband, be reconciled; and let not, a husband, leave, his wife. ¹²But, unto the rest, say, I—not the Lord,—if, any brother, hath, a wife that believeth not, and, she, is well pleased to dwell with him, let him not leave her; ¹³And, a woman who hath a husband that believeth not, and, he, is well pleased to dwell with her, let her not leave her husband;—¹⁴For the husband that believeth not is hallowed in the wife, and the wife that believeth not is hallowed in the brother: else were, your children, impure, but, now, are they, pure. ¹⁵But, if, the unbelieving, departeth, let him depart: the brother or the sister hath not come into bondage, in such cases, but, in peace, hath God called us. ¹⁶For how knowest thou, O woman, whether, thy husband, thou shalt save? Or how knowest thou, O man, whether, thy wife, thou shalt save? ¹⁷If not—as the Lord hath distributed—unto each one, as God hath called, each one, so, let him be walking;—and, so, in all the assemblies, I ordain. ¹⁸After being circumcised, was any called? let him not become uncircumcised; in uncircumcision, hath any been called? let him not be circumcised: ¹⁹The circumcision, is, nothing, and, the uncircumcision, is, nothing,—but keeping the commandments of God. ²⁰Each one, in the calling wherein he was called, in the same, let him abide: ²¹A bond-servant, wast thou called? let it not cause thee concern; but, if thou canst even become, free, rather use it. ²²For, he who in the Lord was called, being a bond-servant, is, a freed-man of the Lord: in like manner, he that was called being, a freeman, is Christ's bond-servant:—²³With a price, have ye been bought,—do not become bond-servants of men: ²⁴Each one, wherein he was called, brethren, in the same, let him abide with God. ²⁵But, concerning them who are virgin, injunction of the Lord, have I none; yet, a judgment, do I give, as one who hath obtained mercy from the Lord to be, faithful: ²⁶I consider this, then, to be, good, in the circumstances, by reason of the existing distress,—that it is, good for a man, so, to be: ²⁷Hast thou become bound to a wife? do not seek to be loosed; hast thou become loosed from a wife? do not seek a wife. ²⁸If, however, thou shouldst even marry, thou hast not sinned; and, if one who is virgin should marry, that one hath not sinned;—but, tribulation of the flesh, shall, such, have:—howbeit, I, spare you. ²⁹But, this, I say—the opportunity is, contracted for what remaineth—in order that, they who have wives, may be, as though they had none, ³⁰And, they who weep, as though they wept not, and, they who rejoice, as though they rejoiced not, and, they who buy, as though they possessed not, ³¹And, they who use the world, as though they used it not to the full,—for the fashion of this world passeth away; ³²And I desire you to be, without anxiety:—the unmarried man, is anxious for the things of the Lord, how he may please the Lord; ³³But, he that hath married, is anxious for the things of the world, how may please his wife—³⁴And he is divided; and, the unmarried woman, or the virgin, is anxious for the things of the Lord, that she may be holy \u1 both\u0 in her body and in her spirit; but, she that hath married, is anxious for the things of the world, how she may please her husband. ³⁵This, however, with a view to your own profit, am I saying,—not that, a snare, upon you, I may cast, but with a view to what is comely, and devoted unto the Lord, without distraction. ³⁶If however anyone considereth it behaving unseemly towards his virginity, if he should be beyond the bloom of life,—and, thus, it ought to come about, what he chooseth, let him do,—he sinneth not: let them marry: ³⁷But, he that standeth in his heart, steadfast, having no necessity, but hath authority concerning his own will, and, this, hath determined in his own heart,—to preserve his own virginity, well shall he do. ³⁸So that, he that giveth in marriage his own virginity, doeth, well; and, he that giveth it not, shall do, better. ³⁹A wife, is bound for as long a time as her husband is living; but, if the husband have fallen asleep, she is, free, to be married unto whom she pleaseth,—only, in the Lord; ⁴⁰But, happier, is she, if, so, she remain,—in my judgment; for I think, I also, have the Spirit of God.

⁸Now, concerning the idol-sacrifices, we are aware—because we, all, have knowledge,—knowledge, puffeth up, but, love, buildeth up; ²If anyone thinketh that he knoweth anything, not yet knoweth he, as he must needs come to know, ³But, if anyone loveth God, the same, is known of him—⁴Concerning, then, the eating of idol-sacrifices, we are aware—that an idol is, nothing, in the world, and that, none, is God save one. ⁵For, if indeed there are so-called gods, whether in heaven or upon earth,—as indeed there are gods many and lords many, ⁶\u1 Yet\u0 , to us, there is one God the Father, of whom are all things, and, we, for him; and one Lord Jesus Christ, through whom are all things, and, we, through him. ⁷Howbeit, not in all, is the knowledge; but, some, by their familiarity, until even now, with the idol, as an idol-sacrifice, eat it, and, their conscience, being, weak, is defiled. ⁸Food, indeed, will not commend us unto God,—neither, if we eat not, do we lack, nor, if we eat, do we abound. ⁹But be taking heed, lest, by any means, your right, itself, become, an occasion of stumbling, unto the weak; ¹⁰For, if anyone should see \u1 thee\u0 who hast knowledge, in an idol-temple, reclining, will not, his conscience, being, weak, be built up for the eating of the idol-sacrifices? ¹¹In fact, he that is weak, is being destroyed, by thy knowledge—the brother for whose sake Christ died. ¹²But, in thus sinning against the brethren am wounding their conscience, seeing it is weak, against Christ, are ye sinning. ¹³Therefore, if food is an occasion of stumbling unto my brother, in nowise will I eat flesh unto the age that abideth,—that, I may not occasion, my brother, to stumble.

⁹Am not free? Am I not an apostle? Jesus our Lord, have I not seen? Are not, ye, my work, in the Lord? ²If, unto others, I am not an apostle, certainly at least, unto you, I am; for, the seal of my apostleship, ye, are in the Lord. ³My defence, unto them who are examining me, is this: ⁴Have we not a right to eat and drink? ⁵Have we not a right to take round, a sister wife,—as even the rest of the apostles, and the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas? ⁶Or have, only I and Barnabas, not a right to forbear working? ⁷Who serveth as a soldier, at his own charges, at any time? Who planteth a vineyard,—and, the fruit thereof, doth not eat? \ul1 Or\ul0 who shepherdeth a flock,—and, of the milk of the flock, doth not eat? ⁸Is it, after the manner of men, that these things I am saying? Or doth not, even the law, the same things, say? ⁹For, in the law of Moses, it is written—Thou shalt not muzzle an ox when it is treading out the corn:—Is it, for the oxen, God is caring? ¹⁰Or, for our sakes altogether, is he saying it? For our sakes, it was written; because, he that ploweth, ought, to plow, in hope,—and, he that thresheth, to thresh in hope of partaking. ¹¹If, we, unto you, the things of the Spirit have sown, is it a great matter, if, we, of you, the things of the flesh shall reap? ¹²If, others, of this right, over you, are partaking, should not rather, we? nevertheless, we used not this right; but, all such things, do we conceal,—lest we should cause any hindrance unto the glad message of the Christ. ¹³Know ye not that, they who labour in the holy rites, do eat the provisions out of the holy place? They who at the altar wait, do, with the altar, share? ¹⁴Thus, also, hath the Lord, appointed—that, they who the glad message tell, should, of the glad-message, live. ¹⁵I, however, have not used any of these things; and have not written these things, in order that, so it should be done, in my case; for it were, good for me, rather to die than—my boast, shall, no man, make void! ¹⁶For, if I be telling the glad-message, it is, with me, no matter of boasting; for, necessity, upon me, lieth,—for it is, Woe to me, if I should not be telling the glad-message; ¹⁷For, if, by choice, this thing I am doing, I have, a reward; but, if not by choice, with a stewardship, have I been entrusted! ¹⁸What, then, is my reward? that, in telling the glad-message, free of cost, I should put the glad-message,—to the end I should not use to the full my right in the glad-message. ¹⁹For, though free from all, unto all, myself, I enslaved,—that, the larger number, I might win: ²⁰Therefore became I, to the Jews, as, a Jew,—that, Jews, I might win; to them who were under law, as, under law, not being, myself, under law,—that, them who were under law, I might win; ²¹To them who were without law, as, without law,—not being without law to God, but lawfully subject to Christ,—that I might win them who were without law. ²²I became, unto the weak, weak,—that, the weak, I might win;—to all men, have I become all things, that, by all means, some, I might save. ²³But, all things, am I doing, for the sake of the glad-message, that a joint-partaker thereof, I may become. ²⁴Know ye not that, they who, in a racecourse, run, all, indeed, run,—but, one, receiveth the prize? So, be running, that ye may lay hold. ²⁵But, every man who striveth in the games, in all things, useth self-control;—they, indeed, then, that a corruptible crown, they may receive; but, we, an incorruptible! ²⁶I, therefore, so, am running, as, not uncertainly, so, am boxing, as not thrashing air; ²⁷But am beating my body under, and leading it captive, lest, by any means,—unto others, having proclaimed, the contest, I myself, should be rejected.

¹⁰For I wish not ye should be ignorant, brethren, that, all our fathers, were, under the cloud, and, all, passed through the sea,— ²And, all, immersed themselves into Moses, in the cloud, and in the sea; ³And, all, did eat \ul1 the same\ul0 spiritual food, ⁴And, all, drank, the same spiritual drink,—for they continued to drink of the spiritual rock that followed them, and, the rock, was the Christ:— ⁵Nevertheless, with the most of them, God, was not well-pleased, for they were strewed along in the desert. ⁶But, in these things, they became, ensamples for us, to the end we should not be covetous of evil things, even as, they, also coveted; ⁷Neither become ye, idolaters, as some of them,—as it is written—The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to be making sport; ⁸Neither let us commit fornication, as, some of them, committed fornication, and there fell, in one day, three and twenty thousand; ⁹Neither let us be putting the Lord to the test, as, some of them, put him to the test, and, by the serpents, were perishing; ¹⁰Neither be ye murmuring, even, as some of them, murmured, and perished by the destroyer. ¹¹But, these things, by way of type, were happening unto them, and were written with a view to our admonition, unto whom, the ends of the ages, have reached along. ¹²So that, he that thinketh he is standing, let him take heed lest he fall. ¹³Trial, hath not taken you, save such as man can bear; faithful, moreover is God, who will not suffer you to be tried above what ye are able, but will make, with the trial, also the way of escape, that ye may be able to hold out. ¹⁴Wherefore, my beloved, flee from idolatry,— ¹⁵As, to prudent men, I speak,—judge, ye, what I say:— ¹⁶The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not, a sharing together of the blood of the Christ? The loaf which we break, is it not, a sharing together of the body of the Christ? ¹⁷Because, one loaf, one body, we, the many, are, for we, all, of the one loaf, partake. ¹⁸Be looking at Israel after the flesh:—are not, they who eat the sacrifices, joint partakers with the altar? ¹⁹What, then, am I saying?—that, an idol-sacrifice, is anything? or that, an idol, is anything? ²⁰On the contrary—that, the things which the nations sacrifice, unto demons, and not unto God, they sacrifice; and I wish not that ye should become, sharers together with the demons! ²¹Ye cannot be drinking—a cup of the Lord, and a cup of demons; ye cannot be partaking of, a table of the Lord, and a table of demons. ²²Or are we to provoke the Lord to jealousy? Are we mightier than he? ²³All things are allowable—but, not all things, are profitable,—all things are allowable—but, not all things, upbuild. ²⁴Let, no one, be seeking, what concerneth himself, but that which concerneth some one else. ²⁵Whatsoever, in the market, is sold, eat,—asking no question, for conscience sake; ²⁶For, unto the Lord, belongeth the earth, and the fullness thereof. ²⁷If one of them who believe not invite you, and ye are disposed to go, whatsoever is set before you, eat,—asking no question, for conscience sake. ²⁸But, if anyone should say unto you,—This, is, a holy sacrifice, do not eat, for that man's sake who disclosed it, and for conscience sake:—²⁹But, conscience, I mean, not thine own, but the other's,—for why is my freedom to be judged by another's conscience? ³⁰If, I, with gratitude, partake, why am I to be defamed, as to that for which, I, give thanks? ³¹Whether, therefore, ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do, all things to the glory of God. ³²Give no occasion of stumbling—whether to Jews, or to Greeks, or to the assembly of God: ³³Even as, I also, in all things do please all, not seeking my own profit, but that of the many, that they may be saved.

11 Become imitators of me,—even as, I also, am of Christ. ²Now I praise you, that, in all things, ye have me in remembrance, and, even as I delivered unto you the instructions, ye hold them fast. ³But I wish you to know—that, the head of every man, is, the Christ, and, the head of a woman, is, the man; and, the head of the Christ, is, God. ⁴Every man, praying, or prophesying, having anything upon his head, putteth to shame his head; ⁵But, every woman, praying, or prophesying, with her head, unveiled, putteth to shame her head,—for it is, one and the same, with her having been shaven. ⁶For, if a woman doth not veil herself, let her also be shorn; but, if it were a shame in a woman to be shorn or shaven, let her be veiled. ⁷For, a man, indeed, ought not to be veiling his head, being, the image and glory of God,—but, the woman, is the glory of man; ⁸For, man, is not, of woman, but, woman, of man; ⁹For also man was not created, for the sake of the woman, but woman, for the sake of the man. ¹⁰For this cause, ought the woman to have, permission, upon her head, because of the messengers. ¹¹Howbeit, neither is woman apart from man, nor man apart from woman—in the Lord; ¹²For, just as the woman is of the man, so, also the man, is through means of the woman;—but, all things, are of God. ¹³Among your own selves, judge ye,—Is it becoming for a woman,—unveiled, to be praying unto God? ¹⁴Doth not, even nature herself, teach you—that, if, a man, have long hair, it is a dishonour to him; ¹⁵But, if, a woman, have long hair, it is a glory to her, for, her long hair, instead of a veil, hath been given to her. ¹⁶But, if anyone thinketh to be contentious, we, have no such custom,—nor yet the assemblies of God. ¹⁷But, in giving you the following charge, I praise you not,—in that, not for the better, but for the worse, ye come together. ¹⁸For, first of all,—when ye come together in assembly, I hear that divisions among you exist,—and, in part, I believe it; ¹⁹For there must needs be, even parties among you, that, the approved, \u0011 themselves\u0010 may become manifest among you. ²⁰When, therefore, ye come together into one place, it is not to eat, a supper unto the Lord; ²¹For, each one, taketh beforehand, his own supper, in your eating, and, one, indeed, is hungry, whereas, another, is drinking to excess. ²²What! have ye not houses for your eating and drinking? or, the assembly of God, do ye despise, and, put to shame them who have nothing? What am I to say to you? Shall I praise you? In this, I praise you not. ²³For, I myself, received from the Lord—that which I also delivered unto you,—how that, the Lord Jesus, in the night in which he was being delivered up, took a loaf, ²⁴And, giving thanks, brake it, and said—This, is my body, which is for you,—this, do ye, in remembrance of me; ²⁵In the same manner, the cup also, after they had taken supper, saying—This cup, is, the new covenant in my blood, this, do ye, as often soever as ye may be drinking it, in remembrance of me. ²⁶For, as often as ye may be eating this loaf, and, the cup, may be drinking, The death of the Lord, do ye announce, until he come. ²⁷So that, whosoever may be eating the loaf, or drinking the cup of the Lord, in an unworthy manner, shall be responsible for the body and blood of the Lord. ²⁸But let a man be proving himself,—and, so, of the loaf, let him eat, and, of the cup, let him drink; ²⁹For, he that is eating and drinking,—judgment unto himself, doth eat and drink,—if he be not setting apart the body. ³⁰For this cause, many among you are weak and sickly; and, not a few, are falling asleep. ³¹If, however, we had been setting, ourselves, apart, we had not, in that case, been coming under judgment; ³²But, being brought under judgment, by the Lord, are we being disciplined, lest, with the world, we should be condemned. ³³So then, my brethren,—when ye come together for the eating, unto one another, be giving welcome:—³⁴If anyone be hungry, at home, let him eat, lest, unto judgment, ye be coming together. And, the remaining things, whensoever I come, I will set in order.

12 But, concerning the spiritually gifted, brethren, I am not wishing you to be ignorant. ²Ye know that, when ye were of the nations, unto the dumb idols, howsoever ye were being led, ye were seduced. ³Wherefore, I give you to know—that, no one, in God's Spirit speaking, saith—Accursed Jesus! and, no one, can say—Lord Jesus! save in the Holy Spirit. ⁴But, distributions of gifts, there are, yet the same Spirit, ⁵And, distributions of ministries, there are, and the same Lord, ⁶And, distributions of energies, there are, and the same God—who energiseth all things in all. ⁷But, unto each one, is given the manifesting of the Spirit, with a view to that which is profitable; ⁸For, unto one, indeed, through the Spirit, is given, a word of wisdom, but, unto another, a word of knowledge, according to the same Spirit;— ⁹Unto a different one, faith, in the same Spirit, and, unto another, gifts of healings, in the one Spirit, ¹⁰And, unto another, energies of mighty works, \u1 and\u0 , unto another, prophesying, \u1 and\u0 , unto another, discriminations of spirits,—unto a different one, kinds of tongues, and, unto another, translation of tongues;— ¹¹But, all these, energiseth the one and the same Spirit, distributing unto each one, peculiarly, even as it is disposed. ¹²For, just as, the body, is one, and yet hath many members, but, all the members of the body, though many, are one body, so, also, the Christ;— ¹³For, even to one Spirit, we all, into one body, have been immersed,—whether Jews or Greeks, whether bond or free,—and, all, of one Spirit, have been caused to drink. ¹⁴For, the body also, is not one member, but many: ¹⁵Though the foot should say—Because I am not a hand, I am not of the body, Is it, therefore, not, of the body? ¹⁶And, though the ear should say—Because I am not an eye, I am not of the body, Is it, therefore, not, of the body? ¹⁷If, the whole body, were, an eye, where were the hearing? If, the whole were, hearing, where were, the smelling? ¹⁸But, now, hath God set the members, each one of them in the body, even as he pleased. ¹⁹But, if they all had been one member, Where had been, the body? ²⁰Now, however there are many members, yet one body; ²¹\u1 And\u0 the eye cannot say unto the hand—I have no need of thee,—nor, again, the head, unto the feet—I have no need of you:— ²²Nay! much more, the members which seem to be weaker are necessary, ²³And, the parts of the body which we deem to be less honourable, on these, more abundant honour, do we bestow, and, our uncomely parts, have, more abundant comeliness, ²⁴Whereas, our comely parts, have, no need. But, God, hath tempered the body together,—unto that which was lacking, giving more abundant honour;— ²⁵That there might be no division in the body, but that the members might have, the same, care, one for another; ²⁶And, whether one member, suffereth, all the members, suffer with it, or, a member is glorified, all the members, rejoice together. ²⁷Now, ye, are the body of Christ, and members severally;— ²⁸And God hath, indeed, set, certain, in the assembly,—first apostles, second prophets, third teachers, after that mighty works, then gifts of healings, helps, guidings, kinds of tongues. ²⁹Are all apostles? Are all prophets? Are all teachers? Are all mighty works? ³⁰Have, all, gifts of healings? Do, all, with tongues, speak? Do, all, translate? ³¹Be envious, however, of the greater gifts; and, yet, a much more excellent way, unto you, I point out:—

13Although with the tongues of men, I be speaking, and of messengers, and have not, love, I have become resounding brass, or a clanging cymbal; ²And, though I have the gift of prophesying, and know all sacred secrets, and all knowledge,—and though I have all faith, so as to be removing mountains, and have not, love, I am, nothing; ³And, though I morsel out all my goods,—and though I deliver up my body, that I may boast, and have not, love, I am profited, nothing. ⁴Love, is patient, is gracious. Love, is not envious, vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, ⁵Acteth not unbecomingly, seeketh not her own things, is not easily provoked, imputeth not that which is base, ⁶Rejoiceth not over unrighteousness, but rejoiceth in sympathy with truth,— ⁷All things, covereth, all things, believeth, all things, hopeth, all things, endureth. ⁸Love, at no time, faileth;—but, whether prophesyings, they shall be done away, whether tongues, they shall cease, whether gaining knowledge, it shall be done away; ⁹For, in part, are we gaining knowledge, and, in part, are we prophesying,— ¹⁰But, as soon as that which is complete is come, that which is in part, shall be done away. ¹¹When I was a child, I used to speak as a child, to prefer as child, to reason as a child: now I have become a man, I have laid aside the things of the child! ¹²For we see, as yet, through a dim window, obscurely, but, then, face to face: as yet, I gain knowledge, in part, but, then, shall I fully know, even as I was also fully known. ¹³But, now abide—faith, hope, love,—these three; but, the greatest of these, is, love.

14Pursue love; nevertheless be envious of the spiritual gifts,—and, rather, that ye may be prophesying. ²For, he that speaketh with a tongue, not unto men, doth speak, but, unto God,—for, no one, understandeth, although, in spirit, he is speaking sacred secrets; ³But, be that prophesieth, unto men, doth speak—edification, and exhortation, and comfort. ⁴He that speaketh with a tongue, buildeth up, himself, whereas, he that prophesieth, buildeth up, an assembly. ⁵Howbeit I wish you all to speak with tongues, but, rather, that ye may prophesy,—moreover, greater, is he that prophesieth, than he that speaketh with tongues,—unless indeed he translate, that, the assembly, may receive upbuilding. ⁶But, now, brethren—if I come unto you speaking with tongues, what shall I profit, you, except I speak, unto you, either by way of revelation, or knowledge, or prophesying, or teaching? ⁷In like manner, the things without life giving sound, whether pipe or harp, if, a distinction in the sounds, they do not give, how shall it be known, what is being piped or harped? ⁸For, if also, an uncertain sound, a trumpet, should give, who shall prepare himself for battle? ⁹So, also, ye, through means of the tongue, except ye give intelligible discourse, how shall it be known what is being spoken? for ye will be speaking, to the air. ¹⁰There may happen to be so many kinds of languages in the world, and, not one, unspoken:— ¹¹If, then, I do not know the meaning of the language, I shall be, unto him that is speaking, a foreigner, and, he that is speaking, shall be, in my case, a foreigner. ¹²So, ye, also—since ye are, envious, of spirits, unto the upbuilding of the assembly, seek to be pre-eminent. ¹³Wherefore, he that speaketh with a tongue, let him pray that he may translate; ¹⁴For, if I am praying in a tongue, my spirit, is praying, but, my mind, is unfruitful. ¹⁵What is it then? I will pray with the spirit, but I will pray also with the mind,—I will strike the strings with the spirit, but I will strike the strings also with the mind. ¹⁶Else, if thou be blessing in a spirit, he that filleth up the place of the ungifted person, how shall he say the Amen upon thy thanksgiving? since indeed, what thou art saying, he knoweth not; ¹⁷For, thou, indeed, excellently art giving thanks, but, the other, is not being built up. ¹⁸I give thanks unto God!—More than ye all, am I speaking with tongues; ¹⁹But, in assembly, I desire to speak five words with my mind, that, others also, I may instruct, than myriads of words in a tongue. ²⁰Brethren! do not become children, in your understandings; but, in baseness, become babes, while, in your understandings, ye become, full-grown. ²¹In the law, it is written—With strange tongues, and with lips of strangers, will I speak unto this people; and, not even so, will they hearken unto me,—saith the Lord. ²²So that, the tongues, are for a sign—not unto them that believe, but, unto them that believe not; whereas, prophesying, is not for them that believe not, but, for them that believe. ²³If, then, the whole assembly come together with one consent, and, all, are speaking with tongues,—and there come in persons unskilled or unbelieving, will they not say that ye are raving? ²⁴But, if, all, be prophesying,—and there come in one who is unbelieving or unskilled, he is convicted by all, he is searched by all, the secrets of his heart, become manifest, ²⁵And, so, falling down upon his face, he will do homage unto God, reporting that, in reality, God is, among you. ²⁶What, then, is it, brethren? Whosoever ye are coming together, each one, hath a psalm, hath a teaching, hath a revelation, hath a tongue, hath a translation:—let, all things, be done, unto building up. ²⁷If, with a tongue, one is speaking, let it be by two, or, at the most, three,—and by turns; and let, one, be translating; ²⁸But, if there be none to translate, let him keep silence in assembly, and, unto himself, be speaking, and, unto God! ²⁹Prophets, moreover, let two or three speak, and let, the others, judge. ³⁰If, however, unto another, a revelation be made, as he is sitting, let the first be silent; ³¹For, one by one, ye can, all, be prophesying,—that, all, may learn, and, all, be encouraged. ³²And, spirits of prophets, unto prophets, do submit themselves; ³³For God is not a God of confusion, but, of peace:—as in all the assemblies of the saints. ³⁴As for the women, in the assemblies, let them be silent, for it is not permitted them to be speaking; but let them be in submission,—even as, the law, saith. ³⁵If, however, they are wishing to learn something, at home, their own husbands, let them question; for it is a shame for a woman to be speaking in assembly. ³⁶Or, from you, did the word of God come forth? Or, unto you alone, did it extend? ³⁷If anyone thinketh himself to be a prophet, or spiritually gifted, let him acknowledge the things which I am writing to you,—that they are, a commandment, of the Lord. ³⁸But, if anyone knoweth not, he is unknown! ³⁹So, then, my brethren,—be zealous to prophesy, and do not forbid, to be speaking with tongues; ⁴⁰But let, all things, with comeliness, and by arrangement, be done.

15Moreover, brethren, I make known unto you The joyful message, which I myself announced to you, which also ye received, in which also ye stand; ²Through which also ye are being saved,—if ye hold fast, with what discourse, I announced the joyful message unto you; unless indeed, in vain, ye believed. ³For I delivered unto you, among the first things, what also I received:—how that Christ died for our sins, according to the Scriptures, ⁴And that he was buried, and that he hath been raised, on the third day, according to the Scriptures,— ⁵And that he appeared unto Cephas, then, to the twelve, ⁶After that, he appeared to above five hundred brethren at once,—of whom, the greater number, remain until even now, but, some, have fallen asleep,— ⁷After that, he appeared unto James, then, unto all the apostles, ⁸And, last of all, just as if unto the unseasonable birth, he appeared, even unto me; ⁹For, I, am the least of the apostles, who am not worthy to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the assembly of God. ¹⁰But, by favour of God, I am what I am, and, his favour, which was unto me, hath not been made void,—but, much more abundantly than they all, have I toiled, albeit not, I, but the favour of God with me. ¹¹Whether therefore, I, or, they, thus do we proclaim, and, thus did ye believe. ¹²Now, if, Christ is proclaimed, that, from among the dead, he hath been raised, how say some, among you—resurrection of the dead, there is none? ¹³But, if, resurrection of the dead, there is none, not even Christ, hath been raised; ¹⁴And, if Christ, hath not been raised, void, after all, is our proclamation, void also, our faith,— ¹⁵And we are found, even false-witnesses of God, because we have witnessed respecting God, that he raised the Christ,—whom he did not raise, if, indeed, after all, the dead are not raised! ¹⁶For, if the dead are not raised, not even Christ, hath been raised; ¹⁷And, if Christ hath not been raised, to no purpose, is your faith, yet, are ye in your sins! ¹⁸Hence also, they who are fallen asleep in Christ, are lost: ¹⁹If, in this life, in Christ, we have hoped—and that is all, we are, of all men, most to be pitied. ²⁰But, now, hath Christ been raised from among the dead,—a firstfruit of them who have fallen asleep; ²¹For, since indeed, through a man, came death, through a man, also cometh the raising of the dead; ²²For, just as, in the Adam, all die, so, also, in the Christ, shall all be made alive. ²³But, each, in his own rank:—A firstfruit, Christ, after that, they who are the Christ's, in his presence, ²⁴Afterwards, the end—whensoever he delivereth up the kingdom unto his God and Father, whensoever he shall bring to nought all rule and all authority and power; ²⁵For he must needs reign, until he shall put all his enemies under his feet: ²⁶As a last enemy, death, is to be destroyed; ²⁷For—He put, all things, in subjection under his feet. But, whensoever it shall be said—all things are in subjection!—it is evident that it means,—Except him who did put into subjection, unto him, the all things—²⁸But whensoever have been put into subjection, unto him, the all things, then, the Son himself, \u0026 also \u0026 shall be put in subjection unto him who put in subjection, unto him, the all things,—that, God, may be, all things in all. ²⁹Else, what will they do, who are being immersed in behalf of the dead? If, not at all, are the dead to be raised, why are they even being immersed in their behalf? ³⁰Why also are, we, running into peril every hour? ³¹Day by day, am I dying!—Yea! by your own boasting, brethren, which I have in Christ Jesus our Lord. ³²If, after the manner of men, I have fought with wild-beasts at Ephesus, what, to me, the profit? If the dead are not raised, Let us eat and drink, for, tomorrow, we die. ³³Be not deceiving yourselves,—evil communications corrupt gentle manners:—³⁴Wake up to sobriety, in righteousness, and be not committing sin; for some have, an ignorance of God: for shame, unto you, am I speaking! ³⁵But some one will say—How, are the dead raised? and, with what kind of body, do they come? ³⁶Simple one! What, thou, sowest, is not quickened, except it die; ³⁷And, what thou sowest, not the body that shall come into existence, dost thou sow, but a naked kernel—if it so happen, of wheat, or of any of the rest,—³⁸Howbeit, God, giveth it a body, as he pleased, and, unto each of the seeds, a body of its own. ³⁹Not all flesh, is the same flesh; but, one, indeed, is, the flesh of men, and, another, the flesh of beasts, and, another, the flesh of birds, and, another, of fishes; ⁴⁰And there are heavenly bodies, and earthly bodies,—but, of one kind, indeed, is the glory of the heavenly, and, of another kind, is the glory of the earthly;—⁴¹One, is the glory of a sun, and, another, the glory of a moon, and, another, the glory of stars,—nay! star from star, differeth in glory. ⁴²Thus, also the resurrection of the dead: it is sown in corruption, it is raised in incorruption, ⁴³It is sown in dishonour, it is raised in glory, it is sown in weakness, it is raised in power, ⁴⁴It is sown a body of the soul, it is raised a body of the spirit; if there is a body of the soul, there is also of the spirit:—⁴⁵Thus, also, it is written—The first man, Adam, became, a living soul, the last Adam, a life-giving spirit. ⁴⁶Howbeit, not first, is the body of the spirit, but that, of the soul,—afterwards, that of the spirit. ⁴⁷The first man, is of the ground, earthy, the second man, is, of heaven: ⁴⁸As, the man of earth, such, also, the men of earth, and, as, the man of heaven, such, also, the men of heaven; ⁴⁹And, even as we have borne the image of the man of earth, let us also bear the image of the man of heaven. ⁵⁰And, this, I say, brethren,—that, flesh and blood, cannot inherit, God's kingdom. Neither doth, corruption, inherit, incorruption. ⁵¹Lo! a sacred secret, unto you, do I declare:—we shall not, all, sleep, but we shall, all, be changed,—⁵²In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, during the last trumpet; for it shall sound, and, the dead, shall be raised, incorruptible, and, we, shall be changed. ⁵³For this corruptible must needs clothe itself with incorruptibility, and this mortal, clothe itself, with immortality. ⁵⁴But, whensoever, this mortal, shall clothe itself with immortality, then, shall be brought to pass the saying that is written—Death hath been swallowed up, victoriously; ⁵⁵Where, O death, is thy victory? Where, O death, is thy sting? ⁵⁶Now, the sting of death, is, sin, and, the power of sin, is, the law;—⁵⁷But, unto God, be thanks, who is giving unto us the victory, through our Lord Jesus Christ. ⁵⁸So, then, my beloved brethren,—become ye, steadfast, immovable, superabounding in the work of the Lord, at all times; knowing that, your toil, is not in vain in the Lord.

16Now, concerning the collection which is for the saints, just as I directed the assemblies of Galatia, so, also do, ye:—²Upon the first of the week, let, each one of you, put, by itself, in store, as he may be prospering,—lest, as soon as I come, then, collections, should be in progress. ³And, as soon as I arrive, whomsoever ye shall approve by letters, these, will I send, to bear away your favour unto Jerusalem: ⁴And, if it be meet that, I also, be journeying, with me, shall they journey. ⁵Now I will come unto you, as soon as I have passed through Macedonia,—for I do pass through Macedonia, ⁶And, with you, I may perhaps sojourn, or winter, that, ye, may set me forward, whithersoever I may be journeying. ⁷For I do not wish to see you, just now, by the way; for I hope to remain, some time, with you,—if, the Lord, permit. ⁸But I remain in Ephesus, until the Pentecost, ⁹For, a door, unto me, hath opened, great and effectual, and, opposers, are many. ¹⁰But, if Timothy should come, see that, without fear, he be with you, for, in the work of the Lord, doth he labour, even as, I: ¹¹Let no one then despise him; and set ye him forward in peace, that he may come unto me, for I expect him with the brethren. ¹²But, concerning Apollos the brother, much, did I beseech him, that he would come unto you, with the brethren, but there was, by no means, any will, that he should come, now;—he will come, however, as soon as he hath good opportunity. ¹³Be on the watch, stand firm in the faith, be men—be strong; ¹⁴Let, all your affairs, in love, be carried on. ¹⁵Now I beseech you, brethren,—ye know the house of Stephanas, that it is a first-fruit of Achaia, and, for the purpose of ministering, they devoted themselves, unto the saints— ¹⁶That, ye also, be submitting yourselves unto such as these,—and unto everyone helping in the work and toiling. ¹⁷I Rejoice, moreover, in the presence of Stephanas, and Fortunatus, and Achaicus: because, your own shortcoming, these, have filled up:— ¹⁸They have given rest, in fact, unto my spirit, and yours: hold in acknowledgment, therefore, such as these. ¹⁹The assemblies of Asia salute you: Aquila and Priscilla, with the assembly meeting at their house, salute you much in the Lord: ²⁰All the brethren salute you:—Salute ye one another with a holy kiss. ²¹The salutation of Paul—with my own hand. ²²If anyone doth not dearly love the Lord, let him be anathema that is, "accursed" : Maran atha that is, "The Lord, cometh" . ²³The favour of the Lord Jesus, be with you. ²⁴My love, be with you all, in Christ Jesus.

¹Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus, through the will of God, and Timothy the brother,—unto the assembly of God which is in Corinth, together with all the saints who are in the whole of Achaia: ²Favour unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and Lord Jesus Christ. ³Blessed, be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of compassions, and God of all encouragement, ⁴Who encourageth us in all our tribulation, to the end we may be able to encourage them who are in any tribulation—through means of the encouragement wherewith we, ourselves, are encouraged by God. ⁵Because, even as the sufferings of the Christ overflow unto us, so, through the Christ, overfloweth, our encouragement also. ⁶But, whether we are in tribulation, it is for your encouragement and salvation; whether we are encouraged, it is for your encouragement, which worketh inwardly by the endurance of the same sufferings which, we also, suffer;— ⁷And so, our hope, is sure in your behalf,—knowing that,—as ye are sharers of the sufferings, so, also of the encouragement. ⁸For we do not wish you to be ignorant, brethren, as to our tribulation which happened in Asia,—that, exceedingly, beyond power, were we weighed down, so that we despaired, even of life. ⁹But, we ourselves, within ourselves, have had the sentence of death, that we might not rest our confidence upon ourselves, but upon God, who raiseth the dead, ¹⁰Who, out of so great a death, rescued us, and will rescue,—unto whom we have turned our hope, \ul1 that\ul0 , even yet, he will rescue: ¹¹Ye also labouring together on our behalf, by your supplication, that, unto many persons, being due the gift of favour, unto us, through means of many, might thanks be given in our behalf. ¹²For, our boasting, is, this,—the witness of our conscience, that, in sanctity and sincerity of God, \ul1 and\ul0 not in fleshly wisdom, but in God's favour, have we behaved ourselves in the world,—and more abundantly towards you. ¹³For, no other things, are we writing unto you, than what ye are either reading or even acknowledging,—I hope, moreover, that, throughout, ye will acknowledge, ¹⁴According as ye have also acknowledged us, in part,—that, your theme of boasting, we are, even indeed as, ye, also shall be , ours, in the day of our Lord Jesus. ¹⁵And, in this confidence, I purposed, before, to come unto you,—in order that, a se-

ond joy, ye might have,— ¹⁶And, by your means, to pass into Macedonia, and, again, from Macedonia, to come unto you, and, by you, be set forward unto Judea:— ¹⁷This, then, being my purpose, perhaps, after all, with lightness, I dealt with the matter ? or, the things that I purpose, according to the flesh, I purpose,—that, with me, should be the Yea, yea, and the Nay, nay? ¹⁸Faithful, however, is God, in that, our discourse, which was delivered unto you, is not Yea and Nay; ¹⁹For, the Son of God, Christ Jesus—who, among you, through us, was proclaimed,—through me, and Silvanus, and Timothy, became not Yea and Nay,—but Yea, in him, hath it become; ²⁰For, how many soever be the promises of God, in him, is the Yea,—wherefore also, through him, be the Amen, unto God, for glory, through us. ²¹Now, he that confirmeth us, together with you, for Christ, and hath anointed us, is God: ²²Who also hath sealed us, and given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts. ²³But, I, call upon God, as a witness, against my own soul,—that, to spare you, not yet, have I come unto Corinth: ²⁴Not that we have lordship over your faith, but are, helpers, of your joy, for, by your faith, ye stand.

²For I have determined, unto myself, this—not, again, in grief, to come unto you. ²For, if, I, grieve you, who then is he that is to gladden me,—save he who is being grieved through me; ³And I wrote this very thing—lest, if I came, I should have, grief, from those over whom I had need to rejoice,—having confidence in you all, that, my joy, is the joy, of you all. ⁴For, out of much tribulation and anguish of heart, wrote I unto you, through many tears,—not that ye might be grieved, but that, the love, ye might know, which I have very abundantly unto you. ⁵Now, if anyone hath caused grief, not unto me hath he caused grief, but—that I may not bear too heavily—unto you all. ⁶Sufficient, unto such a one, the punishment itself which was inflicted by the many; ⁷So that, on the contrary, ye should forgive and encourage, lest, by any means, by his excessive grief, such a one should be swallowed up. ⁸Wherefore, I beseech you, assure him, of love; ⁹For, to this end, I also wrote,—that I might know the proof of you, whether, in all things, ye are obedient. ¹⁰Now, to whom ye forgive anything, I, also; for, I also, what I have forgiven, if, anything, I have forgiven, for your sake, in the person of Christ, have I forgiven it . ¹¹Lest we should be overreached by Satan, for, of his thoughts, we are not ignorant. ¹²Moreover, although I came unto Troas for the glad-message of the Christ, and a door for me had been opened in the Lord, ¹³I had no relief in my spirit, because I found not Titus my brother; but, taking my leave of them, I came away into Macedonia. ¹⁴But, unto God, be thanks, who, ever, leadeth us in triumph in the Christ, and, the fragrance of the knowledge of him, maketh manifest, through us, in every place, ¹⁵That, of Christ, a grateful odour, are we, unto God,—in them who are being saved, and in them who are being lost: ¹⁶In these, indeed, a fragrance out of death into death, but, in those, a fragrance out of life into life. And, for these things, who is sufficient? ¹⁷For we are not, as the many, driving a petty trade with the word of God; but, as of sincerity, but, as of God, before God, in Christ, we speak.

³Are we to begin again, ourselves, to commend? or have we need, like some, of commendatory letters unto you, or from you? ²Our letter, ye, are, inscribed in our hearts, noted and read by all men: ³Manifesting yourselves that ye are a letter of Christ, ministered by us,—inscribed—not with ink, but with the Spirit of a Living God, not in tablets of stone, but in tablets which are hearts of flesh. ⁴But, such confidence as this, have we, through the Christ, towards God. ⁵Not that, of our own selves, sufficient, are we, to reckon anything as of ourselves, but, our sufficiency, is of God;—⁶Who also hath made us sufficient to be ministers of a new covenant—not of letter, but of spirit, for, the letter, killeth, whereas, the Spirit, maketh alive. ⁷But, if, the ministry of death, in letters engraven in stones, was brought into existence with glory, so that the sons of Israel could not look steadfastly into the face of Moses, by reason of the glory of his face—which glory was to be done away, ⁸How shall not, rather, the ministry of the Spirit, be with glory? ⁹For, if, the ministry of condemnation was glory, much rather, doth the ministry of righteousness abound with glory, ¹⁰For that which hath been made glorious, hath not even been made glorious, in this respect,—by reason of the surpassing glory. ¹¹For, if that which was to be done away was brought in with glory, much more, that which is to abide, is in glory. ¹²Having, then, such hope as this, great openness of speech, do we use;—¹³And are not just like Moses, who kept putting a veil upon his face, so that the sons of Israel should not look steadily unto the end of that which was to be done away. ¹⁴But their thoughts were turned into stone: for, until this very day, the same veil, upon the reading of the old covenant, abideth, not to be removed, because, in Christ, it is to be done away; ¹⁵But, until this day, whensoever Moses is read, a veil upon their heart, doth lie; ¹⁶Howbeit, whensoever he turneth unto the Lord, he taketh off the veil: ¹⁷And, the Lord, is, the Spirit: now, where the Spirit of one who is Lord is, there is freedom! ¹⁸And, we all, with unveiled face, receiving and reflecting, the glory of the Lord, into the same image, are being transformed, from glory into glory,—even as from a Spirit that is Lord.

⁴Wherefore, having this ministry, even as we received mercy, we faint not; ²But have renounced the hidden things of shame, not walking in craftiness, nor handling the word of God deceitfully,—but, by the manifestation of the truth, commending ourselves unto every conscience of men, in the sight of God. ³And, even if our glad-message is veiled, in them who are perishing, it is veiled, ⁴In whom, the god of this age, hath blinded the minds of the unbelieving, to the end they may not discern the radiance of the glad-message of the glory of the Christ—who is the image of God. ⁵For, not ourselves, do we proclaim, but Christ Jesus, as Lord, and, ourselves, as your servants for Jesus' sake. ⁶Because, the God who said—Out of darkness, light shall shine! is he who hath shone in our hearts, in proportion to the radiance of the glorious knowledge of God, in the face of Christ. ⁷Howbeit we have this treasure in earthen vessels, that, the surpassing greatness of the power, may be of God, and not from ourselves:—⁸On every side, pressed hard, but not hemmed in, without a way, but not without a by-way, ⁹Pursued, but not abandoned, thrown down, but not destroyed;—¹⁰At all times, the putting to death of Jesus, in our body, bearing about, in order that, the life also of Jesus, in our body, may be made manifest; ¹¹For, evermore, we, the living, unto death are being delivered, for Jesus' sake, in order that, the life also of Jesus, may be made manifest in our mortal flesh: ¹²So that, his death, in us, doth energise, but, his life, in you. ¹³Howbeit, seeing that we have the same spirit of faith, according to that which is written—I believed, therefore I spake, we, also believe, therefore also we speak: ¹⁴Knowing that, he who raised up \u0022 the Lord\u0022 Jesus, will raise up, us also, together with Jesus, and will present us together with you. ¹⁵For, all things, are for your sakes, in order that, the favour abounding, may, through means of the greater number, cause, the thanksgiving, to superabound unto the glory of God. ¹⁶Wherefore we faint not, but, even if, our outer man, is decaying, nevertheless, our inner man, is renewing day by day. ¹⁷For, the momentary lightness of thee tribulation, in a manner yet more and more excelling, is working out for us, an age-abiding weight of glory,—¹⁸So long as we are not looking out for the visible things, but for the invisible; for, the visible things, are temporary, whereas, the invisible, are age-abiding.

⁵For we know that—if, our earthly tent-dwelling, should be taken down, we have, a building of God, a dwelling not made by hand, age-abiding in the heavens. ²And verily, in this, we sigh, earnestly desiring to clothe ourselves over, with our habitation which is of heaven,—³Although, indeed, even clothing ourselves, we shall not be found, naked;—⁴And verily, we who are in the tent, do sigh, being weighed down, while yet we are not wishing to unclothe ourselves, but to clothe ourselves over,—in order that, what is mortal, may be swallowed up, by life. ⁵Now, he that hath wrought us for this very thing, is, God,—who hath given unto us the earnest of the Spirit, ⁶Having good courage, therefore, at all times, and knowing that—remaining at home in the body, we are away from home from the Lord,—⁷By faith, are we walking, not by sight;—⁸We have good courage, however, and are well pleased—rather to be away from home, out of the body, and to come home, unto the Lord. ⁹Wherefore also we are ambitious—whether at home, or away from home, to be, well-pleasing unto him. ¹⁰For, we all, must needs be made manifest before the judgment seat of the Christ, that each one may get back the things done by means of the body, according to the things which he practised, whether good or corrupt. ¹¹Knowing, then, the fear of the Lord, we persuade, men, but, unto God, are manifest,—I hope, moreover, even in your consciences, that we are manifest: ¹²Not again, ourselves, do we commend unto you, but as though an occasion we were giving unto you—something to boast of, in our behalf; that ye may have something suited unto them who, in appearance, are boasting, and not in heart. ¹³For, whether we have been beside ourselves, it hath been for God, or, whether we are sober-minded, it is for you. ¹⁴For, the love of the Christ, constraineth us;—¹⁵Having judged this,—that, one, in behalf of all, died, hence, they all, died; and, in behalf of all, died he,—in order that, they who live, no longer for themselves, should live, but for him who, in their behalf, died and rose again. ¹⁶So that, we, henceforth, know, no one, after the flesh: if we have even been gaining, after the flesh, a knowledge of Christ, ¹⁷On the contrary, now, no longer, are we gaining it. So that, if any one is in Christ, there is a new creation! the old things, have passed away,—Lo! they have become new! ¹⁸The all things, moreover, are of God,—who hath reconciled us unto himself, through Christ, and hath given, unto us, the reconciling ministry:—¹⁹How that, God, was in Christ, reconciling, a world, unto himself, not reckoning, unto them, their offences,—and hath put, in us, the reconciling discourse. ²⁰In behalf of Christ, therefore, are we ambassadors,—as if God were beseeching through us: we entreat, in behalf of Christ,—be reconciled unto God! ²¹Him who knew not sin, in our behalf, he made to be, sin, that we might become God's righteousness in him.

⁶As co-workers, however, we also beseech, that, not in vain, the favour of God, ye welcome; ²For he saith—In an approved season, have I hearkened unto thee, and, in a day of salvation, have succoured thee;—Lo! now, a well-approved season, Lo! now, a day of salvation: ³Giving, no single, occasion of stumbling, in anything, that the ministry be not blamed; ⁴But, in everything, commending ourselves as God's ministers,—in much endurance, in tribulations, in necessities, in straits, ⁵in stripes, in imprisonments, in tumults, in toilings, in watchings, in fastings, ⁶in sanctity, in knowledge, in long-suffering, in graciousness, in Holy Spirit, ⁷in love unfeigned, in discourse of truth, in power of God; through the weapons of righteousness on the right hand and left, ⁸through glory and dishonour, through bad report and good report; as deceivers, and yet true, ⁹as unknown, and yet well-known, as dying, and lo! we live, as disciplined, and yet not put to death, ¹⁰as grieving, yet, ever, rejoicing, as destitute, yet making, many, rich, as holding, nothing, and yet firmly holding, all things. ¹¹Our mouth, is opened unto you, O Corinthians! our heart, hath become enlarged: ¹²Ye are not straitened in us, but are straitened in your hearts' affections; ¹³Howbeit, by way of the like recompense—as, unto children, I speak, be enlarged, even, ye. ¹⁴Be not getting diversely yoked with unbelievers; for what partnership have righteousness and lawlessness? Or what fellowship hath light with darkness? ¹⁵And what concord hath Christ with Beliar? Or what part hath a believer with an unbeliever? ¹⁶And what agreement hath a shrine of God with idols? For, we, are the shrine of a God, that liveth:—even as God hath said—will dwell in them, and walk, and will be their God, and, they, shall be my people. ¹⁷Wherefore come ye forth out of their midst, and be separated,—saith the Lord,—and, one impure, do not touch; and, I, will give you welcome, ¹⁸And will become your Father, and, ye, shall become my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty.

⁷Having therefore, these, promises, beloved, let us purify ourselves from all pollution of flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in fear of God. ²Give place to us! no one, have we wronged, no one, have we corrupted, no one, have we defrauded. ³Unto condemnation, I am not saying this, for I have before said—In our hearts, are ye, to the end we may die together and live together. ⁴Great, is my freedom of speech towards you, great, is my boasting in behalf of you: I am filled with the encouragement, I am greatly superabounding with the joy, in all our tribulation. ⁵For, even when we came into Macedonia, no relief at all, had our flesh; but, in every way, were we in tribulation,—without, fightings! within, fears! ⁶But, he who encourageth them that are brought low, encouraged us,—even God,—by the presence of Titus. ⁷Not, however, by his presence alone, but also by the encouragement wherewith he had been encouraged over you: recounting unto us your earnest desire, your lamentation, your zeal in my behalf. So that I the more rejoiced. ⁸Because, if I even grieved you by the letter, I do not regret,—though I could even have regretted,—I see that that letter, if even for an hour, did cause you grief. ⁹Now, am I rejoicing,—not that ye were grieved, but that ye were grieved unto repentance; for ye were grieved in order that, having in every thing, at every time, every kind of sufficiency of your own, ye may be superabounding unto every good work; ⁹Even as it is written—He hath scattered abroad, he hath given to the needy,—his righteousness, abideth to futurity. ¹⁰Now, he that supplieth seed to the sower, and bread for eating, will supply and multiply your seed for sowing, and cause to grow your fruits of righteousness: ¹¹In every thing, being enriched, unto every kind of liberality,—which, indeed, worketh out, through us, thanksgiving unto God; ¹²Because, the ministry of this public service, is not only towards filling up the deficiencies of the saints, but also superabounding, through the thanksgiving of many, unto God,—¹³Of many who, through the proof of this ministry, are glorifying God for your acknowledged submission unto the glad-message of the Christ, and for the liberality of the fellowship, unto them, and unto all,—¹⁴Themselves also, with supplication on your behalf, longing after you, by reason of the surpassing favour of God resting upon you:—¹⁵Thanks be unto God, for his unspeakable bounty!

10Moreover, I, Paul, myself, exhort you, through the meekness and considerateness of the Christ,—I who, to look upon, indeed, am lowly toward you, but, absent, am bold towards you;—²I entreat, however, that, when present, I may not be bold with the assurance wherewith I think to be daring against some who account of us as though, according to flesh, we were walking,—³For, though, in flesh, we walk, not, according to flesh, do we war,—⁴For, the weapons of our warfare, are not fleshly, but mighty, by God, unto a pulling down of strongholds,—⁵When we pull down, calculations, and every height that uplifteth itself against the knowledge of God, and when we bring into captivity every thought unto the obedience of the Christ, ⁶And when we hold ourselves, in readiness, to avenge all disobedience, as soon as your obedience shall be fulfilled! ⁷The things that lie on the surface, ye are looking at:—if anyone hath come to trust in himself that he is, Christ's, this, let him reckon, again, with himself—that, even as, he, is Christ's, so, also are, we. ⁸Yea, if, somewhat more abundantly, I should boast concerning our authority—which the Lord hath given for building up and not for pulling you down, I shall not be put to shame,—⁹That I may not seem as though I would be terrifying you through means of my letters; ¹⁰Because, The letters, it is true (saith one), are weighty and strong, but, the presence of the body, is weak, and, the discourse, contemptible;—¹¹This, let such a one reckon—that, what we are, in our word, through means of letters, being absent, such, also, being present, are we, in our deed. ¹²For we dare not class or compare ourselves with some who do, themselves, commend; but, they, among themselves, measuring, themselves, and comparing themselves with themselves, are without discernment! ¹³We, however, not as to the things without measure, will boast ourselves, but, according to the measure of the limit which God apportioned unto us, as a measure—to reach as far as even you! ¹⁴For, not as though we were not reaching unto you, are we over-stretching ourselves, for, as far as even you, were we beforehand in the glad-message of the Christ: ¹⁵Not, as to the things without measure, boasting ourselves in other men's toils, but having, hope—your faith, growing—among you, to be enlarged, according to our limit for something beyond,—¹⁶Unto the regions beyond you, to carry the glad-message: not, within another man's limit, as to the things made ready, to boast ourselves. ¹⁷He that boasteth, however, in the Lord, let him boast; ¹⁸For, not he that commendeth himself, he, is approved, but he whom, the Lord, doth commend.

11I could wish ye would bear with me as to some little foolishness,—Nay! do even bear with me! ²For I am jealous over you with a jealousy, of God; for I myself betrothed you unto one husband, to present, a chaste virgin, unto the Christ,—³But I fear lest, by any means, as, the serpent, completely deceived Eve, in his craftiness, your minds should be corrupted from the singleness \u0026 the chasteness \u0026 which are due unto the Christ. ⁴For, if, indeed, he that cometh, is proclaiming, another Jesus, whom we have not proclaimed, or, a different Spirit, ye are receiving, which ye had not received, or a different glad-message, which ye have never welcomed, ye are, well, bearing. ⁵For I reckon not to have come a whit behind the exceeding overmuch apostles; ⁶And, even if uncultured in my discourse, certainly not in my knowledge,—but, in every way, having made it manifest, in all things, unto you. ⁷Or, a sin, did I commit—abasing, myself, that, ye, might be exalted,—in that, free of charge, God's glad-message, I announced unto you? ⁸Other assemblies, I despoiled, receiving supplies that I might minister, unto you; ⁹And, being present with you, and having come short, I was not burdensome to anyone,—for, my deficiency, the brethren, coming from Macedonia, helped to make up;—and, in everything, without burden unto you, I kept, myself—and will keep! ¹⁰Truth of Christ is in me, that, this boasting, shall not be silenced unto me, in the regions of Achaia. ¹¹Wherefore? Because I love you not? God, knoweth! ¹²But, what I am doing, I also will do,—that I may cut off the occasion of them who are wishing an occasion, that, wherein they are boasting themselves, they may be found even as also, we. ¹³For, such as these, are false apostles, deceitful workers, transfiguring themselves into apostles of Christ. ¹⁴And no marvel! for, Satan himself, doth transfigure himself into a messenger of light! ¹⁵No great thing, therefore, if, his ministers also, are transfiguring themselves as ministers of righteousness!—whose end, shall be according to their works. ¹⁶Again, I say—let no one deem me to be, foolish; but, otherwise, at least, as foolish, give me welcome, that, I also, some little, may boast myself.

¹⁷What I am saying, not according to the Lord, am I saying, but as in foolishness,—in this my boastful confidence! ¹⁸Since, many, are boasting after the flesh, I also, will boast; ¹⁹For, gladly, do ye bear with the foolish, being yourselves, discreet,—²⁰For ye bear with it—if anyone enslaveth you, if any devoureth, if anyone taketh, if anyone lifteth himself up, if anyone, on the face, doth smite you! ²¹By way of disparagement, am I speaking,—as though, we, had been weak! whereas, in whatsoever anyone dareth, in foolishness I speak, I also, dare:—²²Hebrews, are they? I also, Israelites, are they? I also, seed of Abraham, are they? I also, ²³Ministers of Christ, are they? As one deranged I am talking, I, above measure!—in toils, superabundantly, in prisons, superabundantly, in stripes, to excess, in deaths, oft,—²⁴From Jews, five times, forty-save-one, have I received, ²⁵Thrice, have I been beaten with rods, once, have I been stoned, thrice, have I been shipwrecked, a day and night, in the deep, have I spent; ²⁶In journeyings oft, in perils of rivers, in perils of robbers, in perils from my own race, in perils from Gentiles, in perils in the city, in perils in the desert, in perils by the sea, in perils among false brethren, ²⁷in toil and hardship, in watchings, oft, in hunger and thirst, in fasting, oft, in cold and nakedness:—²⁸Apart from the things without, my daily care,—my anxiety for all the assemblies;—²⁹Who is weak, and I am not weak? Who is caused to stumble, and, I, am not burning? ³⁰If, to boast, is needful, in the things that concern my weakness, will I boast. ³¹The God and Father of our Lord Jesus, knoweth—He who is blessed unto the ages—that I am not speaking falsely: ³²In Damascus, the governor under Aretas the king, was guarding the city of Damascenes, to apprehend me,—³³And, through a window, was I let down by the wall, and escaped his hands.

12To be boasting, is needful,—it is not, indeed, profitable, yet will I come to visions and revelations of the Lord:—²I know a man in Christ, who, fourteen years ago, whether in the body, I know not, or out of the body, I know not, God, knoweth, such a one as this, caught away, as far as the third heaven; ³And I know such a man as this, whether in the body or apart from the body, \ul1 I know not\ul0,—God, knoweth, ⁴How that he was caught away into paradise, and heard unspeakable things, which it is not allowable for a man to utter: ⁵On behalf of such a one as this, will I boast, but, on behalf of myself, will I not boast, save in my weaknesses;—⁶Although in fact, if I should wish to boast, I shall not be foolish, for, the truth, would I speak; but I forbear, lest anyone, unto me, should reckon above what he beholdeth me to be, or heareth from me,—even by the exceeding greatness of the revelations. ⁷Wherefore, lest I should be unduly lifted up, there was given to me a thorn o in the flesh, a messenger of Satan, that he might buffet me,—lest I should be unduly lifted up. ⁸In this behalf, thrice, besought I, the Lord, that it might depart from me; ⁹And at once he said unto me—Sufficient for thee, is my favour, for, my power, in weakness, is made complete. Most gladly, therefore, will I rather boast in my weaknesses, that the power of Christ may spread a tent over me. ¹⁰Wherefore, I take pleasure in weaknesses, in insults, in necessities, in persecutions, and straits, in behalf of Christ; for, as soon as I am weak, then, am powerful. ¹¹I have become foolish,—ye, compelled me:—I, in fact, ought, by you, to have been commended; for, not a whit, have I come behind the exceeding overmuch apostles,—even if I am nothing: ¹²The signs, indeed, of an apostle, were wrought out among you, in all endurance,—\ul1 both\ul0 in signs, and wonders, and mighty works: ¹³For what is there wherein ye were made inferior to the rest of the assemblies,—save that, I myself, would not allow myself to be a burden unto you? Forgive me this wrong! ¹⁴Lo! this third time, I am holding myself, in readiness, to come unto you, and I will not allow myself to be a burden; for I seek not yours, but you;—for, the children, ought not to lay up, for the parents, but the parents for the children;—¹⁵And, I, most gladly, will spend, and be fully spent, for your souls:—If I, exceedingly, love you, am I, the less, loved? ¹⁶But let it be!—I, myself, did not burden you,—Notwithstanding, being crafty, with guile, I caught you? ¹⁷Was there, anyone of those whom I have sent unto you, through whom I have overreached you? ¹⁸I exhorted Titus, and sent with him the brother,—Did, Titus, overreach you? Was it not, in the same spirit, we walked? Was it not, in the same steps? ¹⁹All this time, think ye, that, unto you, we are making a defence? Before God in Christ, we speak;—but all these things, beloved, for your upbuilding. ²⁰For I fear—lest, by any means, when I come, not such as I wish, should I find you, and, I, should be found by you, such as ye do not wish;—lest, by any means, I should find strife, jealousy, outbursts of wrath, factions, railings, whisperings, puffed up pretensions, confusions;—²¹Lest, when I again come, my God should humble me in regard to you,—and I should grieve over many who had before sinned, and not repented of the impurity, and fornication, and wantonness which they had committed.

13This third time, am I coming unto you:—at the mouth of two witnesses, or three, shall every matter be established. ²I have said beforehand, and do say beforehand,—as present the second time, although now absent, unto them who before sinned, and unto all the rest,—that, if I come again, I will not spare. ³Since, a test, ye are seeking, of the speaking in me of Christ;—who, unto you, is not weak, but is powerful in you,—⁴For, although he was crucified through weakness, yet is he living through God's power,—for, although, we, are weak in him, yet shall we live with him, through God's power \ul1 unto us\ul0 —⁵Be trying, yourselves, whether ye are in the faith, be putting, yourselves, to the test! Or do ye not recognise yourselves, seeing that, Jesus Christ, is in you,—unless perhaps ye fail in the testing. ⁶I hope, however, that ye shall come to know, that, we, fail not in the testing! ⁷But we pray unto God, that ye may do nothing base,—not that, we, may appear, accepted, but that, ye, the honourable thing, may be doing, even though, we, should be, as it were, rejected; ⁸For we can do nothing against the truth, but for the truth; ⁹For we rejoice—whensoever, we, are weak, and, ye, are, strong. This, also we pray for—your restoration:—¹⁰For this cause, these things, while absent, am I writing, that I may not, when present, deal sharply—according to the authority which, the Lord, hath given me, for building up and not for pulling down. ¹¹Finally, brethren, farewell! Be getting restored, be taking encouragement, be of one mind, live in peace,—and, the God of love and peace, will be with you. ¹²Salute ye one another with a holy kiss. ¹³All the saints, salute you. ¹⁴The favour of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Spirit, be with you all.

Galatians

¹Paul, an apostle,—not from men, nor through man, but through Jesus Christ, and God the Father who raised him from among the dead, ²And all the brethren with me;—unto the assemblies of Galatia: ³Favour unto you and peace, from God our Father, and Lord Jesus Christ,—⁴Who gave himself for our sins, that he might deliver us out of the present evil age, according to the will of our God and Father,—⁵Unto whom be the glory unto the ages of ages: Amen! ⁶I marvel that, thus quickly, ye are moving away from him that called you in the favour of Christ, unto a different glad-message,—⁷Which is not, another, only there are, some, that are troubling you, and wishing to change the glad-message of the Christ. ⁸But, even if, we, or, a messenger out of heaven, announce a glad-message \ul1 unto you\ul0 aside from that which we announced unto you, accursed, let him be! ⁹As we have said before, even now, again, I say: If anyone is announcing unto you a glad-message aside from that which ye accepted, accursed, let him be! ¹⁰For am I, even now, persuading, men, or God? Or am I seeking to please, men? If I had been still pleasing, men, Christ's servant, had I not been! ¹¹For I make known unto you, brethren, as to the glad-message which was announced by me, that it is not after man; ¹²For neither, from man, did I accept it, nor was taught it,—but through a revealing of Jesus Christ. ¹³For ye have heard, as to my own manner of life, at one time, in Judaism, how that, exceedingly, was I persecuting the assembly of God, and laying it waste, ¹⁴And was making advancement, in Judaism, above many contemporaries in my nation, being, surpassingly zealous, of my paternal instructions. ¹⁵But, when God, who set me apart from my mother's womb and called me through his favour, was well-pleased ¹⁶to reveal his Son in me, that I might announce the glad-message regarding him among the nations, straightway, I conferred not with flesh and blood, ¹⁷Neither went I up unto Jerusalem unto them who, before me, were apostles,—but I went away into Arabia, and again returned unto Damascus. ¹⁸Then, after three years, went I up unto Jerusalem, to become acquainted with Cephas, and tarried with him fifteen days; ¹⁹But, other of the apostles, saw I none, save James the brother of the Lord:—²⁰Now, as touching the things which I am writing to you, lo! before God, I am not guilty of falsehood:—²¹After that, I went into the regions of Syria and Cilicia, ²²And was still unknown, by face, unto the assemblies of Judaea which were in Christ,—²³Only they were hearing—He that was persecuting us formerly, now, is announcing the glad-message of the faith which he formerly laid waste; ²⁴And they were glorifying, God, in me.

²After that, fourteen years later, I, again, went up unto Jerusalem, with Barnabas, taking with me Titus also; ²And I went up by revelation, and laid before them the glad-message which I proclaim among the nations; privately, however, to them of repute,—lest, by any means, in vain, I should be running, or had run. ³But, not even Titus, who was with me, though he was a Greek, was compelled to be circumcised;—⁴But, this was because of the false brethren secretly introduced,—who, indeed, came in secretly to spy out our freedom, which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might bring us into bondage:—⁵Unto whom, not even for an hour, gave we place by the required submission,—in order that, the truth of the glad-message, might still abide with you. ⁶Moreover, from them who were reputed to be something,—whatsoever at one time, they were, maketh no difference to me, God accepteth not a man's person,—unto me, in fact, they who were of repute added nothing further; ⁷But, on the contrary,—when they saw that I had been entrusted with the glad-message to the uncircumcision, even as, Peter, with that to the circumcision, ⁸For, he that energised in Peter, into an apostleship to the circumcision, energised also in me, for the nations,—⁹And when they perceived the favour which had been given unto me, James and Cephas and John, who were reputed to be pillars, gave, the right hand of fellowship, unto me and Barnabas, in order that, we, should go unto the nations, and, they, unto the circumcision:—¹⁰Only that we should remember, the destitute,—as to which I had given diligence, this very thing, to do. ¹¹But, when Cephas came unto Antioch, to the face, even , him, I resisted, because he stood condemned; ¹²For, before that certain came from James, with them of the nations, used he to eat; whereas, when they came, he used to withdraw, and keep himself separate, fearing them of the circumcision; ¹³And the rest of the Jews \ul1 also\ul0 used hypocrisy with him, so that, even Barnabas, was carried away by their hypocrisy. ¹⁴But, when I saw that they were not walking with straightforwardness as regardeth the truth of the glad-message, I said unto Cephas, before all: If, thou, although, a Jew, like them of the nations, and not like the Jews, dost live, how dost thou compel, them of the nations, to live like Jews? ¹⁵We, by nature Jews, and not sinners from among the nations, ¹⁶Knowing, however, that a man is not declared righteous by works of law, nor at all save through faith in Christ Jesus; even we, on Christ Jesus, believed, that we might be declared righteous—by faith in Christ, and not by works of law; because, by works of law, shall no flesh be declared righteous. ¹⁷Now, if in seeking to be declared righteous in Christ we, ourselves also, were found sinners,—is Christ, therefore, a minister, of sin? Far be it! ¹⁸For, if, the things that I pulled down, these, again, I build, a transgressor, I prove, myself, to be. ¹⁹For, I, through means of law, unto law, died, that, unto God, I might live:—²⁰With Christ, have I been crucified; and, living no longer, am, I, but, living in me, is, Christ,—while, so far as I now do live in flesh, by faith, I live—The faith in the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself up in my behalf. ²¹I do not set aside the favour of God; for, if, through law, is righteousness, then, Christ, without cause, died.

3O thoughtless Galatians! who hath bewitched you,—before whose very eyes, Jesus Christ, was openly set forth as a crucified one? ²This only, am I wishing to learn from you:—by works of law, received ye, the Spirit? or by a believed report? ³So thoughtless, are ye? Having made a beginning in Spirit, are ye, now, in flesh, to be made complete? ⁴Such things, suffered ye, in vain,—if at least it is even in vain? ⁵He then who was supplying unto you the Spirit, and energising mighty works among you, by works of law, or by a believed report did he it? ⁶Even as Abraham—believed in God, and it was reckoned unto him as righteousness. ⁷Be taking note, therefore—that, they who are of faith, the same, are, sons, of Abraham; ⁸And, the scripture, foreseeing, that, by faith, God would declare the nations righteous, fore-announced the good news unto Abraham, saying, All the nations shall be blessed in thee. ⁹So then, they who are of faith, are blessed with believing Abraham; ¹⁰For, as many as are of works of law, are, under a curse,—for it is written—Accursed, is everyone that continueth not in all things that are written in the book of the law to do them. ¹¹Moreover, that, in law, no one, is declared righteous with God, is evident,—because, The righteous one, by faith, shall live; ¹²And, the law, is not of faith, but—he that hath done them, shall live in them, ¹³Christ, hath redeemed, us, out of the curse of the law, having become, in our behalf, a curse;—because it is written—Cursed, is every one that hangeth upon a tree;—¹⁴In order that, unto the nations, the blessing of Abraham, might come about in Jesus Christ,—in order that, the promise of the Spirit, we might receive through means of the faith. ¹⁵Brethren! in human fashion, am I speaking: yet still, a man's confirmed covenant, no one setteth aside or addeth unto: ¹⁶Now, unto Abraham, were spoken the promises—and unto his seed;—He saith not—and unto thy seeds, as of many, but, as of one—and unto thy seed, which is Christ: ¹⁷And, this, I say—a covenant previously confirmed by God, the law which, after four hundred and thirty years, hath been brought into being, doth not annul, so as to do away with the promise. ¹⁸For, if, by law, is the inheritance, it is, no longer, by promise; but, unto Abraham, through promise, hath God favoured it. ¹⁹Why, then, the law? Because of the transgressions, it was added, until such time as the seed should come, unto whom the promise had been made, and was given in charge through messengers, at the hand of a mediator; ²⁰Now, a mediator, is not a mediator of one, but, God, is, one. ²¹Is, the law, then, against the promises \u016f God\u016f? Far be it! For, if a law had been given, which had been able to give life, verily, in law, would have been our righteousness; ²²But the Scripture, did shut up, all things, under sin, that, the promise by faith in Jesus Christ, might be given to them who have faith, ²³Before the coming of the faith, however, under law, were we being kept in ward, being shut up unto the faith which should afterwards, be revealed. ²⁴So that, the law, hath proved, our tutor, training us, for Christ, in order that, by faith, we might be declared righteous; ²⁵But, the faith having come, no longer, are we, under a tutor;—²⁶For ye, all, are, sons of God, through the faith in Christ Jesus; ²⁷For ye, as many as, into Christ, have been immersed, have put Christ, on: ²⁸There cannot be Jew or Greek, there cannot be bond or free, there cannot be male and female, for, all ye, are one, in Christ Jesus: ²⁹Now, if, ye, are of Christ, by consequence ye are, Abraham's seed, according to promise, heirs.

4But I say:—for as long a time as, the heir, is an infant, he differeth, nothing, from a servant, though, lord of all, ²But is, under guardians, and stewards, until the day fore-appointed of the father: ³So also, we, when we were infants, under the elementary principles of the world, were held in servitude; ⁴But, when the fulness of the time came, God sent forth his Son, who came to be of a woman, who came to be under law,—⁵That, them who were under law, he might redeem, that, the sonship, we might duly receive;—⁶And, because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, exclaiming, Abba! Oh Father! ⁷So that, no longer, art thou a servant, but a son; and, if a son, an heir also, through God. ⁸But, at that time—not knowing God, ye were in servitude unto them who, by nature, are not Gods; ⁹Whereas, now, having acknowledged God,—or rather, having been acknowledged by God, how turn ye back again unto the weak and beggarly elementary principles, unto which, over again, ye are

wishing, to come into servitude? ¹⁰Days, ye do narrowly observer, and months, and seasons, and years:— ¹¹I am afraid of you—lest by any means, in vain, I should have toiled for you! ¹²Become ye as, I, because, I also, was as, ye,—brethren, I entreat you. Not at all, have ye wronged me. ¹³Howbeit ye know that, by reason of a weakness of the flesh, I myself announced the glad-message unto you, formerly; ¹⁴And, your trial, in my flesh, ye despised not, neither spat ye in disgust, but, as a messenger of God, ye welcomed me—as Christ Jesus. ¹⁵Where, then, is the happiness ye accounted yours? For I bear you witness—that, if possible, your eyes, ye would have dug out, and given unto me. ¹⁶So then, your enemy, have I become, by dealing truthfully with you? ¹⁷They shew a zeal for you, not honourably, but wish, to shut you out, in order that ye may be zealous for, them. ¹⁸Howbeit it is, honourable, to show zeal in what is honourable at all times, and not only when I am present with you;— ¹⁹My dear children! for whom I, again, am in birth-pains, until Christ be formed within you;— ²⁰I could wish, however, to be present with you, even now, and to change my voice,—because I am perplexed regarding you. ²¹Tell me! ye who, under law, are wishing to be: The law, do ye not hear? ²²For it is written, that, Abraham, had two sons—one by the bondmaid, and one by the free woman; ²³But, he that was of the bondmaid, after the flesh, had been born, whereas, he that was of the free woman, through means of a promise. ²⁴Which things, indeed, may bear another meaning; for, the same, are two covenants,—one, indeed, from Mount Sinai, into bondage, bringing forth, the which is Hagar,— ²⁵And, the Hagar, is Mount Sinai, in Arabia,—she answereth, however, unto the present Jerusalem, for she is in bondage with her children; ²⁶But, the Jerusalem above, is free,—the which is our mother; ²⁷For it is written—Be gladdened, O barren one! that wast not giving birth, break forth and shout, thou that wast not in birth-pains,—because, more, are the children of the deserted one, than of her that had the husband. ²⁸And, we, brethren, after the manner of Isaac, are children of a promise. ²⁹But, just as, then, he that after the manner of the flesh had been born, did persecute him who had been born after the manner of the Spirit, thus, also now. ³⁰But, what saith the scripture? Cast out the serving woman and her son; for in nowise shall the son of the serving woman inherit with the son of the free. ³¹Wherefore, brethren, we are not children of a serving woman, but of the free:—

⁵With her freedom, Christ hath made you, free. Stand fast, therefore, and do not, again, with a yoke of servitude, be held fast! ²See! I, Paul, say unto you—if ye be getting circumcised, Christ will profit you, nothing. ³Yea, I bear solemn witness again, unto every man getting circumcised,—that he is, a debtor, to do, the whole law. ⁴Ye have been set aside from Christ, ye who, by law, are to be declared righteous,—out of his favour, ye have fallen; ⁵For, we, in Spirit, by faith, for a hope of righteousness, are ardently waiting,— ⁶For, in Christ \u01 Jesus\ul0, neither, circumcision, availeth anything, nor uncircumcision, but faith, through love, energising. ⁷Ye were running well:—who hath hindered you, that, by truth, ye are not to be persuaded? ⁸The persuasion, is not of him that calleth you:— ⁹A little leaven, leaveneth, the whole lump. ¹⁰I, am persuaded regarding you, in the Lord—that, for nothing else, ye will have any regard; but, he that is troubling you, shall bear the sentence,—whosoever he may be. ¹¹I, however, brethren—if, circumcision, I yet proclaim, why am I yet persecuted? After all, the stumbling-block of the cross hath been set aside. ¹²Oh! that they would even leave off in dismay, who are unsettling you! ¹³For, ye, on a footing of freedom, were called, brethren,—only, turn not your freedom into an occasion to the flesh, but, by means of your love, be serving one another; ¹⁴For, the whole law, in one word, is summed up—namely in this,—Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself. ¹⁵If, however, one another, ye bite and devour, take heed lest, by one another, ye be consumed! ¹⁶I say, moreover—by Spirit, be walking, and, fleshly coveting, ye will in nowise fulfil; ¹⁷For, the flesh, coveted against the Spirit, but, the Spirit, against the flesh,—for, these, unto one another, are opposed, lest, whatsoever things ye chance to desire, these, ye should be doing! ¹⁸And, if, by Spirit, ye are being led, ye are not under law. ¹⁹Manifest, however, are the works of the flesh, which, indeed, are—fornication, impurity, wantonness, ²⁰idolatry, enchantment, enmities, strife, jealousy, outbursts of wrath, factions, divisions, parties, ²¹envyings, drunkenness, revellings;—and such things as these: as to which I forewarn you, even as I have forewarned you,—that, they who such things as these do practise, shall not inherit, God's kingdom. ²²But, the fruit of the Spirit, is—love, joy, peace, long-suffering, graciousness, goodness, faithfulness, ²³meekness, self-control;—against such things as these, there is no law. ²⁴And, they who are of Christ Jesus, have crucified, the flesh, with its susceptibilities and covetings. ²⁵If we live by Spirit, by Spirit, let us also walk. ²⁶Let us not become vain-glorious,—one another, challenging, one another, envying.

⁶Brethren! if a man should even be overtaken in any fault, ye, the spiritual, be restoring such a one, in a spirit of meekness, looking to thyself, lest, even thou, be put to the test. ²One another's burdens, be ye bearing, and, so, fill up the law of the Christ. ³For, if any one thinketh he is something, when he is, nothing, he deceiveth himself; ⁴But, his own work, let each one be putting to the proof, and, then, for himself alone, the matter of boasting, shall he have, and not for some other, ⁵For, each one, his own proper load, shall bear:— ⁶Howbeit, let him who is being orally instructed in the word, have fellowship with him that is so instructing him, in all good things. ⁷Be not deceiving yourselves! God, is not to be mocked; for, whatsoever a man soweth, the same, shall he also reap,—⁸Because, he that soweth into his own flesh, out of the flesh, shall reap corruption, whereas, he that soweth into the Spirit, out of the Spirit, shall reap age-abiding life. ⁹And, in doing that which is honourable, let us not be fainthearted; for, in due season, we shall reap, if we faint not. ¹⁰Hence, then, as we have opportunity, let us be working what is good, towards all,—but, especially, towards the family of the faith. ¹¹See! with what large letters, unto you, I have written, with my own hand:—¹²As many as are wishing to make a good show in flesh, the same, are compelling you to get circumcised,—only that, for the cross of Christ \ul1 Jesus\ul0 , they may not be suffering persecution! ¹³For, not even they who are getting circumcised, are, themselves, observing law,—but are wishing you to be circumcised, that, in your flesh, they may boast themselves. ¹⁴With me, however, far be it! to be boasting, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ,—whereby, unto me, a world hath been crucified, and, I, unto a world; ¹⁵For neither circumcision is anything, nor uncircumcision, but a new creation;—¹⁶And, as many as, by this rule, shall walk, peace be upon them, and mercy, and upon the Israel of God. ¹⁷For the rest, annoyances, unto me, let no one be offering; for, I, the brandmarks of Jesus, in my body, am bearing. ¹⁸The favour of our Lord Jesus Christ, be with your spirit, brethren. Amen.

Ephesians

¹Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus, through God's will, unto the saints who are \u0011 in Ephesus*\u0010* and faithful in Christ Jesus,—²Favour unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and Lord Jesus Christ. ³Blessed, be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with every spiritual blessing, in the heavenlies, in Christ, ⁴According as he made choice of us, in him, before the founding of a world, that we might be holy and blameless in his presence; in love, ⁵marking us out beforehand unto sonship, through Jesus Christ, for himself, according to the good pleasure of his will, ⁶Unto the praise of the glory of his favour wherewith he favoured us in the Beloved One,—⁷In whom we have the redemption through his blood, the remission of our offences, according to the riches of his favour, ⁸which he made to superabound towards us; in all wisdom and prudence, ⁹making known to us the sacred secret of his will, according to his good pleasure which he purposed in him,—¹⁰For an administration of the fulness of the seasons, to reunite for himself (under one head) the all things in the Christ, the things upon the heavens, and the things upon the earth, in him: ¹¹In whom also we were taken as an inheritance, according to the purpose of him who energiseth all things according to the counsel of his will, ¹²That we should be for the praise of his glory—we who had hoped beforehand in the Christ,—¹³In whom, ye also—hearing the word of the truth, the glad-message of your salvation,—in whom also believing,—were sealed with the Spirit of the promise, the Holy Spirit, ¹⁴Which is an earnest of our inheritance, unto the redemption of the acquisition;—unto his glorious praise. ¹⁵For this cause, I also,—having heard of the faith on your part in the Lord Jesus, and that towards all the saints, ¹⁶Cease not giving thanks in your behalf, making mention in my prayers, ¹⁷That, the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, would give you a Spirit of wisdom and understanding in gaining a personal knowledge of him,—¹⁸The eyes of your heart having been enlightened, that ye may know—what is the hope of his calling, what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints, ¹⁹And what the surpassing greatness of his power unto us who believe,—according to the energy of the grasp of his might ²⁰which he energised in the Christ, when he raised him from among the dead, and seated him at his right hand in the heavenlies, ²¹Over-above all principality, authority, and power, and lordship, and every name that is named, not only in this age, but also in the coming one, ²²And did put, all things, in subjection beneath his feet. And gave him to be head over all things unto the assembly, ²³Which, indeed, is his body, the fulness of him who, the all things in all, is for himself filling up.

²Unto you also—being dead by your offences and sins, ²In which at one time ye walked, according to the age of the world, according to the prince of the authority of the air, of the spirit that now energiseth in the sons of disobedience, ³Among whom also, we all, had our behaviour, at one time, in the covetings of our flesh, doing the things desired by the flesh and the mind, and were children, by nature, of anger—even as the rest,—⁴But, God, being rich in mercy, by reason of the great love wherewith he loved us, ⁵Although we were dead by our offences, gave us life together with the Christ,—by favour, ye have been saved,—⁶And raised us up together, and seated us together in the heavenlies, in Christ: ⁷That he might point out, in the oncoming ages, the surpassing riches of his favour in graciousness upon us, in Christ Jesus; ⁸For, by his favour, have ye been saved, through means of faith, and this hath come to pass—not from you, of God, the free-gift! ⁹Not from works, lest anyone should boast. ¹⁰His, in fact we are—his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus upon a footing of good works, which God prepared beforehand, that, therein, we might walk. ¹¹Wherefore, keep in remembrance—that, at one time, ye, the nations in flesh, who are called Uncircumcision by the so-called Circumcision in flesh, made by hand, ¹²That ye were, in that season, separate from Christ, alienated from the citizenship of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and godless in the world; ¹³But, just now, in Christ Jesus, ye, who at one time were afar off, were made nigh in the blood of the Christ; ¹⁴He, in fact, is our peace—who made both one, and, the enclosing middle-wall, took down, ¹⁵The enmity, in his flesh—the law of commandments in decrees—bringing to nought,—that, the two, he might create in himself, into one man of new mould, making peace. ¹⁶And might fully reconcile them both, in one body, through means of the cross,—slaying the enmity thereby;—¹⁷And, coming, he announced the glad-message—of peace, unto you, the far off, and peace, unto them that were nigh; ¹⁸Because, through him, we have our introduction—we both—in one Spirit, unto the Father. ¹⁹Hence, then—no longer, are ye strangers and sojourners, but ye are fellow-citizens of the saints, and members of the household of God,—²⁰Having been built up on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, there being, for chief corner stone, Jesus Christ himself,—²¹In whom, an entire building, in process of being fitly joined together, is growing into a holy shrine in the Lord; ²²In whom, ye also, are being builded together, into a habitation of God in Spirit.

³For this cause, I, Paul, the prisoner of Christ Jesus in behalf of you the nations:—²If at least ye have heard of the administration of the favour of God which hath been given unto me for you, ³How that, by way of revelation, was made known unto me the sacred secret,—even as I before wrote in brief,—⁴Respecting which ye can, by reading, perceive my discernment in the sacred secret of the Christ,—⁵Which, in other generations, had not been made known unto the sons of men, as it hath, now, been revealed by his holy apostles and prophets, in Spirit;—⁶That they who are of the nations should be joint heirs, and a joint body, and joint partakers of the promise in Christ Jesus through means of the glad-message,—⁷Of which I was made a minister, according to the free-gift of the favour of God which was given unto me, according to the energy of his power: ⁸Unto me—the less than least of all saints, was given this favour, unto the nations, to announce the glad-message of the untraceable riches of the Christ, ⁹And to bring to light—what is the administration of the sacred secret which had been hidden away from the ages in God, who did all things create: ¹⁰In order that now, unto the principalities and the authorities in the heavens, might be made known, through means of the assembly, the manifold wisdom of God,—¹¹According to a plan of the ages which he made in the anointed Jesus our Lord,—¹²In whom we have our freedom of speech and introduction with assurance, through the faith of him;—¹³Wherefore I request, that there be no fainting in my tribulations in your behalf, the which is your glory;—¹⁴For this cause, I bow my knees unto the Father,—¹⁵From whom every fatherhood in the heavens and upon the earth is named,—¹⁶In order that he may give unto you—according to his glorious riches, with power, to be strengthened, through his Spirit, in the inner man, ¹⁷That the Christ may dwell, through means of your faith, in your hearts, in love, having become rooted and founded, ¹⁸In order that ye may be mighty enough to grasp firmly, with all the saints,—what is the breadth and length and depth and height, ¹⁹To get to know, also, the knowledge-surpassing, love of the Christ,—in order that ye may be filled unto all the fulness of God: ²⁰Now, unto him who is able to do, above all things, exceeding abundantly above the things which we ask or conceive,—according to the power which doth energise itself within us,—²¹Unto him, be the glory, in the assembly, and in Christ Jesus—unto all the generations of the age of ages; Amen:—

⁴I exhort you, therefore, I, the prisoner in the Lord, to walk in a manner worthy of the calling wherewith ye were called:—²With all lowliness and meekness, with long suffering, bearing one with another in love, ³Giving diligence to keep—the oneness of the Spirit in the uniting-bond of peace,—⁴One body, and one spirit, even as ye were also called in one hope of your calling, ⁵One Lord, one faith, one immersion, ⁶One God and Father of all—who is over all, and through all, and in all. ⁷To each one of you, however, hath favour been given, according to the measure of the free-gift of the Christ; ⁸Wherefore he saith—Ascending on high, he took captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men. ⁹Now this, He ascended; what is it,—save—that he also descended into the under parts of the earth? ¹⁰He that descended, he, it is who also ascended over-above all the heavens, that he might fill all things; ¹¹And, he, gave—some, indeed, to be apostles, and some, prophets, and some, evangelists, and some, shepherds and teachers,—¹²With a view to the fitting of the saints for the work of ministering, for an upbuilding of the body of the Christ; ¹³Until we all advance—into the oneness of the faith, and the personal knowledge of the Son of God, into a man of full-growth, into the measure of the stature of the fulness of the Christ; ¹⁴That we may, no longer, be infants—billow-tossed and shifted round with every wind of teaching,—in the craft of men, in knavery suited to the artifice of error; ¹⁵But, pursuing truth—may, in love, grow into him in all things,—who is the head, Christ,—¹⁶Out of whom all the body—fitly framing itself together, and connecting itself, through means of every joint of supply, by way of energising in the measure of each single part—secureth the growing of the body, unto an upbuilding of itself in love. ¹⁷This, therefore, am I saying and protesting in the Lord:—that, no longer, ye walk even as, the nations, walk—in the vanity of their minds, ¹⁸Being darkened in their understanding, alienated from the life of God—by reason of the ignorance that existeth within them, by reason of their hearts being turned into stone, ¹⁹Who, indeed, having become past feeling, have delivered, themselves, up, with wantonness, unto making a trade of all impurity with greed. ²⁰Ye, however, have, not thus, learned the Christ:—²¹If, at least, it is, him, ye have heard, and, in him, ye have been taught—even as truth is in Jesus,—²²That ye were to strip off—as regardeth the former behaviour—the old man, who corrupteth himself according to his deceitful covetings, ²³And were to be getting young again in the spirit of your mind, ²⁴And were to put on the man of new mould, who, after God, hath been created in his truthful righteousness and loving kindness. ²⁵Wherefore, stripping off what is false, be speaking truth each one with his neighbour, because we are members one of another; ²⁶Be ye angry, and not committing sin, let not the sun be going down upon your angry mood, ²⁷Neither be giving place unto the adversary; ²⁸Let, the stealer, no more, steal, but rather let him be toiling,—working with his hands the thing that is good, that he may have wherewith to be giving away to him that hath need; ²⁹Let, no putrid discourse, out of your mouth, be going forth, but if anything is good—suited to the needful upbuilding,—that it may give benefit unto them that hear; ³⁰And be not grieving the Holy Spirit of God, wherewith ye have been sealed unto a day of redemption; ³¹All bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and outcry, and profane speaking, let it be taken away from you, with all baseness; ³²And be ye gracious one to another, tenderly affectionate, in favour forgiving one another—even as, God also, in Christ, hath in favour forgiven you;

5 Become ye, therefore, imitators of God, as children beloved, ²And walk in love—even as, the Christ also, loved you, and delivered himself up in your behalf, an offering and sacrifice unto God, for a fragrance of sweet smell. ³But, fornication, and all impurity, or covetousness, let it not be named among you—even as becometh saints; ⁴And shamelessness and foolish talking, or jesting,—which things are beneath you,—but, rather, giving of thanks; ⁵For, this, ye know, if ye take note—that no fornicator, or impure or greedy person, who is an idolater, hath any inheritance in the kingdom of the Christ and God. ⁶Let no one be deceiving you with empty words; for, because of these things, is coming the anger of God upon the sons of obstinacy: ⁷Do not, then, become co-partners with them; ⁸For ye were, at one time, darkness, but, now, are ye light in the Lord,—as children of light, be walking, ⁹For, the fruit of the light, is in all goodness, and righteousness, and truth,—¹⁰Putting to the test what is well-pleasing unto the Lord; ¹¹And be not joining in fellowship in the unfruitful works of darkness, but, rather, be even administering reproof; ¹²For, of the secret things which are brought to pass by them, it is, shameful, even to speak! ¹³All things, however, when reproved by the light, become manifest, for, all that of itself maketh manifest, is, light; ¹⁴Wherefore it saith—Up! thou sleeper, and arise from among the dead, and the Christ will shine upon thee. ¹⁵Be taking heed, therefore, exactly how ye are walking,—not as unwise, but as wise,—¹⁶Buying out for yourselves the opportunity, because, the days, are evil; ¹⁷For this cause, do not become foolish, but have discernment as to what is the will of the Lord; ¹⁸And be not getting drunk with wine, in which is dissoluteness, but be getting filled in Spirit;—¹⁹Speaking to yourselves, with psalms and hymns and spiritual songs;

singing, and striking the strings, with your heart unto the Lord; ²⁰Giving thanks, always, for all things, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, unto your God and Father; ²¹Submitting yourselves one to another in reverence of Christ,—²²Ye wives, unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord, ²³Because, a husband, is the head of his wife, as, the Christ also, is the head of the assembly, he, being the saviour of the body,—²⁴Nevertheless, as, the assembly, submitteth herself unto the Christ, so, the wives, unto their husbands, in everything: ²⁵Ye husbands, be loving your wives, even as, the Christ also, loved the assembly, and delivered, himself, up in her behalf, ²⁶That, her, he might sanctify, having purified her with the bath of water, in declaration, ²⁷That, he, might present, unto himself, the assembly, all glorious, not having spot or wrinkle or any of such things, but that she should be holy and blameless; ²⁸So, ought the husbands also to be loving their own wives, as their own bodies,—he that loveth his own wife, loveth himself, ²⁹No one, in fact, ever yet hated, his own flesh, but nourisheth and cherisheth it,—even as, the Christ, the assembly, ³⁰Because, members, are we of his body;—³¹For this cause, will a man leave his father and his mother, and will cleave unto his wife, and, they two, shall become, one flesh. ³²This sacred secret, is, great,—I, however, am speaking as to Christ and \u01 as to\u00 the assembly;—³³Nevertheless, ye also, do ye, individually, each man be so loving, his own wife, as himself, and, the wife, see that she reverence her husband.

6 Ye children, be obedient unto your parents \u01 in the Lord\u00, for this is right: ²Honour thy father and thy mother,—which indeed is the first commandment with promise, ³That it may come to be, well with thee, and thou shalt be long-lived upon the land. ⁴And ye fathers, be not provoking your children to anger, but be nourishing them up in the discipline and admonition of the Lord. ⁵Ye servants, be obedient unto them who, after the flesh, are your masters, with fear and trembling, in singleness of your heart, as unto the Christ; ⁶Not by way of eye-service as man-pleasers, but as servants of Christ, doing the will of God, from the soul, ⁷with good will, rendering service—as unto the Lord, and not unto men; ⁸Knowing that, each one, whatsoever he may do that is good, the same, shall he receive back from the Lord, whether bond or free. ⁹And ye masters, the same things, be doing towards them, forbearing your threat—knowing that, both their and your Master, is in the heavens, and, respect of persons, there is none, with him. ¹⁰For the rest, be empowering yourselves in the Lord, and in the grasp of his might: ¹¹Put on the complete armour of God, with a view to your having power to stand against the strategies of the adversary; ¹²Because our struggle is not against blood and flesh, but, against the principalities, against the authorities, against the world-holders, of this darkness, against the spiritual forces of wickedness in the heavenlies. ¹³For this cause, take up the complete armour of God, in order that ye may receive power to withstand in the evil day, and, all things, having accomplished, to stand! ¹⁴Stand therefore,—having girded your loins with truth, and put on the breastplate of righteousness, ¹⁵And shod your feet with the readiness of the glad-message of peace; ¹⁶With all, having taken up the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall have power, all the ignited darts of the wicked one, to quench; ¹⁷And, the helmet of salvation, welcome ye, and the sword of the spirit, which is what God hath spoken, ¹⁸With all prayer and supplication, praying in every season, in spirit, and, thereunto, watching, with all perseverance and supplication, for all the saints,— ¹⁹And on behalf of me;—that, unto me, may be given discourse in the opening of my mouth, with freedom of utterance, to make known the sacred secret \u011 of the glad-message\u010 ²⁰In behalf of which I am conducting an embassy in chains, that, therein, I may use freedom of utterance as it is needful for me to speak. ²¹In order, however, that, ye also, may know the things which relate to me—what I am accomplishing,—all things, shall Tychicus make known unto you, he the beloved brother and faithful minister in the Lord, ²²Whom I have sent unto you for this very purpose, that ye may get to know the things concerning us, and he may encourage your hearts. ²³Peace unto the brethren, and love with faith,—from God our Father, and Lord Jesus Christ. ²⁴Favour be with all them that love our Lord Jesus Christ with incorruptness.

Philippians

¹Paul and Timothy, servants of Jesus Christ,—unto all the saints in Christ Jesus who are in Philippi, with overseers and ministers:— ²Favour unto you, and peace, from God our Father and Lord Jesus Christ. ³I am giving thanks unto my God, on occasion of all my remembrance of you, ⁴At all times, in every supplication of mine, in behalf of you all, with joy, my supplication, making,— ⁵On account of your contribution unto the glad-message, from the first day until the present: ⁶Being persuaded of this very thing—that, he who hath begun in you a good work, will perfect it, until the day of Jesus Christ; ⁷According as it is right in me to have this regard in behalf of you all,— because ye have had me in your hearts, both in my bonds and in the defence and confirmation of the glad-message, all of you being, joint partakers of my favour. ⁸For God is, my witness, how I long for you all in the tender affections of Christ Jesus. ⁹And, this, I pray—that, your love, may be, yet more and more, pre-eminent in personal knowledge and all perception, ¹⁰To the end ye may be putting to the test the things that differ, in order that ye may be incorrupt and may give no occasion of stumbling, unto the day of Christ, ¹¹Filled with that fruit of righteousness which is through Jesus Christ unto the glory and praise of God. ¹²Howbeit, I am minded, brethren, that ye should be, getting to know, that, the things which relate unto myself, rather, unto an advancement of the glad-message, have fallen out, ¹³So that, my bonds, have become manifest in Christ, in the whole palace, and unto all the rest,— ¹⁴And so that, the most of the brethren in the Lord, assured by my bonds, are becoming more abundantly bold to be fearlessly speaking the word of God:— ¹⁵Some, indeed, by reason of envy and strife—some, however, by reason of good will—are proclaiming, the Christ: ¹⁶These, indeed, out of love, knowing that, for the defence of the glad-message, I am set; ¹⁷But, those, out of faction, are declaring, the Christ, not purely—supposing to rouse up, tribulation, with my bonds. ¹⁸What then? That, in any way, whether in pretext, or in truth, Christ, is declared, and, in this, I rejoice—yea, and will rejoice! ¹⁹For I know that, this, shall turn unto me for salvation—through your supplication, and the supply of the Spirit of Jesus Christ,— ²⁰According to my eager outlook and hope, that, in nothing, shall I be put to shame, but, with all freedom of speech, as always, now also, shall Christ be magnified in my body, whether through means of life, or of death. ²¹For, unto me—living, is Christ, and, dying, gain. ²²But, if living in flesh, is Christ, this, unto me, is a fruit of work,—and, what I shall choose, I make not known: ²³I am held in constraint, however, by reason of the two,—having, the coveting, to be released, and to be with, Christ, for it were far better! ²⁴But, to abide still in the flesh, is more needful for your sake; ²⁵And, of, this, being assured, know that I shall abide,—yea abide with you all, for your advancement, and the joy of your faith; ²⁶In order that, your matter of boasting, may be more abundant in Christ Jesus, regarding me, through my own presence again with you. ²⁷Only, in a manner worthy of the glad-message of the Christ, be using your citizenship; in order that—whether coming and seeing you, or being absent, I may hear of the things which concern you—that ye are standing fast in one spirit, with one soul, joining for the combat along with the faith of the glad-message; ²⁸And not being affrighted in anything by the opposers,—the which, is, unto them, a token of destruction, although of your salvation, and this from God; ²⁹Because, unto you, hath it been given as a favour, in behalf of Christ, not only, on him, to believe, but also, in his behalf, to suffer:— ³⁰Having, the same contest, which ye have seen in me, and now hear to be in me.

²If there be, therefore, any encouragement in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of spirit, if any tender affections and compassions, ²Fill ye up my joy—that, the same thing, ye esteem, the same love, possessing, joined in soul, the one thing, esteeming,— ³Nothing by way of faction, nothing by way of vain-glory,—but, in lowliness of mind, accounting, one another, superior to yourselves,— ⁴Not, to your own things, severally looking, but, to the things of others, severally:— ⁵The same thing, esteem, in yourselves, which also, in Christ Jesus, ye esteem,— ⁶Who, in form of God, subsisting, not, a thing to be seized, accounted the being equal with God, ⁷But, himself, emptied, taking, a servant's form, coming to be, in men's likeness; ⁸And, in fashion, being found, as a man, humbled himself, becoming obedient as far as death, yea, death upon a cross. ⁹Wherefore also, God, uplifted him far on high, and favoured him with the name which is above every name,—¹⁰In order that, in the name of Jesus, every knee might bow—of beings in heaven, and on earth, and underground,—¹¹And, every tongue, might openly confess—that Jesus Christ is, Lord, unto the glory of God the Father. ¹²So, then, my beloved—even as ye have always obeyed, not \u01 as\u00 in my presence only, but, now, much more, in my absence, with fear and trembling, your own salvation, be working out; ¹³For it is, God, who energiseth within you, both the desiring and the energising, in behalf of his good pleasure. ¹⁴All things, be doing, apart from murmurings and disputings; ¹⁵In order that ye may become faultless and inviolate, children of God, blameless amidst a crooked and perverted generation, amongst whom ye appear as luminaries in the world, ¹⁶A word of light, holding forth,—as a matter of boasting unto me, for the day of Christ,—that, not in vain, I ran, nor, in vain, I toiled:—¹⁷Nay! if I am even to be poured out as a drink-offering, upon the sacrifice and public ministry of your faith, I rejoice, yea rejoice together with you all,—¹⁸For the same cause, moreover, do, ye also, rejoice, yea rejoice together with me. ¹⁹I am hoping, however, in the Lord Jesus—Timothy, shortly, to send unto you, in order that, I also, may be of cheerful soul, when I have ascertained the things that concern you. ²⁰For, no one, have I, of equal soul, who, genuinely, as to the things that concern you, will be anxious; ²¹For, they all, their own things, do seek, not the things of Christ Jesus; ²²But, of the proof of him, be taking note,—that, as child, with father, with me, hath he done service for the glad-message; ²³Him, indeed, therefore, am I hoping to send—as soon as I can look off from the things that concern myself,—forthwith. ²⁴I am assured, however, in the Lord,—that I, myself, shall shortly come. ²⁵Needful, nevertheless have I accounted it—Epaphroditus, my brother and fellow worker and fellow soldier, but your apostle and public minister to my need, to send unto you; ²⁶Since he hath been longing to see, you all, and hath been in great distress, because ye had heard he was sick;—²⁷And, in fact, he was sick, nigh unto death; but, God, had mercy on him,—and, not on him only, but, on me also, lest, sorrow upon sorrow, I should have. ²⁸The more promptly, therefore, have I sent him, that, seeing him again, ye may rejoice, and, I, the less sorrowful, may be. ²⁹Be giving him welcome, therefore, in the Lord, with all joy; and, such as he, in honour, be holding,—³⁰Because, for the sake of the work of the Lord, unto death, he drew nigh, running hazard with his life, that he might fill up your lack of the public service, towards me.

3For the rest, my brethren—rejoice in the Lord. To be writing, the same things, unto you, to me, is not irksome, while, for you, is safe:—²Beware of the dogs, beware of mischievous workers, beware of the mutilation; ³For, we, are the circumcision, who in the Spirit of God, are doing divine service, and are boasting in Christ Jesus, and, not in flesh, having confidence,—⁴Although, indeed, I, might have confidence even in flesh. If any other thinketh to have confidence in flesh, I, more:—⁵Circumcised, the eighth day, of the race of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew of Hebrews,—regarding law, a Pharisee, ⁶Regarding zeal, persecuting the assembly, regarding the righteousness that is in law, having become blameless. ⁷But, whatever things, unto me, were gain, the same, have I accounted, for the Christ's sake, loss; ⁸Yea, doubtless! and I account all things to be, loss, because of the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord, for the sake of whom, the loss, of all things, have I suffered, and do account them refuse, in order that, Christ, I may win, ⁹And be found in him—not having a righteousness of my own, that which is by law, but that which is through faith in Christ, the righteousness which is, of God, upon my faith,—¹⁰To get to know him, and the power of his resurrection and fellowship of his sufferings, becoming conformed unto his death,—¹¹If by any means I may advance to the earlier resurrection, which is from among the dead: ¹²Not that I have, already, received, or have, already, reached perfection, but I am pressing on—if I may even lay hold of that for which I have also been laid hold of by Christ \u01 Jesus\u00 :—¹³Brethren! I, as to myself, reckon that I have, not yet, laid hold; one thing, however,—the things behind, forgetting, and, unto the things before, eagerly reaching out, ¹⁴With the goal in view, I press on for the prize of the upward calling of God in Christ Jesus. ¹⁵As many, therefore, as are full-grown, let, this, be our resolve; and, if, somewhat differently, ye are resolved, this, also, shall, God, unto you reveal. ¹⁶Nevertheless, whereunto we have advanced, in the same rank, stepping along. ¹⁷Imitators together of me, become ye, brethren, and keep an eye on them who, thus, are walking,—even as ye have, us, for, an ensample. ¹⁸For, many, are walking—of whom I have often been telling you, and, now, even weeping, am telling,—the enemies of the cross of the Christ; ¹⁹Whose, end, is destruction, whose, God, is the belly, and whose, glory, is in their shame, who, upon the earthly things, are resolved. ²⁰For, our citizenship, in the heavens, hath its rise; wherefore, a Saviour also, do we ardently await,—The Lord Jesus Christ,—²¹Who will transfigure our humbled body, into conformity with his glorified body, according to the energy wherewith he is able even to subdue, unto himself, all things.

4So then, my brethren, beloved and longed for, my joy and crown,—thus, stand fast in the Lord, beloved. ²Euodia, I exhort, and, Syntche, I exhort,—on the same thing, to be resolved in the Lord:—³Yea! I request thee also, true yokefellow, be thou helping together with these women,—who, indeed, in the joyful message, have maintained the combat with me, along with Clement also, and the rest of my fellow-workers, whose names, are in the book of life. ⁴Rejoice in the Lord always: again, I will say—rejoice! ⁵Let, your considerateness, be known unto all men. The Lord, is near:— ⁶For nothing, be anxious, but, in everything, by your prayer and supplication with thanksgiving, let, your petitions, be made known unto God; ⁷And, the peace of God, which riseth above every mind, shall guard your hearts and your thoughts, in Christ Jesus. ⁸For the rest, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are dignified, whatsoever things are righteous, whatsoever things are chaste, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report,—if there be any virtue, and if any praise, the same, be taking into account; ⁹The things which ye have both learned, and accepted, and heard, and seen in me, the same, practise;—and, the God of peace, shall be with you. ¹⁰Howbeit I have been made to rejoice in the Lord greatly—that, now, at length, ye have flourished in your care for me,—although, indeed, ye were caring, but lacked opportunity. ¹¹Not that, as to coming short, I am speaking, for, I, have learned, in whatsoever circumstances I am, to be, independent: ¹²I know what it is even to be kept low, and I know what it is to have more than enough,—in every way, and in all things, have I been let into the secret—both to be well fed, and to be hungering, both to have more than enough, and to be coming short: ¹³I have might, for all things, in him that empowereth me. ¹⁴Nevertheless, nobly, have ye done, in taking fellowship with me in my tribulation. ¹⁵Ye know, moreover, even ye, Philippians,—that, in the beginning of the glad-message, when I went forth from Macedonia, not, so much as one assembly, with me had fellowship—in the matter of giving and receiving—save, ye alone,— ¹⁶That, even in Thessalonica, both once and again, unto my need, ye sent:— ¹⁷Not that I seek after the gift, but I seek after the fruit that is to abound unto your account. ¹⁸But I have all things in full, and have more than enough, I am filled, having welcomed from Epaphroditus the things that came from you,—a fragrance of sweet smell, an acceptable sacrifice, well pleasing unto God. ¹⁹And, my God, will fill up your every need, according to his riches in glory in Christ Jesus. ²⁰Now, unto our God and Father, be the glory—unto the ages of ages. Amen! ²¹Salute ye every saint in Christ Jesus. The brethren who are with me, salute you. ²²All the saints salute you, but especially they who are of Caesar's household. ²³The favour of our Lord Jesus Christ, be with your spirit.

Colossians

¹Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus through the will of God, and Timothy my brother,—²Unto the holy and faithful brethren in Christ that are, in Colosse, favour unto you, and peace, from our God and Father. ³We are giving thanks unto God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, always, for you, offering prayer,—⁴Having heard of your faith in Christ Jesus and of the love which ye have unto all the saints,—⁵Because of the hope that is lying by for you in the heavens, of which ye heard before, in the word of the truth of the glad-message, ⁶When it presented itself unto you; even as, in all the world also, it is bearing fruit and growing, even as also among you, from the day when ye heard, and came personally to know the favour of God in truth, ⁷Even as ye learned it from Epaphras, our beloved fellow-servant, who is faithful in our behalf, as a minister of the Christ, ⁸Who also hath made evident unto us your love in spirit. ⁹For this cause, we also, from the day when we heard of you, cease not, in your behalf, praying and asking—that ye may be filled unto the personal knowledge of his will, in all spiritual wisdom and discernment, ¹⁰So as to walk worthily of the Lord, unto all pleasing, in every good work, bearing fruit, and growing in the personal knowledge of God, ¹¹With all power, being empowered, according to the grasp of his glory, unto all endurance and long-suffering with joy, ¹²Giving thanks unto the Father that hath made you sufficient for your share in the inheritance of the saints in the light, ¹³Who hath rescued us out of the authority of the darkness, and translated us into the kingdom of the Son of his love; ¹⁴In whom, we have our redemption—the remission of our sins,—¹⁵Who, is an image of the unseen God, Firstborn of all creation,—¹⁶Because, in him, were created all things in the heavens and upon the earth, the things seen and the things unseen, whether thrones or lordships or principalities or authorities,—they all, through him and for him, have been created, ¹⁷And, he, is before all, and, they all, in him, hold together; ¹⁸And, he, is the head of the body, the assembly, Who is the beginning, Firstborn from among the dead, in order that, he, might become, in all things, himself, pre-eminent;—¹⁹Because, in him, was all the fullness well pleased to dwell, ²⁰And, through him, fully to reconcile all things unto him, making peace through the blood of his cross,—²¹through him—whether the things upon the earth or the things in the heavens; ²¹And, you, who at one time were estranged and enemies in your mind in your wicked works, yet, now, hath he fully reconciled, ²²In his body of flesh, through means of his death, to present you holy and blameless and unaccusable before him,—²³If, at least, ye are abiding still in the faith, founded and firm, and not to be moved away from the hope of the glad-message which ye have heard, which hath been proclaimed in all creation which is under heaven,—of which, I Paul, have become minister. ²⁴Now, am I rejoicing in the sufferings on your behalf, and am filling up the things that lack of the tribulations of the Christ, in my flesh, in behalf of his body, which is the assembly, ²⁵Of which, I, have become minister—according to the administration of God which hath been given unto me to you-ward, to fill up the word of God, ²⁶The sacred secret which had been hidden away from the ages and from the generations, but, now, hath been made manifest unto his saints—²⁷Unto whom God hath been pleased to make known what is the glorious wealth of this sacred secret among the nations, which is Christ in you, the hope of the glory,—²⁸Whom we are declaring, admonishing every man, and teaching every man, in all wisdom, in order that we may present every man complete in Christ; ²⁹Unto which I am even toiling, contending according to his energy which is energising itself in me with power.

²For I desire you to know, how great a contest I am having—in behalf of you, and of those in Laodicea, and as many as have not seen my face in the flesh; ²In order that their hearts may be encouraged, being knit together in love, even unto all the riches of the full assurance of their understanding, unto a personal knowledge of the sacred secret of God,—Christ: ³In whom are all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge hidden away. ⁴This I say, in order that, no one, may be reasoning, you, aside with plausible discourse; ⁵For, though, indeed, in the flesh, I am absent, yet, in the spirit, with you, I am—rejoicing, and beholding your order and the solid firmness of your Christ-ward faith. ⁶As, therefore, ye have accepted the Anointed Jesus as your Lord, in him, be walking,—⁷Rooted, and being built up, in him, and making yourselves sure in your faith, even as ye have been taught,—surpassing therein with thanksgiving. ⁸Be taking heed, lest there shall be anyone leading, you, off as a spoil, through means of their philosophy, and an empty deceit,—according to the instruction of men, according to the first principles of the world,—and not according to Christ: ⁹Because, in him, dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead, bodily, ¹⁰And ye are, in him, filled full,—Who, is the head of all principality and authority, ¹¹In whom, ye have also been circumcised with a circumcision not done by hand, in the despoiling of the body of flesh, in the circumcision of the Christ,—¹²Having been buried together with him in your immersion, wherein also ye have been raised together, through your faith in the energising of God—Who raised him from among the dead. ¹³And, as for you—who were, dead, by your offences and by the uncircumcision of your flesh, he hath brought you to life together with him,—having in favour forgiven us all our offences, ¹⁴Having blotted out the handwriting against us by the decrees, which was hostile to us,—and hath taken away, the same, out of the midst, nailing it up to the cross: ¹⁵Spoiling the principalities and the authorities, he made of them an open example, celebrating a triumph over them thereby. ¹⁶Let no one, therefore, be judging, you,—in eating and in drinking, or in respect of feast, or new moon, or sabbath,—¹⁷Which are a shadow of the things to come, whereas, the body, is of the Christ. ¹⁸Let, no one, against you, be arbitrating, however wishful,—in respect of lowliness of mind, and of a religious observance of the messengers: upon what things he hath seen, taking his stand, in vain, puffed up by his carnal mind,—¹⁹And not holding fast the head: from which, all the body, through means of its joints and uniting bands, receiving supply, and connecting itself together, groweth with the growth of God. ²⁰If ye have died, together with Christ, from the first principles of the world, why, as though alive in the world, are ye submitting to decrees,—²¹Do not handle, nor taste, nor touch;—²²Which things are all for decay in the using up;—according to the commandments and teachings of men? ²³The which things, indeed, though they have, an appearance, of wisdom, in self-devised religious observance, and lowliness of mind, \ul1 and\ul0 ill-treatment of body, are, in no honourable way, unto a satisfying of the flesh.

³If, therefore, ye have been raised together with the Christ, the things on high, be seeking, where, the Christ, is—on the right hand of God, sitting; ²The things on high, hold in esteem, not the things upon the earth: ³For ye have died, and, your life, is hid, together with the Christ, in God,—⁴As soon as, the Christ, shall be made manifest—our life, then, ye also, together with him, shall be made manifest in glory; ⁵Make dead, therefore, your members that are on the earth—as regardeth fornication, impurity, passion, base coveting, and greed, the which, is idolatry,—

⁶On account of which things cometh the anger of God,—⁷Wherein, ye also, walked, at one time, when ye were living in these things; ⁸But, now, do, ye also, put them all away,—anger, wrath, baseness, defamation, shameful talk out of your mouth: ⁹Be not guilty of falsehood one to another: having stript off the old man, together with his practices, ¹⁰And having put on the new—who is being moulded afresh unto personal knowledge, after the image of him that hath created him,—¹¹Wherein there cannot be Greek and Jew, circumcision and uncircumcision, foreigner, Scythian, bond, free,—but, all things and in all, Christ: ¹²Put on, therefore, as men chosen of God, holy and beloved, tender affections of compassion, graciousness, lowliness of mind, meekness, long-suffering, ¹³Bearing one with another, and in favour forgiving one another—if any, against any, have a complaint,—according as, the Lord, in favour forgave you, so also ye; ¹⁴And, over all these things, love, which is a uniting-bond of completeness; ¹⁵And let, the peace of Christ, act as umpire in your hearts, unto which ye have been called in \ul1 one\ul0 body, and be thankful: ¹⁶Let, the word of the Christ, dwell within you richly,—in all wisdom, teaching and admonishing one another, with psalms, hymns, spiritual songs, with gratitude, raising song with your hearts unto God: ¹⁷And whatsoever ye may be doing, in word, or in work, all things, do in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks unto the Divine Father through him:—¹⁸Ye wives! be submitting yourselves unto your husbands, as is becoming in the Lord; ¹⁹Ye husbands! be loving your wives, and be not embittered against them; ²⁰Ye children! be obedient unto your parents in all things, for, this, is, well pleasing, in the Lord; ²¹Ye fathers! be not irritating your children, lest they be disheartened; ²²Ye servants! be obedient, in all things, unto them who, according to the flesh, are your masters,—not with eye-service, as man-pleasers, but with singleness of heart, revering the Lord,—²³Whatsoever ye may be doing, from the soul, be working at it, as unto the Lord, and not unto men,—²⁴Knowing that, from the Lord, ye shall duly receive the recompense of the inheritance,—unto the Lord Christ, are ye in service; ²⁵For, he that acteth unrighteously, shall get back what he had unrighteously done, and there is no respect of persons;

⁴Ye masters! that which is just and equitable, unto your servants, be rendering, knowing that, ye also, have a Master in heaven. ²Unto prayer, be devoting yourselves, watching therein with thanksgiving: ³Praying, at the same time, for us also,—that, God, would open unto us a door for the word, so that we may speak the sacred secret of the Christ—for the sake of which also I am in bonds, ⁴That I may make it manifest as behoveth me to speak. ⁵In wisdom, be walking towards them who are without,—the opportunity, buying out for yourselves, ⁶Your discourse being always with benefit, with salt, seasoned,—that ye may know how it behoveth you, unto each one, to be making answer. ⁷All the things which relate unto myself, shall Tychicus make known unto you—the beloved brother and faithful minister and fellow-servant in the Lord, ⁸Whom I have sent unto you, to this very end,—that ye may get to know the things which concern us, and he may encourage you hearts: ⁹Together with Onesimus, the faithful and beloved brother, who is from among you:—all things, unto you, will they make known, that are taking place here. ¹⁰Aristarchus, my fellow-captive, saluteth you; and Mark, the first cousin of Barnabas,—concerning whom ye have received commands—if he come unto you, give him welcome; ¹¹And Jesus, he that is called Justus,—they being of the circumcision; these only, are my fellow-workers unto the kingdom of God, men who have been, unto me, a comfort. ¹²Epaphras who is from among you, a servant of Christ Jesus, saluteth you,—at all times, contending in your behalf in his prayers, that ye may be caused to stand complete and fully assured in everything willed by God; ¹³For I bear him witness, that he hath great toil in behalf of you, and them in Laodicea, and them in Hierapolis. ¹⁴Luke, the beloved physician, and Demas, salute you. ¹⁵Salute ye the brethren, in Laodicea, also Nymphas, and the assembly, which meeteth at her house. ¹⁶And, as soon as the epistle hath been read amongst you, cause that, in the assembly of Laodiceans also, it be read; and, that from Laodicea, that, ye also, read. ¹⁷And say to Archippus: be taking heed unto the ministry which thou hast accepted in the Lord,—that, the same, thou fulfil. ¹⁸The salutation of me Paul, with my own hand:—keep in mind my bonds. Favour be with you!

I Thessalonians

¹Paul and Silvanus and Timothy—unto the assembly of Thessalonians in God our Father and Lord Jesus Christ,—favour unto you, and peace! ²We are giving thanks unto God continually, concerning you all, making, mention, in our prayers, ³Unceasingly, remembering—your work of faith and labour of love and endurance of hope, of our Lord Jesus Christ, before our God and Father: ⁴Knowing, brethren beloved by God, your election,—⁵How that, our glad-message, came not unto you, in word only, but also in power, and in Holy Spirit, and in much assurance,—even as ye know what manner of men we became unto you, for your sake; ⁶And, ye, became, imitators of us, and of the Lord, giving welcome unto the word, in much tribulation, with joy of Holy Spirit; ⁷So that ye became an ensample unto all who were coming to the faith, in Macedonia and in Achaia: ⁸From you, in fact, hath sounded forth the word of the Lord—not only in Macedonia and in Achaia, but, in every place, your faith which is toward God, hath gone forth, so that, no need, have we to be saying anything; ⁹For, they themselves, concerning us, do tell—what manner of entrance we had unto you, and how ye turned unto God from the idols—to be serving a living and true God, ¹⁰And awaiting his Son out of the heavens—whom he raised from among the dead,—Jesus: Who is to rescue us out of the anger that is coming.

²For, yourselves, know, brethren, our entrance which was unto you—that it hath not proved void; ²But, though we had previously suffered, and been insulted, even as ye know, in Philippi, we waxed bold in our God to speak unto you the glad-message of God with much conflict. ³For, our exhortation, is not of error, nor of uncleanness, nor in guile, ⁴But, even as we have been approved by God, to be entrusted with the glad-message, so, we speak,—not as, unto men, giving pleasure, but unto God—who proveth our hearts. ⁵For neither at any time were we found, using words of flattery,—even as ye know, nor a pretext for greed—God, is witness! ⁶Nor, of men, seeking glory—either from you, or from others, though we could have assumed, dignity, as Apostles of Christ; ⁷But we became gentle in your midst,—as though, a nursing mother, had been cherishing her own children: ⁸Thus, yearning after you, we could have been well-pleased to impart unto you—not only the glad-message of God, but, our own lives also,—because, very dear to us, had ye become. ⁹For ye remember, brethren, our toil and hardship: night and day, working, so as not to be a burden unto any of you, we proclaimed unto you the glad-message of God, ¹⁰Ye, are witnesses—God also, how kindly and righteously and blamelessly, unto you who were believing, we were found to behave; ¹¹Even as ye know how, unto each one of you, we were as a father unto his own children, consoling you, and soothing, and calling o witness,—¹²To the end ye might be walking in a manner worthy of God, who is calling you unto his own kingdom and glory, ¹³And, for this cause, we, are also giving thanks unto God unceasingly, that, when ye received a spoken word from us—which was God's, ye welcomed it—not as a human word, but, even as it truly is, a divine word,—which is also inwardly working itself in you who believe. ¹⁴For, ye, became, imitators, brethren, of the assemblies of God which are in Judaea, in Christ Jesus, in that, the same things, ye, also suffered by your own fellow-countrymen, even as, they, also by the Jews: ¹⁵Who have both slain the, Lord, Jesus—and the prophets, and, us, have persecuted, and, unto God, are displeasing, and, unto all men, are contrary,—¹⁶Hindering us from speaking, unto the nations, that they might be saved, to the filling up of their own sins, continually; but anger hath overtaken them at length. ¹⁷Now, we, brethren, having been bereaved away from you, for the season of an hour,—in presence, not in heart, gave more abundant diligence, your face, to behold, with much longing; ¹⁸Wherefore, we desired to come unto you—even, I, Paul, both once and again,—and, Satan, thwarted us. ¹⁹For what shall be our hope, or joy, or crown of boasting? Shall not even, ye, before our Lord Jesus, in his Presence? ²⁰Ye, in fact, are our glory and joy.

³Wherefore, no longer concealing our anxiety, we were well-pleased to be left in Athens, alone, ²And sent Timothy—our brother, and God's minister in the glad-message of the Christ—that he might confirm and console you over your faith, ³That, no one, might be shrinking back in these tribulations. For ye, yourselves, know, that, here—unto, are we appointed; ⁴For, even when we were with you, we told you beforehand—we are destined to suffer tribulation! even as it also came to pass, and ye know. ⁵For this cause, I also, no longer concealing my anxiety, sent, that I might get to know your faith, lest by any means he that tempteth, should have tempted you, and, in vain, should have been our toil. ⁶But, when, just now, Timothy came unto us, from you, and brought us good tidings of your faith and love,—and that ye have good remembrance of us, continually, longing to see, us,—even as, we also, to see you, ⁷For this cause, were we consoled, brethren, over you, in all our necessity and tribulation, through your faith; ⁸Because, now, we live,—if only, ye, stand fast in the Lord. ⁹For what thanksgiving can we render back, unto God, concerning you, on occasion of all the joy wherewith we rejoice, for your sakes, before our God?—¹⁰Night and day, making very abundant entreaties, that we may see your face, and fit in the things which are lacking in your faith? ¹¹Now may, our God and Father himself and our Lord Jesus, make straight our way unto you: ¹²And, you, may the Lord cause to abound and excel in your love one toward another, and toward all,—even as, we, do toward you: ¹³To the end he may confirm your hearts, faultless in holiness, before our God and Father, in the Presence of our Lord Jesus with all his saints.

⁴For the rest, brethren, we request and exhort you, in our Lord Jesus, \u01 that\u00 , even as ye received from us, how ye must needs walk and please God,—even as ye also do walk, that ye would abound still more. ²For ye know what charges we gave you, through the Lord Jesus. ³For, this, is a thing willed of God, your sanctification,—that ye should abstain from unchastity, ⁴That ye should know, each one of you, how, of his own vessel, to possess himself in sanctification and honour: ⁵Not with a passion of coveting,—just as even the nations who know not God,—⁶Not over-reaching and defrauding, in the matter, his brother; because, an avenger, is the Lord, concerning all these things,—even as we before told you, and solemnly called you to witness. ⁷For God did not call us, with a permission of impurity, but, in sanctification. ⁸Therefore, indeed, he that disregardeth—it is, not a man, he disregardeth, but God,—Who giveth his Holy Spirit unto you. ⁹But, concerning brotherly love—no need, have ye, that we be writing unto you; for, ye yourselves, are, God-taught, to the loving of one another;—¹⁰And, in fact, ye are doing it unto all the brethren \u01 who are\u00 in the whole of Macedonia; but we exhort you, brethren, to abound still more, ¹¹And to be ambitious to be quiet, and to be attending to your own affairs, and to be working with your hands,—even as, unto you, we gave charge—¹²That ye should walk reputably toward those without, and, of no one, have, need. ¹³But we do not wish you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them who are falling asleep,—lest ye be sorrowing, even as the rest also, who are without hope;

¹⁴For, if we believe that, Jesus, died, and rose again, so, also will, God, bring forth with him, them who have fallen asleep through Jesus; ¹⁵For, this, unto you, do we say, by a word of the Lord,—that, we, the living who are left unto the Presence of the Lord, shall in nowise get before them who have fallen asleep; ¹⁶Because, the Lord himself, with a word of command, with a chief-messenger's voice, and with a trumpet of God, shall descend from heaven,—and, the dead in Christ, shall rise, first, ¹⁷After that, we, the living who are left, together with them, shall be caught away, in clouds, to meet the Lord in the air:—and, thus, evermore, with the Lord, shall we be! ¹⁸So then, be consoling one another with these words.

⁵But, concerning the times and the seasons, brethren,—ye have, no need, that, unto you, anything be written; ²For, ye yourselves, perfectly well know—that, the day of the Lord, as a thief in the night, so, cometh; ³As soon as they begin to say—Peace! and safety! then, suddenly, upon them, cometh destruction,—just as the birth-throe unto her that is with child,—and in nowise shall they escape. ⁴But, ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that, the day, upon you, as upon thieves, should lay hold; ⁵For, all ye, are, sons of light, and sons of day,—we are not of night, nor of darkness: ⁶Hence, then, let us not be sleeping, as the rest, but let us watch and be sober:—⁷For, they that sleep, by night, do sleep, and, they that drink, by night, do drink:—⁸But, we, being of the day, let us be sober, putting on a breastplate of faith and love, and, for helmet, the hope of salvation. ⁹Because God did not appoint us unto anger, but unto acquiring salvation through our Lord Jesus \u01 Christ\u00 :—¹⁰Who died for us, in order that, whether we be watching or sleeping, together with him, we should live. ¹¹Wherefore be consoling one another, and building up, each the other,—even as ye are also doing. ¹²Now we request you, brethren,—to know them who are toiling among you, and presiding over you, in the Lord, and admonishing you; ¹³And to hold them in very high esteem, in love, their work's sake. Be at peace among yourselves, ¹⁴But we exhort you, brethren—admonish the disorderly, soothe them of little soul, help the weak, be longsuffering towards all: ¹⁵See that none, evil for evil, unto any, do render: but, evermore, what is good, be pursuing, towards one another, and towards all: ¹⁶Evermore, rejoice, ¹⁷Unceasingly, pray, ¹⁸In everything, give thanks,—for, this, is a thing willed of God, in Christ Jesus, towards you: ¹⁹The Spirit, do not quench, ²⁰Prophecysings, do not despise, ²¹\u01 But\u00 , all things, put to the proof—what is comely, hold ye fast: ²²From every form of wickedness, abstain. ²³But, the God of peace himself, hallow you completely, and, entire, might your spirit, and soul, and body,—so as to be unblameable in the Presence of our Lord Jesus Christ,—be preserved! ²⁴Faithful, is he that is calling you,—who, also will perform. ²⁵Brethren! be praying for us \u01 also\u00 .

²⁶Salute all the brethren with a holy kiss. ²⁷I adjure you, by the Lord, that the letter be read unto all the brethren!
²⁸The favour of our Lord Jesus Christ, be with you.

II Thessalonians

¹Paul and Silvanus and Timothy—unto the assembly of Thessalonians, in God our Father and Lord Jesus Christ,—²Favour unto you, and peace, from God our Father and Lord Jesus Christ. ³We are bound, to be giving thanks, unto God, continually, concerning you, brethren, even as it is, meet; because your faith groweth exceedingly, and the love of each one of you all one to another aboundeth, ⁴So that, we ourselves, in you, are boasting, in the assemblies of God, over your endurance and faith in all your persecutions and tribulations which ye are sustaining:—⁵A proof of the righteous judgment of God, to the end ye may be counted worthy of the kingdom of God, in behalf of which ye are also suffering:—⁶If, at least, it is a, righteous thing with God, to recompense, affliction, unto them that afflict you, ⁷And, unto you that are afflicted, release, with us,—by the revealing of the Lord Jesus from heaven, with his messengers of power, ⁸In a fiery flame; holding forth vengeance—against them that refuse to know God, and them who decline to hearken unto the glad-message of our Lord Jesus, ⁹Who, indeed, a penalty, shall pay—age-abiding destruction from the face of the Lord and from the glory of his might—¹⁰Whensoever he shall come, to be made all-glorious in his saints, and to be marvelled at in all who believed,—because our witness unto you was believed,—in that day. ¹¹Unto which end, we are also praying continually for you, that our God may count, you, worthy of your calling, and fulfil every good-pleasure of goodness and work of faith, with power,—¹²That the name of our Lord Jesus may be made all-glorious in you, and, ye, in him, according o the favour of our God and Lord Jesus Christ.

²But we request you, brethren,—in behalf of the Presence of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our gathering together unto him, ²That ye be not quickly tossed from your mind, nor be put in alarm—either by spirit, or by discourse, or by letter as by us, as that the day of the Lord, hath set in: ³That no one may cheat, you, in any one respect. Because that day will not set in —except the revolt come first, and there he revealed the man of lawlessness, the son of destruction, ⁴The one who opposeth and exalteth himself on high against every one called God, or an object of worship; so that he, within the sanctuary of God, shall take his seat, sheweth himself forth, that he is, God:—⁵Remember ye not, that, while I was yet with you, these very things, I was telling you? ⁶And, what now restraineth, ye know, to the end he may be revealed in his own fitting time; ⁷For, the secret, of lawlessness, already, is inwardly working itself,—only, until, he that restraineth at present, shall be gone, out of the midst: ⁸And, then, shall be revealed the lawless one,—whom, the Lord \ul1 Jesus\ul0 , will slay with the Spirit of his mouth, and paralyse with the forthshining of his Presence:—⁹Whose, presence, shall be according to an inworking of Satan, with all manner of mighty work and sign and wonders of falsehood, ¹⁰And with all manner of deceit of unrighteousness, in them who are destroying themselves, because, the love of the truth, they did not welcome, that they might be saved;—¹¹And, for this cause, God sendeth them an inworking of error, to the end they should believe in the falsehood,—¹²In order that should be judged who would not believe in the truth, but were well-pleased with the unrighteousness. ¹³But, we, are bound to give thanks unto God continually concerning you, brethren beloved by the Lord, for that God chose you, from the beginning, unto salvation, in sanctification of spirit and belief of truth,—¹⁴Unto which he called you, through means of our glad-message, unto an acquiring of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ. ¹⁵Hence, then, brethren, stand firm, and hold fast the instructions which ye were taught—whether through discourse, or through our letter. ¹⁶But may, our Lord Jesus Christ himself, and our God and Father,—Who hath loved you, and given you age-abiding consolation and good hope by favour, ¹⁷Console your hearts, and confirm you in every good work and word!

³For the rest, brethren, be praying for us,—that, the word of the Lord, may be running, and gaining glory, according as it did even with you; ²And that we may be rescued from the presuming and wicked men; for, not all, hold the faith. ³Faithful, is the Lord,—who will confirm you, and guard you from the wicked one: ⁴We are persuaded, however, in the Lord, as touching you,—that, what things we give in charge, Ye \ul1 both\ul0 are doing and will do;—⁵But may, the Lord, guide your hearts into the love of God, and into the endurance of the Christ. ⁶Howbeit, we charge you, brethren,—that, in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, ye be withdrawing yourselves from every brother—who, in a disorderly way, doth walk, and not according to the instruction which ye received from us. ⁷For, ye yourselves, know, how needful it is to be imitating us, in that we were not disorderly among you, ⁸Nor, as a free-gift, did eat, bread, from anyone, but, with toil and hardship, night and day, working,—that we might not burden any of you;—⁹Not because we have not authority, but that, ourselves, as an ensample, we might hold forth unto you,—to the end ye might be imitating us. ¹⁰For, even when we were with you, this, were we giving in charge unto you,—that, if any will not work, neither let him eat! ¹¹We hear, in fact, of some who are walking among you in a disorderly way, at nothing, working, yet too busily working! ¹²Now, such as these, we charge and exhort in the Lord Jesus Christ,—that, with quietness, working, their own bread, they be eating. ¹³But, ye, brethren, be not weary in well-doing;—¹⁴And, if anyone be not giving ear unto our word through means of this letter, on this one, set a mark—not to be mixing yourselves up with him,—that he may be reproved; ¹⁵And, not as an enemy, be esteeming him, but be admonishing him, as a brother. ¹⁶But may, the Lord of peace himself, give you peace, always, in every way. The Lord, be with you all. ¹⁷The salutation of Paul—with my own hand, which is a sign in every letter: thus, I write. ¹⁸The favour of our Lord Jesus Christ, be with you all.

I Timothy

¹Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus—by injunction of God our Saviour and Christ Jesus our hope,—²unto Timothy, my true child in faith: favour, mercy, peace, from God our Father, and Christ Jesus our Lord. ³Even as I exhorted thee to remain in Ephesus, when I was journeying into Macedonia, that thou mightest charge some—⁴Not to be teaching otherwise, nor yet to be giving heed to stories and endless genealogies,—the which, bring, arguings, rather than that stewardship of God which is with faith;—⁵Now, the end of the charge, is love—out of a pure heart, and a good conscience, and faith unfeigned,—⁶Which some, missing, have turned them aside unto idle talk, ⁷Desiring to be law-teachers,—not understanding, either what they say or whereof they confidently affirm. ⁸Now we know that, excellent, is the law, if one put it to a lawful use:—⁹Knowing this—that, to a righteous man, law, doth not apply, but to the lawless and insubordinate, ungodly and sinful, irreligious and profane, smiters of fathers and smiters of mothers, murderers, ¹⁰fornicators, sodomites, man-stealers, liars, false-swearers,—and, if anything else, unto the healthful teaching, is opposed;—¹¹According to the glad-message of the glory of the happy God, with which entrusted am, I. ¹²Grateful, am I unto him that empowered me, Christ Jesus our Lord, in that, faithful, he accounted me, putting me into ministry,—¹³Though, formerly, a defamer, and persecutor, and insulter; nevertheless mercy was shown me, because, without knowledge, I acted, in unbelief: ¹⁴Yet exceeding abundant was the favour of our Lord, with faith and love which are in Christ Jesus. ¹⁵Faithful, the saying! and, of all acceptance, worthy,—that, Christ Jesus, came into the world, sinners, to save: of whom, the chief, am, I;—¹⁶Nevertheless, on this account, was mercy shewn me,—that, in me, the chief, Christ Jesus might shew forth his entire longsuffering, for an ensample of them about to believe on him unto life age-abiding. ¹⁷Now, unto the King of the ages,—incorruptible, invisible, alone God, be honour and glory, unto the ages of ages, Amen! ¹⁸This charge, I commit unto thee, child Timothy, According to the prophecies, running before on thee, in order that thou mightest war, with them, the noble warfare. ¹⁹Holding faith and a good conscience,—which some, thrusting from them, concerning their faith, have made shipwreck:—²⁰Of whom are Hymenaeus and Alexander; whom I have delivered unto Satan, that they may be taught by discipline not to be defaming.

²I exhort, therefore, first of all, that there be made—supplications, prayers, intercessions, thankgivings, in behalf of all men, ²In behalf of kings, and all them who are, in eminent station; in order that, an undisturbed, and quiet life, we may lead, in all godliness and gravity: ³This, is comely and acceptable before our Saviour God, ⁴Who willet, all men, to be saved, and, unto a personal knowledge of truth, to come; ⁵For there is, one, God, one, mediator also, between God and men,—a man—Christ Jesus: ⁶Who gave himself a ransom in behalf of all,—the testimony, in its own fit times: ⁷Unto which, I, have been appointed proclaimer and apostle—Truth I speak, I utter no falsehood—a teacher of nations, in faith and truth. ⁸I am minded, therefore, that—the men in every place be offering prayer, uplifting hands of lovingkindness, apart from anger and disputings; ⁹In the same way, that, the women, in seemly attire, with modesty and sober-mindedness, be adorning themselves,—not with plaitings and ornamentation of gold, or with pearls, or with costly apparel,—¹⁰But, which becometh women promising godliness, through means of good works. ¹¹Let, a woman, in quietness, be learning in all submission; ¹²But, teaching—unto a woman, I do not permit, nor yet to have authority over a man,—but to be in quietness; ¹³For, Adam, first was formed, then Eve, ¹⁴And, Adam, was not deceived, whereas, the woman, having been wholly deceived, hath come to be, in transgression; ¹⁵She shall be saved, however, through means of the child-bearing,—if they abide in faith, and love, and holiness, with sobermindedness. Faithful, the saying.

³If anyone, for oversight, is eager, a noble work, doth he covet:—²It is needful, then, for, the overseer, to be irreproachable, a husband, of one wife, sober, of sound mind, orderly, hospitable, apt in teaching, ³Not given to wine, not ready to wound, but considerate, averse to contention, not fond of money, ⁴Over his own house, presiding, well, having, children, in submission, with all dignity; ⁵Whereas, if anyone, over his own house, cannot, preside, how, of an assembly of God, shall he take care? ⁶Not a new convert, lest, being beclouded, into the sentence of the adversary, he fall; ⁷It is needful, moreover, to have, an honourable testimony also, from them who are without, lest, into reproach, he fall, and the snare of the adversary. ⁸Ministers, in the same way,—dignified, not double-tongued, not, to much wine, given, not greedy of base gain, ⁹Holding the sacred secret of the faith in a pure conscience; ¹⁰But let, these also, be proved first, then, let them be ministering, being, unaccusable: ¹¹Wives, in the same way,—dignified, not given to intrigue, sober, faithful in all things. ¹²Let, ministers, be husbands of, one wife, over children, presiding, well, and over their own houses; ¹³For, they who have ministered well, a good degree for themselves, are acquiring, and great freedom of speech in the faith that is in Christ Jesus. ¹⁴These things, unto thee, I am writing, hoping to come \u0022unto thee\u0022 shortly,— ¹⁵But, if I should tarry, that thou mayest know—how it behoveth, in a house of God, to behave oneself,—the which, is an assembly a of a Living God, a pillar and basement of the truth;— ¹⁶And, confessedly great, is the sacred secret of godliness,—Who was made manifest in flesh, was declared righteous in spirit, was made visible unto messengers, was proclaimed among nations, was believed on in the world, was taken up in glory.

⁴Howbeit, the Spirit, expressly saith—that, in later seasons, some will revolt from the faith, giving heed unto seducing spirits, and unto teachings of demons— ²in hypocrisy, every good, work she hath followed on: ¹¹But, younger widows, decline thou; for, as soon as they wax wanton against the Christ, to marry, are they determined,— ¹²Having, as sentence,—that, their first faith, they have set at nought; ¹³At the same time, to be idlers, are they learning, going about from house to house; and, not only idlers, but, gossips, also, and, busybodies,—saying the things they ought not, ¹⁴I am minded, therefore, that, the younger ones, marry, bear children, be mistress of the house,—giving, no single occasion, unto the opposer, as a cause, of reviling; ¹⁵For, already, some have turned aside after Satan: ¹⁶If any, believing woman, hath widows, let her be giving them succour, and not suffer the assembly to be burdened,—that, them who are indeed widows, it may itself succour. ¹⁷Let, the well presiding elders, of double honour, be accounted worthy, especially they who toil in discourse and teaching; ¹⁸For the scripture saith—A threshing ox, shalt thou not muzzle, and—Worthy, is the workman, of his hire. ¹⁹Against an elder, entertain not, an accusation, except at, the mouth of two, or three, witnesses; ²⁰But, them who are sinning, before all, do thou reprove, that, the rest also, may have, fear:— ²¹I adjure thee, before God, and Christ Jesus, and the chosen messengers, that, these things, thou observe, apart from prejudgment, doing, nothing, by partiality. ²²Hands, suddenly, upon no one, lay, neither have fellowship with sins of strangers: thyself, keep, chaste:— ²³No longer, be a water-drinker, but, of a little wine, make

¹⁵These things, be thy care, in these things, be thou, that, thine advancement, may be, manifest, unto all: ¹⁶Be giving heed to thyself, and to thy teaching,—abide still in them; for, this doing, both, thyself, shalt thou save, and them that hearken to thee.

⁵An elderly man, do not thou reprimand, but beseech him, as though he were thy father,—younger men, as brothers, ²Elderly women, as mothers, younger women, as sisters, in all chastity. ³Widows, honour thou—who indeed are widows:— ⁴Howbeit, if, any widow, hath, children or grandchildren, let them be learning—first, unto their own house, to be shewing reverence, and, returns, to be making unto their progenitors; for, this, is acceptable before God; ⁵But, she who is indeed a widow, and is left alone, hath turned her hope towards God, and is giving attendance unto the supplications and the prayers, night and day,— ⁶Whereas, she that runneth riot, while living, is, dead: ⁷And, these things, be giving in charge, that, without reproach, they may be; ⁸If, however, anyone, for his own, and specially them of his household, taketh not forethought, his faith, hath he denied, and is worse, than one without faith! ⁹Let, a widow, be put on the list—having become, not less than sixty years old, one man's, wife, ¹⁰In noble works, being well-attested;—if she hath nourished children, if she hath shewn hospitality, if, saints feet, she hath washed, if, them who were in tribulation, she hath succoured, if, in every good, work she hath followed on: ¹¹But, younger widows, decline thou; for, as soon as they wax wanton against the Christ, to marry, are they determined,— ¹²Having, as sentence,—that, their first faith, they have set at nought; ¹³At the same time, to be idlers, are they learning, going about from house to house; and, not only idlers, but, gossips, also, and, busybodies,—saying the things they ought not, ¹⁴I am minded, therefore, that, the younger ones, marry, bear children, be mistress of the house,—giving, no single occasion, unto the opposer, as a cause, of reviling; ¹⁵For, already, some have turned aside after Satan: ¹⁶If any, believing woman, hath widows, let her be giving them succour, and not suffer the assembly to be burdened,—that, them who are indeed widows, it may itself succour. ¹⁷Let, the well presiding elders, of double honour, be accounted worthy, especially they who toil in discourse and teaching; ¹⁸For the scripture saith—A threshing ox, shalt thou not muzzle, and—Worthy, is the workman, of his hire. ¹⁹Against an elder, entertain not, an accusation, except at, the mouth of two, or three, witnesses; ²⁰But, them who are sinning, before all, do thou reprove, that, the rest also, may have, fear:— ²¹I adjure thee, before God, and Christ Jesus, and the chosen messengers, that, these things, thou observe, apart from prejudgment, doing, nothing, by partiality. ²²Hands, suddenly, upon no one, lay, neither have fellowship with sins of strangers: thyself, keep, chaste:— ²³No longer, be a water-drinker, but, of a little wine, make use, because of thy stomach and thy, frequent, sicknesses. ²⁴Some men's sins, are, openly evident, leading on into judgment, with some, however, they even follow after; ²⁵In the same way, the noble works also, are openly evident,—and, they that are otherwise, cannot be hid.

avoiding the profane pratings and oppositions of falsely named knowledge,— ²¹Which, some professing, concerning the faith, have missed the mark! Favour be with you.

⁶Let, as many as are servants under a yoke, be counting, their own masters, worthy, of all honour, lest, the name of God and the teaching, be defamed. ²They, however, that have believing masters, let them not despise them, because they are, brethren but, the more, be doing them service, because, believing and beloved, are they who, from the good workmanship, receive advantage. These things, be teaching, and exhorting:— ³If anyone doth otherwise teach, and doth not adhere to healthful discourses—those of our Lord Jesus Christ, and to the teaching that is, according to godliness, ⁴He is beclouded, knowing, nothing, rightly, but is diseased about questionings, and word-battles—out of which spring envy, strife, defamations, wicked surmising, ⁵incessant quarrellings of men wholly corrupt in their mind and bereft of the truth,—supposing godliness to be, a means of gain! ⁶Now it is a great means of gain—godliness, with a sufficiency of ones own; ⁷For, nothing, brought we into the world, neither, to take anything out, are we able;— ⁸And, having sustenance and covering, we shall be content; ⁹But, they who are determined to be rich, fall into temptation, and a snare, and many foolish and hurtful covetings, the which, sink men into ruin and destruction,— ¹⁰For, a root of all the vices, is the love of money, which, some, being eager for, have been seduced from the faith, and have pierced, themselves, about with many pangs. ¹¹But, thou, O man of God! from these things, flee! and pursue righteousness, godliness, faith, love, endurance, meekness; ¹²Be contesting the noble contest of the faith,—lay hold of the age-abiding life—unto which thou wast called, and didst make the noble confession before many witnesses. ¹³I charge thee, before God, who engendereth life in all things, and Christ Jesus, who, before Pontius Pilate, witnessed the noble confession, ¹⁴That thou keep the commandment without spot, free from reproach, until the forthshining of our Lord Jesus Christ— ¹⁵Which, in its own fit times, the happy and only Potentate will shew—the King of them that reign, and Lord of them that wield lordship, ¹⁶Who alone hath immortality, dwelling in light unapproachable,—Whom no man hath seen—nor can see: unto whom, be honour and might age-abiding. Amen. ¹⁷Upon them who are rich in the present age, lay thou charge—not to be high-minded, nor to have set their hope on, riches', uncertainty,—but on God, who offereth us all things richly for enjoying, ¹⁸To be doing good, to be rich in noble works, to be, generous in giving, ready for fellowship,— ¹⁹Treasuring up for themselves a good foundation for the future, that they may lay hold on the life which is life indeed. ²⁰O Timothy! that which hath been entrusted, do thou guard,

II Timothy

¹Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus, through the will of God,—according to the promise of life in Christ Jesus;—²Unto Timothy, my beloved child: Favour, mercy, peace, from God our Father, and Christ Jesus our Lord. ³Grateful, am I, unto God,—unto whom I am rendering divine service from my progenitors in a pure conscience, that, incessant, hold I the remembrance, concerning thee, in my supplications; day and night, ⁴longing to see thee, being mindful of thy tears,—in order that, with joy, I may be filled: ⁵A reminder, having received, of the unfeigned faith, that is in thee,—such, as dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and in thy mother Eunice,—I am persuaded, moreover, that it dwelleth, in thee also. ⁶For which cause, I put thee in remembrance, to be stirring up God's gift of favour, which is in thee through means of the laying on of my hands; ⁷For God hath not given us a spirit of cowardice, but of power, and love, and correction. ⁸Be not thou, therefore, put to shame—with regard to the witness of our Lord, nor with regard to me his prisoner; but suffer hardship together with the glad-message according to the power of God,—⁹Who hath saved us, and called us with a holy calling, not according to our works, but according to the peculiar purpose and favour—which was given to us in Christ Jesus before age-during times, ¹⁰But hath now been made manifest through means of the forthshining of our Saviour Christ Jesus,—Who, indeed, hath abolished death, and hath thrown light upon life and incorruptibility, through means of the glad-message: ¹¹Whereunto, I, have been appointed herald and apostle and teacher; ¹²For which cause, these things also, am I suffering; nevertheless I am not being put to shame, for I know him whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is, able, to guard, that which I have entrusted, to him unto, that, day. ¹³An outline, have thou, of healthful discourses which from me thou hast heard—with the faith and love which are in Christ Jesus: ¹⁴The noble thing entrusted to thee, do thou guard, through means of the Holy Spirit which dwelleth within us. ¹⁵Thou knowest this—that all they who are in Asia have turned away from me,—of whom are Phygelus and Hermogenes. ¹⁶The Lord grant mercy unto the house, of Onesiphorus, in that, oftentimes, hath he refreshed me, and, as regardeth my chain, hath not been put to shame, ¹⁷But, happening to be in Rome, he diligently sought out and found me,—¹⁸The Lord grant him to find mercy from the Lord in, that, day;—and, how many times, in Ephesus, he hath ministered, better art, thou, getting to know.

²Thou, therefore, my child, be empowering thyself in the favour that is in Christ Jesus, ²And, the things which thou hast heard from me among many witnesses, the same, entrust thou unto faithful men, such as shall be, competent, to teach, others also. ³Take thy part in suffering hardship, as a brave soldier of Christ Jesus:—⁴No one that is serving as a soldier, entangleth himself with the matters of his livelihood, that he may please him that hath summoned him to serve as a soldier; ⁵If, moreover, any man, contend even in the games, he is not crowned, unless, lawfully, he contend; ⁶The toiling husbandman, ought, first, of the fruits, to partake: ⁷Think, as to what I am speaking; for the Lord will give thee discernment in all things. ⁸Keep in mind Jesus Christ—raised from among the dead, of the seed of David,—according to my joyful message: ⁹In which I am suffering hardship, even unto bonds, as an evil-doer; but, the word of God, is not bound. ¹⁰For this cause, am I enduring, all things, for the sake of the chosen, in order that, they also, may obtain, the salvation, which is in Christ Jesus along with glory age-abiding. ¹¹Faithful, the saying—for, If we have died together, we shall also live together, ¹²If we endure, we shall also reign together; If we shall deny, he also, will deny us, ¹³If we are faithless, he, faithful, abideth,—for, deny himself, he cannot! ¹⁴Of these things, be putting them in remembrance, adjuring them before God not to be waging word-battles,—useful, for nothing, occasioning a subversion of them that hearken. ¹⁵Give diligence, thyself, approved, to present unto God,—a workman not to be put to shame, skillfully handling the word of truth. ¹⁶But, the profane pratings, shun; for, unto more ungodliness, will they force themselves on; ¹⁷And, their discourse, as a gangrene, will eat its way;—of whom are Hymenaeus and Philetus, ¹⁸Men who, concerning the truth, have erred, affirming, a resurrection, already, to have taken place, and are overthrowing the faith, of some. ¹⁹Howbeit, the firm foundation of God, standeth, having this seal—The Lord hath acknowledged them who are his, and, Let every one that nameth the name of the Lord stand aloof from unrighteousness. ²⁰But, in a great house, there are not only gold and silver vessels, but, also wooden and earthen: and, some, indeed, for honour, while, some, are for dishonour: ²¹If, therefore, anyone will, for pureness, sever himself from these, he shall be a vessel for honour, hallowed, meet for the Master's use, for every good work, prepared. ²²But, from the youthful covetings, flee! and pursue righteousness, faith, love, peace, along with them who call upon the Lord out of a pure heart. ²³But, from the foolish and undisciplined questionings, excuse thyself, knowing that they gender strifes; ²⁴And, a servant of the Lord, ought not to strive, but to be, gentle, towards all, apt in teaching, ready to endure malice,—²⁵In meekness, bringing under discipline them that oppose themselves, lest at any time God should give them repentance unto a personal knowledge of truth, ²⁶And they should wake up to sobriety out of, the adversary's, snare,—though they have been taken alive by him for, that one's, will.

³But, of this, be taking note—that, in last days, there will set in perilous seasons; ²For men will be—fond of themselves, fond of money, ostentatious, arrogant, defamers, to parents, unyielding, unthankful, unkind, ³without natural affection, accepting no truce, given to intrigue, without self-control, uncivilized, unfriendly to good men, ⁴traitors, reckless, beclouded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, ⁵having a form of godliness, but, the power thereof, denying! and, from these, turn away; ⁶For, of these, are they who enter into the houses, and captivate silly women, women laden with sins, led on by manifold covetings, ⁷Ever learning and never, unto a personal knowledge of truth, able to come; ⁸Moreover, like as, Jannes and Jambres, withstood Moses, so, these men also, withstand the truth,—men utterly corrupted in their mind, disapproved concerning their faith; ⁹But they shall not force their way further, for, their folly, shall be, fully evident, unto all,—as also, that of those men, became. ¹⁰But, thou, hast closely studied—my teaching, manner of life, purpose, faith, long-suffering, love, endurance, ¹¹persecutions, sufferings, what manner of things, befell me at Antioch, at Iconium, at Lystra, what manner of persecutions, I endured,—and, out of all, the Lord, rescued me;—¹²Yea and, all who are determined to live in a godly manner in Christ Jesus, will be persecuted; ¹³Whereas, wicked men and howling impostors, will force their way to the worse, deceiving and being deceived. ¹⁴But, thou,—abide in the things which thou hast learned, and been entrusted with, knowing, from whom, thou hast learned them,—¹⁵And that, from a babe, those sacred letters, thou hast known which are able to make thee wise unto salvation, through the faith which is in Christ Jesus: ¹⁶Every scripture, is God-breathed, and profitable—unto teaching, unto conviction, unto correction, unto the discipline that is in righteousness,—¹⁷In order that, ready, may be the man, of God, unto every

⁴I adjure thee before God, and Christ Jesus—Who is about to be judging living and dead,—both as to his forthshining and his kingdom, ²Proclaim the word, take thy position—in season, out of season,—convince, rebuke, encourage,—with all long-suffering and teaching. ³For there will be a season—when, the healthful teaching, they will not endure, but, according to their own covetings, will, unto themselves, heap up teachers, because they have an itching ear, ⁴And, from the truth, indeed, their ear, will they turn away, while, unto stories, they will turn themselves aside. ⁵But, thou,—be sober in all things, suffer hardship, do, the work, of an evangelist, thy ministry, completely fulfill; ⁶For, I, already, am being poured out as a drink-offering, and, the season of my release, is at hand,—⁷The noble contest, have I contested, the race, have I finished, the faith, have I kept: ⁸Henceforth, lieth by for me—the crown, of righteousness, which the Lord will render unto me in that, day,—The righteous judge,—Ye, not alone unto me, but unto all them also who have loved his forthshining. ⁹Give diligence to come unto me speedily, ¹⁰For, Demas, hath forsaken me, having loved the present age, and hath journeyed unto Thessalonica; Crescens unto Galatia, Titus unto Dalmatia: ¹¹Luke, alone is with me. Receiving, Mark, back, bring him with thyself, for he is very useful to me for ministering; ¹²and, Tychicus, have I sent unto Ephesus. ¹³The cloak that I left in Troas, with Carpus, when thou comest, bring; and the scrolls, especially, the parchments. ¹⁴Alexander the coppersmith, of much baseness towards me, hath given proof,—the Lord will render unto him according to his works.—¹⁵Of whom, be, thou also, on thy guard, for he hath greatly withstood our words. ¹⁶In my first defence, no man, came in to help me, but, all, forsook me,—unto them, may it not be reckoned!—¹⁷But, the Lord, stood by me, and empowered me, in order that, through me, the proclamation, might be fully made, and, all the nations, might hear; and I was delivered out of the mouth of a lion:—¹⁸The Lord will rescue me from every wicked work, and will bring me safe into his heavenly kingdom: unto whom be the glory, unto the ages of ages. Amen. ¹⁹Salute Prisca and Aquila and the house of Onesiphorus. ²⁰Erastus, remained in Corinth; but, Trophimus, I left at Miletus, sick. ²¹Give diligence to come, before winter. There salute thee—Eubulus, and Pudens, and Linus, and Claudia, and \ul1 all\ul0 the brethren. ²²The Lord, be with thy spirit. Favour, be with you.

Titus

¹Paul, a servant of God—an apostle moreover of Jesus Christ,—according to the faith of the chosen ones of God, and the personal knowledge of the truth that is according to godliness,—²In hope of life age-abiding; which God, who cannot lie, promised before age-during times, ³but hath manifested in its fitting seasons, even his word, in the proclamation with which entrusted am I—by injunction of our Saviour God: ⁴Unto Titus, my true child according to a common faith,—favour and peace, from God our Father and Christ Jesus our Saviour. ⁵For this cause left I thee in Crete, that, the things remaining undone, thou mightest completely set in order, and mightest establish, in every city, elders, as, I, with thee arranged:—⁶If anyone is unaccusable, a husband of, one wife, having children that believe, who are not charged with riotous excess, nor insubordinate; ⁷For it is needful that the overseer be—unaccusable, as God’s steward, not self-willed, not soon angry, not given to wine, not ready to wound, not seeking gain by base means, ⁸But hospitable, a lover of what is good, sober-minded, just, kind, possessing self-control, ⁹Holding fast, in the matter of his teaching, the faithful word, that he may be able both to encourage with his healthful instruction, and, the gainsayers, to refute. ¹⁰For there are many unruly men, vain talkers and deceivers, especially they of the circumcision,—¹¹Whose mouths must needs be stopped, men who are upsetting whole houses, teaching the things which ought not to be taught—for the sake of base gain. ¹²Said one from among them, a prophet, of their own!—Cretans! always false, mischievous wild-beasts, idle gluttons: ¹³This witness, is true,—for which cause, be reproving them sharply, that they may be healthy in their faith, ¹⁴Not giving heed to Judaical stories and commandments of men who are turning away from the truth: ¹⁵All things, are pure, unto the pure, but, unto the polluted and faithless, nothing, is pure, but polluted are both their mind and conscience; ¹⁶God, they confess that they know, but, by their works, they deny him, being, abominable, and obdurate, and, as to any good work, found, worthless.

minded, healthy in their faith, love, endurance; ³Aged women, in the same way, in deportment, as becometh sacred persons, not given to intrigue, nor yet, to much wine, enslaved, teachers of virtue,—⁴That they may constrain the young women to be, lovers of their husbands, lovers of their children, ⁵soberminded, chaste, workers at home, good, submitting themselves to their own husbands,—that, the word of God, be not defamed; ⁶The younger men, in the same way, exhort thou to be sober-minded: ⁷In all things, shewing, thyself, an ensample of noble works,—in thine instruction, uncorruptness, gravity, ⁸healthful discourse that cannot be condemned, in order that, he that is of the contrary part, may relent, having nothing to say concerning us that is disparaging: ⁹Servants, unto their own masters, to be submitting themselves in all things, to be, well-pleasing, not gainsaying, ¹⁰not taking anything away, shewing, all good faith,—that, the instruction which is of our Saviour God, they may adorn in all things. ¹¹For the favour of God, bringing salvation for all men, hath shone forth, ¹²Putting us under discipline—in order that,—denying ourselves of ungodliness and worldly covetings, in a soberminded and righteous and godly manner, we should live, in the present age, ¹³Prepared to welcome the happy hope and forthshining of the glory of the great God and our Saviour Christ Jesus,—¹⁴Who gave himself up in our behalf, that he might redeem us from all manner of lawlessness, and purify for himself a people as his own treasure—zealous of noble works. ¹⁵As to these things, be speaking and exhorting and reproving, with all manner of precept: let, no one, disregard thee!

³Be putting them in mind, unto rulerships, unto authorities, to be in submission, to be yielding to rule, for every good work, to be, prepared, ²To be defaming, no one, to be, averse to strife, considerate, shewing, all, meekness unto all men. ³For, even we, used, at one time, to be—thoughtless, unyielding, deceived, in servitude unto manifold covetings and pleasures, in malice and envy, leading on, detestable, hating one another. ⁴But, when, the graciousness and affection for man of our Saviour God, shone forth, ⁵Not by works which we had done in righteousness, but, according to his mercy, he saved us—through means of the bathing of a new birth, and the moulding anew of Holy Spirit.—

⁶Which he poured on us richly, through Jesus Christ our Saviour, ⁷In order that, having been declared righteous by his favour, we should be made inheritors, according to hope, of life age-abiding. ⁸Faithful, the saying! And, concerning these things, I am minded that thou be strongly affirming, in order that they who have believed God may be careful to be forward, in noble works. These things, are honourable, and profitable unto men; ⁹But, foolish questionings, and genealogies, and strife, and contentions about matters of law, avoid, for they are unprofitable and vain. ¹⁰From a party-man, after a first and second admonition, excuse thyself; ¹¹Knowing that such a one is perverted, and sinneth, being self-condemned. ¹²As soon as I shall send Artemus unto thee, or Tychicus, give diligence to come to me unto Nicopolis; for, there, have I determined to winter. ¹³Zenas the lawyer, and Apollos, do thou diligently set forward on their way, in order that, nothing, unto them, may be wanting. ¹⁴Moreover, let our own learn to be forward, in honourable works, for the necessary uses, that they may not be unfruitful. ¹⁵All they who are with me salute thee. Salute thou them who regard us with faithful affection. Favour, be with you all.

Philemon

¹Paul, prisoner of Christ Jesus, and Timothy my brother,—unto Philemon the beloved, and a fellow worker of ours, ²And unto Apphia our sister. And unto Archippus our fellow-soldier, and unto the assembly which meeteth, at thy house: ³Favour unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and Lord Jesus Christ. ⁴I am giving thanks unto my God—always, making mention, of thee, in my prayers, ⁵Hearing of thy love, and of the faith which thou hast towards the Lord Jesus and towards all the saints,— ⁶To the end that, the fellowship of thy faith, may become, energetic, by a personal knowledge of every good thing that is in us towards Christ; ⁷For, much joy, have I had, and encouragement, by occasion of thy love, in that, the tender affections of the saints, have had rest given them by thee, brother. ⁸Wherefore, though I have, much, freedom of speech, in Christ, to be enjoining upon thee that which is befitting, ⁹Yet, for loves sake, I rather exhort,—being, such a one, as Paul the aged, now, also, even a prisoner of Christ Jesus,— ¹⁰I exhort thee concerning my own child, whom I have begotten in my bonds,—Onesimus: ¹¹Him who, at one time, was, unto thee, unserviceable, but, now, unto thee and unto me, serviceable; ¹²Whom I have sent back unto thee—him, that is, my own, tender affections!— ¹³Whom, I, was minded, with myself, to detain, that, in thy behalf, unto me, he might be ministering in the bonds of the joyful message; ¹⁴But, apart from thy mind, I wished to do, nothing, that, not as by necessity, thy goodness should be, but, by choice. ¹⁵For, peradventure, for this cause, was he separated for an hour, that, as an age-abiding possession, thou mightest have him back,— ¹⁶No longer as a servant, but above a servant—a brother beloved, very greatly to me, but, how much rather, to thee—both in the flesh and in the Lord! ¹⁷If, therefore, thou holdest me as one in thy fellowship, take him unto thee, as myself; ¹⁸And, if he hath wronged thee at all or oweth thee aught, the same, unto me, do thou reckon:— ¹⁹I, Paul, have written it with, my own, hand,—I, will repay it ; that I may not tell thee—that, thyself, unto me, thou still owest. ²⁰Yea! brother, I, would, from thee, have help, in the Lord: give rest unto my tender affections in Christ. ²¹Confident of thine obedience, I have written unto thee, knowing that, even beyond what I say, thou wilt do:— ²²At the same time, moreover, be also getting ready for me, a lodging; for I am hoping that, through your prayers, I shall be granted as a favour unto you. ²³There salute thee—Epaphras my fellow-captive in Christ Jesus, ²⁴Mark, Aristarchus, Demas, Luke,—my fellow-workers. ²⁵The favour of the Lord Jesus Christ, be with your spirit.

Hebrews

¹Whereas, in many parts and in many ways of old, God spake unto the fathers, in the prophets, ²At the end of these days, He hath spoken unto us in his Son,—whom he hath appointed heir of all things, through whom also he hath made the ages; ³Who, being an eradiated brightness of his glory, and an exact representation of his very being, also bearing up all things by the utterance of his power, purification of sins, having achieved, sat down on the right hand of the majesty in high places: ⁴By so much becoming superior to the messengers, by as much as, going beyond them, he hath inherited a more distinguished name. ⁵For unto which of the messengers said he at any time—My Son, art, thou, I, this day have begotten thee? and again—I, will become, his father, and, he, shall become my Son? ⁶But, whensoever he again introduceth the first-begotten into the habitable earth, he saith—And let all God's messengers worship him! ⁷Even as to the messengers, indeed, he saith—Who maketh his messengers, winds, and his ministers of state, a fiery flame; ⁸but, as to the Son,—Thy throne, O God, is unto times age-abiding, and—A sceptre of equity, is the sceptre of his kingdom, ⁹Thou hast loved righteousness, and hated lawlessness,—For this cause, hath God, thy God, anointed thee with the oil of exultation, beyond thy partners; ¹⁰and—Thou, by way of beginning, Lord, the earth, didst found, and, the works of thy hands, are the heavens,— ¹¹They, shall perish, but, thou, abidest still, and, all, as a mantle, shall be worn out, ¹²And, as if a robe, wilt thou fold them up,—as a mantle, and they shall be changed; but, thou, art the same, and thy years shall not fail. ¹³But, to which of the messengers, hath he said, at any time—Sit thou at my right hand, until I make thy foes thy footstool? ¹⁴Are they not, all, spirits, doing public service,—for ministry, sent forth, for the sake of them who are about to inherit salvation?

²For this cause, it behoveth us, with unwonted firmness, to be holding fast unto the things that have been heard, lest, at any time, we drift away. ²For, if the word through messengers spoken became firm, and, every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense, ³how shall, we, escape, if, so great a salvation as this, we have neglected,—which, indeed, having received, a beginning, of being spoken through the Lord, by them who heard, unto us was confirmed, ⁴God, jointly witnessing also, both with signs and wonders and manifold mighty works, and with distributions of Holy Spirit, according to his own will? ⁵For, not unto messengers, hath he subjected the coming habitable earth of which we are speaking; ⁶But one somewhere hath borne witness, saying—What is man, that thou shouldst make mention of him? Or the son of man, that thou shouldst put him in charge? ⁷Thou hast made him less, some little, than messengers, With glory and honour, hast thou crowned him,—\ul1 And hast set him over the works of thy hands\ul0 ; ⁸All things, hast thou subjected beneath his feet. For, in subjecting, \ul1 to him\ul0 the all things, nothing, left he, to him unsubjected; But now, not yet, do we see, to him, the all things subjected;— ⁹But, Jesus, made some little less than messengers, we do behold: by reason of the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour, to the end that, by favour of God, in behalf of every one, he might taste of death. ¹⁰For it was becoming in him—For the sake of whom are the all things, and by means of whom are the all things,—when, many sons, unto glory, he would lead, The Princely Leader of their salvation, through sufferings, to make perfect. ¹¹For, both he that maketh holy, and they who are being made holy, are, all, of One; For which cause, he is not ashamed to be calling them, brethren, ¹²saying—I will declare thy name unto my brethren, in the midst of an assembly, will I sing praise unto thee; ¹³and again—I, will be confident upon him; and again—Lo! I, and the children which, unto me, God, hath given. ¹⁴Seeing therefore the children have received a fellowship of blood and flesh, he also, in like manner, took partnership in the same,—in order that, through death,—he might paralyse him that held the dominion of death, that is, the Adversary,— ¹⁵And might release these—as many as, by fear of death, were all their lifetime liable, to bondage. ¹⁶For, not surely of messengers, is he laying hold, but, of Abraham's seed, he is laying hold. ¹⁷Whence he was obliged, in every way, unto the brethren, to be made like, that he might become a merciful and faithful high-priest, in the things pertaining unto God,—for the making of propitiation for the sins of the people. ¹⁸For, in that, he, suffered when tested, he is able, unto them who are being tested, to give succour.

³Whence, holy brethren, partners, in a heavenly calling, attentively consider the Apostle and High—priest of our confession—Jesus ²As one, faithful, to him who made him: as, Moses also, in \ul1 all\ul0 his house. ³For, of more glory than Moses, hath, this one been counted worthy—by as much as more honour than, the house, hath, he that prepared it; ⁴For, every house, is prepared by someone,—but, he that hath prepared all things, is, God. ⁵Even Moses, indeed, was faithful in all his house, as an attendant, for a witness of the things which were to be spoken; ⁶But, Christ, as, a Son, over his house,—whose house are, we,—if, the freedom of speech and boast of the hope, \ul1 throughout, firm,\ul0 we hold fast. ⁷Wherefore,—according as saith the Holy Spirit—To-day, if, unto his voice ye would hearken, do not ⁸harden your hearts,—as in the embitterment, in the day of testing in the desert, ⁹When your fathers tested by proving, and saw my works forty years. ¹⁰Wherefore I was sore vexed with this generation, and said, Always err they in their heart;—howbeit, they, learned not my ways: ¹¹So I swear in mine anger—they shall not enter into my rest!— ¹²Be taking heed, brethren, lest at any time, there shall be in any one of you, a wicked heart of unbelief, in revolting from a Living God. ¹³But be exhorting one another, on each successive day,—while the To-day is being named! lest any from among you be hardened by the deceitfulness of sin. ¹⁴For, partners of the Christ, have we become,—if, at least, the beginning of the confidence, throughout, firm, we hold fast: ¹⁵So long as it is said—To-day, if, unto his voice, ye would hearken, do not harden your hearts,—as in the embitterment. ¹⁶For, who, though they heard, caused embitterment? Nay, indeed! did not all who come forth out of Egypt through Moses? ¹⁷But, with whom, was he sore vexed forty years? Was it not with them who sinned, whose dead bodies fell in the desert? ¹⁸But, unto whom, swore he, that they should not enter into his rest,—save unto them who were obstinate? ¹⁹And we see, that they were not able to enter, because of unbelief.

⁴Let us therefore fear, lest at any time, although there is left behind a promise of entering into his rest,—any one from amongst you should be deemed, to have come short; ²For we have had delivered to us the joyful message, just as even, they; but the word which was heard did not profit them, they not having been blended, by faith, with the things heard. ³For we who have believed, are to enter into the rest, according as he hath said—So I swear in mine anger, They shall not enter into my rest; And yet, the works, from the foundation of the world, had been brought into existence, ⁴For he hath spoken, somewhere, concerning the seventh day, thus—And God rested, on the seventh day, from all his works; ⁵And in this again—They shall not enter into my rest. ⁶Seeing, therefore, that it is left over for, some, to enter into it, and, they who formerly had delivered to them the joyful message, entered not in by reason of obstinacy,— ⁷Again, he marketh out a certain day, To-day, in David, saying—after so long a time as this,—according as it hath been said before:—To-day, if, unto his voice, ye would hearken, do not harden your hearts. ⁸For, if, unto them, Joshua had given rest, it had not in that case, concerning another day, been speaking, after, these things. ⁹Hence there is, left over, a Sabbath-keeping, for the people of God. ¹⁰For, he that hath entered into his rest, He too, hath rested from his works, just as, from his own, God, rested. ¹¹Let us, therefore, give diligence to enter into that rest, lest anyone fall into the same example, of obstinacy. ¹²For, living, is the word of God, and, energetic, and more cutting than any knife with two edges, and penetrating as far as a dividing asunder of soul and spirit, of joints also, and marrow, and able to judge the impulses and designs of the heart; ¹³And there is, no created thing, can be secreted before him, but, all things, are naked and exposed to his eyes:—as to whom is, our discourse. ¹⁴Having then a great high-priest who hath passed through the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast the confession; ¹⁵For we have not a high-priest unable to have fellow-feeling with our weaknesses, but one tested in all respects, by way of likeness, apart from sin. ¹⁶Let us, then, be approaching with freedom of speech, unto the throne of favour, that we may receive mercy, and, favour, may find, for seasonable succour.

⁵For, every high-priest who from among men is taken, on behalf of men, is appointed, as to the things pertaining unto God, that he may be offering \ul1 both\ul0 gifts and sacrifices for sins,— ²Able, to have a measure of feeling, for the ignorant and erring,—since, he also, is compassed with weakness; ³And, for this cause, is he obliged—as for the people, so also, for himself,—to be offering for sins; ⁴And, not unto himself, doth one take the honour, but when called by God, just as, even Aaron: ⁵Thus, also the Christ, glorified not himself to become a high-priest, but he that spake unto him—My Son, art, thou, I, this day, have begotten thee; ⁶As also, in a different place, he saith—Thou, art a priest, age-abidingly, according to the rank of Melchizedek: ⁷Who, in the days of his flesh, having offered up, both supplications and entreaties unto him that was able to save him out of death, with mighty outcries and tears, and been hearkened to by reason of his devoutness, ⁸Even though he was a son, yet learned, from what things he suffered, obedience; ⁹And, being made perfect, became, to all them that obey him, Author of salvation age-abiding; ¹⁰Being addressed by God as high-priest—according to the rank of Melchizedek. ¹¹Concerning whom, great, is our discourse, and of difficult interpretation, to express, seeing that, slothful, have ye become in the hearing; ¹²For, even when ye ought to be teachers, by reason of the time, again, have ye, need, that one be teaching, you, what are the first principles of the oracles of God, and have become such as have, need, of milk, not, of strong food; ¹³For, every one partaking of milk, is unskilled in discourse of righteousness, for he is, a babe; ¹⁴But, to such as are mature, pertaineth, the strong food, to them who, by reason of habit, have their organs of perception well trained for discriminating both good and evil.

⁶Wherefore, dismissing the elementary discourse concerning the Christ, unto maturity, let us be tending, not, again, a foundation, laying down—of repentance from dead works, and of faith towards God, ²Of immersions—in respect of teaching, and of the laying on of hands, of the resurrection of the dead, and of judgment age-abiding;—³And, this, will we do, if at least, God, permit. ⁴For it is impossible—as to these who have been, once for all, illuminated, who have tasted also of the heavenly free-gift, and have been made, partners, in a Holy Spirit, ⁵And have tasted God's utterance to be, sweet, mighty works also of a coming age, ⁶And who have fallen away, again, to be remoulding them into repentance; seeing they are again crucifying unto themselves the Son of God, and holding him up as an example. ⁷For, land, which hath drunk in, the rain, thereupon oftentimes coming, and which bringeth forth vegetation fit for them for whom it is even cultivated, partaketh of a blessing from God; ⁸But, should it be bringing forth thorns and briars, it is disapproved, and, unto cursing, nigh,—whose end is for burning. ⁹But we are persuaded, concerning you, beloved, the things which are better and which contain salvation, though, even thus we speak. ¹⁰For, not unrighteous, is God, to be forgetful of your work and of the love which ye have shewn forth for his name, in that ye have ministered unto the saints, and are ministering, ¹¹But we covet that, each one of you, be shewing forth the same diligence, unto the full assurance of the hope throughout: ¹²In order that, not slothful, ye may become, but imitators of them who, through faith and patience, were becoming heirs of the promises. ¹³For, when to Abraham God made promise, seeing he had no one greater by whom to swear, He sware, by himself,—¹⁴saying—Truly, if blessing I will bless thee, and, multiplying, I will multiply thee; ¹⁵And, thus, being patient, he attained unto the promise. ¹⁶For, men, by the greater one, swear, and, with them, an end of all gainsaying by way of confirmation is, the oath: ¹⁷Wherein God, being, more abundantly disposed to shew forth unto the heirs of the promise the unchangeableness of his counsel, mediated, with an oath,—¹⁸In order that, through means of two unchangeable things, in which it was impossible for God to make himself false, a mighty consolation, we might have, who have fled along to grasp, the fore-lying hope, ¹⁹Which we have, as an anchor of the soul, both secure and firm, and entering into the interior of the veil: ²⁰Where a forerunner in our behalf hath entered, even Jesus, who, according to

⁷For, this Melchizedek, king of Salem, priest of God Most High, who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings, and blessed him,—²To whom even a tenth of all Abraham apportioned, first, indeed, when translated, King of Righteousness, but, after that, King of Salem also, which is King of Peace,—³Without father, without mother, without pedigree, having, neither beginning of days, nor of life an end, but made like unto the Son of God, abideth a priest evermore. ⁴Now consider, how great, this man was, to whom, a tenth, Abraham gave out of the choicest spoils, Yea Abraham the Patriarch. ⁵And, they, indeed, from among the sons of Levi who the priesthood receive, have commandment to take tithes of the people, according to the law, that is, of their brethren, although sprung from the loins of Abraham; ⁶But, he who deriveth not his pedigree from among them, hath taken tithes of Abraham. And, the holder of the promises, hath he blessed. ⁷But, apart from all gainsaying, the less, by the greater, is blessed. ⁸And, here, indeed, dying men take tithes, but, there, one of whom it is witnessed that he liveth. ⁹And—so to say a word—through Abraham, even Levi who taketh tithes hath paid tithes; ¹⁰For, even then, was he, in the loins of his father, when, Melchizedek, met him. ¹¹If indeed, therefore, there had been, a perfecting through means of the Levitical priesthood,—for, the people, thereon, have had based a code of laws, what further need, according to the rank of Melchizedek, for a different priest to be raised up, and, not according to the rank of Aaron, to be designated? ¹²For, seeing there is to be a change of the priesthood, of necessity, of law too, a change cometh. ¹³For, he as to whom these things are said, with a different tribe, hath taken partnership, from which, no one, hath given attendance at the altar; ¹⁴For it is, very evident, that out of Judah hath sprung our Lord,—respecting which tribe, concerning priests, nothing did Moses speak, ¹⁵And, yet more abundantly evident it is—that, according to the likeness of Melchizedek, there is to be raised up, a different priest. ¹⁶Who, not according to a law of commandment dealing with the flesh, hath arisen, but according to the power of an indissoluble life; ¹⁷For it is witnessed—Thou, art a priest, age-abidingly, according to the rank of Melchizedek. ¹⁸For, a setting aside, doth, indeed, take place, of a foregoing commandment, by reason of its own weakness and unprofitableness,—¹⁹For, the law, perfected, nothing; but there is the superinducing of a better hope,—through which we draw near unto God. ²⁰And, inasmuch as not apart from oath-taking—²¹For, they, indeed, apart from oath-taking, have been made priests, but, he, with an oath-taking, through him that was saying unto him—The Lord sware, and will not regret,—Thou, art a priest, age-abidingly ²²By as much as this, hath, Jesus, become surety of a better covenant also. ²³And, they, indeed, in greater numbers, have been made priests, because, by reason of death, are they hindered from remaining at hand; ²⁴But, he, by reason of his remaining age-abidingly, untransmissible, holdeth, the priesthood. ²⁵Whence he is able, even to be saving unto the very end, them who approach, through him, unto God; Since he evermore liveth to be interceding in their behalf. ²⁶For, such a high-priest as this, for us, was \u011 even\u010 suited: Loving, noble, undefiled, set apart from sinners, and become, higher than the heavens; ²⁷Who hath no daily necessity, like the high-priests, beforehand, over his own sins, to be offering sacrifices, after that, over those, of the people,—for, this, he did once for all when, himself, he offered up. ²⁸For, the law, constituteth, men, high-priests, having, weakness; but, the word of the oath-taking, which cometh after the law, A Son, age-abidingly, made perfect.

8A crowning point on the things being spoken:—such a one as this, have we, as high-priest, who hath sat down on the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens,— ²Of the Holy place, a public minister, and of the Real Tent, which, the Lord, pitched and not man. ³For, every high-priest, for the offering of both gifts and sacrifices, is constituted; whence it was necessary for, this one also, to have something which he might offer. ⁴If, indeed, therefore, he had been on earth, he had not, in that case, even been a priest, since there are those who are offering the gifts, according to the law:— ⁵Who, indeed, are rendering divine service, with a glimpse and shadow, of the heavenly things; even as Moses hath received intimation, when about to complete the tent,—For see! saith he—Thou shalt make all things according to the model which hath been pointed out to thee in the mount. ⁶But, now, hath he attained unto, a more distinguished public ministry,—by as much as of a better covenant also he is, mediator, which indeed, upon better promises, hath been legislated. ⁷For, if, that first, had been, faultless, not, in that case, for a second, had there been sought, a place. ⁸For, finding fault with them, he saith—Lo! days are coming, saith the Lord, when I will conclude, for the house of Israel and the house of Judah, a covenant of a new sort: ⁹Not according to the covenant which I made with their fathers, in the day when I took them by their hand, to lead them forth out of the land of Egypt,—because, they, abode not in my covenant, and, I, disregarded them, saith the Lord. ¹⁰Because, this, is the covenant which I will make with the house of Israel, after those days, saith the Lord:—giving my laws into their understanding, upon their hearts also, will I inscribe them: and I will become their God, and, they, shall become my people; ¹¹And in nowise shall they teach—every one his fellow-citizen, and every one his brother, saying,—Get to know the Lord! Because, all, shall know me, from the least unto the greatest of them; ¹²Because, propitious, will I be as to their unrighteousnesses, and, of their sins, in nowise will I be mindful, any more. ¹³In saying, Of a new sort, he hath made obsolete, the first; but, the thing that is becoming obsolete and aged, is near, disappearing!

9Even the first, indeed, therefore, used to have righteous appointments of divine service, even the holy ritual well arranged. ²For a tent was prepared, the first, in which were both the lampstand and the table and the setting forth of the loaves,—the which is called the Holy place; ³But, after the second veil, a tent, that which is called Most Holy: ⁴Having a golden altar of incense, and the ark of the covenant covered around on every side with gold, in which was a golden jar holding the manna, and the rod of Aaron that sprouted, and the tables of the covenant; ⁵But, over-above it, Cherubim of glory overshadowing the propitiatory:—concerning which things, it is not now needful to be speaking, particularly. ⁶Now, these things having been thus prepared, into the first tent, indeed, continually do the priests enter, the divine services completing; ⁷But, into the second, once for all in the year, only the high-priest, not without blood, which he offered for himself and the ignorances of the people: ⁸The Holy Spirit making this evident—that, not yet, hath been manifested, the way through the Holy place, so long as the first tent hath a standing. ⁹The which is a similitude for the present season, according to which both gifts and sacrifices are offered, which cannot, as to the conscience, perfect him that rendereth the divine service:— ¹⁰Only as to eatings, and drinkings, and diversified immersions,—righteous-appointments of the flesh, which, until a season of rectifying, are in force. ¹¹But, when Christ approached, as high-priest of the coming good things, through the greater and more perfect tent, not made by hand, that is, not of this creation,— ¹²Nor yet through blood of goats and calves, but through his own blood he entered once for all into the Holy place, age-abiding redemption discovering. ¹³For if the blood of goats and bulls, and the ashes of a heifer sprinkling the profaned, halloweth unto the purity of the flesh, ¹⁴How much rather shall the blood of the Christ, who through an age-abiding spirit offered himself unspotted unto God, purify our conscience from dead works, to the rendering of divine-service, unto a Living God? ¹⁵And, for this cause, of a new covenant, is he mediator,—to the end that, death coming to pass for the redemption of the transgressions against the first covenant, the called might receive the promise of the age-abiding inheritance; ¹⁶For, where a covenant is, it is necessary for, the death, to be brought in, of him that hath covenanted; ¹⁷For, a covenant over dead persons, is firm,—since it is not then of force when he is living that hath covenanted. ¹⁸Whence, not even the first, apart from blood, hath been consecrated; ¹⁹For, when every commandment according to the law had been spoken by Moses unto all the people, taking the blood of the calves and the goats, with water and scarlet wool and hyssop, both, the scroll itself, and all the people, he sprinkled; ²⁰Saying—This, is the blood of the covenant which, God, hath sent in command unto you: ²¹Yea, the tent also, and all the utensils of the public ministry, with blood, in like manner, he sprinkled: ²²And, nearly, all things, with blood, are purified, according to the law, and, apart from blood-shedding, cometh no remission. ²³It was indeed therefore necessary for the glimpses of the things in the heavens with these to be purified; but, the heavenly things themselves, with better sacrifices than these. ²⁴For, not into a Holy place made by hand, entered Christ,—counterpart of the real Holy place ; but, into the heaven itself, now, to be plainly manifested before the face of God in our behalf;—²⁵Nor yet that, oftentimes, he should be offering himself,—just as the high-priest entereth into the Holy place, year by year, with alien blood;—²⁶Else had it been needful for him, oftentimes, to suffer, from the foundation of the world; but, now, once for all, upon a conjunction of the ages, for a setting aside of sin through means of his sacrifice, hath he been made manifest; ²⁷And, inasmuch as it is in store for men—once for all to die, but after this, judgment, ²⁸Thus, the Christ also, once for all having been offered, for the bearing of the sins, of many, a second time, apart from sin, will appear, to them who for him are ardently waiting—unto salvation.

¹⁰For the law, having in a shadow of the destined good things, not the very image of the things, they can never, with the same sacrifices which year by year they offer evermore, make them who approach, perfect; ²Else would they not, in that case, have ceased being offered, by reason of those rendering the divine service having no further conscience at all of sins, being once for all purified? ³But, in them, is a recalling to mind of sins, year by year, ⁴For it is impossible for blood of bulls and goats to be taking away sins. ⁵Wherefore, coming into the world, he saith: Sacrifice and offering, thou willedst not, but, a body, hast thou fitted for me,—⁶In whole-burnt-offerings and sacrifices for sins, thou didst not delight: ⁷Then, said I—Lo! I am come,—in the heading of the scroll, it is written concerning me,—to do, O God, thy will. ⁸Higher up, saying—Sacrifices, and offerings, and whole-burnt-offerings, and sacrifices for sins, thou willedst not, neither delightedst in,—the which, according to the law, are offered, ⁹Then, hath he said—Lo! I am come! to do, thy will:—he taketh away the first, that, the second, he may establish: ¹⁰By which will, we have been made holy, through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ, once for all. ¹¹And, every priest, indeed, standeth daily publicly ministering, and the same sacrifices oftentimes offering, the which never can clear away sins; ¹²But this priest, having offered one sacrifice for sins evermore, sat down on the right hand of God: ¹³As for the rest, waiting—until his foes be made his footstool; ¹⁴For, by one offering, hath he perfected for evermore, them who are being made holy. ¹⁵But even the Holy Spirit beareth us witness; for, after having said—¹⁶This is the covenant which I will covenant unto them after these days, saith the Lord,—Giving my laws upon their hearts, upon their understandings also, will I inscribe them, ¹⁷He also saith—of their sins, and of their lawlessnesses, I will in nowise be mindful any more. ¹⁸But, wherever a remission of these is, there is, no further, offering, for sins. ¹⁹Having therefore, brethren, freedom of speech for the entrance through the Holy place, by the blood of Jesus, ²⁰Which entrance he hath consecrated for us, as a way recent and living, through the veil, that is, his flesh,—²¹And having a great priest over the house of God, ²²Let us approach with a genuine heart, in full assurance of faith, having been sprinkled, as to our hearts, from an evil conscience, and bathed, as to our bodies, with pure water; ²³Let us hold fast the confession of the hope without wavering,—for, faithful, is he that hath promised; ²⁴And let us attentively consider one another, to provoke unto love and noble works,—²⁵Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, according to the custom of some, but exhorting, and by so much the more as this, by as much as ye behold, the day, drawing near. ²⁶For, if, by choice, we be sinning, after the receiving of the full-knowledge of the truth, no longer, for sins, is there left over, a sacrifice, ²⁷But some fearful reception of judgment and fiery jealousy, about to devour the opposers. ²⁸Any one having set aside a law of Moses, apart from compassions, upon the testimony of two or three witnesses, dieth: ²⁹Of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be accounted worthy, who hath trampled underfoot the Son of God, and, the blood of the covenant, hath esteemed, a profane thing, by which he had been made holy, and, unto the Spirit of favour, hath offered wanton insult? ³⁰For we know him that hath said—To me, belongeth avenging, I, will recompense; and again—The Lord will judge his people. ³¹A fearful thing it is to fall into the hands of a Living God! ³²But be calling to mind the former days, in which, once ye were illuminated, a great combat of sufferings, ye endured;—³³Partly, indeed, because, both with reproaches and tribulations, ye were being made a spectacle, but, partly, because, into fellowship with them who were so involved, ye were brought;—³⁴For, even with them who were in bonds, ye sympathised, and, unto the seizure of your goods, with joy, ye bade welcome,—knowing that ye have yourselves, for a better possession and an abiding. ³⁵Do not, then, cast away your freedom of speech,—the which hath a great recompense. ³⁶For, of endurance, ye have need, in order that, the will of God having done, Ye may bear away, the promise. ³⁷For, yet a little while, how short! how short! The Coming One will be here, and will not tarry; ³⁸But, my righteous one, by faith, shall live, and, if he draw back, my soul delighteth

11But faith is, of things hoped for, a confidence, of facts, a conviction, when they are not seen; ²For, thereby, well-attested were the ancients. ³By faith, we understand the ages to have been fitted together, by declaration of God,—to the end that, not out of things appearing, should that which is seen, have come into existence. ⁴By faith, a fuller sacrifice, did Abel, offer unto God, than Cain,—through which, he received witness that he was righteous, there being a witnessing upon his gifts, by God; and, through it, though he died, he yet is speaking. ⁵By faith, Enoch was translated, so as not to see death, and was not found, because that, God, had translated him; for, before the translation, he had received witness that he had become well-pleasing unto God;—⁶But, apart from faith, it is impossible to be well-pleasing; for he that approacheth unto God—must needs have faith, that he is, and that, to them who seek him out, a rewarder he becometh. ⁷By faith, Noah, having received intimation concerning the things not yet seen, filled with reverence, prepared an ark to the saving of his house—through which he condemned the world, and, of the righteousness by way of faith, became heir. ⁸By faith, being called, Abraham obeyed—to come forth into a place he was destined to receive for an inheritance; and he came forth, not well knowing whither he was coming. ⁹By faith, he sojourned in the land of promise, as a foreign land, in tents, dwelling, along with Isaac and Jacob, the joint-heirs of the same promise; ¹⁰For he was awaiting the city having foundations, whose architect and builder is, God. ¹¹By faith, even Sarah herself, received power for founding a seed, even beyond the season of life's prime,—seeing that, faithful, she reckoned, him that had promised; ¹²Wherefore, even from one, were born, and, as to these things, one who had become dead,—like the stars of the heaven, for multitude, and as the sand that is by the lip of the sea, that cannot be numbered. ¹³In faith, all these died—not bearing away the promises, but, from afar, beholding and saluting them, and confessing that, strangers and sojourners, were they upon the land. ¹⁴For, they who such things as these are saying, make it clear that, of a paternal home they are in quest; ¹⁵And, if indeed of that they had been mindful, from which they had come out, they might, in that case, have had an opportunity, to return; ¹⁶But, now, after a better one, are they reaching, that is, a heavenly; wherefore God is not ashamed of them, to be invoked as, their God,—for he hath prepared for them, a city. ¹⁷By faith, Abraham, when tested, offered up Isaac, and, the only-begotten, would he have offered up, who the promises had accepted,—¹⁸Even him of whom it had been said—In Isaac, shall there be called to thee, a seed: ¹⁹Accounting that, even from among the dead, God, was able, to raise him,—whence, even in

similitude, he bare him away. ²⁰By faith, even concerning things to come, did Isaac bless Jacob and Esau. ²¹By faith, Jacob, when about to die, blessed each of the sons of Joseph; and bowed in worship on the top of his staff. ²²By faith, Joseph, when drawing to his end—concerning the exodus of the sons of Israel, called to remembrance, and, concerning his bones, gave commandment. ²³By faith, Moses, when born—was hid three months by his parents, because, they saw, that, goodly, was, the child, and were not affrighted, at the decree of the king. ²⁴By faith, Moses, when grown up—refused to be called the son of a daughter of a Pharaoh, ²⁵Rather choosing—to be jointly suffering ill-treatment with the people of God, than, for a season, to be having, sins enjoyment; ²⁶Accounting—as greater riches than Egypt's treasures, the reproach of the Anointed One; for he was looking away unto the recompense. ²⁷By faith, he forsook Egypt—not put in fear of the wrath of the king; for, as seeing him who cannot be seen, he persevered. ²⁸By faith, he hath kept the passover and the besmearing of the blood, lest, he that was destroying the first-born, should be touching them. ²⁹By faith, they passed through the Red Sea, as over dry land,—which the Egyptians, seizing an attempt to do, were swallowed up. ³⁰By faith, the walls of Jericho, fell, having been surrounded for seven days. ³¹By faith, Rahab the harlot perished not with them who refused to yield, she having welcomed the spies with peace. ³²And what more can I say? For, time, will fail me while I go on telling—concerning Gideon, Barak, Sampson, Jephthah, David also, and Samuel, and the prophets,—³³Who, through faith—prevailed in contest over kingdoms, wrought righteousness, attained unto promises, shut the mouths of lions, ³⁴Quenched the power of fire, escaped the mouths of the sword, were made powerful from weakness, became mighty in battle, overturned, camps of aliens; ³⁵Women received, by resurrection, their dead; but, others, were put to the rack, not accepting redemption, that, unto a better resurrection, they might attain: ³⁶Others, again, of mockings and scourgings, received trial, nay! further, of bonds and imprisonments: ³⁷They were stoned, were pierced through, were sawn asunder, by murder, with a sword, died, went about in sheepskins, in goat-hides,—being in want, suffering tribulation, enduring ill-treatment: ³⁸Of whom the world, was not worthy—upon deserts, wandering, and mountains, and in caves,—and in the caverns of the earth. ³⁹And, these all, though they obtained witness through their faith, yet bare not away, the promise: ⁴⁰God, for us, something better providing,—that, not apart from us, should they be made, perfect.

12Therefore, indeed, seeing that, we also, have encircling us, so great a cloud of witnesses, stripping off every incumbrance and the easily entangling sin, with endurance, let us be running, the race that is lying before us, ²Looking away unto our faith's Princely-leader and perfecter, Jesus,—who, in consideration of the joy lying before him, endured a cross, shame, despising! And, on the right hand of the throne of God, hath taken his seat. ³For take ye into consideration—him who hath endured, such contradiction, by sinners against themselves, lest ye be wearied, in your souls becoming exhausted. ⁴Not yet unto blood, have ye resisted, against sin, waging a contest; ⁵And ye have quite forgotten the exhortation which, indeed, with you as with sons, doth reason:—My son! be not slighting the discipline of the Lord, neither be fainting, when by him, thou art reprov'd; ⁶For, whom the Lord loveth, he doth, discipline, and scourgeth every son whom he doth welcome home. ⁷For the sake of discipline, persevere! As towards sons, God, beareth himself, towards you; for who is a son whom a father doth not discipline? ⁸If however ye are without discipline, whereof, all, have received a share, then, are ye, bastards, and, not sons. ⁹Furthermore, indeed, the fathers of our flesh, we used to have, as administrators of discipline, and we used to pay deference: shall we not, much rather, submit ourselves to the Father of our spirits and, live? ¹⁰For, they, indeed, for a few days, according to that which seemed good to them, were administering discipline; but, he, unto that which is profitable, with view to our partaking of his holiness: ¹¹But, no discipline, for the present, indeed, seemeth to be of joy, but of sorrow: afterwards, however—to them who thereby have been trained, it yieldeth peaceful fruit, of righteousness. ¹²Wherefore, the slackened hands and paralysed knees, restore ye, ¹³And, straight tracks, be making for your feet—that the lame member may not be dislocated, but, be healed rather. ¹⁴Peace, be pursuing, with all, and the obtaining of holiness,—without which no one shall see the Lord: ¹⁵Using oversight—lest any one be falling behind from the favour of God,—lest any root of bitterness, springing up above, be causing trouble, and, through it, the many, be defiled: ¹⁶Lest there be any fornicator, or profane person, like Esau,—who, for the sake of one meal, yielded up his own firstborn rights; ¹⁷For ye know that, afterwards—when he even wished to inherit the blessing, he was rejected; for, place of repentance, found he none, even though, with tears, he diligently sought it. ¹⁸For ye have not approached—unto, a searching and scorching fire, and gloom, and mist, and tempest, ¹⁹And a trumpets peal,—and a sound of things spoken:—from which they who heard excused themselves, lest there should be added to them, a word; ²⁰For they could not bear, that which was being enjoined,—and, should a beast be touching the mountain, it shall be stoned; ²¹And, so fearful was that which was showing itself, Moses, said—I am terrified, and do tremble! ²²But ye have approached—unto Zion's mountain, and unto the city of a Living God, a heavenly Jerusalem,—and unto myriads of messengers, ²³in high festival,—and unto an assembly of firstborn ones, enrolled in the heavens,—and unto God, judge of all,—and unto the spirits of righteous ones made perfect,— ²⁴And unto the mediator of a new covenant, Jesus,—and unto the blood of sprinkling, more excellently speaking, than, Abel. ²⁵Beware, lest ye excuse yourselves from him that speaketh; for, if, they escaped not, who excused themselves from him who on earth was warning, how much less, shall, we, who from him that warneth from the heavens, do turn ourselves away: ²⁶Whose voice shook the earth, then, but, now, hath he promised, saying—Yet once for all, I, will shake—not only the earth, but, also the heaven. ²⁷But, the saying, Yet once for all, maketh clear the removal of the things which can be shaken, as of things done with,—that they may remain, which cannot be shaken. ²⁸Wherefore, seeing that, of a kingdom not to be shaken, we are receiving possession, let us have gratitude—whereby we may be rendering divine service well-pleasingly unto God, with reverence and awe; ²⁹For, even our God, is a consuming fire.

13Let brotherly love continue. ²Of the entertaining of strangers, be not forgetful, for, hereby, unawares, have some entertained, messengers. ³Bear in mind them who are in bonds, as having become jointly bound,—them who are suffering ill-treatment, as being yourselves also in the body. ⁴Let marriage be honourable in all, and the bed undefiled, for, fornicators and adulterers, God, will judge. ⁵Without fondness for money, be your way of life,—being content with the present things,—for, he, hath said: In nowise, thee, will I leave, no indeed! in nowise, thee, will I forsake: ⁶So that, taking courage, we may be saying—The Lord, hasteth to my cry,—I will not be put in fear: what shall, man, do unto me? ⁷Be mindful of them who are guiding you, who, indeed, have spoken unto you, the word of God: the outgoing of whose behaviour, reviewing, be imitating, their faith. ⁸Jesus Christ, yesterday, and to-day, is the same,—and unto the ages. ⁹With teachings, manifold and strange, be not carried aside; for it is, noble, that, with gratitude, should, the heart, be getting confirmed,—not with matters of food, in which, they who are walking, have not been profited. ¹⁰We have an altar—to eat out of which, they, have no right, who in the tent are doing divine service; ¹¹For, in the case of those living creatures, whose blood for sins is carried into the holy place, through means of the high-priest, the bodies of these, are burned up, outside the camp. ¹²Wherefore, Jesus also, that he might hallow the people through means of his own blood, outside the gate, suffered: ¹³Now, therefore, let us be going forth unto him, outside the camp, his reproach bearing. ¹⁴For we have not here an abiding city, but, unto that which is to be, are we seeking our way. ¹⁵Through him, let us be offering up a sacrifice of praise, continually, unto God; that is, a fruit of lips confessing unto his name. ¹⁶But, of the doing good and of fellowship, be not forgetful; for, with such sacrifices as these, is, God, well-pleased.

¹⁷Be yielding unto them who are guiding you, and submit yourselves; for they are watching over your souls, as having an account to render, that, with joy the same they may be doing, and not with sighing,—for, unprofitable unto you, were, this. ¹⁸Be praying for us; for we persuade ourselves that an honourable conscience have we, in all things honourably, desiring to behave ourselves. ¹⁹But, much more abundantly, do I exhort you the same to do, that, more speedily, I may be restored, unto you. ²⁰But, the God of peace, He that led up from among the dead the great Shepherd of the sheep, with the blood of an age-abiding covenant,—our Lord Jesus, ²¹Fit you, by every good work, for the doing of his will, doing within us, that which is well-pleasing, before him through Jesus Christ: to whom be the glory, unto the ages of ages. Amen. ²²Now I exhort you, brethren, bear with the word of exhortation,—for, even with brief words, have I sent unto you. ²³Know ye that our brother Timothy hath been set at liberty,—with whom, if more speedily he be coming, I will see you. ²⁴Salute all them who are guiding you, and all the saints: they from Italy, salute you. ²⁵Favour be with you all.

James

1James, a servant, of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ,—unto the twelve tribes that are in the dispersion, Wishes joy. 2All Joy, account it, my brethren, whensoever ye fall in with, manifold, temptations,—3Taking note, that, the proving of your faith, worketh out endurance; 4But let, your endurance, have, mature work, that ye may be mature and complete, in nothing, coming short. 5But, if any of you is sinning short of wisdom, let him be asking of God, Who giveth unto all freely and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him; 6But let him be asking in faith, nothing, doubting, for, he that doubteth, is like a wave of the sea, wind-driven and storm-tossed,—7For let not that man think that he shall receive anything from the Lord—8A two-souled man, unstable in all his ways. 9But boasting be the lowly brother in his uplifting; 10Whereas the rich, in his being brought low,—because, as a flower of grass, he will pass away; 11For the sun hath sprung up, with it scorching heat, and hath withered the grass, and, the flower thereof, hath fallen out, and, the beauty of the face thereof, hath perished,—so, also the rich, in his goings, shall languish. 12Happy the man who endureth temptation! Because, becoming approved, he shall receive the crown of life—which he hath promised unto them that love him. 13Let, no one, while tempted, be saying—From God, am I tempted,—for, God, cannot be tempted by things evil, and, himself, tempteth no one; 14But, each one, is tempted, when, by his own coveting, he is drawn out and enticed, 15Then, the coveting, having conceived, giveth birth to sin, and, the sin, when full-grown, bringeth forth death. 16Be not deceived, my brethren beloved:—17Every good giving, and every perfect gift, is, from above, coming down from the Father of lights—with whom is no alternation, nor shadow cast, by turning: 18Because he was so minded, he hath brought us forth with a word of truth, to the end we should be a sort of firstfruit of his creatures 19Ye know, my brethren beloved,—but let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to anger, 20For, man's anger, worketh not, God's righteousness. 21Wherefore, putting away all filthiness and overflow of baseness, in meekness, welcome ye the word fitted for inward growth, which is able to save your souls: 22Become ye doers of the word, and not hearers only—reasoning yourselves astray; 23Because, if any

is, a word-hearer, and not a doer, the same, is like unto a man observing his natural face in a mirror,—24For he observed himself, and is gone away, and, straightway, it hath escaped him,—what manner of man, he was! 25But, he that hath obtained a nearer view into the perfect law of liberty, and hath taken up his abode by it, becoming—not a forgetful hearer, but a work doer, the same, happy in his doing, shall be. 26If any thinketh he is observant of religion, not curbing his own tongue, but deceiving his own heart, this one's, religious observance is, vain: 27Religious observance, pure and undefiled with our God and Father, is, this—to be visiting orphans and widows in their affliction, unspotted, to keep, himself, from the world.

2My brethren, do not, with respect for persons, be holding the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory. 2For, if there enter into your synagogue a man wearing gold rings in gay clothing, and there enter a destitute man also, in soiled clothing,—3And ye eye him that hath on the gay clothing, and say, Thou, be sitting here, pleasantly,—and, unto the destitute man, say—Thou, stand, or sit there under my footstool, 4Would ye not have been led to make distinctions among yourselves, and have become judges with wicked reasonings? 5Hearken! my brethren beloved:—Hath not, God, chosen the destitute in the world to be rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom which he hath promised to them that love him? 6Whereas, ye, have dishonoured the destitute man! Do not, the rich, oppress you? and, themselves, drag you into courts of justice? 7Do not, they, defame the noble name which hath been invoked upon you? 8If ye are, indeed, fulfilling, a royal law, according to the scripture—Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself, nobly, are ye doing; 9But, if ye are shewing respect of persons, sin, are ye working, being convicted by the law as transgressors! 10For, a man who shall keep, the whole law, but shall stumble in one thing, hath become, for all things, liable,—11For, he that hath said—Do not commit adultery, hath also said—Do not commit murder,—now, if thou dost not commit adultery, but dost commit murder, thou hast become a transgressor of law. 12So, be speaking, and, so, doing, as they who, through means of a law of freedom, are about to be judged; 13For, the judgment, will be without mercy, unto him that hath shewed no mercy: Mercy, boasteth, over judgment. ¹⁴What profit, my brethren,—if one should be saying he hath, faith, but hath not, works; can his faith save him? ¹⁵If, a brother or sister, should be naked, and coming short of the daily food, ¹⁶And one from among you should say unto them—Withdraw in peace, be getting warmed and fed, but should not give them the things needful for the body, What the profit? ¹⁷So, also, faith, if it have not works, is dead, by itself. ¹⁸But one will say,—Thou, hast faith, and, I, have works, show me thy faith apart from thy works, and, I, unto thee, will shew, by my works, my faith. ¹⁹Thou believest that God is, one: thou doest, well—Even the demons believe, and shudder! ²⁰But art thou willing to learn, O empty man! that, faith, apart from works, is, idle? ²¹Abraham our father, was it not, by works, he was declared righteous—when he offered Isaac his son upon the altar? ²²Thou seest that, his faith, had been working together with his works, and by his works did his faith become full-grown,— ²³And the scripture was fulfilled which saith—And Abraham believed God, And it was reckoned to him as righteousness, and, God's friend, was he called: ²⁴Ye see that—by works, a man is declared righteous, and not by faith alone. ²⁵And, in like manner also, Rahab the harlot, Was it not, by works, she was declared righteous, when she gave welcome unto the messengers, and, by another way, urged them forth? ²⁶Just as, the body, apart from spirit, is dead, so, our faith also, apart from works, is dead.

³Not, many teachers, become ye, my brethren, knowing that, a severer sentence, shall ye receive; ²For, oft, are we stumbling, one and all: If anyone, in word, doth not stumble, the same, is a mature man, able to curb even the whole body. ³Now, if, the horses bits, into their mouths, we thrust, to the end they may be yielding to us, their whole body also, do we turn about. ⁴Lo! the ships also, large as they are, and, by rough winds, driven along, are turned about by a very small helm, whithersoever the impulse of the steersman inclineth. ⁵So, also, the tongue, is, a little member, and yet, of great things, maketh boast. Lo! how small a fire, kindleth, how great a forest; ⁶And, the tongue, is a fire,— as , the world of unrighteousness, the tongue, becometh fixed among our members, that which defileth the whole body and setteth on fire the wheel of our natural life, and is set on fire, by gehenna! ⁷For, every nature—both of wild beasts and of birds, both of reptiles and of things in the sea, is to be tamed, and hath been tamed, by the human nature; ⁸But, the tongue, none of mankind can, tame,—A restless mischief! Full of deadly poison ⁹Therewith, are we blessing our Lord and Father, and, therewith, we are cursing the men who, after the likeness of God, have been brought into being! ¹⁰Out of the same mouth, come forth blessing and cursing! Not meet, my brethren, for, these things, thus, to be coming to pass! ¹¹Doth, the fountain, out of the same opening, teem forth the sweet and the bitter? ¹²Is it possible, my brethren, for, a fig-tree, to produce, olives, or, a vine, figs? Neither can, salt, water yield, sweet. ¹³Who is wise and well-instructed—among you? Let him show, out of his comely behaviour, his works, in meekness of wisdom. ¹⁴But, if, bitter jealousy, ye have, and rivalry, in your hearts; be not boasting and showing yourselves false against the truth! ¹⁵This wisdom is not one, from above, coming down, but is earthly, born of the soul, demoniacal! ¹⁶For, where jealousy and rivalry are, there, are anarchy and every ignoble deed. ¹⁷But, the wisdom from above, is—first pure, then peaceable, reasonable, easy to be entreated, fraught with mercy and good fruits, without partiality, without hypocrisy. ¹⁸And, in harvest of righteousness, with peace, is sown by them that make peace.

⁴Whence wars and whence fightings among you? are they not from hence—due to your pleasures which are taking the field in your members? ²Ye covet—and have not, ye commit murder, and are jealous—and cannot obtain,—ye fight and war. Ye have not—because ye do not really ask, ³Ye ask and receive not, because that, basely, ye ask, in order that, in your pleasures, ye may spend it . ⁴Adulteresses! Know ye not that, the friendship of the world, is, enmity to God? Whosoever, therefore, is minded to be, a friend, of the world, an enemy of God, doth constitute himself. ⁵Or think ye that, in vain, the scripture speaketh? Is it, for envying, that the spirit which hath taken an abode within us doth crave? ⁶Howbeit he giveth, greater, favour. Wherefore it saith—God, against the haughty, arrayeth himself, Whereas, unto the lowly, he giveth favour. ⁷Range yourselves, therefore, under God, but withstand the adversary, and he will flee from you: ⁸Draw near unto God, and he will draw near unto you. Cleanse hands, sinners! Chasten hearts, double souls! ⁹Be miserable and lament and weep, let, your laughter, into lamentation, be turned, and, your joy, into dejection; ¹⁰Be made low in presence of the Lord, and he will lift you up. ¹¹Be not speaking one against another, brethren! He that speaketh against a brother, or judgeth his brother, speaketh against law, and judgeth law; Now, if, upon law, thou art passing judgment, thou art not a doer of law, but a judge! ¹²One, is Lawgiver and Judge—He who hath power to save and to destroy; but who art, thou, that judgest thy neighbour? ¹³Come now! ye that say—Today or To-morrow, we will journey unto this city here, and will spend there a year, and will trade and get gain,— ¹⁴Men who are not versed in the morrow—of what sort your life will be ; for ye are, a vapour—for a little, appearing, then, just disappearing! ¹⁵Instead of your saying—If, the Lord, be pleased, we shall both, live and do this or that; ¹⁶Whereas, now, are ye boasting in your pretensions:—All boasting like this, is, wicked, ¹⁷To him, therefore, who knoweth how to be doing, a right thing, and is not doing

⁵Come now! ye wealthy! Weep ye, howling, for your hardships which are coming upon you: ²Your wealth, hath rotted, and, your garments, have become, moth-eaten,—³Your gold and silver, have rusted away, and, their rust, shall be, witness against you, and shall eat your flesh, as fire! Ye have laid up treasure in days of extremity:—⁴Lo, the wage of the workers who have out down your fields—that which hath been kept back, by you, is crying out; and, the outcries of them who reaped, into the ears of the Lord of hosts, have entered: ⁵Ye have luxuriated upon the land, and run riot, ye have pampered your hearts in a day of slaughter; ⁶Ye sentenced—ye murdered the Righteous one! Is he not arraying himself against you? ⁷Be patient, therefore, brethren, until the Presence of the Lord:—Lo! the husbandman, awaiteth the precious fruit of the earth, having patience for it, until it receive the early and the latter rain: ⁸Be, ye also, patient, Stablish your hearts, because, the Presence of the Lord, hath drawn near. ⁹Be not sighing, brethren, one against another, lest ye be judged,—Lo! the Judge, before the doors, is standing. ¹⁰An example, take ye, brethren, of distress and patience,—the prophets who have spoken in the name of the Lord. ¹¹Lo! we pronounce them happy who have endured;—Of the endurance of Job, ye have heard, and, the end of the Lord, have ye seen,—that, of much tender affection, is the Lord, and full of compassion, ¹²But, before all things, my brethren, do not swear,—either by heaven, or by the earth, or by any other oath; but let your Yea be yea, and your Nay nay,—lest, under judgment, ye fall. ¹³In distress, is any among you? Let him pray; Cheerful, is any? Let him strike the strings; ¹⁴Sick, is any among you? Let him call unto him the elders of the assembly, and let them pray for him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord;—¹⁵And, the prayer of faith, shall save the exhausted one, and the Lord will raise him up, and, if he have committed, sins, it shall be forgiven him. ¹⁶Be openly confessing, therefore, one to another, your sins, and be praying in each other's behalf,—that ye may be healed. Much availeth, the supplication of a righteous man, when it is energised: ¹⁷Elijah, was, a man, affected like us; and he earnestly prayed that there might be no moisture, and there was no moisture on the land, for three years and six months,—¹⁸And, again, he prayed, and, the heaven, gave, rain, and, the land, shot up her fruit. ¹⁹My brethren! If one among you be led to err from the truth, and one turn him back, ²⁰Be ye taking note—that, he that turneth back a sinner out of the error of his way—will save his soul out of death, and hide a multitude of sins.

I Peter

¹Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ, unto the chosen pilgrims of the dispersion, throughout Pontus, Galatia, Capadocia, Asia and Bithynia,—²Chosen according to the fore-knowledge of God the Father, in sanctification of Spirit, unto obedience and the sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ, Favour unto you, and peace, be multiplied! ³Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Who, according to his great mercy, hath regenerated us unto a living hope, through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from among the dead, ⁴Unto an inheritance, incorruptible and undefiled and unfading, reserved in the heavens for you ⁵who, in God's power, are being guarded through faith unto salvation—ready to be revealed in the last ripe time: ⁶Wherein ye exult, though, for a little, just now, if needful, put to grief in manifold temptations, ⁷In order that the proving of your faith—much more precious than of gold that perisheth even though, by means of fire, it is proved—may be found unto praise and glory and honour in the revealing of Jesus Christ,—⁸Whom, not having seen, ye love, on whom, though at present not looking, but believing, ye exult with joy unspeakable and filled with glory, ⁹Being about to bear away the end of your faith—a salvation of souls: ¹⁰Concerning which salvation, prophets—who concerning the favour for you, did prophesy—sought out and searched out, ¹¹Searching into what particular, or what manner, of season the Spirit of Christ which was in them was pointing to, when witnessing beforehand as to—The sufferings, for Christ, and the glories, after these,—¹²Unto whom it was revealed—that, Not unto themselves, but unto us, they were ministering them, which things have, now, been announced unto you through them who have told you the good tidings with Holy Spirit sent forth from heaven: into which things messengers are coveting to obtain a nearer view. ¹³Wherefore, girding up the loins of your mind, keeping sober, perseveringly direct your hope unto the favour, being borne along to you, in the revealing of Jesus Christ: ¹⁴As obedient persons, not configuring yourselves unto your former covetings in your ignorance: ¹⁵But, according as he that hath called you is holy, do, ye yourselves, also become, holy in all manner of behaviour,—¹⁶Inasmuch as it is written—Holy shall ye be, because, I, am holy. ¹⁷And, if, as Father, ye are invoking him who, without respect of persons, judgeth according to each man's work, with reverence, for the time of your sojourning, behave ye; ¹⁸Knowing that, Not with corruptible things, with silver or gold, have ye been redeemed from your unmeaning behaviour paternally handed down, ¹⁹But with precious blood, as of a lamb, unblemished and unspotted, of an Anointed One,—²⁰Foreknown, indeed, before the foundation of the world, but made manifest at a last stage of the times, for the sake of you ²¹who, through him, are faithful towards God,—Who raised him from among the dead, and glory to him gave, So that your faith and hope are directed towards God: ²²Having purified, your souls, by the obedience of the truth, unto unfeigned brotherly affection, from the heart, love, one another, earnestly; ²³Having been regenerated—Not out of corruptible seed, but incorruptible—through means of the word of a Living and Abiding God; ²⁴Inasmuch as—All flesh, is as grass, and, all the glory thereof, as the flower of grass,—The grass hath withered, and the flower hath fallen out, ²⁵But the declaration of the Lord age-abidingly remaineth; And, this, is a declaration which in the joyful message hath been announced unto you.

²Putting away, therefore, all vice and all deceit and hypocrisy and envyings and all detractions, ²As new-born babes, for the pure milk that is for the mind, eagerly crave, that, thereby, ye may grow unto salvation:—³If ye have tasted for yourselves that, gracious, is the Lord,—⁴Unto whom coming near, as unto a living stone—by men, indeed, rejected, but, with God, chosen, held in honour, ⁵Yourselves also, as living stones, are being built up a spiritual house, for a holy priesthood, to offer spiritual sacrifices, well-pleasing unto God through Jesus Christ; ⁶Inasmuch as it is contained in scripture—Lo! I lay in Zion an outmost corner stone, chosen, held in honour, and, he that resteth faith thereupon, shall not be put to shame. ⁷Unto you, then, is the honour—unto you who believe; but, unto such as disbelieve, The stone which the builders rejected,—The same, hath become head of the corner, ⁸And a stone to strike against, and a rock to stumble over: Who stumble because, unto the word, they do not yield,—unto which also they have been appointed; ⁹But, ye, are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people for a peculiar treasure, that, the excellences, ye may tell forth, of him who, out of darkness, hath called you into his marvellous light:—¹⁰Who, at one time, were a No-people, but, now, are a people of God,—who had not been enjoying mercy, but, now, have received mercy. ¹¹Beloved! I exhort you, as sojourners and pilgrims, to abstain from fleshly covetings, such as take the field against the soul; ¹²Having, your behaviour among the nations, honourable,—in order that, wherein they speak against you as evil-doers, they may, owing to the honourable works they are permitted to behold, glorify God in the day of visitation. ¹³Submit yourselves unto every human creation, for the Lord's sake,—whether unto a king, as one that protecteth, ¹⁴Or unto governors, as, through him, sent—for vengeance on evil-doers, but praise to such as do good; ¹⁵Because, so, is the will of God,—by doing good, to be putting to silence, the ignorance of heedless men: ¹⁶As free, yet, not as a cloak of vice, holding your freedom, but, as God's servants. ¹⁷Unto all men, give honour, unto the brotherhood, shew love, unto God, give reverence, the king, hold in honour. ¹⁸Ye domestics, submitting yourselves, in all reverence, unto your masters,—not only unto the good and considerate, but also unto the perverse; ¹⁹For, this, is thankworthy,—If, for the sake of conscience towards God, one beareth griefs, suffering wrongfully,—²⁰For what sort of honour is it—if, committing sin, and being buffeted, ye endure it? But, if, doing good, and suffering, ye endure it, this, is thankworthy with God. ²¹For, hereunto, have ye been called; because, Christ also, suffered in your behalf, unto you, leaving behind a pattern, that ye might follow in his steps: ²²Who did not, a sin, commit, neither was deceit found in his mouth,—²³Who, being reviled, was not reviling again, suffering, he was not threatening, but was making surrender unto him that judgeth righteously,—²⁴Who, our sins, himself, bare up, in his body, unto the tree, in order that we, from our sins getting away, in righteousness, might live,—by whose stripes, ye have been healed; ²⁵For ye were as sheep going astray, but have now turned back unto the shepherd and overseer of your souls.

3In like manner, ye wives,—submitting yourselves unto your own husbands; in order that, if any are not yielding unto the word, through their wives' behaviour, they may, without the word, be won, ²Having been permitted to behold your reverently chaste behaviour,—³Whose adorning, let it be—not the outward, of plaiting the hair and wearing golden ornaments, or putting on of apparel, ⁴But the hidden character, of the heart,—in the incorruptible ornament of the quiet, and meek, spirit, which is, in presence of God, of great price. ⁵For, so, at one time, the holy women also, who directed their hope towards God, used to adorn themselves, being in submission unto their own husbands: ⁶As, Sarah, was obedient unto Abraham, calling him, lord,—whose children ye have become—so long as

ye are doing good, and not bringing yourselves into fear of any single cause of alarm. ⁷Ye husbands, in like manner, dwelling with them according to knowledge,—as unto a weaker vessel, unto the female vessel, assigning honour, as joint—inheritors also of life's favour,—to the end that unhindered may be, your prayers. ⁸And, finally, all, being of one mind, having fellow—feeling, attached to the brethren, of tender affection, of lowly mind: ⁹Not returning evil for evil, nor reviling for reviling, but, on the contrary, bestowing a blessing,—because, hereunto, have ye been called, in order that, a blessing, ye might inherit. ¹⁰For, he that desireth to love, life, and to see good days, Let him cause his tongue to cease from mischief, and lips, that they speak not deceit; ¹¹Let him turn away from mischief, and do good, Let him seek peace, and pursue it; ¹²Because, the eyes of the Lord, are towards the righteous, and his ears, unto their supplication,—Whereas, the face of the Lord, is against them that are doing mischievous things. ¹³Who, then, is he that shall harm you, if, for that which is good, ye become zealous? ¹⁴Nevertheless, even if ye should suffer for righteousness' sake, happy are ye! Their fear, however, do not fear, neither be troubled; ¹⁵But, the Lord Christ, hallow ye in your hearts, ready always for a defence, unto every one that is asking you a reason concerning, the hope within you,—nevertheless, with meekness and reverence: ¹⁶Having, a good conscience, in order that, wherein they speak against you, they may be put to shame who cast wanton insult on, your good behaviour in Christ. ¹⁷For it is, better, as well-doers, if it should please the pleasure of God, to be suffering, than, as evil-doers: ¹⁸Because, Christ also, once for all, concerning sins, died,—Just in behalf of unjust,—in order that he might introduce us unto God; being put to death, indeed, in flesh, but made alive in spirit,—¹⁹In which, even unto the spirits in prison, he went and proclaimed,—²⁰Spirits unyielding at one time, when the longsuffering of God was holding forth a welcome in the days of Noah, there being in preparation an ark—going into which, a few, that is eight, souls, were brought safely through by means of water,—²¹Which water in manner corresponding, doth, now, save, you also—even immersion,—not a putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the request unto God, for a good conscience, through the resurrection of Jesus Christ,—²²Who is on the right hand of God, having gone into heaven, messengers and authorities and powers, having been made subject unto him.

4Christ, then, having suffered in flesh, do, ye also, with the same purpose, arm yourselves,—because, he that hath suffered in flesh, hath done with sins,—²To the end that, no longer, in men's covetings, but in God's will, ye may live, the still remaining time. ³For, sufficient, is the bygone time—to have wrought out, the will of the nations, having gone on in wanton ways, covetings, wine-drinkings, revel-

lings, drinking-bouts, and impious idolatries:—⁴Wherein they are taken by surprise that ye run not with them into the same overflow of riotous excess,—uttering defamation: ⁵Who shall render an account unto him who is holding in readiness to judge living and dead; ⁶For, unto this end, even unto the dead, was the glad-message delivered,—in order that they might be judged, indeed, according to men in flesh, but might live according to God in spirit. ⁷But, the end of all things, hath drawn near:—be of sound mind, therefore, and be sober for prayers; ⁸Before all things, keeping, fervent, your love, among yourselves, because, love, covereth a multitude of sins; ⁹Showing hospitality one to another without murmuring,—¹⁰Each one, according as he hath received a gift of favour, unto one another, ministering the same, as careful stewards of the manifold favour of God: ¹¹If any one speaketh, as oracles of God, if any one ministereth, as of strength which, God, supplieth,—that, in all things, God may be glorified through Jesus Christ,—unto whom are the glory and the dominion, unto the ages of ages. Amen! ¹²Beloved! be not held in surprise by the burning among you, which, for putting you to the proof, is befalling you, as though a, surprising, thing were happening unto you; ¹³But, in so far as ye are taking fellowship in the Christ's sufferings, rejoice! in order that, in the revealing of his glory also, ye may rejoice with exultation: ¹⁴If ye are being reproached in the name of Christ, happy are ye ! Because, the Spirit, of the glory, and the Spirit of God, unto you is bringing rest. ¹⁵For let, none of you, be suffering as a murderer, or a thief, or an evil-doer, or as one prying into other men's affairs; ¹⁶But, if as a Christian, let him not be ashamed, but be glorifying God in this name. ¹⁷For it is the ripe time for the judgment to begin with the house of God; but, if first with us, what shall be the end of them who yield not unto the glad-message of God? ¹⁸And, if, the righteous man, is, with difficulty, saved, where then shall, the ungodly and sinful man, appear? ¹⁹So then, let, them who are even suffering, according to the will of God, unto a faithful Creator, be committing their souls, in well-doing.

⁵Elders, therefore, among you, I exhort— I who am their co-elder and a witness of the sufferings of the Christ, who also, in the glory about to be revealed, have, a share;—²Shepherd the beloved flock of God, which is among you,—not by compulsion, but by choice, nor yet for base gain, but of a ready mind,—³Nor yet as lording it over the allotted portions, but becoming, ensamples, to the beloved flock; ⁴And, when the Chief Shepherd is manifested, ye shall bear away, the unfading crown of glory. ⁵In like manner, ye younger men—submit yourselves unto elders;—All, however, one towards another, gird on humility; because, God, against the haughty, arrayeth himself, whereas, unto the lowly, he giveth favour. ⁶Be made lowly, therefore, under the strong hand of God, that he may lift, you, up in due time,—⁷All your anxiety, casting upon him, because he careth for you. ⁸Be sober! be watchful! Your slanderous adversary, as a roaring lion, is walking about—seeking to devour: ⁹Whom resist, steadfast in your faith, knowing that, the same sufferings, in your brotherhood that is in the world, are being accomplished. ¹⁰Howbeit, the God of all favour—who hath called you unto his age-abiding glory in Christ—when, for a little, ye have suffered, Himself, will adjust, confirm, strengthen:—¹¹Unto him, be the dominion, unto the ages. Amen! ¹²By Silvanus, the faithful brother, as I account him, have I briefly written, unto you, exhorting and adding testimony—that, this, is the true favour of God—within which, stand ye fast! ¹³She who, in Babylon, is co-elect, and Mark my son, salute you: ¹⁴Salute ye one another with a kiss of love. Peace unto you all who are in Christ.

II Peter

¹Simon Peter, servant and apostle of Jesus Christ, unto them who have obtained, equally precious, faith, with us, in the righteousness of our God, and Saviour Jesus Christ, ²Favour unto you, and peace, be multiplied, in the personal knowledge of God and of Jesus our Lord;— ³As, all things, suited for life and godliness his divine power, unto us, hath given, through the personal knowledge of him that hath called us through glory and excellence,— ⁴Through which, his precious, and very great, promises, have, unto us, been given, in order that, through these, ye might become sharers in a divine nature—escaping the corruption that is in the world by coveting. ⁵And, for this very reason also—adding, on your part, all diligence, supply, in your faith, excellence, and, in your excellence, knowledge, ⁶And, in your knowledge, self-control, and, in your self-control, endurance, and, in your endurance, godliness, ⁷And, in your godliness, brotherly affection, and, in your brotherly affection, love. ⁸These things, unto you, belonging and abounding, neither idle nor unfruitful, constitute you, regarding the personal knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ; ⁹For, he to whom these things are not present, is, blind, seeing only what is near, having come, to forget, his purification from his old sins. ¹⁰Wherefore, all the more, brethren, give diligence to be making, firm, your calling and election; for, these things, doing, in nowise shall ye stumble at any time, ¹¹For, thus, shall richly be further supplied unto you—the entrance into the age-abiding kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. ¹²Wherefore, I shall be certain to be, always, putting you in remembrance concerning these things,—although, indeed, ye know them, and have become confirmed in the present truth; ¹³Right, nevertheless, I account it—as long as I am in this tent, to be stirring you up by putting you in remembrance, ¹⁴Knowing that, speedy, is the putting off of my tent—even as, our Lord Jesus Christ also, made clear to me: ¹⁵Yea, I will give diligence also, that, at every time, ye may be able, after my own departure, to be keeping up the remembrance of, these very things. ¹⁶For, not as having followed, cleverly devised stories, made we known unto you the power and presence of our Lord Jesus Christ, but as having been made, spectators, of his majesty. ¹⁷For, when he received from God the Father honour and glory, a voice, being borne to him such as this, by the magnificent glory—My Son, the beloved, is, this, in whom, I, delight, ¹⁸Even this voice, we, heard, when, out of heaven, it was borne, we being, with him, in the holy mount. ¹⁹And we have, more firm, the prophetic word;—whereunto ye are doing, well, to take heed,—as unto a lamp shining in a dusky place,—until, day, shall dawn, and, a day-star, shall arise in your hearts:— ²⁰Of this, first, taking note—that, no prophecy of scripture, becometh, self-solving; ²¹For not, by will of man, was prophecy brought in, at any time, but, as, by Holy Spirit, they were borne along, spake, men, from God.

²But there arose false-prophets also among the people, as, among you also, there shall be, false-teachers,—men who will stealthily bring in destructive parties, even the Master that bought them, denying, bringing upon themselves speedy destruction; ²And, many, will follow out their wanton ways,—by reason of whom, the way of truth, will be defamed, ³And, in greed, with forged words, will they, of you, make merchandise: for whom, the sentence from of old, is not idle, and, their destruction, doth not slumber. ⁴For—if, God, spared not, messengers, when they sinned, but, to pits of gloom, consigning them, in the lowest hades, delivered them up to be kept, unto judgment,— ⁵And, an ancient world, spared not, but, with seven others, preserved, Noah, a proclaimer, of righteousness, a flood, upon a world of ungodly persons, letting loose,— ⁶And, the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah, reducing to ashes, he condemned, an example of such as should be ungodly, having set forth,— ⁷And, righteous Lot, when getting worn out by the behaviour of them who were impious in wantonness, he rescued— ⁸For, in seeing and hearing, since he dwelt right among them, as a righteous man, he used to torment his soul, day by day, with their lawless deeds— ⁹Then the Lord knoweth how to rescue, the godly out of trial; but to keep, the unrighteous unto a day of judgment to be punished;— ¹⁰Most of all, however, them who go their way, after the flesh, with a coveting of defilement, and who despise, lordship,—daring! willful! before dignitaries, they tremble not, defaming, ¹¹where, messengers, though, greater in might and power, are not bringing against them \u0011 before the Lord\u0010 a defamatory accusation,—¹²These, however, as unreasoning creatures that have been bred as being, by nature, for capture and destruction, in the things they are ignorant of, uttering defamation, in their spoiling, shall also be made a spoil,—¹³Doing wrong themselves, for a reward of wrong, accounting, a delight, their day-time delicacy, spots and blemishes, indulging in delicacies with their stratagems, as they carouse together with you, ¹⁴Having, eyes, full of an adulteress, and that cannot rest from sin, enticing unstable souls, having, a heart trained in greed,—children of a curse,—¹⁵Forsaking a straight path, they have gone astray, following out the way of Balaam son of Beor, who loved, a reward of wrong, ¹⁶But had, a reproof, of his own transgression, a dumb beast of burden, in man's voice, finding utterance, forbade the prophet's madness. ¹⁷These, are fountains without water, and mists, by a tempest, driven along,—for whom, the gloom of darkness, hath been reserved; ¹⁸For, great swelling words of vanity, uttering, they entice with carnal covetings—in wanton ways—they who are, well-nigh, escaping from the men who, in error, have their behaviour; ¹⁹Promising, freedom to them, they themselves, being all the while, slaves of corruption,—for, by whom one hath been defeated, by the same, hath he become enslaved,—²⁰For, if, having escaped from the defilements of the world by a personal knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, but, by the same having again become entangled, they are defeated, the, last, state hath become, for them, worse than, the first; ²¹For, better, had it been for them—not to have obtained a personal knowledge of the way of righteousness, than, having obtained such knowledge, to turn back out of the holy commandment delivered unto them. ²²There hath befallen them the thing spoken of in the true proverb—A dog, turning back unto his own vomit, and—A sow, as soon as washed, unto wallowing in mire.

3This, already, beloved, is the second letter I am writing unto you; and, in these letters, I am stirring up—by way of calling to remembrance—your uncorrupted mind, ²To remember the fore-spoken declarations made by the holy prophets, and the commandment of the Lord and Saviour, by your apostles. ³Of this, first, taking note—that there will come, in the last of the days, with scoffing, scoffers, after their own covetings, going on, ⁴and saying—Where is the promise of his presence? For, since the fathers fell asleep, all things, thus remain, from the beginning of creation. ⁵For this they, willfully, forget—that there were, heavens, from of old, and, an earth, on account of water and by means of water, compacted, by God's word,—⁶By which means, the world that then was, with water being flooded, perished; ⁷While, the heavens and the earth that now are, by the same word, have been stored with fire, being kept unto the day of judgment and destruction of the ungodly men. ⁸But, this one thing, forget not, beloved,— that, one day, with the Lord, is as a thousand years, and, a thousand years, as one day. ⁹The Lord is, not slack, concerning his promise, as some count, slackness; but is long-suffering with regard to you, not being minded that any should perish, but that, all, unto repentance, should come. ¹⁰Howbeit the day of the Lord will be here, as a thief,—in which, the heavens, with a rushing noise, will pass away, while, elements, becoming intensely hot, will be dissolved, and, earth, and the works therein, will be discovered. ¹¹Seeing that all these things are thus to be dissolved, what manner of persons, ought \ul1 ye\ul0 all the while to be, in holy ways of behaviour and acts of godliness,—¹²Expecting and hastening the presence of the day of God, by reason of which, heavens, being on fire, will be dissolved, and, elements, becoming intensely hot, are to be melted; ¹³But, new heavens, and a new earth, according to his promise, are we expecting, wherein, righteousness, is to dwell. ¹⁴Wherefore, beloved, these things, expecting—give diligence, unspotted and unblemished, by him, to be found, in peace; ¹⁵And account, our Lord's long suffering, to be salvation:—even as, our beloved brother Paul also, according to the wisdom given unto him, hath written unto you; ¹⁶As also, in all letters, speaking in them concerning these things,—in which letters are some things, hard to be understood, which, the uninstructed and unstable, wrest,—as also the other scriptures,—unto their own destruction. ¹⁷Ye, therefore, beloved, taking note beforehand, be on your guard, lest, with the error of the impious being led away, ye fall from your own steadfastness; ¹⁸But be growing in the favour and knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ:—unto whom be the glory, both now and unto a day that abideth.

I John

¹That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we for ourselves gazed upon, and our hands did handle, concerning the Word of Life,—²And, the Life, was made manifest, and we have seen, and are bearing witness, and announcing unto you, the Age-abiding Life, which, indeed, was with the Father, and was made manifest unto us; ³That which we have seen and heard, are we announcing, even unto you, in order that, ye too, may have fellowship with us, and, our own fellowship also, may be with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ. ⁴And, these things, are we writing, in order that, our joy, may be made full. ⁵And this is the message which we have heard from him, and are reporting unto you,—that, God, is, light, and in him is, no darkness at all. ⁶If we say—We have, fellowship, with him! and, in darkness, are walking, we are dealing falsely, and not doing the truth; ⁷Whereas, if, in the light, we are walking, as, he, is in the light, we have, fellowship one with another, and, the blood of Jesus his Son, is cleansing us from all sin. ⁸If we say—Sin, have we none! we are deceiving, ourselves, and, the truth, is not in us. ⁹If we are confessing our sins, faithful, is he and, righteous—that he should forgive us our sins, and cleanse us from all unrighteousness. ¹⁰If we say—We have not sinned! false, are we making, him, and, his word, is not in us.

²My dear children! these things, am I writing unto you, in order that ye may not be committing sin. And, if any-one should commit sin, an Advocate, have we, with the Father, Jesus Christ, the Righteous; ²And, he, is, a propitiation, concerning our sins,—and, not concerning our own only, but, also concerning those of the whole world. ³And, hereby, perceive we, that we understand him,—if, his commandments, we are keeping. ⁴He that saith—I understand him! And, his commandments, is not keeping, is false, and, in him, the truth is not! ⁵But whosoever may be keeping his word, of a truth, in this man, the love of God hath been made perfect. Hereby, perceive we, that, in him, we are. ⁶He that saith, that, in him, he abideth, ought, just as He walked, himself also, to be walking. ⁷Beloved! no new commandment, am I writing unto you; but an old commandment, which ye have been holding from the beginning: The old commandment is the word which ye have heard. ⁸Again, a new commandment, am I writing unto you,—which thing is true, in him and in you, because, the darkness, is passing away, and, the real light, already is shining. ⁹He that saith he is, in the light, and hateth, his brother, is, in the darkness, until even now! ¹⁰He that loveth his brother, is abiding, in the light, and, cause of stumbling, in him, is there none. ¹¹Whereas, he that hateth his brother, in the darkness, dwelleth, and in the darkness, walketh; and knoweth not whither he is drifting, because the, darkness, hath blinded his eyes. ¹²I write unto you, dear children, because your sins have been forgiven you, for the sake of his name: ¹³I write unto you, fathers, because ye understand him who was from the beginning: I write unto you, young men, because ye have overcome the wicked one. I have written unto you, little children, because ye understand the Father: ¹⁴I have written unto you, fathers, because ye understand him who was from the beginning: I have written you, young men, because ye are, strong, and the word of God, within you, abideth, and ye have overcome the wicked one. ¹⁵Be not loving the world, nor yet the things that are in the world: if anyone be loving the world, the love of the Father is not in him. ¹⁶Because, all that is in the world—the coveting of the flesh, the coveting of the eyes, and the vain grandeur of life—is not of the Father, but is, of the world; ¹⁷And, the world, passeth away, and the coveting \ul1 thereof\ul0 , but, he that doeth the will of God, endureth unto times age-abiding. ¹⁸Little children! it is, the last hour; and, just as ye have heard that, an antichrist, is coming, even now, antichrists have become, many, whence we perceive that it is, the last hour: ¹⁹From among us, they went out, but they were not of us; for, if, of us, they had been, they would in that case have abode with us; but it came to pass in order that they might be made manifest, because, all, are not of us. ²⁰And, ye, have, an anointing, from the Holy One,—Ye all, know: ²¹I have not written unto you because ye know not the truth, but because ye know it, and because, no falsehood, is, of the truth. ²²Who, is the False One;—save he that denieth that, Jesus, is the Christ? The same, is the Antichrist,—he that denieth the Father and the Son. ²³Whosoever denieth the Son, neither hath he, the Father: He that confesseth the Son, hath, the Father also. ²⁴As for you, what ye have heard from the beginning, in you, let it abide. If, in you, shall abide, that which, from the beginning, ye have heard, ye also, in the Son, and \u011 in \u010 the Father, shall abide. ²⁵And, this, is the promise, which he hath promised unto us,—The age-abiding life. ²⁶These things, have I written unto you, concerning them who would lead you astray. ²⁷And, as for you, the anointing which ye have received from him, abideth in you, and ye have, no need, that anyone be teaching you; but, as, his anointing, is teaching you, and is, true, and is no falsehood, even just as it hath taught you, abide ye in him. ²⁸And, now, dear children, abide ye in him, in order that, if he be made manifest, we may have boldness, and not be shamed away from him by his presence. ²⁹If ye know that he is, righteous, ye perceive that—whosoever doeth righteousness, of him, hath been born.

3Behold, what manner of love, the Father hath bestowed upon us—that, children of God, we should be called,—and such we are! Therefore, the world understandeth us not, because it understood not him. ²Beloved! now, are we, children of God; and, not yet, hath it been made manifest, what we shall be,—We know that, if it should be made manifest, like unto him, shall we be, because we shall see him, just as he is. ³And, whosoever hath this hope on him, is purifying himself, just as, He, is pure. ⁴Whosoever is committing sin, lawlessness also, is committing, and, sin, is, lawlessness; ⁵And ye know, that, He, was made manifest—in order that, our sins, he should take away, and, sin, in him, is there none. ⁶Whosoever, in him, doth abide, is not sinning: whosoever is sinning, hath not seen him, and doth not understand him. ⁷Dear children! Let, no one, lead you astray! He that is doing righteousness, is, righteous, just as, He, is righteous: ⁸He that is committing sin, is, of the adversary, because, from the beginning, the adversary is sinning. To this end, was the Son of God made manifest, in order that he might undo the works of the adversary. ⁹Whosoever hath been born of God, is not committing, sin, because, a seed of him, within him, abideth; and he cannot be committing sin, because, of God, hath he been born. ¹⁰Herein, are, manifest, the children of God, and the children of the adversary: Whoever is not doing righteousness, is not of God, nor yet he that is not loving his brother. ¹¹Because, this, is the message which ye have heard from the beginning—that we should be loving one another,—¹²Not just as, Cain, was, of the wicked one, and slew his brother! And, for what cause, slew he him? Because, his works, were, wicked, whereas, those of his brother, were, righteous. ¹³Be not marveling, brethren, if, the world, is hating you: ¹⁴We, know, that we have passed over out of death into life, because we love the brethren: he that loveth not, abideth in death. ¹⁵Whosoever is hating his brother, is, a murderer; and ye know that, no murderer, hath life age-during, within him abiding. ¹⁶Hereby, have we come to understand love: in that, He, for us, his life laid down; and, we, ought, for the brethren, our lives to lay down. ¹⁷But, whoso hath this world's goods, and beholdeth his brother having, need, and shutteth up his tender affections from him, how, is, the love of God, abiding in him? ¹⁸Dear children! Let us not be loving in word, nor yet with the tongue, but in deed and truth. ¹⁹Hereby, shall we get to know, that, of the truth, we are, and, before him, shall persuade our heart; ²⁰Because, if our own heart condemn us, greater, is God, than our heart, and perceiveth all things. ²¹Beloved! if our heart be not condemning us, boldness, have we, towards God; ²²And, whatsoever we are asking, we are receiving from him, because, his commandments, are we keeping, and, the things that are pleasing before him, are we doing. ²³And, this, is his commandment,—that we should believe in the name of his Son Jesus Christ, and be loving one another—just as he gave a commandment unto us. ²⁴And, he that keepeth his commandments, in him, abideth, and, he, in him. And, hereby, perceive we, that he abideth in us, by reason of the Spirit which, unto us, he hath given.

4Beloved! not in every spirit, believe ye, but test the spirits, whether they are, of God; because, many false prophets, have gone out into the world. ²Hereby, do ye perceive the Spirit of God:—every spirit that confesseth Jesus Christ as having come, in flesh, is, of God; ³And, every spirit that doth not confess Jesus, of God, is not. And, this, is the spirit of the Antichrist, touching which ye have heard that it cometh: even now, is it, in the world, already. ⁴Ye, are, of God, dear children, and have overcome them; because, greater, is he that is in you, than he that is in the world. ⁵They, are, of the world: For this cause, of the world, they speak, and the world, unto them, doth hearken. ⁶We, are, of God: he that is getting to understand God, hearkeneth unto us,—whoso is not of God, hearkeneth not unto us: from this, perceive we—the spirit of truth, and the spirit of error. ⁷Beloved! let us be loving one another; because, love, is, of God, and, whosoever loveth, of God, hath been born, and is getting to understand God: ⁸He that doth not love, doth not understand God, because, God, is, love. ⁹Herein, hath the love of God in us, been made manifest, that, his only-begotten Son, God sent into the world, in order that we might live through him. ¹⁰Herein, is love: not that, we, have loved God, but that, he, loved us, and sent forth his Son, as a propitiation concerning our sins. ¹¹Beloved! If, in this way, God, loved us, we also, ought to love, one another. ¹²Upon God, hath no one, at any time, gazed: If we love one another, God, in us, abideth, and, his love, hath been perfected within us. ¹³Hereby, perceive we—that, in him, are we abiding, and, he, in us,—in that, of his Spirit, hath he given unto us. ¹⁴And, we, for ourselves have gazed, and are bearing witness—that, the Father, sent forth the Son, as Saviour of the world. ¹⁵Whosoever shall confess, that, Jesus \u0022 Christ\u0022 is the Son of God, God, in him, abideth, and, he, in God. ¹⁶And, we, have come to understand and to trust the love which, God, hath, in us. God, is, love; and, he that abideth in love, in God, abideth, and, God, in him \u0022 abideth\u0022 . ¹⁷Herein, hath love with us, been made perfect,—in order that, boldness, we might have in the day of judging,—in that, just as, He, is, we also, are, in this world. ¹⁸Fear, existeth not, in love, but, perfect love, casteth fear, outside; because, fear, hath correction: he that feareth, hath not been made perfect, in love. ¹⁹We, love, because, he, first loved us:— ²⁰If one should say, I love God, and should be hating, his brother, false, is he; for, he that doth not love his brother, whom he hath seen, God, whom he hath not seen, he cannot love! ²¹And, this commandment, have we from him,—that, he who loveth God, love, his brother also.

⁵Whosoever believeth that, Jesus, is the Christ, of God, hath been born: and, whosoever loveth him that begat, loveth him that hath been begotten of him. ²Hereby, perceive we, that we love the children of God, as soon as, God, we love, and, his commandments, we are doing. ³For, this is the love of God—that, his commandments, we be keeping, and, his commandments, are not burdensome; ⁴Because, whatsoever hath been born of God, overcometh the world; and, this, is the victory that hath overcome the world—our faith. ⁵\u0022 And\u0022 who is he that overcometh the world, save he that believeth that, Jesus, is the Son of God? ⁶This, is he that came through means of water and blood, Jesus Christ: not, by the water, only, but, by the water and by the blood,—and, the Spirit, it is, that is bearing witness, because, the Spirit, is the truth. ⁷Because, three, are they who are bearing witness— ⁸The Spirit, and the Water, and the Blood; and, the three, are, witnesses , unto one thing. ⁹If, the witness of men, we receive, the witness of God, is, greater. Because, this, is the witness of God—in that he hath borne witness concerning his Son,— ¹⁰He that believeth on the Son of God, hath the witness, within himself: He that doth not believe God, false, hath made him,—because he hath not believed on the witness which, God, hath witnessed, concerning his Son— ¹¹And, this, is the witness:—that, life age-abiding, hath God given unto us, and, this life, is, in his Son: ¹²He that hath the Son, hath, the life,—he that hath not the Son of God, hath not, the life. ¹³These things, have I written unto you—in order that ye may know that ye have, Life Age-abiding—unto you who believe on the name of the Son of God. ¹⁴And, this, is the boldness which we have towards him: that, if, anything, we ask, according to his will, He doth hearken unto us. ¹⁵And, if we know that he doth hearken unto us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the things asked, which we have asked of him, ¹⁶If one should see his brother committing a sin, not unto death, he shall ask, and He will grant unto him life,—for them who are sinning, not unto death. There, is, a sin, unto death: not concerning that, am I saying, that he should make request. ¹⁷All unrighteousness, is, sin, and there, is, a sin, not unto death. ¹⁸We know that, whosoever hath been born of God, is not committing sin,—Nay, he that hath been born of God, He keepeth him, and, the wicked one, doth not touch him. ¹⁹We know that, of God, are we; and, the whole world, in the wicked one, is lying. ²⁰We know, moreover, that, the Son of God, hath come, and hath given us insight, so that we are getting to understand, him that is Real,—and we are in him that is Real, in his Son Jesus Christ. This, is the Real God, and life age-abiding. ²¹Dear children! Guard yourselves from idols.

II John

¹The Elder, unto an elect lady and her children, whom I love in truth; and not, I, alone, but all those also who understand the truth,—²For the sake of the truth that abideth in us, and, with us, shall be unto times age-abiding,³Favour, mercy, peace shall be with us, from God the Father, and from Jesus Christ the Son of the Father, in truth and love. ⁴I rejoiced exceedingly, in that I had found, from among thy children, such as were walking in truth, even as, a commandment, we received from the Father. ⁵And, now, I request thee, lady, not as writing, a new commandment, unto thee, but one which we were holding from the beginning—That we should be loving one another. ⁶And, this, is love, that we should be walking according to his commandments: This, is, the commandment, even as ye heard from the beginning, that, therein, ye should be walking. ⁷Because, many deceivers, have gone out into the world, they who do not confess Jesus Christ coming in flesh: This, is the deceiver and the antichrist. ⁸Be taking heed unto yourselves, lest ye lose what things we earned,—but, a full reward, ye may duly receive. ⁹Every one that taketh a lead, and abideth not in the teaching of Christ, hath not, God: he that abideth in the teaching, the same, hath, both the Father and the Son. ¹⁰If anyone cometh unto you and, this teaching, doth not bring, be not receiving him home, and, Joy to thee! do not say; ¹¹For, he that biddeth him rejoice, hath fellowship with his wicked works. ¹²Though I had many things, unto you, to write, I was not minded to say them with paper and ink; but I hope to come unto you, and, mouth to mouth, to talk,—that your joy may be made full. ¹³The children of thy chosen sister salute thee.

III John

¹The elder, unto Gaius the beloved, whom, I, love in truth.
²Beloved! concerning all things, I pray thou mayest be prospering, and be in health, even as, thy soul, is prospering, ³For I rejoiced exceedingly, at brethren coming and bearing witness unto thy truth,—even as, thou, in truth, art walking.
⁴I have no, greater, favour than these things, that I should be hearing that, my own children, in the truth, are walking.
⁵Beloved! a faithful thing, art thou doing, whatsoever thou shalt accomplish for them that are brethren, and withal strangers,— ⁶Who have borne witness to thy love before the assembly: whom thou wilt do, nobly, to set forward worthily of God.
⁷For, in behalf of The Name, have they gone forth, taking, nothing, from them of the nations.
⁸We, therefore ought to be sustaining such as these, that we may become, fellowworkers, with the truth.
⁹I wrote something unto the assembly; but, he who is fond of taking the first place among them—Diotrephes, doth not make us welcome.
¹⁰For this cause, if I come, I will bring to remembrance his works which he is doing,—with wicked words, prating against us; and, not content with these, he neither, himself, maketh the brethren welcome, but, them who are minded to do it, he forbiddeth, and, out of the assembly, doth cast them.
¹¹Beloved! be not thou imitating what is bad, but what is good. He that doeth good, is, of God: he that doeth what is bad, hath not seen God.
¹²Unto Demetrius, hath witness been borne by all and by the truth itself; howbeit, we also, bear witness, and thou knowest that, our witness, is, true.
¹³Many things, had I to write unto thee,—but I am unwilling, with ink and pen, to be writing;
¹⁴I hope, however, straightway, to see thee, and, mouth to mouth, will we talk. Peace be unto thee. The friends salute thee. Salute the friends by name.

Jude

¹Jude, Jesus Christ's servant, and brother of James, unto the called, by God the Father, beloved, and, by Jesus Christ preserved,—²Mercy to you, and peace, and love, be multiplied! ³Beloved! though I was using all diligence to be writing unto you concerning our common salvation, yet have I had necessity to write at once unto you, exhorting you to be earnestly contending for, the faith, once for all delivered unto the saints. ⁴For there have crept in unobserved certain men, who, from of old, have been publicly notified for this sentence, ungodly, men, the favour of our God, turning into wantonness, and, our only Master and Lord, Jesus Christ, denying. ⁵I am minded, therefore, to put you in remembrance,—though ye know all things once for all, That the Lord, when a people out of Egypt he had saved, in, the next place, them that believed not, destroyed. ⁶Messengers also, even them who had not kept their own principality, but had forsaken their proper dwelling, unto the judgment of the great day in perpetual bonds under thick gloom, hath he reserved. ⁷As, Sodom and Gomorrah, and the cities around them, having in like manner to these given themselves over to fornication, and gone away after other kind of flesh, lie exposed as an example, a penalty of age-abiding fire, undergoing. ⁸In like manner, nevertheless, even these, in their dreamings, flesh indeed defile, while lordship they set aside, and dignities they defame. ⁹Whereas, Michael, the chief-messenger, when, with the adversary, disputing, he was reasoning about the body of Moses, durst not impose on him a defamatory sentence, but said—The Lord rebuke thee! ¹⁰But, these, whatsoever things, indeed, they know not, they defame; but, whatsoever things, naturally, like the irrational creatures, they well understand, by these, are they, bringing themselves to ruin. ¹¹Alas for them! because—in the way of Cain have they gone, and, in the error of Balaam's wage, have they run riot, and, in the gainsaying of Korah, have they perished. ¹²These are they—who, in your love-feasts, are hidden rocks, as they fare sumptuously together, fearlessly, themselves, shepherding,—clouds without water, by winds swept along, trees autumnal, fruitless, twice dead, uprooted, ¹³Wild waves of sea, foaming out their own infamies, wandering stars, for whom the gloom of darkness age-abiding hath been reserved. ¹⁴But the seventh from

Adam, Enoch, prophesied, even of these, saying—Lo! the Lord hath come with his holy myriads,—¹⁵To execute judgment against all, and to convict all the ungodly—of all their works of ungodliness, which they committed in ungodliness, and of all the hard things which they have spoken against him—sinners, ungodly! ¹⁶These, are murmurers, complainers, according to their covetings, going on,—and, their mouth, speaketh great swelling words,—holding persons in admiration, for profit's sake. ¹⁷But, ye, beloved! remember the things which were foretold by the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ, ¹⁸How that they used to say to you—In the last time, there shall be mockers,—according to their own ungodly covetings, going on. ¹⁹These, are they who make complete separation, mere men of soul, Spirit, not possessing. ²⁰But, ye, beloved! building yourselves up in your most holy faith, in Holy Spirit, praying, ²¹Yourselves, in God's love, keep,—awaiting the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ, unto age-abiding life. ²²And, on some, indeed, have mercy,—such as are in doubt, be saving, out of the fire, snatching them; ²³But, on others, have mercy with fear, hating even, the garment, spotted by the flesh. ²⁴Now, unto him who is able—to guard you from stumbling, and to set you in the presence of his glory, without blemish, with exultation,—²⁵Unto God alone our Saviour, through Jesus Christ our Lord, be glory, greatness, dominion, and authority, before all the by-gone age, and now, and unto all the coming ages. Amen!

Revelation of John

1The Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave to him, to point out unto his servants the things which must needs come to pass with speed,—and he shewed them by signs, sending through his messenger, unto his servant John; ²who bare witness as to the word of God, and the witness of Jesus Christ,—whatsoever things he saw. ³Happy! he that readeth, and they who hear, the words of the prophecy, and keep the things, therein, written; for, the season, is, near. ⁴John, unto the Seven Assemblies which are in Asia, Favour to you, and peace, from—Him who Is, and who Was, and who is Coming, and from—The Seven Spirits which are before his throne, ⁵and from—Jesus Christ,—The Faithful Witness, The Firstborn of the Dead, and The Ruler of the Kings of the Earth. Unto him that loveth us, and loosed us out of our sins with his blood,— ⁶and he hath made us to be a kingdom—priests unto his God and Father, Unto him, be the glory, and the dominion, unto the ages. Amen. ⁷Lo! he cometh with the clouds, and every eye shall see him, such also as pierced him; and all the tribes of the land shall smite themselves for him. Yea! Amen. ⁸I, am, the A, and, the Z, saith the Lord,—the, God who Is, and who Was, and who is Coming, The Almighty. ⁹I, John, your brother, and partaker with you in the tribulation and kingdom and endurance in Jesus, came to be in the isle that is called Patmos, because of the word of God, and the witness of Jesus. ¹⁰I came to be, in Spirit, in the Lord's Day, and heard, behind me, a loud voice, as of a trumpet, ¹¹saying—What thou seest, write in a scroll, and send unto the Seven Assemblies,—unto Ephesus, and unto Smyrna, and unto Pergamum,—and unto Thyatira, and unto Sardis, and unto Philadelphia,—and unto Laodicea. ¹²And I turned round, to see the Voice which was speaking with me, and, having turned, I saw Seven Lamps of gold; ¹³and, in the midst of the lamps, One like unto a Son of Man:—clothed with a robe, reaching to the feet, and girt about at the breasts with a girdle of gold, ¹⁴And his head and hair, white, like white wool—like snow, and, his eyes, like a flame of fire, ¹⁵And, his feet, like unto glowing copper, as if in a furnace refined, and, his voice, like a sound of many waters, ¹⁶And, having in his right hand, seven stars, and, out of his mouth, a sharp, two-edged sword, going forth; and, his whole appearance, as when, the sun, shineth in its strength. ¹⁷And, when I saw him, I fell at his feet as dead, and he laid his right hand upon me, saying—Do not fear! I, am the First, and the Last, ¹⁸and the Living One,—and I became dead;—and lo! living, am I, unto the ages of ages, and have the keys of death and of hades. ¹⁹Write, therefore—what things thou hast seen and what they are; and what things are about to come to pass, after these things: ²⁰The sacred secret of the seven stars, which thou sawest upon my right hand, and the seven lamps of gold:—The seven stars, are, messengers of the seven assemblies, and, the seven lamps, are, seven assemblies

2Unto the messenger of the assembly, in Ephesus, write:—These things, saith he that holdeth the seven stars in his right hand, he that walketh in the midst of the seven lamps of gold: ²I know thy works, and thy toil, and endurance, and that thou canst not bear bad men, and thou hast tried them who were affirming themselves to be apostles, and they were not, and hast found them false; ³And thou hast, endurance, and hast borne for the sake of my name, and hast not grown weary. ⁴Nevertheless, I have against thee, that, thy first love, thou hast left. ⁵Remember, therefore, whence thou hast fallen, and repent, and do, thy first works; otherwise, I come unto thee, and will remove thy lamp out of its place, except thou repent. ⁶But, this, thou hast, that thou hatest the works of the Nicolaitanes, which, I also, hate. ⁷He that hath an ear, let him hear what, the Spirit, is saying unto the assemblies. Unto him that overcometh—I will give, unto him, to eat of the tree of life, which is in the paradise of God. ⁸And, unto the messenger of the assembly, in Smyrna, write:—These things, saith the first and the last, who became dead, and lived: ⁹I know thy tribulation, and destitution, nevertheless, thou art, rich, and the profane speech from among them who affirm that they themselves are, Jews, and they are not, but a synagogue of Satan. ¹⁰Do not fear the things which thou art about to suffer. Lo! the adversary is about to cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried, and may have tribulation ten days. Become thou faithful until death, and I will give thee the crown of life. ¹¹He that hath an ear, let him hear what, the Spirit, is saying unto the assemblies. He that overcometh, shall in nowise be injured by reason of the second death. ¹²And, unto the messenger of the assembly, in Pergamum, write:—These things, saith he that hath the sharp, two-edged sword: ¹³I know where thou dwellest, where, the throne of Satan, is; and thou art holding fast my name, and didst not deny my faith, even in the days of Antipas, my witness, my faithful one, who was killed near you, where, Satan, dwelleth. ¹⁴Nevertheless, I have against thee, a few things,—that thou hast there, such as hold fast the teaching of Balaam,—who went on to teach Balak to throw a cause of stumbling before the sons of Israel, to eat idol-sacrifices and to commit lewdness: ¹⁵thus, even, thou, hast such as hold fast the teaching of the Nicolaitanes, in like manner. ¹⁶Repent, therefore, otherwise, I come unto thee speedily,—and will fight against them, with the sword of my mouth. ¹⁷He that hath an ear, let him hear what, the Spirit, is saying unto the assemblies. Unto him that overcometh, I will give, unto him, of the hidden manna, and I will give unto him a white stone, and, upon the stone, a new name written, which, no one, knoweth, save he that receiveth it. ¹⁸And, unto the messenger of the assembly, in Thyatira, write:—These things, saith the Son of God, who hath his eyes like a flame of fire, and his feet like unto glowing copper: ¹⁹I know thy works, and thy love, and faith, and ministry, and endurance,—and that, thy last works, are more than the first. ²⁰Nevertheless, I have against thee, that thou sufferest the woman Jezebel, she who calleth herself a prophetess, and is teaching and leading astray my own servants to commit lewdness and to eat idol-sacrifices; ²¹and I gave her time, that she might repent, and she willeth not to repent out of her lewdness. ²²Lo! I cast her into a bed, and them who are committing adultery with her, into great tribulation,—except they repent out of her works; ²³and, her children, will I slay with death;—and all the assemblies shall get to know, that, I, am he that searcheth reins and hearts, and will give unto you, each one, according to your works. ²⁴But, unto you, I say,—the rest who are in Thyatira, as many as have not this teaching, such as have not come to know the deep things of Satan, as they say, I do not cast upon you any other burden; ²⁵nevertheless, what ye have, hold fast, till I shall have come. ²⁶And, he that overcometh, and keepeth throughout my works, I will, give unto him, authority over the nations; ²⁷and he shall shepherd them with a sceptre of iron,—as, vessels of earthenware, are dashed in pieces:—as, I also, have received from my Father. ²⁸And I will give unto him the morning star. ²⁹He that hath an ear, let him hear what, the Spirit, is saying unto the assemblies.

3And, unto the messenger of the assembly, in Sardis, write:—These things, saith he that hath the seven Spirits of God, and the seven stars: I know thy works,—that, a name, thou hast, that thou art living, and art, dead. ²Become thou watchful, and strengthen the things that remain, that were about to die; for I have not found thy works fulfilled before my God. ³Remember, therefore, how thou hast received, and didst hear, and keep it and repent. If then thou shall not watch, I will have come as a thief, and in nowise shalt thou get to know, during what sort of hour, I will have come upon thee. ⁴Nevertheless, thou hast a few names, in Sardis, which have not defiled their garments; and they shall walk with me in white, because they are, worthy. ⁵He that overcometh, shall, thus, array himself in white garments, and in nowise will I blot out his name, from the book of life; and I will confess his name before my Father, and before his messengers. ⁶He that hath an ear, let him hear what, the Spirit, is saying unto the assemblies. ⁷And, unto the messenger of the assembly, in Philadelphia, write:—These things, saith he that is holy, he that is true, he that hath the key of David, he that openeth and no one shall shut, and shutteth and no one openeth: ⁸I know thy works,—lo! I have set before thee an open door, as to which, no one, can shut it,—that thou hast, a little strength, and hast kept my word, and hast not denied my name. ⁹Lo! I give them of the synagogue of Satan, who are affirming themselves to be, Jews, and are not,—but say what is false,—lo! I will cause them, that they shall have come, and shall bow down before thy feet, and shall get to know that, I, loved thee. ¹⁰Because thou didst keep my word of endurance, I also, will keep thee out of the hour of trial, which is about to come upon the whole habitable world, to try them that dwell upon the earth. ¹¹I come quickly: hold fast that which thou hast, that, no one, take thy crown. ¹²He that overcometh, I will make, him, a pillar in the sanctuary of my God, and, outside, shall he in nowise go forth any more; and I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, the new Jerusalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God, and I will write upon him my new name. ¹³He that hath an ear, let him hear what, the Spirit, is saying unto the assemblies. ¹⁴And, unto the messenger of the assembly, in Laodicea, write:—These things, saith the Amen, the faithful and true witness the beginning of the creation of God: ¹⁵I know thy works;—that neither, cold, art thou, nor hot: I would that, cold, thou hadst been, or hot. ¹⁶Thus, because, lukewarm, thou art, and neither hot nor cold, I am about to vomit thee out of my mouth. ¹⁷Because thou sayest, Rich, am I, and have become enriched, and, of nothing, have I need, and knowest not that, thou, art the wretched one, and pitiable, and destitute, and blind, and naked, ¹⁸I counsel thee to buy of me, gold refined by fire, that thou mayest become rich,—and white raiment, that thou mayest array thyself, and, the shame of thy nakedness, may not be made manifest,—and eye-salve, to anoint thine eyes, that thou mayest see. ¹⁹I, as many as I tenderly love, I convict and put under discipline: be zealous, therefore, and repent. ²⁰Lo! I am standing at the door, and knocking; if anyone shall hearken unto my voice, and open the door, I will come in unto him, and will sup with him, and, he, with, me. ²¹He that overcometh, I will give, unto him, to take his seat with me in my throne, as, I also, overcame, and took my seat with my Father in his throne. ²²He that hath an ear, let him hear what, the Spirit, is saying unto the assemblies.

⁴After these things, I saw, and lo! a door set open in heaven; and, the first voice which I heard as of a trumpet, speaking with me, saying—Come up hither! and I will point out to thee the things which must needs come to pass. After these things, ²straightway, I came to be in Spirit, and lo! a throne, stood in heaven, and, upon the throne, was one sitting; ³and, he that was sitting, was like in appearance to a jasper stone and a sardius, and there was a rainbow round about the throne, like in appearance unto an emerald, ⁴And, round about the throne, were four and twenty thrones; and, upon the thrones, four and twenty elders sitting, clothed in white garments, and, upon their heads, were crowns of gold. ⁵And, out of the throne, are coming forth lightnings, and voices, and thunderings; and there are seven torches of fire, burning before the throne, which are the seven Spirits of God; ⁶and, before the throne, is as a glassy sea, like unto crystal. And, in the midst of the throne, and around the throne, are four living creatures full of eyes, before and behind; ⁷and, the first living creature, is like unto a lion, and, the second living creature, like unto a calf, and, the third living creature, hath the face as of a man, and, the fourth living creature, is like unto an eagle flying; ⁸and, the four living creatures, each one of them, have severally six wings, round about and within, full of eyes; and they, cease, not, day and night, saying—Holy! holy! holy! Lord, God, the Almighty,—Who was, and Who is, and Who is coming. ⁹And, whensoever the living creatures shall give glory, and honour, and thanksgiving, unto him that sitteth upon the throne, unto him that liveth unto the ages of ages, ¹⁰the four and twenty elders will fall down before him that sitteth upon the throne, and do homage unto him that liveth unto the ages of ages,—and will cast their crowns before the throne, saying—¹¹Worthy, art thou, O Lord, and our God, to receive the glory, and the honour, and the power: because thou didst create all things, and, by reason of thy will, they were, and were created.

⁵And I saw, upon the right hand of him that was sitting upon the throne, a scroll; written within, and on the back, sealed up with seven seals. ²And I saw a mighty messenger, proclaiming with a loud voice—Who is worthy to open the scroll, and to unloose the seals thereof? ³And, no one, was able, in heaven, or on earth, or under the earth, to open the scroll, or, to look thereon. ⁴And, I, began to weep much, because, no one, worthy, was found, to open the scroll, or, to look thereon. ⁵And, one of the elders, saith unto me—Do not weep! Lo! the lion that is of the tribe of Judah, the root of David, hath overcome, to open the scroll and the seven seals thereof. ⁶And I saw, in the midst of the throne and of the four living creatures, and in the midst of the elders, a Lamb, standing, showing that it had been slain,—having seven horns, and seven eyes, which are the ⁷seven Spirits of God sent forth into all the earth. ⁷And he came, and at once took it out of the right hand of him that was sitting upon the throne. ⁸And, when he took the scroll, the four living creatures, and the four-and-twenty elders, fell down before the Lamb, having, each one, a harp, and bowls of gold full of incense,—which are the prayers of the saints; ⁹and they sing a new song, saying—Worthy, art thou, to take the scroll and to open the seals thereof; because thou wast slain, and didst redeem unto God by thy blood men out of every tribe, and tongue, and people, and nation, ¹⁰And didst make them, unto our God, a kingdom and priests,—and they reign on the earth. ¹¹And I saw, and heard a voice of many messengers, round about the throne and the living creatures and the elders,—and the number of them was myriads of myriads and thousands of thousands—¹²saying with a loud voice—Worthy, is the Lamb that hath been slain, to receive the power, and riches, and wisdom, and might, and honour, and glory, and blessing. ¹³And, every created thing which was in heaven, and upon the earth, and under the earth, and upon the sea, and, all the things in them, heard I, saying—Unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb, be the blessing, and the honour, and the glory, and the dominion, unto the ages of ages! ¹⁴And the four living creatures continued saying—Amen! And, the elders, fell down and did homage.

⁶And I saw, when the Lamb opened one of the seven seals, and I heard one of the four living creatures saying, as with a voice of thunder—Go! ²And I saw, and lo! a white horse,—and he that was sitting thereon holding a bow; and there was given unto him a crown, and he went forth conquering, and that he might conquer. ³And, when he opened the second seal, I heard the second living creature, saying—Go! ⁴And there went forth another, a red horse,—and, unto him that was sitting thereon, it was given, ⁵unto him, to take away peace from the earth, and that, one another, they should slay; and there was given unto him a great sword. ⁵And, when he opened the third seal, I heard the third living creature, saying—Go! And I saw, and lo! a black horse, and he that was sitting thereon holding a pair of balances in his hand. ⁶And I heard as a voice in the midst of the four living creatures, saying—A quart of wheat for, a denary, and three quarts of barley, for a denary,—and, the oil and the wine, do not wrong. ⁷And, when he opened the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth living creature, saying—Go! ⁸And I saw, and lo! a livid horse,—and he that was sitting thereupon had for a name, Death, and, Hades, was following with him; and there was given unto them authority over the fourth of the earth, to slay with sword, and with famine, and with death, and by the wild beasts of the earth. ⁹And, when he opened the fifth seal, I saw, beneath the altar, the souls of them who had been slain because of the word of God and because of the witness which they held. ¹⁰And they cried out with a loud voice, saying—How long, O Sovereign, the Holy and True, dost thou not vindicate and avenge our blood from them that dwell upon the earth? ¹¹And there was given to them, each one, a white robe, and it was bidden them, that they should rest yet a little while—until the number should be made full of their fellow-servants also, and their brethren, who were about to be slain as even, they. ¹²And I saw, when he opened the sixth seal, that a, great earthquake, took place; and, the sun, became black as sackcloth of hair, and, the full moon, became as blood, ¹³and, the stars of heaven, fell to the earth, as, a fig-tree, sheddeth her winter figs, when, by a great wind, it is shaken, ¹⁴and, the heaven, was withdrawn, as a scroll rolling itself up, and, every mountain and island, out of their places, were shaken. ¹⁵And, the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rulers of thousands, and the rich, and the mighty, and every bondman and freeman, hid themselves within the caves and within the rocks of the mountains; ¹⁶and they say, unto the mountains and unto the rocks—Fall upon us, and hide us from the face of him that sitteth upon the throne, and from the anger of the Lamb; ¹⁷Because the great day of their anger is come, and who is able to stand?

⁷After this, I saw four messengers, standing at the four corners of the earth, holding fast the four winds of the earth, that no wind might blow upon the land, or upon the sea, or upon any tree. ²And I saw another messenger, ascending from the rising of the sun, holding the seal of the Living God; and he cried out with a loud voice unto the four messengers unto whom it had been given to injure the land and the sea, ³saying—Do not injure the land, or the sea, or the trees, until we have sealed the servants of our God upon their foreheads. ⁴And I heard the number of the sealed,—a hundred and forty-four thousand,—sealed out of every tribe of the sons of Israel:—⁵Of the tribe of Judah, twelve thousand sealed, of the tribe of Reuben, twelve thousand, of the tribe of Gad, twelve thousand, ⁶Of the tribe of Asher, twelve thousand, of the tribe of Naphtali, twelve thousand, of the tribe of Manasseh, twelve thousand, ⁷Of the tribe of Simeon, twelve thousand, of the tribe of Levi, twelve thousand, of the tribe of Issachar, twelve thousand, ⁸Of the tribe of Zebulun, twelve thousand, of the tribe of Joseph, twelve thousand, of the tribe of Benjamin, twelve thousand, sealed. ⁹After these things, I saw, and lo! a great multitude,—which, to number it! no one was able,—of every nation, and of all tribes, and peoples, and tongues; standing before the throne, and before the Lamb; arrayed in white robes, and palm-branches in their hands;—¹⁰and they cry out with a loud voice, saying—Salvation unto our God who sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb! ¹¹And, all the messengers, were standing round about the throne and the elders and the four living creatures; and they fell down before the throne upon their faces, and rendered homage unto God, ¹²saying—Amen! The blessing, and the glory, and the wisdom, and the thanksgiving, and the honour, and the power, and the might,—be unto our God, unto the ages of ages. \ul1 Amen\ul0 ! ¹³And one of the elders began, saying unto me—These who are arrayed in white robes, who are they? and whence came they? ¹⁴And I at once said to him—My lord! thou, knowest! And he said unto me—These, are they who come out of the great tribulation, and they washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb; ¹⁵For this cause, are they before the throne of God, and are rendering divine service unto him, day and night, in his sanctuary; and he that sitteth upon the throne shall spread his tent over them; ¹⁶They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more, neither in any wise shall the sun fall upon them, nor any burning heat; ¹⁷Because, the Lamb that is in the midst of the throne, shall shepherd them, and shall lead them unto life's fountains of waters; and God shall wipe away every tear out of their eyes.

⁸And, as soon as he opened the seventh seal, there came to be silence in heaven, as it were half an hour. ²And I saw the seven messengers which, before God, do stand; and there were given unto them seven trumpets. ³And, another messenger, came, and took his stand at the altar, having a censer of gold: and there was given unto him much incense, that he might give it unto the prayers of all the saints, upon the altar of gold that is before the throne. ⁴And the smoke of the incense went up, with the prayers of the saints, out of the hand of the messenger before God. ⁵And the messenger at once took the censer, and filled it from the fire of the altar, and cast unto the earth; and there came to be thunderings, and voices, and lightnings, and an earthquake. ⁶And, the seven messengers who had the seven trumpets, prepared themselves, that they might sound. ⁷And, the first, sounded; and there came to be hail and fire mingled with blood, and it was cast unto the earth; and, the third of the earth, was burned up, and, the third of the trees, was burned up, and, all green herbage, was burned up. ⁸And, the second messenger, sounded; and, as it were a great mountain burning with fire, was cast into the sea; and the third of the sea became blood, ⁹and the third of the creatures which were in the sea, which had life, died, the third of the ships, was destroyed. ¹⁰And, the third messenger, sounded; and there fell, out of heaven, a great star, burning as a torch, and it fell upon the third of the rivers, and upon the fountains of waters. ¹¹And, the name of the star, is called Wormwood; and the third of the waters became wormwood, and many of the men died of the waters, because they were made bitter. ¹²And, the fourth messenger, sounded; and the third of the sun was smitten, and the third of the moon, and the third of the stars,—in order that the third of them might be darkened, and the day might not shine for the third of it, and the night, in like manner. ¹³And I saw, and I heard one eagle, flying in mid-heaven, saying with a loud voice—Woe! woe! woe! unto them that are dwelling upon the earth, by reason of the remaining voices of the trumpet, of the three messengers who are about to sound.

⁹And, the fifth messenger, sounded; and I saw a star, out of heaven, fallen unto the earth, and there was given unto him the key of the shaft of the abyss. ²And he opened the shaft of the abyss; and there came up a smoke out of the shaft, as the smoke of a great furnace, and the sun and the air were darkened, by reason of the smoke of the shaft. ³And, out of the smoke, came forth, locusts, upon the earth; and there was given unto them licence, as the scorpions of the earth have licence. ⁴And it was bidden them that they should not injure the herbage of the earth, nor any green thing, nor any tree,—but only the men who have not the seal of God upon their foreheads. ⁵And it was given unto them, that they should not slay them, but that they should be tormented five months; and, the torture of them, was as of a scorpion's torture, whensoever it smiteth a man. ⁶And, in those days, shall men seek death, and in nowise shall find it, and shall covet to die, and death fleeth from them. ⁷And, the likenesses of the locusts, were like unto horses prepared for battle; and, upon their heads, as it were crowns, like unto gold, and, their faces, were as the faces of men, ⁸and, they had hair, as the hair of women, and, their teeth, were, as of lions, ⁹and they had breastplates as breastplates of iron, and, the sound of their wings, was as the sound of chariots of many horses, running into battle; ¹⁰and they have tails like unto scorpions, and stings, and, in their tails, is their licence to injure men five months. ¹¹They have over them, as king, the messenger of the abyss, whose name, in Hebrew, is Abaddon \ul1 " =Destroyer" \ul0 , and, in the Greek, he hath for name, Destroyer. ¹²The first, Woe, hath passed away, lo! there come, yet, two, Woes, after these things. ¹³And, the sixth messenger, sounded; and I heard one voice, from among the horns of the altar of gold which is before God, ¹⁴saying unto the sixth messenger, who was holding the trumpet—Loose the four messengers, who are bound at the great river Euphrates. ¹⁵And the four messengers were loosed, who had been prepared for the hour, and day, and month, and year, that they should slay the third of men. ¹⁶And, the number of the armies of the horsemen, was twice ten thousand times ten thousand—I heard the number of them.

¹⁷And, thus, saw I the horses in the vision,—and them who were sitting upon them, having breastplates as of fire and hyacinth and brimstone;—and, the heads of the horses, were as heads of lions, and, out of their mouths, come forth fire and smoke and brimstone: ¹⁸by these three plagues, were slain, the third part of mankind, by reason of the fire and the smoke and the brimstone, that proceedeth out of their mouths; ¹⁹for, the licence of the horses, is, in their mouth, and in their tails, for, their tails, are like unto serpents, having heads, and, with them, they injure. ²⁰And, the rest of mankind who were not slain by these plagues, repented not of the works of their hands,—that they should not do homage unto the demons, nor unto the idols of gold and of silver and of copper and of stone and of wood, which can neither see nor hear nor walk; ²¹Neither repented they of their murders, or of their sorceries, or of their lewdnesses, or of their thefts.

¹⁰And I saw another, a mighty messenger, descending out of heaven,—arrayed with a cloud, and, the rainbow, was upon his head, and, his face, was as the sun, and, his feet, were as pillars of fire, ²and he was holding in his hand a little scroll, opened; and he set his right foot upon the sea, and his left upon the land, ³and cried out with a loud voice, just as a lion, roareth. And, when he cried out, the seven thunders uttered their own voices. ⁴And, when the seven thunders had spoken, I was about to write, and I heard a voice out of heaven, saying—Seal up the things which the seven thunders have uttered, and do not write, them. ⁵And, the messenger, whom I saw standing upon the sea and upon the land, lifted up his right hand unto heaven, ⁶and sware, by him that liveth unto the ages of ages, who created heaven, and the things that are therein, and the earth, and the things that are therein, \ul1 and the sea, and the things that are therein, \ul0 Delay, no longer, shall there be; ⁷but, in the days of the sounding of the seventh messenger, as soon as he is about to blow his trumpet, then shall have been completed the sacred secret of God as he told the good-news unto his own servants the prophets. ⁸And, the voice which I had heard out of heaven, I again heard talking with me; and saying—Go take the opened scroll, that is in the hand of the messenger who is standing upon the sea and upon the land. ⁹And I went away unto the messenger, asking him to give me the little scroll; and he saith unto me—Take it, and eat it up; and it shall embitter thy belly, but, in thy mouth, shall be sweet as honey. ¹⁰And I took the little scroll out of the hand of the messenger, and did eat it up; and it was, in my mouth, as honey, sweet, and, when I had eaten it, embittered was my belly. ¹¹And they say unto me—It behoveth thee again to prophesy against peoples and nations and tongues, and many kings.

¹¹And there was given unto me a reed, like unto a staff, saying—Rise, and measure the Sanctuary of God, and the altar, and them who are doing homage therein; ²and, the court that is outside the Sanctuary, cast thou outside, and do not measure, it, because it hath been given unto the nations, and, the holy city, shall they tread under foot, forty and two months. ³And I will give unto my two witnesses, that they shall prophesy, a thousand two hundred and sixty days, arrayed in sackcloth. ⁴These, are the two olive-trees, and the two lamps, which, before the Lord of the earth, do stand. ⁵And, if any one, upon them, chooseth to inflict injury, fire, cometh forth out of their mouth, and devoureth their enemies; and, if anyone shall choose, upon them, to inflict injury, thus, must he be slain. ⁶These, have authority to shut heaven, in order that, no rain, be moistening in the days of their prophesying; and, authority, have they, over the waters, to be turning them into blood, and to smite the land, with any manner of plague, as often as they will. ⁷And, as soon as they have completed their witnessing, the wild-beast that is to come up out of the abyss, will make war with them, and overcome them, and slay them. ⁸And their dead bodies lie upon the Broadway of the great city, the which is called, spiritually, Sodom and Egypt, where, their Lord also was crucified. ⁹And some of the peoples, and tribes, and tongues, and nations, see, their dead bodies three days and a half, and, their dead bodies, do they not suffer to be put into a tomb. ¹⁰And, they who are dwelling upon the earth, rejoice over them, and make merry, and, gifts, will they send one to another,—because, these two prophets, tormented them that were dwelling upon the earth. ¹¹And, after \u0011 the \u0011 three days and a half, a spirit of life from God, entered within them, and they stood upon their feet; and, great fear, fell upon them who were beholding them. ¹²And they heard a loud voice out of heaven, saying unto them—Come up hither! And they went up into heaven, in the cloud, and, their enemies, beheld them. ¹³And, in that hour, there came to be a great earthquake; and, the tenth of the city, fell, and there were slain, in the earthquake, names of men—seven thousand. And, the rest, became, greatly afraid, and gave glory unto the God of heaven. ¹⁴The second Woe, hath passed away,—lo! the third Woe, cometh speedily. ¹⁵And, the seventh messenger, sounded; and there came to be loud voices in heaven, saying—The kingdom of the world, hath become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, and he shall reign unto the ages of ages. ¹⁶And, the twenty-four elders who, before God, do sit upon their thrones, fell down upon their faces, and rendered homage unto God, ¹⁷saying—We give thanks unto thee, O Lord God, the Almighty, Who is, and Who was; because thou hast taken thy great power, and hast become king. ¹⁸And, the nations, were angered; and thine anger, came, and the fit time of the dead, to be vindicated, and to give their reward unto thy servants the prophets, and unto the saints, and unto them who revere thy name—the small and the great, and to despoil them who were despoiling the earth. ¹⁹And the sanctuary of God which is in heaven, was opened, and the ark of his covenant in his sanctuary, appeared, and there came to be lightnings, and voices, and thunderings, and an earthquake, and great hail.

12And, a great sign, appeared in heaven: a woman arrayed with the sun, and, the moon, beneath her feet, and, upon her head, a crown of twelve stars; ²and she was with child, and crieth out, being in pangs and in anguish to bring forth? ³And there appeared another sign in heaven; and lo! a great red dragon,—having seven heads and ten horns, and, upon his heads, seven diadems; ⁴and, his tail, draweth the third part of the stars of heaven, and did cast them to the earth. And, the dragon, stood before the woman who was about to bring forth, that, as soon as she should bring forth, he might devour, her child. ⁵And she brought forth a son, a manchild, who was about to shepherd all the nations with a sceptre of iron; and her child was caught away unto God and unto his throne. ⁶And, the woman, fled into the desert, where she hath a place prepared of God, that, there, they should nourish her a thousand, two hundred, and sixty days. ⁷And there came to be war in heaven: Michael and his messengers going forth to war with the dragon; and, the dragon, fought, and his messengers; ⁸and he prevailed not, neither was place found for them, any longer, in heaven. ⁹And the great dragon was cast out,—the ancient serpent, he that is called Adversary and the Satan, that deceiveth the whole habitable world,—he was cast to the earth, and his messengers, with him, were cast. ¹⁰And I heard a loud voice in heaven, saying—Now, hath come the salvation, and the power, and the kingdom of our God, and the authority of his Christ; because the accuser of our brethren hath been cast out, who was accusing them before our God day and night; ¹¹And, they, overcame him by reason of the blood of the Lamb, and by reason of their witnessing word, and they loved not their life, even unto death. ¹²For this cause, be joyful, O heavens, and ye who, therein, are tabernacling. Woe! unto the earth, and the sea, because the Adversary hath come down unto you, having great wrath—knowing that, but a little season, he hath. ¹³And, when the dragon saw that he was cast to the earth, he pursued the woman who had brought forth the manchild. ¹⁴And there were given unto the woman the two wings of the great eagle, that she might fly into the desert, into her place,—where she is nourished, a season and seasons and half a season, from the face of the serpent. ¹⁵And the serpent cast out of his mouth, after the woman, water as a river, that he might cause her to be carried away by the stream. ¹⁶And the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed up the river which the dragon cast out of his mouth. ¹⁷And the dragon was angered against the woman, and went away to make war with the rest of her seed—with them who were keeping the commandments of God, and holding the witness of Jesus;—and he stood upon the sand of the sea.

13And I saw, out of the sea, a wild-beast coming up; having ten horns, and seven heads, and, upon his horns, ten diadems, and, upon his head, names of blasphemy. ²And, the beast which I saw, was like unto a leopard; and, his feet, as of a bear, and, his mouth, as the mouth of a lion. And the dragon gave unto him his power, and his throne, and great authority. ³And I saw one of his heads, showing that it had been slain unto death, and, the stroke of his death, was healed. And the whole earth marveled after the wild-beast, ⁴and did homage unto the dragon, because he gave his authority unto the wild-beast; and they did homage unto the wild-beast, saying—Who is like unto the wild-beast? and Who can make war with him? ⁵And there was given unto him, a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies; and it was given unto him to act, forty and two months. ⁶And he opened his mouth for blasphemy against God, to blaspheme his name, and his tent,—them, who, in heaven were tabernacling. ⁷And it was given unto him, to make war with the saints, and to overcome them; and there was given him, authority against every tribe and people and tongue and nation. ⁸And all they who are dwelling upon the earth will do homage unto him,— every one whose name is not written in the scroll of life of the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world. ⁹If any-one hath an ear: let him hear. ¹⁰If anyone carrieth into captivity, into captivity, he goeth away. If anyone, with a sword, doth slay, he must, with a sword, be slain. Here, is the endurance and the faith of the saints. ¹¹And I saw another wild-beast, coming up out of the earth; and he had two horns, like unto a lamb, and began speaking as a dragon. ¹²And, all the authority of the first wild-beast, he useth before him; and causeth the earth, and them who, therein, are dwelling, that they shall do homage unto the first wild-beast, whose stroke of death, was healed. ¹³And he doeth great signs, so that, even fire, he causeth to be coming down unto the earth before men; ¹⁴and he deceiveth them who are dwelling upon the earth, by reason of the signs which it was given him to do before the wild-beast,—saying unto them who are dwelling upon the earth, that they should make an image unto the wild-beast who hath the stroke of the sword, and yet did live. ¹⁵And it was given unto it, to give spirit unto the image of the wild-beast, in order that the image of the wild-beast should both speak and should cause that, as many as should not do homage unto the image of the wild-beast, should be slain. ¹⁶And he causeth all—the small and the great, and the rich and the poor, and the free and the bond,—that they should give unto them a mark, upon their right hand or upon their forehead; ¹⁷and that no one should be able to buy or to sell, save he that hath the mark, the name of the beast, or the number of his name. ¹⁸Here, is, wisdom: he that hath understanding, let him count the number of the beast, for it is, the number of a man; and, his number, is 666.

14And I saw, and lo! the Lamb, standing upon the mount Zion,—and, with him, a hundred and forty-four thousand, having his name and his Father's name written upon their foreheads. ²And I heard a sound out of heaven, as the sound of many waters, and as the sound of, loud thunders; and, the sound which I heard, was as of harp-singers harping with their harps, ³And they sing as it were a new song before the throne, and before the four living creatures and the elders. And, no one, was able to learn the song, save the hundred and forty-four thousand, who had been redeemed from the earth. ⁴These, are they, who with women, were not defiled, for they are, virgin. These, are they who follow the Lamb whithersoever he is going. These, were redeemed from mankind, as a firstfruit unto God and the Lamb; ⁵and, in their mouth, was found no falsehood,—faultless, they are. ⁶And I saw another messenger, flying in mid-heaven, having an age-abiding glad-message to announce unto them who are dwelling upon the earth, even unto every nation and tribe and tongue and people, ⁷saying with a loud voice,—Fear God and give him glory, because the hour of his judging is come; and do homage unto him that made heaven and the earth and sea and fountains of waters. ⁸And, another, a second messenger followed, saying—Fallen! fallen! is Babylon the great, who, of the wine of the wrath of her lewdness, hath caused all the nations to drink. ⁹And, another, a third messenger, followed them, saying with a loud voice—If anyone doeth homage unto the beast and his image, and receiveth a mark upon his forehead, or upon his hand, ¹⁰he also, shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is prepared, unmixed, in the cup of his anger;—and he shall be tormented with fire and brimstone, before holy messengers and before the Lamb; ¹¹And, the smoke of their torment, unto ages of ages, ascendeth; And they have no rest day or night, who do homage unto the beast and his image, or if anyone receiveth the mark of his name. ¹²Here, is, the endurance of the saints,—they who keep the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus. ¹³And I heard a voice out of heaven, saying—Write! Happy, the dead who, in the Lord, do die, from henceforth. Yea! (saith the Spirit) that they may rest from their toils, for, their works, do follow with them. ¹⁴And I saw, and lo! a white cloud, and, upon the cloud, one sitting like unto a son of man, having, upon his head, a crown of gold, and, in his hand, a sharp sickle. ¹⁵And, another messenger, came forth out of the sanctuary, crying out with a loud voice, unto him that was sitting upon the cloud—Thrust in thy sickle, and reap; because the hour to reap is come, because the harvest of the earth is ripe. ¹⁶And he that was sitting upon the cloud, thrust in, his sickle upon the earth; and the earth was reaped. ¹⁷And, another messenger, came forth out of the sanctuary that is in heaven,—he also, having a sharp sickle. ¹⁸And, another messenger, \u0001 came forth\u0000 out of the altar, who hath authority over the fire,—and called out with a loud voice, unto him who had the sharp sickle, saying—Thrust in thy sharp sickle, and gather the clusters of the vine of the earth; because the grapes thereof are fully ripe. ¹⁹And the messenger, thrust in, his sickle into the earth, and gathered the vine of the earth, and cast it into the great wine-press of the wrath of God. ²⁰And the wine-press was trodden outside the city, and there came forth blood out of the wine-press, even unto the bits of the horses, at a distance of a thousand six hundred furlongs.

¹⁵And I saw another sign in heaven, great and marvellous, seven messengers having seven plagues, the last, because, in them, was ended the wrath of God. ²And I saw as a glassy sea mingled with fire, and them who escape victorious from the beast, and from his image, and from the number of his name, standing upon the glassy sea, having harps of God; ³and they sing the song of Moses the servant of God and the song of the Lamb, saying—Great and marvelous, are thy works, Lord, God, the Almighty! Righteous and true, are thy ways, O King of the ages! ⁴Who shall in anywise not be put in fear, O Lord, and glorify thy name,—because, alone, full of lovingkindness; because, all the nations, will have come, and will do homage before thee, because, thy righteous deeds, were made manifest? ⁵And, after these things, I saw, and the sanctuary of The Tent of Witness in heaven, was opened; ⁶And the seven messengers who had the seven plagues, came forth, out of the sanctuary clothed with a precious stone, pure, bright, and girt about the breasts with girdles of gold. ⁷And, one of the four living creatures, gave, unto the seven messengers, seven golden bowls, full of the wrath of God who liveth unto the ages of ages. ⁸And the sanctuary was filled with smoke by reason of the glory of God, and by reason of his power; and, no one, was able to enter into the sanctuary, until the seven plagues of the seven messengers should be ended.

¹⁶And I heard aloud voice, out of the sanctuary, saying unto the seven messengers—Go, and be pouring out the seven bowls of the wrath of God unto the earth. ²And the first departed, and poured out his bowl unto the earth; and there came to be a baneful and painful ulcer, upon the men who had the mark of the beast, and them who were doing homage unto his image. ³And, the second, poured out his bowl into the sea; and it became blood, as of a dead man, and, every living soul, died—as regardeth the things in the sea. ⁴And, the third, poured out his bowl into the rivers, and the fountains of waters; and they became blood. ⁵And I heard the messenger of the waters, saying—Righteous, art thou Who art, and Who wast, Who art full of lovingkindness,—in that, these things, thou hast adjudged; ⁶Because, blood of saints and prophets, poured they out, and, blood, unto them, hast thou given to drink: Worthy, they are! ⁷And I heard the altar, saying—Yea! Lord, God, the Almighty: True and righteous, are thy judgments! ⁸And, the fourth, poured out his bowl upon the sun; and it was given unto it, to scorch mankind with fire; ⁹and mankind were scorched with a great scorching heat, and they blasphemed the name of God who had authority over these plagues, and repented not to give him glory. ¹⁰And, the fifth, poured out his bowl upon the throne of the beast; and his kingdom became darkened, and they began to gnaw their tongues by reason of the pain,—¹¹and they blasphemed the God of heaven, by reason of their pain, and by reason of their ulcers, and repented not of their works. ¹²And, the sixth, poured out his bowl upon the great river: \u0001 the\u0000 Euphrates; and the water thereof, was dried up, that the way might be prepared, of the kings who were from the rising of the sun. ¹³And I saw, out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false-prophet, three impure spirits, as frogs; ¹⁴for they are spirits of demons, doing signs, which are to go forth unto the kings of the whole habitable earth, to gather them together unto the battle of the great day of God the Almighty.—¹⁵Lo! I come as a thief! Happy, he that is watching, and keeping his garments, lest, naked, he be walking, and they see his shame.—¹⁶And he gathered them together unto the place that is called, in Hebrew, Har Magedon. ¹⁷And, the seventh, poured out his bowl upon the air.—And there came forth a loud voice out of the sanctuary, from the throne, saying—Accomplished! ¹⁸And there came to be lightnings, and voices, and thunders; and, a great earthquake, took place,—such as had never taken place since men came to be on the earth,—such a mighty earthquake, so great; ¹⁹and the great city became divided into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell; and, Babylon the Great, was brought into remembrance before God, to give unto her the cup of the wine of the wrath of his anger; ²⁰and, every island, fled, and, mountains, were not found. ²¹And, great hail, as talents, cometh down out of heaven upon mankind; and men blasphemed God, by reason of the plague of hail,—because the plague thereof was, exceeding great.

¹⁷And one of the seven messengers who had the seven bowls came, and spake with me, saying—Hither! I will point out to thee the judgment of the great harlot, who sitteth upon many waters, ²with whom the kings of the earth committed lewdness,—and they who were dwelling upon the earth were made drunk with the wine of her lewdness. ³And he carried me away into a desert, in spirit. And I saw a woman, sitting upon a scarlet wild-beast full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten horns. ⁴And, the woman, was arrayed with purple and scarlet, and decked with gold and precious stone and pearls,—having a cup of gold in her hand, full of abominations and the impurities of her lewdness; ⁵and, upon her forehead, a name written, a secret: Babylon the great, the Mother of the Harlots and of the Abominations of the earth. ⁶And I saw the woman, drunk with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the witnesses of Jesus. And I was astonished, when I beheld her, with great astonishment. ⁷And the messenger said unto me—Wherefore wast thou astonished? I, will tell thee the secret of the woman, and of the wild-beast that carrieth her, which hath the seven heads and the ten horns. ⁸The wild-beast which thou sawest, was, and is not, and is about to come up out of the abyss, and into, destruction, goeth away. And they who are dwelling upon the earth whose name is not written upon the book of life from the foundation of the world, will be astonished, when they see the wild-beast, because it was, and is not, and shall be present. ⁹Here, is the mind that hath wisdom. The seven heads, are, seven mountains, whereupon the woman sitteth; ¹⁰and they are, seven kings: the five, have fallen, the one, is, the other, hath not yet come; and, whensoever he shall come, a little while, must he remain, ¹¹and the wild-beast which was and is not. And he, is an eighth, and is, of the seven,—and, into destruction, goeth away. ¹²And, the ten horns which thou sawest, are, ten kings,—who, indeed, have not received, sovereignty, as yet, but, authority, as kings, for one hour, shall receive, with the wild-beast. ¹³These, have, one mind, and, their power and authority, unto the wild-beast, they give. ¹⁴These, with the Lamb, will make war; and, the Lamb, will overcome them, because he is, Lord of lords, and King of kings,—and, they who are with him, are called and chosen and faithful. ¹⁵And he saith unto me—The waters which thou sawest, where the harlot sitteth, are, peoples and multitudes, and nations and tongues. ¹⁶And the ten horns which thou sawest, and the wild-beast, these, shall hate the harlot, and, desolate, shall make her, and naked, and, her flesh, shall they eat, and, herself, shall they burn up with fire. ¹⁷For, God, hath put into their hearts, to do his mind, and to do one mind,—and to give their sovereignty unto the wild-beast, until the words of God shall be completed. ¹⁸And, the woman whom thou sawest, is the great city, which hath sovereignty over the kings of the earth.

18After these things, I saw another messenger, coming down out of heaven,—having great authority; and, the earth, was illumined with his glory. ²And he cried out, with a mighty voice, saying—Fallen! fallen! is Babylon the Great, and hath become a habitation of demons, and a prison of every impure spirit, and a prison of every impure and hated bird; ³Because, by reason \u0026 of the wine\u0026 of the wrath of her lewdness, have all the nations fallen, and, the kings of the earth, with her, did commit lewdness, and, the merchants of the earth, by reason of the power of her wantonness, waxed rich. ⁴And I heard another voice out of heaven, saying—Come forth, my people, out of her,—that ye may have no fellowship with her sins, and, of her plagues, that ye may not receive; ⁵because her sins were joined together as far as heaven, and God hath remembered her unrighteous deeds. ⁶Render ye unto her, as, she also, rendered, and double \u0026 the\u0026 double, according to her works,—in the cup wherein she mixed, mix, unto her, double,—⁷As much as she glorified herself, and waxed wanton, so much give, unto her, torment and grief:—because, in her heart, she saith—I sit a Queen, and, widow, am I not, and, grief, in nowise shall I see! ⁸Therefore, in one day, shall have come her plagues,—death and grief and famine; and, with fire, shall she be burned up;—because, mighty, is the \u0026 Lord\u0026 God who hath judged her. ⁹And they shall weep and wail over her—shall the kings of the earth who, with her, committed lewdness and waxed wanton,—as soon as they see the smoke of her burning,—¹⁰afar off, standing, because of their fear of her torment, saying—Alas! alas! the great city! Babylon, the mighty city! That, in one hour, hath come thy judgment. ¹¹And, the merchants of the earth, weep and grieve over her, because, their cargo, no one, buyeth any more: ¹²cargo of gold, and silver, and precious stone, and pearls, and fine linen, and purple, and silk, and scarlet, and all thyine wood, and every article of ivory, and every article of wood most precious, and of copper, and of iron, and of marble, ¹³and cinnamon, and spice, and incense, and unguent, and frankincense, and wine, and oil, and fine flour, and wheat, and cattle, and sheep, and cargo of horses, and of chariots, and of bodies, and lives of men. ¹⁴And, the fruit of the coveting of thy soul, hath departed from thee, and, all things rich and bright, have perished from thee; and, no more, in anywise, for them, shall they seek. ¹⁵The merchants of these things, who were enriched by her, afar off, shall stand, because of their fear of her torment, weeping, and grieving, ¹⁶as they say—Alas! alas! the great city! She that was arrayed in fine linen, and purple, and scarlet, and decked with gold, and precious stone, and pearl,—¹⁷That, in one hour, hath been laid waste, such great wealth as this! And, every pilot, and every passenger, and mariners, and as many as, by the sea, carry on traffic, afar off did stand, ¹⁸and they cried out, seeing the smoke of her burning, saying—What city is like unto the great city? ¹⁹And they cast dust upon their heads, and cried out, weeping and grieving, saying—Alas! alas! the great city! Whereby were made rich all that had ships in the sea, by reason of her costliness,—that, in one hour, she hath been laid waste! ²⁰Be glad over her, thou heaven! And ye saints, and ye apostles, and ye prophets! For that God hath exacted your vindication from her. ²¹And one mighty messenger lifted a stone, as it were a great millstone, and cast it into the sea, saying—Thus, with main force, shall be cast down, Babylon the great city,—and in nowise be found any more; ²²And sound of harp-singers, and musicians, and flute-players, and trumpeters,—in nowise be heard in thee any more; and any artisan \u01d7 of any art\u01d7, —in nowise be found in thee any more; and sound of millstone,—in nowise be found in thee any more; ²³And light of lamp,—in nowise shine in thee any more; and voice of bridegroom and bride,—in nowise be heard in thee any more; because, thy merchants, were the great ones of the earth, because, with thy sorcery, were all the nations deceived: ²⁴And, in her, blood of prophets and saints, was found,—and of all who had been slain upon the earth.

19After these things, I heard as it were, a loud voice of a great multitude in heaven, saying—Hallelujah! The salvation and the glory and the power of our God! ²Because, true and righteous, are his judgments; because he hath judged the great harlot, who, indeed, corrupted the earth with her lewdness,—and hath avenged the blood of his servants, at her hand. ³And, a second time, have they said—Hallelujah! And, her smoke, ascendeth unto ages of ages. ⁴And the twenty-four elders and the four living creatures, fell down, and did homage unto God, who sitteth upon the throne, saying—Amen! Hallelujah! ⁵And, a voice, from the throne, came forth, saying—Be giving praise unto our God, all ye his servants, ye that revere him, the small and the great. ⁶And I heard as a voice of a great multitude, and as a voice of many waters, and as a voice of mighty thunderings, saying—Hallelujah! Because the Lord, \u01d7 our\u01d7 God, the Almighty, hath become king. ⁷Let us rejoice and exult, and give glory unto him, because the marriage of the Lamb, is come, and, his wife, hath made herself ready; ⁸and it hath been given unto her, that she should be arrayed in fine linen, bright, pure, for, the fine linen, is, the righteous acts of the saints. ⁹And he saith unto me—Write! Happy, they who, unto the marriage supper of the Lamb, have been bidden! And he saith unto me—These words, are, true words of God. ¹⁰And I fell down at his feet, to do him homage; and he saith unto me—See! thou do it not! A fellow-servant, am I, of thee and of thy brethren who have the witness of Jesus: unto God, do homage! For, the witness of Jesus, is the spirit of the prophecy. ¹¹And I saw heaven, set open, and lo! a white horse, and, he that was sitting thereon, \u01d7 called\u01d7 Faithful, and True; and, in righteousness, doth he judge and make war; ¹²and, his eyes, are a flame of fire, and, upon his head, are many diadems, having, a name, written, which, no one, knoweth, but himself, ¹³and arrayed with a mantle sprinkled with blood, and his name hath been called—The Word of God. ¹⁴And, the armies which were in heaven, were following him, upon white horses, clothed with fine linen, white, pure; ¹⁵and, out of his mouth, is going forth a sharp sword, that, therewith, he may smite the nations,—and, he, shall shepherd them with a sceptre of iron, and, he, treadeth the wine-press of the wrath of the anger of God the Almighty. ¹⁶And he hath, upon his mantle and upon his thigh, a name, written—King of kings, and Lord of lords. ¹⁷And I saw one messenger, standing in the sun, and he cried out with a loud voice, saying, unto all the birds that fly in mid-heaven,—Hither! be gathered together unto the great supper of God,— ¹⁸that ye may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of captains, and the flesh of mighty men, and the flesh of horses, and of them who sit upon them, and the flesh of all, both free and bond, and small and great. ¹⁹And I saw the wild-beast, and the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together—to make war with him who was sitting upon the horse, and with his army. ²⁰And the wild-beast, was taken, and, with him, the false prophet who wrought the signs before him, whereby he deceived them who received the mark of the wild-beast and them who were doing homage unto his image,—alive, were they two cast into the lake of fire that burneth with brimstone. ²¹And, the rest, were slain with the sword of him that was sitting upon the horse, which went forth out of his mouth, and, all the birds, were filled with their flesh.

20And I saw a messenger, coming down out of heaven, having the key of the abyss, and a great chain upon his hand; ²and he laid hold of the dragon, the ancient serpent, who is Adversary and the Accuser, and bound him for a thousand years,— ³and cast him into the abyss, and fastened and sealed it over him,—that he might not deceive the nations any more, until the thousand years, should be ended: after these, must he be loosed for a short time. ⁴And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and sentence of judgment was given unto them; and I saw the souls of them who had been beheaded because of the witness of Jesus and because of the word of God, and such as had not done homage unto the wild-beast or unto his image, nor had received the mark upon their forehead or upon their hand; and they lived and reigned with the Christ, for a thousand years. ⁵The rest of the dead, lived not, until the thousand years, were ended. This, is the first resurrection. ⁶Happy and holy, is he that hath part in the first resurrection: upon these, the second death, hath no authority; but they shall be priests of God and of the Christ, and shall reign with him for the thousand years. ⁷And, as soon as the thousand years, shall be ended, the Accuser shall be loosed out of his prison, ⁸and will go forth to deceive the nations that are in the four corners of the earth, the Gog and Magog, to gather them together unto the battle—the number of whom, is as the sand of the sea. ⁹And they came up over the breadth of the land, and surrounded the camp of the saints, and the beloved city. And there came down fire out of heaven, and devoured them; ¹⁰and, the Adversary that had been deceiving them, was cast into the lake of fire and brimstone, where were both the wild-beast and the false-prophet; and they shall be tormented, day and night, unto the ages of ages. ¹¹And I saw a great white throne, and him that was sitting thereon, from whose face fled the earth and heaven, and, place, was not found for them. ¹²And I saw the dead, the great and the small, standing before the throne; and, books, were opened, and, another book, was opened, which is, the book, of life; and the dead, were judged, out of the things written in the books, according to their works. ¹³And the sea gave up the dead that were in it, and, death and hades, gave up the dead that were in them; and they were judged, each one, according to their works. ¹⁴And, death and hades, were cast into the lake of fire. This, is, the second death—the lake of fire. ¹⁵And, if anyone was not found, in the book of life, written, he was cast into the lake of fire.

21And I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for, the first heaven and the first earth, have passed away, and, the sea, is no more. ²And, the holy city, new Jerusalem, saw I coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. ³And I heard a loud voice out of the throne, saying—Lo! the tent of God, is with men, and he will tabernacle with them, and, they, shall be, his peoples, and, he, shall be, God with them; ⁴And he will wipe away every tear out of their eyes,—and, death, shall be no more, and grief and outcry and pain shall be no more: the first things, have passed away. ⁵And he that was sitting upon the throne said— Lo! I make all things, new. And he saith—Write! because, these words, are, faithful and true. ⁶And he said unto me—Accomplished! I, am the A, and the Z, the Beginning and the End: I, unto him that is thirsting, will give of the fountain of the water of life, freely: ⁷He that overcometh, shall inherit these things,—And I will be, to him, a God, and, he, shall be, to me, a son; ⁸But, as for the timid, and disbelieving, and abominable, and murderers, and fornicators, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all the false, their part, is in the lake that burneth with fire and brimstone,—which is the second death. ⁹And there came one of the seven messengers which had the seven bowls, that were full of the seven last plagues, and spake with me, saying— Hither! I will point out to thee the bride, the wife of the Lamb. ¹⁰And he carried me away, in spirit, unto a mountain great and high, and pointed out to me the holy city, Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God; ¹¹having the glory of God,—her lustre, like unto a stone most precious, as a jasper stone, shining as crystal; ¹²having a wall great and high, having twelve gates, and, at the gates, twelve messengers, and names inscribed, which are the names of the twelve tribes of the sons of Israel,— ¹³on the east, three gates, and, on the north, three gates, and, on the south, three gates, and, on the west, three gates; ¹⁴and, the wall of the city, having twelve foundations, and, upon them, twelve names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb. ¹⁵And, he that was talking with me, had, for a measure, a reed of gold, that he might measure the city, and the gates thereof, and the wall thereof. ¹⁶And, the city, four-square, lieth, and, the length thereof, is as great as the breadth. And he measured the city, with the reed,—twelve thousand furlongs: the length, and the breadth, and the height thereof, are, equal. ¹⁷And he measured the wall thereof,—a hundred and forty-four cubits: the measure of a man, which is the measure of a messenger. ¹⁸And, the structure of the wall thereof, was jasper, and, the city, was pure gold, like unto pure glass. ¹⁹The foundations of the wall of the city, with every precious stone were adorned: the first foundation, was jasper, the second, sapphire, the third, chalcedony, the fourth, emerald, ²⁰the fifth, sardonyx, the sixth, sardius, the seventh, chrysolite, the eighth, beryl, the ninth, topaz, the tenth, chrysoprase, the eleventh, hyacinth, the twelfth, amethyst; ²¹and, the twelve gates, were twelve pearls,—each one of the gates, severally, was of one pearl; and, the Broadway of the city, was pure gold, as transparent glass. ²²And, sanctuary, saw I none therein; for, the Lord, God, the Almighty, is the sanctuary thereof, and the Lamb. ²³And, the city, hath no need of the sun, nor of the moon, that they should shine therein; for, the glory of God, illumined it, and, the lamp thereof, was the Lamb. ²⁴And the nations, shall walk, through her light; and, the kings of the earth, do bring their glory into it, ²⁵and, the gates thereof, shall in nowise be shut, by day,—night, in fact, shall not be there,— ²⁶and they shall bring the glory and the honour of the nations into it. ²⁷And in nowise shall there enter into it, anything common, or he that doeth abomination and falsehood,—but only they who are written in the Lamb's book of life.

22And he pointed out to me a river of water of life, bright as crystal, issuing forth out of the throne of God and of the Lamb, ²in the midst of the Broadway thereof. And, on this side of the river and on that, was a tree of life, bearing twelve crops of fruit, every several month, yielding its fruit; and, the leaves of the tree, were for the healing of the nations, ³And, no curse, shall there be, any more; and, the throne of God and of the Lamb, shall be, therein,—and his servants will render divine service unto him, ⁴and they shall see his face, and, his name, shall be upon their foreheads. ⁵And, night, shall be, no more; and they have no need of the light of a lamp or the light of a sun, because, the Lord, God, will give them light,—and they shall reign unto the ages of ages. ⁶And he said unto me—These words, are faithful and true; and, the Lord, the God of the spirits of the prophets, hath sent his messenger, to point out, unto his servants, the things which must needs come to pass with speed. ⁷And—Lo! I come speedily! Happy, is he that keepeth the words of the prophecy of this scroll.

⁸And, I, John, am he that was hearing and seeing these things; and, when I had heard and seen, I fell down to do homage at the feet of the messenger who had been pointing out unto me these things,—⁹and he saith unto me—See thou do it not! A fellow-servant, am I, of thee, and of thy brethren the prophets, and of them who keep the words of this scroll: unto God, do homage. ¹⁰And he saith unto me—Do not seal up the words of the prophecy of this scroll, for, the season, is, near: ¹¹He that is doing unjustly, let him do unjustly, still, and, he that is filthy, let him be made filthy, still; and, he that is righteous, let him do righteousness, still, and, he that is holy, let him be hallowed, still:—¹²Lo! I come speedily, and my reward is with me, to render unto each one as, his, work is. ¹³I, am the A and the Z, the First and the Last, the Beginning and the End. ¹⁴Happy, they who are washing their robes, that their right may be unto the tree of life and, by the gates, they may enter into the city. ¹⁵Outside, are the dogs, and the sorcerers, and the unchaste, and the murderers, and the idolaters, and every one loving and doing falsehood. ¹⁶I, Jesus, have sent my messenger, to bear witness unto you of these things, for the assemblies. I, am the Root and the Offspring of David, the bright and the morning Star. ¹⁷And, the Spirit and the Bride, say—Come! and, he that heareth, let him say—Come! and, he that is athirst, let him come,—he that will, let him take of the water of life, freely. ¹⁸I, bear witness, unto every one that heareth the words of the prophecy of this scroll:—If anyone shall lay aught upon them, God, will lay upon him, the plagues which are written in this scroll; ¹⁹And, if anyone shall take away from the words of this prophetic scroll, God, will take away his part,—from the tree of life, and out of the holy city,—from the things written in this scroll. ²⁰He that beareth witness of these things, saith—Yea! I come, speedily. Amen! come, Lord Jesus! ²¹The favour of the Lord Jesus \ul1 Christ\ul0 be with the saints.
